Dr. Adrienne Bailey, vice president of office affairs for the New York College Board, stressed the need for a change in the academic structure of colleges to create a greater awareness of and objectivity towards minorities in a lecture Sunday night about “The Challenge to American Education” for minorities in society today.

Contemporary technology calls for quality and diversity in education, she said. “You are either part of the solution, or part of the problem,” Bailey said. “The number of black stu­dents is declining rapidly in higher education because of this passive attitude towards minorities in general. It is time for a change.”

All students must recognize the need for a college curriculum that includes the minority groups and their unique contributions to the history and development of human beings, said Bailey.

Today, our growing economy requires a new outlook, special aptitudes, and an educational environment accepting of others,” she said.

“The future of America lies in a work force that can think, accept, and welcome change. Without an open college atmosphere that includes well-informed, caring teachers and high academic standards, the quality of students entering the work force will be deficient,” Bailey said.

Bailey used the example of a Stanford University case concerning the content of one of its Western culture courses required by all freshmen. The administration and faculty have been arguing over the implications of this course as a requirement for Stanford undergraduates - namely, the impor­tance that Western civilization is the only culture worth studying, she said.

The faculty is trying to change the name of the course to “Cultures, Values, and Ideas” and incorporate non-European culture classes which contribute to America. “The Stanford University debate is a perfect example of the lack of objectivity in higher-level academic institutions. A core reading list that is limited to European countries is insufficient.”

Parrish wins by majority plus one

The ticket of Julie Parrish, Lisa Hill and Christy Wolfe won the Saint Mary's student body run-off election over the Annie Buch ticket by only one more vote than necessary, said election commissioner Framie Thompson.

ND/SMC ELECTIONS

The new junior class officers are Lisa Calanciac and her running mate, the sophomore run-off election was won by the Maggie Belin ticket, said Thompson. “The Parrish ticket received 50 percent plus two votes,” said Thompson, explaining that “in order to win a run-off election, the party must receive 50 percent of the vote plus one vote.”

The Buch ticket included Carol Mahony and Kim Sartorti received 43 percent of the votes cast, according to official election results.

The remaining 7 percent of the votes abstained when cast­ing their ballots, Thompson said 48 percent of the junior, sophomore and freshman classes voted.

The race for the student body offices has been a close one. In the first election, results originally showed the Buch ticket defeated the Parrish ticket by one percent, putting the Buch ticket into the run-off against the Parrish ticket.

After a recount petitioned by the Parrish ticket, an 11-vote discrepancy was discovered, but both tickets still two votes too short to be included in the run­off. Heily then petitioned for a revote, which was denied by the election committee.

“We’re really happy with the results,” Parrish said. “It was a long hard race and we’re glad to see ELECTION, page 3

Columunist Art Buchwald to give Red Smith Lecture

Special to The Observer

Syndicated columnist and author Art Buchwald will deliver the 1986 Red Smith Lecture in Journalism on Wednesday, March 23. Buchwald, whose column for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate appears in some 530 newspapers in this country and abroad, will speak at 8 p.m. in Washington­ton Hall.

The lecture honors the late Red Smith, a 1957 graduate of Notre Dame and one of America's greatest sportswriters. Made possi­ble by a gift from Coca-Cola USA and administered by the department of American studies, the lecturehip promotes the teaching of writing and journalism and recognizes high journalistic standards. The lecturehip began in 1983, a year after Smith's death.

Winner of the Pulitzer Prize in 1962 for distin­guished commentary, Buch­wald is this country's most widely read humorist and satirist. In 1996 he was elected to the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters, making him only the third humorist since Mark Twain to be in­duced into the academy.

Buchwald has written 27 books, most are national best-sellers. His most recent collection, “I Think I Don't Remember,” appeared last fall. Some earlier popular works include: “Son of the Great Society” (1966), “I Never Danced at the White
Decision to run Fidelity ad re-evaluated after uproar

About four days ago I made the most serious mistake of my tenure as editor-in-chief of The Observer.

I am going to detail that mistake in this column, because it is important to be accountable for my own decisions and not pass any guilt on to those who work for our organization.

The mistake I refer to is the advertisement for Fidelity magazine which ran in The Observer on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. After reflecting on some of the issues raised by the strong community reaction to the ad, I realize that the ad should not have run as it appeared in our paper.

I believe that the author’s brand of radically conservative Catholicism led him to make assertions and connections between the death of Father Neil Rasmussen and dissent in the Church that an objective journalist would not have made. In short, I did not agree with the article’s conclusions and content. Nevertheless, I thought that the author was entitled to his opinion.

When I made the decision to run the ad (the decision was not made by the editorial board), I believed that I had valid reasons for making that decision. When the ad came into the office, my initial reaction was that the ad was pretty offensive. When one of the editors asked if we should run it, however, I had to decide what the reasons for not running it would be.

I decided that the reason my reaction to the ad was not strong enough. I decided that my reason for not running this ad would be to censor its author. Given my predisposition against the subject matter, I felt that I would not be running the ad because of my personal tastes. In an effort to be objective and to protect the publication’s right to express his opinions, I decided to allow the ad to run.

That was the reasoning behind the decision. It was not an easy decision to make. In fact it was the most difficult decision I’ve made as editor-in-chief. Unfortunately, it was not the right decision.

Leapfroggers to try to set record today

By PATRICK O'CONNOR
Staff Reporter

An attempt to establish the record for the largest intercollegiate leapfrog competition will be held on South Quad today at 4:30 p.m.

There is presently no record for such a competition, according to Diane Magill, student union board public relations director. "We hope to establish one," she said.

The competition, which is sponsored by SUB and the student government, and open to all Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students and faculty who register today from 4 p.m. until start time. There is no cost for registration.

SUB representatives said they had no idea how many students would participate or how many to prepare for, but Magill said, "We want it to be real big."

The leapfrog competition kicks off an SUB-sponsored week of events under the name "Celebrate St. Patrick's Day a 'Wee' Bit Early," which includes a Pub Night at Theodore's and performances by an Irish music band.

Notre Dame's last attempt at a similar record took place Sept. 6, 1985, when 5,151 Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students assembled on Green Field and broke the intercollegiate musical chairs record.

In 1949, Buchwald began to contribute a column to the European edition of The New York Herald Tribune. Early in 1952, the column, "Europe's Lighter Side," started to appear in this country, and by 1959 Time magazine noted that Buchwald's work in Paris had achieved "an institutional quality."

After 14 years abroad, Buchwald returned to the United States in 1962, taking up residence in Washington, D.C., and launching a column, "Capitol Punishment." His running commentary on American political life, especially the activities of presidents, is characterized by a playful treatment of the powerful. "I consider myself the cruise director on the Titanic," he said recently, "We may not get there, but I'm going first class."

Following Buchwald's visit to Notre Dame, his Red Smith Lecture will be printed and distributed by Coca-Cola USA to journalists and educators across the country.

Republicans spar in Atlanta, Maine victory claimed for Bush

Associated Press

George Bush, whose backers claimed victory Sunday in Maine's Republican presidential caucuses, was attacked by chief rival Bob Dole on the Iran-Contra affair. Rep. Jack Kemp, meanwhile, blasted the two GOP front-runners on taxes.

As the Democrats geared up for their second debate in two days, Michael Dukakis grabbed an early lead in the Maine Democratic caucuses. The Massachusetts governor had been favored to score a victory on his New England home turf. The caucuses pick delegates to the parties' state conventions this spring, where national convention delegates are chosen.

At a Republican debate in Atlanta - their first full-scale face-off of the Southern campaign - Dole took aim at Bush for the Reagan administration's decision to trade arms for hostages in the Iran-Contra affair. That, he said, was a big mistake.

"We never should trade arms for hostages. We shouldn't issue these reports and say we shouldn't trade arms for hostages - the vice-president's report - and then later go to a meeting and say it's all right. We shouldn't do those things," Dole said, holding up a report on terrorism that was written by a presidential commission headed by Bush.

Bush did not respond directly, but did say "mistakes were made" in the Iran-Contra affair.

Kemp, whose campaign has been faltering after poor showings in early contests, accused Bush and Dole of supporting tax hikes.

"O'LEGA and the Sandinistas have more friends in Congress than U.S. taxpayers do. The same good folks who helped turn Saigon into Ho Chi Minh City are trying to make Communist permanent in Managua as it is still known."

U.N. session to condemn U.S. move to close PLO mission

Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS - The United States, its U.N. prestige and influence already at an all-time low, faces a showdown this week when the General Assembly convenes an emergency session to condemn U.S. efforts to close the PLO mission.

Some Arab leaders say they want to shift the next General Assembly meeting to Geneva to punish the United States for harassing the Palestine Liberation Organization, which the United Nations recognizes.

The entire U.N. operation here, including the General Assembly, funnels $400 million into the U.S. and New York economies, according to the U.S. mission.

The 42nd General Assembly will reconvene for at least three days beginning Monday and consider two resolutions regarding the PLO mission.

One reaffirms the PLO's right to operate and calls on the United States to honor its treaty obligations, the other calls for a ruling by the International Court of Justice.

The move to shut the PLO mission comes as Secretary of State George Shultz is on a critical Middle East visit aimed at initiating Middle East peace talks and ending the 11-week Palestinian uprising in Israel's occupied territories. State Department and United Nations lawyers say Congress' new anti-terrorist legislation, which would close the PLO's U.N. observer mission, is illegal and violates the 1974 Headquarters Agreement.

Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, legal adviser to the PLO, told the Associated Press Saturday, "We assume the United States doesn't want to be an international outlaw and will, therefore, honor its obligations."

PLO ambassador Zehdi Labib Terzi told the AP that the U.S. action against the PLO mission is harming Shultz' chances in the Middle East.

"The Palestinians are being killed in their own home, and this is an attempt to stifle their voice in the international community. This is not a message of peace, but a requiem," he said.

Tickets will be free, but required.

Information regarding time and place for ticket distribution will be made available at a later date.

‘Purlie’ performance

TAMMY ETTE
accent writer

Purlie Victorious was, well, somewhat victorious. The musical “Purlie,” named after the lead character Purlie Victorious, entertained a moderately sized audience in Saint Mary’s O’Laughlin Auditorium Friday night.

Purlie, a newly declared black preacher man, returned to his farm, named Lutiebelle to reclaim an inheritance that belonged to his sister. Lutiebelle was to pose as Purlie’s niece and reclaim her supposed dead mother’s money.

The money was being kept by a white, dictatorial landlord who owned the farm where Purlie and his relatives worked and lived. Because of his financial power, he was able to keep his workers, 50 years after the Emancipation Proclamation, in virtual slavery.

The songs in the musical reflected the oppressive years of slavery. But added the blend of jazz and soul that the liberation of the 20th century brought. The 11 member cast sang about the “Mew Tangled God-fearing Christian, even if he didn’t understand what Purlie was saying.

Although the talent of the performers seemed endless, as one audience member pointed out, the songs seemed a bit out of place.

I felt the same, attributing it to the fact that the musical was adapted from the play “Purlie Victorious.” No exposition was achieved through the music. The audience really didn’t learn anything from the lyrics of the songs, which became really obvious after the intermission.

The story had to come to a resolution. Purlie was able to obtain the money as he had planned and the show ended to get the “white bigoted landowners.”

This conflict was weak, and no music was used in resolving it. The second half had only 1 in 11 in the first half. As another audience member pointed out, it was not Broadway material, although it did remain on the Broadway stage for over two years.

The performance was brought to Saint Mary’s by Daedalus Productions, a company which tours yearly with the 20th century musicals spared no expense in providing the most suitable costumes and sets. The audience members didn’t doubt that they were on a poor Southern plantation about 30 years ago.

Despite some weaknesses in the storyline, the audience seemed to enjoy the performance.

“Purlie” was victorious because it was able to raise serious issues in a non-offensive light. It was set before the civil rights era of the 60s, but the questions it raised are still relevant today.

At one point in the play, one of the characters asked about the definition of freedom. They had been freed in the 1860s, so why couldn’t they get out from under the tyrannical reign of their white landowners? Another asked what was worth fighting for. If they fought for freedom and got slavery, what else was “worth” it? Women’s Money?

As most stories “Purlie” also had its happy ending. The white tyrannical landowner met his death and his workers obtained their freedom and lived happily ever after.

Although the new year is only three weeks old, the suffering has already become harder and even more repressive of the peace plan a few months ago, the republics are continually threatened with torture and killing of two men who were still waiting to hear some word of the colonel along with some 50 soldiers three days before and they tried to pull the women out of the car. When the volunteer told them he was a North American, they stopped and drove off. Such a thing is known to be the work of the death squads which appear to be on the run again in El Salvador.

The army has cut off almost all access to the population communities and all the communities in the countryside which are being most repressed. They have made it nearly impossible for international volunteers or delegations to visit by refusing permission or requiring documents that would be almost impossible to produce. Military roadblocks are set up on the roads and are sleeping together in two of the army, the two generally understood methods of keeping a boy out of the army. There are plenty of upper class teenagers riding the food, because the military claims it the churches are not allowed to bring in any clothes. They have families have the "resources" or the connections to keep them out—several have told me as much.

Hardly an example of democracy, this system has the poor fighting and losing their lives to protect the interests and security of the tiny minority who control nearly everything in this country, often having to turn against their own families.

Perhaps the most appalling thing that has happened here recently was the attack on the refugee camp, San Jose del Golfo, just outside the capital. The camp is a shelter for displaced people who have fled the terror and suffering in other parts of the country—a community of families who have just fled the violence. On Saturday, Jan. 16, more than 200 soldiers, their faces painted black, entered the camp. There were at least 12 to 15 names of suspected guerrillas and "sympathizers" that they wanted to take out. They searched the entire camp, but when they tried to force the people out, the people gathered around them in a strong large enough to prevent the soldiers from getting at them.

The next day, however, at approximately 9 p.m. soldiers surrounded the camp and began machine gunning into the camp. The firing went on for three hours and several small bombs were thrown inside as well. One man who was sitting up in bed a few feet away had a bullet shot in the stomach. No one else was hurt, but a few days ago when I went to visit the same camp, the people showed me the bullet holes in the trees and the tin roofs of the barracks where they live and then a few large holes in the roofs from the bombs. The people are scared and afraid now and are sleeping together in two large groups for security, not knowing what they will come to know.

This is the farthest that the military has ever gone in its hostility against the refugee camp, actually opening fire on an unarmed civilian population. Their later claim that the firing had begun from within the camp, has not been cross by all. When the El Salvador desk at the U.S. State Department was questioned by a concerned committee in the North American, their answer was that the people at the camp had committed a criminal offense in not allowing the soldiers to carry out the men the day before, implying that such a retaliation would be justified, innocent civilians present or not.

Several days after the attack in Cafel Real, one several internal international volunteers were driving out of the camp with a group of women from the community when they were stopped by a car with dark windows and three heavily armed men in civilian clothes. They were ordered to get out of the car and when they refused, the men began to hit the volunteer on the head with a gun and tried to pull the women out of the car. When the volunteer told them he was a North American, they stopped and drove off. Such activities are known to be the work of the death squads which appear to be on the run again in El Salvador.

These include: Student Government, the Council, the Judicial Council, the Social Club, the Off-campus Council, and many others. The position of Student Body Treasurer also has the opportunity to serve as a member of the Student Senate and as chairman of the Student Senate Budget and Finance Committee. This means that the Treasurer ensures that the fiscal policies established by the Student Senate are followed and that the clubs and organizations adhere to the spending guidelines approved by the Senate. Tim 'TII Hartigan, the other defending title-holder, also won a second-round TKO, slipping past Mike 'Stimpy' Rigney in the lightweight division.

"He didn't come after me, and the coach said to just come after him," said Hartigan. "The first round I was throwing wild rights, and the coach told me just straighten it out, and I threw straight rights.""}

Buckland managed to get the quickest TKO of the day, stopping Miguel 'Pinoy' Lado in the first round of the middleweight competition.

Troy 'Slam' Duncan also had an outstanding outing. In the battle of the Apple, the resident of New York City won a unanimous decision over Sean 'Long Island Lasher' McKeeny in a junior lightweight fight.

One of the more exciting matchups of the quarterfinals came late in the evening, as Chris 'Boom Boom' Buckland won a split decision over Ed Quinn in the light heavyweight division. The two fighters changed a flurry of punches in the third round, but Buckland came out ahead with two knockdowns in the final two rounds.

"I was a lot more protective in the last two rounds because I'd never gotten hit hard in the face before the first round," said Baltin, another South Bend native. "I realized the only way I'd hurt him was with the big punches, and that's how I knocked him down twice. I realized it wasn't going to be the jabs that would get him, so I kind of put two and two together."

Baltin's win came on the heels of another thrilling match, as Chris 'Murph' Murphy won a controversial split decision over Gerry 'G-Man' Graf in the super middleweight division.

Alex Wilson field lives up to high expectations

By MIKE SULLIVAN

As promised by Irish head coach Joe Piane, this past weekend's Alex Wilson Invitational proved to be fast—very fast.

With schools such as Pittsburgh, Georgetown and Eastern Michigan sending only their top athletes in hopes of qualifying them for the NCAA Championships, one could only expect an exciting field to be posted, and they were. The tough competition helped to push the Irish to some outstanding performances.

Sophomore Pat Kearns got the Irish on the move early by winning the 5000 meters going away. Kearns started out in front of the pack and never fell back to fourth place. He regained the lead with four laps remaining and crossed the finish line ten meters ahead of the second-place finisher. Kearns finished in 14:41.30.

Sophomore Glenn Watson turned in an outstanding time of 7:28:05 to tie for first in the 3000 meter hurdles. Also having a good day for the Irish were freshmen John Cole and Jeff Smith. Cole, a high jumper, placed first with a jump of six feet, eight inches, while Smith captured first in the long jump with a leap of 23 feet, 11 one-half inches.

Perdue picked up his fourth personal with 15:41.51 left to play the game. The Buckeyes trailed by eater than halftime, but Gary Voyer put them 47-42 with 11:57 remaining. But the Buckeyes still had a chance to pull it out at the end as VanDervey placed fourth and sophomore Van Searcy placed fifth in the 5000 meter run.

Playing without injured star Rex Chapman, Kentucky ran its record to 29-0 by taking advantage of a lack of foul shooting by the Orange and dominated the start of the second half, moving from a 32-29 advantage at halftime to a 49-40 lead with 12:19 left.

Irish netters sweep Bowling Green, Cincy

By GEORGE TRAVERS

The Notre Dame men's tennis team improved its record to 8-4 this weekend with impressive wins over Cincinnati and Bowling Green. The Irish crushed both schools 9-0 in Saturday's matches.

After a week of exhausting matches in which Notre Dame was labeled definite underdogs, it was nice for the Irish to be favorites again. In the first match against the University of Cincinnati, coach Bob Bayliss opted to rest his number one singles player, Brian Kalbas, saving him for Bowling Green. Freshman Ryan Wenger moved to the top spot and showed poise as he won in three sets over Cliff Biester.

In other action against Cincinnati, captain Dan Walsh protected his perfect singles record as he shut out Jeff Moor-

The Irish played a perfect match as they went on to defeat the Falcons 9-0. Bowling Green failed to win a set in any of the matches. Notre Dame dominated the Falcons in every aspect of the game.

In number one singles Kalbas crushed Ken Bruce of Bowling Green 6-1, 6-0. The other Irish singles winners were Wenger, Walsh, Reiter, Daggs and Kuhlmans.

In the top doubles match Kalbas and Wenger rolled over Peter Ellisworth and Ken Bruce 6-2, 6-2. The other Irish doubles wins came from O'Dell and Xavier Serrano grabbed the final win for the Irish.

Saturday afternoon the Irish took on Bowling Green, a team Notre Dame beat last year 6-3. The Irish played a perfect match as they went on to defeat the Falcons 9-0. Bowling Green

ND hockey sweeps series, eyes upcoming ACHA playoffs

By PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame hockey team finished its season by doing what they’ve been accustomed to doing all year long—winning a weekend series.

Unfortunately, it came one week late.

After having their slight playoff hopes dashed at the hands of Michigan-Dearborn last weekend, the Irish came back strong by taking both ends of a home-and-home series with Lake Forest, and raising their regular season record to 24-2. Notre Dame won, 6-1, at Lake Forest on Friday night, and returned to the friendly confines of the JACC Saturday to win, 4-2.

Notre Dame head coach Ric Schafer was pleased with the way his squad rebounded from last weekend’s tough road trip.

“We talked about it before (Friday’s) game,” said Schafer, in his first year as head coach of the Irish. “We knew that we had no shot at the playoffs anymore and that we could either roll over or finish strong.”

“The mark of a good hockey team is how they play after they win, but the way they bounce back after a tough loss. We bounced back real well.”

But according to Schafer, the Irish victories epitomized both ends of the spectrum as far as intensity is concerned.

“Friday night’s game was easily one of our best efforts this year,” said Schafer. “We finally played nearly 60 minutes of a hockey game. We’re at our best when everybody contributes equally well—when there aren’t really any standout but everyone performs consistently. (Mike) McNell played great, but that’s consistent for him.”

McNell got the Irish on the right track Friday when he scored 10 seconds into the game. The goal sparked an intense effort by the Irish, who left the ice, after two more early goals by Tom Mooney and Pat Foley, with a 3-0 first-period lead.

The Foresters picked up a goal early in the second period to make it 3-1, but Lance Patton’s power play goal with a minute to go in the period kept the margin at a comfortable three goals. Two Irish third-period goals sealed the road victory.

Saturday’s game, however, was perhaps not the clinic that Friday’s might have been.

“No, it wasn’t picturesque,” remarked Schafer after the 4-2 win. “The sun was shining, it was a nice warm day, we didn’t get back (from Lake Forest) until late Friday night,... a lot of factors worked against us. Let’s just say we played well enough to win. We played about half as well as we did the night before, but, thankfully, so did Lake Forest.”

Again it was the senior captain, McNell, playing in his last home game for the Irish, who opened the scoring. His power play goal halfway through the first period put the Irish on the scoreboard first. Bob Bilston made the score 2-0 on a pretty assist from Bob Herber.

Lake Forest threatened to make it a close game when they scored the final goal of the first period. But Thomas Smith answered early in the second and the Irish defense made the 3-1 lead stand up until Herber scored to put the game out of reach midway through the third. Lake Forest scored with five minutes left to widen the final margin of victory.

The Irish go back to Dearborn to participate in the ACHA tournament next weekend. In the first round, Notre Dame faces Lake Forest again, and with a win, will probably advance to play the host, Michigan-Dearborn. Three of the four Irish losses this year have come at the hands of the Wolverines.

“Winning the tournament, especially by beating Michigan-Dearborn, would be a pretty good way to redeem ourselves for losing last weekend’s series to them,” said Schafer. “That would be a real happy ending for what has been a great season.”

Untimely slumps dash Irish hopes

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Assistant Sports Editor

If you had told Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps that Vanderbilt’s 7-1 center Will Perdue would score only 10 points while sitting on the bench for most of the second half and that the Commodores would shoot out two three-pointers, he probably would have told you that the Irish would be in a position to win.

Unfortunately, that’s not how it happened. While both of Vandy’s main weapons were silenced, the rest of the Commodores picked up the slack as they pulled past the Irish 75-66 Saturday night.

“That’s what we wanted to do,” Phelps said afterward. “The three-pointers obviously didn’t bother us. Perdue was on the bench for most of the game with foul trouble, and yet we didn’t take advantage of those situations. I don’t think we did the things that were there. We wanted to go inside, and we didn’t go inside enough.

“We weren’t getting mileage from some veterans. Besides Joe Frederick (who had a game-high 19 points), we weren’t getting another player wired to see VANDY, page 12

DePaul hangs on for crucial win over Irish

By THERESA KELLY

It was heartbreak at the Joyce Center.

The Notre Dame women’s basketball team won the battle but lost the war against the DePaul Blue Demons Sunday. The Irish got the ball to Heidi Bunek to make the most of a Joyce ACC.

Duggan had reason to be pleased during the first day of the five below her average. Vines scored 19 points, almost five below her average.

Favorities take wins as both Bengals open

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

Both sides of senior Kevin Duggan had reason to be pleased during the first day of the 58th Annual Bengal Bouts on Sunday at the Stepan Center.

Kevin ‘Vigilante’ Duggan, a defending Bout champion, got his title defense off to the right start with a second-round technical knockout of Ken Handome and Husky’ Matlanky in the junior welter-weight quarterfinals.

And Kevin Duggan the Notre Dame boxing club president was pleased with the overall performance of the boxers. “We have an excellent field,” said Duggan. “Every weight class is looking tough. We have a lot of returning champions, returning fighters and some new guys who are fighting well. In the lower weight classes, you’ve got four guys who could be the champion.”

Duggan is one of three returning champions in this year’s Bout. None of them even had to go the distance on Sunday. Mike ‘High’ Noone, a two-time defending champ, looked particularly impressive in a second-round TKO of Mike ‘Mago’ Joyce in the junior lightweight division.

“I feel a lot more confident this year,” said Noone. “I’ve been training three hours a day.”
