Six Congressmen demand embargo

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Six Republican and Democratic congressmen introduced a bill Thursday to impose an "immediate, dramatic and devastating" trade, air travel and currency embargo against the regime of Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega. The lawmakers said they would seek speedy congressional approval of the embargo bill.

But they said they also hoped to prod President Reagan to act independently to adopt a far stronger series of punitive sanctions against the Noriega regime than he has approved to date.

The proposed embargo would bar all imports from Panama, prohibit all U.S. exports to that nation, bar air travel between the two countries and prohibit U.S. banks from transferring any funds to Panama and its banking system.

"By stopping the transfer of funds from U.S. banks to Panama, we go for the jugular," said Sen. Alfonse D-Amato, R-N.Y., a principal sponsor of the embargo plan.

"Because of Panama's heavy reliance on its economic ties with the United States, the impact of a U.S. trade embargo would be immediate, dramatic and devastating to Noriega and his cohorts," D'Amato said.

Panamanian opposition leader Ricardo Arias Calderon, president of the Christian Democratic Party, told reporters later that a trade embargo would be "strong medicine" but that such a remedy is sometimes needed for people to regain their health.

Other sponsors of the embargo bill are Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; David Durenberger, R-Minn.; Bob Graham, D-Fla.; John Kerry, D-Mass.; and Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

The senators told reporters they introduced the legislation at the specific request of Eric Arturo Devalle, who was ousted as Panama's president after attempting to remove Noriega as commander of Panama's defense forces.

Noriega was indicted by a federal grand jury in Miami last month for attempting to funnel $4.6 million to protect international drug traffickers using Panama as a safe haven.

Women, teaching featured in SMC's Madeleva lecture

By COURTNEY JAMIESON

News Staff

The relationship between women, teaching and learning was the theme of the Fourth Annual Madeleva Lecture at Saint Mary's Thursday night. The lecture was given by Maria Harris, full professor of religious education at New York University.

Harris addressed the tendency of education to force women into the unnatural in teaching that aren't designed for them. Educators have tried to make the unnatural in women the natural, she said.

Harris said she wanted to reflect on a teaching spirituality similar to the steps that emerge in a dance where the teacher leads the student into the next step.

She outlined a five-step process, which she said was drawn from the lives and experiences of women.

The process begins with a silence from which women can reflect on their past experiences and gain an understanding that leads to what we embody as a voice of their own, she said.

The next step of learning is remembering those who have been forgotten and integrating them into the teaching and learning process, Harris said.

Artistry, said Harris, is an integration of the head and heart that leads to what we embody the teaching of men and women.

Artistry leads to a birthing in which the "female face and voice resonate," Harris said. "Birthing isn't a culminating moment, rather, the dance continues, and each of the steps blends into the others.

Harris said she felt she was chosen for the annual lecture because she has been writing about them.

ND minors optimistic about Young's speech

By JIM WINKLER

Staff Reporter

The selection of Andrew Young as this year's commencement speaker has brought optimistic reactions from the minority community at Notre Dame.

Young, the mayor of Atlanta, was announced Monday as the speaker for the Class of 1988's graduation in May. He will be the second black to speak at a Notre Dame commencement, the first having been Vernon Jorden in 1976.

Minority student leaders on campus expressed pleasure at the choice of Young as speaker. "I was surprised, as well as happy," said Rochelle Holder, president of the Black Cultural Arts Council (BCAC). "I am ecstatic that the University chose someone who is such an outstanding minority.

"Dennis Tillman, chairman for press and publicity of the Notre Dame chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, called it "a positive step." Tillman also said see YOUNG, page 6

ND Post Office reduces hours

By MARG CLARKSON

News Staff

The Notre Dame Post Office recently reduced its hours of operation in response to federal budget deficit reduction measures. Postmaster George Weddle, and postal rate increases are the increasing in the near future.

Weddle said the reduction in hours was put into effect Feb. 13. Because of the change in hours, there will no longer be any collection or dispatch of mail on Sundays or holidays, be said.

"In Indiana, all of the smaller post offices are required to close for a certain length of time during the day. And larger post offices, like the South Bend Post Office, are required to close at least one afternoon per week for four hours," Weddle said.

He declined to comment specifically on who designed the Notre Dame Post Office's reduced schedule.

The post office has reduced its hours of window operation to 8 a.m.-1 p.m. and 3:30-8 p.m. Monday through Friday. and 9:30-11:30 a.m. on Saturday.

The post office's former window hours were Monday through Friday 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and Saturday 9-11:30 a.m.

The reduced hours will be in effect "probably about one and a half to two years, but it depends on when the budget cuts get restored," Weddle said.

Notre Dame's post office was not the only one to be affected by an effort to reduce the budget deficit. There were nationwide reductions in hours on the West Coast some branches were closed completely, said Weddle.

Weddle said the Postal Service last year filed for a rate increase in Washington, D.C., and that the Postal Rate Commission would decide "in the next week or so" whether the request for a stamp increase from 22 to 25 cents would be approved. Pending approval, the increase would go into effect between April 1 and April 17, said Weddle.

"The Postal Service is restricted to a rate increase once every three years. March 15 is the three-year anniversary of the last rate increase," Weddle said. In addition to the stamp price increase, the rate structure of other post office services would be simplified.

Federal laws about retirement expenses are partly responsible for the proposed increase in stamp prices. "We have to do what is required by law," Weddle said. "Reduction in hours is the Postal Service's contribution to reducing the deficit."

Fatal classified ad costs magazine $9M

HOUSTON - A federal court jury on Thursday found Soldier of Fortune magazine negligent in publishing a classified ad that led to the slaying of a Texas woman and ordered the magazine to pay $8.4 million to the woman's family. The jury ordered that $1.5 million be paid to the woman's son and awarded $400,000 to her mother. The two received $7.5 million in punitive damages.

The verdict followed two weeks of testimony to a six-person jury, which received the case on Tuesday. It stemmed from the slaying of Sandra Black at her home in Bryan three years ago.

Mrs. Black's husband, Robert, is on Texas' death row for paying John Wayne Hearn $10,000 to kill her.

Black contacted Hearn through a personal services classified ad Hearn placed in Soldier of Fortune in late 1984. Hearn is serving three life terms in Florida for the Black slaying and two others in that state.

Gary Wayne Black, 18, the victim's son, and Marjorie Eimann, 64, her mother, had sought seeking $22.5 million in the suit against the self-styled "Journal for Professional Adventurers." Of that, $20 million was requested for exemplary damages.

ment this year," Kitty Arnold, Notre Dame's director of Career and Placement Services, said Wednesday. "A number of corporations are deciding that hiring off a college campus provides them with a good potential workforce."

Arnold said she expected more than 10,000 on-campus interviews to be conducted at Notre Dame this year, up by 15 percent from 8,400 interviews last year.

Purdue University's placement services director Richard Stewart agreed that the job market is showing new signs of life after what has generally been a slow period.

"It's certainly an improvement over the last three years," said Stewart. "It's an upward trend and a positive market. Companies are bringing in new blood.

Indiana University officials also welcomed a surge in corporate courtship, noting 59 more companies have expressed an interest in interviewing with undergraduate students this year than last.

C. Randall Powell, IU director of placement and assistant dean for company relations at the IU School of Business, said recruitment activity is reaching record levels this year.

He estimates business students will have logged more than 22,000 interviews by the end of this year, up by 15 percent from 8,400 interviews last year.

Powell attributes the increased activity to companies' expectations for steady economic growth and an accompanying boost in hiring.

Barbara Rogers, director of career planning and placement at Butler University agreed that "employers are moving more rapidly this year and making more offers."

"They want to pull out the best candidates quickly," she said.

Democrats lose aid to Contras in vote

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The House on Thursday killed a $30 million package of purely "humanitarian" aid for Nicaragua's Contras that had been pushed by Democrats as a way to ease pressure for future military aid for the rebels.

The final vote of 216-208 against the plan came minutes after the lawmakers had voted 215-210 to accept a Democratic version of the aid package that also included sharp restrictions on how the rebels could use the money and a new fund to aid children who are victims of the Nicaraguan civil war.

Defeat of the aid package meant the rebels, whose last U.S. aid ran out on Tuesday, would be left without new supplies until Congress could make another try at passing an aid bill.

Liberal Democrats, who had steadfastly opposed aid to the rebels in the past, teamed with Republicans, for whom the package was too weak, to defeat it.

As the House debated the Democratic plan, Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, charged that it would have placed control of a $14 million fund to aid children who are victims of the civil war in the hands of the leftist Nicaraguan government, prompting an angry response from House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas.

Anyone who makes such a claim "is just lying or he doesn't understand it," Wright said.

Earlier, the speaker had called the dispute over the aid package "a battle for peace in Nicaragua, and for a constructive role for the United States in Central America as opposed to a destructive role."

But President Reagan, in a letter to pre-Contra forces sent while he was attending a meeting of Western allies in Brussels, Belgium, said Wright's plan "does not meet the essential criteria" of keeping the Contras viable and maintaining military pressure on the Sandinistas.

He asked for support for a Republican aid proposal that "hitters had provided more flexibility for the Contras, both in the kinds of supplies that could be provided and in the way they would be delivered to troops in the field."

Airlines target of tests

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Transportation Department proposed Thursday widespread drug testing covering tens of thousands of airline employees and said such tests are needed to "maintain public confidence" in the aviation system.

The proposal, due to take effect in several months, would cover pilots, flight attendants and other workers involved with safety or security.

Aviation unions have strongly opposed widespread testing, arguing that no evidence has been produced showing drug use to be a significant problem among the nation's airlines.

But Transportation Secretary Jim Burnley said at a news conference that the tests are needed because "all it takes is one person on drugs in one of these sensitive airline jobs to endanger the lives of hundreds of innocent people."

The regulation, when it takes effect after a period of public comment, would require a broad range of testing including pre-employment tests, random tests and post-accident tests.

Employees covered by the proposal would include all flight crew members as well as aircraft dispatchers, mechanics and security workers at airport screening checkpoints.
Toothbrush facts hard to swallow

Associated Press

CHICAGO - Many have brushed, but only a few have swallowed.

So say researchers who scrutinized medical literature and found exactly 31 cases in all recorded history of people somehow managing to swallow their toothbrushes.

Four of those incidents occurred in Durham, N.C., in recent years, Dr. Allan Kirk of Duke University Medical Center and colleagues reported in the March issue of the Archives of Surgery.

Two of the North Carolina swallowers apparently had drunk a large quantity of alcohol, while a third was a 60-year-old woman who had a seizure while brushing her teeth. She complained only of throat pain but examination revealed the brush stuck in the esophagus and it was removed with forceps.

The fourth victim was a 20-year-old woman who developed cephalalgia while brushing her teeth. The brush made its way to her stomach and surgeons snared it with a wire dropped down through her mouth.

Despite the unusual cluster in Durham, "This problem should probably not be considered endemic to this part of North Carolina," the researchers wrote.

The other reports of toothbrush swallowing in this country are isolated with one each in San Francisco, Tennessee and Louisiana.

One region in India reported six such swallowings between 1960 and 1973.

Young was chosen because "he was the most qualified speaker, not just because he is black."

Lionel Coleman, president of the Notre Dame chapter of the NAACP, said, "This can be positive if handled correctly. It is very timely (in light of the University's recently announced effort to increase minority awareness on campus)."

Other students expressed positive feelings for the choice of Young. Chris Simms, a black senior, called the selection "a positive step. I have never heard him, but his background is good."

Tillman's roommate Bill Milton, who is white, expressed similar sentiments. "Andrew Young is very qualified. He will speak from a good perspective, and he is well educated," Milton said. "I want to hear what he has to say."

But student opinion varied on what Young will say in his address. "I'm not sure if his speech will be minority-oriented," said Coleman. "I am sure he will give the appropriate speech at the appropriate time. He is talking to a group of graduates and will aim his speech toward them," Coleman added.

Coleman doubted Young would mention the minority situation at Notre Dame in his speech. "Young may not know anything about the situation here at ND. "His speech will be geared toward worldly experience," said Simms. "He will talk to graduates about their future. He is probably not aware of the situation here," said Simms.

Holder, however, said he feels Young "will definitely put forth issues of minority concerns." Moreover, Holder said he feels Young will mention apartheid.

"I don't see how he could not, especially with his U.N. experience. He will put... in everyone's mind what divestment and apartheid are," he said.

The choice of Young as commencement speaker came soon after the University's announcement to make an effort to increase enrollment of minorities through the formation of a $12 million endowment for minority financial aid. Minority student opinion on Young's selection in relation to this new minority awareness was also positive.

"On the surface, it is one in a continuing series of efforts to bring minority concerns to the forefront of campus discussion," Tillman said.

Senate bill bans lie detectors on the job

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Lie detectors, likened by one lawmaker to "20th century witchcraft," would be largely banned from use in job interviews and the private workplace under legislation approved by the Senate on Thursday.

In a 69-27 vote, the Senate approved a bill co-written by Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah - normally adversaries on labor-management issues - outlawing about 85 percent of the current use of polygraph examinations.

Conservative opponents predicted that President Reagan would sign the legislation once a final version of the bill has emerged from a Senate-House conference.

An estimated 2 million lie detector tests are conducted in brief 15-minute sessions and under conditions that render false results between 15 percent and 50 percent of the time.

"I'm sick and tired of the way people are using these devices," he said. "Some 330,000 honest Americans are branded as liars every single year. That's a stigma they have to wear every day the rest of their lives and careers."

Kennedy said he planned to meet with Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., chief author of the House version, within the next two weeks to work out a plan for resolving differences between the two versions in a compromise that could win passage in both houses.

They ban about 90 percent, and we ban about 85 percent," he said, predicting the new prohibition will become law before the end of the year "with or without the president's support."

Indiana AIDS victim recounts struggles

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - "I came face to face with death at 13 years old," Ryan White told the White House AIDS commission Thursday.

That was three years ago when he was diagnosed as having the deadly disease during surgery to remove part of his lung because of pneumonia. Doctors gave him six months to live.

But the Indiana youngster told the panel he decided instead "to live a normal life, go to school, be with my friends and enjoy day-to-day activities."

As it turned out, those modest goals were not so easy to attain, mostly because of the ridicule heaped on him by others in Kokomo.

"Because of the lack of education on AIDS, discrimination, fear, panic and lies surrounded me," he told the commission. "I was labeled a trouble-maker, my mom an unfit mother, and I was not welcome anywhere. People would get up and leave so they would not have to sit anywhere near me. Even at church, people would not shake my hand."

Finally, last summer, Ryan, his mother and sister decided to move to another Indiana town - Arcadia. There things were different.

They had the good fortune to move three doors away from Jill Stewart, who had just been elected president of the student council and welcomed Ryan as a neighbor.

She sat beside him Thursday while Ryan told his story, and then she told her own - about how the 600 students at Hamilton Heights High School "had witnessed Ryan's pain in his former community" and how they decided "there was no reason for Ryan to go through that pain again."

Army and rebels hurt Salvador

Dear Editor:

Erica Dahl-Bredine's Feb. 26 article, "'Peace' in El Salvador," may well provide a speedy education for anyone naïve enough to believe that peace, democracy and stability in Central America depend simply upon ensuring the right of the region's peoples to self-determination, free of the nefarious machinations of Yankee imperialism. But it is also disturbingly one-sided. By tacitly suggesting that the Salvadoran army and its death squads are alone responsible for the horrors of that pathetic country's civil war, Ms. Dahl-Bredine has given us an accurate portrayal of El Salvador's sorry plight, but rather an exercise in distortion by omission.

No serious observer of the situation in El Salvador can deny that, the facade of democracy notwithstanding, the armed forces ultimately call the shots in that country, or that for many years military death squads have ravaged city and countryside alike in orgies of political murder. Nor is it any secret that thousands of innocent civilians have been slaughtered under the pretext of anti-guerrilla military operations. Injustices and atrocities like those which Ms. Dahl-Bredine either ignored or were more careful in order not to become an unwitting propaganda tool of one side or another in a murderous civil war, in which there are neither victors nor heroes nor decent causes, only victims.

Dome does not need real gold

Dear Editor:

This will likely be an unpopular letter. I know that I am probably in a very small minority on this one, but I feel I must express my opposition. $300,000 (that's nearly 63 of a million dollars) will be spent turning the gold dome into the "real thing!" That, to me, is outrageous, especially when I consider the level of human need in the world today and the demands of responsible stewardship. Is there any cost which would have been too high? When we finally face up to the questions that the Spirit continues to ask us, "When I was hungry did you feed me?" we will have to answer, "Yeah, sometimes, but often we were too busy building monuments with which to glorify ourselves." It wouldn't even surprise me if the gold itself came from South Africa!

Pax Christi protest unlikely

Dear Editor:

On Friday, Feb. 26, The Observer reported that the local Notre Dame chapter of Pax Christi would stage a non-violent protest to President Reagan's visit to the campus on March 9. The Pax Christi member Tom Eisele explained that the group intended to take advantage of Reagan's visit by protesting his policies which they find objectionable. The group hopes to "call our country to greater justice with domestic and foreign policy."

As admirable as these intentions may be, the commemoration of a stamp to Notre Dame legend Knute Rockne is neither the time nor place to voice them. It is totally inappropriate for any organization to protest government actions at a function in which the President is appearing as Head of State.

Room pick system run poorly

Dear Editor:

It is once again time for room pick numbers to be posted along with a sense of fear, hope and panic. Considering the upcoming year will be my senior year, I was hoping for a low number. But once again, for the third year in a row, I was in the last part of the class, more specifically eight people from the end.

I am not the only person with such a problem. Many others are right down with me. It is sad that when one gets her room deposit in immediately that her number is so high.

This room pick system is ridiculous. Housing says there is no better way to do it, but obviously they are not thinking very hard. I have a suggestion for them. If they would run room picks in a similar way as registration, things would be much more fair. Those with low numbers one year should be placed in a second lottery of higher numbers. This would give all students a chance of getting the rooms of their choice.

As a senior, I will luckily not have to deal with rooming again, which is quite a relief since the system is such a mess. I only hope things will change for underclassmen.

Shedding New Light on Opus Dei

It is regrettable though not surprisi­ng that Ms. Ann Pettifer remains un­able to see beyond the stage of the argumentum ad hominem. Is she not aware that the academic community and the Catholic university campus provide a place for open discussion and respect for the reasoning and arguments of others, also a place for the objective presentation of facts and arguments based on these facts? Again, she seems to prefer to di­er under the rug the reasons why graduate students should not support Common Sense and Justice. Is she not aware that an article which contains slanderous attacks on individuals and so disrespectful of the Holy Father, should be given no official status or recognition on a Catholic university campus.

Thomas D'Andrea
Guest Column

It is of course in one sense irrelevant to my debate with Ms. Pettifer that I am a member of Opus Dei. The most casual reader of our exchange on the Catholic university campus will never have known it, since she has desired to bring Opus Dei to the same academic and social level which the Catholic university campus provides a forum for discussing developments of Vatican II. I am, however, speaking of Vatican IPs emphasis on the universal call to holiness, the need for lay initiative in the temporal

The Catholic Church as an Olympic Stadium

Letters to a Lonely God
Berrigan, a Jesuit priest, was highly visible during the Vietnam era as a peace activist. He was a hero to the U.S. government and an embarrassment to the hierarchy of the Church, though many Catholics regarded him as an indispensable prophet.

Now he has written a passionate book in which he tells us something we haven’t seen. Catholics who regard Berrigan as a troublemaker would probably like to see him dead of homicide poisoning. But wouldn’t it be more honest to listen to him? Why should we write him off? He’s been a loyal son of Christ as a suffering servant.

As a priest of my generation (he’s five years older than I am) and was ordained two years earlier than I was, the stories of the Church has been different from mine. That’s not surprising, since he is much more gifted, intelligent and sensitive; and he has seen a lot more. Growing up with five brothers, he was exposed to the alleged cruelties in the Catholic schools. I joined the Church as a young adult looking for a place where I could feel like Berrigan in the same way a gourmet samples wine looking for a perfec t wine.

I’ve admired Berrigan from afar for many years - as a poet, as a priest with guts and as a

Video Review

J ohn Sayle's "Matewan" (1987) is the true story of a fierce and bloody struggle in the hills of West Virginia in the 1920's as striking coal miners, fighting intolerable working conditions, were pitted against scabs and union-busting thugs. Acclaimed as a masterpiece of social-awareness filmmaking (Lorimar Home Video, rated PG-13, 120 minutes, $79.95). "The Squeeze" (1987) is the rather boring tale of a down-on-his-luck artist (Michael Keaton) and the aspiring-to-be- detective bill collector (Rae Dawn Chong) who chases him down for delinquent alimony payments; the pair get involved in a murder and an incredible game show hoax in this decidedly unfunny comedy that bombed at the box office (MCA Video, rated PG-13, 102 minutes, $49.95). "Hamburger Hill" (1987) is a recreation of a rather infamous Vietnam War battle which took place in 1969 when 600 American G.I.s suffered a 70 percent casualty rate against North Vietnamese soldiers fighting over a mudcovered mound of earth; this depressing outing was released after "Platoon," but couldn't cash in on that film's box office success ( Vestron Video, rated R, 104 minutes, $69.98).

"Howling II" (1987) is the second sequel to the successful saga of modern day werewolves set loose in the big city (Vista Home Video, 94 minutes, $79.95). Miscellaneous: If you're an aviation buff, then "Hoover" may be your cup of tea. It's the true-life story of super pilot Robert A. "Bob' Hoover, profiling his exploits in the early days of jet aircraft and intermingling clips of test flight films and stunts he still performs at air-shows and races (Shyfire Presents, 96 minutes, $55.95, 800-852-2330 for more information). "Sharks: The True Story" explores the mystery surrounding the deadliest predator in the sea—the great white shark (Vestron Video, 60 minutes, $29.98). "Start Up With Jane Fonda" is a special limited edition exercise routine which falls somewhere in between a warmup and a full workout, designed for those who want a fight exacerbate regimen to help tone up arms, legs, hips, buttocks, and stomach. (Lorimar Home Video, 23 minutes, $19.95).

Duke mascot apologizes for "Buckwheat" joke

Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. - Duke University's mascot has apologized to the Black Coaches Association for wearing a "Buckwheat" headband in reference to guard David Rivers during the Blue Devils' game against Notre Dame.

"All parties are satisfied with the responses," said Ray Martin, a member of the BCA and an assistant basketball coach at North Carolina State. "They have complied with our wishes with class and dignity. As far as we are concerned, the book is closed."

The mascot, Jeffrey Wilkinson, said he "never once thought somebody would misinterpret and take offense. But you have to put yourself in everybody's shoes. I definitely have to be more careful about stuff like that."

But told the Durham Morning Herald that the protest is "basically taking something that has nothing to do with anything and using me as a scapegoat."

NBC's broadcast of the game in Durham on Feb. 7 showed Wilkinson wearing a Buckwheat headband on the over-sized head of his Blue Devil costume.

Buckwheat is the name for the black character from the 1930s movie shorts "Our Gang," which later became "The Little Rascals."

Eddie Murphy has used the character to spoof condescending racial attitudes, and Jim Tohin, Duke's alternate mascot, said that was what he and Wilkinson had in mind when they made the Buckwheat headband.

The mascot has worn headbands on previous occasions, usually in reference to Duke's opponent. Tohin said Rivers was the object of their attention because of his hairstyle. Rivers appeared on the court early to shoot and shouted a familiar "Buckwheat" expression, "okay," he said. "He (Rivers) was laughing and playing to the crowd."

"I was looking for something that was humorous and jokes at the other team," Wilkinson said. "I had no idea I was poking fun at a group. That was not my intention."

The Buckwheat headband was meant as "a good spirited joke," Tohin said.

Rudy Washington, executive director of the coaches' group, sent a letter dated Feb. 16 to Duke President H. Keith H. Brodie. It said in part: "our association believes that there is no place in college athletics for this kind of racial slur, regardless of how innocent or unintended it may have been."

He asked for an apology within 10 days or "we will, reluctantly, move on with our plans."

Washington, an assistant basketball coach at the University of Iowa, received apologies from Brodie, Wilkinson and Tom Butters, the Duke athletic director.

Butters' letter on Feb. 18 was addressed to Brodie, and a copy sent to Washington. Butters said the Buckwheat headband was not meant as a racial slur, but "there simply is no place in this society, and certainly not in this university, for such a display of ignorance."

Butters wrote that the game behavior of the Blue Devil mascot had been placed under the supervision of Tom D'Arms, director of game operations. Brodie wrote an apology to Washington shortly after Butters' letter, terming the mascot's action "unfavorable and inappropriaite."

Wilkinson's Feb. 29 apology to Washington was approved by the athletic department. In it he wrote, "I am truly sorry for any misunderstanding that has arisen which might shed negative light on Duke University."

Where I try to be different is try to entertain a little bit, too. I think that we’re in an entertainment medium, that’s what television is all about. Most people watching the tube at home, they take the average person, they don’t want to really hear highly technical stuff. Sometimes you can put them in what I call “Z-ville, sleepy land” because they’re bored. I try to blend some of thatplus some of the insights of the game with the game itself. Once the game tips off the meat and potatoes is the game.

On his success:

“I’m flattered and thrilled by the attention. I’m a hot dog to start with, and I love people. I don’t want to hurt anyone. I just want to have a lot of fun. It’s been a great run. It’s nine years now on NBC, and I’m on my second on ABC. I can’t believe I could go out almost any day of the week and speak anywhere across the country. I can’t believe what’s happened to me. I just wish my mother was living to see it because this is unbelievable. In 1971, I’m teaching the sixth grade and in 1977, I’m coaching in the NBA. I’ve had an unbelievable life. All my life I’ve had to fight to go to the next step. I really think I represent that American way that in America things can happen, I wasn’t great player. I wasn’t a superstar, when they open the door at the end of your pro career and they say come in on. I’m not knocking it, I envy that. But who’s Dick Vitale? I’m teaching the sixth grade. I’m one of five million others. I count it as an honor to be good people how to get ahead in life aren’t paid as well. I think that’s a crime in a way. I think that we in the entertainment world have to really, really thank God how lucky we are. I lost my eye as a kid, and I had to battle that. I’ve battled a lot of things, but the one thing, whether it be a critic or somebody else, than can never be taken away from me is my enthusiasm and love and passion for what I do. I’ll never allow that to happen as long as the good Lord gives me the physical health.

I got so thrilled to know that there I am sitting at a table and I’m going to get a microphone to be the featured speaker at a banquet of a leading, and I’m saying to myself, ‘If my buddies in Jersey could see me now.’ The same guy they run around with is standing here now addressing all these groups. It blows my mind. The bottom line is I love people. I love sharing.

“The one thing about what I do, I’m 48 now, and the thing that’s amazing about this is it keeps you like around 12. As long as I’ve got basketball, I’ll never get old.”

On travelling around the country:

“If you get into a steady pattern of going to places, you automatically develop a little feel for it. I haven’t been here that often, but I see the Golden Dome as I’m driving in. The first thing I said when I saw that Golden Dome was ‘Man, to be a kid, and they’re recruiting me to look at that. I’d do anything to play here.’ To see the Golden Dome was an exciting moment. I hope like heck that my girls, who are pretty good tennis players, think Notre Dame has got to be a school you consider.

“Certainly places like Duke and North Carolina, I love those places. I had a great time on my first trip to Oklahoma. They had a whole group of students with skullcaps. I like Kansas. I basically like the campus environment.

“What I don’t like is to go do a college game at a large, large arena. It doesn’t have the same flair as coming to the campus situation.”

Stanford “Civil War” in IH final

Stanford vs. Stanford.

No, this is not a misprint. This year’s men’s Interhall basketball championship boasts what appears a seemingly contradictory scenario.

With its victory over neighbor Keenan Wednesday evening, Stanford A-2 earns the right to contest the Interhall basketball crown with an even closer neighbor, Stanford A-1. This family feud is scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. tipoff Sunday night in the ACC Pit.

Stanford A-2 capitalized on its balanced scoring attack in holding off a late Keenan charge, and squeaked by with a one-point victory Wednesday. Junior forward Terry Maag led a Stanford frontcourt that was able to dominate the boards throughout the bout. Maag offers a feeling of confidence in discussing the upcoming opponent he knows so well.

“We’ve scrimmaged Stanford A-1 throughout the regular season, and we match up pretty well with them,” he said. “We kept score in six of those scrimmages, and we’ve only lost once.”

Stanford A-1 has streaked through the winners’ bracket with decisive victories in all of its outings. Runners-up a year ago to Sorin, the Stade will not show any mercy toward their brotherly opponents. With a powerful attack fueled by forwards Bill Sullivan and John Sheehan, it won’t be an easy task to defeat this vengeful ballclub in two successive attempts.

Team captain Al Martin analyzed the situation at hand. “We’re definitely giving up some quickness to Stanford A-1,” Martin said. “But, if we play the tough defense this team is capable of playing, we should control the tempo of the game.”

In the B-league championship, Sorin will square off with a red-hot Dillon team. This match is set to directly follow the A-league game Sunday night. The circumstances surrounding this matchup are analogous to that of the A-league championship. Because Dillon dropped its first playoff game, a Stanford frontcourt that was seemingly contradictory boasts what appears a basketball championship.

Dillon dropped its first playoff game, an eight-point drubbing of Off-Campus. Dillon, on the other hand, has had to come from behind in their playoff victories. Down by 10 points in the third quarter to Off Campus Wednesday, the Big Red got three quick buckets off the bench by freshmen Tim Murphy, and closed the gap.

With guard Pat Marget finding bottom net from 19-9, Dillon pulled away. An impressive defensive display led by power forward Terry Lally and guard Tim Murphy, and closed the gap.

The Notre Dame men’s tennis team concludes its legendary homestand with matches against the Marquette Warriors and Ohio State Buckeyes this weekend at the Eck Tennis Center.

After this weekend Coach Bob Bayliss may begin to feel “there’s no place like home,” as the team ventures east on a tough road trip.

Overall the Irish have played extremely well at home during this spring season. They are 8-4 after taking on some of the best schools in college tennis. Bayliss feels his team is very strong, and hopes to see no drop in play on the road.

“We’ll really be tested on the spring break trip,” he said. “I feel the guys are used to being at home but can adjust on the road. Last time I checked all the courts were the same size. We’ll just have to see what happens.”

Today the Irish host Marquette at 3 p.m. Last year the Irish easily beat the Warriors 9-4. Although Bayliss feels Notre Dame is a definite favorite against Marquette, he will not opt to rest his top players for Saturday’s match. The only exception may be junior Dave Reiter, who is still hobbled with an injury.

Saturday the tables will be turned on the Irish as they battle undefeated Big Ten powerhouse Ohio State at 10:30 a.m.

“Beating Ohio State would be a big upset, but it’s not impossible. They beat us 6-4 against a lot of teams that we also defeated,” Bayliss said. “They beat us 9-2 last season, but it wasn’t even as close as the score indicates. They beat us 9-1 in singles and substituted in doubles, so it was really an 8-1 match.”

To beat the Buckeyes, Notre Dame must play well in every aspect of the match. Senior captain Dan Walsh, who is 12-0 in singles action, cannot let his level of play fall.

JACC hosts NCAA wrestling regional
By JOHN GREEN

The Joyce ACC will be the home of the NCAA wrestling tournament’s Western Regional tonight and Saturday. The Irish play host to nine teams and a total of nearly 90 wrestlers over the weekend. Wrestlers will each be vying for a spot among the elite 21 wrestlers who will advance to the NCAA Championships in Ames, Iowa, on March 17, 18 and 19.

The favorites going into the tournament would have to be the fifth-ranked Panthers of Northern Iowa. A veteran lineup which includes four returning All-Americans makes the Panthers the team to beat.

"Northern Iowa has a lot of maturity in a sport where maturity is very, very important," said Notre Dame head coach Fran McCann. "They have three guys who could win it all at the championships this year."

Most other teams in the tournament have squads dominated by youth. Illinois State and Marquette, for example, have only two upperclassmen between them. This fact should work to the advantage of the Irish.

"For the first time since I’ve been here, I can say that we will be competitive," McCann said. "Based on our record, success against ranked opponents and the people in our region, I would say that we have a legitimate shot at six qualifiers. We have seen everyone except Northern Iowa and Drake in competition this year. We know what’s out there."

The Irish return three qualifiers from last year’s NCAA tournament, 142-pound senior Ron Wisniewski and juniors Jerry Durso (134) and Chris Geneser (177).

Other Notre Dame wrestlers who are hoping to earn their first shot at the national tourney include 118-pound sophomore Andy Radenbaugh and freshmen Todd Layton and Mark Gerardi, wrestling at 150 and 158, respectively.

After an easy 41-7 win over Marquette last week, McCann feels his team is on a roll.

"It was a nice meet before regionals," said McCann. "The kids came away from it with a good feeling that should carry over into this weekend’s regionals. We wrestled aggressively, and that’s a good sign before a big tournament like this one."

"The NCAAs are the big time, and we are definitely ready."

First-round matchups get underway tonight at 6 and consolation matches begin Saturday at 10 a.m., followed by the semifinals at 11:30 a.m. and the finals at 2:30 p.m.
Lake Forest first up in semis
Irish seek ACHA title

By STEVE MEGARGEE

DEARBORN, Mich. - Notre Dame's hockey team is looking to end its best season ever by knocking off the only team that gave the Irish trouble all year.

"But if the Irish are to do just that by upsetting host Michigan-Dearborn in the American Collegiate Hockey Association championship, they first will have to defeat Lake Forest for the third time in a week. Notre Dame meets the Foresters at 4 p.m. today (WVFI AM-64), with the winner going to Saturday night's ACHA final.

The Foresters, seeded third in the tournament, finished the season with a 4-7-1 conference record and a 12-11-1 overall mark. Lake Forest got better as the season progressed, winning six games in a row before getting swept by Notre Dame (7-3-2, 25-4-2) last weekend.

"We don't look past Lake Forest," said first-year Irish coach Ric Schafer. "We beat them four times this season, but three of those games were close. We're probably a better team, but I run into hot goaltender that could be a light game."

"Goaltending has been one of the Foresters' strong suits all year. Jeff Sandreuter has compiled an .872 save percentage in his 16 games at goalie, as Irish continued from page 20 playing for pride as they look to the future. They have a 22-year streak of playing in some postseason tourney that looks to be coming to an end."

"Marquette will be looking to salvage the season," Phelps said. "This will be their last road game of the year, and I'm sure their seniors as well as their young players will come in here with something to prove. More than anything, we have to be concerned with how we play." In the first meeting in Janu­ary, the Irish pounded the War­riors 62-44 at the MECCA. Marquett­e handled only 12 points in the first half and was limited to 32 percent (16-of-50) of their field goals for the game. Rivers led the Irish attack with 26 points and Stevenson added 11. The Warriors are a relatively young team, with only two seniors in the starting lineup. Sophomore Tony Smith leads Marquette, averaging 13.7 points per game. Freshman Trevor Powell averages 11.3 points and senior Pat Foley scored a 11-4 clip.

After the Warriors, the Irish have only Hardin-Simmons and Dayton left before the NCAA tournament selections. By tourney time, Phelps hopes his squad will be in top form.

"I still believe in this team," Phelps said. "But we're not satisfied. We have only Hardin-Simmons and Dayton left."

meter diving and third in the final event of the evening, the 400 medley relay, to gain the top spot. Adam Hirschfeld led the Irish divers with a ninth place and the 400 medley team finished eighth.

Schafer said his team didn't win that close, but there was somewhat of the Irish at the top of the leaderboard.

"There's no right and day dif­ference," Schafer said when com­paring the Irish squads of the past two seasons. "I'm not doing a tremendous job here. We weren't even figuring Notre Dame to be any problem at all."

"We believe we're headed in the right direction," Welsh said. "But we're not satisfied. We know we still have a way to go. This is still anybody's meet. We'll know a lot more Friday."
Defending champs, gutsy challengers in Bengals finals

By PETE SKIKO

Six returning champions look to hang on to their title belts tonight as the final round of the Bengal Bout gets underway at 7:30 in Stepan Center.

Very few surprises have been encountered on the road to the finals this year, as all six of last year's returning champions have returned with relative ease. Mike 'High' Noone, Tim 'Dirt' Hartigan, Greg 'Skid' Rowe, John Uhl, Dan 'The Anchor Man' Gamache, and Kevin 'Vigilante' Duggan all will take the canvas to try to repeat.

In the bantamweights, Joe 'Doomsday' Dieterle takes on John 'All Man' Manfredy. At featherweight, Eric 'Smiling' Feder goes up against Tim 'The Shepherd' O'Loughlin.

Troy 'Slam' Duncan battles Noone in the junior lightweight division, while in the lightweights, Mike 'Candy Man' Canavan challenges Hartigan. At junior welterweight, Tim 'T-Bone' Reardon faces Duggan and John 'Bull-Bull' Bastian squares off against Doug 'Boom-Boom' Biochini in the welterweight class.

Newcomer Mike 'The Hammer' Keegan will battle Paul 'Noose' Gluckow for the super welterweight title. Andy 'Shakin' Baker takes on Ken 'Bing' Scheve at junior middleweight.

At super cruiserweight, John Showel challenges defending champion Rowe, and Uhl puts his title on the line against Panos 'The Terminator' Tsicopoulos at heavyweight.

The last fight on the card features the super heavyweight final between Dan 'The Man' Quinn and Brian Shannon.

The Bengal Bouts finals get under way tonight at Stepan Center, with a number of former champs attempting to defend their crowns. Pete Skiko previews the punches at left.

Vitale's style puts him in basketball limelight

BY DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

At noon on the day Notre Dame plays Vanderbilt, the Commodores have a scheduled shoot around. They work on their offense, run drills, and generally loosen up before the game later that night.

Also on the court is a balding man in a blue Adidas sweatshirt. He talks to Vanderbilt assistant coaches, players and Head Coach Cameron. Then he takes to the hardwood.

Yes, it’s the ultimate basketball game between commentator Dick Vitale. Love him or hate him, he’s the hottest item in college basketball. He’s making T-shirts with his name, and Sports Illustrated’s Curry Kirkpatrick wrote a book on his life. Another writer said that the two biggest things on cable TV are Dr. Ruth and Dick Vitale.

Vitale, who coached at the University of Detroit as well as the Pistons, does countless games for both ESPN and ABC. His vocal and opinionated style has been a source of controversy recently with a Sports Illustrated article that was critical of his style.

After shooting around the sinks nine straight free throws against fellow commentator Tim Brando, Vitale gladly agrees to do an interview. Throughout the half-hour conversation, Vitale was open, enthusiastic and even philosophical. He was very honest about his feelings for the Sports Illustrated article, as well as everything else.

Rather than intrude, it’s easier to let Vitale handle the show. Coach?

On how his love for the game developed:

“Being a gym rat and a basketball nut as a kid, always chasing the dream like every other. I was never a great player. I always felt that the quickest way to maybe being able to get involved in the game was through coaching. I started on the high school level and the prog, and getting into this. This has just been like heaven for me.

“Things that have happened for me career-wise have just been mind-boggling. In fact, sometimes I think God when I think about how lucky I’ve really been. It’s a great game, I get paid handsomely. It’s amazing when you think about how people in this world work so hard. I think about my father working in a factory, killing himself to make a living.

“Kids sit at courtside and get paid some pretty good dollars for talking about something that’s just a game. It’s not war and surgery.”

On his style:

“If you’ve been around the game, you get certain feels on things that you think can contribute to a game. I try to make the game a little different from most, and everybody has to be himself. That’s the bottom line—I try to be myself. I think, being a little unique, sometimes you’re open to a little bit more criticism.

“The fans have been great to me. I can go across the nation, and the kids have just been great. In airports and lobbies, they’re screaming out my name. ‘Am I a PTF?’ I just have a lot of fun with all that, but basically I just try to add to the technical strategy. We all know X’s and O’s or we wouldn’t be doing this, I don’t
