ND students learn about honor codes at meeting

By DAN MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Student support is the biggest problem facing the institution of an honor code at Notre Dame, according to freshman Kristie Stamile, one of three Notre Dame students who attended an honor code conference at Princeton University March 3 through March 5.

Stamile heard "mostly success stories" from students of colleges employing honor code systems, and noted that many of the honor codes were based on tradition.

"Some honor codes are over 100 years old," Stamile said. "We're trying to start something new (at Notre Dame) and if it works it'll have to form our own traditions." Stamile thinks education is the key to getting student support necessary to establish an honor code system at Notre Dame.

Aisen at D2 lot will be tried as an adult, faces jail

The case against Harold Leroy Frazier, Jr., accused of assaulting a female Notre Dame student in the D-2 parking lot on Feb. 7, will be waived to an adult court, County Prosecutor Michael Barnes said Wednesday.

Frazier, a Edwardsburg, Mich. resident, will be tried as an adult, despite the fact he is still 17, it was decided at a hearing on Wednesday.

Frazier is being charged with Class A felony attempted rape, Class C felony battery, and Class B felony criminal confinement.

As an adult, Frazier will face imprisonment if convicted. The maximum sentence for attempted rape is 30 to 50 years, battery, two to eight years, and criminal confinement, six to 20 years.

"The case will now be moved to an upper court," continue proceedings, said Barnes.

If the suspect were tried as a juvenile, "the sentence would be much less severe," said Barnes. If convicted, Frazier may have spent time in a juvenile home or served a much shorter prison sentence.

The victim of the assault was attacked at knife point at around 5 p.m. on Feb. 7. Security officers, working in conjunction with the Indiana state police, the Elkhart county and city police and the St. Joseph county police, arrested Frazier.

Diet, lifespan link found at ND

By KIMBERLY TRENNER

"There is no question that diet has a direct relationship to aging," said Professor Morris Pollard, Coleman Director of Lubod Laboratory at Notre Dame.

Preliminary findings in what is believed to be the largest and most comprehensive study of the effects of restricted diet on aging in laboratory animals will be presented at a symposium March 27 to March 30 at Notre Dame.

"The Lubod Aging Project is a four year study supported by the Retirement Research Foundation of Chicago," said Pollard.

"Researchers studied conditions in conventional and germfree rats, all of the same sex and strain," said Pollard. "A consortium of 26 investigators from the United States and Canada examined tissues in the aging animals according to their areas of expertise," he said. These areas include endocrinology, anatomy, the brain, and gastrointestinal functions.

"Half of each group of rats were fed the same diet reduced by 30 percent. The restricted animals had a significant increase in life and a lower incidence of disease," said Pollard.

"Since 1953 the reduction of diet has been linked to aging," he said. "What we are trying to do is find out what in the diet does the trick."
Media stresses style at expense of substance

"Who's in first?"
"That's right."
"What?"
"It's running second."
"That's running second."

This old Abbott and Costello comedy routine sounds like the present-day presidential campaign.

Today's media has lost focus on what's important on the campaign trail. All its attention now goes to the two big Ps—the polls and the personalities.

Although personalities influence many voters' decisions, the media focuses on polls with personal flaws, rather than concentrating on the issues. Candidates are constantly categorized by the media with short one-liners, such as Bush the Wimp, Dole the Hatchet Man, or Robertson the TV evangelist. In the media's search for easy quips, they have distorted what the public really needs to know.

Don't misunderstand me. Personalities do have their role in politics. It is true that Ronald Reagan's personality had a lot to do with his election, but does that make him a good president? Not in and of itself. Voters need to know how a candidate stands on the issues and what kind of person he is. After all, voters wish to elect someone who has ideas and aspirations similar to their own.

The media must take more responsibility for elections because their coverage of the campaign is very important. Most people make their decision on a candidate based on what they read in the newspaper and what they see on TV.

The media needs to cover the whole campaign objectively. When the nightly news only shows us the one-liners from a speech or debate, rather than the overall tone and content, the public is deprived of one of the more important aspects of the campaign, the platforms.

Recall the Dan Rather/George Bush confrontation. Rather attacked Bush for not disclosing more information about the Iran-Contra affair. Bush countered with, "How would you like it, Dan, if your entire career was judged by the eight minutes that you walked off the set?" He had political interviews that were meant to inform the people that have to turn into vicious, personal attacks. Bush's comment describes how unfair the media's coverage of the campaign can be. On the evening news, we rarely hear much about a candidate's views. Rather, we are given the quips of a debate or interview.

Politicians are not perfect, and they sometimes say things they shouldn't, like Dole's comment to Bush on NBC News several weeks ago: "Stop lying about my record!"

These sharp comments do need reporting, because they do say something about the candidate's personality, but unfortunately they overshadow all the other relevant information of the campaign.

Polls are used as the standards of a presidential race. Almost every newspaper, network, and campaign staff conducts their own polls, yet many have different results. Earlier this week, I heard on the news that if Dukakis and Bush were nominated, the former would win. That's a pretty tough call to make eight months before the election, especially since the Democratic race is so close.

Polls, personalities and comic lines are great, but why doesn't the media report more of what we want to hear? We want to know what the candidates are likely to do about Central America, the Middle East, the economy, the abortion issue and others, but they don't seem to want to tell us.

Now that the delegates are being counted and the media can make their bar-graphed polls with caricatures of each candidate under their respective totals. But when a winner is finally crowned, and the pope is over, the voters will be left asking "who's who?"
North, Poindexter plead innocent to charges

Associated Press
WASHINGTON Former national security aides Lt. Col. Oliver North and John Poindexter and two businessmen pleaded innocent Thursday to charges they ran the Iran-Contra affair as a vast criminal conspiracy and defrauded the government of $17 million.

One by one, the defendants were called before U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell at their arraignment, and asked by courtroom clerk Barbara Montgomery, "How do you wish to plead?"

"Not guilty," replied Poindexter. President Reagan's former national security adviser, and North, a top assistant to Poindexter.

All four defendants were released on their personal recognizance and told to report weekly by telephone to a pre-trial agency. Although criminal defendants are often asked to surrender their passports, Gesell said he would not impose that condition.

Dressed in conservative business suits, the four men made their first appearance in court since a federal grand jury, convened by Independent Counsel Lawrence Walsh 14 months ago, handed down a 23-count indictment March 16.

North, retiring as a Marine lieutenant colonel May 1, and Poindexter, a retired Navy rear admiral, embraced before the judge entered the crowded courtroom.

The defendants are charged with conspiring to defraud the United States "by deceitfully...organizing, directing and concealing" a program of support for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels at a time such assistance was banned.

The indictment also said the defendants "knowingly did employ and use weapons to fraud and convert to their own use" part of the proceeds generated by the sale of weapons to Iran.

Gesell set no trial date but said he would hold an early hearing to determine whether evidence gathered by Walsh is not tainted and therefore admissible.

Opposition leader returns to Panama

Associated Press
PANAMA CITY, Panama - A leading opposition figure returned from exile Thursday and rejoined an increasingly desperate struggle to topple Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

"We have but one objective: to get rid of Noriega and build reconciliation and democracy in Panama," said Ricardo Arias Calderon, the president of the Conservative Democratic Party, in an address to a chanting, cheering crowd of about 300 people who greeted his flight from Costa Rica.

"I am profoundly moved to be back in my own land," he said.

The return of Arias Calderon, considered a presidential aspirant in elections scheduled for May 1989, came on the fourth day of a nationwide general strike aimed at ousting Noriega, who is the head of the 15,000-member Defense Forces and is the power behind the military government.

Despite almost unanimous support for the strike by businessness and industry, Noriega remained defiant, saying Wednesday night his opponents at home and in the United States don't "have the capacity" to overthrow him.

That feeling appeared to be shared by some strike leaders, who said it might take a revolt by fellow officers to remove Noriega as head of the Defense Forces.

"There are growing pockets within the Defense Forces that are against Noriega," said Jose Mulino, an attorney and opposition leader. "What we don't know is if they will act."

But in his speech to a group of about 500 supporters, Noriega claimed the military was maintaining "its high moral and patriotic beliefs" despite a failed barracks coup last week. Eleven officers were arrested in that foiled plot.

Noriega dismissed more than a dozen officers and shifted the assignments of other key personnel.

Gephardt to quit if no victory soon

Associated Press
Democrat Richard Gephardt, who has fallen on hard times since his Iowa victory 45 days ago, will quit the presidential race unless he scores an upset victory in Michigan this weekend, aides said Thursday.

George Bush, meanwhile, headed for Connecticut expecting to pad his huge lead on the GOP side.

Gephardt said he'd made no decision to drop out, declaring, "My mother always told me to cross one bridge at a time." But the scramble was already on to pick up supporters who would be freed if he withdrew.

"There's no question there are some union leaders who are now supporting Dick Gephardt who would find Paul Simon the most attractive of the alternatives," said Illinois Sen. Simon at an appearance in Kalamazoo.

Simon, who is in fourth place in the Democratic delegate count, just ahead of Gephardt, is taking nothing for granted in the ballgame.

Pedicure not a right of AIDS victim

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - A west Hollywood nail salon is justified in refusing to work on an AIDS patient because there is no conclusive medical evidence on how the deadly disease is spread, a judge ruled in a decision disclosed Thursday.

Superior Court Judge Lawrence Waddington said in a 14-page decision that Jessica's Nail Salon could legally refuse to give Paul Jasperson's pedicure despite a West Hollywood ordinance barring AIDS discrimination.

The ordinance "fails to respect the right not to be involuntarily exposed to a risk of personal harm," the judge said. The decision late Wednesday justified because experts aren't positive how AIDS is transmitted.

"Is it necessary to maintain your livelihood to expose yourself to death?" attorney Paul Geragos asked during the non-jury civil trial on behalf of Jessica's. "We're talking about self-protection and self-decision."

Geragos said Thursday he was pleased with the decision. While an ordinance barring AIDS discrimination is fine, he said, requiring people to do something that threatens their life isn't.

AIDS is caused by a virus that damages the body's immune system.

UPS delivers babies now

Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. - It was a special delivery, even for workers of United Parcel Service.

The package was an 8-pound baby boy born to Bob Turner, an UPS delivery driver, and his wife, Deanna.

Unfortunately, Turner didn't make the delivery. The job went to his boss, Bloomington UPS supervisor Pam Lincoln.

Mrs. Turner called UPS about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday to say she was starting labor and asked that her husband be notified.

Lincoln called back about 15 minutes later to say Turner would be home in 45 minutes.

"She said that was fine," said Lincoln. "But the way she said it indicated to me that there was some concern.

Another 15 minutes went by, and Lincoln called again. This time, Mrs. Turner said she needed to go to the hospital immediately.

Lincoln rushed to the Turner home. While he was dialing an ambulance, the baby arrived.

Lincoln, 47, the father of four and a grandfather of four, worked in a pediatrics ward in the Navy 25 years ago.

Mrs. Turner and son Daniel Lee were taken by ambulance to Bloomington Hospital.

They were discharged Thursday.

"Everybody is OK," Turner said Thursday. "I was very surprised. I thought she was going to have a quiet delivery, but not that quick.

When you finally finish War and Peace, a small celebration is in order.

Aging

continued from page 1 to do is slow (aging) down," said Pollard. "No one knows the mechanism of life extension or disease reduction. We think this study will contribute substantially to a better understanding of the mechanism of dietary restriction," he said.

The die is an all-vegetable, natural grain diet which is low in fat and reinforced with vitamins and minerals, said Pollard. The Notre Dame diet could be translated into a human diet, he said. It has been tested over many years and found to be excellent, he added.

We anticipate that (the study) will be applied to health in men and women," said Pollard. The findings of the study will be published in book form, he added.

In addition to the project collaborators, there are five internationally recognized gerontologists chairing the symposium sessions, said Pollard. These include Edward Masoro, professor and chairman of the Department of Physiology at the University of Texas Health Science Center; Richard Weindruch of the National Institute on Aging's Nutrition Program; Joseph Meites, Department of Physiology, Michigan State University; Peter Holt, chief of the Division of Gastroenterology at St. Luke's Hospital and the Department of Medicine at Columbia University; and Morton Rothstein, professor of biological sciences at the State University of New York in Buffalo.

Dr. Brody of the University of Illinois will be speaking Sunday afternoon on aging in the 20th and 21st centuries, said Pollard. All sessions will be held in the Center for Continuing Education. The symposium is being funded by the Retirement Research Foundation and The National Institute on Aging.

Two more die in West Bank unrest

Israeli warplanes raided Palestinian guerrilla bases on the outskirts of Sidon for the second straight day. It was the third Israeli air raid into Lebanon in a week and the fifth this year.

Soldiers have rounded up at least 700 Palestinians in the past week, and about 3,000 since the rebellion began, in nightly sweeps through villages and refugee camps aimed at removing leaders of the rebellion.

Among those detained Wednesday night and early Thursday were several men believed responsible for the latest Palestine Liberation Organization leaflet, said Nahum Mendel, spokesman for the Police Ministry. He would not identify them or say how many were arrested.

An Islamic official in Hebron said about 200 imams - moslem religious leaders - had been arrested in the West Bank city this week. He said, on condition of anonymity, that most were members of a fundamentalist group.

Many of those arrested were taken to half a dozen Arab schools the army converted into temporary detention centers.

Thursday's deaths brought to 109 the number of Palestinians killed since the Arab rebellion began Dec. 8 in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, according to U.N. figures. One Israeli soldier has been killed.

Monsignor Michel Sabbah, Roman Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem, canceled the traditional Palm Sunday procession from the biblical Mount of Olives to Jerusalem's Old City because of continuing violence.

Ariel Sharon, the hawkish former general who now is industry and trade minister, said Wednesday that Israel regards as responsible for the attacks.

Chemical weapons used by Iraq

associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus - The slaughter of Kurdish civilians in Iraqi poison gas attacks and Iranian warnings of retaliation underscore the growth of the chemical warfare arsenals of major Middle East powers.

Despite efforts to curb such weapons, their spread has added a dangerous new dimension to conflicts in the Middle East. Their use, but not their production, is banned under a 1925 Geneva agreement.

The London-based Jane's Defense Weekly noted in a recent study that the use of poison and nerve gases since 1984 in the 5-year old Iran-Iraq war "has changed the rules of war in the Middle East."

Taking the pill does not increase risk of cancer

Associated Press

CHICAGO - Long-term use of birth control pills, even by women who began taking them as teenagers, does not increase the risk of breast cancer, a new study of more than 9,000 women concludes.

The findings were reported in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Previous studies disagreed over whether the pill increases the risk of breast cancer for women through middle age. Some researchers have suggested the conflicting conclusions might be the result of a long-term latent effect from early use.

"But we found no direct human evidence for such a latent effect," said Dr. Bruce Stadel, one of the study's authors.

Stadel was at the National Institutes of Health when the study was conducted and now works with the Food and Drug Administration in Bethesda, Md.

"This was a very, very large study, and those data are immensely reassuring," he said.

S&Ls suffer record losses

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The savings and loan industry, drained by insolvent institutions in Texas, lost $3.2 billion in the first three months of 1988, pushing the industry's red ink for the year to a record $6.8 billion.

That was nearly 50 percent greater than the previous post-Depression record of $4.6 billion, set in 1981, when the prime lending rate soared above 20 percent.

"I hope it's the worst we'll ever see," said James Christian, chief economist of the U.S. league of Savings Institutions, the industry's largest trade group.

The nation's 3,147 federally insured S&Ls lost $1.8 billion in the third quarter of last year and $1.9 billion in the spring. They earned $100 million in the first three months of the year and had a modest $132 million profit for all of 1986.

New McDonald's a big hit in Yugoslavia

Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia - Communism suffered its first Big Mac attack Thursday as McDonald's opened a restaurant in Yugoslavia, and police were called in to keep customers from getting too unruly under the golden arches.

"I just wanted to taste genuine American hamburgers," said Milica Nikolic, a high school student who waited for three hours to taste her first Big Mac.

People curiously examined the renovated restaurant's plush interior and the back-lit signs depicting the hamburgers, French fries, milk shakes and other fare more familiar in the West. It also featured amber-colored tables and floors, pastel-colored upholstery, modern art paintings and discreet illumination.

The fast-food outlet, located on a downtown street, had drawn crowds in recent days, and they began gathering long before it opened Thursday.

Police kept watch on the lines of customers snaking around the block, and they regulated the number who came inside to avoid overcrowding.

"No opening of a restaurant in Belgrade has created such a sensation as this one today," one policeman said.

I think this restaurant has no competition in Belgrade," said Milica Danic, a housewife who treated her son to a cheeseburger. "It is much cleaner, the service is faster, the interior is nicer and it is not too expensive."

The Belgrade media have suggested that the success of McDonald's in Yugoslavia depends on its acceptance by citizens long accustomed to a hamburger-like fast-food dish called the Pljeskavica: ground pork and onions on a bun.

"In fact, this is a clash between the Big Mac and Pljeskavica," said Vesna Milesevic, an official of Genex, a Yugoslav state-run enterprise that has contracted a joint venture agreement with McDonald's.

"Our aim is not to destroy the Pljeskavica on the Yugoslav market," said Predrag Dostanic, managing director of the Genex McDonald's.

"We want to change customs of the local people used to completely different eating habits," he said. Lounging at tables for a long time after a finished meal will draw a warning. Smoking is forbidden, and alcohol will not be served.

ASSAULT

Feb. 24 in Elkhart County. Using information obtained from the victim and an auto dealer, detectives were able to trace the suspect's vehicle.

The victim, who did not appear at the hearing, said, "I haven't seen the guy (Frazier) since the attack." Although she was at the courthouse at the time of the hearing, she was not asked to testify.

Barnes said the trial will probably take place in June at the earliest.

Jessica's rescuers argue over movie rights

Associated Press

MIDLAND, Texas - For 58 hours after a toddler tumbled into an abandoned well, hundreds of rescuers worked together to free her, but now an effort to bring their heroism to television has divided them.

Two groups - one mostly volunteer rescuers and the other city officials are negotiating separately with different TV producers for a movie of the story that captured the nation's attention as it unfolded live on television.

Both groups are awaiting the terms for the rescue. But the White House and some in Congress also said the accord, while a strong sign of new health for the regional peace process, rests heavily on promises of future moves by both sides that could prove difficult.

President Reagan, getting into his limousine after speaking to high school students in suburban Vienna, Va., was asked whether he thought the cease-fire agreement would hold up.

"I don't know. We're looking carefully at it," he replied.

"There is a lot of room for encouragement here, yes, but there's also a lot of room for skepticism, and I'm trying to balance those two off," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

"We're beginning the process. We need to watch it. We've seen processes like this start before and fail," he said.

Dissolving checks a surprise for banks

Associated Press

CHICAGO - Checks treated with a chemical that causes them to disintegrate into confetti shortly after being deposited have shown up in at least two states, costing banks nearly $70,000 since the beginning of the year, police said Thursday.

A check clearinghouse said it was a special event. There was so much effort, and everyone had their own story. "Maybe it should be kept special like that," he said Thursday.

The Jessica McClure Rescuers' Association, a group of about 30 volunteers, is committed to a movie deal with Los Angeles producer Larry Snyder, president of Highlands Communications Group, Inc. The group has asked all rescuers to join them.

The association's president, Kragg Robinson, said 33 members have signed a contract that includes an initial $200,000, plus future payments, to be divided among the membership.

Three suicides in two weeks stuns Evansville school

EVANSVILLE, Ind. - Police and psychological counselors met Thursday night with par- ents at Reitz High School follow- ing the suicides of three stu- dents in the past two weeks. "It's a scary situation," said Patsy Kelley, a senior at the school. "Even people who didn't know them are affected by it."

Police were there to head off rumors about the deaths, said Vanderburgh County Sheriff Clarence Shepard. "There are a number of rumors going around about satanism and cults and things of this sort," Shepard said. "We have found nothing in any of the three that indicates any satanism or cult."

The three victims were boys who knew each other and were in the same year in high school, the sheriff said. Two were Reitz sophomores, and the third was a former student who trans- ferred to another school. The latest victim, Larry "J.J." Orth, 15, was found dead of a self-inflicted gunshot wound at 6:30 Wednesday mor- ning. Orth had called friends to tell them he wouldn't be back at school, and the friends went to his home and found the vic- tim in his living room, along with a note indicating he was having family problems. Eric Sanders, 16 and also a Reitz student, died March 10; and Steven Schafer, 15, who left last year, died March 13. "The last two appear to be copycats," Shepard said before the meeting. "But all three were immediate, personal, emotional problems with the young men. One was a boyfriend-girlfriend problem, and the others were family problems."

School officials acted quickly to prevent more "copycat suicides," said Susan McDowell, head of psychologi- cal services for the Evansville- Vanderburgh School Corpora- tion. "It happens with one, and it kind of spreads," she said. "Kids are kind of impres- sionable and they're easily in- fluenced. And if they see that one of their friends has dealt with a problem that way, they may try to handle it the same way. They don't look at the long run."

Six psychologists and two counselors were sent to the school of 1,350 students on Wed- nesday to assist the four coun- selors normally assigned to Reitz. The school corporation began a training program for staff in the fall that included education about the danger sig- nals evidenced by youngsters contemplating suicide, and a video tape program about a suicidal student.

"Almost eight out of 10 kids who commit suicide will leave clues," McDowell said. "They may not talk about it, and typ- ically it's not as overt as telling someone what they're going to do, but they will leave signs of some sort, and that's why we've had our in-service (training) this year."

The school was to begin a "buddy system" to pair new- comers with older students, and peer counseling groups headed by trained juniors and seniors to talk to troubled youngsters, said principal Christine Settle.

conference. The first step is discussing honesty and formu- lating a definition of an honor code, he said. The next step is finding out to what extent stu- dents want to be involved in an honor code system.

Non-proctored exams and in- forming on peers are the two most controversial issues over the adoption of an honor code system, said Misiewicz. Both issues were addressed at the conference. "It is difficult for faculty members to give up the idea of proctoring exams," said Misiewicz. He said non- proctored exams place greater responsibility on students in a climate established for honesty.

Informing on peers means reporting fellow students in- volved in academic dishonesty. This practice, also known as non-toleration, is often funda- mental to honor code systems and places additional responsi- bility on students, said Misiewicz.

Non-toleration poses a difficult dilemma for students, ac- cording to Associate Provost Father Oliver Williams. "Somehow loyalty has to take the backseat to integrity," he said. "It's not easy. Before you see the value of turning some- one in you have to see that there are high costs in not turning them in."

Misiewicz thinks a period of education and growth is neces- sary for Notre Dame students to accept the responsibilities created by an honor code. He said, "It's not something that's there, it's an attitude that develops. It's countercultural in our society."

Instituting an honor code at Notre Dame is a big challenge, said Misiewicz, but he thinks the University can apply its pride in athletics to academics. "We have to look at Notre Dame and find a way of ap- proaching an honor code given our heritage and tradition," he said.

Misiewicz says 'You must do such and such.' "I don't know what will hap- pen, but I think that's good" said Misiewicz. "This isn't an area where the administration says 'You must do such and such.' "

Heed the voice of divestment

Listen. It is still there. It is not on the front pages. It is not grabbity the current headlines. Perhaps, for our purposes, it is better that way or even for gotten altogether.

guest column

Listen. It passes in the wind above the trees on our beautifully sculptured campus. It is not welcome here for it stains and bears the image of our University. It rattles our buildings and destabilizes the ethical cornerstones of this place we call our second home. It is the painful evidence that we are living and propagating a lie. It is a poignant reminder of our failure to bear the calling of Christ.

Listen. As in Poe's "Tell Tale Heart," it is there still--constantly nagging on our collective conscience. Be knowning a response. Echoing. Reverberating. Resounding. Resilient. Haunting. Maybe by our silence we shall silence the irritating noise which burdens us and which names us an accomplice to atrocious acts against humanity. Perhaps we may comfort our hypocritical souls by rationalizing that by bearing nothing we are doing nothing at all.

Listen. It is the cry of the children of God. It is the cry of the children of South Africa. Their irrepressible voices defying the weak mogul of selective divestment espoused by Father Williams and the Board of Trustees. As we stand in "silence for the forgotten," the greatest maltrait this world has ever known, their lament underscores the glowing contempt in which the social responsibility this Catholic University proclaims to have for the entirety of our family and its manifestation in dealing with the sin of apartheid.

We can be silent for no longer for there comes a time when silence is nothing but death. Betraying the oppressed people of South Africa, to our mission, to ourselves and to the crux of our curriculum.

We can no longer hide behind the veil of selective divestment. It simply does not work. Selective divestment is a morally vacuous position disguised as innocent, practical, bottom line philo sophy. The current guidelines to which we adhere are a joke by which we seek to transcend our collective responsibility. Selective divestment makes a mockery of itself by asserting that we can maintain leverage within South Africa when the government has banned and censored all anti-apartheid organizations such as the United Democratic Front (UDF) and African National Congress (ANC). We are attempting to dampen a bastion of brutality by noble, but frivolous prin ciples which the South African govern ment would ban.

We must wake up and admit that our policy is just not working. Our policy of selective divestment is predicated on the Sullivan Principles which Sullivan himself has recently denounced. Would you stay on a plane if the chief engineer just grabbed a parachute and said that the plane is failing and won't reach its desired destination? As the Supreme Court came to recognize the error of its ways in Korematsu, Dred Scott, and Plessy where it had previously served to justify and augment the sins of racism and prejudice, so too Notre Dame must rescind its current and equally erroneous stance regarding South Africa.

As the Supreme Court realized that these precedents were incongruent with the Constitution--the living document upon which our nation is founded--must realize that our current policy of selective divestment must be reversed, for it is undermining the eth ical matrix upon which the very con struction of our University rests.

Under the guise of selective divest ment, Notre Dame has issued a hypocritical message which it plans to ignore. Even the Holy Cross community and U.S. Catholic Bishops have realized that such policies do not work and have withdrawn their sources from the oppressive machinery of apartheid.

One day, hopefully soon, Notre Dame will see that it has fallen short of the beatific calling of Christ and remove its investments. But when will that day of reckoning come? When will Notre Dame change course and no longer walk low in the valley of indecision and inconsistency? The words of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. ring true for us.

"I know you are asking today, 'How long will it take?' I come to you this Friday, March 25, 1988 to ask you to listen. It is the cry of the children of God. It is not grabbity the current headlines. Perhaps, for our purposes, it is better that way or even for gotten altogether.

How long? Not long, because you still grab what you want. How long? Not long, because the arm of the moral universe is long but it bends toward justice.

Listen. This Sunday, Palm Sunday, when you listen to the Passion of Christ, listen to the cries of the children of South Africa. This Sunday, when you reflect on the hyperbolic sign of the Kiss of Judas and the betrayal of Christ, reflect also on our hypochrytical sign of selective divestment and our betrayal of Christ, of our mission, and of ourselves. This Sunday when you pray, pray for the children of South Africa and pray that the inevitable day on which Notre Dame acknowledges this sin it has walked an errant path will be the day when Truth is calling. Bookstore: an athletic tradition

Dear Editor:

One of the great traditions of Spring at Notre Dame is An Tostal Weekend and the related event called Bookstore Basketball. Over 600 teams are scheduled to compete in this latter activity. For some, it is a lighthearted moment, with crazy costumes, a bit of self-mockery and a chance to participate in a special Notre Dame experience. For others, it is an opportunity for testing their skills against some of the better student athletes in the country.

Unfortunately, there have been times in the recent past where the spirit of camaraderie and good times was marred by verbal displays and crowd behavior that suggested racial and ethnic attitudes that are totally unacceptable in this community. We are working hard on creating a more diverse student body here at Notre Dame. Next fall we will begin a year long celebration of cultural diversity. Now is the time for each of us to commit ourselves to this positive development.

Racism is one of the greatest scourges in world affairs and in our national his tory. There is no place at Notre Dame for comments or actions that display racial or ethnic insensitivity. I am confident that together we can celebrate this Rite of Spring in an honoring Notre Dame fashion. Thank you for your help.

South Africans wrongly depicted

Dear Editor:

The absurdity of Professor Peter Walsh's attack on President Reagan's South African policy is starkly revealed by his comments regarding the African National Congress. For those who may be unaware, the ANC is an extremely violent divestment and our betrayal of Christ, of our mission, and of ourselves. This Sunday when you pray, pray for the children of South Africa and pray that the inevitable day on which Notre Dame acknowledges this sin it has walked an errant path will be the day when Truth is calling. Denny’s:

A Culinary Delight

By MARK MCLAUGHLIN and REGIS COCCIA

Denny’s is the only place you can get a meal at a reasonable price. The menu offers a wide variety of dishes, including pasta, sandwiches, and salads. The decor is simple and clean, with a cozy atmosphere. The service is friendly and efficient, making it a great choice for a quick meal or a casual dinner. The prices are reasonable, and the portion sizes are generous. Overall, Denny’s is a great choice for a satisfying meal at a budget-friendly price.

After Bar

The atmosphere of the place leaves a little to be desired. Mindless Muzak variations fill the airwaves, unless you’re lucky enough to hear Anthony the late night cook sing. He’ll also offer opinions on Notre Dame football, which leaves a little to be desired. Mindless Muzak variations fill the wall look like cerebral cross sections of an optimist’s head, with people scurrying about the suspension. The decor is pseudo-wood finish and green plastic that appears on the seats, in the plant holders, and in the Astroturf shelf of the mirrored pique wall. The pictures on the wall look like cerebral cross sections of an optimist’s head, with clouds and brain tissue forming the strata.

But the food is well worth putting up with the décor. Prices range from $3 to $7 for entrees, most of which come with side dishes of vegetables or salads. We got the Denny’s Combo, which offers a large cheeseburger, french fries, and a huge garden salad for $4.05. This meal was quite filling, and not all that expensive. Getting water glasses refilled can be a problem, though, because service late at night sometimes comes up short-handed. Although the very friendly late night staff tries hard, large groups of people may find a lengthy wait for late night meals. But guests of Denny’s are treated to entertainment provided by the steady stream of Notre Dame and St. Mary’s students scandalizing about the suspiciously inexpensive Motel 6 (without luggage — hmmm …) next door.

If you feel like deserting your cafeteria manners for a day, you can indulge yourself in desserts like the sinfully delicious Chocolate Decadence. Chocolate cake layered cake smothered in ice cream and hot fudge is the perfect ending to a great meal. We have been told that the Denny’s Grand Slam, with a side of hash browns and a large glass of O.J., is the perfect cure to late-night hangovers. Many people apparently think this, since a line often forms about 2:30 a.m. on weekends to sample the fare. If eating at Denny’s is dietetically criminal, we’ll be repeat offenders.

The plot follows rival presidential candidates’ moral dilemmas in the heat of the race for nomination at the party convention. Are you tired of going to the same restaurant every time your parents come in for a weekend? Are you sick of paying for overpriced meals when you’re out on a date? Or, are you bored with the dining hall menu and hate the food? Denny’s is the perfect place to satisfy your cravings.

REVIEW

The menu is predominantly Italian and for a good reason: that is what the Spaghetti Works is known for. Each entree comes with a choice of pasta and sauce. The soup and salad is a great addition and the quality of both the food and the service are excellent. The Old Spaghetti Works is a bargain. The menu also features a variety of Italian sandwiches including; spumoni, Italian ices, and cannoli. The moderate prices, large portions and atmosphere make the Spaghetti Works a bargain. Entrees range in price from $5.75 for pasta with marinara sauce to $10.95 for the New York strip steak. There are daily specials that cut the price of a specific entree by $1. Reservations are recommended for the weekends, but weekdays are typically not as crowded. A sign near the door recommends that dress be “casual but neat.”

The Old Spaghetti Works

The Old Spaghetti Works devotes itself to making fine Italian cuisine at a price that won’t drain your wallet. The homemade pastas come with a variety of sauces, and also keep with the Italian tradition of serving generous portions.

The atmosphere is casual. The restaurant, formerly part of an old Singer sewing machine factory, has a decor reminiscent of the turn of the century. Faux antiques, and a train car that you can dine in all add to the effect. Although the candidates were fictitious, Gore Vidal’s past and present political figures into his tight dialogue. Bridget’s: an old favorite Home football and basketball games, VIPS. AnToast are events that most Notre Dame students will fondly recall after graduation. I, however, will also remember the fun times I spent at Bridget McGee’s Fillin’ Station. a.k.a. Bridget’s, a.k.a. Dan’s second home.

A scant five minute drive from the recenred area, south Bend 1970 up an Ford Pinto. Bridget’s offers reasonably priced drink specials, a relaxed atmosphere, and opportunities to meet lots of people from Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s. I prefer to park in the back, as I am that much closer to the Great American Hot Dog Stand for post-bar nourishment.

Upon entering, I never fail to be greeted by my favorite South Bend policeman who asks for my ID and says things like, “Say, kid, is this really you?” and “Weren’t you in here last night—when do you study?” Once inside, the lights are low, the air is smoky and everyone in the room is relaxed and happy. The music is solid; you can always hear it as long as you’re within a one block radius. I warn against singing along with the tapes, because they often quit in the middle of a song, and singing alone in a bar is quite embarrassing.

I highly recommend casual dress (flannel shirts and old jeans) are particularly well known in Cincinnati.

The goal of the Michiana Jazz Society is to recreate this type of informal jazz atmosphere. “Intimate Jazz” is the title of a series of three concerts that will be held in South Bend with the Steve Schmidt Trio and a different featured artist each session. The Steve Schmidt Trio is a jazz band that makes its home in the Blue Wisp Club in Cincinnati. The band has produced six albums and is well known in Cincinnati jazz circles. The band’s namesake, Steve Schmidt, plays the piano. He also used to play for Count Basie’s Big Band. The bass player, John Von Ohlten, is the most well known member of the group. He played with Woody Herman’s Big Band, as well as Stan Kenten.

One of the reasons the Jazz Society is bringing the band to Indiana is because Michiana is a very jazz-conscious community, shown by the high numbers of jazz festivals in the area, as well as the popularity of WJPE.

“WJPE is a very high quality jazz station. Even Cincinnati doesn’t have stations as jazz-oriented as Michiana,” commented Schneider.

The first artist to be featured is guitarist Bruce Forman. He will be playing with The Steve Schmidt Trio on March 25 at the Erskine Club House in South Bend, from 8:00 p.m. to 12:00 a.m. Tickets are available by mail, at $2.00 at the door for $15.00.
A feast day for a lonely God

Holy Week is at hand. What do you make of the poor, luckless Jew who dies on the Cross? A modern cynic once wrote: "They should have fed Him to the lions. His followers would have had a hard time making a religious symbol out of mankind.'

If He had been judged guilty as a cattle thief, they would have hanged Him: if He had been convicted as a mobster, He might have put up front of them so that they wouldn't be hurt by this world's lies.

Father Robert Griffin

Letters to a Lonely God

as a cattle thief, they would have hanged Him; if He had been convicted as a mobster, He might have put up front of them so that they wouldn't be hurt by this world's lies."

What do you make of this loser from Galilee that no mere writer—even Shakespeare, Homer, or Dostoevsky—could have invented? Opinions of film become a part of theology, and theology could be your excuse for dismissing film as a lifeless abstraction.

Oppressed by a triumphantistic theology, Swinburne wrote: "Thou has conquered, O pale Galilean; the world has grown gray from thy breath. .. Though all men abuse them before you in spirit, and all knees bend. I kneel not, neither adore you..."

".. cummings has a poem which makes film less cosmic: "no time ago'..." walking in the dark met christ jesus'my heartflapped over' and lay still." While He passed/dark close as I'm to yours/is clostrimade of nothing except loneliness."

"My heart is a lonely hunter that hunts on a lonely hill." Can lonely be a word that describes the Son of Man? Such vulnerability—loneliness like that attributed to the long-distance runner—makes film more humanly accessible than all the pomp and circumstance which priestcraft has attributed to His divine existence.

"People who lead a lonely existence always have something on their minds that they are eager to talk about," notes Chekhov. An Anglican cleric wrote of Jesus: If you have a flat, He isn't going to change the tire for you; but He'll sit and chat with you while you're changing the tire yourself.

If you could talk to Him as Christians are supposed to do when they pray, He would never lie to you, and He's so full of truth. He wouldn't allow you to lie to yourself. "Yet was I sore afraidlest, having 'Him'—as a friend—'I must have naught beside,'" wrote Francis Thompson in the "Hound of Heaven." This fear is why believers keep film at an arm's length for a lifetime.

Possibly the saint of the Church whom Jesus loves the most is Francis of Assisi; yet Jesus, in making Francis His all-time favorite, took none of the joy from his youth. Francis has been popularized as the original flower child. Francis, a nature poet and singer of romances, was more than a hippie; he was deeper than that. Perhaps more than any other Christian we know of, he was in love with God's world. He didn't want to own any piece of the world; he only wanted to take care of the people who were in it.

So close was He to Christ that, at the end of his life, God marked Him in the flesh with the wounds (or stigmata) of the Passion, so that all ages could appreciate Him as the visible image of Christ, honored as the Lamb of God and the Suffering Servant of Yahweh.

What do you think of the Son of Man, whom Francis worshipped as his Lord and Savior? Are you afraid He might move in on you with His grace, and try to make you—inevitably and against your will—a saint; and having Him as a friend, you might have naught beside such as wealth and fame?

St. Ignatius Loyola, founder of the Jesuits, so they say, used to meet Francis Xavier when he was student at the University of Paris. Loyola would unceremoniously let him with his question: "What does it profit a man to gain the world if he loses his own soul?" In the end, Francis Xavier was converted, and became a great missionary of the Jesuit order. I'm not Loyola, and none of you are Xaviers. To tell the truth, I'm more worried about the loss of my own soul than I am about losing yours. Is the pale Galilean waiting to sweep you off your feet in Holy Week with offers of sanctity that you can't turn down? I don't think He's going to knock you off your horse on the road to Damascus.

I see Him as the Gospels picture Him: an observer watching people entering the Temple, loving the children excited by their visit to Jerusalem, the widows dropping their small coins in the poor box, and the teenagers pleased with their lives as young Jews. They were probably shy with Him as He was shy with them. Knowing how important they were, He must have put up front of them so that they wouldn't be hurt by this world's lies.

Does the stock market close on Good Friday? It hardly matters: at noontime during Lent, the churches in the financial districts of cities like New York are usually crowded with workers from Wall Street, worshipping the Prince of glory whom this world once crucified. Power brokers from the most secular establishments pay their homage to the Son of the Most High who lived among us as a homeless street person.

Could you not pray to Him as the lonely God? In that lonely kingdom in which you pay taxes on your isolation. Good Friday is kept as the feast day of the lonely God. The Church's hymn on that day is the Lamentations: "Does it mean nothing to you, all that passes by? Look and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrows..."

Under the rubric of loneliness, which Holy Week highlights, you may find that the God of love is waiting for you, a stranger whose attention He's been trying to get.

Purdue beats S. Alabama

Associated Press

AMARILLO, Texas — Aided by Christa LaCroix's game-high 14 points, Purdue University outscored South Alabama by 10 in the last three minutes to win 63-55 in the tight game Thursday.

Purdue received a balanced scoring attack as Lisa Jahner and Sharon Versyp joined LaCroix in double figures with 13 apiece. Purdue made 18 of 20 free throws, compared to 5 for South Alabama.

As Notre Dame begins its outdoor season, one of its most important goals is to qualify runners for the NCAA Championships. In particular, Piane is looking for senior co-captain Dan Garrett, senior Ron Markoezieh, and Sophomore Mike O'Connor to qualify. The Monogram Track in Krause Stadium will begin at 1:00 with the field events. Running events start at 2:00.

The Notre Dame men's fencing team continues action at the NCAA Championships at Princeton, N.J. this weekend. Led by freshman Leszek Nowoselski, the Irish currently stand in third place after the sabre competition.

Irish find solace at home

Women's tennis hosts E. Michigan tonight at Eck

By FRANK PASTOR
Sports Writer

After ten straight matches on the road, the Notre Dame women's tennis team returns to the friendly confines of the Eck Tennis Pavilion tonight at 6 to take on Eastern Michigan.

Home sweet home.

For many teams, a month-long road trip can be hazardous to both their record and their confidence level. For a team as young as this year's Irish squad, the results can be downright calamitous. Just ask the Irish.

"Traveling has been a very hard adjustment for all of the freshmen," says the Irish coach Michelle Gelfman. "It has hurt us psychologically as well as physically." An important determinant to the unpleasant effects of the road is the emergence of a team leader. To that end, captain Michelle Dasso has performed admirably. Although the Irish roster is virtually depleted of up-and-comers, its sole senior is a gem. Like all respected seniors, Dasso leads by example.

"Michelle has found a good balance between traveling, academics, and her social life," says Gelfman. "She is playing extremely well, and I think she'll finish strong for us this year."

Dasso plays at number-two singles behind freshman Ce Ce Cahill. She also teams with Cahill in the top doubles tandem for the Irish. The freshman's astounding success in singles play since being teamed with her captain cannot be dismissed as mere coincidence.

It is precisely this senior leadership which insured the Irish success in Las Vegas. Although the Irish won two of six matches on the trip, the players learned a great deal about themselves and each other, and most importantly, they learned that they possess the talent to pull out the tough matches.

"The girls learned that you can't let down," said Gelfman. "You have to play tough every single match. You have to want it more than the next player. You have to want it for Notre Dame."

The lessons the team has learned from its grueling road schedule will benefit it in the long run, but the immediate results will be on display Friday evening.

Once again, the team will be playing in front of a partisan crowd. For the first time in a month, however, all on hand will be cheering for the Fighting Irish.

Blue Devils escape Rhode Island 73-72

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. - Kevin Strickland scored 11 of his 12 second-half points during a 22-10 spurt that brought Duke from behind for a 73-72 victory over upset Rhode Island in the NCAA East Regional semifinals Thursday night.

Rhode Island, which finished the season 26-7 after upsetting Missouri and Syracuse in the first and second rounds, closed the gap to 68-69 on two free throws by Kenny Green with 1:10 left.

But Robert Bricker, who scored 15 points, hit four straight free throws in the final 1:04 and grabbed a key rebound off a missed free throw by Strickland with 30 seconds remaining.

Bricker's two free throws with 13 seconds left made it 73-69. Rhode Island rushed the ball upcourt without a timeout and got a 3-pointer from Carlton Owens, the Rams' only 3-point goal of the game, with seven seconds to go.

Duke quickly inbounded the ball, and no Rhode Island player could stop the clock with a foul before the game ended.

Danny Ferry led Duke with 26 points, Strickland finished with 14 and John Smith 12.

Rhode Island was led by Owens with 19 points and John Evans, Tom Garrick and Mer­gin Sina with 14 each. Garrick had averaged 30 points in Rhode Island's five previous postseason games, which in­cluded a 68-63 loss to Temple in the Atlantic 10 tournament final.

Duke had to try harder to stop Owens, and Garrick was more contained Thursday.

Kevin Strickland scored 11 of his 12 second-half points during a 22-10 spurt that brought Duke from behind for a 73-72 victory over upset Rhode Island in the NCAA East Regional semifinals Thursday night.

The Sooners, topping the 100-point mark for the third time this season, surged to an early midway through the half and point mark for the 20th time this season.

Strickland hit two free throws to make it 56-49. The Sooners wasted little time in asserting control again. Dave Sieger sank a 3-point basket and King followed with a three-point play to build the lead to 82-74 with 9:18 to play.

Cardiac never got closer than six points the rest of the way.

The victory was the 18th for Richmond, which finished the season 23-9 and No. 6 Kentucky 33-3, who will continue from page 20 this season, surged to an early midway through the half and point mark for the 20th time this season.

NFL President: Postema's fate undecided

Associated Press

MESA, Ariz. - National League president Bart Giamatti said Thursday that Postema could still become the major leagues' first woman umpire this season, a day after saying she was going back to the minors.

"I have consistently said we will not make an announcement about any of our people (umpires) until we reach a decision, and then we will be completely up front about it," he said.

"We are still studying 10 people and she is one of them."

However, USA today quoted Giamatti as saying Postema would not be one of two umpires added to the major league pool ofvacation replacements, and the newspaper said it was standing by its story.

Giamatti also was quoted in the newspaper as saying Postema, 35, would return to the minors.

"She'll be back in the American Association as a crew chief," he said. "We have two openings. We haven't made a decision on who will fill them.

The Sacramento Bee ran similar story quoting Giamatti as saying: "I think she does a good job. I think she'd be called up right away? no, it doesn't fit."

Two San Francisco papers, the Chronicle and the Examiner, also used Giamatti's comments on Postema, saying she likely wouldn't be in the majors.

In denying that a decision had been made on Postema, Giamatti also declined to specify specifically about the situation.

"I don't talk about individual umpires or their abilities. I never have and never will," he told The Associated Press from MESA, where he was attending a Cubs-Athletics exhibition game.

On Thursday, Postema worked base first during Cin- cinnati's 3-1 win over Houston at Kisstimbee, Fla.

When the game was over, Postema signed a few autographs and then walked quickly toward the umpire's room as reporters trailed.

Asked about the published reports, she said: "I haven't heard anything, just what I read in the papers."

Frosh puts ND fencing in third

Special to The Observer

Freshman Leszek Nowosieliski was named second team All-American in the men's sabre competition as he put the Notre Dame men's fencing team in third place in the NCAA Championships after the first day of competition.

Columbia leads the team standings with 30 points, followed by Penn State with 28 and Notre Dame with 27. The foil competition will be held today, and the tournament concludes Saturday with the epee competition.

"It could be worse, it could be better," said Irish head coach Mike DiCicco. "I think we're in a decent position. Leszek gives us our foilists and epees a chance with a clear title.

Nowosieliski placed fourth in the individual competition freshman All-American for the final round of six before losing his first match to Chris Reohn of Columbia, who finished second. Nowosieliski then defeated David Cox of Penn State 10-7, but lost to Peter Cox of the sam e school by 10-8 in the semifinals.

Leszek gave our foilists and epees a chance with a clear title. Nowosieliski did it in 1984, and the first freshman All-American in the school's fencing history.

Notre Dame also has a chance with freshman Leszek Sullivan, who placed in the top 10 last year.

The Irish entered the NCAA championships as one of the top teams in the country, and the first team to win a national championship in fencing.

The fencing tournament will be held in Columbus, Ohio, and the Irish will face stiff competition in their bid for a second national championship.

Irish baseball hosts Wisconsin in opener

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Assistant Sports Editor

After playing 17 of its first 18 games on the road, the Notre Dame baseball team returns home in grand style this afternoon. The 8-10 Irish take on Wisconsin at 2 p.m. today in Notre Dame's first game at Stanly Coveleski Stadium. The new South Bend facility seats 5200 fans and will host the Irish for the first round pick in this spring's major league draft.

"Coveleski Stadium is another indication of where our program is going," said first-year Irish coach Pat Murphy. "It is a tremendous facility, and we are very lucky to be able to use it for some of our home games. It is as good as any Division I ballpark in the country."

Notre Dame's clash with Wisconsin will be just one of five games on the Irish schedule for the weekend. Notre Dame will go to Indianapolis for a doubleheader against Butler on Saturday, then returns home on Sunday for a doubleheader with Chicago State at Coveleski Stadium. The twinbill with the Cougars will be the 35th game in Wisconsin, which currently holds a 5-7 record, returns 18 litter-throwing winners from a squad that swept four games from Notre Dame at Jake Klimek Field last season. The Badgers will be ace lefthander Tom Fischer on the mound.

Fischer throws with velocity ranging in the 90 mph range, and is projected for the first round pick in this spring's major league draft. He posted a 2-03 earned run average last season.

Scott Cepeick is the Badgers' leading hitter, batting 333 with three home runs and 16 runs batted in. Wisconsin's lineup also includes Mike Barker and John Byce, both All-Big Ten selections last year.

In previous action, Wisconsin swept two games from Duke and split a pair with Wake Forest. The Irish opened their season with a 4-0 win over Duke and losing two to Wake Forest. Notre Dame also has lost 15 consecutive games

Bookstore Basketball: spring has arrived

By PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

The first robin, the first 70-degree day, hopefully the last ice patch/puddle-they've all made their appearance on the Notre Dame campus.

But springtime officially kicks off today at 4:00 when Bookstore Basketball teams take the court for the 17th consecutive season. The largest basketball tournament in the world only got bigger this year, at the expense of the more superstitions play of the NCAA. The number of teams in this year's tournament swelled four squads to 666. Despite the huge number of teams involved, rookie Bookstore Commissioner Mike Manning has experienced relatively few problems.

"Certainly, an improvement over last year is the fact that we're only dealing with team names, not numbers," said Manning, a sophomore. "The teams whose names did not clear the panel (which decided whether the names were usable or not) were easy to get a hold of and we didn't have any problems finding them a suitable name. The biggest hurdle we've had is that I forgot to put page numbers on the schedules. I guess I have to apologize for that.

"Two teams were on the schedule twice, but that situation turned out to favor Kentucky. Things have been hectic-there's been a lot of work to do.

Steve (Wence, commissioner for the last two years) and some of the assistant commissioners have showed me the ropes. I'll be glad when it finally gets underway.

Action starts, as it does every year, with the Hall of Fame Game on Bookstore Court 9 at 4:00. This year, Lou's Two QB's and Two Blind Guys, featuring Tony Rice, Kent Graham, David Rivers and Tim Brown, takes on The Div. II Phelps Fan Club and Five Other Guys. David Rivers and Brown are playing only in the Hall of Fame Game, so Rice's squad will take on two other players if it continues in the tournament.

A total of 15 games will be played today, heading into a triple slate of games on the weekend.

Of interest, women's head basketball coach Muffet McGraw and assistant coach Bill Fenley will be playing for the first time Saturday for a team called The Observer / David Fisher

Dick Vitale's One-Eyed Bandits, along with a revamped edition of Screamimg Midgets from Hell take Stepan Court 2 on Monday.

The tournament has grown in numbers and popularity every year since 1972 when two students, Fritz Hoefner and Vince Mecum, decided that Notre Dame needed to live up the campus athletic scene in the spring. That year, 53 teams competed in the tournament.

The tournament in Bookstore's initial year were led by Irish basketball star Chris Reohn, who won the championship on that team by vastly team-mates Gary Brokaw, Dwight Clark, and John Shumate. He was joined on the team by All-American Mike Sullivan and Two Blind Guys, featuring Tony Rice, Kent Graham, David Rivers and Tim Brown.

Villanova upsets Kentucky

Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.--Doug West and Mark Plansky keyed a late first-half run, giving Villanova a lead it never lost as the Wildcats upset sixth-ranked Kentucky 80-74 in the NCAA Southeast Regional semifinals Thursday night.

The one Big East representative remaining from the six who started the tournament turned aside favored Kentucky with a nearly flawless performance.

Plansky scored five points and West four in a 13-4 burst in the last 4:03 of the half to create a 43-32 lead. Villanova, 24-12, built its lead to 49-36 early in the second half and withstood a pair of surges that twice saw Kentucky get within four points. The victory sent the six-seeded Wildcats, who won the national championship in 1985, into Saturday's regional title game against the winner of Thursday night's clash between No. 4 Oklahoma and Louisville.

Kentucky, finishing 27-6, first got within four at 63-59 with just under nine minutes remaining, but a 3-point basket by Kenny Wilson ended that threat.

The Southeastern Conference champions got within 76-70 with 2:04 to go, but Villanova milked the 45-second shot clock and West, who finished with 30 points, converted a 12-footer.

Plansky and Wilson each hit two free throws in the final 33 seconds to create eight points that led as Villanova went 17 of 17 from the free throw line in the game.

Wilson led all scorers with 30 points, including five 3-point baskets.
