WASHINGTON, D.C. - The Soviets, on the verge of signing an agreement calling for their withdrawal from Afghanistan, sent large numbers of trucks across the border this week and some administration sources said they contained up to 15,000 fresh combat soldiers.

At the same time, Soviet armored units already in Afghanistan moved south from Kabul to relieve the beleaguered city of Gardsk, according to intelligence sources.

Dukakis sweeps votes on fifth ballot of convention

By MARK MCLAUGHLIN

News Editor

Amid shouts and screams, wheeling and dealing, and some hard-fought campaigning, Gov. Michael Dukakis was declared the presidential nominee at the Mock Convention last night.

Dukakis' campaign won the final vote by a count of 364 delegates to 268 for runner-up Simon.

The voting process consisted of a multiple runoff vote, with a candidate being eliminated after each vote. The "draft (Gov. Mario) Cuomo" campaign suffered defeat after the second ballot, Rev. Jesse Jackson survived until the third ballot, and Sen. Albert Gore was eliminated on the fourth ballot.

Since the convention rules planned for more than five candidates, the first vote did not eliminate any candidates on the ballot, said Steve Claey, rules committee chairman.

Mark Bettencourt, mock campaign manager, said he was "very pleased with the way it turned out. I'd like to congratulate every one of the other candidates."

"We didn't really expect this much of a fight," Bettencourt added. In the four roll call votes before the final vote, Dukakis had a much narrower lead over Simon.

"I'd like to thank the Graceland coalition," said Simon mock campaign manager Bill Smith after the final vote. "It's a fun seriousness with a sense of humor."

Mary Gaeta and Carol Hutton, both delegates from Maryland, agree that the convention has made them more politically aware of world issues and the nominating process in general. "I don't know enough about what's going on in the world today - it forces you to become aware of the issues," said Gaeta.

Gaeta said she also felt the emotional debates about abortion and capital punishment were a positive reflection of "how people this age feel responsible for such issues."

Hutton agreed that although she "didn't know much about the process itself" until she became involved, she "has learned a lot about the issues facing the candidates and facing the nation in general."

The convention, especially with the debates, said Hutton, "makes you think about your own views and whether they are consistent." Delegate Misty Irving and Alex Deichak had different reasons for their involvement.

Mock Convention promotes political awareness

Speeches, rallies and enthusiasm marked the third night of the Mock Convention as delegates continued efforts to choose a Democratic presidential nominee.

Although the primary objective is to select a nominee, the delegates agreed the convention itself is invaluable in generating political awareness among students.

Half of the 660 delegates expected to have actually participated, said Press Secretary Brian McCarthy, but added this is "really good" considering "people signed up not knowing what was involved."

"People are interested and want to know the process of the presidential convention," McCarthy said. The students involved took the event seriously, said McCarthy, but added, "It's a fun seriousness with a sense of humor."

Mary Gaeta and Carol Hutton, both delegates from Maryland, agree that the convention has made them more politically aware of world issues and the nominating process in general. "I don't know enough about what's going on in the world today - it forces you to become aware of the issues," said Gaeta.

Senator speaks live via satellite at MNC

By PATRICK O'CONNOR

Staff Reporter

Indiana Senator Dan Quayle spoke live via satellite from Washington, D.C. about the major issues facing presidential candidates in 1988 at the Mock National Convention Wednesday evening.

The Republican senator, in his twenty minute speech to Notre Dame's mock delegates and spectators, primarily addressed the topics of national security and the ineffectiveness of the Indiana primary in determining presidential candidates.

Quayle cited what he believes to be the four major components of the national security dilemma: Afghanistan, the INF agreement, SDI, and Nicaragua.

Quayle said the removal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan would be a "very historic achievement," because it would mark the first reversal of Soviet expansion since the institution of communism in the Soviet Union in 1917.

The INF Agreement "must be addressed by the next president," said Quayle, who supports the agreement because "it has more good things about it than it does on the downside." As positive aspects of the treaty, Quayle cited the proposed decrease in the number of nuclear weapons and the increase in inspections allowed by both the United States and the Soviet Union. On the downside, he mentioned the decrease of the nuclear threat in Europe as providing less of a deterrent for conventional war.

Thirdly, Quayle said he

Sabah, Kuwait's defense minister, affirmed Wednesday his country's "unwavering and principled stance of rejecting blackmail," the Persian Gulf sheikdom's official news agency KUNA reported. "We would not change our attitude.

A ranking Algerian official told The Associated Press privately: "If they merely wanted to restate their known position, there was no need for them to send their high-level delegation to Algiers." He said "the intransigence" of Kuwait had stalled negotiations.

His remarks appeared to confirm unofficial reports that Algeria was pressing Kuwait for more flexibility.

The jet left Larnaca, Cyprus, early Wednesday after 12 more hostages were released. They arrived Wednesday night in Kuwait and were met by the interior minister, Sheikh Salem Sabah al-Sabah.

On the same Boeing 777 to Kuwait were the bodies of the two slain passengers, their coffins draped in the red, black, and white Kuwaiti flag.

Fifty-seven other hostages were freed at Mashhad, Iran, a city in northeastern Iran. Passengers released Tuesday said one gunman boarded the plane ahead and the hijackers got a new supply of weapons there.

A mock Secret Service agent keeps the convention sponsors responsible for enforcing the two minute time limit for speakers and escorting unruly delegates out.

The six to eight gunmen, who have killed two passengers, demand that Kuwait free the pre-Iranian extremists convicted in the 1983 bombings of the U.S. and French embassies in Algiers and the hijackers call the "plane of martyrdom." It baked under the North African sun on an isolated patch of tarmac at Houari Boumedienne airport.

A delegation from Kuwait arrived Wednesday afternoon to help in efforts to free the remaining hostages and the plane, which was hijacked April 5 on a flight from Bangkok to Kuwait with 112 people aboard.

It spent three days on the ground in Mashhad, Iran, flew to Cyprus on Friday and arrived here early Wednesday.

The attorneys sent a notice of the abortion to the Indiana Supreme Court one day after the high court Tuesday for an immediate review of a Vigo Circuit Court injunction to prohibit an abortion.

Attorneys for both the woman and her 24-year-old boyfriend, who sought the injunction, said they still want the Supreme Court to make a decision on the issues raised by the case. Because the case involves a paternity action, neither the woman nor man has been identified by name in court records.

"Faced with the decision of continuing with an unwanted pregnancy and with violating a court order, she made the decision she felt was right," said the notice signed by Richard Waples, an Indiana Civil Liberties Union attorney who represented the unmarried woman.

"She arrived at the decision to terminate her pregnancy after consultation with her family and her physician," the statement said. "She did what she had to do both to protect her physical and emotional health.

James Bopp, who represents the man who claims to be the father of the fetus, said the Terre Haute man "is absolutely devastated that his child has been taken from him.

Bopp said he and his client haven’t thought about whether they would want Vigo Circuit Court Judge Robert Brown to issue a contempt citation against the woman for violating Brown's injunction. Brown issued a permanent injunction Monday.

However, in a brief filed with the Supreme Court, Bopp argued that a violation of the injunction should be punishable by a contempt of court citation.

Waples told the court that he wants it to review the case because of the issues involved, the precedent set by Brown's injunction and potential sanctions against the woman.

"Fathers have rights in particular cases. All we said in this case is we want those rights to be balanced" against the rights of the mother, Bopp said.

fighting disagreed over whether the trucks which moved across the border contained troops. One source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they apparently were empty and intended for use in a Soviet withdrawal.

Another source said the trucks were believed to contain elite combat units to replace engineering and other support troops that are thought likely to be among the first to be pulled out.

The activity was reported the day before the Soviets were expected to sign as guarantors of a United Nations agreement on the withdrawal of the Red Army from Afghanistan.

The Soviet units headed for Gardez, 80 miles south of Kabul and 60 miles from the Pakistani border, consisted of an undetermined number of soldiers and 420 vehicles, including T-72 tanks, armored personnel carriers and mobile rocket launchers, said one administration source.

Mujahedeen guerrillas recently cut the road to Gardez, where a Soviet special forces, or spetsnaz, regiment is garrisoned, said one source.

The advancing column and the spetsnaz regiment are also expected to attack stockpiles of guerrilla armaments.

U.S. merchants join Soviets to market capitalist products

Associated Press

MOSCOW - Seven major U.S. companies said Wednesday they've joined forces with the Soviets to produce everything from crackers to computer disks in a consortium that will market capitalist products to a socialist economy.

In addition, U.S. industrialist Armand Hammer announced a joint venture under which he will build two plastics factories in the Ukraine.

U.S. Commerce Secretary C. William Verity and a group of about 400 American business leaders are in Moscow this week for meetings with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbatchev and other officials about the possibility of expanding trade between the superpowers.

Several agreements have been announced already, and the businessmen say the climate for broader cooperation has warmed considerably in recent months.

James Giffen, president of the new American Trade Consortium involving the seven companies, said this week's activity could lead to an unprecedented volume of U.S.-Soviet trade.

Giffen, who also is president of the Mercator Corp., attributed the trade successes to "the improved political atmosphere" following Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Mikhail Gorbatchev's visit to the United States in December.

Both governments began campaigning for expansion of commercial ties after the Washington summit, the businessmen said.

The Soviets are actively seeking joint business projects with capitalist countries to help improve the quantity and quality of consumer goods and to earn convertible foreign currencies to pay for grain and other imports.

Woman suffocates; troops kill three Arabs

JERUSALEM - Troops killed three Arab guerrillas trying to enter Israel from Lebanon on Wednesday and a 70-year-old Palestinian woman was suff­ocated by tear gas soldiers tossed into her home, accor­ding to army and other reports.

Two Palestinians were re­ported wounded by gunfire and 51 injured by rubber bullets, tear gas and beatings in a bat­tle between Palestinians and Israeli soldiers in the Gaza Strip. At least 141 Palestinians have died in the rebellion that began Dec. 8 in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, ac­cording to U.N. figures. An Is­raeli soldier and a 15-year-old Arab Palestinian were killed.

Arabs attacked Arab mer­chants who defied Palestinian Liberation Organization orders to close, firebombing the shop of a Jerusalem moneychanger and setting stalls ablaze in the Egyptian market. Palestinian police and witnesses reported. An Arab passerby was re­ported injured by the firebomb.

Soldiers clashed for a second day in Gaza with Arabs protest­ing the deportation of eight Palestinian refugees from their homes.

Dukakis: Gore needs the facts

Associated Press

NEW YORK, N.Y. - Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis said Wednesday that rival Albert Gore "ought to get his facts straight" after Gore touched off a campaign clash about the use of nuclear weapons in Europe.

Presidential Reagan, his vice president George Bush and the then-Senator Al Gore (D-Tenn.) have been involved in questions about the development and use of nuclear weapons.

"I have to believe that a great many of us would find ourselves in great disagreement with the policies that he is proposing, and we may be more vocal about them, if it wasn't for concern that that misinterpretation of some kind of a radical attack," Reagan said.

Gore stirred a new foreign policy controversy in the final week of the New York primary campaign after Dukakis told the New York Daily News "we reserve the right to use nuclear force" in the event of a Soviet invasion of Europe "when there appears to be no other alternative."

He added, "I don't think that's going to happen."

Gore had earlier been in the three-candidate race for the Democratic presidential nomination, quickly jumping on the Massachusetts governor and said he had "made a significant mistake in saying that he would launch a nuclear strike against the Soviet Union under specific circumstances."

However, Dukakis never used the word "strike."

At a news conference in Boston, Dukakis said Gore "ought to get his facts straight."

"Most of the delegates were disappointed, however, with the low turnout of student participation. "I wish more students would have participated since they indicated that they would," said Bill Fitzgerald, chairman of the Minnesota delegation.

Fitzgerald said if "people were focused more on the responsibilities, they might have been more sincere in their decision to participate.

The amount of time required might have proved "a bigger commitment than was expected," he said.

U.S. delegate DeAnn Boelbeier agreed the event was "depending on students," but added, "It is a good chance for people to get politically involved."

"What does Jesse Jackson want?" This seemed to be the question that emblazoned virtually every headline across the country. Following the Michigan caucuses, however, that question was aptly rephrased to "Can Jesse win?" From the beginning, Jackson simply demanded that his candidacy be afforded the same degree of scrutinization and respect as that of his Democratic and Republican rivals. Now armed with a significant endorsement from the front runner, Jackson has ultimately changed the dynamics of American politics. Race is certainly a considerable factor in the 1988 election, however, as "America's feel for Jackson's campaign will be a controversial political background and his lack of traditional government experience. Win or lose, he has demonstrated that America will soon be ready for a black president in the White House.

Lisa Boykin in through the door

On Thursday, Apr. 8, I read with great concern Bill Sammon's article entitled "Jackson deems Democratic Party." Notwithstanding my personal views regarding Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign, it is evident that Sammon makes several problematic statements about minority group politics and the American democratic process.

Sammon comments that Jackson has received "monolithic support from the black community, simply because he is black." This is a gross oversimplification. To assert that Jackson's success in the black community is derived solely by virtue of his color is to neglect the issues at hand and to debase the integrity of the black electorate. It is evident from Jackson's commanding Michigan victory that his campaign extends beyond the traditional color lines. For example, he garnered 70 percent of the vote in Michigan's "thumb" region which has only two percent black residents. Jackson's broad base of support is not necessarily limited to minorities and ethnic, working-class whites for he seems to have attracted a plurality of the Democratic electorate. Jesse Jackson's message has such a massive appeal because Ronald Reagan's legacy of "voodoo" economic policies has only served to triple the national debt and exacerbate the plight of the lower class but it has also clutched at the purse strings of America's working middle class. Furthermore, Sammon argues that the Democratic Party should not "allow Jackson to be a significant power broker" and that "it would be inexorable and inapropriate. What Sammon fails to perceive is that the people have entrusted authority in Jackson with their ballots. His political strength was not given to him by the party - he earned it. Therefore, statements such as "Jackson doesn't deserve the political success he has enjoyed" are most. With regard to oratory skills, Jackson clearly stands head and shoulders above his Democratic and Republican rivals. I doubt that there is enough courage in the world to sustain interest in a Dukakis vs. Bush campaign.

Although it has been argued that Jackson's presence has threatened the party's chances for the presidency, I would assert that he has bolstered the party by registering several million new voters which incidentally helped the Democrats to regain control over the House. What will ultimately secure the White House for the Democrats, though, is the eventual surfacing of the issues at hand. The question for the 1988 election; if Jackson were to go up against Bush in November, Bush would capture 57 percent of the vote to Jackson's 33 percent. If Dukakis were the nominee, the Massachusetts governor would defeat George Bush 49 percent to 45 percent. More surprisingly, the polls reveal that if Bush were to face a Dukakis-Jackson ticket, the Democratic party would seize a 48 percent victory over Bush's 43 percent. These figures clearly illustrate that Jackson has reshaped the dynamics of American politics. Although Jackson's name may not appear on the Democratic ticket, he has obviously paved the way for future minority presidential candidates and has carved out a significant role for the minority and economically disadvantaged electorate.

An understanding of the 1988 presidential run for the White House can only be grasped if one has reckoned with the dimensions of minority group politics in this country. To undersetimate the growing power and influence of the minority political party or to apply a different set of standards in evaluating minority candidates is to do an injustice to the system and the ideals of the government it represents. Jesse Jackson's campaign will be savored for many years to come because, by challenging the system, he has demonstrated that America will soon be ready to "rise up and live out its creed so that one day the nation will be judged the context of their character and not by the color of their skin."

Fencing teams guided by expertise of Auriol

Community College before coming to Notre Dame. He is married, has a ten-year-old son, and enjoys different sports, including tennis and soccer, as hobbies. Auriol gives credit to the men's coach Mike DeCicco for this season's great success. According to Auriol, the team's record of 27-1, a second place finish in the NCAA Championship, and the selection of three players as All-Americans, came from, "Notre Dame's fine reputation which attracts solid athletes year after year."

In the next month, Auriol will know how next year's recruits look, and he is already optimistic. "My favorite part of coaching involves watching fencers develop and reach their potential," Auriol said. "I enjoy teaching all three weapons: the saber, epee, and the foil, and helping the men and women progress." He added that coaching is primarily the same in North America as in Europe, but there is a greater number of experienced fencers over here. Auriol sights the two coastal areas as hot spots for American fencing, and notes that in recent years, the Boston area has produced several female saberistas. "I never look back at success, though. If you do that too much, you endanger your future. I always look forward to see how I can improve," said the coach.

The transitions that Auriol makes from college coach to Notre Dame has served as coach of the United States Olympic Fencing Team for the last ten years, and will be on Scout for the Games this summer. Auriol has also coached the American entries in the 1978 World Championships, the 1976-79 World Junior Championships, and the 1977 World University Games.

A native of France, Auriol holds a master's degree from the Institute National du Sport in Paris. An all-around athlete, he was a professional rugby player as well as an excellent soccer player. "Rugby was always my number one," said Auriol, "but you can't play it forever." Upon moving to the United States in 1972, he settled in Portland. Oregon, and formed the 'Auriol Fencing Club which provided private instruction to aspiring students.

According to Auriol, his greatest accomplishment as a coach occurred when four fencers were selected by the Olympic team. From 1975 to 1985, Auriol coordinated the fencing program at Portland Oregon State, and said, "not difficult and proves to be most interesting." Though college fencers are seldom older than 22, Olympians may be as old as 33. "There is no set peak age for a fencer," Auriol said. "The new training practices have lengthened the careers of many competitors."

Even with the longevity, Auriol admitted that the difficulty for American fencers to excel in the Olympics, "The European nations are still the favorites," he said, "but who knows. One night, one match, anything can happen so I am optimistic."

As coach of the 1980 Olympic team that boycotted the Moscow Games, Auriol remembers the disappointment of the athletes. "They sent us to China instead," he said, "but it was not the Olympics. The spirit was there. The Los Angeles Games were different, however, and were made even sweeter by the boycott of 1980. "The spirit in 1984 was so high. The feeling of entering the Coliseum in the opening ceremony was so special, so unique. As we walked around, it seemed as if the whole track was filled by the U.S. team, I look forward to this year."

Notre Dame seems to have good reason to look forward as well. In Auriol, the fencing program has acquired a great teacher. Auriol has produced several female sabreists. "I never look back at success, though. If you do that too much, you endanger your future. I always look forward to see how I can improve," said the coach.

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS' THE GLASS MENAGERIE

As Tom Michael Grant succinctly executes his duties as both narrator and son, the audience undeniably captures his intense struggle between fulfilling his dreams and taking care of his family. Ms. Riedford also performs well as the disabled daughter, Laura. Wilson gains the audience's pity as she portrays Laura's immobilizing self-consciousness and timidity. Daniel Gore brightens the production with his appearance as Jim, the gentleman caller. Most noteworthy, Jane Anne Riedford treats the audience to an outstanding performance as the melodramatic Mary, whose perceptions are clouded by illusions of desire and for a stable but Higgins, colorful life for her children and herself. The nuances of Riedford's voice are marvelously well modulated by the character.

Despite a few slow moments, the performances essentially execute their roles and naturally on a well-designed set. "The Glass Menagerie"'s atmosphere is as worthwhile entertainment.

Oh, those things spring brings!

as spring... With the mention of the word comes images of sunny days, cool breezes, and bodies on the quad of Notre Dame. For the Notre Dame community, which has been imprisoned in the bleak cold of the South Bend winter, spring is an awakening of sorts. Life is everywhere. New leaves on the trees to new students during the spring. But what about school? "Spring makes your attitude on life in general better, it helps you to make your schoolwork worse," said one student.

Students in spring seem to have so many options besides schoolwork. Their decisions are obvious. "Students are more easily distracted in class when the weather gets nicer," said one student, "so there is more daydreaming and looking out the window."

Why is this so?

"Because spring means it's almost summer, and summer means fun," said a student.

"Spring makes everything seem easier, like there's nothing you can't do," added another.

"The sun and nice weather make it hard to be inside and studying. There's so much more to do," said the third.

Spring tends to put things in perspective. It makes people happier in general. "Everybody has a lovely, whimsical look on their face," observed Professor Harvey Bender. "Life is once again evident at Notre Dame. There is great promise for the world and the future. All is refreshing and neat."

It seems to be a general consensus that spring, somehow, changes people's attitudes for the better. A smile appears more often than not, and people seem happier. Life is worth living once again. Welcome spring!

Lyle seeks 3rd straight win

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. - Greg Norman once referred to the newly-crowned Masters champion, an easy-going and low key man, as "Sleepy Sandy." "Ol' Sleepy Sandy has the potential to accomplish almost anything he wants," Norman said after Lyle won the 1985 British Open.

"I think I have the sleep out of my eyes now," Lyle said on the eve of his quest of a rare, third consecutive victory, in the $100,000 Heritage Classic. And, with eyes wide open, Lyle likes what he sees in a review of recent action.

Last week, the husky Scot became the first British subject qualified to wear the green jacket of a Masters champion. His triumph at Augusta, Ga., was his third of the season and made him the first man in three years to win consecutive titles on the American tour.

"I don't think I can play much better than I have in the last few weeks," Lyle said. "This week, he is attempting to become the first man since Gary Player in 1978 to win three in a row.

And, depending on his schedule for the rest of the season, he has a couple of major accomplishments within reach.

He leads with $691,821 in earnings and has a shot at becoming the first man to win $1 million in a single season on the American tour.

In addition, he is by a wide margin the leader in the Player of the Year standings.

He doesn't know the score but does know that the Seahawks convert 41 percent of fourth-and-five situations in away games. He can't tell you who is on top in the AL East, but he does know Mike Piazza's 2.75 earned run average despite his record. And in 1979, he was 18-11 with a 3.11 ERA and a league-leading 303 strikeouts.

"I went to the hospital, I was diagnosed as a head case," he recalled. Some people also called him a malingerer, despite his record.

In 1980, Richard was 20-15 with a 2.75 earned run average and 214 strikeouts. In 1977, he was 18-12 with a 2.97 ERA and 214 strikeouts. In 1978, he was 19-11 with a 3.11 ERA and a big league-leading 303 strikeouts.

But the 6-9 right-hander wasn't, and he knew it. "I knew I didn't feel right," he said. "Pitching against the Cubs in the middle of June, my arm started hurting in the third inning. The doctor with the team didn't diagnose the problem, he put ice on my arm."

Things got worse, even though he was the starting pitcher for the National League in the All-Star Game on July 4, where two scoreless innings earned him a victory in his only All-Star appearance.

Richard was examined several times, and an arteriogram revealed an arterial blockage in his right arm on July 25, but the neck arteries were said to be normal and no surgery was recommended.

"I went to the hospital, I was diagnosed as a head case," he recalled. Some people also called him a malingerer, despite his record.

In 1980, Richard was 20-15 with a 2.75 earned run average and 214 strikeouts. In 1977, he was 18-12 with a 2.97 ERA and 214 strikeouts. In 1978, he was 19-11 with a 3.11 ERA and a big league-leading 303 strikeouts.

And in 1979, he was 18-13 with a 2.71 ERA and, again, a big league-leading 313 strikeouts.

On July 30, 1980, he was 18-13 with a 2.71 ERA and, again, a big league-leading 313 strikeouts.

BOSTON - Ellis Burks beat out a two-run double over the second baseman in the seventh inning to give the Boston Red Sox a 6-3 win for three straight over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Royals 9, Orioles 3

ST. LOUIS - Mel Hall followed with an RBI single and Jacoby Jones hit a two-run double but Baltimore was out trying for a triple.

Smokey Jordan, who pitched 2 2/3 scoreless innings for the victory, Juan Berenguer, 0-2, who relieved Bert Blyleven to start the eighth with a 3-2 lead, took the loss.

Baltimore's Kevin Johnson allowed only four hits and had five left after the single that drove in the winning run in the ninth.

The Bears No. 34, nicknamed "Sweetness," retired from pro football in January after 13 years and after accumulating 16,726 yards, the National Football League modern mark shared by four teams.

The Bears' third baseman, a native of Columbia, Miss., started high school in a segregated school system, shifting to Columbia High when the school system was desegregated.

Harper has not had much to grimace about so far this season, including last night's 5-1 victory over the Blue Jays. Wednesday's highlights appear at left.

ND golf team looks to Kepler

By CHRIS FILLIO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame golf team will travel this weekend to the land of the legendary Golden Bear in an attempt to stake its claim as one of the up and coming schools in the Midwest. After an excellent finish at the Purdue Spring Invitational, the Irish golfers will seek to continue their hot play.

The Kepler Intercollegiate is a 54-hole tournament held annually at the Scarlet Course in Columbus, Ohio. The host and favored team from Ohio State will feature Gary Nicklaus, son of the legendary Jack Nicklaus. The elder Nicklaus also attended OSU and helped design the Scarlet Course, which is considered one of the best college courses in the Midwest.

"Over the years, we've had some success there," said Irish head coach Noel O'Sullivan, "but generally speaking it's been our nemesis. Year after year we have one or two magnificent rounds, but very seldom three magnificent rounds."

However, this could be the year for the Irish to break that jinx. Junior Pat Mohan currently leads the Irish with a 73.9 stroke average. Senior captain Dick Connelly is providing the necessary leadership and forward, as is the team, to said O'Sullivan. "I am looking for the right time for a change," average.

ND, IU get rematch

Teams to meet in 'Golden Boot' charity scrimmage

By PETE GEGEN
Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS Thanks to a certain soccer match last fall and a group of promoters' actions this spring, tonight's Notre Dame-Indiana soccer scrimmage has turned into more than just a scrimmage. It is being touted as the Golden Boot soccer match, a game pitting state rivals in a charity match for the U.S. Olympic Committee in the state of Indiana.

The organizers couldn't have picked a better time to benefit from this rivalry. Indiana is still smarting from its 4-3 overtime upset loss at Notre Dame in the fall. It marked only the third time in 15 years a team has scored four goals against the Hoosiers, and the Irish did it a man short, coming from behind twice.

After that game Indiana won 16 straight and claimed the top ranking in the coaches poll until eventual national champion Clemson beat IU in the tournament. Despite the team's success, time has not healed the wound inflicted by the Irish.

"We're going to play new faces," said Yeagley of the scrimmage. "We haven't forgotten that loss." The revenge factor alone is worth the $5 admission price at IUPU-Indianapolis track and field stadium.

"This is a big game for Indiana," says Irish head coach Dennis Grace. "Yeagley knows our recruiting was helped by the IU win." Let's not forget this match is just a scrimmage, and both teams are trying to evaluate talent for the coming fall season.

"We're going to do what's best for Notre Dame soccer," said Head Coach Dennis Grace. "We're going to play new people and try new things. We don't want to get blown out 5-0, but there are some things we have to accomplish."

For this scrimmage Notre Dame's 18-man roster will be missing wingback Tom Conaghan, who has a shoulder injury, and wingback Alex Kratz, who has chosen this spring not to play soccer. Also missing from last fall's starting lineup is senior captain Steve Lowney.

Indiana loses a few more seniors for this match, three of whom started against Notre Dame-keeper Bruce Killough, midfielder Simon Kanter and wingback David Eise. More importantly the Hoosiers will play without midfielder Ken Godai and stopper Marc Beringer, both of whom were injured in indoor play earlier this semester.

Indiana had a very successful indoor season, winning the St. Louis Budweiser Invitational and losing in a shootout in the championship match of the Northwestern Invitational. In those same two tournaments Notre Dame placed fourth at Northwestern and failed to move out of the preliminary bracket at St. Louis.
Sports Writer
By SCOTT BRUTOCAO

The last time Notre Dame defeated a Big Ten team was a 22-4 romp against Northwestern in 1986.

Most of the damage against the Irish occurred in the first inning against senior starter Kevin Chenail. After allowing a leadoff walk to Todd Frazier and a single to Tim Buhse, Chenail gave up a three-run homer to outfielder Bob Brucato.

When the very next batter, Bob Beacon, doubled, Chenail was replaced. Mike Harmon got the call, and although Beacon came around to score on a ground ball and a fielder's choice, Harmon pitched extremely well.

Harmon pitched seven innings and allowed only one earned run. He gave up five hits and no walks, and picked off three baserunners.

"I came in with the attitude basically to hold them right where they were and stop their momentum," said Harmon. "I felt confident with all three of my pitches, and was able to get ahead on the count. I felt strong."

Notre Dame plays host to MCC rival Detroit this weekend at home. With a doubleheader on Saturday and then again on Sunday at Jake Kline Field, Notre Dame's spot in the postseason MCC could be secured.

If Notre Dame splits with Detroit, the Irish would almost be assured of a bid to the NCAA tournament. The winner of the MCC tournament wins a bid to the NCAA tournament.

Irish IT IMS—Kevin Chenail's start yesterday broke the record for most career starts by a Notre Dame pitcher at 32. Second baseman Mike Mosher suffered a sprained right wrist in the second inning yesterday on a stolen base play. His condition is stated as day-to-day.

The Irish hurlers had a tough day Wednesday as the Northwestern Wildcats blanked the Fighting Irish 5-0.

Scott Brutocao has the story at left.

Bayliss, ND tennis land top recruit

By GEORGE TRAVERS
Sports Writer

Notre Dame tennis jumped into the forefront of college tennis on Wednesday when it received a letter of intent from the top tennis recruit in the country. David DiLucia, the 16-year-old high school player of the year, will enroll as a freshman in the fall.

First-year Irish coach Bob Bayliss is overjoyed at the prospect of coaching DiLucia, a native of Norristown, Pa.

"This was a real flesh market, and I don't really get into that," said Bayliss. "I just told him where Notre Dame was going and why we might get there. He seemed interested."

DiLucia placed third in the New Hampshire indoor at Thanksgiving. That tournament featured the top 128 junior players in the country. It was then that Bayliss learned Notre Dame would be one of the teams visited by DiLucia. DiLucia's signing was a move noticed around the country.

"Notre Dame is making a huge commitment to upgrade tennis," said former tennis player Don T. Brucato.

Bayliss feels there are a number of reasons why DiLucia chose Notre Dame. He is a member of the National Honors Society and academics are important to him. Notre Dame's difficult schedule was a factor.

"Two important reasons I would mention are the Eck and Dick Rosenthal," said Bayliss. "We couldn't even approach DiLucia without a center like the Eck. Dick Rosenthal had this in mind."

This will be a signal to the tennis program."

Senior goalie Matt McQuillan had 11 saves, coming up with three in the second half to secure the win.

The Ministers of Pain, who were led by Steve Antonelli (eight points) and Tom O'Connell (seven), used their brawn not only to clear the lane for hoop shots but at times simply for their own enjoyment, and we need to keep their game rolling in the next round, which will be the first to include referees.

Tofu's Last Gig continued its run at the title with a 21-11 thrashing of Long On The Post. Tofu looked on top of its game on both ends of the court and will be tough to stop as they continue to play that way. J.C. Trebas scored 17 of his team's 21 points.

The Minahoonies survived a scare from Look Who Bought The Myth last week, a team which gave them a run for their money but couldn't stop the momentum. The Ministers of Pain have gone back to back in the last two rounds and are now just a win away from making the final 16 for the year, or next decade, whenever or never, Born Loser to watch.

The type of fan with the most rapidly growing population is Daddys' Girl. She was born on Super Wednesday, or the Cowboys.

A Fair Weather fan, who does not cheer for a team unless they've already got a lock on first place. He is more concerned with beating the traffic or sudden death is usually too much for Born Loser to handle if they lost the ball they scrapped and got it back.
