Sacro Heart will close for renovations next year

By TAMRYN J. ETTE

Sacred Heart Church will be closed for up to a year, beginning in May, 1989, said Father Daniel Jenky, rector of the church.

Undergoing exterior renovation for the last two years, the church will undergo interior renovation beginning after next year's graduation, he said.

Jenky said he will know how long the church will be closed by September, when plans are complete. The church could reopen as soon as the fall of 1989, with Masses being conducted while scaffolding is present.

Jenky said daily Masses may be held in dorms and Sunday Masses in larger campus chapels such as Stanford-Keenan. He said weddings might be held in the crypt and Log Chapel. "There may not be elegance and stained glass, but the convenience will make people want to be married here," he said.

No weddings are being accepted for that summer, and Jenky said he is preparing those who wish to schedule ordinances or final vows for the worst.

"We'd rather give them the bad news first and then make it better," he said.

The renovation will include installing new carpeting, enhancing lighting, restoring the Gregorian frescos, adding pews in the side aisles, replacing wooden frames and restoring the stained glass windows. The exterior renovation began two years ago, replaced the roof and gutters, and reglazed the cross.

A sprinkling system, new air conditioning and heating systems, have also been installed, he said.

Sacred Heart was last renovated in 1968, when the sanctuary was extended and the configuration of the pews changed. "The whole church looked radically different," Jenky said.

The substitution of the stained glass, never done before, will take three years.

"The stained glass is the largest existing example of 19th century French stained glass in the world," Jenky said. The crypt in the basement of the church is now under construction and he hopes it will re-open by June 1.

Task force response will soon be ready

Student reactions to the University task forces on residence life and alcohol will be given to the administration before the end of the school year, said Student Body President Tom Doyle.

Student input was gathered through a series of meetings held in dorms and through a student body survey.

He said 60 to 100 students attended each one. Doyle, Mike Parne, student body vice president and members of the task forces also attended each meeting.

The meetings were characterized by "questions, mainly ones of clarification," said Doyle. He said many students have strong opinions, both in favor and against the task forces' recommendations.

About 1,800 surveys have been turned in to student government, he said.

The preliminary results will be given to administration offt.

A high school senior was in serious condition Sunday night after being hit in the head by a keg at Friday's An Tostal Keg Toss.

Melissa Saucedo, of Weslaco, Tex., was in coma from Friday afternoon until 5 a.m. Sunday but is now resting, said Director of Campus Ministry Father Andre Leveille, who has been visiting her in Saint Joseph's Medical Center.

"I appointed her (on Friday). She was very sick and in danger of death," he said.

The Medical Center declined comment on Saucedo's condition, but said she is in "serious condition in intensive care."

"She's in good spirits. She smiles and makes jokes," said freshman Diana Fuentes, a friend of Saucedo's from her hometown.

Fuentes also said that University President Father Edward Malloy had visited Saucedo.

Saucedo, recently accepted to Notre Dame, was staying with friends in Kerley Hall, said Sister Jean Lenz, assistant vice president for student affairs.

She was struck unconscious and knocked to the ground, striking her head against the sidewalk, eyewitnesses said.

Saucedo's parents flew to South Bend from Texas on Friday, Leveille said, adding they are "very appreciative of the Notre Dame community, but they're most thankful for the prayers."

"The boy who threw the keg came to see her," Leveille said. "The family has no anger or hard feelings toward the boy."

Witnesses said the injury was a freak accident. The student who threw the keg was very upset, students said.

"The guy who did it just lost it—he was just completely in tears," said a student who asked to remain anonymous.

"I think he's doing pretty well now. I'm going to see him for the next few days," said Leveille. "Anyone would feel bad after such a terrible accident," he said.

"It was definitely an accident," one student said. "I just don't think he knew which way he was facing. I think it was poorly organized. There was a kind of tunnel around the guy (who threw the keg)," the stu-

Adam Milani is this year's recipient of the seventh annual Distinguished Student Award.

The Award, presented by the Notre Dame Alumni Association, honors a Notre Dame senior who has contributed outstanding service to the University and community.

Milani found out he had won the Award two weeks ago. "At first I was really shocked," he said. "Now I realize it's quite an honor and a very pleasant surprise."

Milani, paralyzed from the chest down in a high school hockey accident, has dedicated time to increasing handicapped awareness at Notre Dame and the South Bend community.

"When I came here it raised a lot of awareness because there hadn't been a student in a wheelchair on campus for three or four years," said the St. Edward's Hall senior. Milani said he was glad to see that the Huddle be-

Manama, Bahrain - An Iranian speedboat shot up a Saudi Arabian-owned tanker in the Strait of Hormuz Sunday night after President Reagan said the U.S. Navy will no longer ignore attacks on noncombatants in the Persian Gulf region.

The speedboat fired rocket-propelled grenades and machine guns at the 37,001-ton Sea Trader in the southern entrance to the gulf. An unexploded rocket dangled from the Sea Trader's hull after the attack but fell into the sea before the tanker reached the port of Dubai in the United Arab Emirates.

The Indian master, Capt. B.R. Pagarkar, reported his vessel sustained slight damage and casualties among the Indian crew. It was not known whether any U.S. warships were near the Sea Trader during the attack. Navy officials do not disclose warships' movements, but several U.S. frigates and destroyers have been in the Persian Gulf region. Mittendrick wins election’s
Associated Press

PARIS-Socialist President François Mitterrand won the first round of the presidential election Sunday setting up a May 10 runoff with his center-right rival, Premier Jacques Chirac who finished second with 15.1 percent.

With 98 percent of the ballots counted, and with tabulating suspended for the Sunday, Mittendrick had 34 percent of the vote in his quest for a second seven­year term. Chirac, 55, had 19.9 percent.

In a setback for the center-right Premier Raymond Barre, 64, finished third with 16.5 percent. His center-right People’s Party, which campaigned on a tough anti-immigration platform.

The recognition continued the growing strength of his party, which espouses a tough anti-immigration platform.

Television computer projections like that of Antenne 3 have been very accurate in past elections.

Barre conceded defeat Sun­day evening and called on sup­porters to back Chirac in the runoff. Chirac, in a joint ap­pearance with Barre at the Sen­ate building, added, “Now, against the socialist candidates, we must rally together.”

Turnout was about 75 percent of France’s 38 million voters, compared to about 81 percent in 1981, when Mittendrick won his first term.

Mittendrick, whose popular­ity sank to unprece­dented lows at midterm only to soar in the last two years, will face in two weeks the hard­ driving conservative who has run the government since the right won the 1986 legislative elections.

One student said he was standing next to Sauceda when the keg hit her. “The keg missed my hand and mine by an inch. It went between us and hit her. I don’t know whether she looked out of her head or she couldn’t see where he was throwing or what,” the student said.

“I looked over and I hadn’t realized what had happened until I saw the keg rolling,” he said, adding he was about 20 feet from where the keg was thrown. “When I saw her lying on the ground and the force that knocked her down, I wouldn’t have been surprised if it killed her.”

“I’ve never seen a keg tossed, but the guy spun around six or seven times,” another student said. “I guess he mis­calculated and the keg went right into the crowd. The crowd cleared and the girl was lying on her back, bleeding from her ear,” the student said. “She was lying on the sidewalk an awfully long time.”

Students said Notre Dame Security came to the scene within about five minutes. An ambulance later took her to the hospital, they said.

The events followed to fol­low the Keg Toss were can­celled, students said. An Total Co-Chairmen Colleen Oudin and David Duncan could not be reached for comment.

No information has been released regarding the extent of Sauceda’s injuries, Leveille said. “The worst is over. She’s had a brain scan and we’re waiting for the results,” he said. “I think she still wants to come here.”

The administration rushed to get the reports out so that the students had adequate time before exams to make their final decisions, said Doyle. “We heard from Monk (Malloy) and (University Ex­ecutive Vice President Father William) Beauchamp that they will take the students’ opinions seriously,” said Doyle.

A final report will be issued during Senior Week, he said.

The administration will exam­ine the results over the sum­mer, hopefully reaching some decision before classes resume, said Doyle.

Article harbors myths

Dear Editor:

As a returning student from the Holy Land, I find it is my right as well as my duty to discount many of the so-called "facts" that Billy Lerman presented in his article, "Palestine: the facts and the myths" in the April 20 edition of The Observer.

First of all, Mr. Lerman begins his article by claiming that a chief myth of the Palestinians is that the cause of their anguish is the Israelis. Now it would be foolish to claim that all of the anguish experienced by the Palestinians originates with the Israelis, but it would be more than fair to say that the greater majority of it does. I base my stance on my own personal encounters with Israelis and Palestinians alike last semester.

The abuse of human rights in the occupied lands of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip by the Israelis is appalling. To think that these acts are perpetrated by a democratic state and a close ally of the United States is sickening at best.

call recall countless conversations with Palestinians (even teenagers) who had been beaten, arrested and even tortured by the Israeli military for suspicious activity, which usually meant having been beaten, arrested and even tortured with Palestinians (even teenagers) who had been beaten, arrested and even tortured by the Israeli military for suspicions of terrorist activity, which usually meant having been beaten, arrested and even tortured.

In my everyday dealings with Palestinians, I find them to be the most spirited, warm-natured and loving people that I have ever come into contact with. This is a commonality that I believe would be shared and attested to by the other eleven students that participated in last semester's program.

In conclusion, I would like to label as ludicrous that belief held by Mr. Lerman that the Palestinians are the occupied territories simply because of their political value in jailing world opinion against Israel. The fact is, the Palestinians are there because it is their last bastion of hope in an attempt to gain a national homeland. I am not discrediting Israel's right to exist at all, but simply recognizing the Palestinians' rights as a people and not a problem.

Arabs leaving not voluntary

Dear Editor:

In Billy Lerman's introductory paragraph to his Viewpoint article of Wednesday April 20, he describes the "asylum" that the Palestinians were forced from their land into their present refugee camps at the hands of Israel as being "logically as well as factually, incorrect."

Unfortunately, his essay seems to lack a lot of fact and logic as well.

Mr. Lerman states that the "Arabs" inhabitants of Palestine left of their own free will. He seems to forget that most of them left because of the campaign of terror organized by the Zionist underground movements, highlighted by the Dier Yassin massacre. They left in fear for their families and in hope of returning someday.

Wasn't that the case with the large numbers of Poles who left their country after the Nazi occupation to join the Free Forces in England? Presently, isn't there a large number of Afghan refugees in Pakistan who left their country to avoid the violence that the U.S.A. is waiting for the Palestinians to pull out in order to return to their homelands?

Mr. Lerman claims: "The reason that the number of Jews decreased is that they were in many cases formally expelled and in other cases murdered in Nazi style attacks." I do not know if Mr. Lerman is aware of the fact that Arab Jews are Arabs who lived among Arabs of other religions for many centuries with relatively no problems. Actually, it is largely thanks to Arab civilization that the Jewish civilization survived through the Dark Ages and to this date.

I do not suggest that Mr. Lerman read about the life the Jews had in Andalusia before they were expelled. It would seem logical that a large number of Jews would move to a state that "represents" them and to which they are encouraged to immigrate. Thus, a large number of them left their "free will." As far as "Nazi-style attacks," the only things that seem to come to mind are massacres such as "Deir Yassin" and "Sabre and Shatila." "Nazi-style attacks" against Palestinian refugees.

Mr. Lerman blames the Arab countries which number over 30 for not settling 700,000 Palestinians, while Israel managed to settle 1,200,000 refugees. The comparison is ridiculous, and it is yet another example of "truth distortion."

Mr. Lerman, the Jews were going to the country of their dreams, whereas the Palestinians were fleeing away from their homeland. The Arab countries' accommodation of Palestinian refugees is on a temporary basis, awaitting a peaceful solution. The actions of a small number of Arab students should not be confused with the actual policy regarding the Palestinian problem. It would be similar to assuming that Ramaz School students should not be confused with the actions of all the Arab students in the United States.

Mr. Lerman asks us to recall "the facts" when reading about Palestinian refugees. Whose facts, Mr. Lerman? Ramaz Bacharach hat happens to the food that the dining hall doesn’t use? Until a few weeks ago, the unserved food was thrown out. But due to the idealism and hard work of three Notre Dame students, some of the needy in South Bend are eating the dining hall’s leftovers.

Foodshare puts dining hall food to good use

Since March 22 Foodshare, a group of Notre Dame volunteers, has been bringing the leftovers from North Dining Hall’s evening meals to the Hope Rescue Mission in downtown South Bend, a shelter for the homeless which serves over 200 meals a day to those in need.

“Anytime we help our broth­ers out by sharing food that would be discarded, without impacting our cost, we’re bring­ing out the poor souls who need help,” he said.

Senior Kathy Barron, one of the captains of the basketball team, went to Mexico with the Community for the Lay Apost­olate (CLAP) last summer and saw the starvation and poverty there. “I had seen a lot of hungry people and it bothered me,” she said.

Barron was approached by senior Jim MacDonald, who had visited a national conven­tion and lobbying team.

“When we got names of stu­dents who were interested in starting a program at Notre Dame,” she said.

The captains of the basketball, football and men’s tennis teams, along with the three becam­e a bar­gaining, speaking, researching and lobbying team.

They took the idea to Univer­sity President Emeritus Edward Malloy. “He thought it was a good idea, but he had con­cerns about the health aspect of it. But he gave us his en­couragement,” Barron said. They discovered their ticket to success was Indiana’s Food Saramini­lawn which states that if an organization “in good faith makes a gift of a food item to a charitable entity is not liable for damages arising for the use, condition, quality, or content of that food item.”

They began looking for a place to bring the food. “We asked the (Center for Social Concerns) what places in South Bend needed food. What time facilities, and health standards they had (and) if the feeding time corresponded,” Barron said. They wrote the Hope Res­cue Mission and received a hand-written positive response.

After a few months of discus­sions with the administration, they finally agreed to try the project. The University Food Services purchased food from the in­terdepartmental store. And, the CSC donated use of their van for the transport.

“We were originally going to do it on Tuesday and Thursday, but then we decided if we had the food, why not every night?” Barron said.

The students who transport the food keep a diary of what food is brought. “We look in the refrigerator. They’re using it,” she said.

The mission has six different feeding times and serves about 200 meals a day. “With the meals we have, we can use a lot of food,” said Martin Polecki, the mission’s coordina­tor for the mission.

“If we had to purchase every­thing with as many meals as we have, it would take five times our money,” he said. According to Polecki, the mission is a non-profit organization. All donated food is tax deductible.

Next year Foodshare wants to expand their operation by using the food from all dining halls on the campus, and possibly expand the num­ber of recipients of the food.

Their biggest challenge ahead is tactfully approaching the students on food waste. “We want people to be con­sciously aware of what they take and what they eat,” Barron said. “It may seem trivial, but we’re forming habits. Ones that are hard to break.”

Neither team was able to pull away from the other.

"It was a good game," said Karen Hildebrand, a member of the winning squad. "Everyone played great at the end. The referees let us play it out. The league was evenly matched, but Give Me Your Address drew two fouls and the last two points were made by the ensuing free throws of Carolyn DeSouza and Giedion, respectively.

Women's basketball opens the season this Friday at 7 p.m. as they host Grenada. The Grenada women are ranked 14th in the nation, having won the last 13 of 14 games. They boast a team-high of 28 points per game, led by senior forward Kim Brown. The Grenada defense is ranked 17th in the nation, allowing just 52.8 points per game. The Grenada women are led by head coach Kim Taylor, who is in her fourth season at the helm. Taylor has compiled a 55-33 record in her time at Grenada, including a 28-3 record last season. The Grenada women are looking to build on their success from last season and make a run at the conference title.

Cardinals finally down Mets

Associated Press

ST LOUIS - Willie McGee singled through a drawn-in infield and hit a tie in the seventh inning, helping St Louis beat New York 5-4 for the Cardinals' first victory over the Mets in six tries this season. Bob Horner's sacrifice fly and Tom Brunansky's RBI single capped a three-run rally that gave St Louis a 3-2 lead in the seventh.

Horner, a two-time NL player of the year, hit a two-run homer in his off day partner Donny Cox, but reliever Doug Slaten inched out and got Mackey Sasser to fly out to end the game.

Dodgers 4, Giants 0

Mike Scioscia drove in three runs with two singles and Fernando Valenzuela allowed five hits in 7 2/3 innings Sunday as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 2-1. The Dodgers are now 4-0 in games after the Giants.

The Dodgers won their second NL West title in a row and the Giants are now 7-9 in games after the Giants.

Irish find pitching in sweep

BY STEVE MEGARGEE
Assistant Sports Editor

How long it lasts remains to be seen, but the Notre Dame baseball team was able to solve its pitching problems Sunday afternoon at Jake Kline Field.

The Irish swept a doubleheader from Illinois-Chicago 8-1 and 8-1 Sunday after being swept at Michigan State by scores of 13-1 and 6-5 on Saturday. The two losses in opposite directions put Notre Dame's overall record at 25-20.

"We knew we had to get back on the winning track," said Irish coach Pat Murphy. "We came back, and we executed pitching performances from when we had to."

The Irish received strong pitching performances from seniors Erik Madsen and Mike Passilla, both of whom had struggled in recent outings.

Passilla allowed just three hits in 6.1 innings in the first game before giving way to sophomore Mike Coffey. Madsen pitched a complete-game six hitter in the second game.

"They both pitched with tired arms and got the job done," said Murphy. "We've got to get back on track, and this was a confidence builder for them."

Freshman left fielder Greg Vogele gave Passilla all the runs he would need in the first game with a second-inning grand slam. Vogele's smash over the left field wall was the first collegiate home run for the Cincinnati native.

"It's great to see a freshman make the gamewinning hit or homer," said Murphy. "He's been working hard. He needs a little more maturity physically and on the field, and he'll be a fine player. He deserves to play quite as much success against Michigan State."

Murphy also praised the pitching of Notre Dame's senior Mike Davidson, Scott Makarewicz and Mike Koceski, who helped the Spartans put out 13 runs against five Irish pitchers for a 13-1 rout in the first game.

The Irish appeared on the verge of a split for much of the second game. A third-inning two-run single by sophomore Ed Lund, who went 4-4 on the game, gave Notre Dame an early 4-0 lead.

Michigan State eventually tied the game, but Peltier boomed a home run over the scoreboard in dead centerfield to give the Irish a 5-4 lead in the seventh inning of a gamewith scheduled for seven innings.

Notre Dame was one out away from victory after Madsen, pitching in relief, retired the first two Spartan batters. Designated hitter Sean Bruce singled to keep Michigan State alive, and he scored the tying run when Rich Juday hit a double on a ball mishandled by Peltier.

"I don't think you could have predicted that," said Murphy. "It was a relief to get the tying run out."

Notre Dame ended up 4-4 on the weekend with an early 4-0 lead.

Madsen had similar results as Passilla in the second game. The righthander from Great Falls, Mont., allowed just one run in seven innings to raise his record to 7-4.

The Irish managed only one hit off Flame starter Craig Niedermayer in the first four innings, but Notre Dame still managed to score four runs during that time by taking advantage of four UIC errors.

Sophomore righthander Dan Peltier doubled down the right field line in the sixth inning of the contest. The hit marked Peltier's 16th double of the season, breaking the school record.

While Notre Dame had its way with UIC, now 12-18 on the year, the Irish did not have quite as much success against Michigan State.

Holes filled in draft

Associated Press

NEW YORK - NFL teams went for needs in the annual draft Sunday, picking players to fill gaping holes rather than merely taking the best available.

The first eight picks went about as expected, save for the choice of Wisconsin tackle Paul Gruber by Tampa Bay with the fourth pick of the round.

Draft

head coach Mike Shanahan. "Not only is he a quality athlete, he's a quality person. With his track background, he'll give us some excitement in both punt and kick returning, as well as at receiver. I expect he will be working extensively in all of those areas."

Brown caught 39 passes for 486 yards in Notre Dame's 8-4 season, rolling up 1,847 all-purpose yards on 130 touches of the ball and becoming the all-time Irish leader in that category. "I wouldn't ask for a better senior year," Brown noted. "We had a good season, win­ning 10 games and now we get the chance to play some­where where millions of people would love to attend."

Brown watched ESPN's live telecast of the draft, and found out he was a Raider when it was 6:30 p.m. or so. "I was surprised," he said.

"I found out just like everybody else," he said. "The news came a couple of minutes afterward."

The move to Los Angeles rated the Dallas native with former Notre Dame quarterback Danny White as the choice of the Raiders in the fourth round of last year's draft.

"He (Steve) called me this morning," Brown said, "and we talked about how he was doing and how he's doing."

Now we're both looking for­ward to next year."

The Patriots are looking to boost what has been a struggling running game over the past two years with the selection of the 6-7, 363-pound Rehder. The Lions picked Miami safety Bennie Blades, whom they had planned to take all along, started on the offensive line last season.

"Tom's a physical football player, and he has a lot of room to develop," said Dick Stein­ son, New England's personnel director. "He's got decent speed, and good speed off the ball. We'll have to decide whether to play him at guard or tackle."

Immediately following Reh­ der's selection, Lanza heard from a Steeler representative while viewing the draft from his home in Germantown, Texas.

"My agent had talked to representatives of New England and Pittsburgh, and we had an idea one of those teams would pick me," Lanza explained. "I was surprised Tom (Rehder) went as soon as he did, and that's why they announced his name the Steelers called me and told me I was next."

The Steeler also called an offensive lineman in the second round, former Kentucky guard Densmonti Dawson.

"Our immediate focus right now is getting a person who can play center and get some experi­ence there before he gets put in the fire," said Mike Webster coming out of retire­ment for a final NFL season this year. "But that doesn't mean Lanza won't also play guard or tackle."

"Playing behind Mike Webster is a tremendous op­portunity for me," said the 6-3, 275-pound Lanza, who admired him since I was a kid, and my dream is to be like him."

"I'd like to have teaching me how to be an NFL center."

Lanza continued. "But at this level of football I'd be prepared to make some adjustments."

on the roll and George Streeter recovered the ball for the Gold at the Blue 13-yard line. Three plays later, Kent Graham hit Watters for a nine-yard touchdown and the Gold led 7-0 with 3:41 to play in the opening period.

Mark Green returned the Gold kickoff 31 yards to the Blue 44. Green rushed two times for 18 yards and Anthony Johnson once for two more and the Blue had the ball at the White 35. Cornerback Todd Lyght then picked off a Tony Rice pass at the Gold 15.

Blue strong safety Greg Davis then intercepted a Kent Graham pass on the next play by scrimmage. The freshmen returned the ball 22 yards for a touchdown and tied the score at 7-7 with 1:53 in the first quarter.

Belles then emerged as a contender for some playing time in the fall. After a Blue punt, the junior engineered a 14-play, 70-yard drive that ended on a Braxton Banks touchdown from two yards out. Hackett converted the PAT and the Gold led 14-7. During the drive, Belles scrambled three times for a total of 25 yards.

"Belles moves the football team," Holtz said. "His main problem has been to eliminate the bad play."

"The defense later slipped in the end zone to give the Blue a safety with 34 seconds to play in the half. That cut the lead to 14-9."

Belles took control again for the Gold in the second half. He used 13 plays to lead a 71-yard scoring drive in the opening series of the half to give the Gold a 21-19 advantage. Watters capped the drive with a three­ yard touchdown and Hackett converted the PAT.

The Gold scored again one seeries later when Tony Brooks flipped over the goal line from the one-yard line. The big play in that drive was a 46-yard pass from Greg Davis to Bobby Carpenter. The two-point conversion failed.

The defense had another good showing Saturday, as has been the case all spring. In addition to forcing seven turnovers, the defense recorded five sacks. Blue noseguard

Mark Green gained 70 yards in a losing effort as the Gold downed the Blue 27-9 in the 58th Annual Notre Dame Blue-Gold Game Saturday afternoon at Notre Dame Stadium. The game signaled the end of spring practice for the Irish football team. Greg Gufsey details the action beginning on the back page.

jury to last year's Mr Bookstore John "Booger" Buscher last Monday. Buscher, who had sat out his team's four previous games in favor of Ad­ west, was surprised. The Lions, Mar decided to play in the championship game despite fear of aggravating his injury.

Before the game, Buscher, who scored three points, ex­ tressed concern that he might not be able to finish the contest, at which point his team mates would have to play the remainder of the final game at a 54-second de­ pensation since no substitution­ al are allowed in Bookstore Basketball.

Watts was not officially relieved of his duties until mon­ tuesday. Watts had an apparently confused Ricky Watters dashed through a patch of stepan Con­ grandstand onto the court. Upon Watters' appearance, Watts made yet another contribution to Adworks' championship run by donning his shirt to Watters, who had worn a dark shirt although his team had been designated to wear light.

"I've got to give all the credit in the world to Marty," said Buscher, "who was there whenever we needed him throughout the tournament. He could have been one of the guys there today, too, but he gave up the chance so that I could play."

Dingens presented Watts with his championship trophy after the game as an expression of the team's gratitude.

On the road to the Finals, on Friday, Lou's 2 QB's and 2 Blind Men beat Pop a Shot at Senior Bar 21-15; Tequila disposed of Who's Next 21-17; Chips Bar shot down Iaho's Funeral Home 21-16; and Adworks nipped I'll Play No 1, 22-19, again on a Voice free throw.

In the game on Saturday, it was Tequila over Chips 21-19, and Adworks outguing Lou's 2 QB's, 21-15.

When the rumor that Gary Voce might be teaming up with last year's Mr. Bookstore for this year's Bookstore Basketball Tournament surfaced late last month, a lot of potential contenders shuddered at the prospect.

On Sunday, with the addition of Kevin Reyes, Matt Dingens and Ricky Watters, the rumor culminated in a 21-18 victory over Tequila White Lightning.

Down 16-11 with Tequila in the bonus, Adworks reeled off eight points before the opposition could answer. Gary Voce hit free throws and the Adworks rally by turning icy cold and shooting 6-for-15 during that stretch. Gary Voce hit free throws on only one of their last 18 attempts in the game.

"It was a good game for us, but I don't want to sound like a loser," said team member Dan Reynolds. "There's no doubt, as it had been all week, that Gary Voce is a top talent. But I think we're a pretty good team."

Gary Voce was fouled by team members of Tequila White Lightning late in the championship game of Bookstores Basketball XVII Sunday, Voce, the tournament MVP, calmly hit the ensuing free throw.

Botham takes over in finale

Give Me Your Address There ended the 1988 Women's Bookstore Basketball Tournament with a 22-20 victory over Yurtles and Turtles on Sunday at Stepan.

Sandy Botham, who played on Notre Dame's varsity basketball team, led both teams with 10 points and was named Miss Bookstore 1988.

"It was fun playing against friends," said Botham, "but it was also a very competitive game."

"Botham held the team together with her mental attitude as well as her action on the court," said teammate Rochelle Helder.

Give Me Your Address There scored first, and the score remained close the entire game.

The score was tied 15 times during the game. Laura Gidley scored the winning basket on a free throw.

"The game could have gone either way," said Gidley. "The competition was very tough."

Another Notre Dame varsity basketball player, point guard Mary Gavín, scored three points and was the force behind Yurtles and Turtles.

"The game was very intense," said Gavín. "The referees' calls went both ways."

In the final game, Shan Shea led Yurtles and Turtles with six points.

"This was the most competition we've had in the tournament," said Shea.

Yurtles led 11-9 at the half. Botham scored two quick points for Give Me Your Address There at the start of the second half.

The score stayed tight for the rest of the game with the lead changing hands several times.

Raiders choose Brown sixth

A phone call from the Los Angeles Raiders on Saturday was cause for Tim Brown to smile when he was one of the top five selections in Sunday's NFL draft.

The Raiders and Brown both feel they got a bargain when Los Angeles made the former Irish flanker the No. 6 choice in the first round.

"It's exactly what I wanted, and I feel great about it," Brown said. "My thinking was that, if I wasn't going to be the No. 1 pick, I wanted to be someplace where I'd be happy both playing football and living. Southern California sounds great to me."

A representative of the Raiders contacted Brown on Saturday and told the 1987 Heisman Trophy winner he did not expect Brown to be available by the time Los Angeles picked.

Brown said, "They said they would be very surprised if I was still available around here."

Brown explained, "The way they were talking led me to believe that they would take me if they could. I wanted to be around for the sixth pick after I heard that."

A pair of former Notre Dame offensive linemen were chosen back-to-back in the third round. Tackle Tom Rehder was selected 66th overall by the New England Patriots, while center Chuck Lanza went 79th to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The first five rounds of the draft were completed Sunday.

Watters powers Gold to victory

Freshman Ricky Watters called Irish football coach Lou Holtz last week and said he wanted to do what was best for the team in regard to a possible switch from tailback to flanker.

Watters played both spots and scored two touchdowns Saturday to lead the Gold to a 27-9 victory in the 56th Annual Blue-Gold Game at Notre Dame Stadium.

Watters, the co-offensive player of the game along with quarterback Steve Belles, caught one pass for nine yards and gained 19 yards on four carries. More importantly, he established himself as the player the Irish must go to in the fall, much like they went to Tim Brown last season.

"He has good hands and has the knack for catching the ball," Holtz said of Watters. "He must get his hands on the ball 12-14 times a game. He's a Tim Brown-type player, but I don't want to compare him with Tim Brown. That wouldn't be fair."

The game signalled the end of spring practice sessions for the Irish. Holtz says a lot of improvement still is needed before the Irish are a good team.

"We are not a good football team now, but we have a chance to have a solid team next year," Holtz said. "I got to make a tremendous amount of improvement. Last season we had a good winter program and a good spring practice, but that doesn't matter if we don't have a good summer workout and then have good fall, two-day practices."

The Gold got on the scoreboard first. The Blue's Stan Smagala touched Sean Connor's punt.
