Israelis, Arabs clash on border

Associated Press

JERUSALEM - Israeli troops on Tuesday tracked down and attacked a band of Arab guerrillas infiltrating from Lebanon into Israel. Two Israelis and three guerrillas were killed, authorities said.

Two other Israeli soldiers were wounded in the firefight. One was in serious condition with a bullet wound to his chest, authorities said.

The attack in the rocky terrain and scrub brush near the Lebanese border was the bloodiest border clash since Dec. 8, when Palestinian riots began in Israeli-occupied territories to the south.

In the Gaza Strip, meanwhile, the Army blocked hundreds of Palestinians from reaching jobs in Israel by confiscating their ID cards and requiring them to undergo checks at government offices.

The government also temporarily revoked the press credentials of two foreign journalists, Martin Fletcher of NBC and Glenn Frankel of The Washington Post, for failing to submit their dispatches to military censors.

The border attack began before dawn when Israeli soldiers on a patrol discovered footprints northeast of the town of Kiryat Shmona, an Army spokesman said.

For several hours, troops lit the skies with flares and searched for the intruders, the spokesman said.

Dukakis topsple Jackson; clinches front runner spot

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA - Michael Dukakis routed Jesse Jackson in the Pennsylvania Democratic primary Tuesday night, certifying his status as presidential front-runner.

Bush won a resounding Republican victory and predicted the state would deliver the final delegates needed to clinch the nomination.

By their victories, Bush and Dukakis emerged as almost certain opponents in the fall general election campaign - survivors of a campaign marathon that once featured seven democratic candidates and six republicans.

Dukakis was gaining 67 percent of the vote with 43 percent of the precincts counted and said his victory would be "very, very helpful" in his quest for the White House.

Jackson was gaining 27 percent of the democratic vote and said he intended to compete through the end of the primary season on June 7. "The race is not to the swift and the strong," he said. "I'm a long-distance runner. It's too close now to turn around."

Network polling place interviews contained news that was as good for Dukakis as his vote totals.

Though Jackson gained more than 90 percent support from blacks, ABC polling analyst Doug Muzzio said that, for the first time in the campaign season, Dukakis was winning a majority of voters who cited the poor and elderly as their chief concerns - voters Jackson won in prior contests.

Doctors unsure if girl suffered brain damage

By DAN MURPHY

Melissa Sauceda, the high school student struck in the head by a keg last Friday, is out of a coma after three days but remains in the intensive care unit at Saint Joseph's Hospital, according to Marty Rodgers, a student counselor at the admissions office.

"She is, hopefully, a future member of the Notre Dame community," Rodgers said, addressing the Hall Presidents' Council Tuesday night. "I don't know what her decision will be after the incident, but, hopefully, we can make her feel comfortable as part of our community," he said.

Rodgers told the HPC the admission office will bring any flowers, posters, cards or other gifts to Sauceda Friday afternoon. He encouraged the hall presidents to send something to Sauceda on behalf of their respective dorms.

"One of the great things about Notre Dame is how we all stick together, how we bond together as a community in the face of adversity," Rodgers said. He told the HPC that Sauceda is sleeping a lot during the day, and doctors are still unsure if she suffered any brain damage that day, and doctors are still unsure if she suffered any brain damage. Rodgers said it was too soon to say if she had suffered any brain damage.

Patience is a virtue” is an annoying adage. I feel that all calm people who cheerfully remind you of this as you wait in the tenth endless line of the day should be banned from campus. OK so maybe I wouldn’t have many friends left. I’ll admit that I’m an extremely impatient person, but I just can’t help it.

You all know the impatient type: that person who checks his watch every five minutes during a boring class, sighs and taps his foot in exasperation while waiting, and always walks a few steps ahead of the pack when crossing campus.

Like a serious addiction, these people cannot control their restless behavior. That is why I propose a new campus organization, similar to Alcoholics Anonymous, called “IA” (Impatience Anonymous) to help people deal with their frustrations about waiting.

Let’s face it: this is not the ideal campus for victims of chronic impatience to live. Students must wait in line to eat meals, to checkmark classes, to get into the library during finals, to get passes for the football tickets and even to take a shower. Crowds confront you almost anywhere you go.

What goes through a helplessly impatient person’s mind in one of these everyday situations? Well, for most, these stressed-out students, dinner in the North Dining Hall is a nightmarish ordeal.

First, the student approaches the dining hall entrance only to find the lines extending outside. Once he finally makes it inside the double doors, he tries to outsmart the system by switching to the other, seemingly shorter, line. Immediately after the person transfers, however, the other line inevitably begins to move faster. He just can’t win.

During this long wait is when the IA support group must try to divert the impatient person’s attention. I suggest simple games such as counting to 1,000, listing all 666 teams in the bookstore tournament or counting all the guys wearing baseball caps in the dining hall.

When bored playing all of these educational games, continue to keep morale high by offering encouraging comments such as, “Look, you can almost see the stack of trays,” or “Just think, we made it far enough to see all of the colors in the tri-colored pasta.”

Besides the length of the line, the evening menu is also a crucial factor in determining the victim’s impatience level. For a decent meal, the student will usually overlook the long wait. If it finds the menu unpalatable, however, be prepared for such outbursts as, “I waited in line for forty minutes just to get cereal?!” It would have been faster to drive to Kroger’s and buy my own box of Captain Crunch!!

Another infuriating situation for impatient students is checkmarking classes. Although I have yet to experience this nail biting event for myself, I am told that impatient people should bring along paper bags in case they began to hyperventilate.

If the mention of the word “checkmark” makes you cringe in horror, just remember that impatient students have an option. They can arrive many hours before the scheduled time to checkmark and be bored and anxious with relatively few people around. The other option is to arrive when the lines are supposed to form and be bored and anxious while surrounded by huge crowds of frantic, confused classmates.

Although waiting for hours seems hopelessly boring, the IA support group would have a few suggestions for those in line. The restless student could use the extra time to talk with friends, read an epic novel or (as a last resort) start to study for finals.

Friends of Impatience Anonymous candidates have a long battle ahead of them. My friends will be the first to agree that impatient people are often difficult to deal with. The best advice that I can give you when your restless friend starts to annoy you by checking his watch and tapping his foot is to remember that patience is a virtue. Oofa!

Polish workers strike over pay, inflation

Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland

Hundreds of steelworkers in southern Poland went on strike for more pay Tuesday as laborers' frustrations over rising inflation boiled over for the second time in two days.

Other workers threatened a walkout at a heavy machinery plant to protest the firing of two leaders of the independent Solidarity trade union for leading a protest rally.

On Monday, a strike by 2,500 transit workers in the western city of Bydgoszcz shut down buses and trams for 11 hours, forcing provincial officials to boost hourly wages by 60 percent.

The strikes appeared to be the biggest labor actions since the 1981 martial-law crackdown suppressed Solidarity, which remains banned, although its leadership is still active.

A wave of strikes in 1980 gave rise to Solidarity. Strikes over higher prices have a long tradition in postwar Poland and caused government shakeups in 1956, 1970 and 1980.

Prices have climbed 42 percent in the first three months of 1988, the government says, mainly the result of an economic reform designed to make prices more realistic and reduce subsidies for consumer staples like bread and milk.

But the planned inflation has resulted in demands for pay increases that are outrunning projections, prompting warnings from leaders of the communist government that managers should grant only raises that are economically justified.

Violence breaks out at race

Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.

Violence that broke out following the Little 500 bicycle race at Indiana University last weekend will spark some changes in law enforcement practices during next year's festival, Police Chief Steve Sharp says.

One police officer was injured, and more than 70 people were arrested in what officials described as a riot early Sunday morning at Varsity Villa apartments on the city's north side.

"It is indeed regrettable from the department's standpoint that several hundred persons using the cloak of darkness attempted to engage in activities that injured others and destroyed property," Sharp said Monday in a news release. "It is imperative that the participants themselves work to prevent such a future occurrence."

Those arrested were taken to the Monroe County Jail on charges including criminal mischief, drunkenness, illegal consumption of alcohol, possession of marijuana and interfering with police.

Sharp said his department has been fairly lenient in the past in allowing students and others to enjoy the Little 500 weekend.
Faculty discusses alcohol use

By MAURA KRAUSE

Alcohol use and misuse among young adults was discussed at an alcohol symposium attended by faculty and staff of various universities from all over the country.

The conference was described as being "major theorists" together to try to "reach a level of convergence of the main differing opinions," said David Dannison, director of alcohol and drug education.

At the conference, "Many people of vastly differing theories met to find a common ground," said Dannison.

The main purpose of the conference was to determine "the place of the teacher and to justify our involvement in students' lives," said Dannison. Ways in which to intervene before students need help were discussed.

Alcoholism may be genetically linked

Associated Press

Children of alcoholics may be genetically predisposed to the affliction, but too few know about the extra risk, a researcher said Tuesday.

"We are asking for everyone's cooperation, but too few know about the extra risk," said Dannison.

Researchers have uncovered evidence of the link between genetics and alcoholism only in recent decades, he said.

"Not every child born of an alcoholic parent will become alcoholic, but it's a lot more likely to happen," he said.

Studies of identical twins with an alcoholic parent show that, if one twin has an alcoholic drinking pattern, the other twin is almost certainly going to exhibit the same pattern, he said.

Even children separated from alcoholic parents in infancy function in the same way, he said. Those children are four times more likely to become problem drinkers than the children of non-alcoholics.

"In the case where the child of a non-alcoholic is adopted by an alcoholic family, the child is no more likely to develop alcoholism than if he had been raised in his original home," he said.

Senate subpoenas North's diaries for drug investigation

Associated Press
WASHINGTON The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted 16-1 Tuesday to subpoena the private working diaries of Lt. Col. Oliver North in its continuing investigation of international drug smuggling.

Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., expressed concern that the originals of the North diaries have never been turned over to government authorities in unclassified form but remain in the hands of North and his attorney, Brendan Sullivan.

The subpoena calls for North and Sullivan to produce 2,488 pages of handwritten diary notes in their entirety and with no deletions.

The notes cover the period from September 1984 to November 1986, when North was fired from his position on the National Security Council in the Iran-Contra arms and money-for-freedom efforts.

A version of the North diary already has been made available to the congressional Iran-Contra committees, but Kerry said North and Sullivan have heavily censored 1,389 pages with black ink.

Speaking of the North diaries, Kerry told the committee, "I'm not asserting that there's a smoking gun or something hidden or that some of the redactions (deletions) are not appropriate. My assertion is that, given what has already been declassified, I don't know how we can proceed with our investigation without being able to see all of it.

"The issue is one of investigation," Kerry said. "We have the right to look at these classified documents, a work product of a government employee!"

Seventy-four pages of North's notes were released Tuesday. Often interspersed in notations about logistics of the war effort of the Nicaraguan Contra rebels are numerous references to drugs, the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Customs Service, Panamanian drug runner Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega and CIA agents.

But Kerry complained that most such references are precensored or followed with large blacked-out sections.

One note, dated June 27, 1984, says, "Drug Case -DEA progress on combating cocaine...and refers to possible Colombian negotiations to move drug refining to Nicaragua."

An entry from the previous month notes that CIA Latin American chief Duane Clarridge had called and indicated that "(name deleted) contact indicates that Gustavo is involved with drugs." It is un- clear to whom "Gustavo" refers.

Kerry has made it clear he believes there was a connection between drug running and efforts to supply and arm the Contras. Some testimony before a subcommittee of the Senate and House on narcotics and terrorism has focused on that possibility.

Bonefish to close an open hatch because of heavy smoke and toxic fumes.

The frigate USS Carr and the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy, both of which were on routine exercises with the Bonefish, evacuated 89 of the 92 crew members.

The boarding crew did not enter the sub and had no report of the condition inside the vessel and nothing further on the three missing sailors.

Earlier Tuesday, Navy salvagers boarded the Bonefish to close an open hatch and prevent water from getting into the vessel, but high winds and rough seas prevented them from beginning testing.

With winds of 21 knots, seas were running six to eight feet and washing over the deck, Henney said.

"The decision was to close the hatch to eliminate the chance of water getting in," Henney said.

A civilian submarine expert said the explosions and fire that disabled the diesel-electric submarine were typical of such pre-nuclear subs.

Student studies public restroom lines

Associated Press
ITHACA, N.Y.-Ever wonder why it seems men are always waiting for women to return from the restroom in public places?

It's because the standard 50-50 ratio of men and women's to men's stalls, said the Ivy League school's 20-year-old was one of two people hired by the Washington department to prowl rest rooms along the state's highways to see why more women were standing in line than men.

William Carr, Tran's supervising foreman in Washington, said the agency was trying to document the long-time complaints of women having to wait to use the facilities. The agency is now developing criteria for rest stop design.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla.-A teenage walking barefoot along a busy street was electrocuted when she stepped on a steel plate that covered a light post, authorities said.

Forty-eight volt was thought to be too low to cause injury.

Had the victim been wearing shoes, she probably would have been insulated from the current, said FPL spokesman Don Gentry.

"An interview" with the President

ANNOUNCER: The following is a free, entirely fictional political interview between Mr. Kevin Smant and President Ronald Reagan. It is partly a product of what Mr. Smant wishes the president would say, and partly what he feels the president would say, or at least what he would like to think he would say, if he were to turn to that eminent historian, Mr. Smant.

Kevin Smant

guest column

K.S.: Thank you very much. Mr. President, it's a real honor for me to be talking to you. I've been writing about politics for some time now, and...

R.R.: Oh, I know. Kevin. I've followed your career. I loved your piece on ...p

K.S.: Wow! Thanks! But I thought Larry Speakes said you only read the comics.

R.R.: Well, I do read them--got to laugh about someone, anywhere, in my job. But I read serious stuff too. Do you know I was one of the early subscribers to Bill Buckley's National Review? I really did think that those Ivory-Tower fellows think I'm kind of dense. But then, they didn't become president, either, did I.

K.S.: Well put. But back to that Gorbachev piece. As you remember, I criticized you for signing the new INF treaty. Any reaction?

R.R.: Well, I appreciate your concern. And I really didn't mean it when I said conservatives feel war is inevitable. But I really feel our verification procedures will ensure the Soviets' compliance--otherwise I wouldn't have signed it. And we're eliminating so many missiles! Sure, Nancy wants me to meddle in Nicaragua. They seem to think it's OK to intervene in the affairs of N Korea because of N Korea, but again, they sure denounce me for 'interfering' in Nicaragua. Do they really ignore me when I point out Sandinistas are human beings, too. So they're not human beings, or my ivory-tower fellows think I'm kind of dense. But then, they didn't become president, either, did I.

K.S.: You also take a lot of flak for your policies supposedly favoring only blacks. Do you think your friends are led astray by the average incomes of all major races? The key is, are you yourself getting the grass-roots support?

K.S.: Speaking of Mr. Ortega, what do you think are the average incomes of blacks in Nicaragua? Do they really ignore me when I point out Sandinista abuses of human rights? I thought those fellows at the ANC would bring their people freedom. In past times, I never meant to undo his New Deal--just wanted to regulate things back to where I felt they belong. I guess I don't have the temperament to lead a revolution--and let me tell you, a revolution is what it would take to really undo all those wasteful programs. But I don't have the heart.

K.S.: Well, thank you for your time, Mr. President. I have my differences with--but I also admire and respect you, and I want you to know that.

R.R.: Well, thanks. By the way, do you have extra copies of your columns? Maybe I'd like to make some copies.

K.S.: Now the readers know I'm making this up. Thanks a lot!

GSU responds to Task Force

Dear Editor:

In a letter published in your April 22 issue, Richard Beatty noted that "no forum for gathering response from graduate students (to the Task Force reports) was announced." In its April 1985 report, the Graduate Student Union organized a group of volunteers from among the graduate departmental representatives present to respond formally to the Task Force reports from the graduate student perspective. These responses will be sent to the appropriate persons and to Father Malloy's office.

We take this opportunity to remind graduate students that the GSU is committed to the representation of graduate concerns at Notre Dame. We therefore strongly urge all graduate students to contact any of the GSU officers or their respective departmental representatives about any problems affecting our special interests so that we may take the appropriate steps to remedy them.

The year's best in television

Expectations were high last September when the three major networks unveiled their lineups for the new television season. During the past eight months, shows have launched, expired, and "boomed" their way through the various networks' contenders. Now, at the end of a most intriguing season, it is only fitting to honor those shows which stood out as extraordinary entertainment.

Best New Comedy: All three networks presented a great deal of new television comedies. Some were good, but even more were bad. This season saw the demise of "The Charming," "Sledgehammer," and "My Sister Sam." While there were a few noteworthy comedies, one stands out above the rest: ABC's "The Wonder Years." Fresh, innovative and full of talented actors, "The Wonder Years" deserves an Emmy.

Best New Drama: The competition in this category was a little more rigorous. "Tour of Duty" and "Heartbeat" are excellent shows; however, NBC's "A Year in the Life" presents itself with a realism evident in no other show. Its characters and situations are endearing and believable. "A Year in the Life" is worth living.

It was Thursday night. The evening was serving mushroom stroganoff. These two interlopers, charge account in hand, felt it our privilege, nay, our duty to venture out to South Bend in a quest for fine dining.

We selected the East Bank Emporium, mainly because: a) we knew where it was, b) they take plastic, and c) they take pianos. We came back with reeking shells of ourselves but with satisfied palates.

The Emporium's ambiance is a cross between a firm-bar and an old warehouse. The "old" wood trim clashes with the lackluster plastic chairs and the bread knife that would have a hard time with butter—warm butter.

The food, however, was excellent (remember, they take plastic cards and tablecloths as an added bonus). We started with a "Light Toast." Grilled, the "Skinny Dippers" ($3.45) were tempting (potato skins with bacon and cheese—plus a Heck of a cucumber). But the baked brie, which we ordered, turned out to be a pleasantly surprising meal. The brie arrived, looking simple enough, just sitting there on a small, white plate. It was soon followed by another onslaught of condiiments (free). Needless to say, the condiments included cheese, but to our pleasant surprise there were also bacon bits—real bacon bits.

After such a pleasantly palate-pleasing feast, there was no room for dessert. But if we had ordered, the cheesecake would have been worth $25.95 of somebody else's money. It would have been worth $25.95 of our own money.

Irish continued from page 16 believed in the fact that Murphy decided to call the Irish on getting the batters out. Piotrowocz allowed only one earned run in nine innings and gave up only seven hits, no walks, and no runs.

The performance was a reprise for the pitching staff, which has been giving up nearly six runs per contest. Piotrowocz topped his personal mark to 3-3.

"That's as good as he's pitched in a game since I've been here," Murphy noted. Piotrowocz was not the only defensive standout for the Irish against the Boilermakers. Pesavento was kept busy at shortstop, moving all over to keep the play in the infield. "Pesavento was great, just great,"today Murphy said. "He fields balls that no one else can. Sometimes he'll get his ball to the ball but can't make the throw and someone will say, 'he had it,' but no one else would have even gotten near the ball."

The win over Purdue marked the first time in the last 20 tries that the Irish have beaten a Big Ten team, and tomorrow they will try to make it two in a row with a win over the Indiana Hoosiers.

"I'm happy whenever we win," Murphy said, "but in beating Purdue it was a step closer to Big Ten. I know we really had to battle."

Irish ace Erik Madison (7-4) will probably start the game at Jake Rhatigan Stadium.

"We've got to stay up," Murphy said.

Hernandez, Mets lash Braves

Associated Press

ATLANTA - Keith Hernandez drove in a career-high seven runs and hit two home runs, one a grand slam, as the New York Mets routed the Atlanta Braves 13-4 Tuesday night. Hernandez, who was batting .188 with only four RBI going into the game, boosted Davey Johnson to his 400th win as a manager.

Unbeaten Dwight Gooden became the first five-game winner in the National League, allowing 10 hits and striking out five. It was Gooden's third straight complete game.

Jimmie吃完, 9-2, who relieved Atlanta starter Tom Glavine in the sixth, was the loser.

Padres 1, Cardinals 0

Eric Show pitched a 10-hitter and Carmelo Martinez homered for the first time this year as the San Diego Padres defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 Tuesday night at San Diego for their fourth straight victory.

The win was the first of the year for Show, who came into the game 0-3 with an 8.36 ERA, show struck out three and did not walk a batter in extending San Diego's shutout string to 32 innings.

Martinez, subbing for a sore-shouldered John Kruk at first base, hit a 1-1 pitch off reliever Randy O'Neal, 1-1, with one out in the seventh inning.

Reds 8, Expos 2

Nick Easkey and Eric Davis hit solo homers to help Ron Robinson win his first game of the season as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Montreal Expos 5-2 Tuesday night.

Robinson, 1-3, worked 5 1-3 innings, allowing three hits and one unearned run. Jose Rijo went 1-3 innings. John Franco finished for his third save.

Floyd Youmans, 0-2, worked seven innings, allowing nine hits.

Boston Bruins end the Montreal jinx

Associated Press

With a 4-1 victory Tuesday night, the Boston Bruins ended 45 years of Stanley Cup playoff frustration against the Montreal Canadiens.

The victory at the Montreal Forum gave the Bruins the Adams Division championship and marked the first time they have taken a playoff series from the Canadians dating back to 1943. They had lost 18 straight series before Tuesday night.

The victory propelled the Bruins into the Wales Conference finals against the winner of the Patrick Division series between the New Jersey Devils and Washington Capitals.

The Devils beat the Capitals 3-1 Tuesday night to take a 3-2 lead in that series.

The Bruins surged into a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Steve Kasper and Cam Neely, and with go-ahead Bejean Lemelin turning aside 28 shots, the Bruins never faltered. It was the first time that Montreal had made such an early exit in a best-of-seven series since 1963.

At Landover, Md., Kirk Muller scored two goals and Bob Sauve stopped 28 shots to lead the Devils past the Capitals.

Sauve recorded his second playoff victory in as many starts this year for the Devils. Rookie Sean Burke has started the New Jersey's other nine playoff games.

For Muller, the pair of goals were his first two in 11 playoff games after he set a franchise record for most points during the regular season with 94.

Sauve stopped Washington's first 20 shots before Mike Ridley scored with 9:26 remaining in the game.

The New York Devils turned back the Washington Capitals 3-1 on Tuesday night at Landover, Md. The victory gave the Devils a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Patrick Division final, with the winner taking on the Adams Division champion Boston Bruins.

Knight's TV remark causes furor

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Indiana basketball coach Bob Knight's nationally televised remark comparing rape and the handling of stress drew a sharp reply from IU women's affairs official, according to a published report.

"Coach Knight's stature as a role model and as an educator make it particularly dismaying," Trisha Bracken, assistant to IU dean for women's affairs Phyllis Kleinman, told the New York Times on Tuesday.

"People who don't normally pay attention to sports remarks are astounded. It's something you expect your grandfather to say," the report said.

Twins keep Orioles winless
Birds one away from AL record after 19th straight loss

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS - The Baltimore Orioles stumbled to 0-19 and within one game of the longest losing streak in American League history, falling to the Minnesota Twins 4-2 Tuesday night on two home runs by Kent Hrbek and another by Randy Bush. It seemed like this would be the Orioles' night to win when Fred Lynn opened the game with a home run. Instead, it disintegrated into another disaster when Hrbek's two-run homer and Bush's solo shot in the sixth inning wiped out Baltimore's 2-0 lead and gave the Twins their second victory in eight games.

Not even Monday's encouraging telephone call from President Reagan to Baltimore Manager Frank Robinson could help the Orioles, who had champagne on ice in their clubhouse in case they won. Baltimore can tie the AL mark of 20 consecutive losses, last done by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1943, with another loss Wednesday night in Minnesota. The all-time major-league record is 23 consecutive losses by the Philadelphia Phillies in 1961.

The Orioles' slide is the longest losing streak in the majors since Detroit's 19-game streak in 1975.

Yankees 5, Royals 4
Don Slaught opened the eighth inning with an opposite-field home run Tuesday night to give the New York Yankees a 1-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals in New York.

Slaught's homer, his fourth of the season, came on the first pitch from Charlie Leibrandt, 1-4, and gave the Yankees their 22nd triumph in the last 25 games against the Royals at Yankee Stadium.

Cecilio Guante, 2-0, the second of three New York pitchers, was the winner, allowing one hit in two innings, with Charles Hudson pitching a hitless ninth for his first save.

New York took a 3-1 lead in the fourth when designated hitter Jack Clark got his first Yankee Stadium hit, a two-run homer. He had been 0-10 at home.

Athletics 6, Blue Jays 1

Mark McGwire, who hadn't homered in 18 games, hit a pinch-hit three-run shot in the eighth inning Tuesday night at Toronto that broke a 1-1 tie and powered the Oakland Athletics to a 4-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Winner Storm Davis, 2-1, allowed four hits and struck out seven in seven innings to win a duel with Dave Stieb. Dennis Eckersley pitched the final two innings for his major league-leading ninth save.

Tigers 6, Angels 0
Gary Pettis, in his first game against his old club, drove in three runs Tuesday night at Detroit to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 6-0 victory over the California Angels behind Jeff Robinson's six-hit pitching.

Petits, who was traded to Detroit last winter for pitcher Dan Petry, drove in two runs with a single in the third inning and singled home another in the Tigers' four-run fifth.

Robinson, 3-2, walked five and struck out three in his first complete game of the season and second major-league shutout. Loser Mike Witt, 1-2, gave up seven hits and all six Detroit runs in five innings.

Rangers 3, Brewers 1
Jose Guzman continued his strong pitching with a three-hitter and Pete Incaviglia hit his fourth home run in six games Tuesday night, leading the Texas Rangers to a 3-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers at Arlington, Texas.

Guzman, 3-1, struck out eight and was in trouble only in the first inning as he lowered his ERA to 1.41 in 32 innings. Loser Chris Bosio, 3-2, allowed only seven hits.

Red Sox-White Sox ppd.
Tuesday night's scheduled game between the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox at Chicago was postponed by rain and will be played as part of a twi-night double-header on Wednesday.

Agreement reached at NBA discussions

Associated Press

NEW YORK - The NBA and its players association reached a six-year agreement Tuesday that will greatly reduce the salary cap and reduce the right to match an offer for a player, sources close to the talks said. The agreement was ratified by NBA commissioner David Stern.

The NBA has agreed to drop its offer to first-round draft picks of seven years' worth of rights to play in the league, sources said. Instead, the league will offer a player a new contract that is worth 125 percent of his previous yearly salary. Teams also are not allowed to match an offer and then trade a player.

In addition, right-of-first-refusal applies only to players who are offered $250,000 or more by their old team.

The agreement, which is subject to court approval, was reached after a seven-hour negotiating session Monday and was approved by the league's owners and the executive board of the players union, which also will drop its request for a lawsuit against the league.

The league also retained the right to match an offer and then trade a player.

Among the veterans benefiting immediately from this provision will be Moses Malone of Washington, Sidney Moncrief of Milwaukee and Larry Fleisher, executive director of the players association.

"Both sides made compromises, original positions in order to reach agreement," NBA commissioner David Stern said.

After the 1988-89 season, the free-agency provision will apply to five-year veterans, and in the last year of the agreement, 1993-94, a four-year veteran will have unrestricted free agency provided he is not in his first contract.

In order to retain the right of first-refusal for players who do not have enough years of service or who have just completed their first contract, a team must offer a player a new contract that is worth 125 percent of his previous yearly salary. Teams also are not allowed to match an offer and then trade a player.

Cahill reaching new heights in freshman year

By FRANK PASTOR

"I wasn't really that serious about it when I was nine," CeCe Cahill said of tennis. "She had a strong foundation," said Cahill's coach, Auriol Backus. "Now she's become a star." Cahill, a senior at Notre Dame, has become a star in the tennis world on its ear, rolling up one victory after another in pursuit of an NCAA tournament. Cahill has also garnered the nation's attention, winning the U.S. Open and the Wimbledon Championships. She has established herself immediately as one of the best fencers in the country, and was named a first-team All-American in her senior year.

Associated Press

NEW YORK. The NFL draft was half over when several analysts declare that Cleveland and Philadelphia had a good draft and the Denver Broncos Los Angeles Rams had a bad one. A day later, another analyst declared that the Broncos Rams had prospered. It takes three years for football people to accurately determine if a draft is successful, if it didn't stop coaches, personnel directors and general managers from declaring their drafts an unqualified success.

The one exception was Jim Finks, the candid general manager of the New Orleans Saints. "Average. Based on my experience," Finks said of his team's draft.

all year in leading Notre Dame to an 8-4 record, including a Cotton Bowl bid in his hometown of Dallas. The senior touched the ball 130 times for 810 yards, moving into first place on Notre Dame's career list in that category. He also had 54 tackles for losses and two of those in the second game of the season against Michigan State.

Notre Dame basketball star Brad Muster of Stanford, they used their first pick on Guteo Green of UCLA, less durable but a breakaway threat and a homecourt pick. In fact, four of the top five choices were from the Pac-10, including Green, wide receiver iron Cox Barcelona State, defensive back Anthony Newman of Oregon and quarterback Bill "Fliper" Anderson, Green's UCLA teammate.

But Robinson wasn't the only coach to break a pattern. Two who have repeatedly said they hate taking offensive linemen on the first round, Ray Perkins of Tampa Bay and Dick Parcells of the New York Giants, each did it this year.

That belied their reputation as a team that takes the best available athlete and enhanced their tradition of "flood drafts." A trip to the NCAA championship this summer would certainly cap off a perfect year for Cahill. Bids are distributed on May 6, just as finals culminate for Notre Dame students.

"I think I have a good chance of making the tournament, but I'm really not going to think about it," asserts Cahill. "We have one more match left, and I just want to play my best."

Krause Award winners named

Brown, Sullivan are ND Athletes of Year

By MARTY STRASEN

They were named the best in the nation in their respective sports.

And Tuesday the best college football player and the best women's fencer in the country were announced winners of the Edward W. "Moose" Krause awards as Notre Dame's top male and female athletes of 1987-88, as selected by The Observer sports staff.

Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown was selected male Athlete of the Year and national fencing champion Molly Sullivan was named female Athlete of the Year by the sports staff of The Observer.

Brown, who was selected sixth in the first round of the NFL draft by the Los Angeles Raiders on Tuesday, became the seventh Notre Dame football player to receive the Heisman Trophy when he won it last December.

"I couldn't ask for a better senior year," Brown says. "We had a good season, winning the Heisman, and now to get the chance to play somewhere millions of people would love to play. This is all such a thrill."

Plenty of thrills were what Brown provided.

Brian Piotrowicz turned in one of the best pitching performances of his collegiate career to lead the Notre Dame baseball team to a 5-2 victory over Purdue yesterday afternoon.

The Observer sports staff has selected Heisman Trophy-winning Irish fencer Molly Sullivan won the Krause Award for Notre Dame Female Athlete of the Year.

Schafer leads ND's hockey resurgence

This time a year ago, Ric Schafer was afraid he might be out of the running for the vacant Notre Dame hockey coaching position. The first-year coach won the Edward W. Krause Award for Notre Dame Coach of the Year on Tuesday, as named by the Observer sports staff.

After suffering three straight losing seasons, he faced the challenge of winning the Irish's second base club status, the Irish hockey team soared to 24-4-3 under Schafer. The Irish finished the season by winning the American Collegiate Hockey Association tournament crown.

But after attending an interview last April concerning the coaching spot, Schafer's hopes of coaching at Notre Dame appeared remote.

"I guess I didn't make a good impression," said Schafer, who was being coached at Alaska-Fairbanks for seven years after serving as both a player and an assistant at Notre Dame.

"That bothered me because I'd worked seven years to put together this coaching dream,"

Brian Piotrowicz has a natural throwing arm, Murphy said of Tuesday's day's complete-game winner.

"He has to work and concentrate to throw it right. He has a lot of potential in it for him to work for him."

Piotrowicz must have lifted in favor of lefthander Mike Drum. Irish shortstop Pat Pesavento spoiled Drum's en- trance with a perfectly placed bunt down the third baseline, setting the stage for Peltier's ground ball.

"Those mistakes are part of baseball," said Irish head coach Pat Murphy. "We weren't able to take advantage of that play."

The apparently harmless ground ball play continued to be a nightmare for the Boilers.

First baseman Troy Anschelmann retrieved the ball and tried to throw him out.

Pesavento was safe at first, and Pesavento racing for the plate.

Anschelmann's throw was almost as bad as the throw that started the melee. Pesavento scored, and so did Peltier, who hit a single.

The Irish led 5-2, and Murphy took it from there.

"Brian has a natural throwing arm, Murphy said of Tuesday's day's complete-game winner. "He has to work and concentrate to throw it right. He has a lot of potential in it for him to work for him."
