Photos of hostages found in Italy

BEIRUT: Lebanese Islamic Jihad, a pro-Iranian group holding two U.S. hostages, said Monday it was not linked to the Lebanese woman arrested in Italy with photographs of captive Americans.

The group claimed the woman, Aline Ibrahim Riakallah, 36, had ties to Israel’s secret service. Three Islamic Jihad challenged Italian authorities to publish a photograph of American hostage Terry Anderson that had been in the woman’s luggage at Milan airport last Thursday.

“What has been said about the presence of a photograph of captive Anderson is sheer fabrication and is absolutely devoid of truth,” Islamic Jihad said in a typewritten Arabic-language statement delivered to a Western news agency in Beirut.

The 15-line communiqué was delivered with an photograph of Anderson to authenticate it. The kidnappers apparently did not know that authorities in Milan had already released a copy of the photograph of Anderson that was discovered in

Accusations fly in Hiler, Ward debate

Associated Press

ELKHART, Ind. — Rep. John Hiler accused Democratic challenger Thomas Ward of “savouring” the Hiler family in political ads, and Ward called Hiler a man who doesn’t back up his promises to voters.

The comments came Monday night in the second televised debate between the candidates for the 3rd District congressional seat.

Ward and Hiler discussed taxes, jobs, defense and the environment in the hour-long debate sponsored by the Elkhart County League of Women voters and broadcast by WSJV TV.

The controlled anger that marked the first debate Oct. 17 was in evidence again. "Some folks probably think they tuned in early to the Bears' game," said Hiler, referring to the televised NFL contest between the Chicago Bears and the San Francisco 49ers that followed.

Ward attacked Hiler's record on the environment, saying the family-owned iron foundry in LaPorte had dumped sand containing iron tailings on wetlands crucial to wildlife. "You don't know what the environment is," said Ward, who has used the incident in campaign advertising. "You're more concerned about the profits of polluters."

Hiler said state tests showed the sand contained no hazardous materials and was removed immediately in a cleanup that won praise from the Department of Natural Resources. "I've listened to you savour my family, Tom Ward, and I tell you what, you're dead wrong," he said.

On taxes, Ward said he would raise the amount paid by the wealthiest individuals and corporations, but Hiler said, "I will not vote to raise taxes."

Ward contended Hiler supported a tax increase earlier this year when he approved raising the premium for Medicare health coverage for the elderly. "Why is it you make these promises when you know you can't keep them?" asked Ward.

Hiler renewed a fight from the last debate over campaign contributions from special interest groups. The congressmen countered a check for $23,051, which he said was the amount his campaign had received in such contributions. He said he would return the money if Ward would do likewise.

Tropical storm threatens El Salvador, Guatemala

Associated Press

GUATEMALA CITY—Guatemala and El Salvador were under states of alert Monday as Tropical Storm Miriam wandered offshore, and other Latin American countries devastated by the storm struggled to aid victims.

Hurricane Joan left at least 111 people dead in five countries over the past week and ripped across Nicaragua from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific before it was downgraded to a tropical storm and renamed Miriam.

Forecasters had feared the storm would regain strength and become a hurricane again as it reached the warm waters of the Pacific, but they said Monday that it was sticking too close to the coast to gather force.

The known death toll from the weekend storm was 50 people in Nicaragua over the weekend, 21 in Costa Rica, four in Panama, 25 in Colombia and 11 in Venezuela. The storm affected all Central American nations except tiny Belize and left hundreds of thousands of people homeless.

At 4 p.m. EDT Monday, Miriam’s center was near latitude 14.2 north, longitude 97.7 west, or about 156 miles west-southwest of Guatemala City, according to the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla. It said the storm had maximum sustained winds of 55 mph and was moving west-northwest at about 10 mph.

Student Senate urged to serve student needs

By FLORENTINE HOEFLER

News Staff

The Student Senate suspended its normal agenda this week to brainstorm on ways that they might improve service to the student body.

Student Body President Tom Doyle expressed concern over the fact that the Senate has not been as productive as hoped, and opened discussion on ways the senate might improve.

"Perhaps Student Senate at this point hasn’t brought up points it should be addressing," Doyle said.

"There may be many reasons, but perhaps the main one is that you are doing so well in your other positions," he said, referring to those members of the senate holding positions like class and dorm presidents.

The senate also discussed the early closing of the 24-hour lounge in the Oak Room. Due to low attendance, the lounge reported a loss of nearly $1000. Student telephone directories are completed, and the senate plans to distribute them in the near future.

Among the suggestions from the membership were subcommittees composed of a senator, a hall council member, and a hall council member, along with additional services such as a class representative, an events coordinator, and a hall council member. The Senate also considered a proposal to fund the new student publications, which are now being published online.

500 words are a small price to pay for London

They say a picture is worth a thousand words. So what's 500? 500 words is all they want for the Arts and Letters London Program application. One loopy essay. You write more than that for even the most blow-off psychology course. Basically all you have to do is tell them what you can do for London and what it can do for you. What you can do for London I can't tell you. But London can do a lot for you.

Living in a foreign country for four or five months gives you experience you can't get from a two-week whirlwind tour. You learn about buskers and zone one passes and Covent Garden and whether Neil Kincock is a wally or not. You find favorite pubs and favorite plays, if not favorite airports.

After the initial shock of almost getting run over by the cars on the left side of the street, you begin to get a feel for how non-Americans think. You see that America is not as respected there as it is here. You see how American foreign policy affects people an ocean away. You see that there is more to life than American football.

This is all before you even leave London. The A&L Program only holds class four days a week and has extensive travel breaks, so there's plenty of time to hitchhike to Oktoberfest, drop in on Mikhail, and get lost in Spain.

And now it's time to debunk all those rationalizations.

Money? Work two jobs this summer, borrow from all your sibs and beg for more financial aid. No matter how much you bring, you will come back broke. And changed. It's worth it.

Missed time? So what. Whether you miss next year's championship football team or next year's Junior Parents Weekend and An Tostal, you still get to see Buckingham Palace, the Mona Lisa, and the Guinness brewery.

Read this. Want to second Guesses who said the unexamined life is not worth living? Sure, it's tough coming back, when your wardrobe is 90 percent black clothes and you are no longer a legal drinker and everyone calls you a underage that that than four years of Notre Dame conformity.

Boyfriend/girlfriend? If you can't last one semester, there is no point. Besides, British accents are sexy, as are French women and Italian men. Some of them, anyway.

Scared? Admit it, you're a little nervous at living in a city that had Jack the Ripper and other sordid crimes committed there. Seriously, I think London is a hell of a lot safer than New York. If you don't do anything stupid, you probably will be perfectly safe. Who would mess with a six-foot-two body carrying a billy club anyway?

Besides, you also get to live in the closest thing to co-ed dorms Notre Dame will ever see, and become close friends with 80 other students. After four months of doing laundry and closing the Prince Alfred's, you do become close friends.

So fill out the application and hand it and closing the Prince Alfred's, you do become close friends.

Vincennes welcomed home

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO - Youngsters cried "Hi, Daddy" and wives and girlfriends waved Monday for the crew of the USS Vincennes in an emotional homecoming from the Persian Gulf that tempered anguish over the downing of an Iranian airliner.

"We're glad to be home, I assure you of that. This is a nice place," said Capt. Will Rogers III, skipper of the Aegis-class cruiser.

After a brief welcoming ceremony featuring William Rose, mayor of Vincennes, Ind., and Rep. Bill Lowery, R-Calif., of San Diego, the 380 sailors poured off the ship into a sea of relatives, friends and Navy colleagues.

One woman held a sign that read, "I love you Beefcake Collins." A little girl waved to her father and said "Hi, Daddy. You're home!" One sailor bolted down the gangway, crying "Hi, Mom," and hugged his mother.

"It's a tragedy that it happened. But I'm glad I'm home and I'm alive," said Petty Officer 3rd Class Steve Hile of Niles, Mich., who got a warm embrace from his girlfriend, Vallita Lawwill.

Monday's return marked the end of a six-month deployment for the crew of the Vincennes, named for a Revolutionary War battle near Vincennes.

The Vincennes accidentally shot down the civilian aircraft over the Persian Gulf on July 3, killing all 290 people aboard. Navy chaplain Ted Atwood, who visited the crew from Sept. 27 to Oct. 5 and talked frequently with the families of crew members, said many sailors came to grips with the tragedy on the way home.

"When I was on board, I did not see a single depressed sailor," Atwood said. "Of course, the loss of lives is grievous in any situation. I think they absorbed it and they have dealt with it and they have grown beyond that grievous incident."

The official Pentagon report concluded the crew mistook the airliner for an Iranian F-14 fighter jet and said crew members misinterpreted computer and radar data because of stress in their first combat situation. At the time, the Vincennes was engaged in a firefight with several Iranian gunboats.

Rogers also said the fate of the USS Stark, on which 37 sailors died in an Iraqi missile attack, was in the back of his mind throughout the Vincennes deployment.

The CLASS OF '52 COULDN'T SEE INTO THE FUTURE

Folks here are still talking about "The 1952 Incident." For some reason still unknown, a certain graduating class at a certain university missed what was certainly the opportunity of a lifetime. The chance to meet with a recruiter from the National Security Agency.

Maybe they were busy that day. Maybe something else caught their eye. But the fact remains, a meeting with NSA could have meant a future full of challenging, exciting projects.

Now you've got the same chance. Our recruiter will be visiting campus soon in search of talented mathematicians, computer scientists, electrical engineers and linguists. And we're looking for people who want to work on important, hands-on assignments right from the start of their career.

NSA is the agency responsible for producing foreign intelligence information, safeguarding our government's communications and securing computer systems for the Department of Defense. And we're equally committed to helping you make your future strong. So do yourself a favor and meet with us. You don't need 3-D glasses to see that it's a great opportunity.

NSA will be on campus November 15 interviewing seniors majoring in Electrical Engineering, Computer Science, Math and Language.

Whales return to starting point; rescuers continue efforts

BARROW, Alaska - Two Soviet icebreakers steamed toward U.S. waters to join the drive to save two stranded whales Monday, while rescuers appeared to lose ground in their efforts to coax the imprisoned mammals toward freedom.

Biologists stopped cutting new breathing holes through the Beaufort Sea ice Monday evening after the whales, apparently spooked by a seal, headed back toward the shoreline where they have been trapped for more than two weeks.

With Eksimo crews providing the backbreaking labor, biologists switched tactics in the frustrating effort to get the whales through the shallow water.

First, they connected a series of intermittent breathing holes to form a single open channel some 600 yards long. Instead of pushing the ice blocks back under the adjacent ice, the Eksimos used long poles to guide the miniature icebergs to the rear of the shore.

The idea was to try to keep the whales from reversing their course toward the nearest open water.

Initially the strategy worked. The whales would swim back and forth between the edge of the shoal and the rear of the ice-clogged channel. But when the channel behind them was almost completely filled, the whales reversed course, struggling up through the large slabs of ice and thick slush.

Marines also return to Vietnam

NEW YORK - Three former Marines extended a peace offering to Vietnam on Monday in advance of a mercy mission to that country in which they will look for land mines that might still be in place 20 years after they planted them.

The Americans presented a plaque at the Vietnamese mission to the United Nations saying: "In the hopes of preserving the peace, we come to Vietnam once again, this time to help the preservation of human life."

While the nine-day trip to be made by six former Marines from the 11th Engineer Battalion, 3rd Marine Division, is a private and, in some ways, sentimental journey funded by an anonymous businessman, it has the blessing of both the U.S. and Vietnamese governments.

A member of Vietnam's National Assembly and a key economic adviser, Nguyen Xuan Uanh, made a rare visit to the United States earlier this month to confer with American businessmen. He also repeated Vietnam's intention to withdraw its troops from Cambodia by March 1990, one of the things Washington is insisting upon before recognizing the Hanoi government.

And just last month, the United States and Vietnam began joint searches for witnesses of wartime plane crashes in efforts to find the remains of some of the 1,757 Americans missing in action and presumed dead. The United States says it has no evidence that any of the missing are alive but it has demanded they be accounted for in one way or another as a second condition for establishing diplomatic relations.

At a joint news conference Monday, there was a diplomatic difference on whether land mines and unexploded bombs still threaten Vietnamese civilians. The Vietnamese said the mines had all been cleared at the cost of thousands of civilians killed, particularly from the end of the war in 1975 until 1978 when land was being cleared for farming and housing.

"I can assure you that those mine fields have been cleared," said Ambassador Trinh Xuan Lang, head of the Vietnamese mission to the United Nations.
1988 election: a guide to voting

With the presidential elections closing in on us, we are beginning to realize we have to start taking this election business seriously. Of course, it is not our fault that we have become almost numb to the whole thing. Ever since Gary Hart learned how to spell "Monkey Business," not a day has gone by when we have not been reminded in one form or another that, yes indeed, good ol' Ronnie is about to step down. The reason I wallow in the obvious like this is to show that, despite all the 'preparation,' the American public has had for this grand ritual of democracy, most of us still do not know what the hell is going on.

Paul Kane
guest column

Recently, representatives of one of the local television stations walked around the streets of South Bend and took a public opinion poll on the candidates, the debates, and other such matters pertaining to the election. The consensus seemed to be that neither one of the candidates was saying anything (as if politicians never behaved in this fashion before). Neither of the candidates had that "umph," the charisma to win factor in one particular local election. All of these voters are registered in the State of Indiana and are thus eligible to participate in the 3rd District Congressional Elections to seat a member of the U.S. House of Representatives. The candidates for this year are incumbent Rep. John Hiler (R) and challenger Tom Ward (D). In the last election, Hiler won his seat in Congress by a total of 47 votes. Clearly, a new voter block constitutes a significant change in the political influence of our student body.

Hiler/Ward debate set for October 27

Dear Editor,

For as long as recent memory has been an indication, political activism at Notre Dame has been characterized by such adjectives as "apathetic," "uninvolved," and "unresponsive." For a university of this stature and reputation, such facts, the fact that our student body has not become involved in issues which affect it, raises serious questions about our community-mindedness. A concerted, motivated student body has the real potential of influencing the course and direction of government policy at both the local and national level. When moved to act, Notre Dame can successfully assure that the voices of all its members—faculty, staff, and university students—are addressed and pursued by elected officials whom we have worked to put in office. If ever there was an opportunity to influence the course of government affairs, that time is now.

Three weeks ago, student government organized and undertook an extensive voter registration campaign which resulted in the registration of over 3,200 voters between the campuses of Notre Dame and St. Mary's. This new voter block constitutes a significant constituency in the South Bend area and has become a new surprise factor in one particular local election. All of these voters are registered in the State of Indiana and are thus eligible to participate in the 3rd District Congressional Elections to seat a member of the U.S. House of Representatives. The candidates for this year are incumbent Rep. John Hiler (R) and challenger Tom Ward (D). In the last election, Hiler won his seat in Congress by a total of 47 votes. Clearly, a new voter block constitutes a significant change in the political influence of our student body.

With the ability to affect the outcome of the Congressional elections, the student body has captured the attention of the two candidates. Responding to an invitation from student government, both Hiler and Ward have agreed to attend the debate at Notre Dame on Thursday, Oct. 27 at 8:30 p.m. This is a perfect opportunity to impress upon the candidates the importance of various student issues. All manner of topics, ranging from student loans and grants to government policy on education will be addressed at the debate. This is a chance for both candidates to make campaign promises on matters that are of importance to American students. Ward, a candidate for the presidency, importantes on matters that are of importance to American students. Ward, a candidate for the presidency, National and foreign policy issues which affect our lives as citizens of the nation will also be raised. The fact of the matter is that this debate is an opportunity to reestablish the student community as an integral and powerful political force. To do so requires participation in the political process and an understanding of the campaign issues. Thursday's debate is an excellent way to start. With a large student attendance at the debate, the candidates will be forced to acknowledge the political influence of our student body. A precedent may very well be set here at Notre Dame this fall that the students of our University are interested, mature, responsible voters who, of necessity, must be addressed by public officials in a similar manner. By fostering a reputation such as this, the candidates must be forced to recognize other student concerns such as off-campus crime, policestate relations and the South Bend/Notre Dame relationship at other government levels. The possibilities for student influence in our local environment are immense. And if all these gentlemen this year is going to knock the world over with his charisma and originality, both have distinct ideas and are in many ways different. If all of this does not work out to your liking, Paul Kane is a sensor for anthropology and government major.

First Impressions of Italy

LIZ PANZICA
La Dolce Vita

In case you're not following, I'm spending my sophomore year in Rome on the Saint Mary's Rome Program. Italy's not quite South Bend, and my housing accommodations are not at all like my freshman home of Howard Hall. For one thing, my room window overlooks one of the busiest streets in Rome. In the distance I can see the Pantheon, not the Golden Dome.

So far the trip has been fun and exciting and all so new it's hard to remember that, yes, I have to go to class. The nightlife is promising and days certainly aren't dull.

Yet, it is work, adjusting and understanding. It's easy, I've found, to forget that the world does not revolve around the United States or the Golden Dome.

I wash my clothes in a bathtub and I only wash them when they're dirty. No, I wasn't amazed and awed by the countryside or the fact that I'm spending my sophomore year in Rome on the Saint Mary's Rome Program. Yet, it is work, adjusting and understanding. It's easy, I've found, to forget that the world does not revolve around the United States or Notre Dame.

This fact became painfully obvious during orientation in Assisi. Assisi allows only residents to drive within the city walls because of its ancient buildings and narrow streets. This meant that I had to trudge up the city's mountainous terrain to our hotel. As I hauled my 106-pound carry-on bag, I couldn't help thinking, "Why would anyone want to build a city on a mountain? Didn't they think how inconvenient it would be?"

No, I wasn't amazed and awed by the countryside or the fact that I was walking on the very same paths as St. Francis and St. Claire. All I could think about was how steep this incline ahead of me was. When I made it to the hotel, I looked at the countryside below and I was so sorry. Instead of noticing the townspeople leaning from the windows and lending their shops, I worried about making a climb.

I have a long way to go, and the road, I'm sure, is not level. Rome waits. It was built on seven hills, not just one. This time, however, I'm ready. I'm buying a pair of hiking boots.

A degree of relief is promised in the near future with the completion of Farley Hall, named after Father John "Pop" Farley, late rector of Sorin Hall. The fine Gothic structure, located north of Breen-Phillips, will contain room for 215 students.

It was more than two score years ago, in January of 1947, that Farley Hall first opened its doors. Originally a freshman dormitory, it brought the number of residence halls at Notre Dame to 13.

That first year, Farleyites acquired a dubious recognition of having "the healthiest legs on campus," a reputation probably due to the thrice-daily trek to South Dining Hall from what was then considered "an outpost of frontier life."

The reputation was shortened however, as administrators generously installed ice cream, Coke, and rootbeer machines in the basement during that same winter of 1947-48, Farley's first full year of operation. These temporary services fortunately appeased Farleyites until North Dining Hall opened in 1958.

"Out along the Michigan Trail stands Farley Hall," the 1949 Dome reads, "pride of its new grass and its new green inhabitants under her roof."

These "green" inhabitants included not only the hall's new freshmen but also their new rector, Reverend Theodore M. Hesburgh. And as the men settled into the routines of college life, the grass began to grow. Farley traditions began to take root, and the dorm took on a character all its own.

Father Charles E. Sheedy replaced Hesburgh as rector in 1949, and held that post until the end of the school year in 1952. Perhaps it was he who first had to respond to the question, "Do we follow on-campus or off-campus regulations?" posed by Farley freshmen, apparently still doubtful whether South Dining Hall was within campus jurisdiction.

Reverend Daniel F. Curtin continued the Farley rector tradition by distinguishing himself as the rector of "one of the best study halls on campus." Soon after, however, Farley was the only dorm of the three still willing to participate in the "grand experiment."

Undaunted, Farley opened its doors in September 1966, to members of all four classes. The experiment was a success, and Alumni and Dillon followed suit the next year.

The big change came in 1973, when Farley became a women's dorm. Sister Jean Lenz and her class of 180 freshmen joined sophomore, junior and senior volunteers from Walsh and Badmin to make Farley's first year as a women's dorm memorable.

"My sense was that the Farley men didn't want to give the hall up," remembers Lenz. "They were very proud of their hall."

Farley women continued the dorm's athletic spirit, bringing home the women's intrahall basketball crown in 1974 and, more recently, proving their skill in flag football as Farley's Finest.

"Pop" Farley never had daughters in his day, but now he watches over the women of the dorm that bears his name, including senior Kathleen Hannon.

As a women's dorm, Farley has also created some traditions of its own, the most famous of these being the annual "Pop" Farley Week. This event was instituted in 1976 to celebrate the 100th birthday of the beloved Sorin rector who "never taught a class, never said Mass at Sacred Heart, but somehow got to know more students than most of his fellow priests."

"Pop" Farley Week now includes a weeklong series of activities: a talent show, hall awards ceremony, a skit by the resident assistants, a hall dinner, and culminates in the "Pop" Farley dance.

Even though Farley never knew the women of the hall that bears his name, says Lena, "his colorful character lends itself well to the character of a hall. But he would be turning over in his grave if he only knew..."

Arbitrator grants 12 baseball players free agency

NEW YORK—Pitchers Jim Catmolin of Toronto and Doyle Alexander of Detroit were among 12 players granted “no-trade” clause status by an arbitrator Monday in the 1986 collusion case.

Both Rich Gedman of Boston, Ernie Whitt of Toronto, Bob Forsch of Houston and Alan Ashby of Houston were made free agents by arbitrator Ron Guidry, in fielder Randy Waste and outfielder Claudell Washington of the New York Yankees and outfielder Brian Downing of the Angels.

In addition, Roberts granted free-agent status to pitchers Ken Dayley of St. Louis and Roy Smith of Minnesota. They became free agents Dec. 21, 1986, when their teams exercised their options for the 1987 season. They re-signed with their former teams after negotiations with other clubs failed.

The 12 players have until Dec. 16 to accept contracts with new teams or remain with their current clubs in a similar process, arbitrator Thomas Roberts made seven players from the first case free agents last January, and Kirk Gibson left Detroit to sign a $4.5 million, three-year contract with Los Angeles.

"These players are entitled to immediate relief and are hereby afforded the opportunity to negotiate from the clubs' violation of the basic agreement," Nicolau wrote in a nine-page opinion.

Two other players were included in Nicolau's decision but there's no agreement on a potential "blackball" group that has catchers and pitchers.

The commission had asked that Nicolau make 33 other players free agents again, including pitcher Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays, third baseman Jose Canseco of the Oakland Athletics.

Whit said he was more interested in eventual monetary damages than in the players themselves.

"If other clubs want to contact me, I'll listen," Whit said. "My preference is to stay in Toronto. At my age, I don't think there are too many teams interested."

BELLES STRUGGLE DURING BREAK

By JANE SHEA
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

The Saint Mary's women's tennis team defeated Notre Dame and lost to Lewis College in play over the weekend.

The Belles had a close game against Notre Dame on Oct. 13. Neither team scored in the first half.

Tereso Martinez scored the Belles only goal off of a penalty kick. The team was unable to capitalize on other opportunities it had to score.

"I was happy with the team's effort," said head coach Tom Van Meter. "We suffered some injuries, but we had strong play from off the bench."

Amy Ross and Anne Sawaed could not continue play due to injuries. The game ended in a 1-1 tie.

Adrian College forfeited their game to Saint Mary's Friday because their team was injured. Saint Mary's played against Lewis College Sunday.

The game went into overtime with the score 0-0. The Belles scored in the overtime period. Lewis came back and scored twice to win the game by a score of 2-1.

Play was even throughout the game. Having been defeated by Lewis's 0-1 loss, Saint Mary's was happy with their performance and "I think this was one of our best game's as a team," said Van Meter. "Mollie Meehan had her best game of the year."

Meehan scored the Belles' only goal in the game. Goalie Lisa Carter also had a good game and made some diving saves which helped keep Saint Mary's in the game.

Wednesday the Belles take on Indiana University at South Bend in their last home game of the season.

SMC TENNIS WINS DISTRICT TITLE

The Saint Mary's women's tennis team captured its second consecutive NAIA District Championship title Oct. 14-16 at Manchester College. The Belles' 18-1 regular-season record helped to prepare them for their District competition. Saint Mary's finished in first place with 31 points, followed by DePauw with 21, Taylor with 19, St. Francis with 13 and Hanover with 10 points.

Sophomore Sarah Mayer's performance reflected her outstanding season's play as she defeated her Taylor opponent 6-1, 6-2 in number-three singles. Mayer also teamed with Charlene Szako to win the number-two doubles match 6-0, 6-7, 6-4.

"Our doubles match was close all of the way through the second and third games, but we finally got it together to win in the third," said Mayer. "We really had a great season. We all get along well which makes it easier and makes us more durable."

The Mayer family's talent certainly was exhibited that weekend as Ellen was victorious, teaming with Angie Mueller for a 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 win in the number-three spot. Mueller easily defeated her Hanover opponent in the tournament's five singles match 6-1, 6-2.

Junior Jen Block's singles' performances earned her a spot on the all-district singles team, while her combined efforts with freshman Marie Koscielski won them all-district doubles honors.

"Marie and I worked and fought really hard throughout the season and now all it seems worthwhile," said Block. "This is really a big honor and I'm very happy, especially since this is only my freshman year."

Saint Mary's coach Deb Laverie was named Coach of the Year for the third consecutive year and will now lead her team to the NAIA national tournament held in Kansas City in May.
NEW YORK—Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox is the best player in baseball, edging out the Los Angeles Dodgers, according to statistical rankings for the past two years.

The rankings, compiled by the Elias Sports Bureau and released Monday, gave Clemens a 96.033 score for the 1987-88 seasons, with Hershiser at 96.135. Frank Viola of the Minnesota Twins was third at 96.097 and Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets was fourth at 96.169, giving pitchers a sweep of the first four places.

Clemens, who has been the top pitcher, ranking fifth with a score of 94.795.

The best possible score of 100 has been reached only once, by the first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees last year.

The rankings, now in their eighth season, are used to determine the All-Star game's starting pitchers. They are used as compensation for free agents. They also are used to compare players. They combine statistics such as batting average, plate appearances, home runs and runs batted in for hitters, and starts, innings, earned-run average, saves and strikeouts for pitchers. The statistics used vary from position to position.

Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt was the top-ranked third baseman in the National League last season and is the only player to lead his position in all eight seasons. Gary Carter of the Mets, who led at NL catcher for seven years, dropped to sixth.

Ozzie Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals led NL shortstops for the fifth straight year. Todd Worrell of the Cardinals was the top NL reliever for the second straight season.

Atlanta's Dale Murphy, who led NL outfielders from 1982-87, dropped to ninth. Pedro Guerrero of St. Louis led NL in fielders, followed by Darryl Strawberry of the Mets and Kal Daniels of Cincinnati.

At first base, Will Clark of San Francisco replaced Keith Hernandez of the Mets, who had led for four straight years. Hershiser succeeded Houston's Scott as the top NL starter. The Mets placed four starters in the NL top 12 (good), Ron Darling (4), David Cone (8) and Sid Fernandez (12).

Wade Boggs of Boston led at third base in the American League for the second straight year and joined Clemens as the only American Leaguer to repeat.

Mattingly, the top AL first baseman for three years, dropped to second, behind Detroit's George Brett. Mattingly's score dropped to 97.

Marty Barrett of Boston and Julio Franco of Cleveland tied for the lead at second base, replacing Johnny Ray of California.

Alan Trammell of Detroit was the leader at shortstop, beating Cal Ripken of Baltimore, the AL shortstop leader from 1984-87. Ripken dropped into a tie for second with Toronto's Tony Fernandez.

Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox replaced Ernie Whitt of Toronto as the AL's top catcher. Harold Baines of the White Sox and Brian Downing of California tied for designation hitter, replacing Larry Parrish of Boston, who had led for two years when he was with Texas. Dennis Eckersley of Oakland replaced Mark Eichhorn of Toronto as the top reliever.

In the NL, outfielder Evans dropped to fourth at first place after leading at second base in 1987. Gooden is fourth at NL catcher, dropping to ninth. Pedro Strop of the Philadelphia Pirates was chosen by San Diego as the first pick in May's draft.

"He can hit anybody, he can go to professional baseball right now and hit," said Murphy. "He loves the game, loves to compete and he's an Academic All-American. What more can you say about First Baseman Pedro? He's what Notre Dame is all about."

Clemens is baseball's best all-around player, and you know it. He's the only American Leaguer to repeat. Mattingly, the top AL first baseman for three years, dropped to second, behind the successor from the Baltimore Orioles. Mattingly's score dropped to 97.

Marty Barrett of Boston and Julio Franco of Cleveland tied for the lead at second base, replacing Johnny Ray of California.

Trip has ups and downs for Irish volleyball team

By MOLLY MAHONEY
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's volleyball team received some good news and bad news during their October break.

The good news: that they had survived a rollercoaster roadtrip and managed to tally the program's first two victories over top 20 teams.

And the bad news: its six-match winning streak was over after dropping a heartbreaker to San Jose State and two disappointing losses to Minnesota and Iowa.

The Irish, seemingly on a roll after defeating Kentucky which was then ranked 7th in the nation, chose the good news first, beating 15th-ranked Pacific in five hard-fought games, 8-15, 15-7, 16-14, 15-10 and 15-12.

And their momentum almost took them past 12th-ranked San Jose State as well, but the Spartans won the tough five-game match 15-10, 15-9, 12-15, 4-15 and 10-15.

This was the cue for the bad news to arrive on the scene.

Notre Dame left sunny California for the Midwest and could not get back on track against Minnesota or Iowa.

The Irish fell to Minnesota in three games, 15-3, 15-12 and 15-4 and then dropped a four-game match to Iowa 15-4, 15-7, 7-15 and 15-11.

We just looked like two totally different teams, said senior middle blocker Mary Kay Waller. "We had one team that played in California and another that played in Minnesota.

It really showed we are growing because we all just played like we were tired." Waller led a losing effort against the Hawkeyes Saturday, tallying a team-high 30 kills for a .416 hitting percentage and adding 11 digs.

Senior Zanette Bennett and junior Kathy Cunningham chipped in 13 and 12 kills, respectively but even this was not enough to generate the consistent offensive attack needed to control the match.

Notre Dame had easily defeated Iowa, now 17-5, earlier this season in the Saluki Invitational in three games and if that loss was not enough, the Irish also lost sophomore outside hitter Colleen Wagner to a knee injury that will most likely keep her on the sidelines until next season.

The Irish had also had their problems this week leading up to the season opener against Minnesota on Friday night, as they could only manage a .060 hitting percentage as a team.

Errant sets and spikes rarely made it back to the offensive production came to a halt and Minnesota capitalized on the Irish errors in the match and raise their record to 15-5.

The matches against Big Ten opponents were in stark contrast to those the Irish played against the Hawkeyes.

"What was irking was the three big problems we had in back-to-back matches before a series of ridiculous defensive break downs led to the second-half rout," Mallory said.

"We didn't do a whole lot with it, we couldn't do anything and everything the Irish threw at them," Waller contributed 18 kills, 11 digs and nine total blocks. Bennett, Waller and fellow seniors Whitney Shewman and Maureen Shea all played well offensively and defensively for the Irish.

Bennett led the offensive onslaught recording a team-high 25 kills in a tough five-game loss to San Jose State during fall break.

Notre Dame played well against San Jose State last Wednesday, winning the first two games of the match before the Spartans rallied behind tenacious defense that picked up everything and the Irish threw at them.

Bennett, Waller and fellow seniors Whitney Shewman and Maureen Shea all played well offensively and defensively for the Irish.

Bennett led the offensive onslaught recording a team-high 25 kills in a tough five-game loss to San Jose State during fall break.

The Buckeyes beat Minnesota already this season and the Irish will have to regroup before hitting a three-match stint at home in the JACC.

"I don't feel like we're in a slump," said Waller. "We had a couple of days off and we seemed really enthusiastic at practice so I think we play well against Ohio State. We've got a good record at home and this is would be the best place to get the team back on track."
Chicago Bears edge 49ers in big NFC battle

Associated Press

Chicago—Dan Hampton and Steve McMichael led a defense that set up all of Chicago's points and shut down Joe Montana, Roger Craig and the rest of the league's leading offense as the Chicago Bears beat the San Francisco 49ers 19-6 Monday night.

Chicago's victory, which made them 7-1 at the midway mark, ended the 49ers' 11-game road winning streak one short of a league record the 49ers tied a year ago.

It was mostly the work of the front four Hampton, McMichael, Richard Dent and Al Harris which almost completely shut down San Francisco after Montana hit Jerry Rice with a 23-yard scoring pass on San Francisco's first possession.

The 49ers, who got 97 yards on that initial drive, added just 130 more in the remaining 3 1/2 quarters. And Craig, who entered the weekend as the NFL's leading rusher with 764 yards, was limited to three carries for minus-2 yards in the first half and finished with just 30 yards on 10 carries.

Montana was 13 of 29 for 164 yards, but was just 4-of-16 for 44 yards before leaving the game in favor of Steve Young for San Francisco's final series.

The Bears had just four sacks, but they were constantly in Montana's face, particularly at key moments, including a stand that allowed just one yard midway through the fourth quarter after John Taylor's 30-yard punt return had put the ball at the Chicago 35. Mike Cofer's 51-yard field goal attempt then fell far short. They also held the 49ers without a first down after their own fourth down-and-inches try at San Francisco's 65 fell short with 2:31 left.

Chicago's only touchdown, on Jim McMahon's quarterback sneak with 3:38 left in the half, came after the Bears got field position at 49ers 27 following consecutive sacks by Hampton and McMichael.

Hype

Rockne and George Gipp are smiling.

"This was a win by the Notre Dame spirit," said Lou Holtz.

"That's all it was. It was a win by the spirit of a group of guys who just refused to fold. You can't pick out a hero. Notre Dame was the hero today." Pre-game anticipation for this matchup, swirling with visions of revenge and reemergence into the ranks of the elite, could have exceeded the actual game with this much hype and performance which does not match the hype.

This performance matched the hype.

This game was No. 1 vs. No. 4: Catholics vs. Convicts; 58-7; Catholics vs. Convicts.

"Usually when you have a game with this much hype and everybody looking forward to it," said Irish head coach Frank Stams, "it disappoints you. But this was a great football game. There were some mistakes but many of them were made by great plays. This was a game of two great teams that just competed as hard as anything I've ever seen."

Few will question that statement. The Hurricanes knew they were coming into a hornet's nest. They had more than a few hints that Notre Dame was not preparing for just another football game.

"This has to be one of the best feelings in the world - just winning a game in favor of Steve Young for San Francisco's final series."

That was the most embarrassing game I've ever played in," said Stams after The Game. "It was a bitter pill to swallow and it stuck in my throat."

"Until now," smiled Stams. Mark Green remembers the last game of his freshman year, also.

"It is great to beat these guys before leaving here," said Green. "This is to be one of the best feelings in the world - knowing we have a chance at the national title.

By the time the last players left the locker room, nightfall began to engulf the Stadium where the Irish had just fought their way into Notre Dame legend. But you could still see the results as clear as day - a Notre Dame Moment and a 6-0 Irish football team.

"It took us a while to get a feel for the wishbone (offense)," said senior defensive end Frank Stams, "but once we did all that was left to do we executed." And execute they did, as the defense led by junior linebacker Michael Stonerok's team-high 12 total tackles erected a roadblock that virtually stilled the Air Force attack in midstream.

"Whenever we get there on the 40-yard line and don't make fourth down and come up a yard short, then you have to give credit to the Notre Dame defense," said Falcon coach Fisher DeBerry. "I really believe that the most improved part of the Notre Dame program is their defense," DeBerry continued. "Their defense is playing as good as any Notre Dame defense I've seen. Their defense might be the unsung part of their football team."

The Irish allowed Dowis only 46 yards passing the entire scramble to a 15-yard gain down his replacement Lance Fisher DeBerry. "I really believe that the Notre Dame defense," DeBerry continued. "Our defense was going to have to do more than just show up for the game. They got after us and we got after them."

The Irish tackled the Falcons for just six times for a total of 25 yards. When sophomore cornerback Todd Lyght wasn't making one of his seven tackles in the secondary, the defensive line was overpowering the smaller Falcon offensive line with its size and strength.

Even Irish coach Lou Holtz commented that his defensive team had the size advantage over the Falcons.

"We're a little bigger and stronger than them," said Holtz. "We took the defensive package that had been in our package and worked on all week. We made a few adjustments and took it out of storage so to speak.

"We played it more aggressively, he continued. "I thought our defense played very, very well in the second half."

The Irish went on to score two more touchdowns in the second half, but Air Force's rushing attack, which was ranked first in the country entering the game, could muster just 29 yards on 18 carries in the final 30 minutes. With the Falcons running a wishbone attack and rarely throwing the ball, no running game meant no offense.

I was impressed by our football team in the second half," said Holtz. "I've got to be honest with you, I thought they were very impressive."

Things did not start out so easily for the Notre Dame defense. Air Force marched 41 yards on its opening drive before Irish cornerback Stan Smagala forced an Albert Booker fumble on the Irish 18. Pat Terrell recovered to end the scoring threat.

The Falcons scored the first points of the game on the following drive, as Steve Yarbrough connected on a 22-yard field goal with 6:29 to play in the second quarter following a 45-yard Falcon drive.

Notre Dame grabbed its first lead of the game on the next series. The Irish drove 71 yards on 13 plays, capped by Mark Green's seven-yard run for the score. Notre Dame was able to run it first-and-fifteen. It's consistency of our football team," Holtz.

The second half featured the fireworks of Ricky Watters, who caught two touchdown bombs from two different quarterbacks... sort of. In the closing minutes of the third period, reserve quarterback Steve Belles lined up at tailback. After taking a pitch from Rice, the quarter back/ tailback heaved a 43-yard pass to Watters. The sophomore flanker brought the ball down on the 5-yard line and broke a tackle to score his first receiving touchdown of the season.

"We ran that play in prac­tice, and I dropped it," said Watters. "I said, 'Just hang it up there, and I'll catch it.' He just laid it up there, and that's the way I like it.

"I said there was no way any big pass was going to stop me from getting in," Watters said about his ensuing struggle into the end zone. "I thought I was there in a while." Watters caught a 38-yard touchdown pass from Rice midway through the fourth quarter to close the scoring at 41-13. Rice completed 7-of-13 passes for 123 yards and two touch­downs.

EXTRA POINTS: Representa­tives of the Orange, Sugar, Fiesta, Cotton and Hall of Fame bowls attended the game.

In the closing minutes of the third period, reserve quarterback Steve Belles lined up at tailback. After taking a pitch from Rice, the quarter back/ tailback heaved a 43-yard pass to Watters. The sophomore flanker brought the ball down on the 5-yard line and broke a tackle to score his first receiving touchdown of the season.

"We ran that play in prac­tice, and I dropped it," said Watters. "I said, 'Just hang it up there, and I'll catch it.' He just laid it up there, and that's the way I like it.

"I said there was no way any big pass was going to stop me from getting in," Watters said about his ensuing struggle into the end zone. "I thought I was there in a while." Watters caught a 38-yard touchdown pass from Rice midway through the fourth quarter to close the scoring at 41-13. Rice completed 7-of-13 passes for 123 yards and two touch­downs.

EXTRA POINTS: Representa­tives of the Orange, Sugar, Fiesta, Cotton and Hall of Fame bowls attended the game.

When he hit diving receiver Andre Brown for an 11-yard two-point conversion which Walsh unloaded a short lob un­ covered by Irish free safety Pat Terrell. Walsh did not see the Irish receiver head into the corner. The Irish certainly put a scare into Western Michigan especially with what is perhaps the country.

The Irish defensive end Frank Stans Notre Dame recovered four Hurricane fumbles on the afternoon, and took advantage of the Miami turnovers to keep pace with what is perhaps the most explosive team in the country.

Notre Dame is No. 2 and golden again

Irish edge ’Canes, boost title chances

By MARTY STRASSEN
Sports Editor

A season of hype came down to three hours of football, and three hours of Notre Dame football.

The Notre Dame student body came down as well, rushing onto the field to celebrate the 31-30 victory that gave birth to hopes of the next Irish national championship and pushed Lou Holtz’ squad to No. 2 in the nation.

“This was a win by the Notre Dame spirit,” said Holtz after the Oct. 15 contest that boosted the Irish to 6-0 and ended the spirit,” said Holtz after the Oct. 15 contest that boosted the Irish to 6-0 and ended the Notre Dame edge ‘Canes Oct. 15. The win vaulted Notre Dame to the No. 2 spot in the Associated Press college football poll.

Week of hype ends with big win

It was The Big Game with The Big Hype. But after 60 minutes what mattered most was that it was The Big Win.

Several pictures come to mind when one recalls the events of Oct. 15, 1988.

• Frank Stans drilling previously untouchable Miami quarterback Steve Walsh and forcing two fumbles.

“During the game I was thinking ‘this is my chance, this is my chance, this is my chance’,” said Murphy. “I think it’s a great opportunity to get into the starting lineup and take the chance the head coach and his assistants are putting their faith in me.

I’ve been playing behind Junior Erik Madsen, who has been a great pitcher, but I think I can do it too. I think I can be the next great pitcher for the Irish.”

“I just want to get back there and touch him and see if he’s real,” said Stans before the game. He did.

• Jeff “Tree” Alm’s limbs pulling down a low Walsh pass and rejecting another.

“We were always confident,” said Murphy. “We knew we could do it, we knew we could win.

But on the field, we knew we had to execute Saturday afternoon and do it to the best of our abilities.

I think we did that in the second half, and that’s why we won. We showed the Irish fans that they can’t count us out. We have a good offense and a good defense. We’re a complete football team.”

“I can go home (to Florida) and smile again,” said Terrell.

A hevy of forced turnovers for the Irish and Hurricanes alike. A plethora of clutch plays by the Irish and Hurricanes alike. Outstanding college football by the Irish and Hurricanes alike. Another one in the win column for the Irish, and only the Irish.

But long after the videotapes become fuzzy and unclear after incessent playing, images of a proud football team, student body and faithful following will remain.

We fought for our lives in the first half, but in the second half, we dominated the game. We fought for our lives in the first half. At halftime, this was a real football game.

The game appeared to change directions in the first drive of the second half. The Falcons, 5-3, had scored on a three-yard run by fullback Andy Smith with 1:37 left in the first half to pull within a touchdown of the second-ranked Irish.

“We had to go back out there in the second half and make something happen,” said Delferly. “If we could have stopped them and gotten the ball, Notre Dame had given our team the confidence and momentum it needed.”

Notre Dame methodically drove to the Air Force 42-yard line, where Tony Brooks took a screen pass and raced down the left sideline for a touchdown. Reggie Ho’s ensuing extra point gave Notre Dame a 27-13 lead.

“We were always confident,” said Brooks, who led all runners with 85 yards on 14 carries. “We knew we had a good offense and a good defense.”

The win vaulted Notre Dame to the No. 2 spot in the Associated Press college football poll.

Sweep of Miami big step for Irish

When the Notre Dame-Miami baseball series was announced last month, Hur­ricane coach Ron Fraser drew a chuckle by saying Notre Dame would be a great challenge to his team.

“Maybe Fraser knew something after all,” said Murphy.

“It was the Irish who did all the buring in the opener of the two-game series. Notre Dame held a 2-1 lead after six innings, then took advan­tage of six unearned runs in the seventh to take control.

Right fielder James Sass and second baseman Mike Moshier led Notre Dame with three hits apiece, while centerfielder Dan Pel­tier and catcher Ed Lund each added two hits.

Junior Erik Madsen recovered from a rocky start that saw him hit the first five, and four of the first six, Miami batters to step to the plate. The senior right-hander allowed just one run in seven innings to earn the win. Mike Coffey gave up one run in two innings to finish for the Irish.

Joe Grahe, who recorded a 13-5 record for Miami last season, pitched eight innings of one-run ball and did it so well,” said Irish head coach Lou Holtz. “They certainly ran it well in the first half.

The Air Force offense scored all 13 of its points in the first half on 141 rushing yards and kept the game interesting for those brave enough to battle the South Bend drizzle and cold temperatures.

But Notre Dame’s defense came out after halftime with a vengeance, holding Air Force to only 39 yards.

Execution. The Air Force Falcons probably feel as if they witnessed their own in the second half against the Irish last Saturday.

But in reality, it was Notre Dame’s defense that did all the executing Saturday afternoon by holding Air Force to a season low 171 rushing yards.

Air Force came into the game as the nation’s top rushing team, averaging 432 yards on the ground per game. The Falcons were prolific scorers as well, tallying 46.4 points per contest prior to facing the Irish.

And in the first half the Falcons seemed intent upon showing Irish fans that they were not the only ones with a quarterback who could run.

Falcon quarterback Mike Dowis, always a threat to run out of the wishbone formation, had helped the Falcons rack up 640 yards rushing in their vic­tory over Utah the previous week.

“Poor football game, and do it so well,” said Irish head coach Lou Holtz. “They
