Hall presidents approve resolution on formals

By JOHN O'BRIEN
Staff Reporter

The recent uproar over housing for the 1989-90 school year and the Student Senate resolution regarding hall formal requirements versus participation in hall formal rules was the main topics of discussion at the Hall President's Council meeting last night.

The resolution, passed by the Faculty Senate Monday night, states that the University should return the number of formals a dorm may sponsor to last year's total of 2 per semester.

The HPC passed the resolution by a vote of 23 to 1, the only dissenting vote coming from Flanner.

Bob McCauley and Pat Russell, co-presidents of Flanner, said that they would rather have the rule requiring 70 percent participation in hall formals repealed.

"We would like to have both (the 70 percent rule and the limit of 1 formal per semester) repealed, but 2 formals won't do us any good if we can't get 70 percent of our dorm to participate," said Russell.

Senator Tom Rask, one of four authors of the resolution, agreed that the 70 percent rule does pose a problem to larger dorms like Flanner and Grace.

"We have to take each step separately. After this resolution progresses through the proper channels, we can examine the problems with the 70 percent requirement," said Rask. He added that Tom Doyle, student body president, had promised to call a meeting of the Campus Life Council to discuss the resolution if both the senate and HPC approved it.

The controversy over the Office of Student Life's announcement regarding next year's housing policy was addressed by Senior Karen Flaherty.

"I'm pretty satisfied that things won't be disrupted," she said.

Flaherty said, "No one should be forced off-campus and hopefully no one will be forced to switch dorms.

Senior Jeff Bredlove, a member of the committee that formulated the new policy, said that the clause requiring 25 percent of each dorm to be all-male and hopefully no one will be forced to switch dorms.

The resolution was passed by the senate and HPC as approved by the Campus Life Council to address concerns.

Soviets launch shuttle

Associated Press

MOSCOW--The Soviets broke the U.S. monopoly on reusable spacecraft Tuesday by launching their own space shuttle on a three-and-one-half hour unmanned orbital flight that President Mikhail Gorbachev hailed as a major coup for his country.

"The space plane has ushered in a new era in the history of Soviet space exploration," state-run Radio Moscow declared after the 100-ton Buran made two orbits, streaked earthward in a fireball and landed at a specially built runway in Soviet Central Asia on its maiden mission.

The pilotless flight of the Buran, "snowstorm" in Russian, lifts off from its launch pad Tuesday in Baikonur, USSR. The unmanned shuttle, orbited the Earth twice during its three-hour, 25-minute maiden flight.

The Soviet space shuttle Buran, which means snowstorm in Russian, was design to test the shuttle's performance on blastoff, in orbit and on landing.

ND faculty resolved on speaker invitation rules

The Faculty Senate unanimously passed a resolution Monday to help prevent controversy in the future like that caused by George Bush's recent visit.

The resolution was written by Assistant Professor Stephen Fallon and Associate Professor Clark Power both of the Program of Liberal Studies. It asked the university administration and the White Center for Law and Government to place several contingencies on future invitations.

The first condition was that the "University and the not the campaign staffs sets the ground rules for visits by presidential nominees, preferably including questions from students and faculty from across the political spectrum.

The second requirement was that "campaign staffs have nothing to do with ticket distribution or the timing of ticket distribution, and that events be open to all members of the community."

Finally, the resolution requested "that the university administration make every effort to prevent the appearance of a Notre Dame endorsement for any candidate."

Though the acceptance of the resolution does not insure access to "FACULTY,

Estonia split on independence

Associated Press

TALLINN, U.S.S.R.- Estonia's parliament on Wednesday will consider a "declaration of sovereignty" that proclaims the Baltic republic's independence from the Soviet Union in all areas except defense and foreign policy.

Its members also will weigh a related amendment to the Estonian constitution that would bar enforcement of any new Soviet law unless it has been ratified by the Estonian parliament, said Edgar Savisaar, one of the leaders of the Estonian People's Front, the broad-based citizens' group behind the proposal.

Although the People's Front claims the support of the leadership of the Estonian government and the Estonian Communist Party, passage of the proposals is by no means assured. They require a two-thirds majority in the 285-member Supreme Soviet, or parliament, of Estonia.

"I'm not sure they are united," Savisaar said in an interview Tuesday.

Deputies are expected to divide approximately along ethnic lines, as many lawmakers who are ethnic Russians or members of other ethnic groups do not share the Estonians' views.

Ethnic Estonians hold 180 seats in the parliament, but need 189 for a two-thirds majority, according to the People's Front.

Deputies were being intensively lobbied Tuesday as proponents and opponents of the amendments tried to win their votes, said Tarmu Tammer, a Tallinn journalist working with the People's Front.

Savisaar carefully avoided reference to any possibility of resistance to the move from Moscow, and claimed support in the national capital. But when asked directly if he was worried about the possible use of force to halt the Estonian reforms, he said: "We are very worried about our future. At the same time, we are very hopeful."

PLO chief calls for U.S. move in Israel

Associated Press

ALGIERS, Algeria- Palestinian Liberation Organization Chief Yasser Arafat said Tuesday it was up to the United States to make the next move toward Middle East peace now that the Palestinians have formed an independent state that implicitly recognizes Israel.

"The ball is now in the American court," Arafat said a few hours after the Palestine National Council, the PLO's parliament-in-exile, solemnly proclaimed Palestinian independence in a ceremony early Tuesday.

The declaration accepted U.N. Security Council Resolution 242, which implicitly recognizes Israel when it refers to the right of all countries in the region to live within secure and recognized borders.

The proclamation topped the list of issues taken up during the council's four-day special session in Algeria, which ended Tuesday. The 450-member council also voted to form a provisional government at a future date and pledged to restrict guerrilla operations to military targets in Israeli-occupied territories.

ND and Bush: ‘A Modest Proposal’

Now that George Bush and Dan Quayle have been elected as the new leaders of our nation, perhaps we should begin to prepare ourselves for life under the policies that carried them into office. Several changes should be made here at Notre Dame, and we offer the following proposals to the Notre Dame community.

Robert Raphael

A major theme of the campaign was patriotism. Mr. Dukakis was labeled unpatriotic for his veto of a bill requiring school teachers to lead their class in the Pledge of Allegiance. At the risk of sounding harsh, Notre Dame has impressed us as a school lacking real patriotism. We’re not pretending that the pledge should be sworn every day, but it really bothers us that there is only one American Flag on campus, and we can’t even see it from our room in Grace. Further, while there is a crucifix in every classroom, we have never seen a cross (as is expected at a Catholic university, we wonder why there is not a flag there as well). Notre Dame’s total lack of patriotic observance also disturbs us. We don’t even get Labor Day or Veteran’s Day off like the rest of the country, and the only time we sing the national anthem is at football games. However, the Rosary is prayed every day at the Grotto. New, don’t misunderstand us. We wouldn’t say that the country is as important as our Blessed Mother, but we do feel a weekly service before the War (alias Peace) Memorial is in order.

Another campaign promise was “No New Taxes.” Notre Dame, Read My Lips: No tuition increase!” Let’s face it, the administration has acted like a bunch of tax-and-spend liberals. We do not pay too little; they spend too much! They will, of course, argue that they must raise tuition to avoid running a deficit, and unlike President Reagan and his advisors, Notre Dame does not want to see itself bought out by the Japanese. The answer is to cut spending. Obviously, the athletic budget is untouchable. So what’s to be done? We’ve been thinking that, in the spirit of the administration in Washington, the University could cut spending on education and do away with the Center for Social Concerns. The building could be better used by one of the RUTC groups.

On the subject of spending, Notre Dame recently paid $300,000 to regale the Dome. Think of how many “thousand points of light” for the Gorilla that money could have bought. However, it’s a good thing Mr. Dukakis didn’t become president; that budget buster was interested in “200 points of light.”

Another bit issue this year is housing. Why should upperclassmen be guaranteed housing by our University? After all, most Americans don’t enjoy this luxury. Those of us who are unable to obtain housing can sleep on the sidewalks and over the steam tunnels. This would keep down the University’s housing budget while preparing us for the transition into the real world.

On another note, we should consider bringing in lectures in accord with the current thinking in Washington. Perhaps the Law School could sponsor Oliver North speaking on Constitutional Law. Hopefully, the College Republicans will not try to hold all the tickets for this partisan event.

Finally we should be concerned that Monk Malloy, our “kind and gentle” president may not appear tough enough to lead our great University. Therefore he needs a lightweight as vice-president. We could promote Fr. Beauchamp to head basketball coach (maybe we’d even win a few at the NCAs) and make Digger the new veep monster.

We hope that these recommendations can be implemented as soon as possible so that Notre Dame can remain “the envy of the world.” We leave you then with one final thought from our 93 year-old grandmother. If you work hard, maintain a 1.0 GPA, look like Robert Redford, and come from an affluent background, you too can be anything you want to be.

Robert Raphael is a senior majoring in physics and philosophy, and Ted Oberstar is a junior majoring in PLS and theology.

What you see is what you get... or maybe not, especially when you're dealing with an illusionist. Stuart MacDonald and his lovely assistant Lori perform a "Night of Illusion" Thursday at 9 p.m. in Washington Hall. The show is centered around illusion, (hence the title) but that's not all—comedy, suspense, glamour, and music also play a vital role in the production.

Stuart, born in Topeka, Kansas, found his calling early in life and began perfecting his act as a young teen. He studied illusions, sleight of hand, and manipulation until he earned the title "virtuoso." His now famous routine has taken him halfway around the world and landed him a spot in the Society of Magician's Hall of Fame in Hollywood, California.

Lori, the ultimate team player, allows herself to be sliced in three, floats, and sucked through a giant, water-filled tube. Feeling remorse for his dastardly act, however, Stuart, with much swagger and bravado, sacrifices himself and amazingly appears in Lori's place.

For the finale, Lori is sucked through a giant, Batman-like roller to be compressed wafer thin and as flat as old 7-UP. Not to worry, all that needs be done is to add water and you have an instant 3-D woman.

Lori, by all means, is not the only member of the team exposing herself to danger. Stuart, always managing to stay in front of the act, exposes himself in a different manner when he performs his hilarious rendition of a magician's version of a male stripper. Relax, it's just an illusion... or maybe not.

The Notre Dame Chorale and Saint Mary's Women's Choir are keeping busy this week with performances on and off campus. This week's choral events included two concerts by the Notre Dame Chorale and will include a high school women's choir festival at Saint Mary's which starts tomorrow.

Last night the Notre Dame Chorale, conducted by Carl L. Stam, performed a concert at Sacred Heart. Some of the works included Bach's double chorus motet, "Singet dem Herrn ein neues Lied" and four motets by Durufle based on Gregorian chants. There were also other works by Ives, Brahms, Billings, and Distler.

Most recently the Chorale spent a weekend tour in Brookfield, Ill. and performed at Saint Barbara's Church. Stephanie Pile, a member of the chorale, felt that the tour was not only fun but good preparation for the freshmen since it was their first tour of the season.

Several high school women's choirs from Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois will provide musical memories for their former members as part of the fourth annual High School Women's Choir Festival. The event will be hosted by the Saint Mary's College Department of Music on Thursday, November 17 and Friday, November 18 at O'Loughlin Auditorium. The commentators for the event will be Dr. Donald J. Armstrong, Professor of Music, and St. John's University, Dr. Axel Theimer, Associate Professor of Music and Director of Choral Activities at St. John's University and Dr. Sandra Willets, Visiting Professor of Music and Director of Choral Activities at Duquesne University.

Each high school choir will perform for 15-20 minutes and will receive written evaluations from two of the commentators. They will be Calvin and Hobbes.

The schedule of performances for the Saint Mary's College High School Choir Festival is as follows:

Thursday, November 17
9:40 New Prairie High School, New Carlisle, IN.
10:10 West Noble High School, Lionberger, IN.
10:40 & 11:10 W.H. Harrison High School, West Lafayette, IN.
11:40 Providence Catholic High School, New Lenox, IL.
12:10 Saint Mary's College Women's Choir
2:00 Glenbrook South High School, Glenview, IL.
2:30 3:00 New Tree High School, Wimberley, TX.
3:30 East Kenwood High School, Grand Rapids, MI.
4:00 Wayne High School, Fort Wayne, IN.
Friday, November 18
9:40 Northwood High School, Nappannee, IN.
10:10 Goshen High School, Goshen, IN.
10:40 Bellmont High School, Decatur, IN.
11:10 Notre Dame High School, Chicago, IL.
11:40 Hindmarch Central High School, Hinsdale, IL.
12:10 Mason High School, Mason, MI.
2:00 The Saint Mary's College Women's Choir
3:00 Saint Joseph's High School, South Bend, IN.
3:30 Pike High School, Indianapolis, IN.
4:00 Troubadour High School, Monticello, IN.
4:00 River Valley High School, Three Oaks, MI.

All performances will be held at the O'Loughlin Auditorium at Saint Mary's College.

Tennis sends 4 to regionals

Notre Dame's top four women's tennis players have been invited to participate in the ITCA Regional Tournaments near Madison, Wis., in the Midwest's best college tennis event.

Cecilia Cahill, Katie Clark, Tracey Barton and Kristy Doran will compete against 64 of the Midwest's best collegiate players. The Irish have two singles finishers and the number-one doubles team will qualify for the national tournament next February.

All four of the women will compete in the singles draw, while the combinations of Cahill-Barton and Clark-Doran will vie for the doubles crown. Kim Pacella and Ann Bradshaw have been named as alternates and will also attend the meet.

Irish coach Michele Gelfman hopes that the team will continue its recent intense level of play.

"We hit with the best of them at our last meet in Houston," Gelfman said. "I hope we can carry that confidence into this tournament and avenge our earlier losses to Indiana."

Cahill has been seeded fifth, and Gelfman believes she has a good chance of advancing at least as far as the quarterfinals.

"CeCe, and the entire team, will have to take one match at a time," Gelfman remarked. "We're up against the best of the Midwest, and we will have to keep our heads and play our toughest tennis. We'd be foolish to look any further than the first round."

Gelfman feels this tournament will be a big test for Clark-Doran, who are all freshmen.

"With such a young team, this is where our inexperience might show," Gelfman commented. "However, the girls are all playing well."

Gelfman added that if someone finishes in the top three or four, she hopes they will receive at-large invitations to the national tournament.

Crawford works way to walk-on position

"Vintage. That is sophomore Karen Robinson's preseason prognosis for the Notre Dame women's basketball team.

"The Irish have had to shelve hopes for an NCAA bid through the growing years of the program, but like a good wine, the aging process adds experience to women's basketball."

The Irish coaching staff is counting on Buneck, the preseason player of the year in the Midwesters Collegiate Conference, to make more than a modest contribution this year.

"Heidi is going to have to do it all for us this year," said Irish head coach Muffet McGraw. "It's as simple as that. We need her to score about 20 points a game, if not more, and she's got to hit the boards in double figures for us to be successful this year." Kuhns will offer the Irish a dangerous threat from the three-point stripe and around the perimeter as she tallied a three-pointer in each of her last 15 games last year, for an impressive 43% shooting percentage.

Doing without the departure of Steve Nicgorski and Chris Nanni last May to graduation, the walk-ons and other former Notre Dame basketball walk-on for the 1988-89 season. Stephie Carter, a senior from a bastion of hopefuls that evening to be the traditional Notre Dame basketball walk-on for the 1988-89 season.

"I've felt since I've been here that we should have a walk-on to represent the student body," said Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps. "We've been doing this for 18 years now."

"Tim has tried out every year and he's done well in Bookstore, which is another thing we look at. And he went to our summer camp for several years as a kid. So he got just a little wired to Notre Dame and Notre Dame basketball."

Aging process adds experience to women's basketball

"The Irish have had to shelve hopes for an NCAA bid through the growing years of the program, but like a good wine, the aging process adds experience to women's basketball."

Those environs have been familiar ones to Crawford, who last April was named Most Valuable Player in the Bookstore All-Star Game and in his freshman year was named to the all-tournament squad. Crawford has worked diligently on his game and his grades—the accounting major was named to the Dean's List last semester—made his way onto the court, but when eligibility knocked.

"I tried out freshman and sophomore years," said Crawford. "But they really weren't much opportunity with those two guys already on the team. But I went to the Rock everyday to play and lift and played with guys from the team and always tried to improve my game hoping that at some point I could do this."

Besides the springtime laurels, he came to Notre Dame with an impressive list of credentials. Among them are being nominated to the McDonald's All-American high school basketball team, two years as second team all-state in Michigan, two years as academic all-state and a starting spot on both the Basketball Coaches Association on Michigan All-Star Game and the Best of Michigan vs. Best of Iowa contest.

During his senior year in high school, Crawford averaged 24 points and 11 rebounds per outing and led his team to the state's regional finals two years running before bowing out both times to a team led by Temple's sophomore sensation Mark Maron.

"I'll have the best seat in the house for those games," joked Crawford.

Crawford was recruited by Minnesota and Penn State, but fell in love with the Air Force Academy, received an appointment and planned on going there until he was told on June 1 that problems with his hearing would keep him out.

"So there I was without a school. The first place I wanted to go if I couldn't play basketball. I decided to come here a week before school started and decided to just work as hard as I could to make the team."

The work has paid off and he is now doing what he always wanted to do—play for a Division I basketball team.

"So far I'm loving it," said Crawford. "I'm having a great time, and I've learned a lot in the past three weeks about the game of basketball that I didn't do in four years of high school. I'm still trying to get familiar with the strategies and defenses."

"But as far as being the walk-on, it's no different than anybody on scholarship. I'm treated the same and I feel as much a part of the team as anyone else. I put my shorts on and go out at the same time as the starters."

Crawford knows not to expect too much, even though his services become all the more valuable with only 12 team members.

"If you expect too much," said Phelps of a walk-on's status, "you'll get nothing. But on the other hand if you
