Former President Perez has big lead in early returns from Venezuelan election

By Maura Krause

CARACAS, Venezuela. - Former President Carlos Andres Perez was leading his major opponent by a substantial margin and appeared to be heading to victory in Sunday's national election, according to exit polls.

A Perez win would give his center-left Democratic Action Party two consecutive victories during the nation's worst economic crisis in decades.

The Venezeulan and Radio Caracas television networks projected Perez, 66, would beat his principal opponent, Eduardo Fernandez of the Social Christian Party by at least 54 percent to 32 percent, based on partial returns.

The projections were based on an estimated voter turnout of 7.8 million, which would include 15 percent abstention among the more than 9.1 million people registered to vote. There was no margin of error given.

Perez had been expected to win handily in polls taken several weeks before the election. The exit polls were not given a chance to be either of the two big parties.

Venezuelans also were voting for a new National Congress. Up for grabs are 182 seats in the Chamber of Deputies and 44 in the Senate. Perez, a nationalized foreign oil holdings in Venezuela in his 1974-79 presidency, voted shortly after polls opened. He has promised

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina. - The four-day revolt by hundreds of heavily armed soldiers ended Sunday after the army chief agreed to resign and to turn over control to a rebel commander on the orders of Baku's leader.

The army said in a communiqué that the soldiers were holed up at a military base outside the capital. The report said that the soldiers had killed one person and killed two by rebel demands.

A moose convention could be held in Anchorage this holiday season, only the conventioneers aren’t the type who wear red fezzes and nemagets. Alaska’s largest city is brimming with moose—the animal type—this fall. One count estimated there are 900 of them, or 100 more than the total that feasted on urban shrubbery two years ago. “We got a pot full o’ moose around here,” said Mike McDonald, state game biologist. The problem could get worse in the next two months, when moose from the Chugach foothills make their move into the city to escape the snow build-up at higher elevations, McDonald said. Earlier this week, police said they watched a big bull moose stroll across a parking lot and begin to step gingerly over a new Pontiac. The moose dropped a hind foot and denoted the hood. —Associated Press

Engineers should take an ethics course

On the first week of Christmas my professors gave to me: A major structures project, an eight-page ethics paper, a project outline, a design project, and three labs that week. Not to mention four interviews.

Yes, I know you’ve probably had bell weeks that were three times as bad and besides, you were breaking up with your significant other the same day. But most would agree that engineers have one of the heavier workloads at the University.

One of my professors spoke to our class last week on cheating in the classroom. I won’t go into details, but he indicated he saw that it was a problem.

Yes, cheating is a problem in the College of Engineering. Homework assignments are copied routinely. I have seen engineering students cutting through trash cans for computer programs to copy verbatim. Most of the time cheaters don’t have to go to that trouble, though; students will give them the programs anyway. Many of our exams are open book in engineering, but the ones that are closed often aren’t. Ever figure out how many key equations you can jam into a programmable HP with 2K memory?

All in all, I think I’m surprised that more people aren’t caught. All the professors I’ve had have clearly established honor policies. But it’s not easy to figure out who’s copying what when you’re looking at differential equations.

Well I don’t want to beat this to death here! Mostly the workload — many engineers couldn’t get done everything that’s assigned given the time constraints of college life. Engineers aren’t cut-throat because there’s a definite feeling of “us against them.” We’re all in the same boat.

Hopefully the Honor Code will solve the problem. But the same camaraderie that causes the cheating in the first place will probably undermine the Honor Code as well. The “playground ethic” is too strong. Even as I write this column, I don’t see myself turning in offenders. I know intellectually this is wrong, but my conditioning is too strong.

A few engineering students have beat the tattletale convention and said something to other students or professors. Whether something was done or not, I don’t know. But the cheaters are still there.

The problem is, when you copy something that someone else thought about, you don’t learn it. That’s a problem when you’re designing bridges or airplane control circuits.

Preprofessional students are required as part of their major to take an ethics course. Program of Liberal Studies students are as well. No engineering department, to the best of my knowledge, requires any such course. I took an engineering one-credit elective on the subject (which has already been graded, so don’t accuse me of brownnosing) which was attended by eight students out of a class of hundreds.

In engineering, cheating will eventually come back to haunt you. Several American defense contractors are finding that out right now. But more important, cheating in engineering will eventually kill someone. The makers of the Pinto, the original cargo doors of the DC-10, and the A7D aircraft brake have all found that out.

But until Notre Dame wakes up and requires engineers to at least take a look at the implications of unethical behavior in engineering, we probably will still band together against professors for our mutual survival. And some of us will be going too far and copying for individual survival, Honor Code or no. So professors, please, keep an eye on us. I’m not sure we’re up to the task ourselves.

Peres: return of hijackers helps relations with Moscow

JERUSALEM — Foreign Minis- ter Shimon Peres said Sun- day that the Soviet Union's en- thusiastic response to Israel's assur- ances they wouldn't face the day after receiving written as- surances to the Soviet Union Satur- day that Israel agreed to the speedy return of the hijack- ers to Moscow.

The Soviet Union broke diplomat ties with Israel during the 1967 Middle East War, but has gradually warmed relations over the last two years, with the exchange of consular delegations and a liberalization of Jewish emigra- tion permits.

Israeli newspapers also echoed Peres' hopes that the weekend hijacking drama, which involved unusual diplomatic exchanges between the Soviet Union and Israel, would improve ties with Moscow.

Soviets will allow multi-candidate elections for legislature next year

Associated Press

MOSCOW: An unlimited number of candidates for a new national legislature will be allowed to campaign in the official media at state expense early next year, according to an election law published Sunday.

Publication of the law pushed through the Supreme Soviet parliament Thursday by President Mikhail Gorbatchev gave voters their first look at final details of the system under which they will select 1,000 members of a new Congress of People's Deputies on March 26.

The Soviet Union last year began experimenting with allowing more than one candidate in some elections, breaking a tradition of single candidates approved by authorities for their political reliability.

"Any number of candidates for deputy can be registered," the new law says.

"Candidates for people's deputy of the U.S.S.R. from the time of their registration by the election commission have an equal right to speak at pre-election and other meetings, sessions and gatherings, in the press and on television and radio," it says.

The law also says that candidates "do not incur expenses connected with preparation and carrying out of elections." Candidates may have a staff of up to 10 people, should be paid their normal salary while they are campaigning and are allowed free public transportation in their district, except by taxi.

While the new law seems to assure more candidates, it remains an open question whether there would be much of a difference in their views.

The Communist Party still is enshrined in the Soviet Constitution as the guiding force of Soviet society, and the law specifically prohibits candidates from advocating any action that is against the constitution or laws of the Soviet Union.

Gorbatchev, speaking to the Supreme Soviet on Nov. 29, said "a possibility of a real choice is . . . being provided."

"Maximum use should be made of existing possibilities to give every voter knowledge of the candidates. Try as they will, they can't make sure that everybody will come to the meet-the-candidates rallies," Gorbatchev said.

"So a big role is to be played here by radio, television and the press. And indeed there might be something more revealing than public debates in which the candidates parry questions, put forth their views and, if you like, show their worth?" he said.

The law does not put a limit on campaign expenditures, but says a central election commission will be in charge of distributing campaign money for local disbursement.

ND student assaulted near St. Joseph's lake Friday

Observer Staff Report

A Notre Dame student was assaulted on the path around St. Joseph's Lake last Friday night, said Phillip Johnson, assistant director of Security.

The student was near the power plant at 11:30 p.m. when he heard someone call out to him, said Johnson. "As he turned to find the caller, the student was struck by a tree branch and knocked unconscious," Johnson added.

The student was found shortly after the incident by a security officer, and both proceeded to the nearby Security office. No description of the assailant was obtained by Security.

"Security went back to the area to search for the perpetrator or for physical evidence," Johnson said, but none was found. "We ask all students to call the Security office about any suspicious conduct in the area," Johnson added.

The student was taken to University Health Services, examined, and released.

In other Security matters, a group of seven Notre Dame students were apprehended near the basement of Farley Hall after allegedly being spotted in the steam tunnels connecting to the hall.

"We received a call from a security monitor in the women's residence hall," said Johnson. After apprehending the suspects, "we explained to them that that area was not open to the public and presented certain dangers."

Iran-Contra go-between dies in Mexican plane crash

Associated Press

URUAPAN, Mexico - Amiram Nir, the Israeli go-between in secret U.S. arms deals with Iran who died in a light plane crash last week, told people he was in Mexico to buy avocados, police said.

Federal authorities continued Sunday to investigate both the plane crash and Nir's visit to Uruapan, an out-of-the-way city in the western mountains of Michoacan state famed for its avocados and notorious for drug trafficking.

New revelations about Nir's role in the Iran-Contra affair, meanwhile, emerged Sunday in a Washington Post report quoting him as saying in June that a secret U.S.-Israeli agreement authorized counterterrorist operations he supervised with former White House aide Pat Weber. However, Arriaga said, Nir used his own name at the hotel in Uruapan.

Arriaga said police obtained information about Nir's visit from Pedro Curchet, the local agent for Eupasa, which he said employs about 50 people in an avocado-packing operation in Uruapan.

Curchet identified Nir's body in the wreckage of the Aerotaxis of Uruapan Cesna T-210 that went down Wednesday in the mountains outside Ciudad Hidalgo, about 110 miles west of Mexico City.

The pilot also died and three other people were seriously injured. One was a Canadian woman, Adriana Stanton, 25, who said she knew Nir only slightly and the others apparently were only sharing the chartered flight.

Stanton told The Associated Press Thursday that she did not know what Nir was doing in Mexico.

The Mexico City daily La Jornada said Saturday that Stanton was also traveling under an assumed name, Esther Arriaga. The newspaper did not quote a source for the information.

Curchet was one of a party of about eight people from Argentina who had been staying at the hillside hotel since September.

Hotel personnel and police who interviewed Curchet said the visit was Nir's first. Curchet could not be located for comment.

Bhutto names new Pakistani Cabinet

Associated Press

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan -- Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto installed her Cabinet on Sunday, holding the defense and finance portfolios for herself and naming a foreign minister who served under the late President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq.

The moves followed her orders Saturday to free political prisoners convicted under martial law and commute all death sentences. Those orders are expected to be acted on by President Ghulam Ishaq Khan.

In a news conference, Bhutto said the appointment of Sahabzada Yaqub Khan to head the Foreign Ministry is a signal of continuity in Pakistan's stand on the war in neighboring Afghanistan.

Despite her bitter opposition to Zia, Bhutto said during her election campaign that she would maintain his Afghan policy until the fighting stops and the refugees feel safe to go home.

Zia died in an Aug. 17 plane crash, weeks after approving elections for Pakistan. Authorities suspect sabotage in the crash, which also killed U.S. ambassador Arnold Raphel and 28 others. A probe is continuing.

Bhutto, who took the oath of office Friday, stocked her government with stalwarts of her Pakistan People's Party.

SEATTLE. The Vatican is not likely to take further action against Seattle Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen, Father Richard McBrien, chairman of the theology department at Notre Dame, has predicted.

McBrien, a leading liberal theologian, said Saturday he believes the Vatican has had enough of the controversy over Hunthausen's administration, even though conservative Catholics here will continue to complain about what they consider abuses in the archdiocese.

"It will do them no good," McBrien said. "The Vatican does not want to go through this a second time."

McBrien made the comments after speaking at a symposium at Seattle University on authority in the Catholic Church.

In 1986, the Vatican restored authority to Auxiliary Bishop Donald Wuerl in those and other areas. The discipline was unprecedented in the U.S. Church and upset many Catholics.

In 1987, Hunthausen's authority was restored and Wuerl was reassigned. Thomas J. Murphy was appointed as a coadjutor archbishop.

Under that arrangement, Murphy assists Hunthausen but Hunthausen has ultimate responsibility for the archdiocese. Murphy is to succeed Hunthausen when Hunthausen retires.

The right wing in Seattle is in a terrible position right now because they already know the next bishop of Seattle after Hunthausen is not going to be someone to like," McBrien said.

Populist leader Benazir Bhutto, left, was the first to sign national parliamentary rolls during the swearing-in ceremony of newly elected members. Bhutto is the first woman elected leader of a Moslem country.

Gorbachev expected to try to persuade Castro to join Soviet reform movement

Associated Press

MOSCOW -- When President Mikhail Gorbachev meets Cuban leader Fidel Castro later this week, Soviet experts expect him to try to persuade the veteran revolutionary that it's past time for Castro to draw in his horns.

"We are not going to worsen our relations with Cuba," said one Latin American specialist. "But Gorbachev is a very persuasive man, and he will try to explain his intentions."

The trip to Cuba marks the 30th anniversary of the revolution that brought Castro to power in 1959. It's past time for Castro to draw in his horns.

Gorbachev would use his trip to Havana to offer encouragement to the Cubans trying to hammer out a regional peace settlement in Central America. And he is expected to seek support from Castro, who has been openly hostile to the Soviet leader's efforts to encourage individual initiative by enabling enterprises to make profits and start private cooperatives.

But it assumed a flavor more palatable to Washington two weeks ago, when Gorbachev disclosed the visit would be sandwiched between a trip to New York to address the United Nations and meet with President Reagan and President-elect George Bush and a stop in Britain for talks with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and a meeting with Queen Elizabeth II.

The Soviet expert, who agreed to discuss Soviet-Cuban relations on condition he not be identified, said Castro's regime has become not only a financial burden at a time when the Kremlin is trying to divert resources to its domestic needs but a foreign policy liability as well.

The source predicted Gorbachev would use his trip to Havana to offer encouragement to the Cubans trying to hammer out a regional peace settlement in Central America. And he is expected to seek support from Castro, who has been openly hostile to the Soviet leader's efforts to encourage individual initiative by enabling enterprises to make profits and start private cooperatives.

Nor has Castro been sympathetic to the Soviet president's policies encouraging greater openness of expression and a more competitive system of electing party and government officials.

START treaty not likely to result from upcoming summit

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev, who have made arms control history together, are bound to revisit their idea of a dramatic reduction in strategic weapons when they meet over lunch this week, but a nudge forward rather than a breakthrough, will be the most likely to result.

The strategic arms reduction treaty that they have been talking about — the hoped-for centerpiece in Reagan's arms control program — has too many holes in it for Gorbachev control program - has too many holes in it for Gorbachev, who have made arms control agreements while they met earlier this year. "We cannot conclude new strategic arms control agreements while we are talking about - the hoped-for treaty that they have been working on," Kampelman said in an interview last week. "But I don't believe it will come up in a negotiating context. My own judgment is it will come up as a discussion and maybe a quick review of where things stand now."

In a report to Congress on Friday, Reagan accused the Soviet Union of violating existing arms control agreements with the United States. "We cannot conclude new strategic arms control agreements while we are talking about - the hoped-for treaty that they have been working on," Kampelman said in an interview last week. "But I don't believe it will come up in a negotiating context. My own judgment is it will come up as a discussion and maybe a quick review of where things stand now."

The report said that machine early on, freeing the new mainframe for general public use, he said. Spicer said he plans to "move quickly on replacing the current mainframe computer, hopefully having the new (mini-supercomputer) installed before the end of the current academic year." The IBM mainframe computer in the MathComputing Center was introduced in the late 1970's but was acquired by the University around 1984. "This mainframe was far from state-of-the-art when we acquired it and cannot run today's most up to date programs," Spicer said. The mainframe, which is no longer for sale, has little to no book value, he said.

Moreover, Gorbachev is well aware of the fact that the US has been Latin America's richest nation. The standard of living is one of the lowest in the region but it has been reduced by inflation and devaluations since 1982. Since 1984, the nation's income from oil has halved to an expected $7.1 billion this year, while foreign debt payments have increased at a rate of about $1 billion a year during last twelve months. The term debt stands at $33 billion. The depressed economic climate helped lead to one of the most unenthusiastic campaigns in Venezuela's 50 years of democracy. Public rallies drew mainly the party faithful and few curiosity seekers, while many citizens did not want to be bothered. "Whoever wins, there's no solution to the situation," said the 1986.

There is a grim reality of college life that you may or may not be acquainted with. Typing.

No, make that hours of typing. Precisely why you should consider a Macintosh™ computer.

With programs like WriteNow and Microsoft Word, you can compose, edit, move paragraphs, and change type sizes and styles with one finger. Which can come in very handy. (Especially if that’s the way you type.) And that’s just one example of how Macintosh helps students work smarter, quicker and more creatively.

The good news is, with Macintosh you don’t have to know anything about computers to use one.

The better news is, you don’t have to know anything about white out, either.

There is one thing some people might dislike about their jobs: the commute they have to go and from work each day. One visiting professor in the American Studies department has a longer commute than most people do.

Michael Novak, visiting Welsh American Studies Professor, flies to South Bend from his home in Washington D.C. every Wednesday morning and flies back two days later. In between, he teaches two classes: “The Rise of Neoconservative Thought in America,” and “Aristotle’s Politics.”

Novak works at the American Enterprise Institute, a think tank in our nation’s capital, when he is not teaching. He admits he gets tired of the traveling, but he finds teaching at Notre Dame to be worthwhile for various reasons.

“Teaching has revived me in a way,” he said. “It is good because it makes you explain your own point to others.”

Novak also enjoys being on campus because he spent his high school years here. “I arrived in August 1947, lived in Holy Cross Hall, studied in the seminar, and played a lot of football,” he reminisced.

From the seminary, Novak went on to study in the Holy Cross Brothers’ Eastern Province and was chosen to study in Rome. “I spent two years there and was feeling restless and uncertain about ordination,” he said. Consequently, he left Rome, and after one and a half years at a D.C. college, knew it was time to leave.

“I wanted to write fiction and be involved in politics. I couldn’t do all that I wanted to while representing a religious order,” he explained. With one hundred dollars, Novak went to New York and started writing. Book reviews, short articles, a novel, and some political speeches proved to be the staff from which Novak was able to make a living.

“I always wanted to be a writer,” he said. With this move, Novak achieved one of his lifelong goals.

A masters from Harvard in the history and philosophy of religion and a brief teaching stint at Stanford followed this period of Novak’s life. Anxios to return to the East, however, Novak left Stanford to teach in New York.

“This was 1968 when students were very radical in their political views. I was too. Almost everyone was.”

Novak did not retain his radical views for very long. “Seeing how outrageous all the radicals were dehumanized me. It taught me how elastic the words of the left are and how they can be perverted by a few,” said Novak.

“I started criticizing the excesses of the left, and was attacked as a right-wing. Gradually he was excommunicated from certain intellectual circles.

It was at this time that Novak began to argue that the key political issues which should be addressed are the family and the community. Today Novak continues to defend these issues. Reflecting upon the current state of American politics, he said, “The party which best defines what is needed by the family and the community will dominate politics for the next fifty years.”

In regards to the Democratic party, Novak thought during his post-radical days that it was becoming too much the party of the “New Class” and no longer the party of the people. Today, he believes, “The Democrats are not doing very well. Even though the old Democratic ideas are good ones, the new Democrats forget them,” said Novak. Novak’s plans for the future do not include more time at Notre Dame, but do include, possibly, a new book on this topic. “I may do one here on how to rescue the Democratic party.” He explained. “We shouldn’t abandon the institution but should try to revitalize it.”

U.S. health care wrongly slandered

Dear Editor:

After reading Michael Schadek's recent Viewpoint column of Oct. 27, I felt compelled to reply. Schadek strung together several issues in his brief, critical and unfair essay on U.S. health care. Proponents of the national health plan, he claims, are trying to impose a "health care system on the campus, through letters, is encouraged Garry Trudeau

Annesty organizes letter-writing drive

Dear Editor:

As final exams approach, I find myself spending more and more time dreaming of Christmas and planning to be a free man. It must be very difficult for Mittle Henry Fazie. I'm sure he does not fantasize of such celebrations. Indeed, he probably has just one wish this Christmas—to spend it with his family as a free man.

Mr. Fazie is facing a Christmas that neither you nor I could imagine, one spent alone in prison, with no charge against him, and no possibility for release. He is just one of the hundreds of South Africans currently being detained in state prisons under Section Three of the State of Emergancy Regulations. This measure allows for government officials to imprison individuals indefinitely without charges being filed or a trial initiated. Under this order Mr. Fazie was arrested on Aug. 5, 1986.

Anniny International is aware of Mr. Fazie's plight and has been working since the 1986 arrest to free him. He is just one of the approximately 5,000 political prisoners that Amnesty International has contacted. It is our dream to see Mr. Fazie released.

Cell phone dialogues in United States

Dear Editor:

It is our dream to see him released before we graduate. He is one of our major priorities along with a second goal of rallying support for an upcoming bill to prohibit the use of capital punishment in the United States.

Annniny International, with the help of the student Government, Campus Ministry, and the Center for Social Concerns, has organized a Christmas card campaign to share our spirit, our peace, and our optimism with Mr. Fazie. Our goal is for every student, faculty member, and employee of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's to send his or her best wishes to Mr. Fazie. And let him know that he is in the hearts and minds of thousands of people this Christmas. Secondly, we hope to draw attention to Mr. Fazie's unjust imprisonment and to indirectly, apply pressure upon the South African government to either bring charges against him or to release him.

All week, tables will be set up in the dining halls on both campuses and pre-addressed, stamped Christmas cards will be available for all to wish Mr. Fazie a happy holiday season; we will also be collecting cards in the dorms. We encourage everyone to sign their name to a card and extend to Mr. Fazie a personal season's greetings.

Shell affair raises ethical questions

Dear Editor:

Recently, Associate Provost Oliver Williams addressed the Student Senate (The Observer, Nov. 29, 1988), to defend the University's continued investment in South Africa. In the course of his statement, Williams produced a letter from James Armstrong, a fellow corporate ethicist with whom he has been working to produce an anti-sanctions strategy. Without my serendipitous receipt of Armstrong's letter to Williams and Armstrong's persistent denials reveal so much about these people that we operate and, accordingly, what they are used to getting away with. I have now been shifted to the Center for the Notre Dame project. The initiatives of the Notre Dame project mean what it says. Pagan is the public relations firm through which corporate funds were made available to pursue an anti-sanctions strategy. Armstrong was at the time employed by Pagan and was responsible for that strategy, particularly as it targeted international delegations and educational institutions.

What is chilling in this Shell/Pagan affair is that what they are used to getting away with. Without my serendipitous receipt of Armstrong's letter to Williams and Armstrong's attempts to mislead Notre Dame might well have succeeded. The affair also raises some troubling questions about Oliver Wil­liams' modus operandi as a high profile executive officer at our University.

My own recent receipt of a considerable amount of documentation—minutes and letters—Williams and Armstrong's attempts to mislead Notre Dame might well have succeeded. The affair also raises some troubling questions about Oliver Wil­liams' modus operandi as a high profile executive officer at our University.

The Observer beat Chargers; Tampa Bay stuns Bills

The Cincinnati Bengals moved into the playoffs and closer to the home-field edge throughout the AFC playoffs with a 27-10 victory over the San Diego Chargers on Sunday. While the Bengals clinching their first playoff spot six years ago, the Buffalo Bills, the only other conference team already into the playoffs, were upset 10-6 by Tampa Bay. That left both the Bills and Bengal with 11-3 records.

If the teams finish tied for the best record in the AFC, Cincinatti gets the advantage because it cause them Buffalo last week. A victory next Sunday at Houston would give the Bengal the AFC Central title.

Elbert "Ikey" Woods ran for a career-high 141 yards and two touchdowns for the Bengals, setting a team record with 13 rushing touchdowns. Boomer Espisio, the NFL’s top ranked passer, completed 10 of 16 passes for 178 yards and two touchdowns to complement Woods’ running. San Diego is now 4-10.

Buccaneers 10, Bills 5

Vince Testaverde, the league leader in interceptions, didn’t commit a turnover for the first time this season and scored on a 4-yard run. The host Bucs collectors were losers of seven of their last eight games. Buffalo lost its second straight after a seven-game winning streak.

Testaverde the 1986 Heisman Trophy winner has a NFL-high 31 interceptions.

Giants 44, Cardinals 7

Phil Simms, ignoring a sore shoulder that sidelined him last week, threw two touchdown passes to Stacy Robinson as New York moved to the top of the NFC East. The Giants, 9-5, can win the division by taking their final two regular-season games.

Phoenix, 7-7 after losing its third in a row, has only an out side chance at a wildcard with a win.

Redskins 20, Eagles 19

Washington, 7-7 eliminated from the division race, damaged Philadelphia’s chances with a late rally. Chip Lohmiller’s 44-yard field goal with one second remaining converted the comeback after the Redskins trailed 19-10 in the fourth quarter.

er with a bruised shoulder, returned in the second quarter and finished with 18 comple tions in 30 attempts for 206 yards. The Eagles are 8-6.

Vikings 45, Saints 3

Minnesota’s stingy defense returned offenses, too, as Carl Lee and Jesse Solomon returned interceptions for touchdowns. The Vikings tended their string of not allowing a touchdown in 17 quarters in winning their second straight game - Minnesota has out scored its last four opponents 123-9 and its last five 167-36.

Raiders 21, Broncos 20

The Raiders’ win threw the AFC West into a three-way tie at 7-7. Denver also Seattle and have that record.

Greg Toddman returned an interception of a pass by John Elway 89 yards for a touchdown and sacked the Denver quarterback twice. Townsend also recovered a fumble for a touchdown last week at Seattle.

Browns 24, Cowboys 21

At Cleveland, the Browns sent Dallas a team-record 12th defeat this season in front of a row. Bernie Kosar passed for 386 yards and three touch downs, including two less than two minutes apart in the fourth quarter.

In other games, it was Kansas City 36, New York Jets 34, Indianapolis 31, Miami, 38, Detroit 34, New England 13, Seattle 7, San Francisco 33, Atlanta 3, Cleveland 24, Dallas 21.

Sunday night, Pittsburgh was at Holston.

On Monday night, Chicago is at the Los Angeles Rams.

Cardinals take it to Hoosiers

By THERESA KELLY
Assistant Sports Editor

INDIANAPOLIS — It won't be a typical Bobby Knight Indiana basketball team that visits Notre Dame Tuesday night, but it will be a hungry one.

The Hoosiers were destroyed by Louisville 101-79 Saturday in the first game of the Big Four Classic. You know something is amiss when a Knight-coached defense gives up 100 points, especially when it was the second time this year an opponent had cleared the century mark. Before that, the last time it happened was 17 years ago.

"This was by far our best game," said Louisville head coach Denny Crum. "We haven't been playing well. We talked about having fun, playing this game like we did in practice, and we won with maximum effort.

"We got off to a bad start," Knight said. "We had to really work to get back in it. We didn't play well for much of the first half. We didn't handle the ball well. Now we just have to go back and see if we can get started."

Louisville jumped out to a big lead before Indiana was even in the game, beating the Hoosiers down the floor to take a 9-0 lead with less than two minutes gone in the contest. The Cardinals dominated most of the first half, leading by 19 with 12 minutes to go before the Hoosiers recovered to get with 10 at the half, 51-41.

Indiana cut the lead to nine on a jump shot by freshman star Eric Anderson on a pass from Chuckie White, but the Cardinals would not let Knight's crew get any closer.

"Our defense picked up in the second half," Knight said, "but we never got closer than two points. It was a different tempo for us, and we're not used to playing at that pace."

White led the Hoosiers with a game-high 20 points, followed by Jay Edwards with 16. Pervis Ellison led Louisville with 19, followed by LaBradford Smith with 17. The Cardinals were much quicker than the Hoosiers, who had 22 turnovers, and no uncharacteristic 18 turnovers, 14 in the first half.

The Louisville Cardinals slammed the Indiana Hoosiers Saturday in the opener of the Big Four Classic, 101-79. The Cardinals dominated the opening minutes and the Hoosiers never got closer than eight points.

The Irish at halftime with nine points in the third quarter, led by a game-high 16 from White.

But Ellery's most important stretch came early in the second half, when Kentucky ached a 15-0 run behind 10 points on Derrick Miller's three-pointer with 14:45 to go.

Ellery reentered the game after an Irish timeout and took control. He backed in against Teron Pfelder and was fouled as he hit a turnaround jumper. The free throw increased Notre Dame's lead to 14 at 14:14.

Ellis then stole the ball and pushed it upcourt to Ellery, who dished inside for an easy tip-in. Things were looking up for the Cards.

"He's been shooting well all fall," Phelps explained. "We want him to shoot the threes. He's been Springing from the outside knowing Kentucky basketball, he was ready to play today."

But Ellery was far from ready to play earlier in the week. He missed practices Tuesday, Wednesday and part of Thursday because of back spasms. His status for Friday was uncertain. Phelps might hold him back in Saturday's Big Four Classic.

"I thought Coach was going to hold me back a little bit and save more for Tuesday against Indiana," Ellery said.

Instead, the former high school Player of the Year in the state of Kentucky played 18 minutes and was one of the best performers against a school that did not even recruit him.

But Kentucky's lack of interest was better than Ellery while he was leading the state in scoring as a high school senior. When asked if he was a Ken­

Iucky basketball fan as a youth, Ellery shook his head and responded, "That's because I have my own school in the Heights."

Aikman, Peete, Walsh can't pass by Sanders

NEW YORK - Ok, Barry Sanders finally said it: "the Heisman Trophy really is a big deal."

He may even have meant it. The weight of the 5th annual Heisman Trophy, which he won a few hours earlier, and the fact he was playing thousands of miles from home didn't seem to bother the poker-faced Sanders.

He shrugged off the pressure the way he sheds would-be tacklers, carrying 42 times for 257 yards and four touchdowns. Oklahoma State University defensive line, fullback Garrett Limbrick - his lead blocker - and Sanders' parents, William and Shirley Sanders of Wichita, Kan., which declared Jan. 6 as Barry Sanders Day - for being so inspirational in my life and bringing me up the way they know I should be brought up.

As usual, Sanders let his legs do the talking. The 5-foott-8, 197-pound tailback, who was hardly recruited in high school, set NCAA records that may stand for a long time - 2,342 yards (the old mark was 2,149), 257 against Texas Tech. Sanders received 559 first-place votes - ballots were received from 721 of the 913 Heisman electors - 77 second-place votes and 47 third-place votes for 1,878 points on a 3-2-1 basis.

SMC hoops wins Roundball Classic championship

By HEATHER ATKINSON
Sports Writer

For the first time in its seven years of existence, the Saint Mary's basketball team captured the championship title of the annual Roundball Classic.

Friday night the Belles executed their pressure defense and had several fast breaks to quickly pull ahead of Mundelein College. Three minutes into the game Saint Mary's had already gained a significant lead which increased to a twenty point lead over Mundelein with a score of 46-26. During the second half Saint Mary's put its reserve players into the game and Mundelein attempted a comeback but the Belles offense improved during the second half and they were able to capture the championship title with a final score of 85-78.

The championship game against Walsh College provided a more intense competition for the Belles. Throughout the game both teams charged into the lead several times breaking tied scores. Neither team lead by more than a few points during both halves.

Saint Mary's missed many free throw opportunities which could have given them a comfortable lead several times during the game. However, the Belles' offense improved during the second half and they

Saint Mary's was Julie Radke with 23 points during both halves. Jennifer Harte was the other player in double figures with 10. Harte also led the team in rebounds, pulling down 10.

The Belles will play Tuesday at Saint Joseph's at Romeoville. St. Joseph's finished eighth in the nation last year and should be one of the better teams on Saint Mary's schedule as they gave their entire line up back this year.

The championship game was not enough as Saint Mary's attempted a comeback but it was not enough as Saint Mary's advanced to the finals, winning 85-78. "Our young people really needed to get a chance to play in that competition," said Belles' head coach Marvin Wood. "All of our players got a chance to play and contributed heavily to our offense with good balanced scoring."

"I knew it was going to be a very physical game," said Wood. "We had to control the tempo and ours came in spirits, but we did have control at the end and that made the difference."

Coach Wood said he was very pleased with their first place finish. Saint Mary's has been the runner-up several years in the tournament, but has never before come out on top. Wood says that in his coaching career, this season has had the best start so far.

"I give our girls a lot of credit."

Irish hockey continues slide, drops two games to M-D

Who is Joe Burton and why is he the Notre Dame hockey team so eager to see him leave South Bend?

Burton, Michigan-Dearborn's senior center, scored 16 seconds into overtime Saturday night to lift the Wolves to a 6-2 win over Notre Dame in a physical game marked by 22 penalties.

"We are permeable on defense," said Irish coach Ric Schafer after Saturday's game. "Any opponent with quickness and speed, they're going to be able to score. We're having trouble scoring ourselves."

The Irish drew first blood Saturday when junior wing Tim Kuehl scored a shorthanded goal just 59 seconds into the contest. But Michigan-Dearborn struck right back, scoring twice in a span of 3:31 to take a 2-1 lead into the first intermission.

The Wolves' senior captain Tim Osburn answered Kuehl's shorthanded goal with one of his own at 15:41 of the first period. Osburn stole the puck from goalie David Bankoske, slipped behind the Irish net and stuffed the puck behind goaltender Lance Madson.

Defensenman Steve Dawson blasted a shot by Madson from the top of the left faceoff circle with 48 seconds remaining in the period to put the Wolves on top after the first stanza.

Center Larry Pilut stretched Michigan-Dearborn's lead to 3-1 six minutes and 56 seconds into the second period before the Irish batted back.

Bob Bilton and Pat Arendt threaded the Wolves' net one minute and 23 seconds apart to tie the game after two periods. On Arendt's goal, defenseman Thomas Fitzgerald centered the puck in front of the net for Rob Bankoske. Bankoske's shot was blocked by goalie Dave Church, but Arendt promptly knocked it in the rebound for the Irish goal.

Michigan-Dearborn regained the lead again at 7:14 of the third period when defenseman Thom Madden scored a power-play goal from just inside the blue line with 14 seconds remaining in Lou Zadora's interference penalty.

Notre Dame left wing Michael Curry then set the stage for Burton's heroics by tying the game after two periods. On Arendt's goal, defenseman Thom Madden scored a power-play goal from just inside the blue line with 14 seconds remaining in Lou Zadora's interference penalty.

INDIANAPOLIS—The Notre Dame basketball team didn’t waste any time in Saturday’s Big Four Classic victory over Kentucky.

The Irish (2-0) were quick to prove that they could play well in big games with an 81-65 win over the Wildcats (2-3) in a game that saw the Irish establish the tempo early to take the lead and then coast to an easy win over the surprise Head Coach Digger Phelps.

“I guess I have to say that I’m as surprised as you are,” Phelps said, adding, “I just don’t know how good we are. I’m surprised that we were up at 13 at the half, and even more surprised we won in double figures.”

Phelps wasted no time in showing off his impressive freshman class, starting LaPhonsa Ellis in front of a crowd of 42,214 at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis. Ellis was a force inside, grabbing 14 rebounds. With 8:09 to go in the first half, Phelps had put every freshman in the game.

“I’ve only played two games,” Ellis said. “I think I’ve played pretty well, but I’ve got a long way to go.”

The Notre Dame sophomore had a great game, scoring 15 points, while hitting 3-of-6 from beyond the three-point stripe, in Saturday’s 81-65 win over Kentucky Saturday at the Big Four Classic.

Also in the game Saturday over the Nittany Lions of Penn State. Molly Mahoney details this big win below.

Speed, rebounding leave Phelps surprised

Saturaday night, they came in like a lion but out like a lamb.

The 34- Nitany Lions of Penn State came roaring into the JACC bearing their claws, but the Notre Dame women’s volleyball team clipped those claws and sent the Lions home whimpering after beating them in four games, 15-13, 15-10, 15-6 and 15-10.

The win catapults the Irish into the nation’s Sweet Sixteen and sets up a showdown in Champaign, Ill., against fourth-ranked Illinois, which knocked out fourth-ranked Louisville in Saturday night’s game against the Illini, 15-11, 15-8 and 15-4.

The Lions came to South Bend with more wins than any other team in the tournament, but the Irish made sure they didn’t leave with the one win they needed to continue tournament play.

In the first game at the JACC, Notre Dame slowly established an 8-3 lead in the early going. But Penn State refused to lay down and die, as they scratched and clawed their way to a 10-10 tie.

Eventually, the net play of seniors Mary Kay Waller and Zanette Bennett proved too much for Penn State as Notre Dame cam away with the first game.

In game two, the Irish once again came out strong to take a 9 lead. And again, the home team added a little suspense to the game, as they allowed Penn State to capitalize on their errors and came back to within two at 12-10.

But the tandem towers, Waller and Bennett, kept the Irish playing confidently as they claimed another game. It looked as though Notre Dame would keep its momentum going in the third game as junior Kathy Cunningham got the starting nod.

Win gives Irish third at Virginia tourney

BY GREG GUFFEE
Sports Writer

After a disappointing loss to Georgetown Friday, the women’s basketball team salvaged third place in the fifth annual Inventors Classic at the University of Virginia with an 85-81 overtime win Saturday afternoon over Arizona.

That victory marked the second time this season the Irish have shown they can be competitive against a top team. The first was their 112-109 win over Arizona at Madison Square Garden.

National power Virginia won the tourney, defeating Arizona Friday and then routing the Hoyas, 104-42, in the final. The Irish lost 70-69 to Georgetown in the opening round.

The brightest spot in the tourney for Notre Dame was the play of sophomore point guard Karen Robinson. In the two games, Robinson tallied 44 points, hit 7-of-9 free throws and made the all-tournament team. The tourney marked only the second and third games at the point guard spot for Robinson, who seems to be making smoothly.

“She’s doing a great job right now,” second year coach Muffet McGraw said. “She’s doing the job scoring and running the break. We’re very pleased with her right now.”

The Irish, who led the nation in field goal accuracy last season, shot 58 percent against the Hoyas. They shot 72 percent from the floor in the first half, but still trailed 40-36 at the intermission.

In the overtime, Notre Dame scored four quick points to assume a 77-73 lead. After the teams exchanged baskets, senior Heidi Bueck scored inside and then Robinson hit a 16-foot bank shot to give the Irish an 81-73 lead.

Arizona forward Amy Gamble cut the lead to 81-79 with 19 remaining, but Kruis Davis responded with a hoop for the Irish and Robinson put the game away with two free throws in the closing seconds.

McGraw said that while the scoring totals may not reflect any impact, the key to the win was the play off the bench of Dondrea Toney.

“She came in and played 15 minutes of great defense for us,” McGraw said. “Our defense was not playing well.”

Bueck led the Irish in scoring with 21 points followed by Robinson’s 22. Davis chipped in 14 points and 11 rebounds while Sara Liebscher added 12 points. Gamble led all scorers with 36 points.

In Friday night’s opener, the Irish mounted a comeback in the last three minutes. They reduced a 62-47 deficit to 64-40, but the Hoyas nailed six of seven free throws.
