Former CIA agent Agee discusses covert activity

By JOHN O'BRIEN
Staff Reporter

Phillip Agee, a 1956 Notre Dame graduate and a former CIA agent, discussed covert intelligence activities, criticized the CIA and the presidential administrations under which it has operated.

“The CIA doesn’t have a policy of its own and it shouldn’t. It was formed to serve the government and its policies are dictated by the current administration,” Agee said.

Agee said that the original purpose of the agency as an means of gaining information has been altered to concentrate on covert activities which he called “murderous” and “illegal.”

“The money you are paying to the government in the form of taxes is being used to murder,” Agee said.

Agee gave a history of numerous covert activities which the CIA has carried out from influencing Italian elections in the late 1940’s to its current involvement in El Salvador and its backing of the Contras in Nicaragua.

Tank repaired on shuttle Discovery

Associated Press

HOUSTON - The lights came back on the Discovery space shuttle Wednesday after Mission Control apparently fixed a troublesome hydrogen tank and told the astronauts not to worry about conserving energy.

Discovery’s five astronauts had switched off unnecessary lights and computers because of concern about erratic pressure readings from one of three hydrogen tanks aboard the shuttle. The tank, which helps supply electricity, was taken out of service Tuesday while engineers studied the problem.

The view turned to the crew back on Wednesday morning but used only one of its two heaters. Mission Control told the crew that early pressure readings showed the tank was working properly.

“That’s good news to hear,” replied Discovery commander Michael Coats.

The hydrogen is combined with oxygen in the fuel cells to produce electricity for shuttle systems, with water as a byproduct.

Ground controllers were concerned that without use of the third hydrogen tank, there may not be enough electricity to support a five-day flight, plus two days for contingencies.

But flight director Granvil Pennington said the problem seemed fixed, meaning Discovery is headed for a 6:34 a.m. EDT liftoff Saturday at Kennedy Space Center.

The five astronauts went about the business of monitoring experiments and trying to photograph weapons systems damaged areas of the Earth, including scars from a recent fire in the Florida everglades and an erupting volcano in Guatemala.

They also conducted medical tests expected while floating on the flight deck, Dr. James M. bagian took Coats blood pressure, checked his pulse and pressed a small device to his temple to measure the blood flow in his head.

The tests were to help determine what effect zero gravity has on blood flow.

Mission Control awoke the crew with a full brass band rendition of the Marine Corps Hymn.

“We got two Marines stand­ up here,” joked Coats, a Navy captain. “What do we do now?”

Astronauts James F. Buchli and Robert C. Springer are Marine colonels. Bagian is a physician, and pilot John E. Blaha is an Air Force colonel.

Discovery’s primary mission—deployment of a $100 million communications satellite—was completed Monday after several hours of troubleshooting.

The Tracking and Data Relay Satellite completes a network that will allow ground controllers almost unbroken radio contact with shuttles and other satellites. The satellite deployed Monday and another launched last year will provide the nearly continuous communications the shuttle needs to maintain a rendezvous above the Earth which will act as an in-orbit spare.

The Discovery flight is the first of seven shuttle missions planned this year and the 28th overall. It is also the third shuttle flight since the Challenger exploded and killed its seven astronauts more than three years ago.

Cancellation stamp for National Champs

By RON SEVERINO

The U.S. Postal Service headquarters in Washington, D.C. has given the South Bend post office permission to issue a green pictorial cancellation stamp in honor of the University of Notre Dame football team’s 1988 National Championship season.

The cancellations will only be available Friday, March 17, between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. at Fighting Irish Station at the Century Center in South Bend, according to Paul Sniadecki, director of marketing at the South Bend post office.

The only requirement for posting the stamp is that the envelope or postcard must be postmarked no later than March 17.

Irish football fans can obtain a commemorative postcard with the team picture on the front with the scores of the 1988 football season and Knute Rockne stamp cancelled with the green pictorial on the back, said Sniadecki. The cards, also available in the Century Center, will cost $1 and proceeds will benefit the Notre Dame Club of St. Joseph County scholarship fund.

St. Patrick’s day salute to National Champions

In South Bend: trophy to be presented by AP

A green postage cancellation will be offered in South Bend Friday to honor the Notre Dame football team.

“The Notre Dame marching band will then perform until the 5:30 p.m. entrance of the team, cheerleaders, and Irish Guard. Remarks about the championship football season will then be made by Indiana dignitaries including South Bend Mayor Joe Kernan, Mishawaka Mayor Bob Beutler, U.S. Congressman John Hiler, and Indiana Secretary of State Joseph Hogsett, said Dobski.

After spotlighting the 1988 team, the ceremony will conclude with a speech on the championship season by Head Coach Lou Holtz and a presentation of the highlight film to each member of the team, said Dobski.

“We hope our area is part of this football team,” said Holtz. “Although the intent of this celebration is for the community to formally salute Holtz and the football team, Holtz said of the celebration, ‘They don’t owe us a thing. What we accomplished is because of our hard practice. They’ll be surprised to find out that we are going there to thank them, not be thanked by them.’ ”

The Irish football team began Spring practice Wednesday, March 15, and Holtz stressed that St. Patrick’s Day will be one last celebration for the team before it lays 1988 to rest and concentrates on the new season.

“After March 17, hopefully I won’t be able to remember who won (the national championship) last year,” said Holtz.

J-Council chooses new coordinator for 1989–90

Vincent Sanchez, a sophomore in Keenan, was elected the new Judicial Council Coordinator at a meeting Wednesday night.

“I’m looking forward to a real productive year and getting a lot of people motivated,” Sanchez said shortly after his election.

Sanchez said, “The biggest problem with this group right now is that not too many people know who we are. We’ve made a pretty good name this year, and I hope more people get interested in order for the Judicial Council to become a more active body within the framework of the University.”

Sanchez pointed out that there are problems within the council attendance being a large one, but he noted that they are closer to a better rapport with the administration than last year.

“Student Affairs is really willing to listen to us,” Sanchez said. He hopes that soon more responsibility will be given to the students. Sanchez’s term is for the 1989–90 academic year.
McFarlane testifies that Reagan approved secret aid to Contras

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- President Reagan in 1985 not only approved a secret pact to give Honduras more than $110 million for helping the Nicaraguan Contras but he also telephoned Honduras' president when the Honduran military delayed an ammunition shipment to the rebels, the Oliver North jury was told Wednesday.

Reagan made a note of his call to Roberto Suazo that said the Honduran "will call his military commander to tell him to deliver the ammunition," former national security adviser Robert McFarlane testified at the Oliver North trial.

The ammunition then got to the guerrillas.

Under questioning by defense lawyers, McFarlane detailed how Reagan initialed a plan in mid-February 1985 that resulted in Honduras getting speeded-up deliveries of rifles, ammunition and machine guns. It was a "quid pro quo" arrangement that Reagan was advised would "provide incentives" to the Hondurans for helping out.

"You're going to give them tens of millions of dollars to cooperate?" North lawyer Brendan Sullivan asked McFarlane.

"Yes," the witness said.

"There is nothing dirty about quid pro quo, is there?"

"No."

"Later, reading from a previously secret memo, Sullivan referred to "$75 million in economic assistance." He also referred to $35 million in expedited military aid.

The matter was so sensitive, McFarlane acknowledged under questioning, that the arrangement was discussed verbally by the U.S. ambassador in Honduras with Suazo and was not given to him in writing.

North's lawyers say the Reagan administration had a policy of hiding such arrangements with other countries to support the Contras.

Bayh named as defendant in teen jail cell death suit

Associated Press

NEW ALBANY, Ind. - Gov. Evan Bayh was among 32 defendants named Wednesday in a $17.2 million federal lawsuit stemming from the death of a Seymour, Ind. teen-ager in a police holding cell.

Jonathan Reese Mitchell, 17, died of hanging in a holding cell at the Seymour police headquarters a few hours after being arrested Feb. 4 at a local arcade.

The suit seeks an injunction preventing the city of Seymour and Jackson County from housing juveniles in jail until the conclusion of the lawsuit. It also asks the court to require the city and county to rectify what are referred to as unconstitutional conditions at the jail, such as jailing juveniles with adult offenders.

The suit also alleges Mitchell was arrested for public intoxication and resisting arrest without probable cause and that the arresting Seymour police officer used unnecessary force.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in New Albany by Jeffersonville attorneys Larry Wilder and David Mosley.

Gorbachev works to stop Soviet food shortages

Associated Press

MOSCOW. President Mikhail S. Gorbachev called on the Communist Party Wednesday to take urgent steps to ease chronic food shortages—the Soviet Union's "biggest wound"—but he indicated the problem would exist for years.

The party's policy-making Central Committee began a two-day meeting largely devoted to agricultural reform, including a search for ways to increase the food supply and improve traditionally dreary rural life.

The 58-year-old Kremlin leader, himself the son of a southern Russian peasant, said conditions in some regions of the countryside were at a "critical level," with mass migration of their population to cities.

Productivity on Soviet farms is so low, he said, the Soviet Union still must go abroad to buy "large quantities of grain, meat, fruits, vegetables, sugar, vegetable oil and some other staples" to meet domestic demand.

Gorbachev, once the party's overseer for agriculture, called for "an agrarian policy that will be able to restore the peasant as the master on the land, and dependably supply the food problem."

"Further delay in this matter is simply inadmissible," he said.

Among the measures endorsed by Gorbachev was an "extensive transition to leasing," or allowing work collectives and individuals to work state-owned farmland in exchange for a fee. He also said "more flexible prices" for crops purchased by the state would go into effect Jan. 1, 1990.

Before Gorbachev spoke on farm policy, the 39-member Central Committee moved to eject its top leaders, including Gorbachev, to the new parliament—staging an open revolt against the Central Committee collective and state farms that have been the backbone of the Soviet state agriculture chief.

"There is a schizophrenia solution." Agee dispelled accusations that he had endangered lives by publishing the names as "nothing you can do, but active opposition to the CIA's crimes can be successful," he said.

"We didn't have speakers then were very blandly patriotic, a conformist," Agee said of the CIA's crimes.

"Instead, Ligachev has emphasized collective farming—"Another key to producing more."

"The food problem is likely to continue from page 1 of the policies," Agee said of publishing the names.

"There is a schizophrenia here," he added. "Notre Dame has an Institute for Peace Studies, yet they give an honorary degree to a President who is in charge of death squads in El Salvador," he said.

"I came out of this University with no political experience. We didn't have speakers like me here in my time. The speakers then were very pious, vivid Catholic teaching I grew up on," Agee said.

Report gives figures on life expectancy of Americans

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—White Americans, benefitting from dramatic declines across the population in heart disease and strokes, are living longer than ever. But black Americans, increasingly the victims of homicide and AIDS, are seeing their life expectancy fall further.

That is the picture painted by the latest tally of the nation's health, released Wednesday. And there's more:

- Blacks are twice as likely to die in infancy as whites.
- Pregnant black women receive early prenatal care far less than whites.
- Blacks are disproportionately afflicted with influenza and pneumonia.
- Health Secretary Louis Sullivan said the report showed—after the statistics have since 1970—that there is a disparity between the health of our white and black populations.

Dr. Manning Feinleib, director of the National Center for Health Statistics, told reporters that the basic causes for blacks' declining life expectancy relate to "nutrition, poverty (and) access to (health) care" that affect "a wide variety of conditions from infant mortality to mortality at later ages."

One other likely cause Feinleib mentioned: drug-related murders.

Buttreasing that assessment, the death rate among black men, frequently the victims of drug-related violence, was 56 percent higher than for white men in 1986, the last year for which comprehensive statistics were available.

In all, the report, "Health, United States," painted this statistical picture for 1986:

...A child born that year could expect to live 74.8 years, up from 74.7 years in 1985. A white child had a life expectancy of 75.4 years, up from 75.3.

But a black child born that year could expect to die at just 69.4 years, down from 69.5 in 1985 and 69.7 in 1984.

Life expectancies were not calculated for other population groups.

Apple Commission to spend $1.7 million on advertising

Association Press

YAKIMA, Wash. - The Washington Apple Commission voted unanimously Wednesday to spend nearly $1.7 million for advertising to reassure consumers that apples are safe, despite nationwide concerns over Alar use.

The commission, which represents growers of the nation's largest apple crop, voted to take $1 million in emergency funds and borrow the rest from banks to purchase advertising in major markets around the country.

Concerns over the suspected carcinogen showed little sign of abating as Eddie Albert and other Hollywood entertainers held a news conference to urge mothers to demand that their grocers carry chemical-free produce.

The Natural Resources Defense Council, whose recent report touched off the furor, warned the apple commission to be careful about the content of its advertising.

"We assume they are not going to be impugning our integrity," said Paul Allen, a spokesman for the non-profit Washington, D.C.-based environmental group. "That would be a great mistake on their part."

The goal of the NRDC report is not to hurt farmers, but to change the policies of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and make it easier to ban certain chemicals, Allen said.

Apple commission spokeswoman Vicky Scharlau said the advertising, to begin later this month, will seek only to reassure consumers that apples are safe and that the present system regulating chemicals is effective.

"This isn't a war between the apple industry and the NRDC," she told a packed house of reporters.

Mrs. Bush plans trip around dog's delivery

The NRDC report, released in late February, contends that eating Alar-treated apples increases the cancer risk in children. The report has been attacked as alarmist by the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the findings have been disputed by some scientists and the apple industry.

But public fears have led school districts across the country, including those in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago, to ban apples and apple products from cafeterias.

Alar is the marketing name for daminozide, which is manufactured by Uniroyal Chemical Co. The industry contends only about 5 percent of the crop is sprayed with the growth regulator, which keeps apples on the tree longer and thus improves color and firmness in red varieties.

Having grown up in Belfast, Northern Ireland most of my life, and having experienced first-hand what it is like to live in a country that is a garrison for a foreign army, I ask you, the Irish-American community here at Notre Dame— that before you go out to celebrate St. Patrick’s Day, before you talk about the “Luck of the Irish” and sing “Irish Eyes are Smiling,” stop for a moment to reflect upon the situation in Northern Ireland, for there, many Irish eyes are not smiling. The Irish-American experience in Northern Ireland is an issue of grave human, legal, and civil rights violations. However, to discuss and to voice dissent about the injustice occurring on a daily basis in Northern Ireland has never been a popular “cause” in America.

Maura O’Siochain

It is “popular” for Americans to protest loudly against injustices in other countries, like South Africa, and now finally Palestine. However, the estimated 42 million Americans of Irish descent are silent about the injustices occurring in their ancestral homelands. This let me bewilder for years until I began to analyze carefully the force behind the silence.

After questioning Irish-Americans about this apathy, I often received answers such as: “It’s too complicated,” or, “Oh, didn’t the Civil Rights movement take care of that?” Catholics and Irish are not quite well off!” or, “I don’t support violence.”

After more answers such as these, I seized the opportunity to have a sham that has occurred in the States. Irish-Americans have swallowed and digested exactly what the British government has fed them. This being the dreadful notion that if you vociferously condemn British injustices in the North of Ireland, you are simultaneously indicating your support for the Irish Republican Army. To speak up about your abhorrence of British injustices in the North of Ireland, in no shape or form means you are supporting violence, for the British may as well abhor violence.

An Irish-American who lobbyists for the MacBride Principles for Fair Employment in Northern Ireland you are almost three times more likely to be unemployed than someone in the South of Ireland. We are called lobbyists for a worldwide end to the use of lethal plastics bullets, or the strip-searching of women prisoners, in no way supporting violence, as the British government has so skillfully manipulated new Americans believing. The soldiers’ centuries-old hatred for the Irish is still quite evident.

But the British Army doesn’t have to carry out the burden of occupation and repression of the population all by itself. It has the helpful hand of the police force—the Royal Ulster Constabulary. In its last 20 years of so much suffering and so much struggle, Catholics in Northern Ireland, and many things have worsened and continue to worsen in Northern Ireland. Catholics are provided with better housing and we do have more opportunity to obtain higher education, but it is not enough, we have re-developed a sense of pride and dignity that had been lost before the Civil Rights Movement.

However, in the last 20 years we have lost our right to every right to which any other citizen living in the “free world” is entitled. We have lost our right to demonstrate and to assemble without police approval, we have lost the right to a trial by jury, Nationalists have lost their television and radio airwaves and television; most recently we have lost the right to remain silent during judicial procedures—any silence may be interpreted as an automatic admission of guilt. In other words we are consistently not allowed to speak and not allowed to remain silent.

Thomas Daughtery’s article, “America Under Scrutiny,” in the American Viewpoint section of the Wednesday, March 16, 1989 edition of the Observer is an excellent discussion of American attitudes toward others in countries around the world.

A curious look at American affairs

Who runs America? The White House? Wall Street? The Senate? Is there such a thing as balance of powers? Will John Tower drink again? Does Ted Bundy’s death mask make the world a better, happier place to be? What did it prove? It is the death penalty the cure-all for the crime problem? Will Manson ever get paroled?

Can one safely say that one person is more human than another? Does being ex-uterus make one more deserving of human rights than one in utero? Can one be pro-abortion and anti-war without being a hypocrite? When does life begin? Is the fetus a Human being? If not, what is it? A tadpole? A plant?

Is human dignity what has been lost before the Civil Rights Movement? Does technology rule our lives? Are Americans voyeurs? Are we really free? Does technology rule our lives? Can we improve on Maxi-
Co-captain Fredrick leads Irish by example

Junior guard tries to return to lineup after ankle injury

By PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

Joe Fredrick, to be sure, is one of the more confident individuals you’re likely to come upon.

Some call him overconfident, even cocky.

But when you are a junior, suddenly thrust into the national limelight, called upon to co-captain a team with no seniors, and starting only half of the previous season under David Rivers’ shadow, confidence becomes a prerequisite.

Fredrick absolutely oozes the stuff.

On an ankle injury that kept him out of the DePaul game and possibly the tournament game Friday night: “There’s no way I want to miss the opportunity to play in the NCAA’s this year, especially after how horrible I played (in) last year’s tournament. I was on crutches Monday, taking jump shots and free throws (Tuesday), and I may run some (Wednesday). Believe me, if there’s any way I can play, I will. I’m a day ahead of schedule, and our game’s not until late Friday, so that will help.”

On a possible second round matchup with Georgetown in the NCAA tournament: “Not that I’m looking past Vanderbilt, but I can’t wait to play Georgetown. I really, really want to face Georgetown’s defense and have (Hoya star guard) Charles Smith guard me. That’s where you find out how good you really are.”

On the difference between this year and last: “I think last year I took some people by surprise, like when we played at Duke (a 76-61 loss in which Fredrick scored a then-career high 23 points). But everyone was out to stop David (Rivers). This year, I know that everyone is out to stop me. That’s the kind of thing that drives me.”

But after attempting only 26 field goals in his freshman year, Fredrick had a choice—change his attitude or drive himself crazy.

“I always felt I could play,” said the Cincinnati native, who led the Irish during the regular season with a 16.6 points per game average. “But you can only believe in yourself for so long. Freshman year was basically just sit there, sit there, sit there.”

“But after a while I just figured that playing against Rivers in practice every day would eventually have to improve my own game enough so I’d get my chance.”

Fredrick gives the Los Angeles Lakers rookie much of the credit for his success, not only on the basketball court but in the interview room and beyond the sports sphere.

“My opportunity to practice and play against David during my freshman and sophomore years was the biggest asset I could have asked for,” said Fredrick, who, along with Jamere Jackson, were Notre Dame’s first junior co-captains.

“I always watched the way he did everything. At interviews he spread the praise around, in practice there was never a day when he sluffed off, when he got hurt he rehabilitated faster than anyone expected, he always got the proper rest before games, always ate breakfast to start the day...”

Fredrick, who, along with Jamere Jackson, were Notre Dame’s first junior co-captains, led the Irish by example this season, leading the team in scoring with a 16.6 points per game average. He is currently battling an ankle injury that kept him out of Notre Dame’s final regular season contest against DePaul.

When he plays well, the team shows that we might be heading in the right direction.”

Fredrick sees junior Keith Robinson as the key to Irish NCAA hopes both this year and next.

“No doubt about it, we’re going to have to scrap for every win in the tourney,” said Fredrick. “But the bottom line is that Keith Robinson is our key player, even though he’s only a sophomore. He’s a heck of a player.”

The Cincinnati native, who led the Irish during the regular season with a 16.6 points per game average, has averaged 18.3 points per game in his last nine games.

“I’ve got to have a better night up front, a couple of ways. Sure, we lost our final game, but the team showed they can play without me and with LaPhonso (Ellis) in a lot of pain. The fact that Daimon (Sweet) and Elmer (Bennett) stepped to the fore shows that we might be heading in the right direction.”

Fredrick sees junior Keith Robinson as the key to Irish NCAA hopes this year and next.

One reason Fredrick believes in his team’s chances is because he believes in his team’s coach. The junior backs up Phelps, whom Fredrick says receives a lot of undue criticism.

“If you’re not constantly part of the basketball program here,” said Fredrick, “in my mind you don’t have any right to criticize the coach. And our team’s coach is Keith Robinson as the key to Irish NCAA hopes both this year and next.”

“Next year should be a lot of fun. Everybody, including Keith, will be back and the fact that we’re all good friends off the court can only help. We’re not selfish—when LaPhonso gets talked about all the time, we’re happy for him, because that can only help. If J.J. (Jackson) gets 25 one night, the rest of the guys aren’t like, ‘Oh, I’ve got to have a better night than that next time.’

Robinson center of Notre Dame's game

By FRANK PASTOR
Assistant Sports Editor

Last season Keith Robinson made his debut with the Notre Dame basketball team. Just one year later, he is a leader.

Such is the state of this season's seniorless Irish squad and such is the collegiate career of Robinson, who has made his share of comebacks in the past two years. After sitting out his freshman season under Proposition 48, the 6-9 center from Buffalo, N.Y., played in all 28 games for the Blue and Gold his sophomore year and entered this season as Notre Dame's top returning rebounder.

Robinson has played a vital role for the Irish this season after returning from a broken foot injury suffered in a pickup basketball game over the summer. He has had to bolster Notre Dame's inside game while simultaneously helping the freshmen frontline players adjust to the collegiate style of play.

"I've taken on a different leadership role this season," said Robinson. "I think I'm more of a role player for the freshman group. Coach (Digger) Phelps wanted me to be consistent with my game this year and also help out the younger guys.

"Upperclassmen like Scott Piggot and Mike Thorne on the frontline had to take our time with them and let them learn the system. I think they caught on really well." In fact, in years past, freshmen LaPhonso Ellis and Keith Tower have been able to step in and become starters a season or two after adjusting to the rhythm and scoring, we'll just have to match up with them right at halfcourt and let them set up and shoot the threes."

Few expected Robinson to recover from last summer's injury so quickly. After missing the first month of practice, the junior center returned to the floor, scoring 12.7 points per game and leading the team in rebounds with 9.5 per contest.

"I think these students should be given a chance to go to school," Robinson has said. "I think these students should be allowed to establish themselves academically first and then get ready to play sophomore year."

Fortunately for Robinson and the Irish, he was able to return to the floor following a one-month absence and averaged 9.6 points and 7.1 rebounds per game in his sophomore campaign. Now a junior, he has led Notre Dame to five consecutive NCAA tournament appearances, where the Irish face Vanderbilt in the first round.

"I think we match up pretty well," said Robinson. "They have some good rebounders and some great three-point shooters. I think we're a faster-paced team than they are. It's going to be a very physical game made, and each team is going to have to give up good defense and contain people."

"I think we establish the game from the start, getting in the rhythm and scoring, we'll be fine. We just have to match up with them right at halfcourt and let them set up and shoot the threes."

Keith Robinson has been Notre Dame's "Mr. Consistency" this season, having played in all 28 games, shooting 52 percent from the floor, scoring 12.7 points per game and leading the team in rebounds with 9.5 per contest.

"Coach just wanted to take my time with me. I came on pretty strong in the Kentucky game considering the amount of time I played. I started to play with a lot more confidence and it started to show each game."

Robinson finished with a 9.5 rebounding average, the best for an Irish player in 12 years. That mark paced a Notre Dame team which finished second nationally in rebound margin at plus-9.

He also averaged 12.7 points per game and scored in double figures on 21 occasions, including 17 of the last 22 games.

"Plus, no one understands what a good friend and a great human being he is with the players. Outside of my parents, he has been the greatest influence on my life. He's one of the coaches that I always wondering forward to next year so much."

And Freddie is one reason why Irish fans can look forward to it.

Point guard Singleton was the top assist man for the Irish in the regular season, with his total of 105 putting him in second place for assists in a single season. He also led the team with 47 steals.

Jamere Jackson (F)
Co-captain Jackson led the Irish in free throw percentage, shooting 84 percent, and was also named Notre Dame's best defensive player. His 13.5 scoring average was second on the team.

LaPhonso Ellis (F)
Ellis has made his mark on the Irish as a freshman, breaking the single-season mark for blocked shots with 50, averaging nine rebounds per game and scoring 13.2 points per contest. "He makes the rest of the team play above their potential," says Irish head coach Digger Phelps.

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to the Viewpoint appearing in the Feb. 28 issue of the Observer written by Victor Krebs, GSU President. As one of the two Chemistry Department representatives attending the Graduate Student Council meeting of Feb. 14, I feel that some of Mr. Krebs' arguments are vague and misleading. In that column he implied that the voting representatives were duly notified of the important issues to be voted upon through the "voting representatives" and that while we did receive this memo containing the reminder to attend and an "agenda," this was not a proper meeting. While he did mention the agenda and that voting representatives were given a week to inform their constituents of an important issue, he implied that the voting representatives were duly notified of the important issues to be voted upon through the "voting representatives." This, I believe, is misleading.

According to the agenda, the Graduate Student Council is proposing changes to the constitution. In light of their actions, the Preamble. In light of their actions, the students seriously if their own government increases were already approved, it needs to be stressed, however, is the issue of pay raises for GSU officers. The current pay for a year is $1400 a year and to increase GSU activity fees. The Observer has already published an article appearing in the Feb. 28 issue of the Observer that "for some 15 years, any mention of Phil Agee's name has been described as a homogeneous group which holds just about every reproachable characteristic known to man. However, I am writing to give our students some credit- and thanks.

I would like to thank all the students who donated their Louisville basketball or Air Force football tickets to St. Hedwig's Outreach Center this year. Thanks to you, a group of children who normally would not have had the opportunity, watched a game involving a team on its way to a national championship and two major college basketball teams. Your contribution was truly appreciated by all the children. Pictures from both of these games are on display in Morrissey Hall's lobby. The enjoyable affairs of ‘Cousins’

It’s silly at times, it’s romantic at others, but “Cousins” is always entertaining and never boring. This comedy/love story takes the viewer through a lusty affair and an innocent retaliation centered around family gatherings, including a few unconventional weddings.

The movie begins with the wedding of Larry Kozinski’s (Ted Danson) uncle to Maria Hardy’s (Isabella Rossellini) mother. At the wedding Larry’s wife Tish, played by Sean Young, goes off with Larry and Hardy’s end of the car bringing tears to my eyes after all the walking I have done. Granted, my legs are getting toned, but the soles of my shoes are literally worn away.

Laundry costs approximately $6 per load, and that is the student’s rate. The regular rate is approximately $18 per load. Everything comes back about three sizes smaller than their original sizes.

A warm house is only something you hear about. We have no television or phone. I don’t miss TV, but I sure am hurting without a phone. I used to call my next-door neighbor when I was in the dorm at Notre Dame, and now I have to walk a mile just to find a phone. Fortunately, the phone booth is right in front of the pub. I think my parents are beginning to wonder why I’m so loud and cheerful every time I call them.

“The sense of responsibility and independence I have gained in just two months has been amazing.’”

Sharing a house with three other people has been fantastic. The sense of responsibility and independence I have gained in just two months has been amazing. My tolerance level for a “frat house appearance” has improved. Learning to read my roommates’ moods was a big bonus also. Learning to cook, however, has been hell.

I have left out so many details that I would love to share if I only could. I can summarize my first two months in Ireland by saying I have never been so happy in all of my life. I can honestly say that this has been the best experience of my entire life.

Florida, Stanford ready for women's swimming NCAAs

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS—The smart money might be on Florida in the NCAA women's swimming and diving championships this week, but don't count Stanford out.

Those two teams stand the best chance of ending the five-year reign of Texas, weakened by the loss of its coach and three key swimmers-breaststroker Susan Johnson, freestyler Carrie Steinseifer and butterflyer Kelley Davies—who retired after the Olympic year.

Florida returns all but one scorer from last year's runner-up squad and packs its lineup with four 1988 Olympians and arguably the best freshman class in the nation.

That makes the Gators the odds-on favorite at the Indiana University Natatorium beginning Thursday, according to Stanford coach Richard Quick, who left Texas to join the Cardinal last year.

"If I was betting, I'd bet on Florida," said Quick. "They have quality in every position and depth at every position. The rest of us are really in a scramble for second place."

Yet Quick's top swimmer, 1984 Olympic silver medalist Jenna Johnson, revealed Stanford's real goal.

"We would love to kill Florida," she said. "If everyone on the team swims their best, we have a good chance to win. We have a lot of unknown talent—young swimmers who could come into their own this weekend."

Johnson's sights may be high, but she's predicting the Cardinal will peak for the NCAAs.

In a dual meet at Texas last month, the Cardinal took 15 of 18 events and swept both backstroke and breaststroke events on their way to a 95-45 victory. Against the same Texas team, Florida narrowly won, 56-55.

"They're obviously both tough teams," Texas coach Mark Schubert said. "But Florida is probably the top twenty in the final poll, whatever happens during the season doesn't mean anything. We want to do well at the end of the season, it's a whole new ball game."

Stanford's assistant coach Randy Reese may be tutoring his most talented team ever, and it's a far cry from the .500 record he had when he was a junior.

"It helped them a lot but it didn't help me," Reese said. "I would have liked them not to swim so fast. I wonder how rested they are."

Eight members of the 1988 U.S. Olympic team will compete at the women's NCAAs, including Florida's Tami Bruce, Dara Torres, Laura Walker and Paige Ziemer. Other Olympians are Leigh Ann Petter and Andrea Hayes at Texas, Mitzi Kremer of Clemson and Erika Hansen of Georgia.

"If I was betting, I'd bet on Florida," said Quick. "They have quality in every position and depth at every position. The rest of us are really in a scramble for second place."

Yet Quick's top swimmer, 1984 Olympic silver medalist Jenna Johnson, revealed Stanford's real goal.

"We would love to kill Florida," she said. "If everyone on the team swims their best, we have a good chance to win. We have a lot of unknown talent—young swimmers who could come into their own this weekend."

Johnson's sights may be high, but she's predicting the Cardinal will peak for the NCAAs.

In a dual meet at Texas last month, the Cardinal took 15 of 18 events and swept both backstroke and breaststroke events on their way to a 95-45 victory. Against the same Texas team, Florida narrowly won, 56-55.

"They're obviously both tough teams," Texas coach Mark Schubert said. "But Florida is probably the top twenty in the final poll, whatever happens during the season doesn't mean anything. We want to do well at the end of the season, it's a whole new ball game."

Stanford's assistant coach Randy Reese may be tutoring his most talented team ever, and it's a far cry from the .500 record he had when he was a junior.

"It helped them a lot but it didn’t help me," Reese said. "I would have liked them not to swim so fast. I wonder how rested they are."

Eight members of the 1988 U.S. Olympic team will compete at the women's NCAAs, including Florida's Tami Bruce, Dara Torres, Laura Walker and Paige Ziemer. Other Olympians are Leigh Ann Petter and Andrea Hayes at Texas, Mitzi Kremer of Clemson and Erika Hansen of Georgia.
Football renews quest for another championship

Special to The Observer

With Wednesday's opening of spring practice, the Notre Dame football team has begun its challenge of pursuing a national title for the first time in 15 years.

Even with an experienced team anchored by 16 returning starters, Irish coach Lou Holtz knows that defending last year's title will not be a simple task.

"On paper, we should be a good team," Holtz said. "But who knows if this year's team will develop the same chemistry as last year's group? Who knows if the commitment will be there too? Who knows what the chemistry will be like? Those are questions that can't be answered until we get into the season.

"We have a chance to be a better football team than last year, based on our personnel and experience. But that doesn't mean we'll have the same kind of record."

The Irish must replace 12 lost lettermen, including six starters. Offensively, Notre Dame will be missing a regular and his twin, tackle Andy Heck (a first-team All-American in 1988). On defense, Notre Dame lost four returning starters with junior Tim Ryan at guard, senior Win Stams and Gordon. The drop in his bicep. Arnold Ale and junior Andre Jones, each of whom started four games last year. The rush end position includes junior Scott Kowalkowski and senior John Foley, who missed all of last season with a nerve injury in his bicep.

Senior Ned Bolcar, one of last season's trip-captains, has been granted a fifth year of eligibility and should bolster the linebacking corps. The Irish are set at corner back with senior Stan Smagala, junior Todd Lyght and senior D'Juan Francisco. Senior Pat Terrell is back at free safety, but junior Greg Davis is the only experienced returnee at strong safety. Sophomores Rod Smith, Shawn Davis and Rusty Seter, all of whom played offense as freshmen, are possibilities to move to the secondary.

The kicking game returns junior punter Jim Sexton (39.8 average) and junior placekicker Billy Hackett (5 of 7 PATs, 3 of 4 FGs). Irish return game is set with Ismail, who led the nation in kickoff returns in 1988, and Watters, who ranked fourth nationally in kickoff returns in 1988, and Watters, who led the nation in kickoff returns in 1988, and Watters, who led the nation in kickoff returns in 1988. ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Bill Frieder’s coaching career at Arizona State began earlier than he wanted when Michigan told him if he’s going, go now—before his Wolverines play in the NCAA tournament.

“I don’t want somebody from Arizona State coaching the Michigan team,” Frieder told Bo Schembechler said Wednesday. “A Michigan man is going to coach Michigan.”

No sooner had word gotten out that Frieder had accepted the basketball coaching job at Arizona State, two days before the start of the tournament, than Schembechler announced that assistant coach Steve Fisher would lead the 24-7 and 10th ranked Wolverines in the NCAA’s first game is Friday in Atlanta against 21-Xavier.

Arizona State had contacted Fisher after basketball coach. Frieder and told him Fisher was The Associated Press Coach of the Year in 1984-85, told his players of his decision in a series of early morning phone calls from Arizona.

“I think I’m speaking for the rest of the team when I say we’re shocked,” center Loy Vaught said. “He never let on that he was leaving.”

Frieder offered to coach the Wolverines, seeded third in the Southeast Regional, through the tournament. But Schembechler said he telephoned Frieder and told him Fisher would run the team.

A permanent replacement for Frieder wouldn’t be named until after the NCAA championships, Schembechler said. He refused to speculate about candidates.

New-found fame and fortune hard on Calcavecchia

Associated Press

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. — Mark Calcavecchia, the sensation of the early season, is having some problems with his new-found fame on the PGA tour.

“I’m struggling with it a little bit,” Calcavecchia said Wednesday before a final practice round for the $1.35 million Players Championship.

The tournament, recognized as the annual championship of golf’s touring pro, begins Thursday with Calcavecchia among the favorites for the $243,000 first prize. Calcavecchia, who won the Australian Open title late last year, leads the American tour this year with $428,112.

He won the Los Angeles and Phoenix Opens, missed a playoff at the Bob Hope by one stroke and was third in another one.

“I could have won four tournaments already this year,” he said.

And with that success has come increased attention from press and public, a situation that he continue to the man who was struggling to make ends meet as recently as four years ago.

“It’s part of the price you pay,” said Curtis Strange, the 1988 U.S. open champion and Player of the Year.

“We all strive to play well. When you do, and you win, that attracts attention. The better you play the more attention you get.

“Can’t separate the two.”

It is a problem that Calcavecchia has to handle.

He having a little trouble with it,” he said, and hinted that it could be affecting his performance.

“At Eagle Trace (the Honda Classic two weeks ago), I was bombarded, people coming over to the house for two-hour interviews, the phone ringing all the time, all that stuff.”

“They just blew me away. I was out of it,” Calcavecchia said.

He missed the cut in that tournament and hasn’t played particularly well since.

POsTEN VE'DRA, Fla.—Mark Calcavecchia, the sensation of the early season, is having some problems with his new-found fame on the PGA tour.

And with that success has come increased attention from press and public, a situation that Calcavecchia says is still "part of the price you pay," said Curtis Strange, the 1988 U.S. open champion and Player of the Year.

"We all strive to play well. When you do, and you win, that attracts attention. The better you play the more attention you get."

"Can't separate the two."

It is a problem that Calcavecchia has to handle.

"I'm having a little trouble with it," he said, and hinted that it could be affecting his performance.

The Sweet 16 finalists from the Regional. Idaho could very well go largely as expected: Oklahoma, Michigan, North Carolina and Cinderella, overconfident against lower seeds and LSU will oust Arizona State, which will beat Virginia in line in the East, but some minor shakeups in the West may make things interesting. Memphis State, a late bloomer, will take out UNLV and join Arizona, Seton Hall and LSU (who knocked off the Hoyas last round) in the final 16.

*I hate to say it, but I just can't see any deviation from the top four seeds making the Final Four. Duke might be able to beat Georgetown in the East and North Carolina might be able to take out Oklahoma in the Midwest, but in my mind Illinois and Arizona can't be touched in their brackets.

The Nitty-Gritty—As good as Illinois looks right now, I don't think they can go all the way Indian and if that's any indication of how we'll play, I like our chances.*

Mike Newell, a former high school star and coach in Indiana who still holds the semi-Notre Dame," he said in reference to the upset his club posted in its previous NCAA appearance at Madison Square Garden.

The Trojans then took North Carolina State to two overtimes before losing in the second round at the Metrodome.

"We like the dome. The basketball courts, I think, are still the same length and the buckets are still the same height. That's the only thing to concern ourselves with.

"As far as the larger crowds, we're accustomed to that. We played a great schedule to prepare ourselves for this very thing."

"It won't affect the shooting at all," said Trojan senior forward Johnell Bell, one of five starters averaging in double figures with a 1.8 average. "I think it's just like playing in high school."

"It makes you more nervous because there's no one really seems to be talking about right now, will rebound in a big way from their lackluster Big Eight Conference tournament performance. Mookie Blaylock and Stacey King comprise the best 1-2 punch in the country, but they're not like their supporting cast. Tyrone Jones and Terrence Mullins would be headliners at 15-16 of the schools in the country. Nunnels, 98-91."

The Georgetown-Arizona game is the one I'm dying to see. Two great teams, two great coaches, two great defenses, lots of role players. Give the nod to the Hoyas just because John Thompson will be on the warpath to avenge his bronze medal showing but Billy Tubbs will have the last laugh. "Any time you're the lower seed, I think you've got an advantage," he said. "The parity is such in college basketball that I think the word upset is going to come around now from time to time."

"At tournament time I do my very best not to worry about opponents," said Louisville coach Denny Crum, 29-13 in NCAA action and a winner in all of his last 26 games in the tournament.
