East Germany frees citizens

BERLIN Wall opened

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany opened the Berlin Wall and its other borders Thursday, and its border guards permitted citizens to cross freely for the first time since 1961. Hundreds of people danced on the wall.

Late Thursday and early Friday, exultant East Germans coursed through Berlin Wall checkpoints and others entered West Germany at other borders crossing.

About 100 East Berliners at the Brandenburg Gate chanted: "Open the gate! Open the gate!"

Hundreds of West Berliners took advantage of the newly opened borders during the eerily calm-like atmosphere to head in the opposite direction and catch a glimpse of the other side of the divided city.

"What joy! This is the best thing that happened in 100 years!" yelled a West Berlin man as he crossed into what had once been forbidden territory.

Hundreds were seen on the Friedrichstrasse subway in West Berlin, and East Germans also were allowed for the first time at Checkpoint Charlie, the famed Friedrichstrasse crossing run by the Allied military.

Many hugged and kissed strangers, while cars packed with East Germans and others paraded down the streets of West Berlin.

"It's crazy! It's crazy!" shouted one young man as he sat in the back seat of a car with his parents after a brief trip past the once-impenetrable Berlin Wall.

Individual behavior key to preventing spread of AIDS

By KAREN NEWLOVE

There is no cure and no vaccine for Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS); only Individual behavior and other changes can prevent the spreading of the virus.

AIDS is becoming one of the greatest public health concerns for the 1990s and beyond. Currently, there are 110,000 individuals with confirmed cases of AIDS in the United States. It is estimated that over one million individuals are carriers and potential spreaders of the virus, according to a representative from the National AIDS Helpline.

Most of the one million carriers do not even know that they carry the virus, he said.

It is estimated that by the end of the year, over 270,000 cases of AIDS will have been diagnosed. In that same year, 145,000 people will need health care which will cost an estimated $8 to 16 billion.

Of the 270,000 cases reported, most victims were in the prime of life—90 percent between the ages of 20 and 49. If citizens know the facts about AIDS it can be prevented.

AIDS and its related virus, human T-lymphotropic type III (HTLV III) are preventable. The Surgeon General states that risky behavior such as certain types of homosexual and heterosexual activities or sharing intravenous drug equipment can lead to infection by the AIDS virus.

To control the spreading of AIDS it is essential that all persons take necessary precautions. The CDC suggests using condoms during intercourse.

The transmission of the disease can not be seen through the naked eye. It usually enters into a person's circulatory system through their penis, rectum or vagina. A visible tear in the tissue or the occurrence of blood is not necessarily a sign of transmission.

The Center for Disease Control (CDC) recommends the use of condoms. They are the best preventive measure against the virus, as well as other sexually transmitted diseases, besides abortion. The CDC published guidelines for condom use. CDC suggests using condoms made of Latex rubber. A spermicidal condom may provide additional protection. Condom use is safer with a water based lubricant.

ND visitors must watch alcohol abuse

We've all heard Sergeant Tim McCarthy of the Indiana State Police warn fans about drinking and driving at all of the home football games. At each game, students, we hear a lot about the dangers of drunk driving, and the University makes it quite clear that they don't trust us enough to hold an open can of beer while walking across campus, even during home football weekends.

The University doesn't trust students, but it does trust the thousands of alumni and other out-of-town fans who come to campus, to drink before, during and after the game, and then drive home. Who poses the greater danger—the student who drinks on campus and stays on campus, or the alumni and other fans who drink on campus and weave their way home a few hours later?

Case in point: after the USC game my parents and I were driving back home along with hundreds of other ND fans on the Chicago Skyway. As we approached the toll booth, we noticed that at least one fellow fan was having a considerable amount of trouble getting past the booth.

First of all, the man was trying to use dollar bills to get through the exact change lane. His car had already passed up the booth. It was supposed to be in the coins, so he tried handing a fluff of bills to the attendant in the booth. There was one small problem: there was no attendant in the booth. When an attendant finally did walk up, the guy was really good at limiting the alcohol consumption of the students, but they turn the other way when their favorite team is on the field.

When the party's over the students will still be on campus, but the visitors will be on the road. I think a lot of students here are smart enough to let some else drive if they're going to drink, but I don't think the message has hit home for some of our older fans. It wouldn't hurt any of the inebriated fans to turn the other way when their favorite team comes to party.

Teaching chastity, not condom education

In public schools, was the focus of AIDS education proved in a 219-4 vote by secret ballot at the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. The bishops also called upon the United States to press for Middle East talks leading to an independent Palestinian homeland in their Thursday statement in Baltimore. In other business, the bishops approved a rule allowing laypeople to conduct Sunday services, though not Mass, and endorsed a plan to increase the participation of black Catholics in the church.

An assailing poser as a delivery man forced his way into a Munster, IN, home Thursday, then shot and killed the couple who lived there. The couple's son was wounded when they were held up outside a childbirth center. An assailant posing as a delivery man forced his way into his car after the game and decided that he was sober enough to drive. The momentum is really good at limiting the alcohol consumption of the students, but they turn the other way when their favorite team is on the field.

So if there are any visiting fans out there who plan on wandering back to their cars and driving home while they're still well-let, keep this in mind: if you get yourself killed you have to live with it, if you kill someone else you have to live with it.

Navy fighter explodes, crashes into building

By SANDRA WIEGAND

"Take Back the Night," a campus march to promote awareness of and protest violence against women, was attended by about 50 men and women Thursday.

The march began at the "Woman at the Well" statue in front of O'Shaughnessy Memorial in line with the national Women's Strike for Peace and ended at the Rockne Memorial at Notre Dame.

The route was intentionally designed to go through areas where assault has occurred in the past. There was an approximately equal showing by both sexes on the march.

Marchers chanted phrases such as "Woman unite -- take back the night!" and stopped periodically to sing songs including "Bread and Roses.

Before the march began three women spoke briefly.
"Fear is something we just can't live with," said Kathy Boyer, coordinator for service/social action groups at the Coalition for Social Concerns.
"It doesn't just mean we're afraid to walk out at night; it means that we go to class and when we're in the office, we're not our whole selves."

"I want to claim for us the ability to be not afraid, and to be our whole selves," she said.

Two students then did a brief skit to emphasize the trauma that rape victims are often put through when they are charged. They enacted the trial of a robbery victim, ironically asking the questions many rape victims are asked such as, "What were you wearing?" and "Why were you out alone so late?"

St. Mary's College two students spoke, "As incoming freshmen we were told, 'That's Rape Road.' No one questioned it."

"We're no longer talking to the campus; we're talking to the community seeking medical or counseling of a non-medical nature.

"Persons in the Saint Mary's community seeking medical or counseling of a non-medical nature will be given the "unique " and handled according to the individual's needs. Although it does not specifically address the issue of AIDS and student activities, housing or classroom attendance, Saint Mary's will help to "assist...in receiving medical and health care" and "if students are unable to pursue their normal responsibilities, a medical leave of absence."

"You said that religious and health services has a variety of information available to those who are interested.

Before the march last night, a "speakeout," with intentionally low profile and open only to women, took place. The purpose of the speakeout was to allow women to share their experiences and fears regarding assault, Twohy said.

"Women can basically say what they want without the men, "..."What was it like?"" said Twohy. "It's a very empowering experience.

Testing for the HIV virus through Health Services is possible, though according to Threehy, no one has ever requested this service of the center.

Next semester there will be peer education training courses on AIDS. This on-going training program for students will focus on AIDS as a "social, as well as health issue," Chelminiak said.

Counseling and Career Development Services are also available for advice or counseling of a non-medical nature.

SMMC AIDS policy stresses needs of victim

By CHRISTINE GILL

Saint Mary's Editor

An AIDS policy instituted by Saint Mary's College two years ago outlines the role of the college in dealing with AIDS in the College community.

"Persons in the Saint Mary's community with evidence of the HTLV III antibodies or Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS) will be given the same attention and understanding that is given to any individual with a serious health problem, and student and staff counseling is listed in the student and personnel handbooks.

The policy stresses that each campus community member is considered "unique" and handled according to the individual's needs.

Although it does not specifically advise to contact Student Health Services.

Gloria Chelminiak, director of health services, said that education is the key to addressing the problem of AIDS. Health Services has a variety of information available to those who are interested.

These paintings were done over a four year period by Luigi Gregori, the Vatican artist who lived and worked at Notre Dame from 1874 to 1891, according to Garvey.

This is the first time that these Gregori frescoes have been cleaned, said Dedrick. The gold leaves and intricate stencils in the wall designs are finally becoming visible again, he added.

Dedrick said the renovations include the replacement of the old pews with carved pews that are "more in the spirit of the period." An updated sound system and new carpeting will also be added.

The Gregori designed stations of the cross will be regilded, said Dedrick. The 18th century Bernini altar, purchased in Rome in 1886, will also be improved to match its original splendor, said Garvey.

"A restored Sacred Heart adds a great deal to campus heritage. The church is a priceless historical sanctuary that should be important to all Notre Dame students," said Dedrick.

lubricant as opposed to oil-based.

Within dating situations, it is safer if individuals do not become sexually active too quickly, according to the CDC. One can not physically tell if someone is infected with the AIDS virus. However, individuals can talk with a prospective partner.

"If you know someone well enough to have sex, you should be able to talk about AIDS," said Otto Bowen, M.D. and Robert Wisdom, M.D., from Health and Human Services. AIDS can be transmitted through oral sex, said a representative from the National AIDS Hotline.

The virus no longer is contained within the homosexual communities of America. It has infected heterosexuals, infants, school age children, poor and infected body.

Seventy percent of those diagnosed with AIDS die within two years. Usually their lives deteriorate very rapidly. Germs, bacteria, protozoa, fungi, and malignancies are all able to infiltrate the AIDS infected body.

However, one does not catch AIDS like a cold or flu. The Surgeon General explicitly reminds the nation that AIDS cannot be transmitted through everyday contact such as:

- kissing
- donating blood
- saliva, sweat, urine, tears or bowel movements
- toilet seats, telephones
- shaking hands, swimming in pools, or sharing bed linens.

In receiving blood, one should remember that all blood after March of 1985 has been screened. It is estimated by the Surgeon General that infection from blood transfusions occurs in less than one of 100,000 donations.

"It is an epidemic that has already killed thousands of people, mostly young, productive Americans. It is the responsibility of every citizen to be informed about AIDS and to exercise the appropriate preventive measures," said former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, M.D.

All information was gathered from the Surgeon General's Report on AIDS and Health and Human Services Reports.

For more information about AIDS contact University Health Services at 239-7497. In South Bend call the St. Joseph County Health Department's AIDS information line at 284-9781. The number for the National AIDS Hotline is (800)342-AIDS.

Islamic fundamentalists score victory in Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Islamic fundamentalists stunned pro-government candidates by taking 34 of the 80 seats in Parliament in Jordan’s first general election in 22 years, according to results reported Thursday. Fundamentalists rolled up huge totals in Wednesday’s election while powerful former government officials struggled to win and sometimes failed.

The outcome appeared a setback for King Hussein, who urged voters not to mix religion with politics.

It also was a disappointment to Jordanian women, who ran and voted in their first national election. None won of the 12 women among 647 parliamentary candidates won.

Victors included men once imprisoned on political grounds and one convicted in an attack on an Israeli airline office in Athens.

The new Parliament seems certain to be more assertive than the often passive legislature dissolved last year. Hussein retains ultimate power, however, and martial law in effect since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war continues.

Parliament must approve all laws and can dismiss governments, but the king can dissolve the legislature and rule without it, as he has done for much of the past 15 years.

Israeli officials, who regard Hussein as a moderate Arab leader, expressed some concern about the election results. One said, on condition of anonymity: "What we are speaking about is a substantial opposition to the king from the right. ... This might bring a problem for the king."

In the vanguard of the fundamentalist campaign was the Muslim Brotherhood. Its 26 declared and several allied candidates called for social justice, stricter Islamic morality and the destruction of Israel.

"The people want Islam and it is not strange ... to have such a large number of Muslim candidates winning," Brotherhood spokesman Ziad Abu Ghaniyeh said.

Fundamentalists often have allied themselves with Hussein, a descendant of the prophet Mohammed, against secular leftists, but have pressed him for restrictions on Western-type entertainment, more social welfare programs and greater separation of the sexes.

Final results gave 22 seats to Brotherhood candidates. Other Muslims won 12 seats, and some of the 20 or so pro-government figures also had links to the Islamic movement.

Leftists, Arab nationalists, tribal leaders and others took the rest of the seats.

Student Government sponsors family social

By MONICA YANT

Parents, students, faculty, staff and administration can share dessert and coffee, while listening to the Glee Club Saturday, 8:30-11:30 p.m. Wendy Burek of student government says this Saturday might be the start of something that "could be an annual event."

Burek said that parents' weekend has traditionally consisted of only a football game in which parents receive tickets. A social function of some type was needed, "so that when parents come for the game, they have something to do with their students," she said.

The coffee and dessert will be held in South Dining Hall. Cost is $5 dollars per family, or $2 dollars per person.

Cutting Edge Review Sharpens Study Skills

CHICAGO—Viewed by the industry as the most progressive CPA review program in the country, Conviser Duffy continues to make unprecedented achievements in applying accelerated learning techniques.

Michael J. Duffy, National Program Director, feels that the learning method used by their lecturers "eliminates the mental block that inhibits most students' natural learning ability. As the student becomes more relaxed, his or her ability to recall increases."

Duffy feels that his program exercises the ability of the CPA candidate to both visualize their goal (passing the CPA exam) and realize it. How? By learning to do the following:

—Make the mental associations upon which visual learning depends
—Rehearse and immediately reinforce information
—Organize and group ideas
—Interact with the lecturer.

The above points are neatly tied together with Conviser Duffy's live/video presentation, comprehensive textbooks, workbook, tape make-up facilities and unconditional guarantee.

Says Duffy, "Preparing for the CPA exam is serious business and it takes a serious commitment from both parties to succeed." All this is powerful news for the accountant who wants to gain his certification with the most professional streamline review on the market.

Experts say that alcoholics will drink any type of alcohol

BOSTON (AP) — Kitty Dukakis refused to speculate on whether the gesture was a self-destructive act. Mrs. Dukakis was treated for alcoholism earlier this year, and has previously admitted to a 26-year addiction to diet pills. She has been lauded for her candor about her chemical dependency and her efforts at recovery.

Several alcohol and drug abuse experts said reported alcoholics will drink anything containing alcohol if liquor isn't available when the craving hits.

"Rubbing alcohol is not uncommon," said Dominic Gi-rault, a senior consultant in substance abuse at New England Medical Center in Boston. "People drink shaving lotion, mouthwash, you name it. Sometimes the craving for alcohol becomes so intense that they ignore the risks."

Rubbing alcohol is normally about 70 percent isopropyl alcohol, and 10 ounces of isopropyl alcohol can be lethal, said Alan Woolf, director of the Massachusetts Poison Center at Children's Hospital in Boston. Mrs. Dukakis was taken to the hospital by ambulance after experiencing "severe reaction" to drinking rubbing alcohol Monday night, which she swallowed in a state of exhaustion with the symptoms and depression, her doctor said.

She had been asleep for several hours when the governor returned home, said Dukakis' press secretary, Mindy Lubber. Dukakis woke his wife when she received a phone call; it was upon awakening that Mrs. Dukakis said she felt groggy and sick, Lubber said.

Gerald Plotkin, the Dukakis family physician, said Mrs. Dukakis had been taking anti-depressants prescribed by her psychiatrist but tests indicated no other drugs or alcoholic beverages were involved in her current illness.

Mrs. Dukakis was said to be suffering from exhaustion stemming from a hectic schedule of speaking engagements and work on her upcoming book. She recently returned from a trip to Colorado, where she participated in an Outward Bound program.

Dukakis, who returned to work Thursday after two days by his wife's side, issued a statement saying he would stand by her.

Thursday's meeting was to inform and educate individuals on the most recent facts about AIDS in preparation for next week's event. Jacob discussed and clarified the definition of HIV and AIDS, transmission, symptoms and treatment. She stressed that there is no vaccine or cure for the disease and said that "it is universally fatal."

"Anybody can choose whether or not to put themselves at risk," Jacob said, referring to high-risk behaviors, such as sharing intravenous drug needles or having sex with someone you don't know.

The Wellness Committee at Saint Mary's, which emphasizes physical and mental fitness as well as spiritual growth, sponsored Thursday's meeting.

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame du Lac and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and objectively as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the following: Managing Editor, Editor-in-Chief, Executive Editor, Viewpoint Editor, Sports Editor, Editor-in-Chief, Business Manager, Features Editor, Letters Editor, Commentaries, letters, and the inside columns present the views of the individual columnists. Opinions expressed in columns, editorials, letters, and the inside columns are the responsibility of the individual columnists and not the editors of the Observer. Opinions expressed in columns, editorials, letters, and the inside columns are not feasible to all members of the community and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is encouraged.

ROTC provides financial wherewithal to attend ND

Dear Editor:

Dave Redmann's response of Nov. 2 to Kurtt Miller's article on ROTC at Notre Dame (Oct. 31) was right on target. The chief issues do not revolve around religious objections to military service at Notre Dame. The ROTC programs are accepted as a Catholic institution, and the inconsistency of the University's efforts to establish peace studies while sponsoring one of the largest ROTC programs in the country. Mr. Redmann puts the emphasis squarely where it belongs, on the fact that ROTC "pays the tuition for a large number of students, some of whom might not be here otherwise." One in ten students at Notre Dame attend the University on a ROTC scholarship. Redmann correctly observes that these "scholarships are not given by Notre Dame; the Army, Navy, Air Force give students scholarships to attend any accredited university." In other words, the U.S. military has become a major factor in determining access to higher education.

The emphasis squarely where it belongs, when he notes that ROTC "pays the tuition for a large number of students, some of whom might not be here otherwise." One in ten students at Notre Dame attend the University on a ROTC scholarship. Redmann correctly observes that these "scholarships are not given by Notre Dame; the Army, Navy, Air Force give students scholarships to attend any accredited university." In other words, the U.S. military has become a major factor in determining access to higher education. This is particularly true at Notre Dame.

The University's efforts in recruitment, admissions, and financial aid need to be examined in light of the significant military presence on campus. ROTC does not "give scholarships." ROTC pays tuition and provides a substantial allowance in return for the student's participation in military training and subsequent military service. It goes without saying that Americans are free to choose military service and some may wish to do so as a career. Perhaps a significant portion of Notre Dame's ROTC students have already made this choice before seeking admission. I have no quarrel with these students.

In fact, I would like to emphasize that some of the best students I have had the pleasure of teaching at Notre Dame have been ROTC students. People from a variety of social-economic and cultural backgrounds enter the international life of an academic community and the Notre Dame administration seems to be genuinely interested in working to create a less homogenous atmosphere. However, while I applaud Notre Dame's recent success in increasing minority recruitment, I am troubled by the University's dependency on ROTC dollars to help shape the undergraduate student body.

The necessity of having a military presence on campus, and therefore condoning its presence at Notre Dame seems to me to miss the point. As Mr. Redmann observes, "the military is necessary to defend the country" and "if all else fails... we need a way to defend ourselves." What is of great concern, however, is the degree to which the military dominates the U.S. economy and the way in which the military values reach into our society. Studies indicate that 50 percent of our Federal income tax dollars are spent on military and past war debts and that 35 percent of our scientists and engineers currently work on military-related projects.

The military aspect of life at Notre Dame reflects and contributes to the high level of militarism in American society. To be sure, given that we live in a militaristic society and participate in an economy based on war, perhaps we should not be surprised that ROTC pays the tuition for a tenth of Notre Dame's students. This salient feature of Notre Dame's (official or unofficial) role in military training and subsequent military service should not go unexamined.

Israelis inflict suffering on innocent families

By Carl Loesch

When I first met Yousef in Jerusalem last semester, he was teaching us about Islam for our Middle East politics course. He was only a year or two older than the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students I was teaching. He had one year or two years to finish at Bethle­ hem University, but he had to wait because the school had been closed since the Israeli military saw them as hotbeds of political activity in the In­ tifada—the uprising. I felt sorry for Yousef because he was denied the basic human right to an education; only a few weeks later did I learn what Yousef and his family re­ ally suffered.

Only July 4, 1988 while the majority of Americans were celebrating with fireworks, Yousef's family suffered a ter­ rible injustice. Yousef was home with his widowed mother, his sister, and his grandparents when the sound of many vehicles outside his house. He went outside to see what was happening. An Israeli soldier asked him where his brother Ibrahim was. Yousef told the soldier that his brother was in prison already. (Ibrahim was in prison for the third time since the start of the uprising for alleged involvement in illegal activity.) Then the soldier showed Yousef an official mili­ tary order to demolish the family home and gave him 20 minutes to empty the house.

Because he lived in Bethlehem, a city heavily visited by tourists, he was able to share a personal experience of my last semester in Jerusalem. Thirdly, as members of this university it is our responsibility to learn as much as we can about areas of injustice around the world. As citizens of the United States we have the ability to change injusti­ ce throughout the world ei­ ther through exercising our right to vote or by participating in the political system as a rep­ resentative. And lastly, I tell this story to encourage every­ one to pray for peace and an end to the suffering of the Palestinians and Israelis.

Il babies have a mind of their own, but how many can say what’s on their mind? Baby Mikey has a lot to say, even if he is too young to speak. The thoughts of a one-year-old are expressed through the voice-over talents of Bruce Willis stealing the show in the new romantic comedy “Look Who’s Talking.”

The movie opens with Mollie (Kirstie Alley) an accountant, who is having an affair with her client Albert (George Segal), who is a very married man. Albert keeps promising he’ll leave his wife as soon as she gets over her hulakemia, and when Mollie becomes pregnant he keeps his promise and leaves his wife—for his interior decorator. Albert explains to Mollie that he can’t help support Mollie or her unborn baby because he’s going through a "selfish phase."

Even in the womb, Mikey’s mind is pretty active (even the sperm get a chance to speak their mind in this movie) as he’s going through various stages of fetal development. Through the “voice of Mikey,” Willis does a outstanding job of bringing Mikey’s character to life even before he is born.

When Mollie finally goes into labor, the first person available to take her to the hospital is James (John Travolta) a rather likable cab driver. In a wild driving sequence that only Hollywood can dish up, James gets Mollie “safely” to the hospital, and he even accompanies Mollie into the delivery room. One of the funniest scenes in the movie is right before Mollie delivers, when Mikey reacts to the painkiller the doctor gives Mollie.

James’ interest in Mollie and her baby does not end with Mikey’s birth. James becomes Mollie’s baby-sitter, and he is clearly interested in Mollie, but Mollie is busy dating other men in an effort to find the perfect father for Mikey. Mikey, on the other hand, has already made up his mind—he wants James to be his daddy. Unfortunately, Mikey is unable to articulate his feelings to the adults in his life.

Apparently, Mikey isn’t the only kid on the block who’s “talking.” In one scene, Mollie takes Mikey for a stroll in downtown New York City, where Mikey gets a chance to try out his baby talk on the other kids in strollers. Travolta does a outstanding job of bringing Mikey to life as an infant, but it is the first film to center around a baby’s mind—his evolving thoughts of a one-year-old expressed through the voice-over talents of Bruce Willis stealing the show in the new romantic comedy “Look Who’s Talking.”

Both Ally and Travolta are good in their respective roles, but the movie wouldn’t be nearly as funny w ithout the voice-over talents of Willis. Willis’ dialogue adds life to the movie, making Mikey the real star of the movie. The result must have been intentional on the writers’ part, because Mikey gets all of the best lines. The actors who portray Mikey at various stages in his babyhood (from a few hours old to one-year-old) are cute enough, but they probably would not have been as appealing to the audience if they were not backed up by Willis’ humorous remarks.

“Look Who’s Talking” is not the first film to center around an infant, but it is the first movie that tries to see things from a baby’s point of view. It is doubtful that anyone will ever be able to tell exactly what’s going on in a baby’s mind until the child learns to speak, but the writers evidently had a lot of fun guessing, and the audience will also have fun watching “Look Who’s Talking.”
Francisco getting older, but still getting better

The Game...

By KEN TYSIAC

The Mustangs from SMU will ride into town Saturday to see if they can prevent Lou Holtz's Fighting Irish squad from notching a school record 23rd straight victory at Notre Dame Stadium.

Before they became the first football team to be required for rules violations with the NCAA's dead-man's penalty, the Mustangs were a Southern powerhouse. Now, the Mustangs, who are trailing teams like Connecticut and Notre Dame in the woeful SWC, Holtz has once again managed to make his overmatched opponents sound like they are actually a decent football team.

"There's no way to go to a football game where we were such an overwhelming favorite," concedes Holtz. "But that doesn't mean much to me. I'm not going to insult your intelligence, that's not my intention, it's just that any time you play an opponent you always get scared, and you get nervous.

"There's no doubt that SMU has good young athletes. They play hard, they're well coached, and I think they're going to be an outstanding football team in the future," said Holtz.

That's right, Lou, in the future, they will be a good football team. Right now, however, they are setting records for futility. In a 95-21 loss to Houston on October 21, the Mustangs gave up an NCAA record 1,021 total yards. Houston's Heisman-hopeful quarterback Tony Rice (2,061 yards) completed 25 of 41 passes in the first half, a pass in the first half of that game for 217 yards, obliterated all 43-yard passing yardage in a half. The problem was Rice's receiver's ability to nurse quite a few bumps and bruises this week. Although senior corner back Stan Smagala will return to the lineup and may start, the Irish are short on healthy bodies at linebacker. Junior Donn Grimm, who is currently second on the team with 46 tackles, has a bad hip and may sit out the game.

If Grimm can't play, freshman Nick Smith will have to start in his place because Grimm's backup, sophomore Mark Martinez, is out with an injury. As if Notre Dame's line backing woes weren't bad enough, Holtz said that senior co-captain Ned Bolcar is "real banged up to start.

The Irish secondary has reorganized to silence critics who said that they weren't playing up to their potential earlier in the year in victories over Michigan State and Stanford. All-American candidate Todd Lyght, whom Holtz calls "the most talented defensive back I've ever been around," leads Notre Dame with eight interceptions, while senior free safety Pat Terrell has six.

Outland Trophy candidate Chris Zorich, a 6-1, 268 pound senior, anchors the Irish defensive line, which also features 6-7 human flyswatter Jeff Alm. Alm has used his big hips to knock down six passes this season, and he also has returned an interception for a touchdown. Sophomore defensive end Devon McDonald will miss the game with a knee injury.

Freshman Craig Hentrich will handle both the punting and kicking chores for the Irish. Hentrich averages 45.7 yards per punt and has connected on 8-15 field goals this season.

IRISH EXTRA

Junior Ricky Watters has done a lot of damage coming out of the backfield lately. He exploited a for career best 137 yards on nine carries last week against Navy and has run with increased confidence and authority as the season has progressed. Dependable senior Anthony Johnson (105 rushes, 433 yards) will start at fullback.

Heisman candidate Tony Rice will quarterback the Irish attack. Rice has completed just 51 of his 104 pass attempts this year, but leads all Notre Dame rushers with 653 yards on 121 carries. When he does get the opportunity to throw the ball, Rice's favorite receivers are speedy flanker Ralph Agostinas (15 catches, 254 yards), and powerful tight end Derrick Brown (10 receptions, 167 yards).

Isaiah, a sophomore from Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, will also handle kickoff returns for the Irish. Isaia leads the NCAA with an average of 35.6 yards per kickoff return, and returned two kickoffs for touchdowns in a 24-19 victory over Michigan in Ann Arbor on September 16. Isaia will most likely share the punt returning duties for Holtz's squad.

The offensive line is healthy entering this contest, and will feature three graduating seniors (tackles Mike Brennan, and Dean Brown, and guard Tim Grunhard) performing in their last game at Notre Dame Stadium.

Players to Watch

Forrest Gregg
Coach

Formerly with the Green Bay Packers, Gregg has taken on the task of resurrecting the SMU program. He is a member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Mike Romo
QB

The mainstay of the Mustangs offense, Romo threw for 445 yards against North Texas. A freshman, he has passed for over 2000 yards this season.

Mitchell Gleiber
WR

Said by Mike Romo to be one of the best he's faced this year. He also tied for the team leading total to 37.

Bill Kiley
WR/DB

Kiley has a team-high 68 tackles on the season, with one sack and three tackles for loss. 44 have been unassisted. He is also tied for the team lead in interceptions with two.

Michael Bowen
WR/DB

Bowen, a junior, returned to SMU after a year at Georgia. He plays all over the field for the Irish, he is second on the team in receptions and tops in punt and kickoff returns.

SMU vs. Notre Dame Defense

SMU quarterback Mike Romo, a redshirt freshman, has had quite a bit of success throwing the football this year. To date he has completed 189 of 322 passes for a total of 2,061 yards.

"I think that Mike Romo is really and truly going to be outstanding," says Holtz. "He has a quick release and a strong arm. I don't think there's any question they're going to throw the ball against us. They'll throw the ball 55 or 60 times, and they'll throw for some yardage—they have against everybody else." For Holtz, the Mustangs ball out pretty evenly among his receivers. Four players have caught at least 30 passes for the Mustangs, including senior co-captain Mitchell Gleiber, a wide receiver who has hauled in 37 receptions for 432 yards.

When the Mustangs aren't passing the ball, they will most likely rely on offensiveness running back Kevin Love. Love, who has rushed 79 times for 290 yards and three touchdowns, has a bruised shoulder but is expected to start against the Irish.

Junior Michael Bowen will most likely return kickoffs and punts for SMU. Bowen, who led the Mustangs in rushing, receiving, kickoff return and punt return yardage last week against Texas A&M, averages 8.9 yards per punt return and 22.6 yards per kickoff return.

Moff Lomenick will do all he can to make SMU's kicking game go. Lomenick has converted six out of 10 field goals this year, the longest being a 43-yarder against TCU on September 30.

Holtz's defensive troops are nursing quite a few bumps and bruises this week. Although senior corner back Stan Smagala will return to the lineup and may start, the Irish are short on healthy bodies at linebacker. Junior Donn Grimm, who is currently second on the team with 46 tackles, has a bad hip and may sit out the game.

If Grimm can't play, freshman Nick Smith will have to start in his place because Grimm's backup, sophomore Mark Martinez, is out with an injury. As if Notre Dame's linebacking woes weren't bad enough, Holtz said that senior co-captain Ned Bolcar is "real banged up to start.

Southern Methodist football team gave Notre Dame a run for its money.

After the old Pony Express backfield (Eric Dickerson and Craig James) migrated to the NFL in the early 1980’s, the Mustangs still fielded some pretty talented football teams.

of course, back then SMU stood for Slip da Money Under da table—indicative of the Mustangs’s numerous recruiting violations.

But the Mustangs still managed to win big games.

The Mustangs fended off a late Notre Dame rally in the 1984 Aloha Bowl to defeat the Irish 27-20 before 41,000 fans in balmy Honolulu, Hawaii.

The story was all too familiar for Irish fans. The poised young quarterback mounts a late-depensation drive to set-up the game-winning touchdown. But when Steve Beuerlein’s pass flew past the outstretched hands of flanker Mikhail Jackson on the last play of the game, the classic comeback was thwarted.

The Mustang’s option—oriented attack was based around mobile quarterback Don King and the speedy tailback tandem of Reggie Dupard and Jeff Atkins. Altogether, the backfield allowed SMU to total 445 total yards as both Dupard and Atkins rushed for more than 100 yards each against the Irish.

Southern Methodist took an early 14-0 lead on its first two possessions. The Ponies marched 78 yards in 16 plays to jump on the scoreboard on the opening drive. Atkins, the eventual offensive MVP, crossed over the goal line on a seven-yard run.

The next time they had the ball, the Mustangs drove 80 yards in 14 plays to set-up a 21-yard touchdown toss from King to Cobbory Morrison.

Two possessions. Two touchdowns.

But after Tim Brown took the ensuing kickoff 33 yards to the SMU 47, the Irish offense went to work. Tailback Allen Pinkett (24 carries for 136 yards) hammered the ball to the Pony 17 before splitting the seam on a yard touchdown pass from Beuerlein. That cut the Mustangs lead to 21-17.

After the defense held, the Irish put three more points on the board with a 21-yard field goal by John Carney (the longest of his career and an Aloha Bowl record). But SMU’s Brandy Brownlee countered with a 47-yarder just before the first-half whistle to make it 17-10.

The Notre Dame defense shut down SMU in the second half.

The Mustangs had been held to 37 total yards in the first two quarters. But in the second half, SMU put up 305 yards of offense.

And in Stan Smagala’s case, wound up the hook in the interception contest.

Sure, they’re considered schedule pushovers nowadays. But it wasn’t too long ago when the Time Capsule
Southern Methodist football team gave Notre Dame a run for its money.

After the old Pony Express backfield (Eric Dickerson and Craig James) migrated to the NFL in the early 1980’s, the Mustangs still fielded some pretty talented football teams.

Even then, he saw most of his playing time come on special teams. Francisco finally became something of a regular last season at cornerback.

Francisco started two games and played a big role in the secondary, backing up Todd Lyght.

In his fifth year, Francisco finally has a starting assignment, following his move to his other position switch. Francisco is playing strong safety to replace the graduated George Needle.

Because he had not seen too much playing duty until last season, Francisco does not really think of himself as an experienced leader in the secondary.

"As far as on the field, I'm probably the one with the least experience out there, so they help me," said Francisco.

The other defensive backs do not quite see that way.

"He's been around the program for a while, and it has always reminded us that any team is capable of knocking us off," said Lyght. "He's not one to give people hope in what we are always trying to do. He keeps everyone really loose."

There have been times this season when defensive players have felt the pressure to keep their scheme. After Steve Beuerlein fumbled and was tackled for a 92-yard passing against Notre Dame, the Irish received second place in the poll.

"A lot of people don't understand that sometimes you're not trying to succeed more, you're just trying to be more careful on the quarterback or maybe we're in a zone and they see something," said Francisco. "It's just a matter of playing a lot of great quarterbacks and great receivers."

In its first two games, North Carolina has intercepted five passes and allowed an average of just 146 passing yards per contest.

Maybe Francisco and the secondary will have the last laugh after all. Carney's 31-yard field goal cut the deficit to seven.

The Irish got the ball back with 2:42 left on the clock. All the attention was on Beuerlein.

The Blue Devil quarterback had performed well against Notre Dame last season.

"He's extremely good. He's had an outstanding year," said Francisco. "But we're not going to make it easy on him."

The last time the two teams met, Beuerlein was its top signal caller. The Blue Devils scrambled to their right and found Jack B. Smith in the end zone. The ball—and the game—slipped past the outstretched hands of Jackson with 2:35 remaining.

A strong new LP from Kate Bush

ALISON COCKS
Assistant Writer

Kate Bush successfully combines her original musical style with the imagination of a fiction writer once again in her latest album release, "The Sensual World." Four years have passed since the release of her greatest hit album. The Whole Story, time she spent compiling material for her new album. The result is a collection of powerful songs characterized by Bush's four octave soprano which joins with her lyrics to evoke strong emotions in her listeners.

Her songs, referred to by Bush as short stories, present new scenarios each time. Her clever combinations of lyrics and words create vivid images. The title track is, in say the least, seductive. Based on a soliloquy from James Joyce's "Ulysses," it tells the erotic story of a woman's experience with her lover. It sets the tone for the album which is a telling exploration of mature human relationships and emotions.

"Heads We're Dancing," a penetrating, fast tune tells the story of a young girl in 1939 who meets a seductive man at a dance. She is shocked the next morning when she reads the paper to discover her charming new friend is Adolf Hitler.

"They say the Devil is a charming man/And just like you I bet he can dance," accuses Bush in her lyrics.

Bush also addresses anger and its expression in "Between a Man and a Woman" and "Love and Anger." Her tune is furious, her rhymes fast as she confronts an unwanted interloper in "Between a Man and a Woman" and struggles to rerelease pent-up fury in "Love and Anger."

Tracks such as "Deeper Understanding," about a lonely person who finds solace in the voice console of a computer. "The Fog," whose imagery depicts loss of innocence in the transition from childhood to independence, and the tender, regret-filled "This Woman's Work," an expression of a man's tumult of emotions as he realizes his wife might be dying, enhance the emotional tone of the album and add dimension to the moody theme of the album.

Bush explores a range of common human emotions with depth and sensitivity. Her use of symbolism and vivid imagery and her original musical style makes her album a pleasure to listen to. Bush's unique style is refreshing at a time when lack of originality has become all too common. "The Sensual World" is a triumphant addition to Kate Bush's impressive collection of innovative LPs.

'Baker Boys' offers steam but no depth

DEBBIE CHARLESWORTH
Assistant Writer

"The Fabulous Baker Boys," opens in an empty smoke-filled lounge with two men playing on two grand pianos. The two men, Jeff and Beau Bridges, portray "The Fabulous Baker Boys," a choice piano act wedged in mediocrity. This act survives through the goodwill of nightclub and hotel owners and on ten years of endurance in the business. Their act merely provides background noise at clubs where the main attention of the patrons is focused on bad jokes, cheap booze and prostitution.

Although the act is tolerable at best, the movie feebly attempts to show the audience that Jeff Bridges is in fact a sickly genius. Overshadowed by his older brother's practical instinct, the younger Bridges remains in the rut of the Fabulous Baker Boys, instead of fostering his supposed musical genius.

Bridges, the practical brother, decides a female singer will add glamour to their failing and bland act. The act does not equal talent, just sexiness. Fortunately for the act, Pfeiffer wears dresses that show more skin than material which is supposed to compensate for her sub par voice. Despite the half-hearted effort to show the act as actually popular, it does not deserve to play beyond the lounge of a Holiday Inn.

The development of the relationship between the two brothers shows the actors to be as deep as an empty wading pool. The relationship between Jeff and Beau Bridges lacks substance. The relationship frustrates the audience, because it never fully develops. Just when the audience thinks all is lost, a fist fight erupts between the two, venting ten years of pent up frustrations. Aside from that one attempt, little is done to inform the audience of the feelings the brothers have for each other.

On the other hand, the relationship between Pfeiffer and the younger Bridges produces chemistry which erupts into a steamy massage scene in an empty smoke-filled lounge after a New Year's Eve performance. The relationship between Pfeiffer and Bridges is subtle, yet the audience is always aware of the attraction the two share. If nothing else, the development of their relationship will make you stay in your chair to watch the end of the movie, no matter how uninterested you may be in what goes on between the Baker Boys.

Although it has potential to be good, the movie just misses. There are better movies to see. Unless you love the seductive Pfeiffer or the pensive Jeff Bridges, wait for this one to come out on video.

Michelle Pfeiffer knocks audiences dead as the blues singer Susie Diamond in "The Fabulous Baker Boys."
On listening to symphonies of the air

A week ago. I went to St. Ed’s to attend the forum on racial tension at Notre Dame. My hearing has been good for a long time, but last spring I was fitted with a pair of hearing aids, one for each ear, which are sensitive enough to pick up the sounds of bats squeaking subliminally on Mars. I only wear them on occasions when I don’t want to miss a trick.

I’m glad that I wore them at St. Ed’s because I heard something beautiful which could be described, in Wordsworth’s phrase as, “The still, and sad music of humanity.” Nor harsh nor grating, though of ample power.To chasten and subdue. “Music of humanity” Nor harsh and so let it be. Let me tell you something about hearing aids. They pick up the noises you want to hear, the noises you don’t want to hear, and the noises you would have been listening for all of your life, if you had only known they were there. Sometimes, now, I take walks with my battery-powered ears perked up, so that I can hear the song of Nature, bird calls, and the sounds of woodpeckers and of squirrels gnawing on frozen pizza crusts; and the melody the wind makes when it’s using the trees for a harp. Everything coalesces into a unity until it’s like a rock’n roll tune with one of the stereo tracks missing, that you hear from a tape on your Walkman. Ugh, it ain’t, but it’s comforting to discover that every creature that can stir has its own vocabulary, which it uses to demand its place in the sun.

At St. Ed’s, I sat quietly as the students discussed the experience of the minorities. Ex-yore spoke honestly, but there were no shout-outs. Because I was wearing hearing aids, I started listening for the voices of the other minorities from the rainbow coalition who were not even in the building: when you’re wearing those bugs in your ears, you become highly imaginative about bringing the outside in, adding the cries of the poor, for example, to the Jews-for-Jesus, hoping the combination will sound like change.

I’m not going to try to tell you what the black students said, because I’m not eloquent enough, nor sensitive enough to reproduce the emotional nuances of their speech. I didn’t hear any of them asking, for example, that song out of Harlem, “Why am I so black and blue?” I’ve read a lot of black literature, but this was more powerful, and more frightening, besides. It may have been the first time in my life—except for a few bull sessions in my digs—that I ever sat for two hours listening to young, gifted blacks saying, what it means to be alive and well and feeling good (or bad) in America: letting their wit, humor, courage, frustration, anger and gracefulness hang out like a charm.

Why am I writing this? Am I trying to win a place for the open letter to black students published in these space three weeks ago? I’m in a new situation over that letter. I will be damned if I get it, if it’s just as well forgotten: damned if I don’t, if people think I’m writing all this, hoping it will take the bad taste out of their mouths.

I’m not ashamed of the letter. It was an open letter to a friend about to be rendered hors de combat. I was afraid, because of the emotions that were swirling around him. By the time the letter appeared, the Donnybrook had been peacefully settled, and so I had egg on my face, but not much. I really do hate mentioning that letter, though I’m willing to explain anything in it, to anyone, at any time, to show it was written with love and respect for students for gathering information in a way that I thought was unfair. I would be honestly proud to be the chieftain of any black student willing to give me their time and their opinion, though not in matters of color. I think the friends would get offended if the partners to it task turns lying right, though I don’t need to be right more than 15% of the time— I don’t believe in infallibility, least of all my own, and sometimes, not even the Pope’s. I would never try to make a black person what it means to be black in America. I have the humility to listen, with or without my hearing-aids, and I’m very quick learner.

I didn’t spend years of my life teaching children to sing.” Jesus loves the little children. All the children of the world. And yellow, black and white. We are precious in his sight. Jesus loves the little children of the world, so that we may grow up to find out I’ve become a bigot in my old age. I’m available to anyone who can stand to listen to me. I live on the second floor of Stanford, at the top of the stairs. My room was the only door in the dorm with a “Beware of the dog” sign on it. But, I didn’t intend, when I began this piece, to offer myself as the oldest activeaddy hear-kind of person living at Notre Dame. At St. Ed’s, I listened, in my imagination, to the symphony of humanity. I know of number of minority students at Notre Dame; Marxist nephews of the late Ayatollah; Rosicrucians on the lam, a colony of hippies who pass as Franciscans, and probably some Jews who wear golf caps to keep their annexe covered; for you don’t have to be gay to be in a closet. A number of gays here. I would not be allowed to hold public forums at St. Ed’s. Women in the Catholic Church feel pushed around. It’s sad for everyone if the only forum available to them is in the pages of a newspaper, where everything turns out sounding angry. It’s not even easy to be a priest at Notre Dame two’re considerably more chances when you hear of the priest-bashing and Pope-bashing that goes on in classrooms. When the monologues are finished, with each of us telling the horror stories of his or her choice, then the dialogue can begin, in which each one starts listening to the others, as well as asking to be listened to himself. As soon as you start lis tening, your education begins. Any good school should want to be famous as a listening place. People should go to a university to listen and talk, the way people used to listen and talk at the village well.

Notre Dame, being Catholic, has no strong tide to shape it self, because of the religion, into a talkatoin, or a town meeting, or to collect funds to endow conversation pits. But, since it is Christian, students have a right to expect the kind of healing that is most available through education: I have no great vision of what Notre Dame’s future could be like, if the school became all things to all men, with no vision of its own. If you mean to see a vision, I have this great pair of hearing- aids, and I’m proud to hear the harmony out of several levels of discourse which disentwine. What I heard at St. Ed’s last week may have been the beginning of the end of the “Unfinished Symphony,” or the last notes of “Nearer, My God, to Thee.” This was the open letter to black students published at St. Ed’s last week. Wings continue their winless string

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Dave Gagner and rookie Mike Modano scored two goals each in a 5-1 victory the previous day in a Leaf-friendly environment. The Minnesota North Stars extended their six-game winning streak to nine with a 5-1 victory over the Red Wings.

The last three Red Wings, 0-6-3 in their last nine, are on three games to winless, since they won 0-10-2 from Dec. 29, 1984, to Jan. 21, 1985.

In Detroit, NHL action continued Thursday, Boston beat Edmonton 6-2, Quebec toppled the New York Islanders 7-3, and Toronto stopped Philadelphia 4-1, Chicago edged Pittsburgh 4-3 and Montreal tied St. Louis 1-1.

Jon Casey made 26 saves as Minnesota improved to 7-3-0 at the home, third-best home mark in the NHL.

Detroit goaltender Greg Stefan had his second straight shaky outing since returning to the Detroit roster after a back injury. He wasn't helped by defense man John Moskos, who was beaten on each of Minnesota's three first-period goals.

Gagner gave the North Stars the lead at 2:59 when he scored Moskos and beat Stefan with a backhand past the goalie's pads. Six minutes later, Gagner got behind Moskos and took a pass from Gary Whetsel as Gagner broke between the faceoff circles. Gagner deflected the puck toward the goal with his skates, and Moskos held up the puck, the puck slid under Stefan, who missed the puck as it lodged at the stick.

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Louisiana State pitching star Ben McDonald was selected Thursday the winner of the Golden Spikes Award, presented annually by the United States Baseball Federation to the top amateur player going into the Major Leagues.

Dan Peltier, an All-American outfielder for Notre Dame last spring, had been a finalist for the award.

McDonald, who was 14-4 for LSU this season, was the Baltimore Orioles' No. 1 draft pick in June and spent part of September in the major leagues.

"It's very meaningful for me," McDonald said. "I think it's the biggest amateur award, and I'm real pleased about it. It's a goal I set for myself, to try to achieve it if I think it just tops off a good amateur career."

McDonald was one of nine finalists for the award. The others were Scott Bryant of Texas, John Britington of Texas A&M, Alex Fernandez of Miami, Tom Goodwin of Fresno State, Peltier, Eric Wedge of Wichita State, Dan Wilson of Minnesota and Alan Zinter of Arizona.

"This was the final thing. The final award. It tops off a good amateur career," McDonald said. "The last several months I've been really lucky — the Olympic team, that really got me going, got to be in three or four different countries and 24 different cities in a matter of three and a half months. I matured a lot as an individual on the road trips, and I matured a lot as a baseball player. It's something I'll never forget."

In three years at LSU, McDonald was 29-4 with six saves, and struck out 373 in 308 1-3 innings.

The Orioles and McDonald spent much of the summer negotiating his contract, and he didn't make his first major league appearance until Sept. 7. His father, Larry McDonald, represented him through most of the talks, which began shortly after the draft.

"During a lull in negotiations, with the Orioles, McDonald spent a week playing with other top U.S. amateurs in the Cape Cod League, but returned home unscathed afterward because I don't know what he said was media distortion."

Sunday's winner, from Indiana and Mark Croghun from Ohio University.

Notre Dame has some impressive runners of its own.

Senior captain Mike O'Connor has finished first for the Irish in every meet this season, and he has been backed up by J.J. Burke, Tom O'Rourke and Pat Kearns. Burke and O'Rourke have had solid races all year, while Kearns has been improving with each outing.

Junior Ryan Cahill has been strong for the Irish, while freshman John Coyle has recently come alive. Coyle broke into the Notre Dame top five for the first time in the Midwest Collegiate Championships at the end of October.

"How you going to do it?"

Sunday's winner, from Indiana and Mark Croghun from Ohio University.

Notre Dame has some impressive runners of its own.

Senior captain Mike O'Connor has finished first for the Irish in every meet this season, and he has been backed up by J.J. Burke, Tom O'Rourke and Pat Kearns. Burke and O'Rourke have had solid races all year, while Kearns has been improving with each outing.

Junior Ryan Cahill has been strong for the Irish, while freshman John Coyle has recently come alive. Coyle broke into the Notre Dame top five for the first time in the Midwest Collegiate Championships at the end of October.

Now through January 26
College bowl picture starts getting clearer

(AP) - Bowl bids won't be announced until Nov. 25, but the postseason picture is already coming into focus. Pending the results of several games, here are the most likely matchups in the Jan. 1 bowls:

ORANGE: Colorado vs. Notre Dame

SUGAR: The Southeastern Conference champion vs. Miami

COTTON: The Southwest Conference champion vs. Nebraska, Michigan-Illinois loser or SEC runner-up

ROSE: Pacific 10 champion vs. Big Ten champion

FIESTA: Florida St. vs. Nebraska, SEC-runner-up, Penn State or Michigan

HALL OF FAME: Florida, Auburn, or Virginia vs. Penn State, West Virginia, Ohio St. or Pittsburgh

Top-ranked Notre Dame and No. 2 Colorado are almost certain to play in the Orange Bowl, with the national championship probably at stake. All Colorado has to do is lock up the Big Eight title and beat Oklahoma State and Kansas State. Notre Dame has difficulty games remaining against Penn State and Miami, but the Irish will probably go to the Orange even if they lose both.

Why? Because a loss to Penn State would still give Notre Dame an impressive 10-1 record heading into the Miami game. And that game won't be over until after the bids are announced.

Orange Bowl president Tom Wood admits that Notre Dame has the inside track.

"It's hard to go wrong with Notre Dame," he said. "They're the top draw in college football."

The Sugar Bowl is the only other bowl with a shot at a national title game. Here's the scenario: Miami beats Notre Dame, finishes 10-1 and plays undefeated Alabama in New Orleans. Notre Dame then beats undefeated Colorado in the Orange Bowl. In that case, Darville's lawyer begins testimony

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Everybody knew Luther Darville was diverting funds from the University of Minnesota to give to student-athletes "and nobody objected," Darville's attorney said Thursday as the defense opened its case in Dayton's murder trial.

"Money passed through his (Darville's) hands to students with the express consent and full knowledge of many people at the university, including Dr. Frank Wilderson," Lawton said, referring to the former university vice president of student development who was Darville's boss.

Lawton said he would call 32 witnesses, including Darville's sister,隱私一直探查 in the disappearance of $186,000 from the university's Office of Minority and Special Student Affairs, which he headed before being fired last year.

The prosecution, which rested its case this morning after calling 32 witnesses, contends that Darville stole the money for his personal use, but Darville has said he gave the money to needy students and student-athletes at the behest of his superiors.

Wilderson, in testifying for the prosecution, denied that he ordered Darville to make such payments and said he had no knowledge of them.

In his opening statement, Lawton said Darville would testify that, at the request of Wilderson, he became involved with helping sort out problems in the university's athletic department.

"He'll testify that Dr. Wilderson relied on him greatly to see what was going on, to act as his eyes and ears," Lawton said.

Darville also will tell of a pattern of recruitment, which included promises for many things, Lawton said. "They were promised the use of cars. They were promised jobs. They were promised money on the side," the attorney said.

Darville will testify he was assigned to help reduce racial tensions in athletics and to improve academic standing, Lawton said, adding that Darville was to do this through encouragement and financial support to athletes.

Go Irish Beat SMU
It was 3:15 Thursday afternoon in Notre Dame men's tennis coach Bob Bayliss' office when Paul Odland, last year's No. 5 player, walked in and put on Bob Base's "It switc Two" over the PA system.

"Coach, can I put on this motivational music?" Odland asked Bayliss. "You'll love it," replied Bayliss. "The Irish Junior Invitational is in Madison, Wisconsin this weekend at Madison, Wis. The event gives us a chance to play some excellent teams in the Midwest regional powers as Georgia, Illinois, Miami, Texas, SMU and USC (whom we fell to 5-4 already) in dual matches this season."

The Irish will take all their motivation and more than two players to take on the top three Midwestern regional powers (Northwestern, Ball St. and host Wisconsin) in the Wisconsin Invitationals presented by Steve Herdoiza. "The big event earlier this year was the 1989 Rolex Regional No. 1 flight," said Odland. "The Irish boast one of the top three recruiting classes in collegiate tennis. The headliner of the show is the Irish's No. 3 player Chuck Coleman. Chuck is tremendously talented," said Bayliss. "He has great wheels. Chuck can hurt you off both wings, but we're working right wings I've ever played with, and Lou Zadro has no qualms about banging somebody around in the corners to get that puck.

"Bankoske and linemates Tim Kuehl are one of the great skaters, so we have to play solid defensive hockey." The Irish will depend on Bankoske and linemates Tim Kuehl (3 goals, 5 assists) and Lou Zadro to do most of the scoring this weekend. Bankoske credits Zadro and Kuehl for much of his success this season. "Without them, I would never see the puck," says Bankoske. "Tim Kuehl is one of the hard defense," said Bankoske. "They like to hit, and they have a lot of great skaters, so we have to play solid defensive hockey.

Irish fencers set to open season

Beginning their 1989-90 season, the Notre Dame men's and women's fencing teams will travel to University Park, Pa., this weekend for the Penn State Open.

The Irish will compete against fifty schools from both the U.S. and Canada, including traditional powerhouse schools such as Harvard, Pennsylvania, Columbia, and host Penn State.

"Though it is not the first collegiate event of the season," said Irish head coach Mike DeCicco, "it is the first college tournament of quality. This competition should serve as a yardstick for our progress."

DeCicco is entering his 29th season as head coach for the Irish. He guided the men's squad last season to a perfect 21-0 meet record, along with first place honors in the Great Lakes championships and an overall fourth-place finish in the nation.

For the first time in recent memory, the foil team will have to do without the services of graduated four-time All-American Yehuda Kevarcs, freshmen Noel Young and Jeff Fay, both Australian natives, appear ready to pick up some of the slack.

"Those two guys look like they will really be making a serious contribution," stated DeCicco.

In addition, the Irish foil team has some top returners in junior Phil Leary and senior foil captain Joel Clark. Senior Colin Fay, both NCAA championship participants last year, sophomore David Calderhead appears ready to pick up some of the slack.

The Irish epee team is wide open following the losses of seniors Todd Griffee and Ted Fay, both NCAA championship participants.

Returning from last season for the sabre team will be brothers Ed and Chris Baguer (captain), sophomore Mark Lawless, junior Dave Kirby and senior Dan Yu. Ed Baguer is just recently coming off competition in Cuba at the Junior Pan-Am Games. Also joining the squad as a Holy Cross Junior College transfer is James Taliaferro.

"While Jim is quick on the fencing strip, he's still not as disciplined," stated DeCicco. "But his athletic ability should make him very competitive. Ultimately, the newcomer should all be polished sabreurs."

The women's foil team comes off it's first season out of the top-two in the NCAs since Yves Aurial assumed the reigns, despite an 18-1 season record.

Fifth-year senior Kristin Kraileck brings much experience back to the year's team. Joining her are returners Heidi Piper (soph., Brisbane, Australia), Lynn Kadri (junior, Chatham, N.J.), and Tara Kelly (soph., Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.)

"Heidi Piper is fencing even a little better than last year, perhaps from the pressure that she knows that she will have to come through," said DeCicco. "She's definitely an integral part of our entire program."

The Irish also will look to senior captain Anne Barreda in Cuba at the Junior World Championships. Also joining the team was Taliaferro.

"I'm anxious to see how Anne will do after a full year off," said DeCicco. "She's certainly got the talent and experience."

NBC gets NBA package

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC took the NBA away from CBS Thursday with a $600 million, four-year contract that could push average pro basketball salaries into the $1 million range next season.

The NBA is in the final season of a four-year, $173 million deal with CBS, which refused to meet the league's new pricing.

"It's a big increase, but one I think is justified," NBA commissioner David Stern said. "This makes the owners and players very happy," said.

MILWAUKEE finally outlasts Seattle following five periods of overtime

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tony Brown's 3-point shot with 1:10 left in the fifth overtime put Milwaukee ahead to stay and the Bucks defeated the Seattle SuperSonics 155-154 Thursday night in the longest NBA game since the adoption of the 24-second clock 35 years ago.

With the score tied 146-146, the Bucks outscored the Sonics 9-0, starting with Brown's 3-pointer from the left corner and ending with 24 seconds remaining on Jeff Grayer's lay-up which made the score 155-146.

Ricky Pierce had a career-high 36 points for Milwaukee before fouling out in the first overtime. Alvin Robertson added 28 points. Dale Ellis scored a career-high 31 points for Seattle, including 20 in the five overtimes, and Xavier McDaniel added 35.

After Milwaukee's 9-0 run, Seattle countered with a 3-point basket by Dzanan, a free throw by Nate McMillan and Sedale Threatt's rebound which made it 155-152. Seattle had a chance to tie the game but McDonald's desperation 3-point shot missed. He was foiled by Humphries as time expired and his two free throws made it 155-154.

Knicks 107, Nets 105

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Oakley had 17 of his 22 points and 11 of his 18 rebounds in the second half and Patrick Ewing's dunk with 1:22 left gave New York its first lead of the game.

The Knicks, who trailed 62-42 in the final minute of the first half, came back from a 10-point deficit in the last nine minutes. They finally pulled ahead 106-105 on Ewing's dunk off an inbounds pass, giving him 20 points in the game. New Jersey got 21 points from Chris Morris and 20 from Dennis Hopson.

Nuggets 128,

Rockets 127

HOUSTON (AP) — Alex English hit an eight-foot jumper with four seconds left in overtime to give Denver the victory. Fat Lever had only one point, seven assists and four rebounds at halftime but finished with 18 points, 10 assists and 14 rebounds for his second consecutive triple-double.

Reserve forward Bill Hanzlik scored eight of his 16 points in the fourth quarter as the Nuggets outscored the Rockets 30-24 to force the overtime. Otis Thorpe and Akeem Olajuwon each scored 33 points for the Rockets, who led by 18 in the first half.

Lakers 106,

Warriors 95

OAKLAND, Calif. — A.C. Green scored 24 points and rebounded 10 times and Michael Cooper and Magic Johnson led a fourth-quarter Los Angeles runaway.

The Lakers took advantage of the absence of Warriors center Alton(Lister, out for the season with a ruptured Achilles tendon, to dominate the boards, 69-34, against their smaller opponents.

Johnson had 19 points, 10 rebounds and 10 assists and Cooper scored eight of his 11 points in the fourth quarter. Chris Mullin led the Warriors with 31 points and Mitch Richmond added 19.

Swim teams face Bowling Green after good performance in Relays

By JANICE ARCHER
Sports Writer

In their first road trip of the year, the Notre Dame men and women’s swimming teams will take on Bowling Green at 4 p.m. today. It will mark the 24th time the teams have competed against each other, with Bowling Green leading the series 16-7.

Based on their impressive performance in the Notre Dame Relays last Friday, the Irish are well prepared to meet the Falcons. The Notre Dame men recaptured the crown from Texas Christian University in the 25th anniversary of the event.

"It meant a lot to the team to win the title back for the silver anniversary," said captain Tom Broderick. "Well prepared to meet the Falcons. The Notre Dame men recaptured the crown from Texas Christian University in the 25th anniversary of the event.

"It was a water mark for me because this was my first away meet five years ago," said Welsh. "It will be interesting to see what our improvement has been in the last five years."

Over the six days of fall break, the swimmers logged 75,000 meters. They are building toward the National Catholic Meet, held at Fordham during the first week of December. The meet at Bowling Green today will allow them to find out just how much the grueling practices have helped them.

"Hopefully, we will see our hard training pay off," says Perez.

After the teams return, their practices will be tapered down in yardage and in intensity.

"We've got seniors who know it's their last shot," Notre Dame coach Biggie Phlegel said. "This team has a lot of confidence. I thought last year we really showed a lot of improvement as a basketball team as the season went along."

Flanner, Zahm in IH soccer finals

By CHRIS FILIO
Sports Writer

Defending champion Flanner will play Zahm A for the Inter-hall soccer title Sunday afternoon. The championship match is scheduled for 1 p.m. at Stepan Fields. Flanner and Zahm reached the finals after a week full of playoff action at the Stepan Fields.

On Tuesday, Dillon A knocked off previously unbeaten Zack, while Flanner went to the limit of their matches. Against Iowa, Illinois, and Northwestern, the Irish have fallen behind early, but rallied to push the match to five games before losing.

This type of match has proved to be very exciting in most aspects except in the win column.

"For us to win, we must focus our energy on ourselves," said Perez. "Whatever you can think of, they're good at."

The Notre Dame women's cross country team will face its last test of the season Saturday in the NCAA District Meet at Eastern Michigan University.

Having placed 15th in this meet last year, the Irish hope to fare better this year in an equally strong field.

"We'd like to improve from last year," said Irish coach Tim Connolly. "If every kid runs the race of their life, then it's possible we could be in the top 10, but that's what it will take."

Said senior captain Wendy Murray, "Our goal is to be in the top 10, but it's going to be a really competitive meet."

Murray added that the team's disappointing second-place finish at the MCC championships two weeks ago may help boost the team's performance at the upcoming meet.

"So on the team we want to end on a down note," said Murray. "We know that we can do better than we've done, and we're really looking forward to these practices since our last meet, and we're mentally ready for this race."

Connolly thinks it unlikely that any individual runners from Notre Dame will qualify for the NCAA district meet.

ND cross country teams ready for District Meets

Men are competing for berth to NCAAs

By MARY GARINO
Sports Writer

It's do or die time for the Notre Dame men's cross country team.

The Irish travel to Yoopers, Mich., this weekend to compete in the NCAA District IV meet on Saturday, hoping to earn a berth at the NCAA Championships in Boston next weekend.

The District Meet qualifies only four teams out of 39 to participate in the NCAAs, which means that unless the Irish finish in the top four tomorrow, they can hang up their sneakers for the rest of the year.

That doesn't seem like it would be any problem for the Irish, the ninth-ranked team in the latest national coaches' poll. But the competition may have other ideas.

The Irish are racing in the toughest district in the nation, with two teams besides Notre Dame ranked in the top 20, including Big Ten champion Wisconsin. The Badgers have won the national championship for the last two years, and should be the obvious favorites in Saturday's race.

Also vying for an NCAA berth will be Central Michigan, another top 20 team and the only race.

The Irish had been scheduled to play the Sibenik team from Yugoslavia, but a change for the Irish as they are scrappy and relentless.

Dave Bankoske

This goal-scoring outburst comes as a bit of a surprise to some of those familiar with Bankoske's style of play, as he had served primarily as a playmaker last year in his first season with the Irish.

The smooth-skating center made up his mind not to pass up scoring opportunities this season, however, and so far he has kept his vow.

"You can never score enough goals," comments Bankoske.

It's time for Dave Bankoske and the Notre Dame hockey team to switch gears.

After pouring in hapless Holy Cross by scores of 10-4 and 9-2 last weekend, Bankoske and his teammates will face a very tough Michigan-Dearborn squad in a home-and-home series this Friday and Saturday night.

The Irish will take on the Wolves tonight at 8:30 in the north dome of the Joyce ACC, and then travel to Dearborn for 7 p.m. matchup Saturday.

Bankoske, a sophomore center from Williamsville, N.Y., has started the season off with a bang. He leads the team in scoring with 10 points (7 goals, 3 assists) and recorded his first hat trick of his collegiate career by setting three goals against Holy Cross last weekend.

"We're facing a couple of very strong teams in the next two weekends, and chances will not be as plentiful, so I plan to take advantage of the scoring opportunities that I do have," states Bankoske, a gifted hockey player with the innate ability to score goals. "We need him to do just that - score goals - because he'll probably log more ice time than any other player this year."

Bankoske's goal-scoring prowess will be in great demand against Dearborn. The Wolves are struggling this year, and are coming off a weekend's 4-4 record and 15-match winning streak.

The Irish had been scheduled to play the Sibenik team from Yugoslavia, but a change in the conference schedule forced that team to cancel its contest for Notre Dame.

"They are a very gifted player from last season's 21-9 squad. Coach Schaefer has made up his mind not to pass up scoring opportunities that I do have," remarks Bankoske.

"You can never score enough goals," remarks Bankoske.
