Azerbaijani soldiers fire on Soviet troops

MOSCOW (AP) — M utinous military cadets in Azerbaijan fired on Soviet troops patrolling their capital Sunday, and tens of thousands of people mourned victims of a bloody crackdown on their republic's nationalist uprising.

The dozens of cadets, joined by comrades from the neighboring Caucasian republic of Georgia, battled sporadically throughout the day with Soviet soldiers at Baku's garrison and military academy. Arif Yunusov of the Azerbaijani Social Democratic Group reported.

The downtown garrison was the scene of some of the fiercest fighting when thousands of Soviet troops Saturday brake through barricades erected by militants and stormed Baku, the southern republic's capital.

Jahun Mulazade, a political scientist, said by telephone from his Baku apartment on Sunday night he could hear shooing at the garrison. He estimated about 200 Azerbaijani cadets, 50 Georgians and mem­ biers of other ethnic groups were fighting the soldiers.

Mutinous Azerbaijani sailors also reportedly exchanged gunfire with Soviet troops. Mu­ la­zade and Yunusov's wife, Lella, said that battle raged at the naval academy on the out­s kirts of Baku.

Occasional shots rang out elsewhere in the Azerbaijani capital Sunday, Yunusov and Radio Moscow said, but it appeared that fighting was concentrated at military posts.

Rebels threw grenades and Molotov cocktails at soldiers' military vehicles, the official news agency Tass said. A correspondent for Moscow's state­ run TV and radio service was briefly held hostage.

The interior Ministry reported 51 civilians and six soldiers dead, and 287 civilians wounded. Activists reported much higher figures, and Interior Ministry officials said they re­ toled too many conflicting accounts to confidently update their figures.

Foreign reporters were barred from Armenia and Azerbaijan, so it was difficult to reconcile the conflicting information.

Moscow sent thousands of troops and other forces to Baku after fighting flared between the Muslim Azerbaijanis and mainly Christian Armenians this month. The neighboring republics are locked in a decades-old dispute over the region of Nagorno-Karabakh, which is inside Azerbaijan but populated mainly by Armeniis.

A total 400-foot motor vessel sank 30 miles south of Petersburg in southeastern Alaska around 8 p.m. Saturday, said Lt. Rick Janelle in Juneau. One tank was ruptured but the leak was stopped by about 9 p.m., Janelle said.

The Canadian-owned ship refoated itself about 8:30 a.m. Sunday, around high tide, said Ed Moreth, another Coast Guard spokesman. It was taken in Juneau. One tank was ruptured but the leak was stopped by about 10 p.m., Janelle said.

The tanker's crew measured the amount of gasoline left in the two tanks. A spokesman for Exxon Corp. said it has spent $1 billion in response to the March 24 Exxon Valdez disaster which dumped 11 million gallons of gasoline into Alaska's Prince William Sound.

The Coast Guard has redirected its efforts away from the near­ sound to the fuel tanker that ran aground in a narrow channel in Alaska's scenic Inside Passage, spilling an estimated 57,600 gallons of gasoline, the Coast Guard said.

The spill was not expected to cause widespread environmental damage because gasoline evaporates quickly. Coast Guard and state environmental officials said.

INSIDE COLUMN

ND needs more class room, not classrooms

If I had an “A” for every time a professor walked into a Notre Dame classroom and said, “I would prefer this were a seminar class but since it is so large we will be covering the material by lecture,” I’d be a Rhodes scholar. Professors and students prefer small classes, but administrators don’t seem to like to schedule them. I realize the Delortato quad will cut down on classroom crowding, but it won’t make classes any smaller.

The facilities will only give students a bit more elbow room when they are lost in a pack of 85 or 100 others on a quest for a seat.

Unless the University takes steps now, the situation will only get worse, especially in the popular majors in the College of Arts and Letters. Many universities commonly have large classes, but Notre Dame has made its reputation on the attention it gives to undergraduates. Increasing class sizes seem to be reneging on a promise the University has always made to students, parents, alumni and supporters. Sure, other universities do it, but Notre Dame is not just another university.

One solution to increased class sizes is for the University to admit fewer students. But, financially speaking, this would not make much sense, considering that new residence halls that would be empty and would require a tuition increase.

Administrators could try a drastic move, such as cutting the number of credit hours needed to graduate and decreasing semester credit-hour loads. So instead of registering for crowded classes a semester, a student has four seminar classes. A University, however, should be a place to sample many different ideas. To decrease the number of classes would go against liberal education.

Professors could carry heavier class loads. This would of course be time away from research and writing, and these are too important to be overlooked.

The most feasible solution to large classes is more faculty. But the solution is not simple. Faculty, of course, come at a price and good faculty come at a high price. Compared to other private institutions, Notre Dame struggles to keep tuition costs down.

The University recently had a fundraising effort to finance new campus buildings. Now that we have the classroom space, let’s get the professors to fill it. The next fundraising campaign should not be for a new building but for more professors.

A well-ad might read, “Scholarly types wanted to occupy new classroom space. Great student body, athletic facilities and wonderfully variable climate.”

A prominent Haitian civil leader, considered the father of his country’s constitution, was forced into exile Sunday by the military regime, a day after it imposed a 9 p.m. curfew and arrested dozens of critics. Dr. Louis Roy, 74, founder of the Haitian Red Cross, was among several leaders arrested and ejected. Critics said the state of siege indicated Haitian ruler Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril plans to turn his regime into a dictatorship and renegotiate promises to hold free elections this year.

The mayor did not take questions and turned the podium to his close advisors to Barry several times on Friday and Saturday strategy sessions.

The sources said details on the mayor's agreement with Barry several times on Thursday evening at a downtown hotel in an FBI sting operation. The mayor was lured to the meeting because the meeting was so far out there being worked out.

Close advisors to Barry told The Associated Press on Saturday that the mayor has agreed to enter a drug treatment center.

"The issue never came up, because it is so far out there beyond what we are dealing with," said one aide who spoke with Barry several times on Saturday. "There is no reason for him to resign, because if he did, he would lose the powers of office, the influence, and the ability to generate money for his treatment program and his legal defense."

One Barry cabinet member suggested that prior grand jury testimony — in which the mayor has said he denied ever using drugs — prevented the mayor from making specific references to drug abuse in his short announcement Sunday. "I realize I'm going to have to walk this journey by myself," said Barry.

WASHINGTON (AP) — College freshmen are becoming more conservative about drugs and crime but more liberal about legalized abortion, environmental issues and student activism, according to a study released Sunday.

The 24th annual survey of entering college freshmen conducted jointly by UCLA's Higher Education Research Institute and the American Council on Education found an "abrupt change" in student attitudes about legalized abortions.

Support for legalization of abortion, which had remained fairly stable — between 53 percent and 59 percent — since 1977, jumped sharply between the 1988 and 1989 surveys, from 57 percent to 64.7 percent. "An abrupt change in student attitudes of this magnitude in just one year is most unusual," said Alexander Astin, professor of higher education at UCLA's Graduate School of Education and the survey's director.

He added that "it may well reflect the students' growing concern about the current Supreme Court's position on this highly charged topic."

The survey found the environment was the top concern, with six out of every seven of those questioned agreeing that "the federal government is not doing enough to control environmental pollution."

And, 78.2 percent of the students endorsed greater governmental efforts to control handguns — a new question asked for the first time in 1989.

Support for abolition of the death penalty continued its sharp decline, as did student use of drugs and alcohol. The survey found a growing tendency toward greater student activism.

"While student attitudes seem to be moving in a 'conservative' direction on the issues of drugs and crime, their views on most other issues are changing in a decidedly 'liberal' direction," said Astin.

The 1989 national survey is based on the responses of 216,362 students at 403 of the nation's two- and four-year colleges and universities. These data have been statistically adjusted to reflect the responses of the 1.6 million first-time, full-time students entering college as freshmen in the fall of 1989.

Congress prepares for budget fights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is bracing for partisan budget fights over defense spending, the tax system and tax breaks as President Bush prepares to unveil his proposed 1991 fiscal plan at month's end.

But sources say will call for $1.24 trillion in spending, is already being pared back by Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Boren, D-Okla., who offfersreassurance to the electorate's preference for a clean budget.

"This will be a dinosaur budget, a warm-over of what we've seen before," Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Boren, D-Okla., said recently. "It'll be the whole laundry list that Congress hasn't allowed for years."

For their part, Republicans are already showing that they will not be bound by the precedents of their own budgetary agenda this year. In a speech last week, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he would "demagogues" who are opposing his proposed tax cut. He vowed to push back the tax rate cut gains, which he claims will help the economy and pay for government coffers.

The higher pitched political rhetoric is being fanned by the White House, which said that this is an election year. With the entire House and one-third of the Senate up for re-election in November, members of the two parties plan to hit the voters hard, said an MCI spokesman there as a backup, said an MCI spokesman. The South Korean military is eager to buy Hummers because the vehicles used widely in the country by the U.S. 8th Army and has shown good reputation of Hummers per shift. The venture could add $15 million to AM General's annual revenues, he added.

When the United States Supreme Court last summer upheld the national law regulating legal abortion, pro-choice advocates counseled attacked immediately. They feared the Court might soon regulate abortion out of existence. Today, the spot, media broadcast their outrages from the courthouse steps; instantly the abortion debate cracked up three matches across the nation; and from the first day pro-life politicians, in fear of losing re-election, began to waffle.

Today, the atmosphere is charged with the abortion issue, with pro-choice on the attack, leveling in all directions its central, longest-lasting, core concern. The Supreme Court-backed argument that abortion falls within the realm of individual privacy and is therefore a matter of personal choice.

But this argument is so obviously false that it serves as an example of The Big Lie.

Who doesn't know that sexual union is not a private act? That pregnancy is not a private condition? That the consequences of abortion are never private?

Indeed, human sexuality is biologically anti-private. Nature propagates the species by driving individuals away from privacy and toward each other. In lovemaking, no matter the conditions, privacy is what the individual not only gives up but turns against. Humans are so deeply imprinted with sexual need that we are biologically forced to escape privacy by uniting with another. We can willingly forgo that union only with great sacrifice and demoralizing discipline; and to be forced unwillingly to forgo that union can be life's greatest tragedy. So obvious it is to say, love— is Nature's greatest gift precisely because in uniting individuals it brings life's greatest pleasure. Who doesn't know that? Who doesn't know that when you turn to another to make love, you give up privacy?

Who doesn't know, therefore, that no woman becomes pregnant in private? Who doesn't know that pregnancy is triune: that it necessarily and inescapably involves, directly, these beings: mother, father, and conceived child? Beyond the immediately triune, many others are involved indirectly, all the family relations that our culture, and that human culture since its beginning, recognizes, fosters, and safeguards; namely, all the new brothers, sisters, grandparents, aunts, uncles, and cousins created by every pregnancy. These relationships institute immediately a network of dependencies, obligations, privileges, and social interrelationships. A new or different family world is projected with every pregnancy.

So, too, is pregnancy not only biologically, psychologically, and culturally not private, but it is socially not private as well. Offspring are society's security against the future. A society's continued existence and well-being utterly depend on its children. Who doesn't know that?

From any point of view, then, pregnancy is not private. Neither is abortion private. Abortion impinges on others necessarily, at every level, from the inner circle of father, mother, and child to the entire social community of a nation and of humanity. Abortion destroys others. What can be more plain than that? A successful abortion may return the mother's body—to its private pregnancy state, but it obliterates altogether the existence of the conceived child. And it simultaneously and necessarily obliterates actual circumstances and a world of possibilities for everyone else involved.

Abortion is patently a communal event and therefore requires a communal decision. For anyone, including the Supreme Court of the United States, to make any decision whatever about abortion on the basis of privacy is both silly and lunatic.

Yet the court has done so, and many people support it, and millions upon millions of abortions have been and still are carried out. All on the basis of the privacy argument. And the real killer is that privacy itself pays an enormous price. Abortion based on privacy rights is the very enemy of privacy. An infant is put to death before he or she can begin to exercise his or her private right to chose whether to live or die. A pregnant woman is left on her own, having suddenly become a mother "privately," finding herself suddenly forced to bear the full responsibility, for all time, of the decision to either raise or slay her child.

The privacy argument gives the father complete freedom to abandon the woman he made pregnant, and to do so not only legally but without facing any of the pregnancy's biological, psychosocial, or social consequences. The father is free to walk away from a pregnancy with the blessing of the Supreme Court. On the other hand, individuals are brought into a new family relationship by a pregnancy, without any of those as much as informed of their new circumstances—not even the new grandmother or grandfather, parents of the pregnant woman, he that woman adult or teenager.

And the privacy argument generates laws, funding, facilities, and practices easily subject to economic and political manipulation, manipulation that enables an Establishment population to foster population control over poor and minorities, among whom most abortions per population take place, and to do so without fear of censure. Using the ideology of privacy to mask the realities of abortion has generated a plethora of privacy violations in areas of genuine privacy rights. Who doesn't know this?

We have not so much as questioned the privacy argument, or looked into its vast destruction of social, economic, political, and cultural privacy rights. The few who have stood up against violation of their privacy rights—the conceived children's fathers and grandparents who have tried to block an abortion—are virtually dismissed by the Courts' privacy-rights abortion ideology. Yet the complete and necessary forgiving and negating of privacy in intercourse, pregnancy, and abortion is so obvious to anyone who knows about the birds and the bees that, given the tens, if not hundreds, of millions of our aborted children, we now live with perhaps the biggest Big Lie ever propagated.

Dear Editor:

As a senior parent reflecting on the past year, I would like to encourage junior parents to attend Joint Parents' Weekend in February. It is a great time to meet your son's or daughter's friends and parents. It is indeed a cherished weekend in the memories of the Dons of the Class of 1990. The JPW is a "class act" and the weekend expresses what Notre Dame is all about—the family.

Parents, be a part of the Junior Parents' Weekend. It's a time you and your Dumb will treasure.

God is love. And they who abide in love, abide in God, and God in them.'

The man who fought off Shogun warriors, juggling his love for the Church and a young lady, and unraveled one of Ludum's best mysteries just graduated from medical school. Richard Chamberlain returns to television in "Island Son."

Airing at 9 p.m. on Thursdays on CBS, "Island Son" presents Chamberlain as Dr. Daniel Kulani, a respected physician and father in Hawaii. Recently widowed, Kulani struggles to uphold ethics and morale at his hospital while instilling these same qualities in his son Sam. (William McNamara.)

Set against the backdrop of beautiful Hawaiian scenery, this series explores many of the same topics tackled on other medical shows. Fortunately, the plotlines are always as fresh as a blooming hibiscus in May.

One storyline involves one of Sam's friends, Greg. Always thirsty and hungry, Greg discovers he has diabetes, but only after he collapses while riding his bike. Of course, Dr. Kulani helps Greg deal with the problem. Ironically, the focus of the show is not on Greg, but on Sam who is disturbed and upset by Greg's condition. It is interesting to watch as Sam withdraws from his friendship with Greg, gradually accepting the situation, and returns to Greg's side.

In the spirit of "Trapper John, M.D.," "Island Son" often presents lighthearted plotlines (No, not dancing Hula girls!) One story involves a friend of Kulani who is also Chief of Surgery. The doctor becomes ill and Kulani must take care of his friend. Ironically, the chief of surgery is a terrible patient and gradually drives the entire hospital staff nuts—probably Macadamia nuts since this is Hawaii.

One nice thing about the show is that it doesn't force the Hawaiian locale down the viewers' throats. There are no hula, surf contests or (sorry Brandy) voodoo idol mysteries. Rather, the show treats its viewers to a panoramic view of America's most beautiful state as the main plots unravel.

This attribute—as well as the others the show offers—are the result of Richard Chamberlain who produces the show and lives in Hawaii. He uses the show to share the beauty of his home state with the viewers.

Of course, Chamberlain has proven his acting ability time and time again. His portrayal of Dr. Kulani is impeccable. He seems quite at home standing amid the surfers and surfboards, surfing and surfing through his operations.

For example, when Greg says he doesn't like having to give himself insulin shots, that he doesn't like being different, Kulani says that everyone is different; that's what makes being human so great. No, that's what gives TV a bad name. Come on. No doctor would use that as an explanation and no patient would accept it.

In short, "Island Son" is an excellent show that needs some sharpening, mainly in the form of Kulani's dialogue. Besides this hairline fracture in "Son's" structure, the show is smart and fresh. "Island Son" is in perfect health.

The tropical beauty of Hawaii provides the backdrop for Dr. John Kulani's struggles to balance a hectic professional career with the responsibility of raising his son Sam Kulani (William McNamara).

McEnroe's temper prompts ejection from Australian Open MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — So much for Mr. Nice Guy.

John McEnroe, still crazy after all these years, threw his racket and a tantrum Sunday at the Australian Open and became the first player tossed out of a Grand Slam event for misconduct.

He let himself get rattled by missed shots, called a ball and a baby's cries, and after that, with a 6-1, 6-3, 2-6, 4-6 record against Pernfors, McEnroe admitted, "I don't really have anyone to blame but myself."

It was a sad and bizarre chapter in the career of one of the finest players in tennis, a 30-year-old former champion who came here hoping to win his first major tournament since the 1984 U.S. Open.

Defending champions Ivan Lendl and Steffi Graf came unusually sloppy play earlier Sunday while American amateur sensation Angela Gavaldon kept rolling to the quarterfinals.

Gavaldon, an18-year-old from Coronado, Calif. who entered as a qualifier ranked 192, upset 15th-seed Gigi Fernandez 6-3, 1-6, 6-2. Gavaldon, who overcame two-time champion Hana Mandlikova in the third round, next meets West German Claudia Porwitz, who beat South African Disi Van Rensburg 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

Lendl, who was 46 errors yet never threatened in beating Australian Simon Youl 6-1, 6-3, 6-1, Unseeded Soviref Andrei Chernov upset No. 9 Andres Gomez of Ecuador 2-6, 6-3, 7-6 (8-6), 7-6 (7-5).

Graf started with an ace and ended another one to notch her 45th straight victory, 6-2, 6-3, after battling Raffaella Reggi. Helena Sukova, who lost the 1989 finals against Graf, ended the surprising surge of Japan's Kimiko Date 6-4, 6-3.

But the McEnroe episode overshadowed all other play on Sunday.

Only two days before, after winning his third match and playing his best tennis in years, McEnroe talked about how important it is for him to keep his temper under control.

Yet all it took for McEnroe to revert to his old ways was a tough match against Pernfors, the Swedish-born two-time NCAA champion at Georgia.

McEnroe won the first set easily, but as Pernfors picked up his game in the second set, McEnroe became increasingly agitated. After netting a short drop shot, he smashed the ball on the ground as if it were an annoyance.

He smashed another ball after a missed forehand and nearly hit a ballboy. He asked for new balls before serving the 10th game, complaining the old ones were dead, but was broken for the set—his third straight break—on Pernfors' backhand volley of a shallow lob.

McEnroe slammed a ball in the air after a miss in the first game of the third set and almost hit a linesman when he thought made a bad call.

Bouncing a ball on his racket and glancing at her in intimidating fashion, McEnroe was assessed a code violation for unsportsmanlike conduct by umpire Gerry Armstrong.

McEnroe argued with Armstrong, then returned to play, finally Double faulted, and went on to take the set.

He seemed to be in control of the match and himself again, but suddenly became distracted by a crying baby while serving his racket on the court. At deuce, McEnroe hit another forehand wide, then smashed the court again with his racket, cracking the head slightly.

Armstrong asked the parents to take the baby out of the stadium, and after the mother and baby left, a fan yelled, "Can we breathe, John?"

McEnroe fell behind 15-30 on his racket on the court. At deuce, McEnroe hit another forehand wide, then smashed the court again with his racket, cracking the head slightly.

Armstrong asked the parents to take the baby out of the stadium, and after the mother and baby left, a fan yelled, "Can we breathe, John?"

American John McEnroe was disqualified from the 1990 Australian Open this weekend because of his constant verbal abuse of the line judges. McEnroe, at the time of disqualification, was beating Michael Pernfors in the semifinals of the Grand Slam event.

The sixth game, with Pernfors a wide forehand and then another one to break ahead 3-2.

"Give him a drink, the boy's hungry," McEnroe yelled, looking up in the section of the stands where the baby was crying.

Armstrong asked the parents to take the baby out of the stadium, and after the mother and baby left, a fan yelled, "Can we breathe, John?"

Armstrong upset the match and himself again, and McEnroe responded by swatting at him and asking for Ken Farrar, the Grand Slam chief of supervisors. Farrar came onto the court and talked with McEnroe, but the American continued complaining and restrained his four-letter words clearly audible.

Armstrong, with Farrar's approval, called, "Code violation, further abuse, default. Mr. McEnroe, game, set, match."

Farrar later described McEnroe's baraguge as the most vile language he'd ever heard in a tennis match.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware says he may change his mind and skip his senior season at Houston to join the NFL.

"There's always the possibility of things changing," he said. "If I explore some things and find out that it's better for my mind and skip my senior season next, it's certainly a possibility that the NFL will make exceptions."

"We'll have to clarify the rule," Tagliabue said. "It will involve some liberalization, but it will also involve drawing a line below which we would not make exceptions."

"If I explore some things and find out that it's better for my mind and skip my senior season next, it's certainly a possibility that the NFL will make exceptions," Ware said.

However, Ware said he would return to school if he had to make a decision right now.

"A lot has transpired over the past two weeks, but right now I have every intention of going back to school," he said. "If I want to pursue other things, that's something I can certainly do when the time comes."

"I don't want to rush other things, I just want to pursue other things," Ware said. "I will make exceptions."

"If I were to explore all the possibilities — and I'm sure there may come a point in time when I want to do that — I will pursue it and see what's out there for Andre," Ware said.

Weekend action proves to be upsetting to top collegiate teams; Kansas fails to Tigers

(AP) - First, top-ranked Kansas took the pipe. Then, No. 3 Oklahoma. Later, second-ranked Georgetown and No. 5 Syracuse fell by the wayside, and so did sixth-ranked Michigan and No. 7 Illinois.

Six of the nation's top 10-ranked teams lost on Saturday, and that left a lot of room at the top in college basketball.

No. 4 Missouri defeated previously unbeaten Kansas State 78-87 at Columbia, Mo., and probably will assume the top spot when rankings come out on Tuesday.

"I'd rather be No. 3," Missouri guard Lee Coward said. "When you're No. 1, you're setting yourself up to be knocked off."

Connecticut beat Georgetown 70-65, and that left the nation without a major unbeaten. No. 23 Arizona beat No. 3 Oklahoma 78-74, and Syracuse fell 87-86 to Providence. Iowa beat Michigan 78-76 in overtime, and No. 24 Purdue whipped Illinois 81-68.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 8 Duke 97, Wake Forest 69; No. 10 Louisville 66, Memphis State 69; No. 12 Arkansas 100, Texas A&M 84; No. 13 LSU 87, Notre Dame 64; No. 15 St. John's 65, Boston College 59; No. 17 La Salle 64, Holy Cross 81; No. 18 Oregon State 70, Washington 63; North Carolina 91, No. 19 N. Carolina State 81; No. 20 Xavier, Ohio 83; St. Louis 74, No. 21 Loyola Marymount 131, Portland 106, and No. 22 Minnesota 83, Ohio State 78.

Sunday's schedule had No. 11 Georgia Tech at Virginia, No. 13 LSU at No. 25 Alabama and No. 16 UCLA at California. No. 4 Missouri 70, No. 1 Kansas 65.

Doug Smith scored 19 of his 23 points in the second half and Missouri rallied past Kansas (19-1). Missouri trailed by as many as nine points in the first half and Kansas was up 46-43 at intermission.

The Tigers (17-1) took the lead with 17 minutes left as Smith and Anthony Peeler combined for 17 of Missouri's final 18 points.

"At halftime there were a lot of sad faces," said Peeler, who scored 24 points.

Connecticut 70, No. 2 Georgetown 65

"The No. 1 ranking is the least of my concerns," Georgetown coach John Thompson said. "The only positive thing about the loss is we can get away from that stuff."

Connecticut made seven of its eight free throws in the final 1:04 for the victory at the Hartford Civic Center. Nadav Honewolf's 3-pointer with 3:46 left broke a 68-68 tie, and the Huskies (15-3) did not trail again.

Connecticut now has beaten Syracuse and Georgetown in the Big East. The Hoyas fell to 14-1.

No. 23 Arizona 78, No. 3 Oklahoma 74

Sean Rooks and Jud Buechler each had 18 points as Arizona won at Tucson, where the Wildcats (11-3) have won 41 in a row. After averaging 122.2 points per game, Oklahoma (12-2) has scored just a total of 125 points in two straight losses.

Hattfield named Clemson coach despite players' protest

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Ken Hattfield of Arkansas accepted the head coaching job at Clemson on Sunday, and a threatened player boycott was averted after he met with the team.

Hattfield, who coached the Razorbacks for six years and led them to the Cotton Bowl the past two seasons, replaces Danny Ford, who resigned Thursday, less than two weeks after the NCAA accused Clemson of recruiting violations.

"We understand it's a very difficult situation and time, but I promise you that things will work out," he said.

"There's nothing that can't be accomplished if everybody's part of the team and you're part of something that's bigger than yourself," said Clemson athletic director Bobby Robinson.

It took a person of "great strength and fortitude and confidence" to take the job following the NCAA investigation and the uproar surrounding Ford's resignation.

"We looked and we talked to a lot of people. The name that we always kept coming to was Ken Hattfield," Robinson said.

NEW ORLEANS - Perhaps Notre Dame's Keith Towser best described playing against Louisiana State's mammoth front line of Shaquille O'Neal and Stanley Roberts.

Towser, "We were leaning on them, pushing them, holding them and grabbing them. It took all of that to move them an inch."

That duo of O'Neal and Roberts lifted the 13th-ranked Tigers over the Irish 87-64 Saturday in the Superdome and posted some amazing statistics.

Roberts, 7-foot and 285 pounds, scored 18 points and pulled down nine rebounds, while O'Neal, 7-foot-1-inch and 286 pounds, had 17 points and a game-high 13 boards. And for complementary measures, the Tigers threw in six-foot seven-inch forward Wayne Sims, who scored eight points and had three rebounds.

The LSU front line outmusclecd Notre Dame inside for most of the afternoon. The push, shoved and fought for position under the basket. Not only did they usually get the position, but they also got rave reviews from the Notre Dame players.

"Those two guys are the biggest guys I've ever seen," Notre Dame's Keith Robinson said. "It was a very physical game. We had seen tapes of them, but it was different actually going out on the floor against them."

Said Towser, "That's probably the best front line in the country. They're so physically strong and it's not that they've got only one strong player. They've got two of them. It was frustrating just because they were executing better than we were."

The Irish came into the game outrebounding opponents by more than nine boards per contest. The Tigers made that a 25-rebound difference, taliyng 41 boards to just 25 for the Irish.

Notre Dame tried a variety of defenses to counter Roberts and O'Neal, but nothing seemed to work. The duo also shined on the defense end, blocking five Irish shots.

"They did a good job of getting the ball inside," Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps said. "We didn't do a good job of doubtful down on the past feeds. They just intimidate you when you go inside."

Roberts and O'Neal made 17 of 21 shots, O'Neal converting to score LSU's first six points. When Ellis hit a three-pointer to tie the game at 14-14, O'Neal responded with a three-point play for a 17-14 Tiger advantage.

But their biggest contribution came in the form of a basket that may not have been a basket. With 5:04 to play, Roberts drew the third foul on Robinson.

"I think I got kind of frustrated because I was trying to establish position inside," Robinson said. "There was a lot of pushing inside. In the second half, I thought I could get things going again."

Roberts and O'Neal kept things going in the second half. O'Neal opened the half with a lay-up and then drew the fourth foul on Robinson. When Notre Dame cut the lead to 52-40 - the smallest margin of the second half - it was Roberts who quieted the rally with a quick basket and four foul shots.

With the score 59-46, Roberts scored six straight Tiger points, the final a reverse slam in the transition game that put an exclamation point on the afternoon for LSU.

With over 44,000 fans in attendance and millions more watching on national television, Roberts and O'Neal made a strong case for being the best frontcourt duo in college basketball.

And few Irish players would argue with that on Saturday.
LSU-ND matchup helps the homeless; Money headed to South Bend and New Orleans

By GREG GUFFEY
Assistant Sports Editor

NEW ORLEANS - Louisiana State won the basketball game 87-64 over Notre Dame Saturday in the Superdome.

But the winners of the bigger game were America's homeless, who will benefit from the proceeds of the basketball contest. A record of 68,112 paid to see the game, while 44,233 fans actually attended the game.

"Nobody loses when it comes to the homeless," Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps said. "Don't be misled by the box score of who scored and who won. Understand the other box score.

"We've been on the road the past two weeks and we've seen it (homeless). Until we get our resources together, we have got a serious problem."

The game was billed as "Hoops That Help." Comic Relief, an organization made up of the best known comedic types in the country, assisted in promoting and coordinating the event. Comic Relief has raised and distributed more than $8.3 million dollars to homeless men, women and children.

Saturday's game should result in thousands of dollars to help the homeless problem. Homeless centers in South Bend and New Orleans will receive $50,000 each from the game, while millions more raised through ticket sales and phone pledges will go to centers across the country.

Making this cause even more special is that Notre Dame is one of the few - maybe the only - universities to own and operate a homeless center. Notre Dame operates Center for the Homeless in South Bend.

"I don't think a lot of the people just come to see Notre Dame play LSU," said Father Steve Newton, the first director of the center in South Bend and rector in Sorin Hall. "It's great to see a basketball team go beyond themselves and realize it's only a game."

Father Newton, who also accompanied the team to New Orleans, estimates that almost 3,000 people are homeless in the South Bend area. The local center opened in December of 1988 and offers a variety of services, including shelter, medical clinics, a mental health center, job training, legal services, educational programs and food services.

Father Newton, who oversaw the beginning of the center and has since relinquished his duties as director, says the center has had a positive effect on the South Bend community.

"I think it's helped in a lot of ways," he said. "It helped the community realize the problem and it began to directly help the homeless themselves. It helped people look for solutions to the problem."

And with creative ideas like Saturday's basketball game, help and aid should continue for America's homeless.

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 42 points and the Chicago Bulls extended their franchise-record home winning streak to 15, holding off the New York Knicks 117-mixed in a three-point play to give the Bulls a 103-91 lead with five minutes left. Gerald Wilkins hit two straight 3-pointers and Ken

Walker added a basket to chop the lead to 111-105 with 1:19 left. The Knicks came within four points before Jordan hit four free throws in the last 21 seconds.

New York’s Patrick Ewing

Lemieux, rising to the occasion of the first NHL All-Star game in his home

He scored just 21 seconds into the game and twice more before the first period ended in a record seven-goal splurge as the Lemieux added his fourth
