ND hosts first annual Catholic College conference

By JOHN CRONIN
Assistant News Editor

That's the name given to the first annual Catholic College conference. Weakened by its name, it may appear to be a rather academic and esoteric topic. However, the future of the Church should not be an aggresive evangelizing of the world, as if Catholics have all the answers, but rather a humble approach that includes open dialogue, according to Weakland.

The perception of the world is changing resulting in a blending of theology and sciences, a yearning for a new moral code,Weakland added.

The Iceberg Debates are an annual Notre Dame Iceberg Debates to student become involved, if not by discussion on many important topics of social justice, said Heft. The debates are "places where all ideas can be examined, and maybe even reject, the tradition that has formed their ideals."

"As we begin to reevaluate that heritage, I sense that there is a new role for faith and religion which we haven't experienced before," stated Weakland.

"The disinvestment lobby has given a keynote address titled "Search for Truth: Catholics in Higher Education" Friday at the National Association of Students at Catholic Colleges and Universities conference.

"The legalizion of drugs will be the topic debated in the first two rounds of the second annual Notre Dame Iceberg Debates which begins tonight throughout the dorms."

The central idea is not so much of a debate competition, but rather an exhibition of how debating works while opening discussion on many important topics of social justice, said Matthew Thiel, chairman of the debates.

"Our goal this year is to concentrate on having every student become involved, if not by debating, then at least by watching the debates or merely discussing the issues on their own," said Thiel.

Every dorm has a four-person team consisting of two from the dorm, one from campus, and another from the opposite sex. Each team will compete in their specified place tonight at 7 p.m.

The second round, also at 9 p.m., will be on Wednesday. The resolution for both the first and second rounds is "That the use of narcotic drugs should be made legal in the United States." The reason that the first two rounds will have the same topic is that the debates are close together and it would be difficult for the teams to re-

models in training

Members of the Black Cultural Arts Festival practice their modeling stance for their upcoming fashion show Sat. Feb. 10.
Americans not always appreciative

1989 was a year of great change, and 1990 may make change a world trend. Just this year, formerly staunch Communist governments were voted out of power, millions of oppressed people in Eastern Europe became free, and thousands of Soviets got their first taste of McDonald's fast food. In case anyone missed it, McDonald's opened its first restaurant in the Soviet Union last Wednesday. This latest venture makes the USSR the fifty-second country with a McDonald's.

The CBS Evening News thought the event so important that Dan Rather flew to Moscow to broadcast from the new McDonald's on Thursday, the same night as the State of the Union address. On its first day, the world's largest McDonald's served up 30,000 meals. The fare approximated American fast food as closely as possible, with "gamburgers" (the Russian alphabet has no "h"). "chizburgers" and "Filip-o-feesh" sandwiches.

Comparisons aside, thousands of Muscovites waited in line for hours to pay up to $6 for a "Bong Mak." You wouldn't pay half that much for a Big Mac anywhere in the United States. Americans could learn a few things from the Russians in the New World, such as patience and appreciation. Most of us do not realize how lucky we are.

Imagine ordering a Big Mac, fries and a Coke at a McDonald's in, say, Chicago, and getting a bill for $16.

No self-respecting American would pay it. Now imagine going to the same restaurant and having to wait in line for an hour.

No American who ever ate fast food would accept longer than 15 minutes. Nevertheless, the Soviets who lined up to get a taste of American culture didn't mind waiting for hours and paying lots of money. Moreover, they were happy to do it. In a country where convenience is expected and options are standard, there should be few complaints. But some Americans are never satisfied; everything must be their way.

That doesn't mean, of course, that we should accept everything as it happens. Americans should grumble less than they do; they shouldn't expect things to always turn out their way.

Americans, by birth or naturalization, do not have an ineradicable right to expect anything. Expectation is more than mouthing in line and taking convenience for granted. Americans should be thankful that they can eat Grade A Egg McMuffins and stir Half n Half into fresh coffee.

The opinions expressed in the Inside columns are the author's and not necessarily those of The Observer.
ND SafeWalk begins escort service tonight

By KELLEY TUTHILL  Assistant News Editor

SafeWalk, Notre Dame’s student escort service, will make its trial run tonight.

According to Gina Mahoney, coordinator of Notre Dame SafeWalk, the service will operate seven days a week. The hours are 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. Sunday through Thursday, and 7 p.m. to 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

The original idea was to run the service five nights a week, but Mahoney said that the resources were available so the service was expanded.

"The service will include the parking lots and Senior Bar," said Mahoney. "We prefer to escort one or two people, male or female, but it is our policy to never turn anybody down.

The escorts will operate in pairs and will wear bright blue reflective vests and will carry flashlights, Mahoney said. They will also carry radios which will be monitored by Notre Dame Security.

Each night there will be a dispatcher who operates from the Information Desk in LaFortune Student Center. The phone number for the service is 283-BLUE, according to Mahoney.

In addition to calling SafeWalk, students may get an escort by simply going to the desk in LaFortune, or ask an escort while he or she is patrolling the campus.

A minimum of four escorts will be on duty each evening, she said. On certain nights and certain shifts, there will be three or more pairs of escorts.

The service presently employs 48 paid escorts and has several volunteers, including 20 Eagle Scouts of Notre Dame, said Mahoney.

Mahoney said, "Senior Jim Schilder has been a tremendous help." Schilder is co-coordinator of Notre Dame SafeWalk, and student representative to the University ad-hoc committee on parking.

The escorts were trained to be extra eyes and ears on campus by Phil Johnson, assistant director of Security. If escorts notice anything out of the ordinary while on the job they are instructed to call Security.

Training for the escorts occurred during a two-hour information session in which policies and guidelines for the service were discussed. All escorts are expected to be familiar with SafeWalk’s handbook of policies and guidelines, she said.

Although the escorts have certain duties, they "are not authorized to act in a confrontational way," said Mahoney.

The Observer

A two-page personal statement and a résumé must be submitted to Alison Cocks by 5 p.m. Friday, February 9.

If you’re interested, call
Regis Coccia at 239-5313.

The Observer

Applications are now being accepted for the following positions:

Managing Editor  Business Manager

News Editor  Advertising Manager
Sports Editor  Ad Design Manager
Accent Editor  Production Manager
Viewpoint Editor  OTS Manager
Saint Mary’s Editor  Controller
Photo Editor  Art Director
Systems Manager

A two-page personal statement and a résumé must be submitted to Alison Cocks by 2 p.m. Monday, February 12.

Half Of This Years Medical School Class Got There With Our Help.

Class size is limited. Reserve your place as soon as possible!

1717 E. South Bend Ave.
South Bend, IN 46637
PHONE 219/272-4135

The Observer

The Observer, G. Bailey

ND to send card to senior needing surgery

By LIZ HOLTZ  News Writer

To show support from the Notre Dame community, a group of students will be circulating a large card around campus for signatures to send to Carlos Petrozzi, a senior at Notre Dame who has been diagnosed with a type of cancer called medullo blastoma.

Petrozzi will undergo a second bone marrow transplant in May. His sister, Ursula, who matches his tissue antigens perfectly, will be the donor for the second time.

Notre Dame accounting professor James Ward, who started the project, said, "The goal is to have every Notre Dame student sign the card. There will be multiple pages and different sheets will go to each dorm and possibly to LaFortune for off-campus students."

Matt Breslin, student body president, stressed that the entire student body is needed. "It is really important that everyone supports this project. Student Government is one hundred percent behind it," said Breslin.

The Hall President’s Council is the means of communication Breslin hopes to use for information regarding when and where the card will be available for signing.

"The Administration doesn’t give the students enough credit, and there is so much energy that the students will rally and get the card signed because the students are the ones doing all the work," said Ward.

Petrozzi’s younger twin sisters, Claudia and Ursula, sophomores at Notre Dame, will be transporting the card from Notre Dame to Bloomfield Hills, Michigan.

Petrozzi was diagnosed as having medullo blastoma in June 1985. It is a tumor that originates in the cerebellum (cerebellum) that can spread outside of the nervous system. Petrozzi presently has no evidence of nervous system involvement, but has developed metastasis (cancer) around the right shoulder.

Currently, Petrozzi is undergoing chemotherapy that will be followed by local radiation therapy in the right shoulder. This will eventually lead to massive chemotherapy with bone marrow rescue (transplant) for the second time. A bone marrow transplant is the only hope for cure for this tumor.

Claudia Petrozzi expressed the magnitude of the role the students will play in the following months. "I believe the role of the students is much larger than most realize. My brother’s spirit will be incredibly lifted by this effort, a unity that symbolizes the Notre Dame family. Carlos depends on this family and needs it in order to help him successfully continue to battle the cancer."

The organizers of the large card drive for signatures hope this will remain a secret to Carlos until the card is delivered to him. People are welcome to send Carlos cards directly, but it would be appreciated if the large card was not mentioned.

Cards may be sent to Carlos Petrozzi, 5887 Woodcreek Way, Bloomfield Hills, MI 48013.
Conference finale centers around future

By MICHAEL OWEN
News Writer

The University of Notre Dame wrapped up the first-annual conference of the National Association of Students at Catholic Colleges and Universities (NASCCU) with a "General Session on the Academic Freedom Document." Sunday's meeting began with the committee's Kristi Kercher of the University of Dayton and its newly elected Vice-President Dave Averill of John Carroll University outlining upcoming plans for the group and its regional conferences.

First on the agenda was a survey that was passed out to the members that asked for ideas for the group's position paper that will be published and ideas for future work. The surveys will be returned February 23, edited, and finalized before NASCCU's National Conference in 1991.

Kercher said, "what we'd like to do is utilize our research persons by giving them four or five new topics to research this year." After a majority vote, the committee deleted such suggested topics as clergy versus lay professors, tuition, reviewing NASCCU's constitution, spirituality at a Catholic institution, and career choices.

Likewise Catholic laypeople have their own set of fears, said Weakland. He acknowledged the serious fear of academic freedom, the topic of the weekend's conference. He said that he senses that young people fear the Church is keeping certain knowledge from them.

In order to overcome fear and cope with the world Weakland said that Catholics must not divide themselves into "structure and hierarchy," laypeople and clergy.

"Laypeople are just as responsible for the faith as I am. We will never get anywhere if we are 'we and they' in the Church," stated Weakland. "We must be 'we.'"
B. Despite the complete lifting of the 3.5year-old state of emergency, Mrs. Mandela said that there was no plan to release her husband from prison in 1988 because renewal of emergency regulations might have been in retaliation for the government's endorsement of reforms announced by President F.W. de Klerk.

Mandela met with his wife, Winnie, on Sunday, two days after the government lifted numerous restrictions on the anti-apartheid movement. After the meeting, she appealed for renewed pressure on the government to force the lifting of remaining emergency restrictions.

"Unfortunately, the obstacles that were in the way, which prevented de Klerk from acting on Friday, still exist," Mrs. Mandela said after the four-hour visit at the Victor Verster prison farm. "It... doesn't depend on him when he's going to call me back," she said. But in answer to repeated questions about the obstacles, she said Mandela still demands the complete lifting of the 3.5-year-old state of emergency. But de Klerk partly lifted the emergency in a historic speech Friday in which he legalized the African National Congress, placed a moratorium on executions and lifted restrictions on hundreds of individuals and scores of anti-apartheid organizations.

"He has taken many, but not all, of the conditions the ANC and Mandela had set for the start of negotiations to end apartheid and give the voiceless black majority a voice in the government. Under the emergency regulations that remain in effect, the government can detain anyone for up to six months without charge, police have wide powers to ban meetings or speeches and restrict television or photo coverage of their own actions in dealing with political unrest.

"Mandela, 71, was jailed in 1962 and is serving a life sentence for planning the start of the ANC's sabotage and bombing campaign against the government. De Klerk said the government will free Mandela as soon as possible. He mentioned safety and potential legal complications as reasons for what he said would be a short delay.

"The onus is on Mr. de Klerk," Mrs. Mandela told reporters. "We are going to back to where we have to put pressure on the government."

Mandela was preparing a speech to Parliament, but she didn't know when it would be made public because "he is the prisoner," she said.

"Suffice to say, I am, of course, extremely disappointed," she said after leaving for Johannesburg.

On her return to Johannesburg, Mrs. Mandela said the document being prepared by her husband, de Klerk's speech would indicate the considerable substance under which he would be released. "In that statement, he will also indicate what his extension of the period is," she said.

Sunday newspapers reported that sources close to the African National Congress are saying the government's announcement is discussing a prisoner with de Klerk's plan.

Those convicted of violent crimes, including participation in the ANC's sabotage campaign that killed 40 people and injured 680 over the past three years, would not be freed, according to de Klerk's plan.

Jesse Jackson calls for de Klerk's abolition of apartheid

LONDON (AP) — Jesse Jackson said Sunday that the ANC would not be accepted internationally until South Africa will not be accepted internationally until the white-led government of President F.W. de Klerk abolishes apartheid.

"De Klerk cannot stop now," the U.S. civil rights leader said in a sermon at St. James' Anglican church in Piccadilly, London. "The Klerk must continue beyond his resignation to bring about a democratic, open, non-racial South Africa."

Nelson Mandela band alone. When she emerged from the meeting, a few excited local black residents shouted "Viva, Mandela," and danced with joy. A small squad of prison guards in brown fatigues with automatic rifles stood guard at the gate.

With our new hourly service to and from O'Hare and Midway, we'll get you there sooner and won't keep you waiting to come home.

United Limo has always given you the lowest regular rate and from O'Hare and Midway airports in Chicago. Now we also have the best connections. With service every hour of every day from 4 a.m. to 12 midnight.

No longer will you have to wait without a free ride on an unfamiliar and unfriendly airport terminals. With our new hourly service, you can make easy departure connections. And chances are there will always be a United Limo bus ready and waiting for you within minutes of your arrival.

So make a resolution for yourself. Don't put up with that extra wait any longer. Travel in comfort and get where you want to go sooner. With United Limo.

NASCCU continued from page 1

not full-fledged universities.

Catholic universities, Heft argued, are "truly inclusive of all forms of knowledge."

NASCCU's proposed document on academic freedom states: "If the Church has confidence in its Dogma and Doctrines, it should not be afraid to allow challenges and opposing views so that this sacred heritage may be clarified and understood alongside its teachings. The rational mind will then have the freedom to search out and discover the truth from unbiased opinions."

A Catholic university does not necessarily profess a singular idea, but rather a "broad range of reality," Heft explained. Catholicism is "inclusive and centrist, accommodating," but students have an obligation to explore other ideas. "We must allow religion and honesty (in other disciplines) to coexist."

"There will be serious difficulties," Heft said, "but the American concept of academic freedom is modified by Catholic universities. Heft was clear that the group, comprised of student representatives from almost 30 Catholic universities around the country.

"We are in the process of creating history," Heft said to NASCCU's members, referring to how they could change the concept of academic freedom at their respective Catholic universities. "Never underestimate the impact you (as students) can have."

Catholics represent the last religious group to be admitted to universities and colleges, Heft noted, adding that Catholics are also the most influential of all religious groups. "There are obligations as well as freedom from your privileges."
Breslin asks students to complete FCEs

By MONICA YANT

Byline Writer

Faculty course evaluations will allow students to voice their opinions about how classes are conducted, and possibly give professors incentive to change their teaching style, said Student Body President Matt Breslin.

The evaluations are due tomorrow and should be placed in the receptacles in dorm lobbies.

The results of the evaluations will be published in a booklet to help students choose their classes. Remarks reflecting the general opinion of a professor will be included. Quotes indicating specific problems or compliments may also be published. If opinions are divided about a particular instructor, both sides will be presented, Breslin said.

Debate

continued from page 1

search two individual topics in part aicular instructor, both purposes, whereas the faculty course evaluations will be tabulated for students' benefit.

The idea behind the evaluations is that professors will be motivated to correct any negative image that may appear in the written booklet. "If no one signs up for a professor's class, maybe he will get the hint," Breslin said.

The evaluations were resurrected this year after attempts last year failed due to lack of student response. The concept could be dropped all together if unsuccessful again this year, he said.

The evaluations are a project of Student Government's Intellectual Life and Academic Concerns departments.

The quarter-final will be Feb. 21, the semi-final is on Feb. 27, and the final championship round will be on March 7 before Spring break competing for $500 and $250 for the first runner-up.

"These debates are important not only because of their campus-wide competitive nature, but also because they are an open forum for important issues of social justice," said Thiel.

If you have a car and want to make money, call Regis Coccia at 239-5313 about becoming part of the team that brings the news to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's.

The Observer

wants you!

If you have a car and want to make money, call Regis Coccia at 239-5313 about becoming part of the team that brings the news to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's.
Liberal Yugoslavians reject Communists

LIUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Slovenia’s liberal Communists on Sunday broke away from the national Communist Party and declared that they no longer recognize the institution that has ruled Yugoslavia since World War II. The move followed disputes over the pace of democratic reform and a virtual trade war between the relatively affluent republic of Slovenia and archrival Serbia, the largest and most populous of Yugoslavia’s six republics.

The break from the national party by the Slovenian party was the first formal party schism since the Communists took power in 1945.

In Sunday’s emergency meeting, the Slovenian party also changed its name and called for the release of all political prisoners, an end to all political trials and immediate talks between Yugoslav Communists and leaders of newly formed opposition parties.

Slovenia’s Communist Party president, Ciril Ribicic, said the new party was not seeking secession from Yugoslavia but the establishment of a Yugoslav confederation that restricts central authority. “This is the end of the League of Communists of Yugoslavia, in which Slovenian Communists had the status of an unequal minority,” said Ribicic, using the formal name of the national party.

The national party “doesn’t exist any more for us,” said Petar Boves, another Slovenian party leader.

Slovenian Communists have moved quickly in the past three years to create a pluralistic political system in the republic. Their reforms have been criticized harshly in Serbia, where the ruling Communist hard-liners demand continued national Communist Party dominance.

Slovenian Communists stormed out of a national party congress last month after Serbian-led hard-liners rejected reforms.

Slovenian Communists have expressed increasing frustration at resistance to reform by the national party as Slovenia prepares for multiparty elections in April.

Ethnic Albanians demonstrating in the town of Podujevo Saturday, chanting “Democracy, democracy.” Riot police used tear gas to disperse about 1,000 demonstrators, during the 10th day of ethnic unrest in the troubled Yugoslav province of Kosovo.

Happy 21st Birthday Brian

Love
Mom, Dad, Judy,
Amanda, Michael,
& Elaine

LAST CHANCE TO ORDER YOUR
1990 ORANGE BOWL PROGRAMS
COLLECTOR’S EDITION

Send $7.00, check or money order, to:
Touchdown Publications
College Bowl Official Programs
P.O. Box 89
Trenton, NJ 08651

Prices include shipping and handling. Quantities are limited.

LAST CHANCE TO ORDER YOUR
1990 ORANGE BOWL PROGRAMS
COLLECTOR’S EDITION

Send $7.00, check or money order, to:
Touchdown Publications
College Bowl Official Programs
P.O. Box 89
Trenton, NJ 08651

Prices include shipping and handling. Quantities are limited.

CMI Campus Marketing, Inc. presents
Jeff Burgfechtels 2nd Annual Beach Party at DAYTONA BEACH

$239 complete

CMI TOUR INCLUDES:
• Round trip transportation on beautiful, modern highway coaches
• Eight Florida days/evening/drink packages
• Lunch on the Daytona Beach strip

Your hotel has a beautiful pool, sun deck, air conditioned rooms, color TV and a nice long stretch of beach.

• A full schedule of FREE pool deck parties every day.
• A full list of pre-arranged discounts to save you money in Daytona Beach.
• Optional side excursions to Disney World, Epcot, deep sea fishing, party cruises, etc.

Last year over 160 ND/SMC students went with us.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION AND SIGN UP

8pm Wed. Feb.7
LaFortune Montgomery Theater
OR call Jennifer 284-4407

Sponsored by Campus Marketing

Huntington Graphics presents an EXHIBITION & SALE of fine art prints

A Wide Variety

- U.S. Color Prints
- Laser Photographs
- Contemporary in Classics
- High Tech Artwork
- Photographs
- Watercolors
- Pastels
- Ink
- Pen & Ink
- Lithographs
- Woodcuts
-Collages
- Many Others!

Today thru Friday, Feb. 9
9am–5pm

Notre Dame Room (2nd floor),
LaFORTUNE STUDENT CENTER

3 LARGE PRINTS FOR $15!
Rushdie regrets tensions, but will not retract 'Verses'

LONDON (AP) — In a rare public comment from his enforced seclusion, author Salman Rushdie appeared to Moslems on Sunday to reconsider their opposition to "The Satanic Verses," saying he feels their pain but cannot retract his book.

In a 7,000-word essay, which he said was the hardest piece of writing he had ever done, Rushdie said he never intended to blaspheme Islam and regrets the racial tensions that followed the novel’s publication.

But Rushdie also wrote in The Independent on Sunday that Moslems who burned his books and staged violent demonstrations were partly responsible. Rushdie criticized the British government for not prosecuting a Moslem leader who reportedly advocated his death.

Rushdie, a naturalized Briton who was born into a Moslem family in India, has been in hiding under British police guard since Feb. 14, 1989, when an Iranian Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called for Rushdie’s death.

The decree was not lifted when Khomeini died in June.

S. Africa

continued from page 1

placed all of its chips on the hope that the continued withdrawal of foreign investment will so weaken the economy that the South African white leadership will see the wisdom of negotiating a new constitution for a multiracial society," Williams said.

"DeKlerk is a politician," Walshe said. "He is not constitution," Williams said. "He is not enough to face the world."

"DeKlerk had no alternative," Williams said. "DeKlerk had no alternative except to maintain all of its chips on the hope that the continued withdrawal of foreign investment will so weaken the economy that the South African white leadership will see the wisdom of negotiating a new constitution for a multiracial society."

"The South African white leadership will see the wisdom of negotiating a new constitution for a multiracial society," Williams said. "DeKlerk had no alternative except to maintain all of its chips on the hope that the continued withdrawal of foreign investment will so weaken the economy that the South African white leadership will see the wisdom of negotiating a new constitution for a multiracial society."
announces fellowships

The Schmittle Presidential studies, the University vice president of advanced graduate school is "critical at Fellowships will be awarded annually to five first-year doctoral students in the humanities and social sciences. The Schmitt Presidential Fellowships will be awarded annually to five first-year doctoral students in the sciences and engineering. Both fellowships will provide full tuition and a $12,000 stipend for all four years.

Hatch said that the overall strategy of establishing the fellowships was to upgrade the graduate school to the level of competitive graduate schools, such as Duke or Brown. He noted that improving the graduate school is "critical at this time" because of the "shortage of faculty in these fields."

Gorbachev is expected to propose that other parties be allowed to compete for power, a move likely to spur an intense struggle between hard-liners and reformers.

The crowd waved huge white-and-blue flags of prerevolutionary Russia and held signs warning party officials to "Remember Romania," where a bloody revolt last year toppled the Stalinist regime of Nicolae Ceausescu. The masses stopped next to Red Square for a gigantic rally that was meant to influence the pivotal Communist Party plenary meeting that opens Monday.

"This pleon is the party's last chance," declared Boris N. Yeltsin, a populist Communist leader who promised to place the Communist Party's highest body, that now is scheduled for approval to the concept of presidential elections, in Moscow's city council headquarters on Gorky Street. Trucks blocked Moscow's Garden Ring Road for the marchers who linked arms next to Gorky Park and completely filled eight lanes of traffic, stretching back more than half a mile. Cordons of uniformed police blocked cars elsewhere, turning the center of Moscow into a virtual pedestrian mall.

In all, the march and rally lasted for about five hours before participants began to disperse. Police observed the peaceful proceedings in the historic heart of the capital, but there were no reports of any disturbances.

According to published reports, party leader Gorbachev will propose to the Central Committee that the party give up the guarantee of power that was written into the Soviet Constitution in 1977. The Radio Moscow news service Interfax also said Gorbachev was planning structural reforms that would reduce the size of the Central Committee and possibly eliminate the ruling Politburo. He also was expected to give tacit approval to the concept of private property.

The proposals are in the form of a draft platform to be placed before a congress, theoretically the Communist Party's highest body, that now is scheduled for this fall.

Many Moscow observers expected a concentrated effort from conservatives in the Central Committee to stop the reforms they believe have brought the Soviet Union to economic ruin and ethnic strife. At least some in the crowd had doubts whether Gorbachev is committed to radical reforms. "Mikhail Sergeyevich, whom are you with?" one asked.

Yeltsin and other reformers, speaking to the crowd gathered in front of the Moscow Hotel from the back of a blue flat-bed truck, demanded that the party and government talk with them about the Soviet Union's future, as Communist leaders have been forced to do as signs have swept the former Soviet satellites of Eastern Europe. They also urged a day of similar rallies throughout the country on Feb. 25. Yeltsin demanded that the party congress be held earlier, in May or June.

The rally united reformers from the People's Front organizations of Moscow and Russia, the Association of Moscow Voters, the Memorial Committee and possibly elimi-
Calif. rep. launches anti-Kovic campaign

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) -- Rafael Angel Calderon, son of an exiled president, was headed toward victory over the governing party candidate in Sunday's election to succeed President Oscar Arias, architect of Central America's peace process.

"I feel very proud of my country tonight. This is a victory for all of you, the people of Costa Rica," Calderon, a strong supporter of U.S. policy in the region, said in a statement at his Social Christian party headquarters.

He was leading Carlos Manuel Castillo, of Arias' National Liberation party, 85,873 votes to 85,873, according to unofficial returns from 12 percent of precincts.

The headquarters of the National Liberation party was virtually empty and Castillo made no immediate statement.

The Calderon support office was open for a fourth-year term. It was the 18th straight peaceful election in Costa Rica since 1948, when Calderon's father, Rafael Angel Calderon Guardia, was president and tried to nullify the result when he lost.

More than 90 percent of the nation's 1.7 million registered voters were expected to turn out Sunday.

"My sympathy goes out to my opponent, Castillo, and his followers. I know what they are going through. I went through it four years ago," said Calderon, 41, who made losing presidential bids in 1982 and 1986.

He asked his followers to cel­ebrate without gloating or ran­cer and called on "those who did not vote for me to join us and fight for a better future for Costa Rica."

Party faithful were out in force, waving flags and honking horns in rhythm. Buses took thousands to the polls, where crowds of voters, "gopers decked out in colorful T-shirts guided vot­ers to their precincts.

5 a.m. when the polls opened. Police blocked streets near hospitals to hold down the sound of a festival that jammed streets of the capital through the day and continued after the polls closed.

Calderon aims for victory in Costa Rica

The fiesta continued into the night for Calderon's support­ers. Both major candidates ran populist campaigns. Calderon did not press those issues as hard as he might have.

Calderon has said he supports Arias' peace efforts but won't try to imitate them, and will fo­cus on domestic issues and "improving social justice." Calderon has promised a new housing program for the poor while at the same time saying he would reduce the govern­ment's deficit spending. He also has proposed requiring large companies to establish profit-sharing plans, something that has made some businessmen nervous.

Voters also elected 57 na­tional assembly delegates and filled 525 municipal posts.

The winner takes office May 8.

The headquarters of the National Liberation party was virtually empty and Castillo made no immediate statement.

The Calderon support office was open for a fourth-year term. It was the 18th straight peaceful election in Costa Rica since 1948, when Calderon's father, Rafael Angel Calderon Guardia, was president and tried to nullify the result when he lost.

More than 90 percent of the nation's 1.7 million registered voters were expected to turn out Sunday.

"My sympathy goes out to my opponent, Castillo, and his followers. I know what they are going through. I went through it four years ago," said Calderon, 41, who made losing presidential bids in 1982 and 1986.

He asked his followers to cel­ebrate without gloating or ran­cer and called on "those who did not vote for me to join us and fight for a better future for Costa Rica."

Party faithful were out in force, waving flags and honking horns in rhythm. Buses took thousands to the polls, where crowds of voters, "gopers decked out in colorful T-shirts guided vot­ers to their precincts.

5 a.m. when the polls opened. Police blocked streets near hospitals to hold down the sound of a festival that jammed streets of the capital through the day and continued after the polls closed.

Calderon aims for victory in Costa Rica
WASHINGTON (AP) — Using aggressive tactics that included garnishing wages, putting liens on real estate, banks and other lenders in the Guaranteed Student Loan Program have recovered from delinquent student loan borrowers.

The forum, total college sup­ ply has increased by more than 10 percent and 22 percent, one conference, shows.

Eighty-five percent of all graduates. Also, it shows that corporate support for public institutions in the Guaranteed Student Loan Program has shifted toward large schools that have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ mise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.

The research done also pro­ feded graduates of independent colleges and found that although Midwest private col­ leges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, they produce 33 per­ cent of all graduates. Also, it indicated that private colleges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ promise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.

The research done also pro­ feded graduates of independent colleges and found that although Midwest private col­ leges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, they produce 33 per­ cent of all graduates. Also, it indicated that private colleges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ promise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.

The research done also pro­ feded graduates of independent colleges and found that although Midwest private col­ leges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, they produce 33 per­ cent of all graduates. Also, it indicated that private colleges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ promise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.

The research done also pro­ feded graduates of independent colleges and found that although Midwest private col­ leges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, they produce 33 per­ cent of all graduates. Also, it indicated that private colleges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ promise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.

The research done also pro­ feded graduates of independent colleges and found that although Midwest private col­ leges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, they produce 33 per­ cent of all graduates. Also, it indicated that private colleges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ promise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.

The research done also pro­ feded graduates of independent colleges and found that although Midwest private col­ leges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, they produce 33 per­ cent of all graduates. Also, it indicated that private colleges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ promise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.

The research done also pro­ feded graduates of independent colleges and found that although Midwest private col­ leges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, they produce 33 per­ cent of all graduates. Also, it indicated that private colleges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ promise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.

The research done also pro­ feded graduates of independent colleges and found that although Midwest private col­ leges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, they produce 33 per­ cent of all graduates. Also, it indicated that private colleges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ promise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.

The research done also pro­ feded graduates of independent colleges and found that although Midwest private col­ leges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, they produce 33 per­ cent of all graduates. Also, it indicated that private colleges have a larger enrollment of mi­ nority students, who graduate and go on to work in their ap­ parently no logical reason. But, according to research, the ability to communicate effectively and pro­ promise publishers, Drury described.

"Saint Mary's has had to place more focus on isolating those specific corporations and foun­ dations which have expressed interest in the College's designated funding priorities. Saint Mary's con­ tinues to receive funding from those corporations and founda­ tions as we know and support the College's commitment," she said.
Drug legalization debate has highs and lows

By John Robinson

As the first two rounds of the Iceberg Debates will focus on the legal status of drug use in American society, the Iceberg Debates Steering Committee has asked me to express thoughts on the legalization debate. In what follows, I make no effort to be exhaustive but, now would I want it inferred that my thinking on the question is immutable. As the national debate progresses, I can imagine my position changing substantially one way or the other as the evidence suggests it should.

The first thing must be said about the current war on drugs is that it is a hotly contested aspect of both town and country. As baneful as the militarization of our political process may be, we are witnessing the erosion of a de facto national police force. This event, when combined with the diminution of our rights against police intrusion into our homes, should give us cause for concern.

A third way in which the state is kept in its place is by the erosion of the military from the commercial to the political. The war on drugs, however, will inevitably be militarized, and while the military might eventually become adept at sealing border areas and interdicting air and sea supply routes, it will never accommodate itself to the principles of citizen sovereignty and maximal liberty that are at the heart of our constitutional system.

Fourth Amendment doctrine is readily complex. However, its basic principle is simple: the state must not intrude into a citizen’s life—must not search his person, pore over his papers, or ransack his dwelling—unless something about his conduct warrants some incursion into his privacy; even then, the extent of the incursion is closely guarded by the dimension of the government to the people is realized in American life is through the Fourth Amendment’s prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Fourth Amendment doctrine is readily complex. However, its basic principle is simple: the state must not intrude into a citizen’s life—must not search his person, pore over his papers, or ransack his dwelling—unless something about his conduct warrants some incursion into his privacy; even then, the extent of the incursion is closely guarded by the dimension of the government to the people is realized in American life is through the Fourth Amendment’s prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Fourth Amendment doctrine is readily complex. However, its basic principle is simple: the state must not intrude into a citizen’s life—must not search his person, pore over his papers, or ransack his dwelling—unless something about his conduct warrants some incursion into his privacy; even then, the extent of the incursion is closely guarded by the dimension of the government to the people is realized in American life is through the Fourth Amendment’s prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Fourth Amendment doctrine is readily complex. However, its basic principle is simple: the state must not intrude into a citizen’s life—must not search his person, pore over his papers, or ransack his dwelling—unless something about his conduct warrants some incursion into his privacy; even then, the extent of the incursion is closely guarded by the dimension of the government to the people is realized in American life is through the Fourth Amendment’s prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures.
By S.P. Udayakumar

The present epoch of sweeping changes challenges many established knowledge, institutions, and fundamental of all, the very definition of state. The craving for self-determination, identity claim, and resistance to subjugation by different peoples is on the way to challenge the federal states like the Soviet Union, India, Yugoslavia, and many other smaller countries of multinational character.

The搜身式的sentiment among almost all of the Soviet republics is nothing less than a very serious challenge to the national integrity of the Soviet Union. The new political reforms initiated in that country, South to the Soviet Union, the Central Government of India is also preoccupied with the same set of problems. When the Sikh militants claim independence from the Indian Union, Kashmir Muslims, although divided on what to do after secession, have a common enemy, India. There are several other secession sentiments in the northeast fighting New Delhi.

The way the United Kingdom resolved the Northern Ireland problem, the "daily" of the cabbage is in the hands of the Catholic Union, and the "uneasy cohabitation" of different national groups in multinational states around the world are all mainly due to the "establishment failures"—misperception, improper addressing of emotional state, and conflict. The lesson is to stand and effect educational system.

A close look at any of these countries would certainly reveal that there are genuine causes, grievances or policies that are not addressed for the people who foster resentment against the status quo. The countries of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia resent that they were forcefully annexed by the Soviets in 1940, the Kashmiris feel that they are not allowed to decide their own choice of nationality. Many peoples harbor historical rivalry in the Middle East. Islam is used as a Serbs and Croats in Bosnia, for the Catholics and Protestants in the UK, or the Hindus and Muslims in India and Pakistan.

The educational systems in every country seem to have clogged this factor in molding the young minds for a broad-minded national life. Many of these governments have worked unconvincingly for "national uniformity" with arrogant imposition of the "official language" and the predominant religious belief on the society, which does not work for "national unity" which gives everyone a say in the national talk. All these efforts, if not fruitful, will only harden the fruits, and fair decisions in favor of the state will only foster the sub-occupations.

The Russification in the USSR, the indirect imposition of Hindi among the non-Hindi speakers in India, forcing repressive Islamic "shariah" on the Christian southerners in Sudan are just a few rather than for "national unity" which gives everyone a say in the national talk. All these efforts, if not fruitful, will only harden the fruits, and fair decisions in favor of the state will only foster the sub-occupations.

The federal authorities in many countries have treated the minority peoples with suspicion and distrust, administrative discrimination in the favoring them when they showed even a little discomfort, and consistently refused their self-respect. It is quite understandable why people snatch such a momentous chance like this "magic epoch" and agitate against the "center" with resentment and anger.

The hovering factor in every one of the federal states' virtual disintegration adds a dangerous dimension to the already volatile world situation. India and the Soviet Union have been held as examples to demonstrate the "magic epoch" where varied ethnic communities, differing religious faiths and numerous provincial lingual groups have lived together for ages. It is not only obvious but distressing to divide our countries especially when the situation in the Balkans and peoples have taken seriously to the task of living in peace. The sudden reorganization of the geopolitical space results in de-stabilizing blow to the political, social, economic achievements, and the moral integrity of mankind.

National integration, or being part of a larger whole, is good in many ways but it should not be on the "what-I-have-is-mine-and what-you-have-is-also-mine" attitude. Governments must give more autonomy to the states and must retain only defense, foreign affairs and key economic sectors like petroleum and coal in their hands to manage their own affairs.

Any attempt to forge a fruitful unity will only alienate the local people. Neither Gorbachev's Baltic tour nor V.P. Singh's prayer at the Golden Temple will help. Seeking military solution will only create a new reality as is being proved in Northern Ireland, Punjab, Kashmir, Azerbaijan, Southern Sudan, and elsewhere.

On this line of analysis, on the other hand, must evaluate things in a realistic way and struggle for a non-violent unity. Claiming one's rights is noble, but when done with the help of guns and horrors it brings death and destruction, rather than rights. Reason and love dialogue alone can help. The people of India, no matter where they are, must address a community, a family, a university, a country, a world where ideas are discussed and people care about each other. Getting people together should be the priority here; nor should lively conversations about things more important than the}

Debates melt intellectual frivolity

Dear Editor:

Notre Dame has its problems; at least that's what I hear. Students tell me the social life is not so good. They say there's not much to do. A lot of guys say that it's hard to meet women; some say it's even harder to meet the right kind of guy.

I hear about other problems. Students tell me they wish faculty were more approachable. I also hear that students would like to meet with them informally to talk about things on their minds. But, they continue, the faculty are under so much pressure to research, publish and act scholarly that they don't have time for us.

I hear faculty members saying that what the students really care about is that GPA, that they are not intellectually curious and are not inclined to challenge faculty members in class, much less drop by their offices to talk. They say that when students say things, they say too much. They are being a community, a family, a place where awareness should be raised, where all these topics should be discussed openly, where intellectuals should clash.

Sometimes I hear that graduate students are left out of the equation, held on the periphery of university life, a sort of "buffer zone" between students that they don't see the wider world. They're not as interested in social justice issues as they should be. And a university is a place where awareness should be raised, where all these topics should be discussed openly, where intellectuals should clash.

When I hear the griping (and a lot of it, I think, is on the quiet mark!) I am disappointed that the dorms and off-campus halls to talk informally, even when their doors are open. When I think about the radius of administrators about students, they say too much. Sometimes I hear that graduate students are left out of the equation, held on the periphery of university life, a sort of "buffer zone" between students that they don't see the wider world. They're not as interested in social justice issues as they should be. And a university is a place where awareness should be raised, where all these topics should be discussed openly, where intellectuals should clash.

When I hear the griping (and a lot of it, I think, is on the quiet mark!) I am disappointed that the dorms and off-campus halls to talk informally, even when their doors are open. When I think about the radius of administrators about students, they say too much. Sometimes I hear that graduate students are left out of the equation, held on the periphery of university life, a sort of "buffer zone" between students that they don't see the wider world. They're not as interested in social justice issues as they should be. And a university is a place where awareness should be raised, where all these topics should be discussed openly, where intellectuals should clash.

When I hear the griping (and a lot of it, I think, is on the quiet mark!) I am disappointed that the dorms and off-campus halls to talk informally, even when their doors are open. When I think about the radius of administrators about students, they say too much. Sometimes I hear that graduate students are left out of the equation, held on the periphery of university life, a sort of "buffer zone" between students that they don't see the wider world. They're not as interested in social justice issues as they should be. And a university is a place where awareness should be raised, where all these topics should be discussed openly, where intellectuals should clash.
What A Wonderful World
Joyce ACC

Monday, February 5, 1990

Philippines
Lebanon
Korea
China
India

The “international language” of song and dance proved truly timeless.

MELISSA COMER
accent writer

Have you ever realized just how much talent surrounds us here at Notre Dame? When was the last time you walked across the quad greeting and observing people without thinking about the amazing abilities that some of them possess?

This weekend, I had a rare opportunity to sample the talents of those around me. The International Festival, presented by the International Student Organization, played to a capacity crowd Saturday in Washington Hall. It was a magnificent display of talent.

Through song and dance, each of the 160 people that participated in the 22 acts successfully brought a bit of the cultures from over 35 countries to life. With presentations from Mexico, China, India, Ireland, Hungary, and Lebanon just to name a few, the ISO members managed to introduce the audience to a glimpse of the immensely diverse world we live in.

The acts not only spanned the globe, but also spanned the ages. Moving back and forth in time, the festival featured everything from Scottish bagpipes and a folkloric fashion show to ballroom dancing. But, the transition from a Korean dance to the latest crazes of the Lambada and the Lambada was unbelievable. The “international language” of song and dance proved to be timeless.

The finale brought all of these national heritages together with costumes that were as colorful and brilliant as the cultures they represented. Joining to sing Louis Armstrong’s “What A Wonderful World”, brought home to everyone, both those on stage and in the audience, that it is truly a wonderful world.

The ISO, by exchanging ideas and talent, contribute more to understanding and enjoyment than we often take time to appreciate. The International Festival, the ISO’s biggest annual contribution, combined an evening of entertainment with increased awareness and was a true success.

International Festival:
Puerto Rico
Philippines
Hungary
Lebanon
Ireland
Mexico
Korea
China
India

“What A Wonderful World”

Above: Paul Harren offers some Scottish musical heritage with his bagpipe performance at the ISO Festival held Saturday at Washington Hall.

Right: ISO members entertain audiences with their version of Tinikling, a native dance of the Philippines.

Marx show a crowd pleaser

STEVE MEGARGEE
MONICA YANT

accent writer

Teenage pop idol Richard Marx already was three songs into his act Sunday night at the Joyce ACC when he delivered this introduction to a frenzied crowd of predominantly pubescent females:

“South Bend, what’s new, say, how should I refer to you? As South Bend? Or Notre Dame? Let’s just forget about names and kick the s— out of this building!”

In all honesty, to say Marx really kicked anything out of the arena is subject to debate. But the audience surely had received their fill by the time Marx had unveiled his 90-minute set of greatest hits and gyrations.

“He looks good in tight pants,” one elkhart teeny-bopper boasted as to why she attended the show.

All eyes were on Marx from his rear-to-the-crowd entrance on stage to his top-of-the-keyboard serenade at the end of “Don’t Mean Nothing.”

Marx sauntered onto the stage clad in skin-tight black pants, a tank top, and a soon-to-be-discarded red jacket.

The crowd favorites came midway through the show, when Marx sang “Angelia,” then crooned couple-skating classic “Right Here Waiting.” Marx abruptly changed the atmosphere by exclaiming, “Enough of that mellow s——!”

The crowd responded by bark-singing a dog call similar to that seen on “The Arsenio Hall Show.”

Marx miserably failed in his attempt to do a soulful rendition of Bill Withers’ “Ain’t No Sunshine When She’s Gone.” He also butchered the obscure female-falsetto band Visi’s “Living on the Edge of a Broken Heart” in his closing number.

Things could have been worse. Late in his show, Marx’s band broke into a guitar riff from “Layla,” but he knew better than to even think about singing a note of the Clapton classic.

Marx got the audience participation out of the way when he instigated arm-waving and lighted-burning during “Endless Summer Nights.”

He then reminisced while introducing his first single, “Don’t Mean Nothing.”

“It all started out with this funky little song about me being pissed off at Hollywood, he said. “The message remains the same. No matter what anybody tells you, what does it mean?”

The crowd knew the answer, shrieking passionately. “NOTHING!”

That’s exactly what the audience thought of opening act PoCo. Pairing a recently reunited country-pop band with a Tiger Beat cover boy was anything but a match made in heaven.

The audience forgave Marx for PoCo and showered him with devotion and garners. And in return, he gave them enough banal pop and hipsway to last a lifetime.
Classifieds

Classifieds

NOTICES

Word Publishing
Call 332-0100 or 271-9171
BE YOUR OWN BOSS! Design, typeset, print, distribute. Money making opportunities. Free brochure. $50 deposits, $500 paid when you send 32 $0.00 to National Marketing Company, Box 3006, Boston, MA 02130

TYING AVAILABLE
FOR SPECIAL OCCASIONS
CASH FOR CARS, TRUCKS
271-9114

LOST!
Pair of tan leather spectator shoes. Size 11M. No 5-9 lg. Please call 283-4354.

LOST?
If you have a navy & tan leather Clarks shoulder bag that Vincent Lakatos (Greek) lost on this campus Monday, please call 232-5453. I am willing to pay for return. Thank you.

TEXTBOOKS
USED
All subjects at a discount, all formats. либек for

MAIL BOXES ETC
Shipping, Copier, Cards, Letterhead, Maps, Posters, Reprints, Etc. 27$ MAI

PERSONALS

John & Lesley at Notre Dame's Mary's Place, 10a.m to 4p.m.

LOST
If you have any of Pitt's personal belongings please call me. My phone number is 334-0200.

WANTED
Jari Kurri's goal broke a tie to give the Edmonton Oilers a 5-4 victory over Washington yesterday.

NEED 3 TICKETS FOR ND VS GEORGIA TECH $400 EACH

NEED 4 GEORGIA TECH TICKETS CALL MATT AT 283-1818

NEED 1 TO 100 MUSICAL U.票据, including the Id, to go to the show.

HANNA & MARK COLLECTIVE

SAN FRANCISCO
FAREWELL PARTY

WANTED
ALL LANDSCAPE WORK

HANNAH'S AWARD

Needs: Anyone with any form of equipment, machine/sampler/4-5 track kayak/keyboard for temporary experimental industrial performance art project. Call Jason at X3577.

WINTER BREAKS

MGM, LONGHAIR's Farm: Has your shower broken yet? We miss you—and London.

WINTER FEST

For family! $$$ Tom x3259

Hi Ag, only 5 more days until Mike Murray's birthday! I'm going to be at the hockey game Friday. Feb. 3 if they meet again. Join the AKAI 27TH Friday for a vigil and demonstration on the Pennsylvania Mall. Come because you hate Apartheid and Because you love Nelson Mandela.

SUNNY ISLES

5 days to pass up his senior season, has become the second prominent Pittsburgh player in three years to pass up his senior season and turn pro, including Alabama linebacker Keith McCants, Florida running back Emmitt Smith, Arkansas running back Barry Foster and Virginia running back Marcus Wilson.

Holden, said. "I'm disappointed, but I wish him well."

"I feel very strongly that Mary should stay here and finish school but Mary and I talked for hours about it and I understand his standpoint. He's been a class guy ever since he's been here. He's a real leader."

The 6-foot-5, 270-pound tackle, 20 met last weekend in Kansas City with agent Tom Condon, but he hasn't picked an agent. He also is considering Pittsburgh attorney Ralph Cindrich and Los Angeles attorney Martin Demoff.

While in Kansas City, Spindler received a clean bill of health from a physician who examined him and told him he would be fine for the regular season game against Rodgers on Dec. 2, but he returned for Pitt's victory over Texas A&M in the John Hancock Bowl. Spindler also was cleared by a Pitt physician.

Spindler led Pitt with 73 regular season tackles, including 49 solo tackles, and had 4 1/2 quarterback sacks and 12 tackles for losses. A second-team Associated Press All-American and first-team All-Atlantic selection, he was one of the 12 finalists for the Lombardi Award presented to the nation's top collegiate linemen.

One pro scouting service lists Spindler as the top defensive lineman in college football.

LOST

For sale: Commodore computer and peripheral accessories and software. Best offer must be called. No phone calls.

LOST!
If you have any of Pitt's personal belongings please call me. My phone number is 334-0200.

NEEDED
For rent: Tile wax and leather shoe cleaner.

For sale:

AAN at 12:15 Thursday for Apartheid and Because you love Nelson Mandela. Talk for hours about it and I understand his standpoint. He's been a class guy ever since he's been here. He's a real leader."
Rowdy Duke students make Devils opponents miserable

By THERESA KELLY

Sports Editor

Durham, N.C.—The Duke fans at Cameron Indoor Stadium were true to form on Sunday in Duke's 88-76 win over the Notre Dame men's basketball team. The sixties man, the zon, and the reason why Duke is 55-5 at home over the last four years were out to make the game rough for the visiting team. Black and white.

But as the spit flew onto press row, it was apparent that they weren't the creative fans one might expect, nor were they "toned down and less vulgar," as per request from the Duke administration.

Sure, the traditional Duke cheers, chants and taunts were heard, but the predominant message sent from the student bleachers was that the referees and everyone associated with Notre Dame rhyme with duck.

The Duke fans are extraordinarily knowledgeable about basketball, and equally vocal about that knowledge. However, that didn't stop them from taking any and every opportunity to threaten bodily harm to referree Dick Poparo, his wife, children, mother, father, his in-laws and the family dog—all in good fun, of course.

The Duke fans, practicing sitting on the court and literally breathing down the neck of the players, are really something. Especially entertaining is the player sitting on the court and a cheerful "see ya," in unison, from the Duke bench as head coach Mike Krzyzewski called in the hard-fought contest, two on Duke and another one from Notre Dame's inside combination of LaPhonso Ellis and Keith Robinson.

Laettner and Alaa Abdelnaby led Duke in scoring while shutting down Notre Dame's big men and eventually forcing them out of the game. Abdelnaby shot 10-of-10 from the free throw line to take advantage of Notre Dame's foul trouble, and he hit 6-of-9 from the floor to lead all scorers with 22 points. Laettner had ten boards, 14 points and five blocked shots.

Notre Dame's inside combination of LaPhonso Ellis and Keith Robinson was held in check. Robinson managed only five points and four rebounds before fouling out with 3:30 to play. Ellis had 12 points in the first half, but was hampered by foul trouble on both ends of the court in the second half. He got his fifth with 10:43 to play.

"I don't like losing Robinson and Ellis," Irish head coach Digger Phelps said. "It hurts us.

The best chance that surrounded Ellis' final foul was fodder for the rabid Duke crowd, who held the officials in low esteem the entire game. Both teams were battling for a rebound when Laettner was called for his third foul.

The officials corrected themselves, calling the foul on No. 30 for Notre Dame. Such a player existed. Finally, the called the foul on Ellis, to the delight of the Duke faithful. He finished with 15 points and 13 rebounds, leading the Irish in both categories despite just 26 minutes of playing time.

Three technical fouls were called in the hard-fought contest, two on Duke and another on Notre Dame. The first was on the Duke bench as head coach Mike Krzyzewski protested a no-call when Notre Dame's Elmer Bennett pulled down a defensive rebound, scattering Duke players in his wake. Joe Fredrick converted one of two free throws, but the Irish could not score on the resulting possession.

The second technical was called on Duke's McDonald in the second half. He and Fredrick had a feud running through the half, and it continued from page 24.

But the AFC was called for an illegal formation, and Krieg's next pass sailed out of the end zone as time expired.

He had marched his team from its own 9-yard line to the Duke 30 before finally running out on him.

Krieg threw a 5-yard touchdown pass to the Dolphins in the second quarter.

Browns linebacker Mike Johnson then provided a defensive TD for the Browns when he intercepted Mark Rypien's pass—one of three interceptions off the Washington quarterback—and returned it 23 yards to pull the AFC to within six points.

We need you.

The Observer/Photo by Matt Mittino

Iron guard Elmer Bennett scored six points before fouling out against Duke in an 88-76 Notre Dame loss Sunday. Abdelnaby was nailed with the first of Notre Dame's inside combination of LaPhonso Ellis and Keith Robinson, and Abdelnaby was called for his third foul.

"I don't like losing Robinson and Ellis," Irish head coach Digger Phelps said. "It hurts us.

The best chance that surrounded Ellis' final foul was fodder for the rabid Duke crowd, who held the officials in low esteem the entire game. Both teams were battling for a rebound when Laettner was called for his third foul.

The officials corrected themselves, calling the foul on No. 30 for Notre Dame. Such a player existed. Finally, the called the foul on Ellis, to the delight of the Duke faithful. He finished with 15 points and 13 rebounds, leading the Irish in both categories despite just 26 minutes of playing time.

Three technical fouls were called in the hard-fought contest, two on Duke and another on Notre Dame. The first was on the Duke bench as head coach Mike Krzyzewski protested a no-call when Notre Dame's Elmer Bennett pulled down a defensive rebound, scattering Duke players in his wake. Joe Fredrick converted one of two free throws, but the Irish could not score on the resulting possession.

The second technical was called on Duke's McDonald in the second half. He and Fredrick had a feud running through the half, and it continued from page 24.

But the AFC was called for an illegal formation, and Krieg's next pass sailed out of the end zone as time expired.

He had marched his team from its own 9-yard line to the Duke 30 before finally running out on him.

Krieg threw a 5-yard touchdown pass to the Dolphins in the second quarter.

Browns linebacker Mike Johnson then provided a defensive TD for the Browns when he intercepted Mark Rypien's pass—one of three interceptions off the Washington quarterback—and returned it 23 yards to pull the AFC to within six points.

We need you.

The Observer/Photo by Matt Mittino

Iron guard Elmer Bennett scored six points before fouling out against Duke in an 88-76 Notre Dame loss Sunday. Abdelnaby was nailed with the first of Notre Dame's inside combination of LaPhonso Ellis and Keith Robinson, and Abdelnaby was called for his third foul.

"I don't like losing Robinson and Ellis," Irish head coach Digger Phelps said. "It hurts us.

The best chance that surrounded Ellis' final foul was fodder for the rabid Duke crowd, who held the officials in low esteem the entire game. Both teams were battling for a rebound when Laettner was called for his third foul.

The officials corrected themselves, calling the foul on No. 30 for Notre Dame. Such a player existed. Finally, the called the foul on Ellis, to the delight of the Duke faithful. He finished with 15 points and 13 rebounds, leading the Irish in both categories despite just 26 minutes of playing time.

Three technical fouls were called in the hard-fought contest, two on Duke and another on Notre Dame. The first was on the Duke bench as head coach Mike Krzyzewski protested a no-call when Notre Dame's Elmer Bennett pulled down a defensive rebound, scattering Duke players in his wake. Joe Fredrick converted one of two free throws, but the Irish could not score on the resulting possession.

The second technical was called on Duke's McDonald in the second half. He and Fredrick had a feud running through the half, and it continued from page 24.

But the AFC was called for an illegal formation, and Krieg's next pass sailed out of the end zone as time expired.

He had marched his team from its own 9-yard line to the Duke 30 before finally running out on him.

Krieg threw a 5-yard touchdown pass to the Dolphins in the second quarter.

Browns linebacker Mike Johnson then provided a defensive TD for the Browns when he intercepted Mark Rypien's pass—one of three interceptions off the Washington quarterback—and returned it 23 yards to pull the AFC to within six points.
Anthony Peeler scored 17 points Sunday as the top-ranked Tigers routed the Buffaloes 93-69 in their 48th consecutive regular-season road loss in the conference. All five Missouri starters scored in double figures. "They're so tough to key on," Colorado coach Tom Miller said. "That's why they're so good.

Six of Peeler's points came during a decisive second-half run by Missouri, which improved to 21-1 overall and 7-0 in the Big Eight. Colorado fell to 9-11 overall and 1-6 in the conference.

In other Top 25 games on Sunday, it was No. 3 Arkansas 103, Texas 96 in overtime; and No. 11 Ohio State 91, No. 10 Louisville 88 in overtime.

Top-ranked Tigers bulldoze Buffaloes; Kansas triumphs

Anthony Peeler and the Missouri Tigers clawed up Colorado Sunday 93-69. Second-ranked Kansas kept an 89-87 lead on Perry Carter's tip-in of an air ball with 15 seconds remaining, then took two free throws by Gill with 13 seconds left to clinch the victory. Illinois State 84, Stanford 70; No. 23 Michigan St. 64, No. 8 Purdue, the hottest team in the Big Ten, had its coldest day of the season. The Boilermakers shot only 20 percent from the field and lost their first conference game of the season after eight wins. Steve Smith led Michigan State with 22 points.

UCLA 87, DePaul 77
Trevor Wilson, Don MacLean and freshman Tracy Murray each scored 18 points for UCLA. After DePaul pulled within three points in the second half, the Bruins (15-4) scored the next seven to pull away.

Georgia Tech 90, Maryland 84
Dennis Scott scored 17 of his 36 points in the second half and Georgia Tech twice rallied from 11-point deficits. The Yellow Jackets (14-4, 4-4 Atlantic Coast) trailed 35-44 with 7:56 remaining.

Michigan 77, Wisconsin 63
Terry Mills scored 20 points and sparked a 21-4 first-half surge by Michigan (16-4, 6-3 Big Ten). Carlisle Johnson scored 24 points and sparked a 21-4 first half that carried the Wolverines to a victory over the Badgers (11-6, 5-4 Big Ten). Michigan played without Sean Higgins, who has a stress fracture in his foot.
Vinnie Johnson then hit two charged with a technical and consecutive jump shots to ignite a lead in the second quarter, but Jazz scored eight straight surged to a 35-19 lead. The first quarter as Detroit on Nov. 25.

Loss to the Los Angeles Lakers Thomas and Mark Aguirre each two minutes after Mahorn was start the second. He re-entered for the Jazz, whose previous games over second-place Chicago in the Central Division.

The Kings dropped their fifth consecutive game, their eighth in a row to Boston and 13th in their last 14 road games. They were paced by Kenny Smith with 18 points and Harold Pressley with 16.

McHale got the first three baskets of the second period, giving Boston a 30-19 lead. With the score 32-23, he sank his second 3-pointer of the game, fourth in four games, fifth in his career. His first of the game gave Boston the lead for good 22-19.

The Celtics led 38-25 when McHale sank two free throws that began a 13-0 run and made the score 31-25 with 4:11 left in the period. Sacramento closed to 51-29 but Smith capped the Boston surge with three field goals.

The Celtics made 15 of 18 shots in the second quarter after hitting just 10 of 27 in the first period.

Larry Bird, scoreless after missing his six first-half shots, made six of seven in the third period and finished with 14 points. He passed Bob McAdoo's total of 18,787 points and moved into 19th place in NBA career scoring with 18,799.

Bird also extended his successful free throw streak to 65 by making two. He broke a second-place tie with Dan Issel at 63 straight and trails only Calvin Murphy's NBA record of 78.

Sacramento's Danny Ainge, playing his first game in Boston since being traded by the Celtics last Feb. 23, scored two points.
Tennis team gentlemanly in win over nasty WVU squad

By BOB MITCHELL
Sports Writer

Star game in Miami.

Barkley to miss All-Star game

(AP) — Charles Barkley, bothered for three weeks by a groin pull, said Sunday he'll skip next Sunday's NBA All-Star game because I wasn't playing that well.

“Don't want to hurt it worse and really didn't help.”

Barkley said he wasn't sure how much he would be able to play Monday night when the 76ers

But he came back in the game in the second half after team-mate Rick Mahorn was ejected. Barkley finished with 14 points, 10 in the fourth quarter.

“I enjoy taking my family, it's more of a disappointment for them,” Barkley said of the All-Star Game.

“Barkley to miss All-Star game

There is no way I can go to the All-Star game because I don't want to hurt it worse and I need the time to rest,” said Barkley, who leads the Philadelphia 76ers with averages of 25 points and 12 rebounds per game.

Barkley, voted a starter at forward for the Eastern Conference, was limping Sunday as he helped the Sixers extend their winning streak to 11 games with a 105-102 victory over Milwaukee.

Barkley played only 15 minutes in the first half, scoring two points with no rebounds. He came back in the game in the second half after teammate Rick Mahorn was ejected. Barkley finished with 14 points, 10 in the fourth quarter.

“I enjoy taking my family, it's more of a disappointment for them,” Barkley said of the All-Star Game.

“There is no sense of me going down there and hurting myself, I need that rest,” he said.

“I pulled it about three weeks ago and it's been getting worse. Playing this (Sunday's) game really didn't help.

“I've been doing a lot of stretching, about an hour's worth everyday.”

Barkley said he wasn’t sure how much he would be able to play Monday night when the 76ers

Begin this Monday

Get out and support your team

A Debate on Drug Legalization will be held at a dorm near you.

9:00PM
Gambling allegations haunt Texas football

(AP) — University of Texas President William Cunningham has ordered an investigation into allegations that as many as 20 football players regularly placed bets with a teammate on college and pro sporting events over the past two years.

The Austin-American Statesman reported Saturday that a Texas player placed bets with a teammate and a former player witnessed the bets being placed. The teammate who took the bets left the school last fall, the newspaper said.

An alleged betting never involved UT games, one player said.

Cunningham said any players found to have bet on college games — a violation of NCAA rules — would be declared ineligible and their names reported to the NCAA.

Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said he spoke with UT coach David McWilliams about the allegations over the weekend. Dodds said he is confident McWilliams and his staff were unaware of any possible gambling activities by Longhorns players.

"I don't think our coaches know anything about that," Dodds said. "I'm comfortable that nobody on the staff knew about any of this."

In addition to the players who said they placed or witnessed the bets, three other players told the newspaper they knew of betting taking place in a dormitory. The players said that during the past two years, 10 to 20 Texas football players placed bets with the teammates.

"I don't think our coaches know anything about that," Dodds said. "I'm comfortable that nobody on the staff knew about any of this."

In addition to the players who said they placed or witnessed the bets, three other players told the newspaper they knew of betting taking place in a dormitory. The players said that during the past two years, 10 to 20 Texas football players placed bets with the teammates.

The players, all of whom spoke on the condition of anonymity, said that between $2 and $100 was bet on college football and basketball games and pro football, basketball, baseball and hockey games.

The players said the betting has since stopped.

"It is the university's policy to investigate any allegations of violations of NCAA rules," Cunningham said. "It also is our policy to report confirmed rules violations to the NCAA. We are currently looking into an allegation regarding gambling of student athletes.

"If any violation of NCAA rules is substantiated, it will be reported to the NCAA. Any student athlete found to be in violation of NCAA rules will be declared ineligible."
McGraw credited guard Karen Robinson with sparking a 10-2 surge at the end of the first half to keep the Irish in the game. During the run, Robinson sank two baskets and sank six shots from the free-throw line. The junior finished the contest with a team-leading 18 points and was a perfect 10-for-10 from the charity stripe.

“Karen basically took over the game at that point,” said McGraw, “by scoring ten and making some great defensive plays.”

McGraw was not thrilled with Notre Dame’s defensive effort, although the 54 points the Irish allowed the 6-12 Purple Aces is under their season average of 61.

“They got 12 offensive rebounds which is too many to give up,” remarked McGraw.

The Irish coach cited the strong play from Robinson, as well as good offensive showings from Margaret Nowlin and Sara Liebscher as keying the Notre Dame victory. Nowlin finished with 16 points, while Liebscher tossed in 13. The entire Irish squad jumped in to help the rebounding effort, with Krissi Davis and Lisa Kuhns snaring six each while Robinson, Nowlin and Liebscher all grabbed five.

McGraw admitted that her players, who are in the midst of seven games in twelve days, may be tiring mentally. The Irish have faced the most challenging part of their schedule in the past two weeks and realize they must dominate the rest of their games if they are going to be invited to the NCAA tournament.

“The girls really got themselves back into the game at the end of the first half,” said McGraw. “Evansville didn’t do anything that surprised us, we just had to take control of the game.”

Notre Dame shot 59.3% in the second half while slowly building their lead. Robinson continued where she had left off, sinking the first two baskets of the period and putting the Irish ahead to stay.

Notre Dame will finally get to relax after Tuesday’s game at Loyola. The Irish will travel to Chicago for a tough match-up with the Lady Rams before a ten point deficit at Evansville again in the same week, the following Tuesday when they face Butler.

“Nobody comes away from this looking phenomenal,” coach Joe Piane stated, “Nobody comes away from this looking phenomenal. This meet was a very balanced affair.”

Where the Irish are concerned, the season is indeed on track. Notre Dame has a legitimate chance to qualify several individuals for the NCAA championships in numerous events, both track and field. As coach Piane observed, “We had a good performance as a team today, but we can always do better.”

The Observer
By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

Friday night may have been a season low for the Irish hockey team as they not only lost 6-3 to Air Force, but also saw their winning streak extended to four games.

"I don't have any explanation," said coach Bob Schafer. "As their coach I'm embarrassed. I've seen them play better, I hope they're better. There are no excuses." The Irish bounced back on Saturday to post a 3-2 win over a near capacity crowd of 1,565.

Friday night's contest started off as if it may belong to the Irish. 1:40 into the first period, center Curtis Janakce raced up the slot and deked Falcon goalie Mark Liebich to the ice. Janakce then slid the puck to his left winger Mike Curry whose shot at an empty net hit the right post.

The game remained scoreless until Air Force capitalized on an Irish penalty at the 9:36 mark. Falcon forward Kurt Rohloff skated across center ice and ripped a shot from the blue line that beat Irish goalie Lance Madison to the glove side. The Falcons extended their lead to 3-0 by period end.

Notre Dame needed the first goal of the second period to get back in the game, but instead Air Force got it at the 2:02 mark. Meanwhile, the Irish continued to have problems, especially in getting the puck out of their own end.

"We could hardly make a pass," commented Schafer. "You have to complete a couple passes before you get going. I don't know if we could complete a pass standing 10 feet apart right now."

Air Force extended its lead to 5-0 before the Irish scored at the 16:02 mark after a Falcon penalty. David Bankoske hit Tim Kuehl with a pass to the left of the net. Kuehl then threw it across to Pat Arndt who blasted home the power play goal.

The Irish looked as if they might climb back in the game because with 37 gone in the 3rd period, Bankoske stole the puck at the Falcon blue line, hit Tim Kuehl with a pass in the left circle, and the senior flipped it by Liebich. But the Irish comeback attempt was snuffed out a few minutes later. At the 2:45 mark, Bankoske stole the puck at his own blue line and appeared to have a breakaway, but he was hooked from behind with no call 30 seconds later. Air Force put the game away with another goal to make it 6-2. Mike Curry scored the 2nd goal on ND's 1st goal of the evening.

"We're in a blue funk right now," said Schafer. "All areas of the game are lacking at the moment."

Saturday the Irish turned it around and withstood a late Air Force charge to come away with a thrilling 3-2 win.

"There were two things we needed to do tonight," explained Schafer after the game. "One, we needed to play well, and two, we needed a victory."

At game's end, the officials held a 1-10 dead after one period, it was clear by their physical play that Notre Dame was a different team in this game. The game remained that way for most of the period as Madison and Liebich traded outstanding saves.

Madson stopped Mark Majewski on a break with a glove save. He later made a beautiful pad save on a shot from point-blank range. The Irish tied the score with a power play goal at the 16:12 mark. Mike Curry dug the puck out from in front and skated into the left corner and then hit Sterling Black with a great pass which the freshman Black bankhanded it in.

The Irish took the lead for good with another power play goal at 5:39 when Kevin Markovitz fed Tim Kuehl along the right boards. Kuehl then whipped a perfect pass to Bankoske at the doorstep and the sophomore knocked it in.

ND took advantage of an Air Force line change to extend the lead to 3-1. Madson retrieved the puck in the corner and sent it ahead to Arndt. Arndt had his shot blocked, but he caromed the rebound and gave it to wide open Sterling Black for the goal.

The Falcons pulled their goalie with 2:08 left and got a goal with 33 left. The Irish then fought off a 5 on 3 situation to preserve the win. "I would say that everybody played a little bit harder tonight," commented Schafer.

By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's basketball team's record dropped to 8-7 Saturday when they upset the Belles 92-87 in overtime as they took the lead on a 3 point shot by Lance Madison.

The Belles, minus senior forward Catherine Restovich led the Irish with 23 points, and dashed out six assists as well. Sophomore forward Janet Libbing added 17 points, while a pair of three-point goals. Saint Mary's forward and junior Tina O'keef tallied 13 points, while classmates Amy Baranski led the Belles with 9 points and added nine points.

The major disappointment for the Belles in Saturday's game was the absence of Radke. She is out indefinitely with a possible stress fracture on her left leg.

Without Radke, who leads the team in scoring and assists, the fate of the Belles will be uncertain against Tri-State University.

"Tri-State is one of the top three teams in the state. They have a good inside game and a good perimeter game."

STUDENT ACTIVITIES BOARD EVENTS

CLUB TUESDAY- tomorrow evening from 9:00 to 1:00
In Haggar Parlor- entertainment by Dave and Troy
TRIP TO CHICAGO'S HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK this Wednesday tickets for $15.00 - this includes admission, dinner, picture in Winner's Circle, Harness rides, and more- anyone interested in going please contact Amy Blong at 284-5133

REMEMBER: this Wednesday and Thursday are sign-ups for "NEIGHBORING TALENTS" in Dining Halls
Monday, February 5, 1990
The Observer page 23

LECTURE CIRCUIT

4:30 p.m. "The Dynamics of Eigen Value Computation," by Professor Steve Batterson, Emory University. Room 226 Math Building. Coffee Room 201 4:00. Sponsored by Department of Mathematics.

CAMPU

4:30 p.m. Colloquium in Music, "Composing with the Macintosh," by Prof. Paul Johnson, Department of Music. Room 124 Crowley Hall. Sponsored by Department of Music.

8 p.m. Guitar recital, by Jay Kaufman. Little Theatre. Sponsored by SMC Music Department.

MENUS

Notre Dame
BBQ Fork Chops
Chicken Teriyaki
Italian Beef Sandwich

CALVIN AND HOBBIES

QUIZ:
Jack and Joe leave their homes at the same time and drive toward each other. Jack drives at 60 mph, while Joe drives at 30 mph. They pass each other in 10 minutes.

How far apart were Jack and Joe when the passed each other?

THE FAR SIDE

GARY LARSON

SPLEUNKER

JAY HOSLER

THE PEACE CORPS? THE PEACE CORPS?
YOU'RE GOING TO SPEND TWO YEARS OF YOUR LIFE HELPING THE POOR AND DOWNTROdden OF SOME BY WORLD COUNTRY AND YOU'RE LEAVING THE HERE ALL ALONE. IM RUSTY, JOE, SOMETIMES YOU ARE SO SELFISH!

Catholic Church

Dr. Elyn Stecker
(South Bend N.O.W.)
Kari Kronenberger
(Democratic Socialists of America)

THE FARE SIDE

Wife: I must confess that nobody loves you very much in the 3 weeks I've had you. By the time you

Hey, I've

Responded a million times. And then you thought I'd change. "Okay, you'll never have to

Heard that story

WinterFest presents Club Tuesday

Live Entertainment and Refreshments 9-11 P.M.
Tuesday, February 6th
Haggar Hall, St. Mary's College

Debate on Abortion
Feb. 5
Theodore's
8:00 P.M.
Blue Devils turn up heat, burn Irish

Notre Dame's road woes continue at Duke

By THERESA KELLY

Sports Editor

Durham, N.C.—The shooting of the Notre Dame men's basketball team cooled off in what was otherwise a heated battle against Duke Sunday. The fifth-ranked Blue Devils beat the Irish 89-76 in the first in a string of tough road games for Notre Dame.

"I didn't like the way we shot the ball early in the first half," said Irish coach Fran Zniewski said. "But just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or any thing. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils built an early 11-1 lead over Notre Dame on Friday and a 18-15 lead by halftime. "I honestly felt we could beat them," said Irish coach Digger Phelps. "I just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or anything. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils built an early 11-1 lead over Notre Dame on Friday and a 18-15 lead by halftime. "I honestly felt we could beat them," said Irish coach Digger Phelps. "I just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or anything. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils built an early 11-1 lead over Notre Dame on Friday and a 18-15 lead by halftime. "I honestly felt we could beat them," said Irish coach Digger Phelps. "I just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or anything. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils built an early 11-1 lead over Notre Dame on Friday and a 18-15 lead by halftime. "I honestly felt we could beat them," said Irish coach Digger Phelps. "I just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or anything. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils built an early 11-1 lead over Notre Dame on Friday and a 18-15 lead by halftime. "I honestly felt we could beat them," said Irish coach Digger Phelps. "I just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or anything. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils built an early 11-1 lead over Notre Dame on Friday and a 18-15 lead by halftime. "I honestly felt we could beat them," said Irish coach Digger Phelps. "I just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or anything. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils built an early 11-1 lead over Notre Dame on Friday and a 18-15 lead by halftime. "I honestly felt we could beat them," said Irish coach Digger Phelps. "I just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or anything. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils built an early 11-1 lead over Notre Dame on Friday and a 18-15 lead by halftime. "I honestly felt we could beat them," said Irish coach Digger Phelps. "I just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or anything. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils built an early 11-1 lead over Notre Dame on Friday and a 18-15 lead by halftime. "I honestly felt we could beat them," said Irish coach Digger Phelps. "I just had an off day. They were rolling out, not basking or anything. We weren't throwing bricks. Nothing was going in." The Blue Devils' tiny Cameron Indoor Stadium was apparent from the start of the game.

"Bolt teams had to use a lot of people," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "In our case, I think we did a good job. We stayed fresh through the whole half game." Prior to the Duke game, Notre Dame had beaten up on three straight opponents at home, averaging 93 points and shooting 52 percent from the field. However, the road has not been good for the Irish all season, and it doesn't get any easier. This weekend they travel to Texas to face SMU and then its next string of tough road games for the Blue Devils.