Hundreds of thousands of people march over the Moscow River on Sunday calling for the Communist Party to give up its stranglehold on power. It was likely the largest protest in Moscow since the Bolshevik Revolution.

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail Gorbachev declared Monday that Communists must surrender their unchallenged right to rule the Soviet Union to the tide of democratic reform he has unleashed.

The Soviet Communist Party chief, in an historic speech to the party's Central Committee in the Kremlin, tacitly acknowledged growing power of the pro-democracy movement that has swept away Communist regimes in Eastern Europe and in several Soviet republics on the road to multiparty politics, and on Sunday drew a huge crowd of protesters in Moscow.

His move was likely to bring about the disintegration of the Communist Party, and Gorbachev, who is also head of the government, did not address the possibility of any party losing power.

The Communist Party's leading role in society, a tenet of Soviet socialism that excluded any other political forces since the time of Lenin, was formalized in the Soviet Constitution in 1977.

"The party wants to remain the guiding force in society, but it must prove its worthiness," Gorbachev said.

In the future it "intends to struggle for the role of ruling party, but do it strictly in the framework of democratic reform, rejecting any kind of legal or political advantage," Gorbachev said.

Political reform that has strengthened democratic government at the expense of an all-controlling party apparatus, "has been accompanied by a growth in political pluralism," Gorbachev said, presenting a draft platform to the 249-member Central Committee. The document calls for the creation of parties at some stage.

Central Committee sources said Gorbachev told the closed meeting that he had pushed through in almost five years in power, in effect creating a multiparty system already.

"The party is indicated he did not foresee the reform overturning the communist-ruled system as well as the communists' assurance of power. The party was ready to act with due account for those new circumstances, cooperate and conduct a dialogue with all organizations honoring the Soviet constitution and yet not breaking the system it endorses," he said.

The two-day Central Committee met starting Monday.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan's proposal to cut Social Security taxes had to be made in order to expose the unfairness of the Reagan and Bush administrations.

"I don't, you all a favor by exposing the situation of Social Security taxes and by exposing the inequity behind Social Security taxes," said Moynihan in his opening remarks.

"If the move was unlikely to bring about the disintegration of the Communist Party, and Gorbachev, who is also head of the government, did not address the possibility of any party losing power.

ND professor discusses proposed Social Security tax cut

Sen. Daniel Moynihan's proposal directly opposes President Bush's proposed 1991 budget. Bush's budget calls for a cut in capital-gains tax, which favors the rich, and the increasing Social Security taxes hurt the poor, according to Ghitarducci.

The Social Security payroll tax is a regressive tax, which means that it takes a larger proportion of low-income pay, and a smaller proportion of upper-income pay, said Ghitarducci. Someone with an income of $200,000 pays basically the same amount of Social Security taxes as someone with an income of $50,000.

The Reagan and Bush administrations have not cut Social Security payroll taxes, according to Ghitarducci. Instead, the F.I.C.A. tax increased in the 1980s.

A portion of the revenues generated by the Social Security tax is put into a surplus created by the cut. This surplus is being counted against the deficit, thus the deficit looks smaller, according to Ghitarducci.

Bush's budget proposes a maximum capital-gains tax rate of 19.6 percent. This decrease will benefit the rich, according to Ghitarducci. Those who earn more than $20,000 will get 60 percent of the cut from capital gains tax while those who earn less than $10,000 will get 0.1 percent of the cut.

Moynihan's proposal to cut Social Security taxes is designed to have an effect both politically and economically, according to Ghitarducci.

Economically, the proposal would make the system not burdening the poor. Also, it would force a truer representation of the deficit figure.

Politically, Moynihan "doesn't want George Bush to happen," according to Ghitarducci. Moynihan simply wants to emphasize the unfairness of the Social Security tax. He wants to see support for the proposed capital-gains tax cut made by Bush. Someone had to say how regressive the Social Security tax is and Moynihan was the one to say that.

Although Ghitarducci acknowledged that Moynihan's initiative would make the Social Security tax cut "safer yet."
Elvis lives...
in the minds of the mindless

For the past 12 years, every tabloid newspaper has had one story to fall back on when UFO and Bigfoot sightings were down and Hollywood love affairs weren't hot enough. Elvis.
The King has been dead since 1977, but his reign continues. People just can't seem to get enough of him. His followers make faithful pilgrimages to Graceland and weep over his grave, placing flowers near his tombstone.

Elvis has reportedly been sighted in a convenience store and driving along a deserted country road. People seem to spot him everywhere. Some women say they have borne his illegitimate children (all born with jet black hair and sideburns). All of these people who claim they have seen Elvis usually come from towns with a population of 20 and a collective I.Q. lower than that.

If I ever meet Elvis, I wouldn't go running to the National Enquirer. I'd show him around campus. I could introduce him at parties, "...and these are my friends Nancy, Lisa and Elvis."

Someone has to have an affiliate for eating lots of food, he could probably work in the dining hall. Elvis would also make N.D. a big campus hit last. As I recall, he also had an affinity for intoxicating substances. Most people could enlist him as a drug/alcohol officer.

Elvis would go from party to party saying, "I'm afraid the party's over. I've got my orders to drink every last drop of beer in the place. I'll just start drinking from the tap."

With Elvis on campus, he could hold concerts every week in the JACC. People from all over would flock to hear him and see him wiggle onstage. With all of his fans traveling to see the King, South Bend/Mashawaka would truly be "alive with pride."

Elvis had an outstanding voice, and his performances were equally exhilarating. But the fact remains that Elvis never wrote any of his songs, he hit on a 14-year-old Priscilla when he was 23, and by the end of his life he was a bloated, walking pharmacy. Of all the people anyone would want to bring back to life, why should it be Elvis? I don't hear of people sighting Martin Luther King or Gandhi in the grocery store buying Oreos. Why aren't people looking for ghosts of truly great leaders instead of a talented performer who let fame go to his head? Seeing Elvis is just wishful thinking, and those who keep looking for him should spend their time more productively.

So let me make it clear once and for all. Elvis is dead, he has been for 12 years, and he's not coming back. But I did see John Lennon in the 7-11 the other day...

A new commission has been asked to figure out what would happen to Florida if Cuba's Communist regime lost power. Gov. Bob Martinez said Monday. Martinez said he has no information that change is imminent, but he believes the state should be ready in case it happens. The institute teaches both Tae Kwon Do and Ju Jitsu.

Israelis seek bus attack culprits

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir demanded Monday that Egypt track down and punish those responsible for a desert bus attack in which nine people were killed, and Israelis mourned their dead with silence and screams of anguish.

Israeli leaders said the latest Middle East peace efforts should not be thwarted by public outrage over Sunday’s attack — the worst on Israelis in Egypt since the two countries signed a peace treaty in 1979.

Newspaper editorials noted, however, that the incident would almost certainly boost support for hard-line views toward Arabs.

Israeli victims flown home by military jet from Egypt’s capital gave harrowing accounts of the several minutes during which two gunmen on a desert road raked their bus with gunfire and hurled grenades inside. “Everyone saw his death,” said Professor Vidal Barak, a passenger who was unhurt. “There was nobody who could protect us, nobody carried any weapons.”

“I felt like a Jew who is facing the Nazis,” said Judith Benjamin, 63, of Tel Aviv, describing the death of her 72-year-old husband, Ishshar. All the dead were Israelis, and there were 21 people wounded, including an Egyptian tour guide.

In Washington, the State Department called the attack an “outrageous act” designed to halt efforts toward reconciliation and dialogue between Arabs and Israelis.

President Bush called Shamir to express his sorrow and Secretary of State James A. Baker III relayed a similar message in calls to the Israeli and Egyptian foreign ministers, department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said.

Shamir told Parliament: “Our first demand from Egyptian leaders is to find the perpetrators of the crime and bring them to speedy trial and punish them severely.”

He said Israel would go ahead with its peace initiative calling for Palestinian elections but also would try to “liquidate blood-thirsty” terrorism.

Mary Ann Rowan, director of admissions at Saint Mary’s College, was elected to a three-year term as chairperson of the Midwest Region of the College Board.

Rowan previously served as a member of the Executive Committee in 1988-89 and as vice chairperson in 1989-90. Nominations for chairperson were submitted by members of the Midwest Region and then voted on, said Rowan.

The College Board is a non-profit, educational association serving students, high schools and colleges through programs designed to expand educational opportunities, such as the preparation of high school students for college, said Rowan.

The board is divided into six regions; the Midwest region is composed of thirteen states, according to Saint Mary’s admission office.

As chairperson of the Midwest Region of the College Board, Rowan would act as a representative of the Midwest in establishing policies, addressing issues and concerns of the members in her region, selecting candidates to represent the region in various national committees and councils, establishing regional committees and councils, and promoting the programs the College Board offers, said the Admission Office. The Executive Committee has been instrumental in reviewing and offering advice about the College Board’s planning process and in ways the board can further its goals, said the admission office.

Pre-college guidance and counseling and encouragement of pursuing a higher education have been major concerns of the committee in recent years, and Rowan plans on continuing these goals.

“I would like to encourage more people to use services of the College Board,” said Rowan. “More importantly, I would like to involve more of the membership in College Board activities so that the services can be broadened.”

Right-wing mobilizes against F.W. deKlerk

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The main right-wing political party Monday called on whites to mobilize against “the revolutionary left-wing announcements” of President F.W. de Klerk.

The leader of the Conservative Party, Andries Treurnicht, said South Africa’s 5 million whites faced “the hour of truth.” His party applied for a permit for a mass march in Pretoria on Feb. 15 to launch a “freedom struggle” aimed at protecting whites from domination by the black majority.

De Klerk, in a momentous speech last week, lifted bans on more than 60 anti-apartheid groups, including the African National Congress guerrilla movement, and promised to free jailed ANC leader Nelson Mandela in hopes of clearing the way for negotiations on black-white power sharing.

“The African nation is not prepared to live under an overwhelmingly ANC government,” said a statement from the Conservative Party, which won 31 percent of the white vote in a general election in September.

In other developments:

— Police used tear gas and buckshot to disperse crowds of black protesters in Tembisa and Thokoza, two townships near Johannesburg. Several people were reported to be injured in the confrontations, and angry youths erected street barricades in each town.

— Cabinet ministers said the government sought a new political system in which all South Africans had full voting rights. But they said special protection would be required for whites, and reaffirmed government support for segregated neighborhods and public schools.

Several far-right groups have vowed to resist de Klerk’s reforms. Fears of an extremist backlash increased after an attack Sunday on the British Embassy in Pretoria.

Assailants shot windows out at the embassy, a day after right-wing graffiti was spray-painted on the building. Embassy spokesman John Sawyer said it was suspected that the assailants were angered by Britain’s support for de Klerk.

Robert von Tonder, leader of a group that seeks a whites-only homeland, said de Klerk’s changes could prompt the formation of an underground white guerrilla movement.

Five whites were arrested recently on charges of planning attacks against de Klerk and other government leaders, as well as anti-apartheid activists.

Most right-wing whites are Afrikaners. Primarily of Dutch descent, they began settling in South Africa more than 300 years ago and now account for 60 percent of the 5 million whites.

In Parliament, Constitutional Development Minister Gerritt Viljoen said the government sought a new constitution that would ensure all South Africans a full, equal franchise in a multiparty democracy. This should be achieved "without prejudicing the rights of minorities against domination," he said.

Other Cabinet ministers defended segregation of neighborhoods and public schools.

"Black people should be running their own education and white people should be running their own education," said Stoffel van der Merwe, who oversees education for blacks. Otherwise, he said, there will be "tremendous chaos."

Herman Kriel, minister of planning and provincial affairs, said the government had no plans to repeal the Group Areas Act, which mandates segregation of residential areas.

Kriel said the act might be placed on the agenda during negotiations with black leaders. But he said the right of whites to live in segregated neighborhoods was an "indispensable principle" of the governing National Party.

Indian guards fire on Pakistanis

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indian border guards opened fire on Pakistanis who swarmed into Indian territory in the northern state of Jammu-Kashmir on Monday, officials said.

At least 10 people were believed injured in the shooting, the government's chief spokesman said. Pakistani officials said one protestors was killed and 13 others were shot in the legs.

The episode occurred near Rannibaghpur in Jammu region, 310 miles north of New Delhi, said the spokesman, who briefed rules.

The Indian spokesman said about 4,000 demonstrators gathered on the Pakistani side and tried to cross the border. "Despite efforts by the Pakistani rangers, some people crossed over and the Indian security forces had to fire to control the situation," he said without elaborating.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Pakistan's top diplomat in India, Rashid Babar, was summoned to the Foreign Office and was told of India's "concern and deep regret" at the "unprovoked incident." The Pakistan government did not immediately react to the incident.

In Jammu, a senior official of the Indian Border Security Force, which guards the area, said the trouble started around noon when about 500 people gathered near the border and shouted "provocative slogans."

He said the commander of the Border Security Force outpost then called Pakistani soldiers into the Indian territory to discuss the situation, following which the Pakistan forces dispersed the crowd.

Thatcher and Jackson discuss South Africa

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Jesse Jackson, the black U.S. civil rights leader, argued about sanctions against South Africa during a 90-minute meeting Monday, but smiled for photographers afterward.

Thatcher gave Jackson a message for his South African counterpart, Nelson Mandela, saying she hopes rest with him, said a spokesman at her official residence, 10 Downing Street, who asked that his name not be used. Jackson is on his way to South Africa.

"We agreed to disagree," Thatcher told reporters, referring to Thatcher's opposition to sanctions. "I added, 'I feel we have a better feel for each other.' Jackson said that Thatcher expressed belief that President F.W. de Klerk of South Africa was committed to reforming the apartheid system, which include legalizing the African National Congress guerrilla movement and the speedy release of Mandela, an ANC leader who went to jail nearly 28 years ago.

"If he happens to believe for the most part that the courage is taken by Mr. de Klerk will continue," said Jackson. "I believe they will continue to search in our own way for a new South Africa and a new equation," Jackson said of the meeting with Mrs. Thatcher.

At a news conference held for him earlier Monday by three leaders of the House of Commons, Jackson said: "Sanctions and apartheid should end on the same day, and it ought to be soon."

tentions were good, she also implied that the White House was the wrong way. She shouldn't have exposed the Social Security program to the "attack" of the Republicans.

Instead of simply protecting a payroll tax cut, Moynihan should have also proposed a non-payroll tax increase to ensure the buildup of the "baby boom" surplus.

"The real fear is that in the future white middle-class workers will retire and minority immigrant workers will make up the work force," said Ghilarducci. These workers will be given the burden of supporting the older retirees, unless there is a sufficient Social Security surplus fund.

Ghilarducci said that eliminating tax deduction on "junk bonds" should be "investigated as an alternative" for generating revenues. "Junk bonds" are bonds issued by investment bankers which serve mainly as a means for borrowing money.

This money is generally used for government spending, according to Ghilarducci. She implied that the Bush budget over-projected in its figures for revenue increase.

"No one has a rosier idea of what the economy will do than the White House," said Ghilarducci.

Tax revenue projections are very sensitive to economic growth, according to Ghilarducci. She implied that the Bush budget over-projected in its figures for revenue increase.

"We agreed to disagree," Thatcher told reporters, referring to Thatcher's opposition to sanctions.

She added, "I feel we have a better feel for each other."

allows individuals to take what they want while ignoring the rights of others. "I pray that no one in this room will ever depend for your life on the values of someone else," said Burtchaell.

Burtchaell focused on the issue from a Theologian's point of view and made references to the Bible. He said that he would focus on abortion as a moral issue and not so much as a legal or political issue. Burtchaell challenged the audience saying, "What do you think, might it be even more ruthless to ignore oppression than to inflect it?"

The second pro-choice speaker, Kronenberger, also challenged the audience, asking them "What does it mean for something to be sacred?" He said that while pro-life advocates believe that an embryo is sacred, he does not agree—the idea of a embryo with a right to life is "an intellectual concept."

He pointed to what he calls the "slippery slope" argument, accusing pro-life advocates of saying that there is some point between conception and birth when life begins, but "you can't find it so you slide down that slippery slope from conception and you get there."

Kronenberger told the audience that there is no place between birth and conception where life begins, which he attempted to clarify later in the debate.

In her opening statement, Freeman received much support from the predominantly pro-life crowd. She pointed out that while many women will criticize abortion on the basis of sex selection, they do not oppose selective abortion of fetuses on account of deformities or timing.

She examined the role of the pro-life woman and criticized pro-choice advocates such as Faye Wattleton, president of Planned Parenthood Federation of America. "Pro-abortion feminists don't want women to be second-class citizens... but somewhere along the way all
Tanks break Christian stronghold

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gen. Michel Aoun's tanks broke into a stronghold of his Christian militia rivals Monday, after a week of battle, and advancing toward the command post of Lebanese Forces chief Samir Geagea, police said.

"They said the tanks, with cannons blazing, drove to Samir Geagea. In general, the impression is formed that it was written by two hands — both the left and the right," he said.

Small political parties already are forming in the Baltic republics, where Communist leaders are leading the drive to eliminate the party's guaranteed role.

Gorbachev said in Lithuania last month it would be "no tragedy" if a multiparty system evolved to replace the party's hold on power, but that said a system was not a panacea.

"Is it not time for you, Mikhail Sergeyevich, and the leadership of the country as a whole to seriously think about the fate of the socialist government, over the fate of honest laboring people, and take the most direct radical measures before it's too late?" asked the first speaker, Kovalenko.

In the beginning was lust. The godly, as well as the ungodly, have been having physical sex for about two years, and kept that fact hidden from their parents or any older person. Their relationship is the only place either feels fully alive but it's unclear whether it's based more on lust or on love. The relationship has its highs and lows and its friends, while envying some of what they have going consider the relationship somewhat unhealthy and immature. Independent of each other, Sue and George wonder if their love bubble will soon burst and be replaced by pain. At some level, this is sure to it.

2. Sam and Eric are roommates and friends. One night, while play-wrestling on the floor of their room, Eric noticeably gets an erection. They both have been having physical sex for about two years, and kept that fact hidden from their parents or any older person. Their relationship is the only place either feels fully alive but it's unclear whether it's based more on lust or on love.

3. Somehow, Bill had always gotten the message that, for him and for any good person, sex was an unacceptable part of life. As a result, a lot of his development to that extent we fail to mature and, thus, fail as Christians.

4. As a child, Jenny was subjected to severe physical and emotional abuse, and learned to be very afraid of people. She just wanted to be left alone, when alone she felt miserable. At thirteen, she attempted suicide. She didn't trust anyone, and spent time fantasizing - often to the point of orgasm - ways she could hurt herself.

At 18, still a virgin, she was raped by the caretaker of the building where she lived. From then on, she has made herself available to him whenever he wants her. She tells her friends that he is her uncle, and she lives with him and his aunt, and does a lot of things to them about every other aspect of her life.

The next few articles in the campus ministry columns will be dealing with the issue of sexuality. As a result, a lot of his development to that extent we fail to mature and, thus, fail as Christians.

The central sexual issue for us as Christians is not so much what we do or don't do with various parts of our bodies; the central sexual issue is how we are in the world and how we relate in the world.

What we do in the world we do with and through our bodies, which are either male or female. Anything done through our bodies is, by definition, done sexually: looking; smelling; tasting; touching; shaking hands; kissing; hugging; playing a game; roughhousing; performing; etc. All physical expressions are not limited to the sexual, but they are sexual. Whenever we present ourselves in our world we do so as people who include the sexual.

The primary problem about sexuality is not what we do - it's who we are. As we grow in our world, we grow intellectually, spiritually and sexually. These are not unrelated ways of growing. They work together. To the degree that we ignore the full development of any aspect of our being, we remain immature - not only in that aspect, but in all aspects.

Of the intellectual, spiritual and sexual aspects of our lives, the one that we tend to least develop at Notre Dame is our sexuality, and to the extent that we continue to ignore its full and healthy development to the extent we fail to mature and, thus, fail as Christians.

The Christian life is a mediated life. That means that persons committed to growing as Christians do not make their decisions in isolation, but in consultation with the sense and insight of those they consider wise in the Christian community.

Students at Notre Dame will seek mediation on a number of crucial issues in their developing lives: career, family, courses of study, travel, restaurant selection, love. Opportunities for mediation are both presented and sought out in halls, with a favorite advisor, through the counseling center or with campus ministers.

Unless they are in some serious trouble, though, rarely do students openly and honestly discuss their developing sexuality with a trusted advisor. As a result, sexuality can remain an undeveloped, overly emphasized part of the Notre Dame student's life.

In our culture, it seems, when it comes to sex, little is thought of more; little is integrated less. So, we have a choice. We can join the rest of our culture, which remains, on the whole, sexually infantile. Or, we can begin to grow sexually in ways that surpass our peers.

There are many reasons that we wouldn't talk about our sexuality the same way we might discuss, say, our course schedule. Who we are at the core is much more personal than what we do in the classroom. Too, perhaps, there is fear that the only response we'll be given is "DON'T!", rather than profound following by some sound, practical advice on how to integrate our sexuality into other aspects of our developing life.

 Especially at Notre Dame, students might assume that if they talk about their own, personal sexuality with someone they otherwise trust, that person will have an obligation to force them into the view, "until you're married, FORGET IT!"

Yet in Christian teaching, sexuality - with the joy and pleasure it brings - is a very noble part of life. If Sue and George and Sam and Eric and Bill and Jenny don't hide their various sexual confusions, but bring them to a trusted advisor, they could well find their spirit unfolding in remarkable ways it otherwise never would.

They could begin to find ways to integrate their sexuality into the rest of their spirituality, rather than continuing to see it as something that separates them form a spiritual life.

The Sues and Georges could begin to learn that we don't find ourselves in relationships - we bring ourselves to them. Going to a relationship to find meaning and purpose creates unhealthy dependency - not healthy relationships.

The Sams and Erics could begin to learn that their bodies react in ways over which they have little or no control at times, and that no definitive statements about them can be made based on any isolated reactions. If they were to talk to someone about it, they might learn how complicated the relationship between feelings, friendship, bodies, love and sex can be. They might learn that what happened might say little about their sexual orientation but a lot about their sexuality.

The Bills could begin to grow from the shame-based existence in which they were raised and discover that the more they come to accept themselves and others as sexual the less compulsive will their sexual lives be.

The Jennys could begin to work through issues of abuse and see themselves not as bad but as good and growing. Dependences could begin to diminish and dishonesty could be replaced with comfort.

All of them could begin to recognize how sexual behavior is woven in with many other - often unconscious - needs: the need to prove one's identity or self-worth; the need to avoid loneliness; the need to express aggression.

All of them, and any Notre Dame Christian, could begin to understand how - even in the flesh of their sexuality - they can begin to meet the incarnate God and begin to realize how, through sexuality, the incarnate God reveals the meaning of their lives.

Calderon to preside in Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — President-elect Rafael Angel Calderon is congratulated by supporters after winning the Costa Rican presidential elections replacing Nobel Peace Prize-winning President Oscar Arias.

By Monday afternoon, the official count showed Calderon leading Castillo by 636,282 votes to 604,396, with about 90 percent of precincts reporting. Castillo broke even in San Jose, the National Liberation Party stronghold. Calderon’s Social Christians were sweeping most of the countryside.

“Today, we have elected liberty and democracy to the presidency of Costa Rica,” Castillo said in a graceful concession speech Sunday night.

Calderon, who visited Panama shortly after the Dec. 20 U.S. invasion, is a strong supporter of U.S. policy in the region.

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to Mr. Buchholz's column in the Tuesday, June 30 Observer, glorifying Cuba as a valiant defender of socialism.

My primary disagreement is with his, if I may say, 'naive,' interpretation of the Panama intervention. I charge that it was racist, inane, especially when one stops to consider that Gen. Colin Powell, the second in command of the U.S. military, behind only the President, happens to be an African American. If the insinuation is that that is so readily alleged to exist in U.S. policies.

The intervention of Panama was also illegal. The Panama Canal Treaty expressly allows U.S. military intervention in Panama for any reason. Even if someone rejects Endara's authority before the invasion, the treaty over- riders both the UN and OAS charters, as it is a direct agreement between the two nations involved.

Cuba's condemnation of the U.S. support for the legitimate President of Panama is not a lack of support for both democracy and its international obligations. I also dispute the picture of El Salvador painted by Mr. Buchholz. He states that troops are present at El Salvadoran elections to affect the outcome. In actuality they are there to defend the people from Cubans backed rebels who declined the invitation to participate, preferring to use violence to achieve their ends and threatening to direct such violence against the polls.

Mr. Buchholz's hypocrisy is absurd. While he spouts views on the glories of true socialism and the evil, imperialistic nature of the United States and its capitalist economy, he is taking advantage of the political rights and freedoms guaranteed in our country and protected by "the murderous regime in Washington." He is being educated at a school supported primarily from donations made by people who make a living exploiting the works. Therefore, he is voluntarily benefiting from this exploitation.

Dear Editor:

After meeting with two reporters from The Observer last week, I was disturbed to learn that students from Notre Dame feel slighted by Mishawaka Cab Company. I am very supportive of Notre Dame and am a tremendous Notre Dame fan. However, in the past it has not been profitable, or possible, to service the Notre Dame campus.

The main reason it has not been feasible to send cabs from our company to the Notre Dame campus is the distance involved. Although many Notre Dame students have called us for a cab, the majority of the time these students have not been at the pickup when a cab did arrive for the call. The problem is that many students call our cab company and then call another cab company as well and take the first cab to arrive. Being located in Mishawaka, it takes the average cab driver between 15 and 20 minutes to reach the Notre Dame campus. However, a cab company such as Yellow Cab, which is located in South Bend, and which has many more cars than our company does, is able to reach the campus much more quickly. After receiving numerous calls and very few actual clients, Mishawaka Cab adopted the policy of not serving the Notre Dame campus.

Logic, not visions, should support religion

Dear Editor:

Not to say that these kids are faking. I think they really believe they are experiencing visions. Shirley probably really believes she was once a Babylonian warrior. As for our Blessed Mother's message, "Peace," don't you think that the Mother of Our Savior could have come up with something a little more original and specific that that? That is probably why Jesus gave no specifics.

Just because Christianity happens to be the religion that has been in vogue for the past fifteen centuries or so doesn't mean we have to accept every crackpot revelational scheme that comes along as legitimate. Why can't we have a reasonable religion, one based on common sense and logic, rather than upon the claims of a few Eastern European adventurers?

Oh, and for those who would like to know, I'm one of those postimmoral youths who saw "The Last Temptation of Christ." Michael J. Barbeau Zahn Hall Jan. 29, 1990

Henry V

Director/actor

Kenneth Branagh compared to young Olivier

Kenneth Branagh's "Henry V" isn't for everyone. This young British actor/director's first major motion picture is a modern adaptation of Shakespeare's "Henry V." As British-made movie, it does some time to get used to characters heavily acented dialogue. Once this adjustment is made, however, "V" can truly be seen as one of the best movies of 1989. Branagh, who plays King Henry V of England, is a rising star who has been compared to the young Laurence Olivier. Like Branagh, he also acted in and directed a screen version of Shakespeare's "Henry V." While Olivier's 1944 version revolved around a serious and triumphant king, Branagh portrays a much less certain king who is faced with his first test of leadership. In Branagh's version of Henry V's invasion of France in the early-15th Century, he believes he has a legal claim to northern France. An old drinking friend from Henry V's youth, Bardolf (Richard Briers), is caught pillaging, despite the King's orders against pillage. The king must choose between carrying out justice and saving his old friend. In the end, he chooses to maintain the discipline of his army. Bardolf is executed.

The British and French armies encounter each other and prepare for battle the following day at Agincourt. Henry V's British are far outnumbered and low in spirits. King Henry, in disguise, mingle with the common soldiers of his army the night before they are to go into battle. An encounter with one of his soldiers, who bitterly denounces the English king's choice to invade France, starts Henry V thinking about his role as leader and the burden he faces. The next day, the two armies clash in one of the better-filmed battle scenes in recent movies. King Henry and his troops defeat the French in a confusing, bloody series of scenes conveying the reality of battle. Following the battle, Henry V courts the King of France's daughter, Katherine (Emma Thompson). In a scene which is brilliantly acted, Katherine, who speaks little English, and King Henry, who speaks no French, come to love one another and agree to marry. Branagh is one of the best new actors and directors to enter into the film world in quite a while. Directing a cast of notable British actors, Branagh has cleverly woven together these classical Shakespearean actors with new talent, such as himself and Emma Thompson (Princess Katherine). Branagh's adaptation makes Shakespeare's play more accessible to modern audiences. Olivier's classic was a wartime film, and as such, was clearly meant to inspire a war-born Britain. Branagh's adaptation gives modern audiences a new perspective on "Henry V." one many more people might identify with.

Kenneth Branagh's "Henry V" isn't for everyone. This young British actor/director's first major motion picture is a modern adaptation of Shakespeare's "Henry V." As British-made movie, it does some time to get used to characters heavily acented dialogue. Once this adjustment is made, however, "V" can truly be seen as one of the best movies of 1989. Branagh, who plays King Henry V of England, is a rising star who has been compared to the young Laurence Olivier. Like Branagh, he also acted in and directed a screen version of Shakespeare's "Henry V." While Olivier's 1944 version revolved around a serious and triumphant king, Branagh portrays a much less certain king who is faced with his first test of leadership. In Branagh's version of Henry V's invasion of France in the early-15th Century, he believes he has a legal claim to northern France. An old drinking friend from Henry V's youth, Bardolf (Richard Briers), is caught pillaging, despite the King's orders against pillage. The king must choose between carrying out justice and saving his old friend. In the end, he chooses to maintain the discipline of his army. Bardolf is executed.

The British and French armies encounter each other and prepare for battle the following day at Agincourt. Henry V's British are far outnumbered and low in spirits. King Henry, in disguise, mingle with the common soldiers of his army the night before they are to go into battle. An encounter with one of his soldiers, who bitterly denounces the English king's choice to invade France, starts Henry V thinking about his role as leader and the burden he faces. The next day, the two armies clash in one of the better-filmed battle scenes in recent movies. King Henry and his troops defeat the French in a confusing, bloody series of scenes conveying the reality of battle. Following the battle, Henry V courts the King of France's daughter, Katherine (Emma Thompson). In a scene which is brilliantly acted, Katherine, who speaks little English, and King Henry, who speaks no French, come to love one another and agree to marry. Missouri stays atop AP top 20 poll

Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas held their spots atop the Associated Press college basketball poll Monday on Monday and Connecticut continued its impressive three-week climb.

The Huskies (19-3), who are tied for first place in the Big East, moved from 13th to eight this week after debuting in the rankings two weeks ago at No. 20. Massachusetts and Kansas head for their rematch on next Tuesday, just one game back each.

The Tigers (21-1) are No. 1 for the third straight week after knocking Kansas from its first place in the Big East, moved from 9-13 to third with one more than Connecticut, while Syracuse (16-3) stayed even with them and they received 1,281 points.

Michigan (16-4) bounced back from the loss to the Tigers with a victory over Wisconsin and the Wolverines finished fourth with 1,113 points, 40 more than Connecticut.

UNLV (16-4) was ninth with 1,061 points and Purdue (16-3), which lost to Connecticut last week before beating Michigan, rounded out the Top Ten with 1,013 points.

Louisiana State, 14th last week, led the second Ten with 940 points and was followed by Illinois, Alabama, Notre Dame, Santa Clara, Georgia Tech, West Virginia, Oregon State and BYU.

Xavier, Ohio started the first two weeks followed by Arizona, Michigan State, St. John's and Indiana.

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL's new international venture, a year in the planning stage, is about to move a step closer to reality with a two-year contract from ABC that could bring it close to $30 million.

The agreement, which sources said will pay the league $12.15 million a year, will be announced today with perhaps more to come, both overseas and in the United States.

The league, now dubbed the World League of American Football after two name changes, will start play in the spring of 1991 with 12 franchises—six in the United States, four in Europe and one each in Mexico and Canada.

New York is the only American city set, with the international sites expected to be London, Frankfurt, Milan, Barcelona, Montreal and Mexico City.

It is totally distinct from the World Football League, which is headed by Tex Schramm, former president of the Dallas Cowboys and is overseeing a board of NFL owners. But league officials insist that it will be a distinct entity, competing in some instances for coaches and perhaps players.

In addition to the ABC contract, the WLAF hopes to make deals with cable and local television in the United States and separate agreements with European outlets. ABC is expected to carry a game of the week with local or cable stations televising away games back to home markets.

The WLAF will play a 10-game spring schedule after running its own draft—both of free agents and NFL players who may want to get extra time in a spring league. It will also seek coaches, perhaps young assistants seeking to establish themselves in top jobs.

"It would be perfect for young guys who want to prove themselves as head coaches," Joe Bailey, Schramm's top assistant, said Monday.

The WLAF also hopes to play in smaller stadiums, seating 35,000-40,000 so as not to televise thousands of empty seats, one problem endured by the USFL, which folded in 1986 after three spring seasons.

That could be a problem in New York, for example, where by far the best football facility is the 76,000-seat Giants Stadium.

It had gone recently to a soccer game that drew 33,000 to London's Wembley Stadium, which holds nearly 100,000.

"It was a good fit and it didn't look empty," Bailey said. "All things being equal, we'd prefer medium-sized stadiums, but we're not ruling anything out just because of its size."

"I'm not content with the way the team is playing," he said. "I don't see them putting together a consistent game. We're nowhere near the team we were in the first 30 games. I expected a downturn, but not this long. It's like our team is dead out there, there's no life, no crispness, I can't fault the effort, but there's nothing there."

Walsh, who put together the club as general manager, has always on the lookout to make the team better.

"I have to think about it now," said Walsh about a trade. "You have to evaluate your team all the time."

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Pacers, surprise leaders in the first month of the NBA season, are sliding rapidly and club president Donnie Walsh says a trade may be needed to apply the brakes.

The Pacers (23-23) take a five-game losing streak into Tuesday night's game at Denver, Indiana, which once was 10 games above the .500 mark, has lost eight of its last nine games. 14 in the last 18 and nine straight on the road.

Walsh was in New York to witness the Pacers' 112-98 loss to New York on Saturday.

The Pacers are currently seventh, a half-game ahead of Atlanta and just 2 1/2 games in front of Cleveland. The top eight teams in the conference qualify for the playoffs and the others go into the lottery.

The NBA trading deadline is Feb. 22 and Walsh says he's always on the lookout to make the team better.

"I have to think about it now," said Walsh about a trade. "You have to evaluate your team all the time."

Indiana has been outrebounded in nine consecutive games.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Five years ago, when rookie Karl Malone made the眺 the 3-point line, there is more than hope guiding the ball. Indeed, the Mailman delivers. Not only did the former Louisiana Tech star become one of the NBA's premier players, he conquered the foul line and added distance to his repertoire. Next Sunday, he will return to the All-Star Game for the third straight year.

The 'Mailman': unstoppable phenomenon for Utah Jazz

Karl Malone, the “Mailman,” has been the cornerstone of the Utah Jazz since its inception. Malone’s impact on the team goes beyond his All-Star-worthy play. His leadership and work ethic have inspired his teammates and fans alike. With the upcoming return to the All-Star Game, Malone is poised to continue his legacy as one of the greatest players in NBA history.

Contract

Notre Dame will continue to be a member of the CFA, but will not participate in the ABC-TV package. CFA members make a decision for themselves as to the television package, “said university Executive Vice President Father E. J. Beauchamp. ‘That’s the right of every school in the CFA. Discussion with NBC began once it became clear what was in the ABC package.”

Beauchamp is on the Board of Directors of the CFA. All parties involved stressed that the current contract Notre Dame has with the CFA will be fulfilled, and that the CFA was aware that Notre Dame would not decide on the television deal until it saw the contract.

“We did not interfere with an existing relationship,” Ebersol said. “I don’t know what the impact of this will be on the CFA,” Ebersol said. “Notre Dame is an important facet of their TV, so I’m sure they’d prefer Notre Dame in the package.”

The terms of the agreement were not disclosed. The bulk of the funds from the deal will go towards providing financial aid to students and meeting the growing need.

Any additional revenue that might be generated from this contract will be for financial assistance to students,” Beauchamp said. “Quality students who show need. The money will not go directly to the athletic department.”

Another important aspect of the deal is a consistent starting time. Home games will begin at 7:00 p.m. Eastern time beginning in 1991. The deal calls for NBC to televise six games per year for five years. A schedule

Karl Malone, the “Mailman,” has been the cornerstone of the Utah Jazz since his career began. The Jazz’ ascent has echoed Malone’s Association before turning to high school coaching.

“My whole dream was to get there myself,” Smith said. “The only way I can be there now is through Karl. That’s my whole shot now, being that I didn’t make it.”

Malone’s finest NBA hour came at last year’s All-Star Game, where he scored 28 points in the West’s victory. This year, the fan didn’t vote him to the starting roster, a snub he admits hurt him deeply.

Darryl Strawberry's bout with addiction long and lonely

NEW YORK (AP) — It is a foreboding place, a starkly white building with wrought iron gates and heavy doors. The lobby of the converted brownstone on the fashionable upper East Side of Manhattan has a Victorian look about it, with plush furnishings including a couch you sink into. Once a handsome private residence, it is now a place for putting lives back together.

For the next month, the Smithers Alcohol and Drug Treatment Center will be home to Darryl Strawberry, the New York Mets.

Strawberry began a month-long alcohol rehabilitation program at Smithers over the weekend, becoming just another patient in the 44-bed facility.

Among them was 20-year-old goalkeeper Kasey Keller, who limited Colombia to one goal—on an indirect free kick—in his first appearance in international competition.

Kasey Keller is an immense tale, Gansler said. "I know Kasey can play in this league, and so do others."

Gansler used 21 players in the two games. Only five players started both.

You want to see improvement from game to game," Gansler said. "You want to slowly find your nucleus, and I think we've made some progress toward that."

The U.S. looked ragged in its 2-0 loss Friday to Costa Rica. But both the offense and defense improved as the Americans played Colombia to a 1-1 tie, then lost on penalty kicks.

While Colombia was without five starters, Sunday's game was encouraging nonetheless. Stripes began to list the Colombians' odds of winning the World Cup at 40-1. The U.S. is 1,500-1 and hasn't beaten Colombia since 1984.

"I think we played well. We're a little bit happy, although we don't like taking fourth," midfielder John Harkes said. "It was a pretty even game, when you think about it. To go through the penalty kicks, it could go either way."

Forward Eric Wynalda, making his debut in international competition, played a key role in a resurgent U.S. attack Sunday and scored the team's only goal.

"Obviously we're not in that high spirits. We just lost two games," he said. "But we played two quality teams. If we can continue to have this type of opponent, we can only get better. Every time you play at the highest level, that makes you a better player."

The two-day tournament, won by Uruguay, drew a total of 40,623 fans. Miami is among sites under consideration to host the 1994 World Cup.

The U.S. team will reassemble Saturday in Hamilton, Bermuda and play Bermuda on Feb. 13. The World Cup begins June 8 in Italy.

U.S.A. to compete in World Cup for first time in 40 years

MIAMI (AP) — The U.S. soccer team lost a tournament and found a goalkeeper as it began competition in preparation for its first World Cup appearance in 40 years.

The Americans finished last in the four-team Marlboro Cup of Miami, losing first to Costa Rica and then to Colombia in Sunday's consolation game at the Orange Bowl.

"We can play a little more, but we certainly had progress," U.S. coach Bob Gansler said. "I found some more players that can play."

Among them was 20-year-old goalkeeper Kasey Keller, who limited Colombia to one goal—on an indirect free kick—in his first appearance in international competition.

been the perfect chance for us to get a benchmark of our progress so far." One might go as far as to say that those who truly suffered from the cancellation were Irish opponents in a meet held at Tri-State University in Detroit the following day.

"Our players fenced pretty angrily that day," said DeCicco. "Maybe they felt disappointed of missing out on Saturday. Or maybe they were just mad at me for having them at the gym by 6:30 a.m. on Sunday. Whatever it was, the results were simply astounding." Astonishing might be a gross understatement. The men's foil, sabre and epee teams, along with the women's foil squad, racked up a combined victory total of 152-15, outstanding opponents in a 2-0 margin, and winning all sixteen matches against four schools.

After wrestling wins from Eastern Michigan University, host Tri-State University, the University of Michigan and the University of Detroit, the Irish remained undefeated on the season.

Men's foil boasted four fencers in the Whitewater's Club, as Colin Cummins (7-0), Jeff Piper (7-0) and Noel Young were all perfect on the day. "Colin finished the weekend quite nicely, as evidenced by his record," stated DeCicco. "He's just another example of the kind of depth we have on the team."

The top record on the day belonged to sophomore Tara Kelly. The 5-2 Texan battled her way to an unblemished 13-0 mark in women's foil. Teammates Heidi Piper (9-0), Anna Radio (7-0) and junior fencer Anne Barreda (3-0) were also spotless on the day as the women continued to roll over all takers.

Men's epee continued to roll as well, behind five undefeated finishes of sophomores Judith Beshin (6-0) and David "Dac" Calderhead (5-0).

"Dac is a very easy, easy-going person," said DeCicco of the sophomore from Wandsford, England. "Fifteen minutes before his first match on Sunday, he was nowhere to be found. I had a bigger problem to look for him. Do you know where he was? He was off sleeping in some corner, still trying to get up early. Then he refreshes himself and goes out to win his first two bouts 5-0 and 5-1. He's just very, very cool and confident. It comes from working hard all week in practice."

Men's sabre had three among the ranks of the unbeaten, with Chris Bague (6-0), Don Kirby (5-0) and James Taliaferro (5-0) all among the untouchables that day. "James has been an extremely welcome addition to this year's team," stated DeCicco, referring to Taliaferro. "He's really been a solid reinforcement to the sabre squad."

Next on the agenda as the Irish chase another national championship will be this weekend's competition at Cleveland State University.

Irish Swimming teams both win one, lose one

Notre Dame wins easily over Duke, falls to nationally ranked NC State

By JANICE ARCHER

The Observer

The Notre Dame men's and women's swim teams finished their intense dual meet schedule last weekend against two formidable opponents. The squads traveled east and defeated Duke University, but fell to nationally ranked North Carolina State in their first meetings with either team.

Friday night's meet with the Blue Devils turned out to be a close contest for the men's team, who won 135-106. The Irish lost the opening race, but led throughout most of the meet. At the 50-yard freestyle, the score was tied, but the squad managed to take the lead.

Only until the 200-yard breaststroke, the next to last event, did the Irish pull ahead for good. Captain Tom Penn captured first place with a time of 2:59.73 to give the team the final needed push. Penn also took the 200 individual medley (1:56.67).

Another turning point in Friday's meet came in the 200 backstroke. Freshman John Godfrey won the event with a time of 1:56.67, and teammates Tim Welsh said of the split events. "Those first events established the fact that it would be a good night for the Irish," Welsh said. "Both teams swam with a great deal of spirit, and Duke was a wonderful host. Competing with them was a positive experience." The two squads did not fare as well against North Carolina State. Saturday's meet began at 1:00, forcing the teams to swim two meets in 18 hours.

The teams continue to train hard for the upcoming NCAA Championships, which will be held at Rolfs Aquatic Center. "This past weekend's combination of meets helped us establish where our program is," noted Welsh. "It was a wonderful experience."
Barkley says he'll play, Sixers continue streak

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley of the Philadelphia 76ers said Monday that he will bow to league pressure and play in the NBA All-Star Game next Sunday.

Barkley announced Sunday that he would skip the game to rest, saying a strained leg muscle had nagged him for several days. He heard from the NBA Monday.

"I'm going to play," he said. "They gave me a play-or-else deal. They said I would be suspended next week if I play this week and miss the game. Obviously, I don't agree with them, but I've got to go."

"I know that first team is really struggling," he said in jest. "But they make the rules, and I have to live by them."

The injury, originally diagnosed as a groin pull, bothered Barkley on Sunday. In a 114-89 victory over the Jazz on Monday, he played only 27 minutes but scored 16 points and had eight rebounds.

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Bernard King scored 30 points, Ledell Eackles 29 and Jeff Malone 28 as the Washington Bullets snapped the Golden State Warriors' four-game winning streak. 135-129 Monday night.

The Bullets, who had lost 14 of their previous 17 games, scored their most points this season. Darrell Walker had 15 points, 15 rebounds and 10 assists, the third triple-double of the season.

Washington built a 119-96 lead before the Warriors closed with a 28-10 run that got them within 119-124 on a layup by John Shasky with 1:31 to play.

After Walker made one of two free throws, Terry Teagle sank a 3-point shot with 31 seconds left to pull the Warriors within 130-127.

Behind 23-14, the Bullets outscored the Warriors 17-2 in the first half of the game.

The loss was the seventh in nine games for the Clippers, who have been torn apart by injuries at the guard position. Gary Grant and former Cavalier Ron Harper are both out for the year because of leg injuries, and Jay Edwards missed the game because of the flu.

A fter tonight's contest in week's rest before their Chicago versus Loyola, the 14-6 Sports Writer opponent. Although Notre Dame might be able to take a much needed Butler.

By CHRIS COONEY Sports Writer

The Notre Dame fencing teams woke bright and early Saturday for their first home meet of the season, arriving at their gym to find it...Empty.

"The only disappointment we had this weekend was that Wayne State cancelled their engagement for Saturday," said Irish head fencing coach Mike DeCicco. Weather conditions on Saturday were such that Michigan State Troopers were forced to close off all major interstates, restricting travel for thousands of would-be travelers. Perhaps, though, the Tarriers were spared from the lion's den, as Irish appetites were anxiously awaiting a big kill when Wayne State was slated to lumber into town. Earlier in the week, DeCicco had highlighted this matchup as one of the key hurdles remaining on the Notre Dame regular season schedule. "I certainly would have liked to have had that match against Wayne State," said DeCicco. "It would have been a major event." Leszek Nowosielewski powers potent sabre squad By SCOTT BRUTOCAO Sports Writer

Leszek Nowosielewski, a Notre Dame junior, headed a plane for Budapest, Hungary, on Friday and returned on Monday.

No, it wasn't to congratulate the democratic protesters, nor to participate in a cross-cultural student convention, nor even to get some sun. This scholar-athlete from Ottawa, Ontario, traveled to the far reaches of the Eastern bloc to participate in a World Cup fencing competition.

Nowosielewski's goal in this major event on a national level, as well as to show the most competitive schedule all across the country.

"We are happy to reach a national audience, our alumni, on a national level, as well as to show the most competitive schedule all across the country."

After tonight's contest, women's basketball gets break

By THERESA KELLY Sports Editor

The Notre Dame women's tennis team made a strong showing in their first match of the year, placing its second doubles team of Tracy Hartsen and Ann Bradshaw third in a field of 44 at the Eck Doubles Classic last weekend.

The University of Kentucky grabbed top honors in the main draw, defeating Indiana University in both sets for the championship. Notre Dame's Barton-Bradshaw duo, playing for the first time together, took third in a third-hard-fought set, defeating Ohio State by scores of 6-4, 1-6, 6-4.

Also finishing strong for the Irish was the doubles team of Kim Pacella and Tyler Musleh, which defeated two in-state teams, including the top duo from the University of Hawaii.

Notre Dame also captured first place in the round-robin tournament, with the matchup of Resa Kelly and Samantha Mason edging out Eastern Michigan for the title.

"We have some matches against some nationally ranked teams coming up," said Lounderback. "But the Irish are 8-8 overall and 3-3 in conference play, the structure of the team has changed little from last year. That squad tied for eighth in the Big East.

The CFA did a marvelous job in negotiating a pact for its constituency. To be fair to everyone, a certain degree of regionalization is required."

"The key to our deal was as many exposures as we can get people as possible," Ebersol said. "We are accomplishing this at a time when many deals are going away from free TV towards pay.
