AIDS victim White dying of internal bleeding, infection

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP) Ryan White, whose battle with AIDS brought him scorn in his hometown but support from across the world, was hospitalized with internal bleeding Monday and was not expected to live, authorities said.

Doctors said Monday afternoon that White, 18, probably would not survive the day, said Carrie Van Dyke, director of health promotion for the State Board of Health.

It was later disclosed, however, that White was on a life-support system, a ventilator, that could prolong his life.

While put a youthful face on the AIDS plight. He increased public awareness of the deadly disease and helped reinforce the message that AIDS cannot be spread through casual contact. His struggle was the subject of numerous accounts, including a People magazine cover story and a television movie.

AIDS is presently in the intensive-care unit and he is in critical condition," Kleiman said an afternoon news conference. "He is heavily sedated and we feel that he is experiencing no discomfort.

"It's going to take a lot of work and we are ready and willing to do it," Pasin said.

The new president and vice president intend to continue improving campus intellectual life. In addition to continuing the Iceberg Debates and the World Awareness Week series, Pasin and Tombar plan to begin a corporate-sponsored lecture series. "We want to galvanize the student body—the student body involved in Student Government," Pasin said.

The hearing is still not over, according to Russo. "We want to try to break down the apathy [towards Student Government]," Tombar added, noting that students generally concern themselves with only a few major issues.

The art of writing a good term paper

Learn about the analysis on the first day. Pass, Trumpy forget about it except for an occasional vague sense of foreboding that something is hanging over your head.

Enjoy your semester. Once, on a whim, wander into the library and make friends with the "ULOC" system. Discover that every hook relates to your topic in a foreign language. Decide that that's enough for one day. Return to your dorm and write to your friends that you were "doing research" all day. Accept their sympathy, and their beer.

Three months later, realize that the deadline is a frightening and very near reality. Panic. Stay after class to ask your professor if you have another week, or if you can change your topic, if the paper really has to be in next week. If it's "too late"..... Cry to the librarian. Latch onto classmates who "participate" and seem to know what it's all about.

Take a day to meditate in silent prayer in preparation for a lengthy sojourn in the Mac lab.

Camp out in line for a computer. Pass up the Xerox copies that are right in front of you because it's too close to the fan—you don't want to get a chill. Finally agree to Terminal 25 because everybody said that the numbers 25, 4, and 11 will bring you romance this month.

Get settled in, and type in the title. Admire your work. Ask the person next to you if they took you should put it in bold. Take a survey around the lab. Take a break.

Write a few pages. Announce every time you pass over the little dotted line to a new page e.g., "I can't believe I'm on page 2 already!" Wonder if you could make the paper longer by changing the font. Experiment by trying similar fonts together.

Donald Trump put a zillion slabs of money in play money on the line Monday, opening his $1 billion Ty Mahal Casino Resort in Atlantic City, N.J., for a dry run where the only real action fed the slot machines. Outside on the Boardwalk, the crowd gathered until security guards stepped aside at 10 a.m. and let visitors into the 120,000-square-foot casino floor for the first time. "I'm amazed to see how many people are here at this time of the morning," Trump said, speaking employees' hands and autographing mock $10 bills.

Holders of losing instant tickets in the Hoosier Lottery will get a second chance to win under a new lottery promotion, officials said Monday. A person who has five non-winning instant tickets can mail them in and become eligible for weekly drawings in April for 250 chances in the lottery's new "Lotto Cash" weekly numbers games that begins April 30, lottery officials said.

Lava from Kilauea Volcano yesterday flowed toward a subdivision of 83 homes in the coastal town of Kalapana, Hawaii, and authorities ordered most of the residents to evacuate by nighttime. The slow-moving flow was half a mile from Kalapana Gardens Subdivision yesterday morning. A lava flow in 1986 destroyed dozens of homes in the same area. Hawaii County Civil Defense Administrator Harry Kim ordered residents in 50 of the houses to evacuate and placed the town on alert, meaning residents in about 150 homes could be ordered to evacuate within 72 hours. Emergency authorities evacuated four tiny housing units where a flow crossed Kalapana Bypass Highway, which lies between the town and a lava vent.

Media’s role in business can be biased: professor names names, literature as culprits

By JESSICA ZIEMBROSKI News Writer

Liturgy and films can present an unfavorable view of the business world, according to Professor of Management John Houk.

Houk spoke Monday at a conference which brought together scholars from a variety of disciplines to consider recent trends in theology that are applicable to business ethics.

He discussed the historical and religious values in business in relation to literature and film in his presentation, “A Virtuous Life in the Business Story.”

In the lecture, Houk spoke about the mediums of film and trends in theology that are applicable to business interests to humans and religious thought.

Saying that there are many biases against business and those involved in it, Houk said he feels some literature and films give business a bad image. He cited the film “The Graduate” and the book “What Makes Sammy Run?” as two examples which show the lack of understanding about the business world.

Houk said he feels that business promotes “happiness, power, status, security, and money” but also “encourages competition to create pressure for better performance.”

Houk added that it is the function of humans to serve one another and “know God’s love and justice” but the mediums of film and literature can say the opposite to students.

Lecture Houck spoke

The conference continues today with speakers from DePaul University, the Georgia Supreme Court, and The University of Notre Dame and discussions following the lectures.

Houk and Father Oliver Williams, associate provost, are co-directors of the conference and of the Center for Ethics and Religious Values in Business.

The Hewlett-Packard computer that runs DART “crashed” on March 21, the computer which runs DART for the first time students were supposed to bring their worksheets into the class.

A new DART feature that has added positive feedback is the exchange feature, said Spaulding.

This feature allows a student to already have a full course load to enroll in another class using DART without losing a class they already have.

Conoco offers to relocate 400 in tainted water lawsuit

PONCA CITY, OKLA. (AP) — Conoco Inc. said Monday it has proposed a $23 million settlement that would involve buying nearly 400 homes in Ponca City, Okla., where residents say the groundwater was tainted with hydrocarbons.

Conoco lawyer Mark Zeller said he believed the agreement is one of the largest relocation settlements ever in the country.

"Conoco agreed to the settlement because it is the right thing to do — for these residents, for Ponca City and for Conoco," said the oil refiner's manager, Dennis Parker.

Two comparable cases involved government money: the evacuation of homes built atop tons of chemical waste at Love Canal in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and the virtual abandonment of Times Beach, Mo., which was tainted by dioxin. The Love Canal buyout involved about $19 million to purchase 232 homes. In Times Beach, about $33 million was spent to buy 393 properties.

The Conoco proposal, which must be approved by a federal judge in Oklahoma City, calls for the company to buy almost 400 homes and residential lots to establish a $5 million settlement fund. Conoco said the property acquisition could cost $18 million.

Anthony Roisman, a lawyer for the residents, says anyone involved in the lawsuit will be entitled to share in the fund. Conoco does not have the number of plaintiffs involved in the class-action suit, said Lynn Hoehn, a company spokesman.

Conoco said the settlement would resolve the lawsuit with out either party admitting liability or responsibility for any claims, injuries or damages.

Homeowners in the Circle Drive residential area in southwest Ponca City had complained since 1987 that groundwater laced with hydrocarbons seeped into their basements and threatened their health. Some residents camped out at the state Capitol in Oklahoma City for weeks in 1990 to get the state to buy their houses.

"To Conoco and du Pont we say 'thank you' in coming forth with this settlement," said resident Anna Sue Rafferty. "I'd just like to say none of us is happy to be leaving our home. No one intended to get rich." Conoco is a subsidiary of du Pont Inc.

Conoco had noted that other oil refinery operations have been based in the area over the years. "There has been steady progress on the technical aspects of a groundwater remediation effort," Parker said.

"There has not been a corresponding resolution of the many difficulties experienced by the people, and those considerations also deserve our attention," he said.

If approved, the settlement would allow owners and renters of property within a certain area of the northern Oklahoma city to receive financial payments and relocate. Residents of a larger area of the neighborhood could receive payments because of their proximity to the groundwater problems and the activities needed to fix it.

Fuel spill in Allegheny River could cut Pittsburgh's water

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Pittsburgh heard for a long-term water crisis Monday as a slow-moving fuel spill snuck down the Allegheny River, threatening supplies to as many as 1 million people.

"It's very possible the worst of this is yet to come," said Alton H. Phillips, safety director, Glenn Cannon. "There's no end to it."

A hospital served meals on paper plates, supermarkets sold out of bottled water, schools closed and a steel plant trucked in water to flush its toilets.

A landslide late Friday severed the underground 10-inch-wide pipeline near Freeport, 35 miles north of Pittsburgh. The pipe spilled between 75,000 and 300,000 gallons of gasoline, diesel fuel and kerosene into the river.

Like tumbling dominoes, water companies fed into the Allegheny were forced to close the intakes of their water treatment plants one by one as the 20-mile-long spill moved toward Pittsburgh, reaching the city early Monday evening. Some were able to reopen Monday as the spill became more diluted and the water could be treated with oxidants.

The Pittsburgh Water Department, which serves 450,000 people, still was drawing water from the river and boosting its reservoirs Monday afternoon but was preparing to close its intakes at any moment. If the spill "should move suddenly, we'll have to shut the plant down," said Mayor Sophie Masloff.

Pittsburgh gets only part of its water from the Allegheny, and had enough reserves to last three to five days, said Cannon.

"The long-term impact could be devastating," he said.

Upstate water systems served by the Harrison Township Water Authority have been without water since Saturday and depended on National Guard portable water tanks set up to drink and cooking water.

Orders to conserve water were issued to at least 400,000 people. Orders were served by various other water authorities north-east of Pittsburgh.

At least nine school districts closed Monday, idling more than 21,000 students, and many businesses were affected by the spill.

Matheeny trial opens with 9 males, 3 females on jury

CROWN POINT, IN (AP) - A jury of nine men and three women was chosen Monday to hear the trial of Elizabeth Bird, accused in the slaying of her husband while he was on a prison furlough.

The jury and two alternate jurors will be sworn in Monday to hear the Matheney trial, which will be held in South Bend, where the trial will be conducted in a St. Joseph County courtroom.

Opening statements were slated for the morning session Tuesday, and the first witness to testify will be

Michelle, 39, of Granger, will offer an defense of insanity to the murder charge that could result in the death penalty if he is convicted.

Defense attorney Scott King questioned prospective jurors to eliminate those strongly opposed to an insanity defense.

"I need straight answers from you about your views of the defense of insanity," King told 52 prospective jurors early in the day.

The second annual University of Notre Dame Pow Wow, highlighting inter-tribal dancing, was held Sunday at the JAG by the Native American Students at Notre Dame (NASAND).

According to NASAND president Elizabeth Bird, the Pow Wow is a gathering of different tribes which demonstrates their traditional dances and songs. Twelve tribes participated, among them the Potawatomi, Navajo, Chippewa, and several Sioux tribes, all of which are from the Indiana/Michigan area.

Bird said that the Grand Entry's purpose is "to let everyone see the different tribes and dancers." The Indian feather staff and the American flag enter the arena first, according to custom, followed by the male and female dancers.

The Grand Entry formed seven traditional circles, including a drum, the singers, the dance sponsors, the Great Spirit, and another circle of dancers.

The Grand Entry was followed by the Flag Song, which is considered the Indian national anthem. Inter-tribal dancing followed, with the tribe dancing in a large circular formation, around drummers and singers in the center.

A Give Away ceremony was held during the evening performance. Traditionally, this ceremony allows family, relatives, or friends to honor a person of whom they are proud for being chosen as Head Staff by giving away gifts on their behalf. However, at Sunday's Pow Wow, the committee honored the participants and the people who helped coordinate the event.

The event was sponsored by the NASAND, and other groups including Student Government, the NAACP, the Office of Minority Affairs, and the Multicultural Executive Council.

Campus Ministry and You

HOMELINESS? GET RID OF THE WALLS!

They arrived on Christmas, having come up from the South to the Northern Indiana chili in a car that could barely run. It took more oil than it took gas to make the trip. It took more courage than either, and almost more than either had.

Mike was 19. Sue was twenty. They weren't, frankly, well educated, nor did they understand much more about life than they did about each other. Two little kids - hers, not his - accompanied them. One was 3. The other was a baby. A third on the way.

"It's too contrived," one might think, looking at this scene. Christmas, cold, little kids hers, but not his - accompanied them. One was 3. The other was a baby. A third on the way.

You, we were somewhat immature. We lacked education. We didn't know how to take responsibility for the care of money, nor of themselves, nor their children, for that matter. And they were "homeless" of economic hard times, too. Unemployed was a serious issue here. Absolutely极少 low-income housing starts - were reduced drastically during the past eight years. The rich had gotten richer and the poor poorer.

Or, many solutions do exist. In theory. But if more existed in practice, there would be fewer poor people - fewer people without "sufficient food, clothing, shelter and those other resources that allow us to live in some modicum of dignity."

These are the words of Mitch Snyder, one of the nation's leading advocates for the homeless. So are these. "I'm sure you've heard about the root causes of homelessness being unemployment, an inadequate minimum wage, deinstitutionalization and a massive cut in housing programs. But the truth is that those are not the real causes."

"Homelessness, and all the other evidence of violence and injustice in our society, is the consequence of our efforts to build a livable community on a foundation of greed and individualism."

"If that is to change, there are some things that each of us must do. The first is..."

The truth, they are. And in denying that relationship, we deny ourselves as human beings. If you have an interest this isn't in denying but fulfilling yourself as a human being, you might want to consider breaking down the walls that separate you from the homeless. You can arrange to visit the Center for the Homeless, at 813 N. Michigan Road. You can drop in to the CSC or the Campus Ministry Office to make a contribution for the Center, or put something in your hall collection. But do something. Break down those walls."

Bishops' proposal condemns sexism and urges role reforms in teaching, ministry

NEW YORK (AP)—A proposed U.S. Roman Catholic bishops' declaration says women have been slighted by "sexist patterns," and urges more equitable roles in "leadership, ministry, teaching and policy-making."

But the revised draft distributed to bishops on Monday reiterates the church's stand against admitting women to the priesthood, and instead calls for more dialogue.

Many women regard the ban as excluding them from church "governance and authoritative teaching," the draft said, but it defended the practice as that of Jesus and his apostles.

"It is not arbitrary, nor is it rooted in a view that women are inferior as persons," the draft said. "We pray that disagreement will not cause anyone to take leave of the church."

A related matter, the draft urges the Vatican to speed up study of admitting women to the diaconate, historically a preliminary step to the priesthood for men, and to "the lay ministries" of lectors and readers of Scripture at worship services.

The Vatican should also examine whether girls can be acolytes, or altar girls.

"The exclusion of women and girls from certain aspects of service at the altar ... seem to contradict our mandate that women be more visibly involved," the draft said.

"We encourage participation by women in all liturgical ministries that do not require ordination. Similarly we support the theological preparation of women to preach the gospel and to use their gifts as preachers in the church."

A bishops' committee, authorized by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, has been working on the pastoral letter on women for about five years.

The 99-page second draft, 65 pages shorter than the 1988 draft, was sent to the church's approximately 350 bishops asking for their responses. The bishops held their annual meeting in November.

The draft says numerous church practices have "depersonalized and devalued" women and left them "objects of suspicion, condemnation, condescension or simply ignored."

"We intend, therefore, to ensure that women are empowered to assume positions of authority and leadership in church life in a wide range of situations and ministries," it said.

MANCHESTER, England (AP)—Inmates at Long Lartin Prison attempted a mass breakout Monday night after guards fled a prison landing about 30 convicts barricaded themselves in a prison cell block.

Prison staff regained control of the prison after being hung up a flag saying "No Work," but the government said deaths could not be ruled out in one of Britain's most crowded jails.

Authorities said 37 inmates and 12 prison guards had been injured since riots began Sunday at Strangeways, one of the most crowded jails in Britain. News media reported unconfirmed reports of up to 12 deaths.

Seven staff regained control of four cell blocks and the kitchen Monday after scores of inmates surrendered. Rioters still hold five blocks, said the Home Office.

The Home Office said 99 prisoners were still loose, but Ivor Serle, chairman of the Strangeways Prison Officers' Association, put the number at 80 to 90 after more men surrendered in the evening.

Serle said he was in three wings of the prison and saw no bodies.

About a dozen masked inmates remained on the steep roofs in the night cold, waving and shouting.

"I think it will go on until tomorrow... They've got plenty of food, plenty of drugs and plenty of fresh air," Serle said, referring to lootings of hospital storerooms.

Home Secretary David Waddington said some surrendering prisoners claimed a number of inmates were dead, but no bodies were found.

"But the possibility that fatalities have occurred cannot be ruled out," he added.

He said nine surrendering prisoners claimed to have been forcibly injected with drugs by other inmates.

The best way to promote awareness of significant women's issues today is to bring in experts on the subjects. Pasin and Tombar also intend to improve student relations with the administration. "Fred and I both strongly feel that the administration listens to us," Pasin said. But, he added, "We're powerless unless the students unite on certain issues. Everybody's in this together."

The new student leaders' first step will be a survey mailed to students this week asking general questions on student opinion. They urge students to take the time to complete and return these surveys so that they will be best able to serve student needs.

Children, Jeanné and Ryan White's father, Wayne, are divorced. White's hemophilia, the disorder that initially exposed him to the deadly AIDS virus, prevented doctors from operating, said Van Dyke. She said she was told about White's condition by his mother at lunchtime. "This is it. He's not expected to come out of it," Van Dyke said. "He's not responding."

Kleinman, White's physician since he was diagnosed as having AIDS in 1984, said White was admitted to the hospital Thursday suffering from a respiratory infection, which occurred as a complication of AIDS.

Kleinman said White's family had asked that no additional details of his condition be released. "He's battle with acquired immune deficiency syndrome sent him to Washington to testify before Congress and to California for star-studded fund-raisers. He had gained support and close friendship of entertainers such as Michael Jackson and Elton John.

Last week, he appeared with former President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, at a pre-Oscar party in Los Angeles for sick and disadvantaged youths sponsored by Athletes and Entertainers for Kids. The organization has established the Iyan White National Education Program for Youth, an AIDS education forum.

News of White's condition Monday prompted a statement of concern from the Reagans. "We are praying for him and his family as we are praying for all people with AIDS and their families," the statement said.

Ettos John also called White's family to express concern, Van Dyke said.

White's mingling with celebrities and entertainers was a cruel contrast to the days when AIDS hysteria made it impossible for him to mix even with his classmates. When White's case first made headlines, misinformation combined with a lack of knowledge of the incurable disease made White a pariah.

Police hunt suspects in London anti-tax riot

LONDON (AP) — Authorities on Monday mobilized 100 policemen to track down suspects in a weekend anti-tax rally that erupted into a riot and one of the worst outbreaks of violence in modern-day London.

The courts took a hard line on some of the 339 people arrested. A least 12 were charged in modern-day London.

The worst outbreaks of violence were refused bail at five London courts. Most of the 68 people in court Monday were in their teens or 20s and gave addresses in London "squats" — illegal residences in abandoned houses or apartments. The charges ranged from arson to criminal damage and theft to threatening behavior.

Scotland Yard police headquarters said the riot over the imposition of a new tax by the Thatcher government on every adult caused hundreds of thousands of dollars in damage and injured 374 of the 2,198 police officers involved. Police said 96 civilians were injured.

Charges of blame for the violence meanwhile flew back and forth. Authorities accused anarchists, who in turn blamed police. The government partly blamed the opposition Labor Party, and a Labor member accused the government of playing politics.

Home Secretary David Waddington said 100 policemen were taking part in a large-scale search for suspects headed by chief Det. Roy Ramm.

The detective appealed to the news media and public to provide film and photographs of the riot to help police identify troublemakers.

Magistrates set bail for some suspects charged with public order offenses. However, as a condition of bail, some were forbidden to attend any more anti-tax demonstrations, while others were barred from coming within one mile of Trafalgar Square.

The violence broke out after a peaceful demonstration by about 40,000 people. Police were attacked, automobiles burned and overturned, shop windows smashed and shops looted.

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and objectively as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, News Editor, Viewpoint Editor, Accent Editor, Photo Editor, and Saint Mary's Editor. Commentaries, letters and inside columns present the views of the authors. Column space is available to all members of the community and the free expression of varying opinions on campus through letters is encouraged.

I'm proud to be facing harassment because the FBI was arrested because I've been trying to cut government property and power plant. The FBI alleges environmental protest. While many call Foreman a member of the "violent fringe," it is not surprising that leaky toxic waste dumps have endangered people who tried to cut power lines of an Arizona power plant. The FBI alleges that the group ultimately planned to cut lines to several nuclear power plants as an environmental protest.

While many call Foreman a member of the "violent fringe," he believes radical action is the only way to truly save the environment because traditional environmentalists have either sold out or been duped by the industry-sponsored establishment. Mainstream environmental groups have concentrated on gaining legislative support for environmental goals, such as clean air and waste. Unfortunately, political action is painfully slow, as the water problem is in fact an emergency. It is not healthy for people to remain complacent, to accept increased chemical-related illnesses as inevitable.

North First has 15,000 members. Some of their activities include pouring sand in fuel tanks of loading equipment, driving spikes into trees (which ruins lumber mill saws), tearing down power lines, sinking whaling ships and destroying oil exploration equipment. Recently, some of them blockaded the island of Hawaii to stall the establishment of a power plant. Foreman and four other disillusioned environmentalists founded the group while saturating their mid-life crises with beer at a bar in a Mexican brothel. It was 1980, and Foreman was on leave from his Washington lobbying job. He was disgusted with his work and the willingness of the large conservation groups to play by Washington's rules. Without money, he and his findetes humor, passion and imagination to start their own group. Despite Foreman's many arrests (and the arrests of others in his group), Earth First has grown into a serious environmental movement.

So what's the story if neither traditional channels nor radical direct action can effectively solve the problem? No easy happy ending presently exists, but if ordinary citizens at the grassroots level get concerned enough about the way pollution harms the quality of life of each and every person, then maybe some real solutions will arise.

Cash concern clouds true intent of research

Dear Editor:

With last year's cold fusion hype finally coming to its proper demise, along with the associated hyperbole that has left a bad taste, one has to wonder what has led to this downward spiral of morality and ethical standards of U.S. scientists. Anyone remotely following the undertakings at this central U.S. university must have sensed the inconsistencies at the stealth approach that was tendered to Congress, almost having a whopping $25 million out their (our) pockets. Without any true evidence for the ultimate in corrupting the sanctity of scientific research? For many, persons non oleosini.

Apparantly, constantly having to raise money to support one's research, it's alleged quantitative evaluation that the fiction that fictions, coupled with a media hungry for breakthroughs has played an ominous role. A stroll through the journals of recent publications elevates one's awareness to the enormous increase in the volume of literature being spread out, much as a direct result of the pressure cooker situation of contemporary science.

There is an ever-growing urgency to do something, however insignificant, and publish it. In too many cases, single-mindedness for personal gain seems to override the very essence of what we set out to accomplish in the first place--to advance the functional knowledge base of mankind.

However unfortunate, it is a very real and lamentable reflection that research for the majority is predicated upon economic caves, has been, and probably always will be.

Brothers discuss injustice in Chicago housing projects

Dear Editor:

Recently, two brothers from the Saint Malacky Parish in Chicago came to speak, along with five young men from the Cabrini-Green Housing Projects. They will return to campus on April 4 at 8 p.m. in the basement of Planner Hall. I would strongly recommend anyone interested to attend this enlightening lecture.

These brothers enter the housing projects and befriended warring gang factions and residents who their presence provides comfort and a spirit of non-violence amidst the gunfire. They have a fascinating story to tell.

The young men relate their struggle for life in a community so conducive to death. For most of us, it can be painful to hear about the other half lives, but I believe it is also our responsibility to be aware of injustice and pain. Please attend; you will come away with much more than you had.

Homeless in South Bend:

DEBBIE CHARLESWORTH accent writer

After six months of preparation, on December 18, 1988, the Center for the Homeless first opened its doors in South Bend. Previously, the United Religious Community operated an overnight shelter in South Bend. It was open from November to April and for specified hours of the evening. A greater need for a shelter became apparent, and Notre Dame, the United Religious Community, and COPOSH, an organization that aids the homeless, developed the Center for the Homeless.

The center provides more than just a roof and a meal for those who need it. It provides a medical health service, a legal clinic, job training and educational services. Father Steve Newton, C.S.C., a participant in the opening of the center said, "It's not an agency as much as an effort of the community."

Approximately 60% of the people who go to the shelter are men, 20% are single women and 20% are women with children. About one third are there because they are chronically miserable ill, another third are alcohol and/or drug dependent. The rest are falling through the gaps of the economy. In fact, some homeless people are working, but can not afford housing.

Each person who goes to the shelter is assigned a case manager who determines the level of aid each person needs. There is no time limit to the length of stay as long as the individual is making a positive effort towards progress. If, however, someone is not making an effort to deal with his or her situation, the limited amount of time one can spend at the center is 45 days. Nobody is turned away providing they do not violate the center rules. Infringement, violence, disruption and illegal activities are not tolerated by the center.

Presently, the shelter is run at full capacity. This was a surprise, because it replaced something half of its size. About 90 people are accommodated per night. In South Bend alone, there is an estimated 1,000 homeless. Those who do not go to the shelter may be on the streets, in transitional housing, with other charitable organizations or staying with relatives.

Notre Dame has played and continues to play a large role in the running of the center. The school purchased and renovated the facility. Many of the students, staff and faculty provide voluntary hours on which the shelter heavily relies.

For the first year, Notre Dame Food Service provided all the food because there was a kitchen to prepare it. Notre Dame now donates the unserved food from the dining halls through a program called Foodshare. Food is also provided by contributions from various volunteer groups. Collections from the Student masses at Notre Dame are also donated to the center. The shelter is run by a board of directors from Notre Dame, the United Religious Community and COPOSH. The board establishes policies and general procedures of the center. The day to day operations are handled by the executive director, Dennis Duggan.

In the future, the center plans to expand by renovating the second floor. With more room, the center can offer more services. They will put in classrooms, a detoxication unit and more meeting rooms. The center is a crucial step in alleviating the plight of the homeless.

Keith Ramsey, a poet who uses his poetry to create awareness about various social problems, particularly homelessness.

Keith Ramsey, a former diamond broker gave up his lucrative career so that he could pursue his real love—poetry. The twist is that his poems are socially conscious. Many of his poems are about the homeless and the despair they face.

Ramsey suffered a stroke and was in a coma for ten months that he would only have six weeks to live unless he had open-heart surgery. At the same time, he was going through a divorce and was in the process of losing his home. He really was, "One domestic argument, one serious illness or one paycheck are just some of the ways people become homeless," said Ramsey. It is not always for a lack of resources that people find themselves without a home.

Ramsey has no regrets about leaving the jewelry industry. "I'm finding I'm worth more now than any ten carat diamond I sold," said Ramsey. He travels around the country reading his poetry. He performs at private clubs and small colleges. He just got back from a tour of Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Kentucky. He covers the working class by selling tapes of his poetry readings.

Ramsey has created a character called the "Homeless Lout." He observes the atrocities about which he writes. This character portrayed by Ramsey reads original poetry about the plight of the homeless. He wants to draw awareness to the problem. "Poetry brings the starkness of homelessness into verbal imagery, yet it also cushions at the same time because it is entertaining."

Many different groups of people make up the homeless, yet the public tends to stereotype them. As many as twenty-eight per cent of the homeless do, in fact, have jobs. People do not realize that there are approximately 600,000 children who are part of homeless families. Many of these people do not go to the shelter because they are not receiving government assistance. The stigma associated with them.

Ramsey's personal love of poetry and his skill at poetry writing has enabled him to create awareness of the humaneness of the problem. "I put faces and feelings to people who are merely becoming statistics," said Ramsey. He recognizes that poets who are insensitive also recognize it is part of reality. The problem will not go away if it is ignored, and Ramsey's poetry forces the reader to face the tragedy.

Ramsey does not restrict himself to only one artistic medium. He has acted in a movie called, "The Sacred Symbol." It was sponsored by the Ormond Organization, a religious association, and screened in 40 countries. His talents extend to music, which Ramsey also writes.

Perhaps, the most distinctive aspect about Ramsey is his willingness to incorporate several methods of art into his work. For instance, one of his poems, "RochasLady," he has been made into a video. The poem is about a homeless man and woman who meet for the first time under a bridge and spend one day and one night together. The woman dies the next night. The tragedy of her having no kin is expressed as well as the profound effect her death had on the man.

The way he reads his poetry brings it to life, because he acts it out. When he reads his poetry he often speaks with an accent that is appropriate to the piece he is reading.

The poetry of Keith Ramsey is not limited to topics about homeless people. Ramsey explained, "A poet's job is to catch the reflections of his time." His intent is to create images which express universal feelings. "I'm trying to get the listener to understand how the other person feels."

He has written a series of poems, "Lublianka," named after a Moscow prison. The poems were inspired by the execution in 1952 of two young poets who were in prison. He has written a poem called "Songs My City Sang To Me" about his hometown, South Bend.

Another one of his poems is called "My Available Sea." It is his own study in madness. It is an odyssey of a symbolic sailor sailing through his available sea, life and his mental degeneration to insanity.

In the future, Ramsey hopes to break into the poetry reading circuit. This would give him a high degree of credibility. However, it may also take him away from writing. Ramsey's work is more than what is written on the page. Ramsey's poetry is Ramsey acting his words. He does not merely read his poetry, he performs it.

"Today"

I asked a young man
If he saw anything wrong
He replied... with a Hedonistic song

I asked an older man
If he saw morality die
He sighed... and replied... "Not I!"

I asked another man
How apathy evolved
He cried... "I don't want to be involved!"

I asked a man of God
If anyone seemed to care
He answered... "I've only got God to share"

I asked myself
Why greed and misery
A voice replied... it has to be
... I cried...

Major leagues announce 27-man roster for three weeks

The Observer Tuesday, April 3, 1990

Baseball's on-again, off-again salary limit was back on again Monday following another conference call by the Player Relations Committee and Major League Players Association to temper the teams' initial reaction. Teams can carry up to 27 players on their roster, and managers a little more flexibility following the lockout-shortened 1981 season.

Paul Molitor won't be one of Milwaukee's 27. A broken right thumb, injured while sliding during an exhibition game Saturday, will keep him on the first three or four weeks of the season. A year ago, Molitor suffered a dislocated finger in the final week of training camp and opened the season on the disabled list. The Brewers also placed second baseman Jim Gantner, re- cuperating from shoulder surgery, on the disabled list and will be without shortstop Gary Bell at least a week because of a sprained ligament in the ankle.

Atlanta manager Ron Dugoni was hoping to silence the speculation about his future. Dugoni said, "I need 12 pitchers. I can get by with five extra men would be foolish. That means a 27-man roster."

"I don't see us filling it out completely," Dugoni said. "I'd still rather have 25."

The tournament truly was a gift to the cash-much-laden college baseball nation. It revolved the idea of the "old college try". Mum is the word for critics in the wake of this annual spring classic, and the way it went down.

The National Hockey League playoffs, which will begin Thursday, will feature a distribution of power among the league's teams, although there is no clear favorite. With an even distribution of power among the league's teams, any one of five has an excellent chance of winning the Stanley Cup.

Calgary and Boston have to be considered the favorites, but the Bruins will have to beat both Montreal or Buffalo in the second round just to make the semifinals, the Flames, which already had run up against an Edmonton Oilers team which has finally recovered from a losing streak and rebuilt a power source, could become the team about the league's leaders, any one of which could emerge with home court advantage and open the Cup in what will be the Yearful 1990.

Division and the Patrick Division, any one of the above could squander through the semifinals and win it all. It's worth about $18,000.

Belles softball sweeps Anderson, improves record to 5-1

By CHRIS BACON
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

The Saint Mary's softball team extended its record to 5-1 in a two-game sweep of Anderson University on Saturday.

In the first game, the Belles trounced Anderson 9-2. Junior Kim Benjamin picked up the third, senior co-captain Martha Judge and Benjamin both walked. Senior co-captain Missy Stapleton smashed a triple, scoring both runners.

The Belles added three more runs in the sixth inning as sophomore Carol Grohner's triple drove in Judge and Benjamin. Grohner scored on junior Michelle Pinter's single.

"In the first game, we just went out and jumped ahead of them from the start. The team did a great job," said Belles coach Don "Popcorn" Cromer.

In the second game, the Belles rallied from behind in the seventh inning to defeat Anderson 6-7.

Judge singled in the first inning to pick up the three RBIs and to put the Belles ahead 5-0. In the second, Libbing walked and scored on Grohner's triple. Pinter knocked Grohner in on a single.

Errors plagued the Belles, in the second, the Belles gave up two runs and another four runs in the third, causing the Belles to fall behind 5-6. Anderson scored again in the fourth inning, making the score 7-6.

"The second game was close and more competitive due to some errors we had to iron out," coach "Popcorn" said.

The score remained unchanged until the bottom of the seventh. Judge, Benjamin and Stapleton were walked, loading the bases. With no outs and a two-two count, Maggie Killian, junior, smashed a double into right field, driving all three runners home.

"Maggie Killian was fantastic! The whole seventh inning of the second game was fantastic!" coach Cromer said.

Weather permitting, the Belles will be back in action at home today against IUPUI-Fort Wayne and will play a rescheduled game at Taylor.

Network TV sports will not vanish

ATLANTA (AP)—The future of network TV sports will not vanish, partly because of the TV networks, said Frazier, a chief executive officer of Prime Network, at a National Association of Broadcasters seminar on television sports.

With the advent of sports on cable TV, some broadcasters— and fans—fear that soon all pro sports packages will be wound up on pay TV. But "It's no longer economically feasible to think in those terms," said Ed Frazier, chief executive officer of Prime Network, at a National Association of Broadcasters seminar on television sports.

With pro sports packages such as NFL games selling for billions of dollars, the bill will be more than covered by both broadcasters and cable networks, said Frazier, a pioneer in regional cable sports networks.

Professional baseball, the NFL and the NBA all are on both the major TV networks and cable services.

"We need the broadcaster bidding his side of the equation, as he needs bidding our side," Frazier said.

"We seriously believe ... we are going to keep a substantial portion—perhaps as much or more—on broadcast, as opposed to cable," said Russell Granz, deputy commissioner of the NBA.

"You have to be ubiquitous," he added. "You have to get to the mass audience, to some degree. It would be a very big mistake in terms of the future growth of the sport for us to be totally on cable.

Frazier predicted it's also unlikely that pay TV will snap a major sports event such as the Super Bowl or the World Series at any time soon. While such events might seem a natural for pay-per-view—compared with a potential Super Bowl or World Series network audience of virtually every home in America.

"I don't know anybody who's prepared to take that leap and try to promote that," he said.

But ABC Sports President Dennis Swanson expressed concern over the future of network sports operations in general. In light of the "megabuck" deals the sports leagues are getting.

Swanson said ABC, whose five-year, $175 million deal with the College Football Association begins in 1991, shouldn't have to worry for a tough about the impact of Notre Dame's sale of its home games to NBC.

"Will other schools do what Notre Dame has done? Not for five years," he said. "This contracts have all been signed and ratified—and there's still some question about Notre Dame."
DENVER (AP)—When Anderson Hunt caught fire, the NCAA final was still a game.

After he scored 12 points in an 18-0 UNLV run, the game had all but ended.

Hunt, the Runnin’ Rebels’ quiet sophomore, scored three straight baskets and two three-pointers during the spurt that sealed UNLV’s first national championship Monday night, a 103-76 rout over Duke.

Named the tournament’s outstanding player, Hunt characterizedly retired afterward, all but sweeping aside his 39-point performance on 12-for-16 shooting.

“I was really concentrating on Bobby Hurley (Duke, point guard) and not on the offensive game,” he said.

With UNLV ahead 57-47 with 16:24 to play, Hunt hit a 12-foot baseline jumper to open the run. After a bucket by Larry Johnson, Stacey Augmon’s steal set up Hunt’s 3-pointer from the right corner.

The next trip down the floor, Augmon again stole the ball and fed an outlet pass to a sprinting Hunt for a layup. With the score 66-47, Duke called a timeout.

The lead extended to 41-25 with 3:46 left in the half as UNLV contested every pass made by Duke. The Rebels had 16 points off turnovers in the first half alone as they took a 47-35 halftime lead.

Auchen had 14 at halftime and 10 assists and forced the freshman Duke playmaker to just three steals in four consecutive possessions—the last was by Stacey Augmon, who took the ball from Phil Henderson near midcourt and sailed in for a dunk. That made it 23-11.

Hunt ended it with a 3-pointer from the left side of the lane and fed an outlet pass to a sprinting Hunt for a three-pointer. He found Hunt again with a pass for a layup and to end the break.

Hunt, who said he’d seen Hunt play many times, called the performance the best he’d seen. Hunt, however, wouldn’t go that far.

UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian countered. “This is the best big game he’s ever played.”

Hunt got comfortable in the right corner, hitting three of his four three-pointers from that spot.

“He’s three-point shots were such momentum shots,” Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. “You’d think you might have a chance to get back in (the game) a little bit, and he’d hit a three-pointer.”

Duke’s Phil Henderson said he was rung trying to guard Hunt.

“He played like he never got tired,” Henderson said. “He did a great job running the floor and that gets you tired. Catching the ball and going up quickly for the 3-pointer, he did a great job at that.”

Ferry denies validity of NBC report

ROME (AP)—Danny Ferry said Monday he will wait until the end of the Italian regular season before making up his mind on whether to play for the Cleveland Cavaliers of the NBA next season.

"I haven't made any decision yet," said Ferry, who plays for Il Messaggero Roma. "At this point a lot of things would have to be worked out.

The Italian regular season ends April 14, with the playoffs beginning April 22 and winding up June 2.

There were some close games on Monday. If This Was Hollywood producer Tom Werner signed a letter of intent Monday to purchase the San Diego Padres, club owner Joan Kroc said.

"I expect that my status with San Diego citizens," Kroc said. "I'm going to do next year," Kroc said. "The opportunity to play for the U.S. team in the world games this summer in Argentina, but he said that, either.

The original asking price for the Padres was $100 million, but industry sources said skyrocketing player salaries have pushed franchise values downward despite lucrative television contracts.

Joining Werner in the purchase are nine general partners, eight of whom are from San Diego.

Werner, 39, is a partner in Casey-Werner Co., which produces "The Cosby Show," "Roseanne," and other highly-rated television series.

His personal fortune has been estimated at $140 million. Under the deal, Kroc would be the managing general partner of the franchise.

"Each one of us has a strong interest in sustaining and building the tradition of this great ball club in the years ahead," Werner said.

"The Padres, as opening day approaches next week, have an outstanding team. And our goal, when Mrs. Kroc gives us the reins, is to set a strong steady direction so that the organization she has operated will continue to be first class," said Werner, adding that he and his wife, Jill, will purchase a home in San Diego.

No immediate changes in the Padres' administrative and baseball operations were anticipated, Werner said. He said the group is committed to keeping the team in San Diego.

"It's a terrific place to live. It's a terrific place to watch a baseball game," Werner said.

Werner said the group first started coming together and approached Kapstein in November.

"There were really no bumps on the road," he said. "The more we found out about it, the more we were excited that this could happen."
ND softball team gets break, enters into 'meat' of season

After a week of competition, the Notre Dame softball team has returned to the university for a two-day break between games.

The weekend of last week, the Irish traveled to Valparaiso to meet the Crusaders in a doubleheader, winning both games in nine innings by identical 4-3 scores. Freshman pitcher Staci Alford picked up the win in each game, pitching a 14-0 no-hitter September 29 and a 5-4 win in the second game.

Sophomore catcher Amy Folsom, who collected two hits in each game, went 5-7 before traveling to Joliet, Ill., for the five-game series against the St. Francis Coyotes. Next up for the Irish was the annual invitational on April 8 and 9.

Women's tennis notches 12th win
By BARBARA MORAN

Despite the absence of top singles player Tracy Barton, the Notre Dame women's tennis team emerged victorious 3-2 over Eastern Michigan. The Irish sealed both wins in the singles competition, capturing six singles contests in each match. Notre Dame won both matches with a score of 8-1.

The Michigan State match proved to be the easier of the two wins. Notre Dame had pulled out a close 2-4 victory over the Spartans last year, and expected a competitive match against the squad this year, especially with Irish player Tracy Barron and Kristy Doran out with injuries.

"We played really well," said Irish coach Jay Louderback of the Michigan State contest. "We played pretty much as we expected." Doran didn't play, so everybody else played pretty much as they had been. They (Michigan State) weren't real strong, not like they've been in the past three years.

Barton is suffering from an elbow injury and Doran has an injured wrist. Both players stayed home for the weekend and are questionable for upcoming matches.

Despite the injuries, the Irish continued their win streak by blowing the slightly stronger Eastern Michigan. Due to the time change and an early morning match, the Notre Dame men's team missed some sleep, but still performed remarkably.

"We didn't get a whole lot of sleep before Eastern Michigan, but we played well," said Louderback. "The guys were a mess around, they just went out there and played. We didn't let Eastern Michigan in any of the matches.

The Irish will attempt to ride their three-game win streak into victory next weekend. The team will take on Northern Illinois Friday at Eck Pavilion, and then travel east for the remainder of the weekend, facing Ball State on Saturday and Ohio State on Sunday.

Injured Gretzky in question for first round of NHL playoffs
By BARBARA MORAN

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Wayne Gretzky might miss the opening game of the Kings' Smythe Division playoff with the Calgary Flames because of a back injury. Los Angeles coach Tom Webster told reporters Monday that Gretzky is not expected to play in the game.

"At this point we do not expect to have Gretzky back in the lineup on Wednesday," Webster said before the Kings left for Dallas. "We're fine tuning for the NHL first-round playoffs." Webster didn't say whether late Monday night treatment would be in the starting lineup.

"I have no idea when Wayne will return. We just have to take it day by day," he added.

Danapilis, 33, is a solid leadoff hitter, and a solid defensive catcher. He has surprised many people with his surprising good speed for a catcher. waving the bat, he looks like a catcher, but he breaks into the game, and is a surprise with how he handles the bat.

Later Monday, the Kings is- sued a statement, saying, "Wayne continues to be treated in Los Angeles, and remains on a day-by-day basis," according to team physician Dr. Steve Lombardo. "A decision on his availability for play on Wednesday will be made to­ morrow."

Gretzky has not played since March 22, when he was checked in the head in the final minutes of a game against the New York Rangers. He was slow to get up and finished the period. He didn't return that night. He has been on the injured list since his rookie season in 1979- 80, when he had 137 points. Los Angeles finished fourth in the Smythe this season, 24 points behind the first-place Flames. Last year, Calgary swept the Kings in four games in the Smythe championship.

"That's a tough question," he said thoughtfully. "You want to say you miss him but you don't want to say you miss him." But after tonight, the Irish make the trip to Illinois-Chicago on Wednesday for another double- header. Illinois-Chicago went 33-29 last year, 1-3 against the Irish, with the winning in the form of a 5-0 shutout.

"We didn't get a whole lot of sleep before Eastern Michigan, but we played well," said Louderback. "The guys were a mess around, they just went out there and played. We didn't let Eastern Michigan in any of the matches.

The Irish will attempt to ride their three-game win streak into victory next weekend. The team will take on Northern Illinois Friday at Eck Pavilion, and then travel east for the remainder of the weekend, facing Ball State on Saturday and Ohio State on Sunday.

"The right choice was there when I needed it. I made that choice, and now I'm a physician. My alma mater may be just right for you. It's your choice."

The wrestlers had a big day on Monday in Bookstore Basketball XIX. Fran McCann's Fan Club and Five Other Wrestlers edged Welcome to the Jungle 21-17 as prosperity and on 54-10 counts.

The team is composed of five Irish wrestlers—Andy Raduenbaugh, Steve King, Mark Godfrey, Gary Boyd. Raduenbaugh says wrestling and conditioning are big parts of their game plan.

"We were down with our superior conditioning," Raduenbaugh said. "In the inside game and winning the dominating, the blobbed takedown came in handy today. We're a definite underdog."

"It was a marked day by routes, with only one game decided by two points. Clark and Company downed 49-52-20 in overtime.

Many teams found baskets hard to come by in the cold and rainy conditions. Running Irish ULM's fell 21-2 at the hands of Bush's Five Points of Light. You've Gotta Beat the Heck Out of Us didn't lose, 21-2 to Notre Dame Yacht Club.

Doug Hiplow was 12-of-19 at the Yacht Club, a goal for five MBA students.

"Our tallest guy is 5-11 and we wanted to play a fast-break style," Hiplow said. "We pressured them and then played transition offense. We were really in sync."

There were several 21-3 routes—Madison, Gray and many other Guys Who Think They're Civil over Leviticus.
