Foreign captives warned not to try escaping Iraq

(AP) - Iraq tightened the screws on trapped Westerners on Thursday, warning that anyone trying to leave without permission could face life in prison. The Soviet Union raised the possibility of Kremlin support for sending a U.N. military force to the Persian Gulf.

Saudi Arabia committed several billion dollars toward defraying the enormous cost of the U.S. forces protecting the kingdom's oil fields from possible Iraqi aggression. U.S. and Saudi officials announced.

U.S. officials said the Saudis would, at a minimum, pick up all fuel, water and transportation costs for the 60,000 American troops now in Saudi Arabia. Earlier this week, Baker told Congress the U.S. presence would cost about $6 billion by year's end.

Both U.S. and Saudi officials declined to provide a specific price tag for the commitment.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher pledged more forces to bolster the U.S. contingent in the gulf. She did not elaborate on the deployment plans.

Egypt, too, said it was beefing up its small gulf contingent. At the United Nations, diplomats said U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar planned to send an envoy to occupied Kuwait to meet with diplomats whose embassies are surrounded by Iraqi troops, and with trapped foreigners Baghdad would have to give its consent for the visit.

The State Department again blasted Iraq for its treatment of foreign nationals, including the shooting of an American in Kuwait who was trying to avoid capture. Department spokesman Mark Dillon called Iraq's behavior "outrageous."

Washington and Moscow, meanwhile, scrambled to prepare for the weekend superpower summit they hope will bring a break in the nearly 5-week-old crisis.

President Bush said the United States was determined to force Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw from Kuwait, which Iraqi troops overran Aug. 2 in a dispute over land, money and oil.

"We will not stand by while one country devours another unthreatening country whole," Bush said at a Kansas fundraiser. "Our cause may not be easy, but it will always be right."

In a surprise move, Bush said he would make a statement for broadcast to the Iraqi people, saying he saw "a real opportunity" to explain the U.S. view. Baghdad had offered to broadcast an interview with Bush, but the White House said the president would tape a statement instead.

Statements by the Iraqi president — which White House officials call "Saddamist noise" — have received ample air time in the United States, and the Bush administration was reportedly iritated about this.

Word that Moscow might support a U.N. military force in the gulf came from Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov. He indicated Mikhail Gorbachev may discuss the idea with Bush at their summit Sunday in

The creation of a 24-hour space in the basement of LaFortune is expected to materialize soon, according to Student Body President Rob Pasin and Vice President Fred Tombar in their first Student Body Address last night.

"We worked on it this summer for a while," said Tombar of the 24-hour space. "We hope this will become a reality sometime this semester, but at least by next semester."

Student Government also worked this summer on the development of a lecture series, according to Pasin, who was aided by Dr. William Sexton, vice president of University Relations. Fifty invitations were sent to various speakers and, thus far, Student Government has confirmed engagements with such notable figures as CNN White House Correspondent Leslie Stahl, former Arizona governor Bruce Babbitt and HUD Secretary Jack Kemp.

Pasin and Tombar want to improve communication between the student body and Student Government. Student Government newsletters will be distributed in the dorms in the hopes of creating a government "more receptive to the needs and concerns of the student body," according to Tombar.

Pasin is also currently working on an Observer column in an effort to maintain close ties with the student body, and he hopes to utilize other forms of campus media for this purpose as well.

Student Government has instituted a suggestion line, nicknamed "the FBED-line," as a way to improve communication with the student body, according to Tombar, who has been receiving about 20 calls a day.

Pasin noted the need for a complaint procedure that would bring individual student complaints directly to Student Government. The new procedure would allow students to file complaints in the dorms, which would then be brought by the dorm president to the Student Government Legal Department for review.

As promised in their campaign last year, Tombar said emergency phones and added lighting in the parking lots are among the improvements that will be in the process of being installed. "(The University's) working on it and it will happen as soon as possible. It's just a matter of University bureaucracy."

In other related security matters, Pasin said Student Government is considering extending SafeWalk to other areas around campus, as well as extending the Week and Wheels shuttle service to off-campus locations.

In response to a question regarding Notre Dame's gay and lesbian community, Pasin responded, "Notre Dame is a Christian community and ideally should be loving and accepting of all its members. (Fred and I) would support recognition of the (Gay and Lesbian) Club."

Last night's address was the first of three anticipated for the 1990-1991 school year. Pasin said he hopes the open forum format will encourage student participation so that Student Government can be "more accountable to students."
Shedding light on the topic of parking

Question: What gives off the most light in the D2 parking lot?
Answer: A full moon.

Until the administration decides to put in some more lights in D2, like it or not, the man on the moon will be the only person watching over the students who have to walk through the poorly lit parking lot at night.

For those people who might not be familiar with this particular parking lot, D2 has lights set up around the perimeter of the lot, but there isn’t any sufficient lighting in the center of the lot—where all of the cars are parked.

The parking lot is so dark that it is difficult for students to even find their car, and spending 15 minutes wandering around a dark parking lot is equivalent to someone wearing a big sign on their chest saying, “I’m a fairly brave walker.”

Walking alone is the only way that would be risky, especially by walking alone, and even if they did have one or two friends accompanying them, there are still plenty of hiding places for a band of attackers to lie in wait for unsuspecting students.

The solution is simple: get more lights in D2. The more lights there are, the less hiding places there are for thieves and assailants, and the safer the students will be. After all, few more security guards wouldn’t hurt either.

The University’s Safewalk program is a step in the right direction towards increasing student safety, but the parking lots are so dark at night that I doubt even the bravest safewalkers would want to trot through D2. Students shouldn’t have to add a can of mace to their keychains because the administration doesn’t feel like adding a few more lights in the lots.

Something tells me that this University has a lot to afford to put up more lights in all of the campus parking lots. As the number of on- and off-campus attacks escalates, the administration should become immediately aware of the problem of poorly lit parking lots and do something to rectify that situation.

The problem of insufficient lighting in the parking lots has gone on for an inexcusably long time. What has to happen before the administration decides to do something about this serious safety problem? I certainly hope it doesn’t take another attack in the parking lot to get the administration to do something that should have been done a long time ago.

This University needs to “lighten up” in more ways than one.

Irish singer Sinead O’Connor’s stark “Nothing Compares 2 U” won best female video and Billy Idol got best video from a film Thursday to kick off the seventh annual MTV Music Video Awards. The 23-year-old O’Connor won the first round of the angsty vs. flash battle with Madonna’s “Vogue” video, which captures a trendy nightclub dance. “Nothing Compares” was written by her ex-husband, garnered five nominations and is the biggest hit of her newest album, “I Do Not Want What I Haven’t Got,” which topped the Billboard charts for weeks.

Mail bombs exploded Thursday at the Madrid Stock Exchange, the Economy Ministry and the Constitutional Court, and six people suffered minor injuries. Police said a shadowy leftist group claimed responsibility for the midday blasts. The first two explosions occurred in about 11:30 a.m. off the exchange’s trading floor and on the 11th floor of the Economy Ministry, a police spokesman said. Minutes later, the third bomb exploded at the Constitutional Court on Madrid’s western edge, Spanish National Radio reported. The six injured, all at the stock exchange, were treated for cuts and bruises at a hospital and later released.

A high school teacher in Elkhart felt the Persian Gulf crisis down to the soles of his feet Thursday when he dramatized energy conservation by walking 11 miles to his classroom.

Scores of students joined government teacher Don Chenoweth, voicing with their feet in favor of reducing the United States’ dependence on foreign energy sources. “The prices are going up,” says Coleman Davis, a 14-year-old freshman at Concord High School who walked several miles. “So if lots of people from our school walked, we’d save gas.”

A Blooming woman filed suit Thursday against a Japanese manufacturer and three distributors of the dietary supplement L-tryptophan, which she claims gave her a rare and deadly disease that makes her “feel like it’s on fire.” L-tryptophan in the past year has been linked to the blood disorder eosinophilia myalgia syndrome, or EMS, in more than 1,500 Americans, resulting in 27 deaths, according to the Federal Centers for Disease Control.
Drug lord can be extradited despite new policy

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Despite the government's offer to stop extraditing drug kingpins, Colombia's senior cocaine kingpin still would be sent to the United States for trial, a top government official said Thursday.

Pablo Escobar, head of the Medellin cocaine cartel, would be sent to the United States unless he turns himself in and confesses all his crimes, said the official, who is involved in policy and decision-making. He spoke to reporters on condition of anonymity.

The Bush administration continued to endorse the new policy.

"If the government and people of Colombia are not able to enforce their own laws against drug trafficking — prosecuting, convicting, and incarcerating these thugs — so much the better," Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said in a statement from Washington.

But he warned that "if the so-called extraditees fail to take advantage of this opportunity to surrender ... we will continue to support Colombia's effort to arrest and extradite them to the United States for trial."

"President Cesar Gaviria modified a year-old policy by announcing Wednesday that cocaine traffickers who surrender to Colombian authorities will not be extradited to the United States."

Gaviria said the decision, which came in the form of an official decree, applies to those who surrender, not those captured by police.

"If Escobar were captured today, he would be extradited," said the official who spoke Thursday.

He said Colombia would not allow the new measure to become a "joke" in which major drug criminals confess only minor crimes to avoid extradition. "If Pablo Escobar surrendered but failed to confess all of his crimes, he would run the risk of being extradited," he added.

The government hopes to convince medium- and lower-level drug smugglers to surrender and cooperate with authorities, he said.

Officials blame the Medellin cartel, which Escobar leads, for killing about 500 Colombians in the past year, including three presidential candidates.

Thousands of others have died in fighting between rival drug gangs and violence by rights-wing death squads financed by drug traffickers.

During the past year, the Medellin cartel has been demanding an end to extradition, the fate it fears most.

In repeated statements, drug traffickers have offered to turn themselves in to Colombian judges, in an apparent attempt to persuade the government to end extraditions.

The Medellin cartel in July declared a unilateral cease-fire in its terrorist attacks, apparently hoping the new administration would end extraditions. Gaviria was inaugurated Aug. 7.

The official said it was necessary to show the Colombian people that the president is seeking solutions based on the country's own justice system.

Total reliance on foreign courts saps people's confidence in Colombia's institutions, he added.

Gaviria's predecessor, Virgilio Barco, undertook extraditions to the United States a year ago, after drug traffickers declared war on the state.

Extraditions are controversial in Colombia because many people believe sending citizens to face trial abroad is an insult to national pride.

However, Colombia's justice system has so far failed to keep any major trafficker in jail. Drug lords often bribe or threaten officials into letting them go free.
Bush will appear on Iraqi TV, but on own terms, spokesman says

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — President Bush will accept Saddam Hussein’s offer to broadcast a message to Iraq, but only on his own terms, Bush’s spokesman said Thursday. The president will make a tape in lieu of an interview with an Iraqi TV crew.

“It’s a real opportunity,” Bush said of Saddam’s offer to teleview the U.S. leader’s comments. Bush’s spokesman said the president had “a very distinct message” to give the Iraqi people about American reasons for the massive military buildup in the Persian Gulf.

Iraqi Ambassador Mohamed al-Mashat said in Washington that “of course” Iraqi TV would air Bush’s message “in its entirety without editing.

Here you edit, in Iraq we do not edit,”

Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bush’s address would be eight to 10 minutes long. “We will have a whole package for broadcast on Iraqi television, and then we’ll have a Slate Department interpreter who will provide the interpretation some way” into Arabic, Fitzwater said, adding that the tape will be released generally.

On another topic, looking ahead to this weekend’s superpower summit, Bush said he will meet the meeting not only to discuss the Persian Gulf with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev but to press for a quick resolution to strategic arms talks.

Before embarking on a one-day political trip to Kansas and Florida on Thursday, Bush spoke by telephone with a number of world leaders on the gulf situation and his upcoming meeting with Gorbachev. They included Syrian President Hafez al-Assad, Turkish President Turgut Ozal, French President Francois Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, the White House said.

He also called United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to thank him for his unsuccessful try at resolving the gulf crisis in talks last week in Iraq.

Bush also met Thursday with Israel’s visiting foreign minister, David Levy, in Washington.

Naji al-Haidibi, director general of Iraq’s Information Ministry, said in Baghdad that an Iraqi television crew was ready to go to Washington to interview Bush for a broadcast on state-run television.

Fitzwater said that wouldn’t be necessary — “we’ll produce it ourselves.”

“Although we have not heard from Iraq directly, we accept their offer of a broadcast to the Iraqi people. The president will tape a message to the Iraqi people in the next few days which will be provided to the Iraqi information minister,” Fitzwater told reporters accompanying Bush on Air Force One.

Bush has said he wished he could have the media access in Iraq that Saddam has had on U.S. television. The Iraqi president’s statements and appearances have been broadcast widely, many of them on live and unedited CNN reports.

“The president has a very distinct message that he wants to give to the people of Iraq about our purpose for being in the Gulf. He thinks this is a good opportunity,” Fitzwater said.

On a separate matter, Fitzwater said that there is no new economic package for the Soviet Union in the offering, although the Sunday summit meeting in Helsinki will offer a chance to talk about “technical assistance.”
Judge keeps bond for suspect in UF murders

SHARPE'S, Fla. (AP) — A judge Thursday cited bizarre behavior as a reason to uphold a $1 million bond on an assault charge for a young man suspected in the slayings of five college students in Gainesville.

Homicide task force investigators were searching the 18-year-old's Gainesville apartment and car for clues to the slayings. But police cautioned that he is only one of eight leading suspects, and his brother said he's being made a scapegoat.

Because of the unusually high bond, Edward Humphrey has been in the Brevard County jail since Aug. 30 on a charge of battering his grandmother.

"I see before me a very disturbed individual," Circuit Judge Martin Budnick said at the bail-reduction hearing at the jail. "I see a great deal of acting out ... neurotic or psychotic behavior."

Jail officer Emily Glova testified Humphrey described himself as dangerous and "a sav.

Judge Kathleen Russo objected, and the judge agreed he couldn't set a bond based on the fact remains he is a suspect in the Gainesville murders and he knows that."

Public Defender J.B. Russo objected, and the judge agreed he couldn't set a bond based on the fact Humphrey hasn't been charged. However, the judge said he would do "a dis service to the community" if he allowed Humphrey to go free.

Budnick ruled that Humphrey is a danger to the community. But he indicated he would consider another request for bond reduction and wanted to hear medical testimony about Humphrey's mental condition.

Russo did not comment afterward on whether he would seek another hearing. He said he was preparing for the trial on the aggravated assault charge, tentatively scheduled for October.

Humphrey's grandmother testified she didn't want to press charges and would welcome Humphrey back into her home, where Humphrey's mother also lives, in Indiana. 180 miles from Gainesville.

"I want it dropped ... definitely," Elna Hlavaty, her right cheek and right eye badly bruised, said as Humphrey watched.

She said she didn't fear her grandson, although she had called police repeatedly.

She said she couldn't remember anything about the night of the incident other than that she hurt her right side when she fell on a concrete floor. The 79-year-old Hlavaty protested she was old and ill and couldn't answer any more questions from prosecutors.

Sheriff's Deputy Douglas Hammack testified she told him the night of the arrest that she feared Humphrey would beat her again. Humphrey started banging his head against his patrol car when Hammack put him inside, the deputy testified.

Hammack said he had gone to the grandmother's home five or six times on disturbance complaints and was told Humphrey was refusing to take medicine to control mood swings.

He testified on one visit he had Humphrey remove a knife from the front seat of his car and lock it in the trunk.

Besides Humphrey's apartment, detectives searched his grandmother's home and his black Cadillac. Authorities said the grandmother's home was unoccupied during the search because the family was at the hearing.

George Humphrey, a University of Florida senior, charged that his younger brother is being made a scapegoat and that the press is sensationalizing the killings.

"Ed didn't do it, Ed didn't do it. He's not capable of it," Humphrey told reporters in Sharpe's.

Hymns composed by Warner published in Canadian book

Special to the Observer

"Psaltery," a collection of liturgical music by Steven Warner, associate director of the University of Notre Dame's Office of Campus Ministry, has been recently published by GIA Publications of Chicago.

The collection includes ten sponsorial psalm settings for keyboard, guitar, harp, vocal soloist and four-part choir. The music was written by Warner for Sunday Masses at Notre Dame.

A combination of two genres of sacred music designed for use by liturgical assemblies with either organ or guitar as the leading instrument, "Psaltery," according to Warner, "seeks to bring together contemporary liturgical music, by way of its lyricalism and expressiveness on the guitar, with traditional chant styles, with its free-flowing sense of rhythm and modal progressions."

Some of the material in the collection have been approved for inclusion in the "Canadian Book of Worship," the hymnal used by most Catholics in Canada.

Warner has worked in the University's Campus Ministry office since 1979, when he began work on a master of arts degree in liturgical studies at Notre Dame. Among the musical instruments with which he is proficient are the guitar and the Irish harp.

Warner is director of the Notre Dame Folk Choir, which regularly leads the music at the 11:45 a.m. Sunday Mass at Sacred Heart Church. He has taken the choir on two international tours, both to the Republic of Ireland, in 1988 and 1990.

For the last two years, he has managed Campus Ministry's liturgical celebration of the Feast of Saint Patrick, using music written in collaboration with with parishes and liturgical centers in Ireland and directing the Folk Choir in a recording of the Mass.

NDASA announces Africa Week

By SARAH VOIGT
News Writer

Africa Week, a first annual series of academic and artistic events scheduled on campus from September 9-14, was organized by the Notre Dame African Students Association (NDASA) to discuss and celebrate African culture.

According to Christophe Kougniazonde, president of the NDASA, "Africa Week coincides with one of the goals of Notre Dame, which is intercultural diversity, a dialogue between different cultures. We want to encourage this, to provide a forum for issues about Africa."

"This week will help Africans assert their own culture and to combat homesickness for their homeland," he said. "It will also promote stronger awareness about African issues."

Kougniazonde said that the NDASA first conceived of Africa Week as an attempt to recreate the enthusiasm for African unity observed in Africa on May 5. The events scheduled for Africa Week include the following:

- The film "Cry the Beloved Country," based on Alan Paton's story of South Africa, shown in the Multicultural Auditorium on September 9 at 7:30 p.m.
- The Geke Ballet, Chicago based dance company, will perform to African drums in LaFortune on September 9.
- A panel discussion entitled "Recent Political Developments in Southern Africa," will be held in the Engineering Auditorium on September 12 at 7 p.m.
- A discussion entitled "The Crisis of the Post-Independence African State" will be held in Theodore's at LaFortune on September 13 at 7:30 p.m.
- A closing reception with special African dishes, music and dance will be held in Stepan Center on September 14 at 8 p.m.

Dukakis allies put end to rebellion

BOSTON (AP) — After being held a political hostage by a mutinous lieutenant governor, Gov. Michael Dukakis departed on a European trade mission Thursday as his allies moved to quash the rebellion.

Dukakis had delayed his travel plans Tuesday after Lt. Gov. Evelyn Murphy threatened to seize control of Massachusetts' beleaguered finances once he left.

"I think the episode of the past 24 hours is really kind of pathetic," Dukakis said at a brief airport news conference before boarding his plane to Germany.

While Dukakis allies tried to quash the rebellion Thursday, with references to a new form of "Murphy's Law" and an "attempted bloodless coup," Murphy said her boss was acting "weird" by not letting her assert herself.

"There's no good will here and certainly no mutual respect," Murphy said.

Dukakis said he did not speak to Murphy on Thursday, but he said he believed her assurances that she would be reliable in his absence. But he said he could cut his trip short if anything occurs that affected the government's stability.

Murphy spokeswoman Jody D'Urso said the lieutenant governor, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, would not take any action Thursday night. D'Urso did not rule out Murphy acting later.

Murphy, who is lagging in her Democratic primary race to succeed Dukakis, had been a strong supporter of the governor in his 1988 bid for the presidency. But with the state in a fiscal disaster and Dukakis not seeking re-election, politicians have treated him as a liability.

Dukakis decided to postpone his travel plans, prompting some observers to say he was being held hostage by his own lieutenant governor.

Dukakis bitterly denounced the tactic as a maneuver designed to gain favor with voters in the gubernatorial race. On Thursday, aides to Dukakis echoed that charge.

"Here's a lady who isn't going to get elected governor no matter what she does, and she is dangerously flirting with the economic health of the commonwealth of Massachusetts. That's irresponsible," said L. Edward Latham, state secretary of Administration and Finance. Latham said he isn't publicly supporting any candidate in the Sept. 18 primary.

According to recent public opinion polls, Murphy is well behind her two Democratic opponents.

Judge: Mapplethorpe case must go to trial

CINCINNATI (AP) — A jury must decide whether an art gallery and its director broke obscenity laws by exhibiting five sexually graphic Robert Mapplethorpe photographs, a judge ruled Thursday.

Hamilton County Municipal Judge David Albanese ordered Dennis Barrie and the Contemporary Arts Center to stand trial Sept. 24 on one misdemeanor charge each of pandering obscene material. Barrie and the gallery already were scheduled to go on trial that day on one charge each of using children in material involving nudity. Albanese said the trial, which will address the obscenity and nudity charges, could last 10 days.

In his order Thursday, Albanese rejected defense arguments that the obscenity charge should be dismissed because state obscenity law exempts legitimate art displays. This argument combines facts, affirmative defenses and issues of credibility, the court will not pretry the case on those issues," the judge said.

Each charge carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine for Barrie and a $5,000 fine for the Contemporary Arts Center. Albanese also granted a prosecution request to let jurors see only the five photographs that depict sadomasochistic sex acts when considering the obscenity charge. Prosecutors will only have to prove obscenity, he reasoned, to win a conviction, the judge said.

Bridge blocked in Mohawk dispute reopens after 2 months

MONTREAL (AP) — The Mercier Bridge linking Montreal to its south-shore suburbs opened Thursday for the first time following an eight-week standoff between armed Mohawks and police.

As army pipers played, hundreds of cars and trucks drove onto the bridge from suburban Chateauguay, through the Kahnawake Mohawk reserve and past armored personnel carriers in the early morning mist.

Commuters had started lining up their cars an hour earlier, horns honking impatiently as they waited for the army to wave them through.

"It's about time," one man on his way to work at a Montreal refrigerated warehouse told a radio station. "The government should never have let this happen in the first place."

The bridge normally handles about 70,000 vehicles during the daily rush hour. It was barricaded by natives from the Kahnawake reserve after provincial police staged an abortive attack on a Mohawk barricade at Kahnawake near Oka, Quebec, on July 11 in which an officer died.

The bridge closure led to violent demonstrations by south-shore commuters, including an incident last week in which a white mob hurled stones at a convoy of Mohawk women, children and invalids escaping the reserve.

The stage was set for the reopening when barricades at Kahnawake came down last week after an agreement was reached between the army and Mohawks.

But in Kahnawake — where the Mohawk deadlock began over a land dispute — soldiers spent Wednesday firming up their positions around the last Warrior stronghold.

The deadlock at Oka began when provincial police stormed a barricade the Mohawks erected to stop the town's plans to expand the local golf course, saying the property in question was part of their ancestral land.

NASA will make next try at launch mid-Sept

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA said Thursday it will replace the fuel pump that likely caused its latest failure to get astronauts back in space and try again in mid-September to launch Columbia.

NASA Administrator Richard Truly said a new pump will be installed this weekend. If that seems to correct the problem, a fourth launch attempt will be made to launch the shuttle with an astronomical observatory early in the week of Sept. 17.

"It's not a 100 percent guarantee. But it's the one shot we have to get the Astro mission airborne" before Discovery's scheduled flight with the Ulysses satellite in October, Truly said.

The unit is bolted in and can be replaced easily, said launch director Bob Sieck. Crews cannot enter the compartment until Friday because propellants remain aboard, preventing a new pump from being installed until Saturday.

On Wednesday, NASA called off its third attempt to send Columbia on a mission to study some of the hottest objects in the universe with the $150 million Astro observatory. Thursday's early morning launch was scrubbed after hydrogen flooded into the rear compartment.

Officials continued filling Columbia's massive external tank to pinpoint the source and narrowed their search to the shuttle's three recirculation pumps.

Each of the shuttle's three main engines has a pump. Officials were uncertain which one might be leaking or whether there were other holes. The pumps are part of the plumbing in the rear of the shuttle, where pipes range in diameter up to 17 inches. They are directly in front of the huge engines, and are accessible through side doors.

"We're not talking about a large leak. We're talking about an extremely small leak," said Forrest McCartney, director of Kennedy Space Center. "It's very elusive and very frustrating."

"It is a real booger to try to find and isolate," shuttle boss Robert Crippen said.

If a new pump does not correct Columbia's leaks or the launch is delayed too long, the mission will wait until after Discovery's flight with Ulysses, a satellite being sent on a five-year journey to explore the sun's polar regions. Discovery must lift off between Oct. 5 to Oct. 23 to take advantage of the proper planet alignment.

"Ulysses is our first priority and we will not compromise that," said William Lenoir, head of NASA's space flight program. Columbia's seven astronauts left for their training base in Houston at dawn.

"My first reaction was frustration," said program scientist Ed Weiler. "But my next thought was, 'My God, I'm glad they stopped, some of my friends are aboard.'

Lasting friendships start with Best Buddies program

By Cecelia Burger

Mary is a friend of mine. There are things I can tell you about her. For instance, she is a black female in her early thirties. She lives and works in the community. She likes to cook and lets others know that she likes to get books to read from the library. And she is especially fond of Pizza Hut pizza, Kentucky Fried Chicken and strawberry ice cream. Mary is friendly but quiet when you first meet her. When she warms up, however, her personality makes her impossible to resist. Obviously, she is a very special person to those who know her. But there is something about Mary which a description of her would be incomplete without. Mary is severely retarded and handicapped.

Mary and I were paired together through Best Buddies, a program sponsored by the Kennedy Foundation which works through Logan Center. Upon seeing her for the first time, it was apparent that she is disabled. After getting past that, I didn't know her very well. And I didn't say much about her level of understanding, and perhaps she just found me boring. I realized that she was a normal, pattern of authoritative figure and dependable was quickly forming. I decided to stop asking so many questions.

When Mary and I would go to the movies or some other place, we would ride in the car, listen to music and just enjoy one another. I asked one or two questions and then passed for a time, waiting for a response. Little by little, Mary became more comfortable with me and I with her. She has become more relaxed and asking her things was more comfortable about asking me things. I helped her with her handicap and asking about her abilities like the distance she could walk, if she could go up stairs, or if she took the bus to work by herself. I have been telling her some things about myself each visit. Then one day, upon the fifth visit, Mary got into the car and, to my astonishment, began the conversation. After that I only did she begin, she talked a good five minutes straight! She answered all the questions that I had asked her consistently on her other visits. Obviously, she was getting to know me pretty well.

After that, I wanted to get around the problem of her viewing all my actions as favor to her, (she thanked me for everything, not realizing that I wanted to see her and do things with her). I also wanted her to start calling me if she wanted to see me. I found that the best way to let her know these things was just to come out and say them. It was amazing how well that worked. I was extremely aware of the rare honesty and openness that was so prominent in our developing relationship.

After that “stage,” Mary became even more interactive, asking me things, remembering things we had conversed about on previous visits and asking me about them (i.e., “how was your test?”). I asked what I wanted to do, wanting to share with me (secrets as well as food), and calls from me didn’t call when I said I would.

Mary’s presence in my life has been a tremendous amount. She has had much contact with the mentally retarded. However, my relationship with Mary has dissolved many of the fears I had.

My views of challenges, and of people in general, have also been influenced. Mary faces challenges and difficulties in daily life and survival. So much of what is automatic for me presents problems for her. She has really accomplished a tremendous amount. She has worked hard and deserves dignity and respect like anyone else. Instead, she lives in a world where many look down on her and patronize her, focusing on what she can’t do rather than what she can.

I have also learned about the value of people. So many things about Mary are innate in the human condition. She feels both pain and pleasure, satisfaction and dissatisfaction, approval and disgust. She has ideas and opinions. She laughs and cries and gets angry. She experiences pain and pleasure, satisfaction and dissatisfaction. She has ideas and opinions. She experiences pain and pleasure, satisfaction and dissatisfaction.

Part of friendship is accepting the limits of your friends and cherishing the parts which are truly beautiful and valuable. Yes, Mary is my friend, she is special, and she has taught me the true meaning of friendship. I think the Friendship Program is an excellent idea which benefits both participants. The mentally retarded person gets a chance to be socialized, integrated, and experience some normalization of activities with non-handicapped people. The non-handicapped person gets the chance to work with a mentally retarded person and develop a relationship, realizing that such people are not really different in the aspects of human value other than their condition.

I n this day and age people are looking for variety in their listen­ ting experience. Along with a desire to please, popular demand and competitive forces are two factors that drive Mishawaka’s ZIP 104 radio station to fulfill those expectations of its listeners.

Disk Jockey Steve O’Brien, who is the current music director, believes that it is important to “keep in touch with what is going on in the listener’s mind.”

O’Brien says ZIP 104 relies on the basic format of CHR (Contemporary Hit Radio) to satisfy its “selective audience,” which is concentrated between the 18 to 34 age group, or as O’Brien puts it, “the post-baby-boomers.”

ZIP 104’s song list would be best described as a Top 40 conglomeration, attracting the teenager, young adult, and the average married couple under

Contest give-aways center around music. One such contest give-away is the free music weekend, during which time CDs, cassettes, and stereo sets are given away. Another popular prize give-away is the Club Card Promo, which gives those listeners possessing a Club Card a chance to win prizes valued at $250 if their number is called over the radio.

Although prizes and contests are common among most radio stations, O’Brien stresses that there “is a difference” between ZIP 104 and other radio stations. In order to attract more listeners and retain present ones, O’Brien says “It is important to build a better product.” ZIP 104 accomplishes this task through a “consistent product.” says O’Brien, who compares the station’s success to that of a McDonald’s. “When you get a cheeseburger at McDonald’s, you know it will be the same every time.” That is how ZIP 104 operates. Their listeners know what to expect.

O’Brien says that there seems to be “a lot of hype” about the ranking of radio stations. It is not the aim of ZIP 104 to get every listener out there, but rather to focus on the desires of its selective audience.

Some of the ways ZIP 104 accomplishes the task of getting in touch with its audience is through surveys and live broadcasts.

O’Brien describes the objective of this radio station as “serving, entertaining, and informing its listeners.”

One advantage of this service is advertising at an affordable rate. “Radio can reach a thousand people cheaper that any other form of media,” says O’Brien. That advantage is part of what ZIP 104 is all about.

South Bend's Radio Stations

Although South Bend has two top 40 radio stations and one hard rock station, sometimes the need arises for a variety of music: something you can listen to while studying or relaxing without getting sick of repetition.

Sunny 101.5 fulfills that need by providing a mixture of songs. In the words of Doug Hawkes, program director for Sunny 101.5, the music is a golden mixture of both the best of the old and the new. In more technical radio lingo, it's a programing which is a blend of songs, with a large bulk of the audience between the ages of 25 and 39. Yet this is no Barry Manilow or Neil Diamond marathon, nor is it an air wave playing heavy metal or rap. Sunny 101.5's format, instead, ranges from the Beatles to Heart to Billy Joel to Mariah Carey to Elton John.

Along with its regular music, Sunny 101.5 also showcases four special programs. Every weekday there's the popular "Lunchtime Gold" with Jack Reichert. From 12:15 p.m. classic rock and great oldies are sent out over the airwaves. For five minutes during that hour, usually 12:20-12:25, Reichert tests his audience's knowledge of rock trivia. In "Name that Lunchtime Gold," he plays the first few seconds or notes of an oldies song and the right caller (#12, for example) with the correct answer wins a prize.

"The show is a lot of fun. Jack is a hometown boy, so he has a great knowledge of the city," commented Hawkes. "The show has a lot of audience participation, and Jack loves requests. He really tries to thoroughly research all his rare requests.

On Saturday evening from 7 to 11 p.m. there's "Super Gold" with Mike Tanner. Broadcast live from the West Coast, it presents a national phone-in request program. Sunday evening there are a couple of programs to listen to while studying at the "brare. From 6-9 p.m., it's "Crusin' America" with Coasti Brunde, and at 9 until 12 a.m., "Live from the Sixties" with the Real Don Steel. "Live from the Sixties" usually highlights one particular year in the decade and then plays all the great songs of that year—and not just the major hits. He doesn't play "Born to be Wild" and "Light My Fire" every hour like other sixties rock programs tend to do.

Obscure songs and novelty songs are also given their fair share of the program. Don Steel also tries to make the listener feel as if they're back in time, with facts and trivia from the particular year.

"We try to have a whole bunch of little things going on at the same time, instead of one big promotion," Hawkes commented. "Actually," he continued, "our ratings have been pretty good of late. We like having a lot of audience participation and we're glad that we've developed a great audience. And we're, of course, very happy to be in the hometown of University of Notre Dame."

U93 is no longer a Top 40 station. Before the fans of Mark Durocher, Nicky 93, and the like rush to change their dials to another station that plays the hot hits of today, it must be made clear that U93 has not changed its format, simply the title of the format. "Top 40" has become passe in radio circles; the correct name is contemporary hit radio, or CHR, according to Jack Swart, the Radio Manager of WNDU 93.

The station is currently enjoying a run as the top-rated radio station in the overall area as well as in several key demographic groups. Arbitron, the ratings system U93 subscribes to, rates them number one in the 18-34 age group, with a 17.7 share of the audience, and also number one in the 18-34 group with a 19.5 share.

These numbers are based on the average percentage of listeners tuned in to U93 during the hours of 6 a.m. to midnight, seven days a week. Swart says there are a number of reasons the station is so successful.

First among these is the type of music the station plays. The playlist is selected by the program and music directors, who are influenced by requests from listeners and from sales in local record stores. The biggest hits are placed on the playlist in heavy rotation for a period of 12 to 13 weeks, at which time their rotation is diminished. A song is taken off the playlist anywhere from one to one and a half years after its first appearance.

Because of the various tastes of its listeners, the station plays various styles of pop, including soul, hard rock, and rap, if it has crossover appeal.

The popularity of certain disc jockeys also contributes to the station's success. According to U93's overall strategy, the more high profile, energetic DJs are featured during the morning and afternoon driving time, the morning show, headed by Durocher, also boasts a stable of popular characters in a comic format. Special programming on weekends includes Rick Dees' Weekly Top 40 on Saturday mornings, and America's Top 40 on Sunday mornings, as well as Sunday evening's Hittin', a syndicated call-in show featuring various artists.

Perhaps the main factor that leaves U93 fans tuned to their stereo, however, is the extensive call-in giveaway program the station utilizes. Both independently and in conjunction with sponsors, U93 gives away South Bend Sox tickets, concert tickets, and restaurant gift certificates, as well as larger prizes such as trips, stereo systems, and merchants' giveaway packages. Recent promotions included the $10,000 Key Song and the Endless Summer features.

WNDU is affiliated with the University and expresses this by following university policy on such things as the advertising it accepts for airplay. Swart says the station wishes to "reflect the same basic message as that of the University." The station promotes itself mostly through advertising on TV's Channel 16, and through billboards in the area.

As to the competition provided them by similar stations such as ZIP 104, Swart replies that U93 was the first station of its format in this area, and that gives it an advantage over the others. He states that U93's flow of talent is stronger and that they are in touch with the community better than any of their competition.

With the air of one in command of the situation, he says simply, "We just keep beating them."

At Notre Dame, celebrating "Year of Women," we should be able to spend time dispelling the myth that men are superior without replacing it with another myth. Elliot's Becket tells us that the last temptation is the greatest treason: "to do the right deed for the wrong reason." We shouldn't be tempted to think that Notre Dame owes the ladies the "Year of Women," because "every year so far has been the year of men." Even in the real world, it isn't true to say that white males always have their back sides in a tub of butter. The real truth is that in this generation of emerging minorities, men are taking turns with the women in being the underdogs.

How could it be otherwise? If the President decides that the politics of liberation mandate him to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court, Sandra Day O'Connor's stand-in will be nominated to fill the vacancy, even though she is waiting in the wings. Sandra Day O'Connor's stand-in may be an inspired choice, gifted in doing her job well, and everyone well equipped to replace her on the Court. The real truth is that in this generation of emerging minorities, men are taking turns with the women in being the underdogs.

Has Hemingway replaced one "old Lie" with another lie when he says, "You will die like a dog for no good reason." Doesn't mean they have a right to babies taking up space in their wombs like a house guest, for those innocents didn't invite themselves to life's feast. Is it sexist of me to say this? I'm ready and willing to be sensitive to any issue the women want me to be sensitive to, as long as it's "dulce et decorum est," and not a lie. It's not only cowgirls who get the blues; when the bell tolls, it tolls for all of us.

performance in the Buffaloes’ 31-31 tie against Tennessee couldn’t have helped his chances. Hagan is an option quarterback in the mold of Tony Rice and, for that reason, he won’t be able to impress the Heisman voters with his passing marks.

Junior Ty Detmer of Brigham Young, USC sophomore Todd Marinovich and Miami senior Craig Erickson are the best of a strong contingent of quarterback candidates vying for the award. Hagan is the flattest passer in the group, but Marinovich and Erickson both play for high-profile programs which could garner them a few extra votes. The 1990 Heisman field lacks a solid running back candidate of the Barry Sanders variety, but Houston senior Chuck Weatherspoon, Pittsburgh junior Curvin Richards and Fresno State senior Aaron Craver and Alabama senior Siran Stacy will make strong bids for the award. Tennessee sophomore Chuck Webb, a top preseason candidate, is out for the season after tearing anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee.

BOSTON (AP) — Roger Clemens, the Boston Red Sox was reported “much more comfortable” Thursday as he underwent hospital tests for a painful right shoulder.

Dr. Arthur Pappas, the Red Sox’ team physician, said pain and swelling had “subsided significantly.”

“These are encouraging signs and he’s more comfortable, but that doesn’t necessarily correlate with what’s happening inside his shoulder,” Pappas said. Pappas, an orthopedic specialist, said that while there are “optimistic signs” he had to wait until the results of tests become known, probably on Friday.

Clemens, who has a 20-6 record and leads the majors with a 1.98 earned run average and 204 strikeouts, underwent extensive tests at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center.

Clemens took had X-rays and a Magnetic Resonance Imaging procedure done. Pappas virtually ruled out any rotator cuff trouble and said Clemens problem is “more limited to two tendons in the front of the shoulder.”

Filming for the Lou Holtz Show will take place today from 12 p.m. to 1 p.m. at WNUD Studios. Anyone interested in speaking with Coach Holtz and being in the studio audience should check SportsChannel’s Chicago office prior to the taping at (708) 524-9444. said. "I just came and did what the mandate of the university was - which was not to win national championships, not to finish first in the country, not to go to a bowl game. It was to make football a good educational experience and not compromise the values and the morals and the principals that Notre Dame cherishes. I never came, and said, I want to win this."
But Holtz did win.
After a 5-6 opening season, Holtz led the 1987 team to an 8-4 mark and an appearance in the Cotton Bowl. He followed that with a perfect 12-0 mark in 1988 and the national championship. The encore was a 12-1 record and a second-place ranking in 1989.

Lou speaks out

The Observer/Steve Mossop

On football: "Football is an extension of life. Everything that you're going to face in life in the years to come is initiated in football. You have some goals, you have some direction. You've got to develop your skills, your talent, your abilities. You've got to get working exceptionally hard. It's also a game where you need other people. Your future or your success depends on others. You can be a great receiver but if the quarterback doesn't get you the ball, you can't display your talents or abilities. And if you do all this, you still may not get the recognition you think you deserve. You win and they give it to somebody else. You don't get the promotion to the first team."

On winning and losing: "You have heartaches and you have disappointment. Things don't go well and you lose. You don't recognize the winners. You have to live with the losers. You have to live with the likes of people repelling and all of a sudden you find out that's not really what's important in life or in football."

On the volume of mail he receives: "We spend half of our time opening mail about speaking requests. I'm not a speaker, I'm a coach. I can't imagine going anywhere that the volume of mail I get would diminish. If I became a mailman, I wouldn't handle as much mail as I do now."

On pressure: "If I don't feel pressure to win - none. There's never been anyone from the administration who had said we have to win this game. I'll win and I'm sure they're disappointed when we don't win. Pressure is going to take a big экзамен when you haven't studied. I don't feel pressure to run the program and have our players reflect the standards that Notre Dame values and cherish. We just do the best we can and let things take care of themselves."

On criticism and accusations: "It seems that the more success you have, the more situations like that arise. It hurts you with some of the things you can't control. You have to look at yourself and say, 'God, I did the right thing?' If the answer is no, you have to just go on. If the answer is yes, you have to ask what you could do to improve that."

On real pressure: "When you're 35 and the bank turns down your request to re-mortgage the farm, you've got a crisp in the field, you've got six hungry youngsters and your wife ran off with the drummer, you understand that there's got to be a resilience to you, some determination, something to get you through tough times."

On life: "Be a participant in life. Do not be a spectator. You do something to experience what it's like. You can do it twice and experience it a thousand times. Instead of staying on the safe watching, TV, do something."
Coast Conference finals, de­feating NCAA co-champion Virginia along the way. Junior forward Clint Carnell and ju­nior George Dunn are the cornerstone of Duke.

Berticelli's positive frame of mind has already worn off onto this Notre Dame team. "It's a test," said junior goal­keeper Peter Gulli. "We played well (in an exhibition) against Indiana, and that gave us con­fidence that we could play with Top 20 teams."

Senior co-captain Paul LaVigne believes the Irish have become more focused. "The intensity level is key," he said. "What you do in practice is what you do in games, and we've had good intensity levels in practice.

The road doesn't get any easier for the Irish after Friday's game with the Blue Devils, as Notre Dame will face another strong ACC team in North Carolina State on Sunday.

The Wolfpack, ranked 17th in the nation by Soccer America, have two wins so far in the '90 campaign against the same Jacksonvilles and UNC—Greensboro teams beating Duke. N.C. State's attack has proved dangerous this season, prompting the 'Pack to a com­bined 11-1 score in their two victories.

N.C. State was 8-8-1 last sea­son, respectable considering the level of the ACC, and re­turns eight starters off that team. Stars for the Wolfpack include All-ACC midfielder Dario Brose, as well as forward Hedge Pender and Dale Alfred, who played in every single minute of competition last season.

The Irish aren't looking past these two Devils at the Wolfpack, though.

"N.C. State is equal, if not tougher than Duke, but we want a good game at this time," Gulli said. "We'll think about Duke on Sunday.

Berticelli is confident but cautious about his team's chances. "We can be competitive," he said, "but they're experienced teams and we've less experienced, so it's very, very important for us to play well as a unit. If we do, then we can give them a tough match."

Road trips such as these are a key component in taking a team to the championship-caliber level, and if the enthusiasm the players show and the overtime period against Dayton are any indicators, the Irish could upset a ranked team in the very near future.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sassy and flashy and poised to the max, Andre Agassi put on a show of tennis world's loudest dresser. The proof that he isn't just the tennis world's loudest dresser America's top player and the leader of the pack of young sluggers on the tour, Agassi, 20, wallowed deep shots relentlessly with his oversized, neon green, power racket and kept Cherkasov on the defensive in every set.

Cherkasov, who beat baseline Michael Chang in the third round, found that there's more to Agassi than his funky green and black clothes, and more to his game than big groundstrokes. Agassi took every opportunity to charge the net and kill the ball on the run. He didn't show much finesse, but after a year of pumping iron, his power is undeniable.

It was never more so than at the end of the first set and throughout the second. Agassi took a 4-2 lead in the first set with a forehand deep in the corner on point game that whizzed by Cherkasov as if it were a rocket. Agassi took particular pleasure in that shot, gazing at it in admiration before strutting back to the baseline.

Agassi then broke Cherkasov with an assault that had the Soviet sprinting frenetically from side to side, desperately chasing balls and finally hitting them wide or into the net. Agassi finished the set with a service winner to take the game at love.

It was more of the same in the second set and third, Cherkasov rising to the challenge a few times but Agassi coming right back with his relentless assault.

"He has powerful groundstrokes. I think he's the best in the world," said Cherkasov, a 20-year-old born on the Fourth of July.

Slosar, teammates and mentally focusing on the game. "Everybody has the talent in college," said Slosar. "You really have to focus on the mental part of the game. It's not high school where you can rely on talent alone. Being smart and using your mind is what puts you above the rest." Jennifer Slosar certainly knows what it takes to become the best. She was fourth in volleyball and was a second-team all-state selection her senior year at Mercy High School in Birmingham, Michigan. She also excelled in basketball, tennis, golf, earning three and four letters, respectively.

"I just have a love for athletics," said Slosar. "I've played basketball all my life. Volleyball is still a new sport to me and I'm still learning. It's a lot different. A lot of fun, but a lot of work, too. It's a lot different than basketball, especially the conditioning."

Jennifer's talent certainly runs in the family. Her father John Slosar played basketball at John Carroll University. "My Dad's been my biggest inspiration," Slosar said. "He doesn't really know volleyball, but he's always been my mental coach. He really understands.

Slosar basically had her pick of the crop coming out of high school. She had scholarship offers for basketball but none of the schools appealed to her. Her decision came down to the University of Michigan (which also offered her a golf scholarship) and Notre Dame.

"Michigan had a really good engineering program too, but it would be a learning experience," Slosar said. "It's not just what's in the box, it would be the best. Everything you have to play the best you have to play the best. Everyone on the team feels that way."

Unfortunately, Slosar won't be in action for the Irish this weekend. She had been plagued by shin splints in the last few years, but after an unusual amount of pain, a bone scan yesterday revealed a stress fracture in her right ankle.

"That's not what she needed right now," Lambert said. "We don't know when she'll be back.

Slosar on the other hand, has different ideas. "I'm being fitted for a brace. I won't play this weekend but I'm looking to play in the Big Four Tournament (Sept. 14-15)."

A great competitor isn't kept down.
Women's soccer squad flies south for weekend

By DAVE DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team takes to the skies this weekend as it flies south for matchups against Top 20 opponents Duke and UNC-Greensboro.

The Irish set off for sunny North Carolina at 8 a.m. Friday morning. In order that they may have ample time to gear up for a Saturday showdown with Duke at 2 p.m. and a Sunday meeting with Greensboro at 1 p.m. Does this sound simple? Fly down, win, fly home. Not quite.

The Irish are in for two hard-fought games this weekend. Duke, which was ranked 20th in Division I in the most recent NCAA poll, recently trounced fifth-ranked William and Mary (at William and Mary), roasting Duke's record on the young season to 2-0. In their first game, the Blue Devils handily dispatched Mercer 6-0 at Duke.

"Duke is scary," noted Irish head coach Chris Petrucelli. "They have lots of firepower up front, and they are solid at every position. Mary Pat Rosenberg, the daughter of Notre Dame Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal, is a tough fullback for Duke. We definitely have to be aware of her when we're taking corner kicks.

"But of course, she is only one of many talented players. It's a difficult situation to go to their place, both because they are playing well now and we have a young team."

Similarly, UNC-Greensboro, Petrucelli's alma mater, has been in the Top 20 of Division II each of the past three years.

"Greensboro is a young and talented program," explained Petrucelli. "They are at a point where they have lots of juniors playing, while we have lots of freshmen playing. Again, they will challenge us to our best. The hardest part is that we have to play them the day after we play Duke.

Yet the Irish, who tied Wisconsin (in an easy feat) in an exhibition game, are 1-0 on the regular season after a 5-1 victory over Northeast Missouri State last week at Alumni Field. In short, Notre Dame is ready to play.

"We are excited about the opportunity to play two of the better teams in the country," continued coach Petrucelli. "We're really looking forward to this trip."

"One thing you must know, though, and it is very important — our attitude is not just that we are making a trip. We are going down there to win some games. We are planning on winning two games. We are not going down there to get beaten."

"I'm also looking forward to returning to Greensboro," added Petrucelli. "I won't.

Irish coach enjoys having 'the worst job in the country'

By GREG GUFFETT

A few days after the Sports Illustrated article appeared accusing Notre Dame of widespread steroid use in its football program head coach Lou Holtz received a phone call from one of his fraternity brothers at Kent State.

"He said, 'You've got the worst job in the country,'" Holtz said. "I was in the worst profession you could be in. He said, 'We sure right in college aren't very smart.'"

"Now I don't know whether he was trying to be funny or what. One thing was obvious - he was glad he had his job and I had mine. But I told him, 'I'm in the worst profession in the world and I'm at the greatest place in the world.'"

As he enters his fifth season at Notre Dame, one gets the feeling that Holtz has genuinely found happiness in the most pressure-filled program in the nation.

While dealing with steroids, suspensions and losing big games, Holtz has managed a 37-11 record in four seasons at the helm of the Irish program. He is 24-1 in the past two seasons, including a national championship in 1988.

"Every other place there was something missing," Holtz said. "You think it's special here but you don't really understand what it's all about. It happens when you're part of the family. I don't want to be a well-known person. I might be because there's no way you can't be at Notre Dame. I just want to coach here, live here and identify with Notre Dame."

In the early 1950s Holtz was one of 74 boys out for the East Liverpool, Ohio, High School football team. The number would eventually dwindle to 26 by the end of the season.

That Holtz was one of those final 26 tells a lot about his character and also a lot about what he expects from those people around him.

"Our high school coach was very tough, very demanding," Holtz said. "The only reason I didn't quit was that I couldn't figure out how I could tell my dad who was in the Pacific (in World War II) or my uncle who was in the Battle of the Bulge that it was too tough. You just don't tell people who went through the battle of the Bulge that it was easy."

Even though he stuck with it, Holtz was never a great athlete. He was good enough to earn a scholarship to Kent State, but he was never a truly great athlete. He played two seasons at Kent State before an injury ended his career.

"I used to always pray that God would make me a good athlete," Holtz said. "He never did. I'm not afraid of being involved in the big games, the excitement. Then, he leads me to coaching and allows me to be involved in those big games. It's really special."

Before coming to Notre Dame in 1986, Holtz had head coaching stops at William & Mary, North Carolina State, Arkansas and Minnesota. He played in 12 bowl games at those schools and boasted a combined record of 116-65-5.

Holtz taught a lesson in hard times.

"The best thing that happened to me was when a former Notre Dame player who was named Raghib Ismail came here with any big expectations," Holtz said.

Irish to play two in Carolina

New head soccer coach Mike Berticelli is about to experience two more firsts at Notre Dame — his first regular-season road trip and his first match with a Top 20 opponent as the coach of ND. The Irish travel to Durham, N.C., to participate in the Metroplitan Life Classic, where they will face 10th-ranked Duke tonight, and 17th-ranked N.C. State on Sunday.

Notre Dame soccer fans had some cause for concern throughout much of last Saturday's opener versus Dartmouth, as the Irish were something less than sharp. Much of that concern evaporated after a Notre Dame scoring blitz that ultimately gave them a 5-1 overtime victory. At least it did in the mind of Coach Berticelli.

"Hopefully playing better at the end has given us some momentum," Berticelli said, "but the level of competition will be far higher than against Dayton." Tonight the Irish will face a team that has already notched two wins against quality opponents, as Duke downed Jacksonville and the University of North Carolina got the better of Virginia Tech earlier this season.
