ND students accuse police of brutality

By KELLEY TUTHILL

Two Notre Dame students claim members of the South Bend Police Department used unnecessary force while making arrests during a police break-up of a party on August 31. Seniors Antwon Lark, 20, and James Dillard, 21, said the police were unnecessarily brutal and continued to use force after they had handcuffed them during a gathering on Notre Dame Avenue. In addition, the students, who are black, claim the attack was a racial incident perpetuated by the all-white members of the police department.

South Bend Police Department's Internal Affairs office is familiar with the students' complaints, said Capt. Brent Hemmerlein. "At this point it is not under investigation." He said the students have yet to come to the station to fill out the necessary complaint forms.

Lt. Norma Williams of the South Bend Police Department said he had no knowledge of the incident. He said prior to commenting on this incident he would have to learn more about the incidents surrounding the arrest.

"Cpl. Hemmerlein is the fairest man in the world and the Chief of Police doesn't tolerate racial incidents," he said. The students have the option of filling a complaint or a violation of civil rights suit. "Go for it. It's the truth let someone pay the price. If the students are lying to save their skin, let them pay for the lie."

At approximately 11:30 p.m. there were several police cars on Notre Dame Avenue during parties at students' homes. Dillard and Lark became involved in a dispute with another student after they allegedly denied his car accidentally.

The police approached the area where Lark and Dillard were standing shortly after the dispute. Witnesses describe the scene differently and it is unclear whether the police were aware of the students' fight.

While he was standing on the porch of a Notre Dame Avenue home, Lark said he was jumped by six or seven police officers. In the process of the arrest, Lark said the police kicked him and hit him with billy clubs.

The arresting officers could not be reached for comment because police reports concerning the incidents were not available. Williams could not be reached for further comment.

"They cursed and started beating on him," said junior Patrick Kelly. "Initially he was resisting arrest, but later he was on the ground handcuffed and they were kicking him."

"They beat him past what was needed to calm him down," said junior Michael J. Miller. While Lark was lying on the ground handcuffed, Miller

A female Notre Dame student was assaulted Thursday morning while jogging beside St. Joseph's Lake, according to Security officials. She was uninjured.

The victim was jogging alone at 11 a.m. when she was grabbed from behind by an assailant she described as male, Caucasian, between 19-21 years old, medium build, between 5'9" and 5'7", medium length brown hair parted in the middle, dark eyes and freckles. He

Iraq threatens terrorist attacks against US troops

IRAQ (AP) - Iraq warned Thursday of possible terrorist attacks against U.S. forces, sounding the same alarm of its Arab neighbors wounded by the presence of non-Muslim soldiers massed in the holy lands of Saudi Arabia.

But a convocation of Moslem clergy in Mecca, Saudi Arabia, condemned Iraq's annexation of Kuwait and said the U.S.-led multinational force's presence was justified by Iraq's invasion.

Meanwhile in Tokyo, the Japanese government announced Friday that it will provide an additional $3 billion in aid to the United States, a move intended to continue the flow of aid to American forces in the Persian Gulf region and nations suffering from the U.S.-sponsored embargo against Iraq.

The commander, though, said the troops and military hardware already located there were sufficient enough to stop any Iraqi attack.

President Bush should expect that the crimes the United States of America is committing against the Arab nation and the insult it is directing to the Islamic shrines by occupying holy lands will undoubtedly produce a natural reaction from the Arab and Islamic states.

New parking for home game days

By MEGAN JUNIUS

Parking has been changed for the football season due to the construction of the new Delbarton academic quad.

"The Red East and Orange lots along Edison and Juniper Roads have been newly paved this year in order for better utilization of space," said Phil Johnson, assistant director of Security. "The Red and B lots have been moved to Red West, and White Field, north of Stepan Center, will be used for parking, he said.

"The lots will provide bus service to and from the stadium.

As in recent years, three hours prior to kickoff, Indiana State Police, St. Joseph County Police, South Bend Police, Notre Dame Security, Indiana Toll Road Commission and local volunteers will change the two-way roads around campus into one-way, direct routes to football parking.

Throughout the game, volunteers and traffic workers will keep in constant communication in order to alert each other of changes in weather, traffic and other conditions that could affect the flow of traffic. Johnson said. For one hour after the game, the interections are patrolled to maintain a one-way traffic flow away from campus.

"Students often unknowingly get involved with this one-way traffic," Johnson said. Students are also warned by campus security to remove vehicles parked in football parking areas.

According to Johnson, this will affect commuter students who currently park in Cl. They will need to move their vehicles to the White Field.

"We will begin towing cars in the reserve lots at 6 a.m," said Johnson.

Parking will cost $30 a day for recreational vehicles and $5 a day for cars.

"The quality service to football fans is tremendous," Johnson said. "Vehicles are moved quickly and safely by the traffic force."

Iraq's warning came in a memorandum to the U.S. charge d'affaires in Baghdad, according to the Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus. It said Iraq was responding to a U.S. claim that Iraq-based terrorists were preparing to attack U.S. targets.

The United States is creating a "pseudo terrorist" for the occasion, the memorandum was quoted as saying, and "Iraq reserves its legitimate right to self-defense, to reciprocate and to retaliate firmly against these parties if it becomes a target."
Freedom of speech is for everybody

"Congress shall make no law ... abridging the freedom of speech ..." from an ancient legal text.

Have you heard what's being said these days? All this talk about promises being keeping and revolution of authority. It's enough to shock anybody. I mean, in China you could go to jail for this. Hey, wait a minute. In America, you can go to jail for this.

That's right, folks. It looks like these words are very much alive, as new are the days. This is a new day. All this is happening.

As on the rap group 2 Live Crew, a federal judge, under the mistaken assumption that they are the first musical group to use obscenities on a record, ruled that "As Nasty as They wanna B" is obscene cannot be purchased at all, even by consenting adults.

If American itself is any indication of the revolution of authority, then rebellion of authority. From these ideals is America itself.

Forum lets students speak

By ANN MARIE HARTMAN

A new program allowing students to take the podium at the Fieldhouse Mall to speak their minds began Thursday.

The Open Forum is sponsored by Student Union Board (SUB) Ideas and Issues Committee, headed by sophomore Bill Keen. He said that the Ideas and Issues Committee firmly believes that such a forum is necessary on campus.

Opinions on subjects ranging from dwarfism to advice for freshmen to opposing views on religion were voiced. A suggestion was made that the time of the forum be moved to some time during the lunch hour.

The turnout for this first meeting was less than SUB anticipated. It featured only four speakers, two ND graduates and two current undergraduates.

Every Thursday until October break, Open Forum will be conducted on a trial basis. There are no formal speakers scheduled as of yet, although major club heads and organization leaders dealing with controversial issues are being contacted.

Keen said SUB anticipates large crowds in the future and hopes to be able to expand its scheduled time for more than an hour per meeting. They are also considering the possibility of adding another microphone and conducting some meetings in a debate style.

If these first sessions from 4 to 5 p.m. on Thursdays are successful, Bill Keen says that Open Forum will definitely be continued through the winter break. The Forum will be an attempt to reach students who for some reason do not attend other activities and to give them a chance to participate in campus life.

Ferraro to kick off lecture series

By MONICA YANT

Geraldine Ferraro, the democratic vice-presidential candidate during the 1984 election, will speak in the "Public Forum on Contemporary Issues" at noon Wednesday at the Fieldhouse Mall.

Ferraro's appearance will kick off the lecture series promised by Student Body President Rob Pasin and Vice President Fred Tombar and sponsored by Student Government.

"When creating the series, Fred (Tombar) and I invited many prominent women to speak at Notre Dame in order to enhance the Year of Women theme," Pasin said. "Ferraro was one of the women who agreed to participate and we are very happy to have her kick off the series."

CBS White House correspondent Leslie Stahl will also speak as part of the Forum, as well as Lorett Ruppe, the U.S. ambassador to Norway and former director of the Peace Corps.

Ferraro served as democratic congresswoman from 1979 to 1985, representing New York's 9th district for three terms. While in Congress, she served on the budget committee, among others.

She was twice elected to the House leadership as secretary of the Democratic caucus.

Ferraro remains active in politics through her participation on a political action chair of the Democratic platform committee for its national party convention and was noted for her success in skillfully steering through a contentious platform document, Scott said.

She is a board member of the National Democratic Institute of International Affairs and a participant in foreign policy debate. Ferraro also participates on the Council on Foreign Relations.

She also served two years as the first woman president of the International Institute for Women's Political Leadership.

The goal of the Forum is to spark discussion and debate about controversial issues of the day," Pasin said. "Hopefully Ferraro will spark some debate on campus. Her position on abortion is just one area where Ferraro may differ from ND students. Pasin said. Ferraro has also authored a book, "Ferraro: My Story," which was published in 1985. She is presently writing a book dealing with the tensions between the rights of the media under the First Amendment versus the rights of an individual under the Sixth Amendment, according to a Frequent lecturer at colleges and universities, Ferraro was a fellow at Harvard's Institute of Politics and Cornell University.

Ferraro was born in 1935 in Newburgh, N.Y., and was graduated from Marymount College in 1956. While putting herself through law school at night, Ferraro taught second and fourth grade in the New York public school system.

She obtained a law degree from Fordham University School of Law. She practiced law between 1961 and 1974 and went on to serve as an assistant district attorney in Queens county.

Pasin acknowledged William Sexton, vice president of Relations, without whose help "the series would not have been possible."

He added that Ferraro's lecture is being paid for by several members of the Arts and Letters Council and the Business College Council. The rain location for the lecture is Washington Hall, 12:15 p.m.

was wearing faded blue jeans and a light blue, striped long-sleeved shirt.
She did not hear the assailant say anything because she was wearing headphones, according to Assistant Director of Security Chuck Hurley. She was able to break free from her as­ sali ant and yell for help. The assai lant then fled toward Douglas Road.

The victim flagged down a motorist just west of the University's power plant on Lake Road and the two of them stopped a Security officer near the North Dining Hall.
Security officers were able to begin the investigation minutes after the assault occurred. Hurley estimated only three minutes elapsed from the time the victim broke free from the attacker to the time she found an officer.

Security officers were assisted by St. Joseph County police and a South Bend police canine unit in their search of the paths around and near the lake, by Moreau Seminary and around Douglas Road, but they found no suspect.

Hurley advised students not to be alone in remote areas at any time. "It doesn't matter when it is, or who it is," he warned, "just try not to get in isolated areas and always have a companion with you."

Security is investigating the incident and asks anyone seeing someone matching the description of the assailant to contact Security.

Hurley added that students who see "someone they feel is suspicious in nature" should call Security. "Even if someone isn't doing something criminal in nature at that time, give us a chance to check it out."

"We'll find out if they belong here or not," he said.

The assault is the first to be reported to Security this year. Last Spring, Security received a report of an assault of a Saint Mary's student on Easter Sun­

The Faculty Senate committee held its first meeting of the academic year last night and passed a resolution which addresses greater faculty involvement in areas ranging from athletics, tenure to discipline.

The resolution established a Faculty Committee on Governance. As stated directly on the agenda, the committee was set up in order to examine the current governance structure and "make recommendations for change that will enhance the governance of the university through increased faculty participation."

Specific issues which this committee will examine include:

- Mechanisms for greater faculty involvement in such matters as academic concerns, benefits, salary, classroom facilities, athletics, grievances, procedures and faculty discipline.
- Increased participation of elective faculty representatives at different stages in tenure and promotion decisions.
- Evaluation of the composition and roles of Academic Council, Graduate Council and College Council.
- The committee also discussed the formation of a faculty alcohol assistance program. In accordance with federal law, the University must have a written program in order to help faculty members cope with substance abuse problems. Because of this, University President Father Edward Malloy directed on Thursday, Friday and Saturday:

Students encourage religious vocations

By JANICE O'LEARY
News Writer

A group of students at the University of Notre Dame have formed a new organization with the purpose of encouraging and supporting religious vocations.

SERV, Students Encouraging Religious Vocations, was organized and founded in large part by Herb Juliano, a layman who resides in Holy Cross parish.

Juliano met Charles McCarthy, president of SERV, and Paul Radich, vice-president, at 5:15 p.m. mass in Sacred Heart which he attends regularly. Together the three talked about the idea of establishing a group like SERV last semester and it came to fruition this term, said McCarthy.

According to Father Steve Newton, advisor to the group, the purpose of SERV is to "encourage, through prayer, religious vocations."

He said also that Campus Ministry is supportive of the organization.

"The group is rather informal at the time, but they do have some goals in mind, said McCarthy.

Cards are distributed to the student body with prayers from Campus Ministry and SERV wants to have their prayers on religious vocations included on the cards, said McCarthy.

SERV also wants to increase the female membership, since out of the 29 members there is currently only one woman, he said.

Although they do not have any definite plans, McCarthy said they would like to sponsor some movies in the future and perhaps take a weekend to visit a religious shrine next semester.

For the moment however, he said, SERV is geared toward prayer.
Hoosier returns home

(AP) - Debra Hoffer and her 1-year-old son returned to Fort Wayne on a private plane Thursday night after being trapped more than a month in Kuwait.

She hugged family and friends who gathered to greet her about 10 p.m., then told reporters she fears for her husband's safety. Abdul Latees Hashem was forced to stay behind in his native Kuwait.

Hoffer said that when Westerners are married to Kuwaitis "it puts them in danger because they (Iraqis) say they'll kill them if you hide a Westerner and you know where they are. They say you'll get hung or they'll shoot you."

She added: "They're killing people... People that help people, they kill them. They bomb houses. They do a lot of things."

Hoffer and her young son Jason had been hiding in Kuwait since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion. After leaving Kuwait this week, they flew to Baghdad, London and Raleigh, N.C., en route to Fort Wayne.

Hoffer's mother, Doris Hoffer, said a Fort Wayne businessman flew her husband, Chris, to Raleigh-Durham International Airport in North Carolina on a private plane Thursday. The businessman did not want to be identified, but he was providing the family with a "bouquet of pizzas" for the reunion, she said.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council overwhelmingly voted late Thursday to allow food shipments to Iraq and occupied Kuwait only "to relieve human suffering" and said relief agencies must distribute the aid.

The wording of the resolution, which passed 13-2, sought to maintain the narrow restrictions under which aid could be sent, in line with a resolution passed after Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

The council rejected an alternative Cuban-sponsored resolution that would have opened the door to unlimited food shipments to the estimated 19 million people in Iraq and Kuwait, including hundreds of thousands of foreigners trapped by the invasion.

Cuba and Yemen voted against the resolution.

The United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France, Finland and Canada sponsored the resolution. Also voting in favor were China, that are forces in the Gulf, Ethiopia, Ivory Coast, Malaysia, Romania and Zaire.

Under Security Council Resolution 661, passed four days after Iraq's invasion, only medical supplies may be sent to Iraq or Kuwait, or, "in humanitarian circumstances, foodstuffs."

India and the Philippines, however, have appealed to the Security Council's sanctions committee for permission to send food to their people still stranded in Iraq and Kuwait. Iraq has said it will not feed the 140,000 Indians, 93,000 Sri Lankans and 60,000 Filipinos it holds, but that they must rely on their governments.

The resolution passed Thursday said the International Committee of the Red Cross or "other appropriate humanitarian agencies" should distribute the food or supervise its distribution.

That left open the possibility that the Iraqi Red Crescent, one of the Moslem national charities that are forces in the Gulf, might be allowed to handle food distribution.
Middle east week planned

A mass dedicated to the family and friends of the Saint Mary's and South Bend community who are stationed or being held in Kuwait will begin Middle East Awareness Week, which runs from September 16-20 at Saint Mary's.

The collection from the mass will be donated to the Just Kuwaiting Group of South Bend. The group is designed to offer support to those in the community who have loved ones in Kuwait.

After the mass, Aurora Yaw of the Just Kuwaiting group will hold a discussion on the situation of those in Kuwait. Following the discussion, yellow ribbons will be distributed for tying on car antennas.

On Monday, students are invited to a panel discussion held by Professors Teresa Marcy and Jerome McElroy to discuss the political and economic sides of the Middle East crisis.

During the week there will be card signings in the dining hall and the tying of yellow ribbons on trees to show support for the Just Kuwaiting group. There will also be a donation can in the snack bar of Haggar College Center for donations to the group.

According to Maureen Lowry, vice president of Student Affairs at Saint Mary's, the purpose of the Middle East Awareness Week is to heighten the awareness of the local and economic sides of the Middle East crisis.

Wall St. raises questions of money, ethics

By ANNA MARIE TABOR
News Writer

Earning $800,000 per day at the cost of your morals was one of the dilemmas posed to a group of business majors, teachers, and observers at Wednesday night's discussion in the Carroll Hall auditorium.

Saint Mary's student Colleen Eber introduced the first in a film series that will take place to provide topics for discussion. The main attraction was "Wall Street," a film based on manipulation and greed.

According to main character Gordon Gekko (Michael Douglas), "Greed is good. Greed is right. Greed works. Greed clarifies, cuts through and captures the essence of the evolutionary spirit."

The conversation following the film showed that participating Saint Mary's students and teachers believe otherwise.

Professor William Shannon asked the audience, "Do you think that's what it's like if you want to be in business?" One student replied, "Being at Saint Mary's has helped us to develop our ethics. Money isn't that important."

Beyond the obvious theme of money-hungry brokers who go for the jugular, the movie exhibits a pattern of moral devaluations. Ana Flannonden, professor of communication, dance, and theater, cited devaluations of human relationships, hard work and creativity, in her program notes.

Taking these thoughts into consideration, the discussion shifted from a mini-debate about stocks to sexism. Paradoxically, the themes of the tendency to conform. A topic easily identified with, students recognized the dangers of emulating other people.

The discussion concluded with a penetrating evaluation of greed. One student expressed her amazement that "someone can sit and look at his food when there are starving people in the world." Speakers admitted to being greedy themselves, but not to the extent of Gekko.

The purpose of Saint Mary's College Popular Culture Group is to "build community among students and faculty," said Shannon. It is funded by the Department of Business Administration and Economics.

Police

Antwon Lark and James Dillard were among the students who believe they were mistreated by the South Bend police while standing on the sidewalk on Notre Dame Avenue.

Another student was also arrested "on no reason" while standing on the sidewalk near Notre Dame Avenue, said Kermit Kelly.

The student was treated roughly and suffered injuries to his wrist when he was handcuffed during the course of the arrest, said Kelly.

The arrested student, who asked to remain anonymous, said after the police tried to clear the area of the gatherings, he wandered back to the scene. He was "roughed up," handcuffed and arrested for interfering with the business of a police officer, he said.

"I am confident that the reason I was arrested was to show people that [the police] meant business," he said.

In the squad car on the way to jail the student said a police officer was verbally abusive.

Another student, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said he was arrested between Notre Dame and Main Avenues with his friends when the police told them to go home.

As the student was walking away, an officer asked him if he lived there. Although he said he did not provoke the officers, the student said he was arrested because he was "one or two steps ahead of the others."

During the course of his arrest, the student said an officer threw him against a car and hit him twice in the face. "I didn't do a thing...I didn't say a word," he said.

The student claims he suffered from a cut to the forehead and a black eye.

Students suggest that the police, having been on Notre Dame Avenue all evening, were unable to react professionally to the situation.

"The police were pumped up," said M. Lark. "They (the police) were looking for something to do," Lark agreed.

"If the police put limits on parties and were consistent in enforcing them, they wouldn't get out of control," he added.

"The police were very unprofessional with the students," one student said. "As risty an students can be, the students used the police as a tool."

Although junior Michael J. Miller, a witness, is not sure the events of August 31 could be called racial, he did describe the event as "anti-Norman Dame."

"While some [police officers] are professional, with some others it seems they hold a grudge against students," he added.

Although Kelly cannot say whether the events of August 31 were racially motivated, he did know "the cops used unnecessary force."

Massive search in Florida

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) Two hundred searchers Thursday paddled in canoes and swam in wooded areas around the apartment of a prime suspect in the killing of five college students. They had ordered the search while defending themselves from a man they had boated the corpse.

The search began about 8:30 a.m. and police expected to take two days to cover nine acres totaling about 10 square miles near the residence of University of Florida freshman Edward Lewis Humphrey.

"It's a long, slow process," said Alton County Sheriff's Office spokesman L. Spencer Mantor.

Searchers found some objects before the hunt ended for the day, but there was no immediate word on whether they were connected to the slayings, said Mann. He declined to describe the objects.

Before leaving, some officers and police from state and local agencies promised to keep secret the search sites and called for a "moral victory" in the investigation.

As of Monday, there were no deaths directly connected to the slayings, said Mantor. "We call it a mess" with a mass of foreigners trapped by the fighting between Iraq and Kuwait.

While in jail, and in a new installment of the series titled "The Sun Says," Alton County Sheriff's Office Lt. Sadie Darrell called the report partially incorrect but said he was committed to furthering the search. She described the seemingly progressive search as "a story of hope."

"If you look at other serial killers, the cases take a long time to solve, after very laborious investigations," she said.

Humphrey, whom police insist is only one of eight suspects, has not been heard from since Aug. 30, police said.

the two men were not allowed access to medical services. He said Lark was "a mess" with a cut on his head.

"We had no chance to seek medical attention here," said Mantor.

While in jail, Lark and Dillard said they were treated differently than other Notre Dame students. Although they claim they were not allowed to make phone calls at all until the day after their arrest Sept. 1, Kelly, said he spoke to the men.

"It's kind of a challenge," said Mantor. "We are working to try to get the information we need from the cases to help us solve the case against the South Bend Police Department.

"I have no idea what's going on," said Kelly. "They really haven't told us what to look for," said Alan Gourley, a gunnery sergeant with the Reserve Officers Training Corps at UF.

The students also contacted Timothy Ross of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). He said the students had no legal committee to help them, but that the group's legal committee would be glad to be involved, however.

The search of the office of residence life, also known as the "Principal," began about 8:30 a.m. on Saturday.

The two men have contacted several agencies to seek aid and advice.

Kenneth Durgans, director of Minority Student Affairs, said he spoke to the men and referred them to the Office of Student Affairs.

"If it did occur," said Durgans, "I would hope that the University would support the students in any investigations that the University would undertake to ensure a fair investigation of the incident.

"I'm glad to be involved, however. It's kind of a challenge," said Mantor. "We are working to try to get the information we need from the cases to help us solve the case against the South Bend Police Department.

The two students also contacted Timothy Ross of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). He said the students had no legal committee to help them, but that the group's legal committee would be glad to be involved, however.

Richard Blackman of the NAACP's legal committee was unavailable for comment.

Ticket distribution creates problems

Just as football ticket distribution occurs annually, so too does speculation and controversy concerning Saint Mary's students and their place in the distribution process.

Problems with the current system involves the students who are members of the various clubs gaining access to the stadium without a ticket. Cheerleaders, trainers, students on athletic scholarships, and other stadium employees are all sent football ticket applications though they are not allowed to buy tickets. Presumably the tickets they buy either go unused or illegally sold for profit. The football ticket office recognizes this problem but has not effectively solved it. Staff must manually sort through over 10,000 ticket applications looking for the students who are prohibited from purchasing tickets.

Another problem involves married students. Since no computer system exists to cross-reference students married to other students can purchase a marriage license.

Although there is inefficiency in the distribution process, Saint Mary's is not the problem. Saint Mary's women are an integral part of the community. Having Saint Mary's students wait until the end to buy their tickets would not guarantee better tickets for Notre Dame students since all of Saint Mary's is smaller than a single Notre Dame class. It would, however, formalize the misconception that Saint Mary's women are less important than their Notre Dame counterparts.

When Notre Dame admitted women eighteen years ago, it did so with the intention of enriching the community, not replacing or isolating Saint Mary's. The ticket office has reserved more tickets than ever for students to prevent a shortage. All students will receive tickets.

The community should focus on another national championship rather than on who should be sitting where in the student section.

Exclusion of Saint Mary's students is an example of hypocrical attitude

Dear Editor-

I, as a Saint Mary's woman, felt compelled to respond to Nina Delorenzo's letter regarding Saint Mary's student access to football tickets (The Observer, Sept. 10).

Delorenzo states that Saint Mary's and Notre Dame are equal. This is definitely true. But it is only part of the truth. Saint Mary's and Notre Dame are, by Father Sorin's and the Holy Cross Sisters' intentions, a community, sharing the same academic and spiritual goals, as well as many traditions. One of these traditions is supporting our football team.

If we are to truly be a community, we cannot put one school ahead of the other. Saint Mary's women did have to pay roughly $20 more for our tickets. This, to my understanding, is because Notre Dame students have an extra fee included in their tuition for the athletic programs. If this is the case, I can see why the administration would feel obligated to charge Saint Mary's women more.

Regardless of the price paid for the tickets, we are still part of the same student body. This ND/SMC student body has worked for years to improve relations within it. We learn from each other and grow through our relationships. And how better to meet each other than in a place where our common spirit and pride in our schools join—the football stands?

If Delorenzo's wish to separate our student body was accepted, this important aspect of student life would be abolished. That, I believe, would be a tragedy. More importantly, it would go against the wishes and traditions of both Fr. Sorin and the Holy Cross Sisters.

Jello Cubes

These would add a lot more flavor to your tailgater. They make for great tossing and throwing fun. You can have different teams with different colors—whichever has the most jello stuck to them at the end loses. Just follow the directions on the jello box using water (or an ingredient of your choice), and add Knox Box gelatin accordingly. Cut into cubes after chilling.

All of these recipes will provide a tasty complement to the great amount of libations consumed during your hours of tailgating. Hope you enjoy it.

Modern-day Christian flower child reflects on life

At two a.m., I was walking the cocker spaniel, Darby O’Gill on the North Quad, when a jocker, shirtless, his body wet with sweat, came up from behind.

“What’s happening?” I said, uncertain who this great hulk of a lad was. I finally recognized him as Matthew, a recent N.D. grad now working in South Bend, whom I used to know when he wasn’t so rugged.

When I lived in PV, Matthew used to drop in to visit me as Nicodemus visited Jesus at night. In those conversations with the Master, I presume that Nicodemus was the avid listener to whom truth was taught.

Last night, when Matthew joined me in following Darby O’Gill, barking at shadows, on a walk, he was the principal talker, and I was the avid listener; sometimes I interrupted him with questions, then listened some more.

I wasn’t a good listener.

Older people, asking questions, forget to listen because their minds are on other questions they want to remember to ask. Once they have heard the answer, they want to make comments to show how wise they are.

In the construction company he has started, Matthew is working as a final sales trader, turning unused space that people have in their homes into things of beauty that promise to be a joy forever. His friends tell him, “That’s all right for now, but what will you do later?”

Even as a bachelor of arts who majored in philosophy, Matthew says he would say a lot about faith. I said, “If you can prove to me that you have the power to raise Lazarus from the dead, I’ll agree that the example of Jesus proves that Matthew does not need graduate degrees to prove he’s a prophet.”

I was afraid I disappointed him by a remark that showed how banal I am. Instead, he said something touchingly humble, to show how unworthy he is, in his own judgement, to call himself a child of God.

Recalling our conversation in the afterglow of hindsight, I wondered if Matthew and I were standing on different sides of the generation gap, offering each other membership in the dead poets society. I was telling him, “Carpe diem!” and “Gather ye rosebuds while ye may. Old Time is still a-flying.” He was telling me that the mass media lives of quiet desperation, and that he wanted “to live deep and suck out all the marrow of life...to drive life into a corner.”

He reminded me of a flower child out of the 1960s. None of the flower children discerned shades of the prison house beginning to close on the growing boys and girls. Their message was, “Make love, not war,” and “It’s all right with me!” The age of Aquarius turned out to be brief. In the words of their greatest protest song “Where have all the flowers gone?” The answer, my friend, is blowing in the wind. The answer is blowing in the wind.

Matthew could be called a flower child of the 1990s? If so, he’s a Christian flower child.

“I could jog for hours,” he told me, “because as I jog, I pray.” To show him my prayer letter, I offered him an insight that was once offered me. “Because God is invisible to us, we pray in order to make ourselves visible to Him. When we pray, we should be mindful of God being mindful of us.

The miracle of the loaves and fishes, Matthew has decided, is a miracle in so far as it shows people being generous, since, in the presence of Jesus, each of them unselﬁshly shared the meal he was keeping hidden in his pocket.

“That miracle means more than that,” I protested; but for Matthew, the miracle of sharing is divine enough. Then he explained the meaning of Jesus dying on the Cross. “He showed us forgiveness.” The world is so bad off because people are unwilling to forgive another one another. “Let the summer in,” we used to hear in the cast recording of Hair. “To love thee more clearly, to love thee more dearly, day by day.”

“I could jog for hours,” he endlessly played at Mass. “Jesus Christ Superstar” is the golden oldie that Matthew sometimes uses as a replacement for Mass. In the generation when these Broadway musicals were competing for our attention, who in the world ever figured out that before peace can begin, there must first be forgiveness? How can we conscientiously forgive ourselves, unless we have ﬁrst asked for, and received, forgiveness?

I hope Matthew forgives me for publishing our private conversation. Why should I let the best preaching I have heard lately go down the drain like the ﬂower that blushed unseen and wastes its sweetness on the desert air?

How can you tell a man, happy with what he’s doing, “Don’t waste your time on the small stuff.” Should I have said, “Matthew, had we hut world enough, and time, this hobby-lucky, lad, were no crime.”

From his side of the generation gap, would he be able to appreciate the words of Kazantzakis, approaching death, “I feel like doing what Bergson says—going to the street corner and holding out my hand to start begging from the passer-by, ‘Alms, brothers. A quarter of an hour from each of you.’ Oh, for a little time, just enough to let me finish my work.”

Before saying good night to Matthew, I said, “The Synoptic Gospels all mention the love Jesus showed the children and their parents. He gave them. Only Matthew tells us that the guardian angels of the children were the face of the Father in heaven.” I hoped he understood that instead of giving him a hug, I was giving him a left-handers compliment by praising the insight of his patron saint. Who wants to hug a jogger on whom the birds are dancing?

Men's tennis travels to Navy

By DAVE MCMAHON

After a season in which the NCAA Tournament committee snubbed the Notre Dame men's tennis team from post-season play, the Irish open the 1990-91 fall season this weekend by traveling to the Navy National All-Conference Tournament at Annapolis, Maryland.

The first outing for the Irish will be a difficult one as top-seeded All-American David DiLucia will not make the trip for the Irish. Nor will sophomore Andy Zurcher, who is projected to play the season at number three or four. Because of an NCAA rule that allows each player to play in a maximum of thirty matches per season, DiLucia will instead play in the Texas All-American on Sept. 28-31.

Zurcher, who won the num­ber five single flight at last year's Navy Tournament, is sidelined form the trip due to a bout with mono and is not expected to return until mid-October.

"Andy worked harder on his game over the summer than anyone else, so we really could have used him this weekend," said fourth-year coach Bob Bayliss. "But our primary concern is getting him healthy again." Without DiLucia and Zurcher, Notre Dame will rely on three freshmen and two sophomores who have never traveled with the team. Sophomore Chuck Coleman will play at number one singles and will team with freshman Todd Wilson to form the top doubles combination. Coleman, who compiled a 23-13 record last year, welcomes the opportunity to play in the top spot for the Irish.

"I played at number one a few times last season when Dave was hurt," said a relaxed Coleman. "I feel pretty confident going into this tournament and we should be able to see how we match up against some pretty tough competition."

Along with the Irish, who fin­ished last season ranked 19th in the Volvo Tennis poll, West Virginia is expected to put up a strong showing. Although Notre Dame will play without two of its top four singles play­ers with DiLucia and Zurcher out, Bayliss thinks the competition will help his younger play­ers.

"For the freshmen, it'll be good to see them play in a match situation. They're going to contribute a lot to this team, but it's just a matter of playing a few matches."

Early preparation will be a key for the Irish this season as it faces what Bayliss calls the toughest schedule in the nation. After compiling a 7-4 record last year against Top 25 teams, the Irish were shut out of the NCAA tournament.

Bayliss learned that schedule strength was a determining factor, so he could not pass up the chance to add two presti­gious tournaments to this sea­son's schedule. The Blue-Grey Classic will feature the Top 16 teams in the nation, and the HEB Collegiate Classic will boast a powerful field as well. Bayliss often questions his de­cision to schedule these two tournaments, but feels that the team needed a schedule of such caliber in order to qualify for the NCAAs.

"I couldn't pass up the oppor­tunity to play some of the best schools in the South and in the West," said Bayliss. "We'll be able to play some strong teams on neutral courts, which should help during tournament time."

Sophomore Mark Schmidt will play at number two singles while classmate Ron Rosas will fill the number three slot.

Martin's friend was drunk on night of fatal crash, according to doctor

PORT CRANE, N.Y. (AP) — A medical examiner testified Thursday that William Reedy's blood-alcohol level was well above the legal limit when the pickup truck he was accused of driving crashed through the gate of his home last Christmas, killing the former New York Yankees manager.

Defense witness John Blechman contends Reedy was not driving Martin's pickup truck and was not drunk. Reedy, a Detroit bar owner and Martin's longtime friend, is charged with driving while intoxicated in con­nection with the fatal wreck.

Late Thursday, Blechman began calling the defense's first witnesses. Reedy told a WBCN-TV reporter he will take the stand, possibly as early as Friday.

Onondaga County Medical Examiner Erik Mitchell told a jury last year that Reedy's blood-alcohol level as measured by the hospital immediately after the accident was 0.16 percent. The legal limit in New York for driving while intoxicated is 0.10.

Mitchell testified about the hospital results over Blechman's objection.

On Wednesday, state po­lice expert testified their test showed Reedy had a blood-alcohol level of 0.10. The ex­pert said the test could have some inaccuracy, but that it was also excited to see how we do the first time out."

The Navy field includes Virginia, Indiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Texas A&M.
California will face an angry Hurricane team

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — A season-swellled loss for Georgia.

Young has left the Miami Hurricanes with "bad feelings and bad vibrations" as they prepare for Saturday's game at California, quarterback Craig Erickson said.

"From the secretaries to the equipment managers, there's a bit more of a sense that you don't take things for granted," Erickson said.

The 28-21 loss at BYU gave Miami an 0-1 record for the first time since 1985, and it dropped the Hurricanes from first in The Associated Press poll to 10th, their lowest ranking in three years.

"When we lose, it's like talking about our mothers," defensive end Eric Miller said.

"There'll be some mean people on that field against Cal."

The Hurricanes have lost only three of their past 55 regular-season games.

"It's something we're not used to doing down here, so it's very tough," Erickson said.

"Any time it happens, it creates a lot of bad feelings and bad vibrations and shakes things up."

Ordinarily, complacency could be a problem against Cal. The Bears beat Wisconsin 28-12 in three quarters but were drubbed at Miami last year, 31-3.

Now, however, listlessness is not among Coach Dennis Erickson's concerns.

"It's like anything in life — you get slapped in the face, and you wake up a little bit," Erickson said.

"Sometimes a loss sober you up pretty fast."

The coach predicted that Miami will play well Saturday.

"I still think we're a good team, but we've got to go out and prove it," he said. "We haven't proven that we're anything yet."

Miami gave up 474 yards to the Cougars, managed only 2.6 yards per carry running and allowed three sacks. Erickson said he planned no lineup changes against Cal.

Miami won the national championship last year with one loss, Erickson said.

Spartans plan to confuse Orangemen with defense

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Michigan State's frenzied defense may look out of control, but it's a calculated chaos designed to confuse and conquer opponents.

For Syracuse, the key to defeating the 19th-ranked Spartans on Saturday will be not to succumb to their mad-dening defensive tactics, says the Orangemen.

"If you don't play assignment football, they've got you," said offensive guard Gary Mc�mings. "They'll have you so confused. You'll be chasing them all over the field and have no idea what you're doing."

Syracuse redshirt freshman quarterback Marvin Graves expects to be the primary target of Michigan State's disconcerting defense.

"If we worry about what we have to do and not what they're doing, we'll be all right," said Graves. "If we execute, they have to stop us."

That's easier said than done. Syracuse Coach Dick MacPherson said his unranked Orangemen (1-1) prepared for the nationally-televised contest against Michigan State, which will be opened for the 1990 season.

"Don't be surprised if we get disrupted. It's not us, it's them. They do it to everybody," said MacPherson.

Quarterback Craig Erickson (7) and the rest of the Miami Hurricanes will try to put last week's loss behind them when they play California.

"It's like anything in life — you get slapped in the face, and you wake up a little bit," Erickson said. "Sometimes a loss sober you up pretty fast."

Miami won the national championship last year with one loss, Erickson said.

"That's part of the game plan. They come flying in from all over the place. I'm not talking about crazy football. I'm talking about well designed schemes," he said.

The Spartans are coached by George Perles, who as defensive coordinator with the NFL's Pittsburgh Steelers in the 1970s designed the stuns 4-3 defense that became known as "The Steel Curtain."

Perles has duplicated the suburb 4-3 at Michigan State, which is 19-3-2 to Big Ten Conference games the past three seasons. Last year, the Spartans were the league's leading defensive team, limiting opponents to just 86 rushing yards per game. They were sixth nationally in scoring defense, giving up 12.6 points per game, while recording a league-leading 39 turnovers.

The Spartans will show an opponent dozens of different combinations of blocking schemes, blitzes and stunts using its four-down lineman and three linebackers.

"They best way we can de- scribe their defense is that they run plays," said MacPherson. "They call a play and say, 'Here's the formation. We're going to play this front, this coverage and this linebacker adjustment. They'll call a play and whatever you got out, here..."
ND volleyball faces crucial test

By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

This weekend’s Big Four Classic in Bloomington, Ind. is very important for the Notre Dame women’s volleyball team.

What the Irish need to establish is consistency. They can’t afford to give in a pattern of having a terrible weekend (as they did at the Washington State Invitational) and then have a great weekend, i.e. last weekend’s championship of the Notre Dame Invitational.

Granted, playing only on weekends right now makes it a bit tougher to develop that consistency. Still, it’s something the Irish must do if they are to reach their goal of being a Top 25 team.

"Last weekend was a big confidence builder for us," said head coach Art Lambert. "But, we’re still not there as far as consistency."

The Irish will take on Kentucky at 6 p.m. on Friday the same time Saturday night.

"The Wildcats beat the Irish in four games last year, 15-12, 13-15, 15-7 and 15-13. They return four starters from last year’s 24-11 squad. The Irish haven’t faced Louisville for three years. The Cardinals were 21-12 last season also return a good number of starters with five.

“Both these teams are beatable,” said Lambert. "The key for us this weekend and for the rest of the season is the middle. The hitting and the blocking need to improve. The faster it improves, the better we’ll be."

Sophomore Jessica Fiebelkorn anchors the middle for the Irish. In just six matches this year, she’s already reached the halfway mark in solo blocks from last year. With 12 so far this season, she should have no trouble passing last year’s mark of 23. Her 1.23 block average leads the team.

Fiebelkorn has also had a great deal of success hitting. Her .55 kills leads the team and her percentage of .255 is third. The Irish have to have a good performance from Fiebelkorn for success this weekend.

The Irish may also get a lift in the middle from freshman Molly Stark. Stark, who Lambert describes as, "a tremendous athlete" has played well when she has been in the line-up. Her three solo blocks and ten assists are second on the club. In the championship match against Western Michigan last weekend she registered one solo and four assists, as well as four kills.

On the outside, the Irish will continue to look primarily to seniors Tracey Shelton and Colleen Wagner (34 kills). Shelton, last weekend’s tournament MVP, is second in kills with 48. Her high leap and powerful swing make for a potent weapon. Marilyn Cragin, who had a career match against Western Michigan (18 kills, 441 hitting percentage) is the type of dominating player that can frustrate the opposition when she’s on. The anticipated return of Jennifer Slosar will give the Irish

Women's soccer squad prepares to rebound vs. Valparaiso and Washington University

By DAVE DIETEMAN

Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team will try to rebound from its last weekend's southerly-failed debacle as it takes on Valparaiso and Washington University at Alumni Field this weekend.

This season, the youth-ful Irish have compiled a 1-2 record. The one Notre Dame victory came in the first regular-season game, as the Irish unrounded Division I power Northeast Missouri State 5-1 at Alumni Field.

However, the Irish were sent home from their recent road trip without a win by Top 20 hosts Duke and UNC-Greensboro. In addition to dropping the two decisions, the Irish were nearly shut out in both games, a fate averted by Marianne Giolitto's penalty shot against Greensboro.

Strawberry leads Mets

NEW YORK (AP) - Darryl Strawberry's bat and arm dominated the dream matchup between Dwight Gooden and Doug Drabek, and the New York Mets powered and went on to win for the 14th time in his last 15 decisions, giving up 10 hits and three runs in 7-2-3 innings.

Strawberry hit a three-run homer for his 100th RBI and threw out Barry Bonds at the plate as the Mets completed a two-game sweep of the Pirates and tied a team record with their 11th straight victory at home. New York is 50-22-2 at Shea Stadium, the best home record in baseball.

The Mets and Pirates finish the season with three games at Pittsburgh.

Gooden (17-6) survived a shaky start and went on to win for the 14th time in his last 15 decisions, giving up 10 hits and three runs in 7-2-3 innings.

Strawberry gave the Mets a 3-2 lead with his 34th home run in the fourth inning after Tommy Herr singled and Dave Magadan walked with none out. Bonds singled leading off the fourth and moved to second on a sacrifice. One out later, Mike Lavalliere singled to right but Strawberry nailed Bonds coming in standing up at the plate.

The experienced squad includes a solid top seven, including seniors Pat Kearns and Matt Ronzone, along with fifth year senior O'Connor.

Soccer squad will attempt to upset tough Billikens

By HUGH MUNDY
Sports Writer

Following a frustrating 2-2 tie with Loyola Ramblers Wednesday night, the Notre Dame men’s soccer team returns home Saturday to face St. Louis University.

The nationally-ranked Billikens will bring a squad described by Irish coach Mike Berticelli as "one of the most dangerous in the country" into Krause Stadium.

Nevertheless, Berticelli remains optimistic. "Playing such an outstanding team can only serve as a positive opportunity," he remarked.

The Irish coach also believes facing the veteran St. Louis squad will help his relatively young team overcome the inexperience which has hindered its early season performances.

"Against Loyola, we made some mistakes because we are so young," Berticelli noted. "I was disappointed with the tie because we let them (Loyola) back into the game."

Despite their underdog role, the Irish remain focused on the prospects of an upset.

"If we play with consistency," Berticelli commented, "we’re going to catch someone by surprise."

Berticelli cited the emergence of forward Steve LaVigne as well as the continued outstanding play of junior wingback Kenyon Meyer as keys to an Irish victory. "We also need the support of the student body," he said. "It’s going to be an outstanding game to watch. The Irish will continue their season on Monday against V alparaiso.

Irish host 12th-ranked Georgetown

By BARBARA MORAN
Sports Writer

In 1989, for the first time in two years, the Notre Dame men’s cross country team failed to secure a bid for the NCAA tournament.

But this year, an experienced squad stacked with returning upperclassmen and starring senior captain and All-American Mike O’Connor will make a strong run for an NCAA qualification. The journey down the road to the tournament will begin tomorrow, when the Irish face the Georgetown Hoyas in the season opener on the Burke Memorial Golf Course at 10:30 AM.

Both O’Connor and Irish coach Joe Piane agree that Notre Dame faces a tougher Georgetown team than last year, when the Irish upset the Hoyas 22-33. Notre Dame is currently ranked 13th nationwide, while a Georgetown team highlighted by the Hawkeye newcomers has improved the number twelve spot.

"The rankings show that they must be a little better than us," said Coach Piane, concerning the Hoyas, "so to win would be an upset. It’ll be a real close meet."

The meet may be even closer, according to Piane, because of the absence of sophomore J.T. Burke. Burke, who ran in the top seven last year, is recovering from illness and will sit out the first meet of the season.

O’Connor agreed with his coach about Georgetown’s strength.

"They are one of the best teams in the country," said O’Connor, "so he (the team focused on post-season competition)."

"Last year, we made some mistakes at the end of the year that hurt us," explained O’Connor. "We had a lot of in-

The Notre Dame women’s cross country team will face a stern test in its opening meet against national power Georgetown Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Burke Memorial Golf Course. Georgetown finished fourth in the NCAA championships last year and is considered to be one of the top three teams in the country this year.

Coach Tim Connelly is not optimistic about his team’s chances.

"We have a good group this year and we’ll be better than last year, but we can’t compete with a team like Georgetown yet," Connelly says.

Despite a difficult schedule, the Irish will field a balanced team of upperclassmen and newcomers. Leading the way for the Irish will be senior captain Teresa Lemanski, who ran in every race last year and showed steady improvement throughout. She will be supported by a pair of promising junior runners Amy Blaising and Diana Bradley.

Blaising won every race last year also and finished in the top three on numerous occasions. Bradley will be counted on to bring stability to the team with her consistent middle distance running.

Newly added junior Sarah Esterline and freshman Patricia Villarreal show the most promise of the new runners. Villarreal finished eighth in the state of California in cross

Irish baseball alums to play in exhibition game

By SCOTT BRUTOCOA
Assistant Sports Editor

The Notre Dame baseball team will wake up some of its own echoes tonight when it plays an elder alumni squad, consisting mainly of past Irish baseball players who now are playing professionally.

The Alumni Challenge will be held at 9 p.m. under the lights at Stanley Covelski Stadium in downtown South Bend. An alumni game for older former baseball players, many who have played in the major leagues, will start at 7 p.m.

Heading the list of participants in the alumni game will be 1989 First-Team All-America choice Dan Peltier, an outfielder who was drafted by the Texas Rangers after leading his team to the 1989 NCAA tourney.

Peltier spent the summer playing for Tulsa, the Rangers double-A affiliate, at which he hit over .275. Peltier was drafted after his junior year at Notre Dame, and he is back on campus this year finishing up his degree.

Joining Peltier will be his former teammates: Pat Pesavento, Erik Madsen, James Sass, Brian Pietrowicz, Ed Lund, Mike Coffey, Tim Hutson and Tom Shields.

Pesavento, who was drafted by the Detroit Tigers in 1989, became an all-star shortstop this summer in Fayetteville, N.C., in the class-A South Atlantic League.

Erik Madsen, who also was drafted in 1989, went to the Yakima Dodgers this summer in Washington to play in the class-A Northwest League. His teammate, outfielder James Sass, went in 1989 to the California League and played for Stockton, the Milwaukee Brewers’ class-A affiliate.

Pitcher Brian Pietrowicz and catcher Ed Coffey entered last year’s 1500 squad, both were drafted by the Los Angeles Dodgers and played in the Great Falls rookie league. Pietrowicz was 2-1 with seven saves.

Mike Coffey, a reliever on last year’s squad, spent the summer in Pee, Ariz., pitching in a rookie league for Milwaukee.

Tim Hutson, the single-season home-run leader for Notre Dame who graduated in 1988, was released from the Brewers organization this year.

Tom Shields, who spent his last season at Notre Dame in 1986, is playing shortstop for the class-A Buffalo Pilots.

"We’ve got some of the best prospects," said Irish head coach Ed Murphy, entering into his fourth season at Notre Dame. "(They are the alumn team) going to be quite a challenge. Nobody can get out past Murphy on this team for three years, so there’s no reason they’ll start now."

"Pietrowicz always rose to the occasion, and Pesavento has been a winner on every team he’s played on. All these guys are in great shape. I have played all summer, and this is going to be the first game of the 1990-1 season."

Lou Holtz and the Irish seek another title
Michigan looking for better luck

By GREG GUFFEY

The exact number on the sign in the Michigan locker room doesn't mean much to the players, but the figures are hard to remember when they change daily.

The important thing here is that the number is nearing 1,000, signifying the days since the Wolverines last defeated Notre Dame. For the record, it was a 24-23 victory in 1966.

"I think of Notre Dame 365 days a year," said Michigan offensive lineman Greg Skrepenak. "Skrepenak and Michigan can end a three-game losing streak against the Irish at 8 p.m. Saturday in Notre Dame Stadium. The Irish are 9-4 under lights at home.

"We'll mix it up," Moeller said. "I'm not going to roll the ball on the ground. The guys that are going down there, it's kickoff time because they have no idea what they will do offensively. I hope we can make adjustments during the course of the game."

The biggest question Moeller has faced so far in his career is how he will deal with Notre Dame's Bagight Ismail. Moeller watched from the sidelines last season as Ismail returned two kickoffs for touchdowns in rain-soaked Michigan Stadium.

"I'm sure the element of surprise is with the University of Michigan," Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz said. "I have no idea what they will do offensively. I hope we can make adjustments during the course of the game."

The big match-up could be the Michigan offensive line against the Notre Dame defensive line. Both units are ranked among the best in the country.

The Wolverine line has three All-American candidates with a combined 77 starting assignments - tackles Tom Dohring and Skrepenak and guard Dean Dingman. Bo Schembechler is anxious to see how the offensive line performs under lights.

"I think of Notre Dame 365 days a year," said Holtz. "And then the passing game with Grbac you get stuck with that." Holtz said, "and then the passing game with Grbac does also. I'm concerned about our ability to play pass defense."

"Michigan's ability to run the football always scares you," Holtz said. "That is the passing game with Grbac does also. I'm concerned about our ability to play pass defense."

"Michigan's ability to run the football always scares you," Holtz said. "That is the passing game with Grbac does also. I'm concerned about our ability to play pass defense."

Holtz is concerned about the pass defense because three starters graduated last spring. Senior All-American Todd Lyght does provide a solid base for the inexperienced Irish secondary. He likely will be joined by Bob Smith, Greg Davis and George Brownson in the starting lineup.

Senior Michael Stonebreaker, who missed 1989 because of disciplinary problems, will return to anchor a strong linebacking corps that includes Andre Jones, Scott Kowalkowski and Demetres Bellone. The Irish defense will feature a new look with sophomore quarterback Rick Mirer. He inherits a strong legacy left behind by Tony Rice, the catalyst in Notre Dame's success the past two seasons. The backfield is stacked with fullbacks Roddy Culver and Ryan Mikhalko and tailbacks Ricky Watters and Tony Brooks.

Holtz is anxious to see how the offensive line performs Saturday night. Senior quick tackle Windsor Sandt is out with a partially torn knee ligament, and senior center Mike Hagan is just getting back to form after battle injuries during the spring and fall.

"We have not had our five starting offensive linemen in pads at any one time," Holtz said. "That has been the most frustrating thing."

Mixer could have trouble when he wants to pass because Michigan has one of the best defensive backfields in college football. All four starters return for the Wolverines in the secondary.

Tripp Wellborne, who should compete with Lyght for the Thorpe Award, and Vada Murray combined for seven interceptions last fall. Cornerback David Key has started every Michigan game for the past two seasons, while Todd Finley and Lance Dutten alternate at the other cornerback spot.

J.D. Carlson silenced any questions about Michigan's placekicking game as a freshman last fall. Carlson earned second-team All-American honors from Football News while hitting 37 of 39 extra-point attempts and 13 of 14 field goals.

Notre Dame sophomore Craig Hentrich gives the Irish a solid placekicking game. He should get the majority of the kicking duties after not missing a field goal in fall camp.

GAME NOTES

• This marks the 89th straight home sellout for Notre Dame and the 137th in the last 138 games dating to the middle of the 1964 season.

• Michigan has had a 17-game winning streak in Notre Dame Stadium, and they have not lost in the past three seasons at home. The last home loss for the Notre Dame was Nov. 15, 1986, when third-ranked Penn State downed the Irish 24-19. Irish coach Lou Holtz is 20-3 in Notre Dame Stadium.

• Notre Dame will be trying for its fourth straight victory over Michigan in as many years. The Wolverines never lost four straight years to a single opponent during the Bo Schembechler era.

• This will be the 14th time Notre Dame has played at home under portable lights provided by Musco Mobile Lighting in Oskaloosa, Iowa. The first game under lights was the 1982 season opener against Michigan. The Irish are 9-4 under lights at home.

• The quote: "Michigan is favored to win the Big Ten and go to the Rose Bowl for the third straight year, and I wouldn't argue with that." — Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz.

LAST MEETING

ANN ARBOR—"Thank God for Rocket Ismail."

"He may be the most dangerous player around with the ball." — Irish tri-captain Ned Bolcar of Michigan head coach Bo Schembechler pretty much summed up the game as Notre Dame defeated the Wolverines 24-19 Saturday afternoon, riding the wings of the Rocket Man.

The game, played on a soggy, dark afternoon, lived up to its billing as the top-ranked Irish battled the No. 2 Wolverines to a close finish.

Ismail's two kickoff returns for touchdowns in the third quarter were the best offensive for the Irish, who played an extremely conservative game on offense. For his efforts, Ismail was awarded the game ball by Irish head coach Lou Holtz.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Florida State and Notre Dame will play a home-and-home football series in 1993-94, officials announced Thursday.

The first game will be Nov. 12, 1993, in South Bend, Ind. The teams will meet again on Nov. 12, 1994, at the Florida Citrus Bowl in Orlando.

Craig Hentrich

A potential problem arose when the Irish lost guard and long snap specialist Tim Grunhard to the Kansas City Chiefs after last season. But Lance Johnson and Joe Allen have proved capable replacements during preseason practice.

Lance Johnson has been just as good as Grunhard," Hentrich said. "He gives me a long time to set up."

Former professional football player and kicking expert Ray Pelfrey, who has worked with NFL punters Brian Hampton and Keith English, also has helped Hentrich set up. Hentrich first met Pelfrey during his freshman year in high school in Chattanooga, Tenn., and worked under his direction two years later in Reno, Nev. This summer, Hentrich joined Pelfrey at a summer camp in Illinois.

"Ray has been a big help in my placekicking," said Hentrich. "He teaches a whole different technique. If you can master it, you can really improve your accuracy."

Hentrich already possessed one of the strongest legs in football (as evidenced by his 60-yard punt into the wind in the Blue-Gold Game), but his placekicking was not accurate enough to satisfy Holtz.

Pelfrey introduced Hentrich to a more downfield style of kicking which placed him straight over the ball. Hentrich, who likes to stand off to the side of the ball, assimilated Pelfrey's methods into his own technique.

Hentrich's newfound accuracy should all but guarantee him both the starting placekicking and punting duties for Saturday's Michigan opener. If history holds true, special teams play will have a significant impact on the outcome of the game.

"Special teams is one-third of the game," says Hentrich. "They play a part in any game, so we take them very seriously."

Pelfrey helped Hentrich eliminate his placekicking mistakes. On Saturday, Hentrich may be expected to erase everybody else's.
Call him Rick
Watters finding new challenges as maturation process continues

By KEN TYSIAK
Associate Sports Editor

Please don't call him Ricky any more. From now on it's Rick. He has been labelled Ricky, and it's sort of stuck. It doesn't bother me too much, though.

Irish tailback Rick Watters has grown quite a bit since he faced Michigan in Notre Dame Stadium two years ago as a sophomore. In that game, a 19-17 loss, Watters hurt his athletic skill early, returning a punt 81 yards for a touchdown in the first quarter.

Hopefully I can make All-American or something like that, but I like said, first in my mind is to win the game and us winning. We just want to get back in the race and hopefully win another National Championship this year.

In the third quarter, though, Watters found himself crouching to a 13-7 lead, furnished by Mike Gillette's punt and the Wolverines recovered on the Irish 14. As Michigan drove for the go-ahead touchdown, Watters lost his composure on the sideline as teammates tried to console him. He knew he had hurt himself, and he appeared as though he was holding back tears.

"From a player's standpoint, you get upset when you don't do the things you expect to do," Watters said. "Before the season you have these goals and things you want to do, and then when you don't achieve those goals and you're not going in that direction the right way, you start to get upset.

"If a similar incident occurs this season, Watters would react differently. "I'd be all right. I'd just come back and do the job the next time.

For Rick Watters, the long, winding road to maturity has forced him to do his talents in many different ways. He was recruited out of Harrisburg, Penn., as a backfield and finished second on the team in rushing his freshman year with 373 yards on 69 carries. Irish Head Coach Lou Holtz thought Watters would be a good receiver, however, so as a sophomore he replaced graduating Heisman Trophy-winner Tim Brown at flanker.

Although he was Notre Dame's leading receiver in the 1988 championship season, Watters again switched positions as a junior. Holtz returned him to tailback, where he was more comfortable, and Watters carried 118 times for 791 yards and 10 touchdowns. He earned honorable mention All-America honors from The Sporting News and Football News. He had finally found his niche.

"Switching positions" was kind of hard on me. It was just really tough to keep up men, and emotionally it was tough too, because I'd always thought of myself as a tailback. Coming out of high school and grade school I'd always been used as a tailback or a quarterback. I never, ever thought of being a wideout, especially on a team, which is mainly what I do on kick returns, receiving, running, blocking, everything," admits Watters. "So that was pretty good, if I should go on to the next level, but it was also kind of hard on this level, because I was always switching positions.

In the past, Watters has returned punts as well. In fact, he has had moments of incredible highs and moments of devastating lows. His Irish teams lost 17 games by 7 or fewer points. He faced criticism from a variety of coaches, from writers to students to alumni, yet he maintained a strong belief that he would someday make it, that it would work out in the end.

"When you're a football coach, you have to deal with people and help them become better people."

Watters concedes that his experience at flanker helped him, though. "He always had a tremendous set of hands," says Assistant Coach Pete Watters. "In a way switching positions helped me because it let people see all of my abilities and all the things I could do on kick returns, receiving, running, blocking, everything," admits Watters. "So that was pretty good, if I should go on to the next level, but it was also kind of hard on this level, because I was always switching positions.

"In the past, Watters has returned punts as well. In fact, he holds the record for the longest punt return in Irish history (97 yards in 1989) long way to go. I expect to do it one more. We're really happy here," Watters said. "I like the com munity. I just love to work with people and help them become better people.

Watters may be happy as the coach at Akron, but the talk always returns to Notre Dame, his glory days. He still has the same excitement, the same enthusiasm that he came to Notre Dame with in November of 1980. "It was a great opportunity," he said. "It was really a dream come true. I think anybody who has ever gone to Notre Dame or worked at Notre Dame, there's something special there. A part of you always stays there. Time has really flown. I can't believe it's been that long.

The Zips are 2-0 in 1990, including a win last weekend over big rival Kent State. Watters knows he will have to carry on with back-to-back games at Rutgers, Florida and Navy.

But someday he might get there, and there might even be a game with Notre Dame. But that might not happen. He would never want to play Notre Dame because I could never run out of that tunnel onto the wrong side of the field," Watters said.

Cerrato reaches out and touches Miler

A call from the 1988 Fiesta Bowl sidelines helped land Notre Dame quarterback

By CHRIS COONEY
Assistant Sports Editor

Rick Miler will receive the call to start as the quarterback this Saturday, but if it weren't for an earlier call made from the sidelines of the Fiesta Bowl two and a half years ago, the sophomore more could be playing this season's opener on the maize and blue side of the field.

Notre Dame recruiting coordinator Vince Cerrato telephoned Miler during the 1988 bowl game and asked if he'd be interested in seeing him at the team's holiday camp with the soon-to-be national champions.

"I couldn't believe it," said Miler, who had already spoken with Cerrato about playing at Notre Dame. "He was on the field, talking to me, and I didn't know what was going to call next. When I looked at the TV I saw he was right."

Cerrato's call exemplifies one of the reasons why Miler chose Notre Dame over the many other schools that were pursuing him his senior year of high school.

"People expect big things. You can't make mistakes," said Miler. "I'm sure I'll feel more of the pressure on Saturday, but it should go away after the first few plays. It's just a game like any other."

"He knew it would mean a lot to me," says Miler, who viewed it as typical of Notre Dame's interest in him as a football player. "Notre Dame, along with excellent academics and athletics, are what encouraged me to come to South Bend. I grew up loving the Michigan Wolverines,"

"You don't have the same caliber of people at other schools as you do here," says Miler. "You don't have as many. The people here are so used to doing it right, whether it's studying or athletics."

Miler adds that, even though he grew up 25 minutes from South Bend in Goshen, it wasn't until he attended Notre Dame that he felt the school's deep traditions and immense popularity.

"I never really knew how important Notre Dame was to the country," Miler said. "People from everywhere follow it."

And with the entire nation looking on, Miler has become the focal point for the 1990 Irish football season. With only 36 minutes of playing time during his freshman year, Miler's inexperience has been the subject of college football fans around the country.

But the 6-3, 205-pounder says while he feels the pressure, he refuses to let it affect his play.

"People are going to be nervous," says Miler. "You can't make mistakes. I'm sure I'll feel more of the pressure on Saturday, but it should go away after the first few plays. It's just a game like any other."

That type of pressure should help ease tensions for the young quarterback who is already being compared to Joe Montana by some of his teammates.

"I think that's mostly because we're the same number (13)," said Miler. "I would love to be able to do what he did, but I never claimed to be Joe Montana."

Miler even sent Miler a picture a letter this summer, telling the quarterback "to take care of my number."

Some of the comparisons may be due to Miler's penchant for showing in spring practice. Only one of his 140-plus passes was intercepted during the North-South game in January.

"That type of performance earned him named offensive co-MVP of the Blue-Gold game. In that outing, Miler completed 23 of 41 passes for 383 yards, playing for both teams after Jake Kelchner broke his collarbone in the first period.

Kelchner's injury, and subsequent dismissal from the university for academic reasons, ensured that Miler would be the starting quarterback for Notre Dame this year. And while Miler couldn't be happier with the job, the lack of Irish quarterbacks and line make Miler Miler's role. The only other quarterbacks on the team are freshman.

"I really wish Jake was here to push me," said Miler, adding that he would love to be able to do what he did.

"I really wish Jake was able to do what I was able to do," said Miler. "I think I can handle it."

"But while Miler feels the pressure has ironed out many of their kinks and is improving, he desires to control the controlled fall practices. But he views their domination as good preparation for the talented squads he'll face in the upcoming weeks.

"I wish things had gone smoother," he said. "but I think we've coming around. We're timing it just right."

My job is to keep the flow and the unity, to keep us moving downfield," said Miler. "I have to be able to adjust when things go wrong and it makes me realize, I'm not trying to do too much."

Until then Miler will rely on an experienced backfield of speedy running backs. "I'm confident having them back there," said Miler. "You know Rocket's going to run past people, Tony Brooks is going to run over people and Ricky Watters is going to run around people."

More suspect is the offensive line that has to stop defenders from flying in the backfield. While he takes flight, the defense has pointed out the squad's injuries and lack of experience, Miler says his confidence their protection will be more than adequate.

"If there's weakness in our offensive line, it's me, and I like to think I can take care of my protection," says Miler. "But I can make it work if I have to, I don't want to do too much."

But Miler was comfortable once he made the big decision.

"It's real quiet on the field," he said. "Everyone is nervous. Everyone wants to make sure they don't screw up."

"I'd be excited no matter who we were playing," said Miler. "But since it's Michigan it will be that much more so. We've been working ever since January for this."

Although Miler's nerves may act up a little on Saturday, he says nothing could be more intimidating than his first game as Notre Dame's quarterback this year. The Kick-Off Classic at the Meadowlands in New Jersey.

"That's the biggest stadium I've ever played in," said Miler. "You go out there and suddenly see your face flashed up on the huge screen."

"But Miler was comfortable once he joined the action."

Facing the Wolverines in his first start will be especially memorable for Miler, who grew up knowing Bo Schembechler and rooting for him. Rated the best high school quarterback in the nation by Parade magazine, and named to the first squad of the USA Today All-American team, Miler was heavily recruited in 1988, but eventually narrowed his choices to Notre Dame and Michigan. Both sought the superstar who passed for 3,973 yards and 30 touchdowns his senior year. But although Miler's father, Ken, is from Spalding, Mich., just outside Ann Arbor, and served as an usher in Michigan Stadium as a boy, Miler chose the Irish.

"I'd be excited no matter who we were playing," said Miler. "But since it's Michigan it will be that much more so. We've been working ever since January for this."

Both sought the superstar who passed for 3,973 yards and 30 touchdowns his senior year. But although Miler's father, Ken, is from Spalding, Mich., just outside Ann Arbor, and served as an usher in Michigan Stadium as a boy, Miler chose the Irish.

"I'd be excited no matter who we were playing," said Miler. "But since it's Michigan it will be that much more so. We've been working ever since January for this."

Although Miler's nerves may act up a little on Saturday, he says nothing could be more intimidating than his first game as Notre Dame's quarterback this year. The Kick-Off Classic at the Meadowlands in New Jersey.

Facing the Wolverines in his first start will be especially memorable for Miler, who grew up knowing Bo Schembechler and rooting for him. FSU takes over college poll

The Observer Staff Report

The Florida State Seminoles took over the top spot vacated by Miami in the National College Sportswriters Football Poll.

The Seminoles leapfrogged the Hurricanes, who lost to Brigham Young 28-21 on Saturday, and Notre Dame to the number-one ranking. Florida State received 10 1/2 first place votes to Notre Dame's 8 1/2.

Trojan victory

The poll, organized and founded by staff members of The Observer, will appear weekly in college newspapers across the country. More than 40 writers will eventually cast votes in the poll when classes begin at their respective schools.

Fullerton State in home opener

Florida State finished just 10 points ahead of the Irish, who will play their first game of the season against Michigan on September 15, Auburn, which received three first-place votes after soundly defeating Colorado, which squeaked by Stanford with a score of 21-17 on Thursday, is ninth, and Virginia, coming off its first victory over Clemson to 30-8, rounds out the top 10.

Fullerton State in its home opener is third.

Michigan, which also has yet to play a game this season, moved up one spot to number six in the poll, while the loss to Brigham Young dropped Miami into a tie for fifth with UNC. Tennessee, which defeated Mississippi State Saturday to raise its record to 2-0-1, is seventh, and Brigham Young moved up ten spots from its number 18 position in last week's poll, to number eight.

Nebraska leads off the second 10, followed by Texas A&M, Clemson, Pittsburgh, which defeated Boston College Saturday to raise its record to 2-0, and Arkansas, Oklahoma, which pummeled UCLA Saturday in the Bruins' home opener, Ohio State, Illinois, Washington and Arizona round out the top 20.

Moeller succeeds legend, looks to establish identity

By SCOTT BRUTOCACO
Assistant Sports Editor

Would you like to succeed a legend?

Gary Moeller, who makes his debut as head coach for Michigan Saturday against Notre Dame, has a tall order in front of him in succeeding Bo Schembechler, the winningest coach in Wolverine football history.

Schembechler, who departed from the Wolverines Jan. 2 to become President of the Detroit Tigers, compiled a 194-48-3 record, 143-24-3 in the Big Ten, in 21 seasons at Michigan.

His teams were ranked in the national top ten 16 times and appeared in 10 Rose Bowls. The only thing Schembechler seemed not to have done was win the national championship. Interestingly, Moeller will have to deal with the comparisons to this Big Ten conqueror and Rose Bowl club member.

"I don't think it (the comparisons) will ever stop," said Moeller, who spent most of his coaching career as an assistant to Schembechler. "I think in a couple of years it will slow down. You get tired of it (but) when you're compared to Bo Schembechler, in many ways it can make you proud."

Moeller has cause to be proud. When Schembechler announced his resignation, he personally recommended Moeller for the job. Calling Moeller the "right man to lead this (Michigan) football program into the 1990's," Schembechler praised his right-hand man's coaching ability and personal attributes that made him the obvious choice for successor.

And Bo knows Moeller. He has had Moeller as an assistant coach for 21 seasons, and anytime an assistant works under a head coach that long, his philosophies have to be somewhat compatible.

"The philosophies I've had, I've just reinforced those (as head coach)," said Moeller. "It's the kind of program I grew up with. I believe in the philosophies of Bo Schembechler and Woody Hayes. I want to keep this program where it has a strong foundation."

After playing football for Woody Hayes at Ohio State as a center and linebacker, Moeller graduated from college in 1962 and coached high school teams until he joined Schembechler at Miami (Ohio) in 1967 to coach the freshman team.

When Bo moved on to Michigan in 1969, he took Moeller with him, placing him in charge of defensive ends. Moeller was promoted to defensive coordinator in 1973, and his 1974 and '76 squads led the nation in scoring defense.

Following the 1976 season, Moeller was named head coach at Illinois, where he spent the 1977-79 seasons and compiled a 6-24-3 record. In 1980, he was back to coaching under Schembechler at Michigan.

Named defensive coordinator and assistant head coach in 1982, Moeller brought back his defensive magic, and in 1985 his squad led the nation again in scoring defense. By 1987 he assumed offensive coordinator duties as well as assistant coach.

Now in 1990 Moeller's first game is against Notre Dame, a team that has lost only one game in two years. It's the beginning of another era for Michigan, the Moeller era, which could last anywhere from one game to 20 years.

"It's scary but exciting," said Moeller to The Sporting News. "I think you'll always feel the pressure. But how many guys get the opportunity to coach at Michigan? I've got a good situation here. I'm very fortunate."

Gary Moeller was appointed to the head coaching position at Michigan on January 2 when Bo Schembechler announced his retirement after 21 seasons with the Wolverines.
