Report recommends building of social complex

By Betsy Punsalan
News Writer

Student Government is proposing the construction of a social complex which would be about one block from its Florida Union location. The complex, which would be approximately five miles south of campus, was presented to the Board this Thursday.

The report states that the proposed complex would provide:

- A social space within walking distance of campus which would foster spontaneous, healthy social interaction.
- A place where students, class governments, and residence hall programs can enhance the common life of the campus.
- A place "to go" which would give students the feeling of leaving campus with the benefits of close proximity and safety.

Some days I pick up the paper when it returns from our printer and feel strongly that we have served the community well in that particular issue. Other days I feel we could have done better.

Yesterday I looked at the caption on our front page photo and started pricing one-way plane tickets to Timbuktu.

It wasn't born of a desire to stir inevitable phone calls and letters from the public. Rather, I was disturbed at what the caption represented the racial stereotypes which still taint our community.

I have always endeavored to instill in this staff an awareness of the need to treat all types of people on this campus fairly and objectively. It upset me, therefore, that the caption perpetuated the racial stereotypes which still taint our community.

However, not knowing is no excuse. Ignorance and insensitivity are dangerous qualities in journalists.

The Multicultural Executive Council is providing the students with an excellent opportunity to challenge themselves outside the classroom. They should be applauded for their efforts. We did just the opposite on page one yesterday. On behalf of The Observer, I offer them my sincerest apologies.

More importantly, I owe the community an apology for the sentiments expressed in yesterday's paper. Unfortunately, I cannot read every piece of copy before it hits the presses. However, I am still responsible for everything that appears in The Observer, however.

Since I can't be here all the time, I must ensure that the night staff understands what is appropriate material for the news section. Obviously, I failed at that regard, and through them, the community I serve hard to serve.

If I could somehow hit "rewind" and point out the error to Monday's staff before the paste-up boards left for the printer, I would. Since I can't unprint the paper, all I can do is assure the community that the entire staff learned an important language lesson.

And we'll be back tomorrow, continuing to do our best to serve Notre Dame and St. Mary's. There are days, like yesterday, when our best could be a lot better. But the opportunity should never dull our sincere desire to serve it well.

Nor my own sincerity in saying, once again, that we made a foolish error and we are sorry.

Hall Presidents Council debates national gay and lesbian day

By DAVID KINNEY
News Writer

The Hall Presidents Council discussed the National Coming Out Day for gays and lesbians Tuesday in response to the Senate resolution passed Monday concerning the event.

The HPC debated over how it should deal with the issue of the day, which will involve a variety of events aimed at increasing the awareness of the discrimination of gays and lesbians. The group was divided over whether the HPC should support or oppose the Senate resolution at a later meeting.

The group plans to deal with the issue and with the Senate resolution at a later meeting.

In other HPC news:
• Mike Morland announced that the Student Government Legal Department has developed complaint forms which allow students to mail complaints directly to the student government. The complaint forms should be available to students through hall rectors, RA's, and hall presidents this week.
• Joe Casidy, Director of Student Activities, announced that the Notre Dame-Miami football game T-shirt will be available to students next week through dorm representatives. The shirt costs $6 for short sleeves and $8 for the long-sleeve version, all the proceeds from the sale of the shirt will benefit Zheng-de Wang, an ND student critically injured in a hit-and-run incident last year.

The HPC will once again sponsor the Quarter Mile fund raiser for the United Way, to be held on Friday outside the Notre Dame Bookstore. The event will allow people to tape change to a quarter-mile-long strip of tape.

• Ambassador Loret Ruppe will speak as part of the Student Government lecture series tonight at 8 pm in Theodore's. Ruppe, U.S. Ambassador to Norway and former Director of the Peace Corps, will discuss "From the Peace Corps to Norway to Notre Dame."

ND hosts conference about alumni community service

By MIKE SCARSELLA
News Writer

Executives from twenty college and university alumni associations met from September 30 to October 2 at Notre Dame to discuss ways to increase community service involvement through their organizations.

Representatives from Princeton, Dartmouth, Duke, UCLA, and the Universities of Iowa and Indiana discussed the need for volunteer service as an integral part of alumni activity at the James Andrews Conference on Community Service last weekend.

Topics of the discussion included university involvement in community service projects and ways for alumni associations to encourage public service.

"We were working from the standpoint of trying to expose unknown concepts of community service to different universities of different sizes and geographic locations," according to Pete Pranica, assistant director of Alumni Clubs.

Wendy Hopkins, a representative from William's College, agreed, saying, "Size is irrelevant. A willing administration and a hardworking alumni association are needed to obtain one to one contact with the alumni."

A video depicting the community service performed by various Notre Dame clubs was presented at the conference. Examples of service projects accomplished through alumni clubs at the University include the improvements made to low income neighborhoods during "Christmas in April," and the "Fresh Start" program, which offers free reconstructive surgery for people who normally wouldn't be able to afford it.

The video was used in conjunction with group discussions to provide a basis on which the representatives could build their own service programs. Pranica and Kate Sullivan, coordinator for the Notre Dame Service Program, led the discussions.

University President Father Edward Malloy was among those addressing the conference. John Kobara, executive director of UCLA's alumni association, and Thomas Morris, associate professor of philosophy at Notre Dame, gave keynote presentations titled "Why Service? And More Importantly, Why Alumni?"

In addition to the speeches and discussions, the participants toured impoverished areas of South Bend to examine a variety of opportunities for community service.

Vatican synod official rules out discussion of celibacy

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The moderator at the worldwide synod of bishops said Tuesday there should be no debate on rules requiring priests to be celibate and forbidding the ordination of women.

The synod, an advisory body attended by more than 200 bishops, was called by Pope John Paul II to discuss the formation of Roman Catholic priests.

The three-monthlong assembly, which opened Sunday with a Mass in St. Peter's Basilica, began its official working sessions Tuesday.

The pope has made it clear he has no intention of changing the church position mandating priestly celibacy and an all-male priesthood. Cardinal Dalmaz del Consolato said that the pope, emphasized that these issues would not be up for debate at the meeting.

"Time is not sufficient to deal with certain questions, such as celibacy of priests, women priests, priesthood for married men," he told the assembly.

"These issues have already been dealt with in a definite way in other forums." Some bishops, however, are expected to raise the question of how they can persuade more men to become priests without abandoning the celibate rule.

One of the reasons cited for the decline in the number of priests is the requirement that they be celibate and forsake marriage.

Earlier Tuesday, the International Federation of Married Catholic Priests held a news conference in Rome to complain that the "opinion of an important minority has no voice" at the synod.

The organization's president, Bert Peeters of Belgium, said the group had sent letters to all the bishops' conferences representing at the synod to press for changes allowing ordination of women and married men.

Peeters said his federation is represented in 26 countries. Of the 400,000 priests in the world, about 90,000 are married, he said. The highest number is in the United States, with 17,000, followed by France with 10,000, Peeters said.

The church does not permit members of the organization to celebrate the sacraments.

In his speech, Moreira Neves, who is archbishop of Sao Salvador of Bahia, said a greater effort must be made to prepare candidates for the priesthood.

"The springtime of vocations experienced in many parts of the world could turn into a cold winter if the proper formation is lacking," he said.

If young candidates do not receive the proper training in seminaries, the bishops who ordain them "run the risk of throwing themselves into spiritual suicide," he said.

Otherwise they run the risk of "throwing themselves into social work in the role of militants, revolutionaries and labor leaders," he said.

Dartmouth Review chief resigns over Hitler quote

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — The president of The Dartmouth Review resigned Tuesday after the conservative off-campus weekly drew fire for quoting Hitler in its masthead on a Jewish holiday.

"I will not be a part of this newspaper anymore — I am not an anti-Semite," said C. Tyler White, who is also a student at Dartmouth College. The newspaper is not funded by the college.

Student officials of the newspaper, which has previously been described as sexist, racist and homophobic, said the quote was put in by an unknown staffer without the authorization or knowledge of editors. One called it "Sabotage."

But White said the newspaper's official response failed to express the staff's regret or to assume responsibility for letting the quote be printed.

"The editor-in-chief has failed in his job, and now we all must wear the albatross of anti-Semitism because he won't take responsibility for the issue's contents," White said in a statement.

He is the third of the week's 24 members to resign because of the incident.

The edition distributed Saturday on Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement and Judaism's most solemn day, carried a quotation from Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf."

The passage inserted without attribution in The Review's masthead said:

"Therefore, I believe today that I am acting in the sense of the Almighty Creator: By warding off the Jews, I am fighting for the Lord's work."

Cheers and congratulations greeted the resignations at the Student Assembly office, where students stacked petitions bearing more than 2,600 signatures and planned a protest rally Thursday.

Hijacked plane crashes in China, kills 127

CANTON, China (AP) — A hijacked Chinese jetliner careened into two parked jets at Canton airport Tuesday, setting off a fiery explosion, killing at least 127 people and seriously injuring 46 others, officials said.

"The plane split the jets into pieces," said a Chinese man who witnessed the crash. "It was a horrible explosion. The whole sky went red and the air was a horrible explosion. The hijacked Boeing 737 as it careened into an empty Boeing 707 and a Boeing 757 full of passengers bound for Shanghai.

Other unconfirmed reports said two hijackers, Chinese men who wanted to force the plane to Hong Kong or Taiwan, exploded a bomb on the jet. A CAAC spokesman, Wang Chumu, said only one Chinese man was responsible for the hijacking.

Western survivor said there was a struggle in the cockpit of the hijacked Boeing 737 as it landed at Baiyun International Airport, causing the plane to careen into an empty Boeing 707 and a Boeing 757 full of passengers bound for Shanghai.

Other unconfirmed reports said two hijackers, Chinese men who wanted to force the plane to Hong Kong or Taiwan, exploded a bomb on the jet. A CAAC spokesman, Wang Chumu, said only one Chinese man was responsible for the hijacking.

Wang told a news conference 127 people died in the crash and 46 people were seriously injured. He said 100 people, including 11 crew members, were aboard the hijacked plane. DJs said they learned of only nine survivors, including an American woman.

At least 150 people were believed the Boeing 757, the airport security official said. He said he believed "a large number of people were also killed aboard that flight."

Tomohide Yamamoto, a businessman from Japan, said he was sitting in the 12th row of the Boeing 757.

"I think those who were sitting behind the 14th row couldn't have escaped from the plane," he said. "I heard Japanese television said only those who were sitting in the front were rescued."

After I got out of the plane, no one came out."

Beam and passports, watches and clothes were scattered along the tarmac. The crash occurred at 9 a.m., but ambulances waited late into the night.

Chinese officials, Western diplomats and witnesses provided conflicting accounts of the disaster and the resulting casualties.

Previous reports said 157 people, including 11 crew members, were aboard the hijacked plane. DJs said they learned of only nine survivors, including an American woman.

At least 150 people were believed the Boeing 757, the airport security official said. He said he believed "a large number of people were also killed aboard that flight."

Tomohide Yamamoto, a businessman from Japan, said he was sitting in the 12th row of the Boeing 757.

"I think those who were sitting behind the 14th row couldn't have escaped from the plane," he said. "I heard Japanese television said only those who were sitting in the front were rescued."

After I got out of the plane, no one came out."

Bush calls for support for ‘last best chance’ federal budget plan with televised speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush asked Americans Tuesday night to support a $500 billion package of tax increases and spending cuts that demands sacrifice from all. "Everyone who can should contribute something," the president said.

Claiming rare unity with leaders of the Democratic-controlled Congress, Bush said in a 10-minute televised speech from the Oval Office that the package was written in "eight months of blood, sweat and tears - fears of the economic chaos that would follow if we fail to reduce the deficit."

"It is the best agreement that can be legislated now," Bush said of the compromise. "This deficit reduction agreement is tough, and so are the times."

Bush's address from the Oval Office was nationally televised, but his message was primarily aimed 16 blocks away: at Congress, where an initial vote on the package may be held as early as Thursday.

Although the package generally has support among Democrats, lawmakers from Bush's own party - particularly in the House - have balked at its tax provisions. Bush himself had to abandon his "no new taxes" pledge in order to get the package.

Bush pointed out that the agreement had been hammered out by a bipartisan group. "The Democratic and Republican leadership tonight all speak with one voice," he said, and he urged people to tell their congressmen they support the package.

"One person who can should contribute something. And no one should have to contribute beyond their fair share."

Germany

monument that was a focus of celebrations.

The broad thoroughfares around the Brandenburg Gate were thronged with tens of thousands of people hours before the historic occasion, and vendors sold food, drinks and souvenirs.

Dixieland jazz, street musicians and organ-grinders played music that rang in the chilly fall air. Searchlight beams waved in a cloudless sky, and a tall crane dangled an old East German "Trabi" car 50 feet in the air just south of the massive stone gate.

About 200 leftist radicals lined a police barrier outside the Schauspielhaus, blowing whistles and jeering at dignitaries arriving for a formal state ceremony hosted by the departing East German government.

The radicals chanted "Germany, drop your dying claim."

Kohl, 60, said in a statement to the Frankfurter Allgemeine newspaper that the new Germany will help stabilize Europe, as long as it would not be a "restless Reich" like Nazi Germany, which plunged Europe into its most disastrous war.

The unification of Germany is a "European, indeed a world event of historic rank," Kohl said.

Several German newspapers published the approved verse of the national anthem to be sung in unified Germany — the old "Deutschland Ueber Alles" verse — but the third verse, which starts: "Unity and Justice and Freedom for the German fatherland."

The verse admonishes Germany to "Sleep," not to be "above all," the old mission that frightens some Europeans.

Only a year ago the rush toward unity was barely starting. East Germans demonstrated for political freedoms and the right to leave their country. The Communist government opened the Berlin Wall last fall but was swept away anyway in a peaceful popular revolution.

East Germans began to demonstrate for unification, which was taken up by Kohl and his government, and eventually approved by Moscow and the Allies.

The Soviets agreed to let united Germany remain in NATO and to remove their troops by the end of 1994, although Germany is paying Moscow $5.5 billion to finance the withdrawal. The Allies will keep troops in West Berlin until the Soviets leave.

There must be some way to avoid doing the same thing for the next forty years.

Baker believes sentiment for action against Iraq growing

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State James Baker said Tuesday night he found growing sentiment among the nations of the world for military action against Iraq to force a withdrawal from Kuwait.

There is more of a willingness to consider some sort of an approach like that if it became necessary at an appropriate time," Baker said at a news conference.

"It seems there is a greater willingness to consider something like this than one would have expected a week ago coming into these U.N. meetings," he said after a week's consultations in New York with counterparts from other nations and other diplomats attending United Nations sessions.

But be stressed sentiments could change quickly, as in a day. And he emphasized the Bush administration preferred a diplomatic and political solution to Iran's annexation of the Persian Gulf emirate's oil fields.

Baker spoke at the conclusion of a two-day meeting of 35 foreign ministers to prepare for a European Security Conference summit meeting in Paris Nov. 19-21.

Asked if the United States had begun to draft a resolution in which the U.N. Security Council would authorize military force against Iraq, as reported Sunday by The Associated Press and Newsweek magazine, Baker replied:

"There has been no decision taken at the top levels of this government with respect to going forward now with respect to a particular resolution."

However, Baker said, "it would not be prudent of us not to be giving some thought to what the various options are and how they would be implemented." U.S. officials told the AP on condition of anonymity that drafting had begun by the United States, the Soviet Union and other governments.

The foreign ministers adopted a resolution condemning Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The statement, proposed by the United States, called for an immediate and unconditional withdrawal.

The 12-nation European Community, meanwhile, approved nearly $2 billion in assistance to Egypt, Jordan and Turkey to compensate for economic hardships arising from the Persian Gulf conflict.

Italian Foreign Minister Gianfranco Fini said the Community would provide $660 million and member nations $1.32 billion.

The 35 ministers of the European Security Conference took several steps to strengthen the organization in preparation for a summit meeting Nov. 19-21 in Paris.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is urged Tuesday to let Oklahoma City children attend neighborhood schools even though that has brought back racial imbalance.

Continued desegregation of public schools in hundreds of other American cities could be at stake as well.

Lawyers for the Bush administration and the Oklahoma City school board said formerly segregated school districts should be allowed to escape court-ordered integration plans once they achieve racial balance.

But a lawyer for some black parents in Oklahoma City said returning to neighborhood schools in a city where whites and blacks live in different areas had turned back the clock to a time when blacks and whites were required to attend separate schools.

In an animated, hour-long session, all eight justices asked questions.

Solicitor General Kenneth Starr, the administration's top courtroom lawyer, acknowledged that many of Oklahoma City's neighborhoods are predominantly black or white, but said, "The school board has no realistic control over where people choose to live."

School board lawyer Ronald Day argued that a federal judge's finding in 1977 that the city's schools were fully integrated — or "unitary" — freed the board from continuing forced busing and other court-ordered remedies until all city neighborhoods are integrated.

Such residential segregation, Day said, "is a phenomenon which over which this school board, indeed no school board, has control."

Administration requires gender diversity

As Saint Mary's editor of The Observer, I feel obligated to address recent letters attacking the president of the College, Dr. William A. Hickey.

I am very disturbed by two letters written by Devo Marcuson concerning the qualifications of Dr. Hickey to serve as president of the Catholic women's college. In Miss Marcuson's first letter (The Observer, Sept. 13), she claims that "the administration fell...throttled by the women's movement and (is) determined to keep the status quo in balance..." Miss Marcuson must be unaware of how a president is chosen at Saint Mary's.

The process begins with interviews of candidates by students, faculty members and administrators and the presentation of evaluations to the Saint Mary's Board of Regents. These recommendations are taken very seriously. I doubt that these individuals felt a "lack of confidence in women," since fifty percent of the faculty, seventy percent of the administration and one hundred percent of the student body is female. The Board of Regents happens to enjoy a two-thirds female majority. The Board of Regents uses these evaluations to narrow the list of candidates down to three prospectives.

The three finalists are then presented to and interviewed by the General Council of the Sisters of the Holy Cross. This general council is made up entirely of sisters, who are obviously female. These sisters are chosen with making the final selection.

It is important to note that when Dr. Hickey was selected, the other two finalists were female, and Dr. Hickey still won hands-down. I am quite sure the General Council for the CSC takes the responsibility of appointing the Saint Mary's president quite seriously and actively sought to choose the most competent and qualified applicant. The sisters had the opportunity to appoint one of their own and, however, this would have involved choosing a less qualified candidate for the sake of choosing a woman. Although Miss Marcuson refuses to recognize it, such an action would constitute pure sexism. I, for one, would not want a less capable leader who was chosen on the basis of gender.

Although the vast majority of the people involved in the selection process were female, a male was chosen based on his accomplishments and qualifications. No existing female candidate had devoted anywhere near the time and commitment to Saint Mary's and higher education Dr. Hickey has. Anyone who examines Dr. Hickey's past record would come to the same conclusion.

If Miss Marcuson is concerned about women moving on to postgraduate study or other postgraduate pursuits, perhaps she would be interested in a few of the curriculum changes for which Dr. Hickey was responsible. During his time as Vice President, Dean of Faculty, and President of Saint Mary's, he introduced new degree programs including ones in accounting, marketing, and management. He also established the nursing program which had been terminated. He did so to open more opportunities for Saint Mary's graduates. The days of home economics majors have gone to great lengths to promote and publish on the evolving role of women in the church. Though Dr. Hickey is not a member of the clergy, he has gone to great lengths to promote spirituality at Saint Mary's. Miss Marcuson's concern that Dr. Hickey is not a member of the clergy seems inconsistent with her call for a president who can better empathize with Saint Mary's students. I cannot imagine why she would be less qualified to empathize with college women than a male member of the clergy.

Dr. Hickey's other accomplishments include Saint Mary's faculty. Miss Marcuson cites studies which call for greater number of female faculty members. She is obviously unaware that, for the first time, the faculty at Saint Mary's is more female than male. This fact, in addition to the statistics involving the number of female members of the administrators, faculty and Board of Regents, implies that there are ample positive female role models on our campus. Miss Marcuson points to studies by Dr. Elizabeth Tidball to affirm the need for a female president to serve as a female authority figure. Miss Marcuson did not follow up her research. If she had, she would have found that Dr. Tidball does emphasize the critical importance of female role models, but does not call for the exclusion of men in administrative hierarchies. Dr. Tidball calls for men and women working together for the betterment of women. She also recognized that creating a "female haven" where only women interact and make decisions is not a true representation of the real world.

Furthermore, problem with Miss Marcuson's arguments involves her analogy between Gallaudet University and Saint Mary's. I have never equated being female with being handicapped. Prejudice is such an attitude that leads to the misconception that women are innately less capable than men.

When I started as Saint Mary's editor for the Observer, I sought to meet with authority figures in the administration and faculty. Dr. Hickey has done more to help Saint Mary's gain recognition and improve its image than any other member of the community. He has been more enthusiastic and cooperative than any female member of the community. He has pushed the faculty and administration to take an active role in enhancing the perception that Saint Mary's women have of themselves, as well as how we are perceived by others. He exhibits a love and concern for Saint Mary's that is truly unique.

I hope that when it comes time to choose a new president for Saint Mary's, instead of taking Miss Marcuson's faulty arguments into consideration, the community will reflect upon the accomplishments of Dr. Hickey and subsequently attempt to find a fitting successor whether he be male or female. I hope that day is very far away. When it does come, our community will realize what it will be losing. Great leaders are never appreciated until they leave us.

Culture abounds at Saint Mary's 'Dracula' strikes O'Loughlin Auditorium tonight

CORINNE PAVLIS

"Dracula," Bram Stoker's classic tale of horror, will be performed tonight by Ballet Theater Pennsylvania at O'Loughlin Auditorium at Saint Mary's College. Tonight's performance is the first in a series of three dance presentations Saint Mary's will sponsor this year.

The concept of "Dracula" ranges from the "dawn of man" to contemporary times. Ballet Theater Pennsylvania's version of Stoker's vampire tale is based on the theme, "I have seen the evil and it is ourselves." The character of Dracula will be portrayed by two principal dancers to represent the character's two dimensions. Dracula the Possessed, the darker of the two, represents the evil side of humanity. His counterpart, The Spirit of Dracula, symbolizes a brighter, more promising female facet of the play.

The production combines classical ballet and modern dance to present a psychological study of good and evil. Each of the twenty scenes is intended to represent a different image of the powerful Dracula. Scenes such as "The Healing," and "The Gates of Hell" set the stage for the climatic final scene, "The Catharsis," in which The Spirit of Dracula rises above the carnage of broken bodies on stage and flies off. Dracula the Possessed is left behind to cover the bodies with his enormous black cape.

The dramatic performance utilizes the music of Phillip Glass, special flying effects, Broadway set and lighting designs, and a dance company of twelve to present a romantic, frightening, and striking interpretation of the legend.

Preceding "Dracula," the company will present its signature piece, "Volterra," which was recently filmed for PBS. This Spanish character dance fittingly features the music of Ravel. The piece is known for its sensual seductive rhythms which build slowly as new dancers take the stage leading to a scintillating finale.

Later in the year Saint Mary's will also sponsor "Fresh Tracks," a faculty and guest artist dance concert to be directed by visiting assistant professor Sue Cherry. The performance date is set for November 16. Next semester features the latest national tour of the Ballet Met Company.

Individual tickets for "Dracula," priced at $18 and $16, as well as a package of all three dance programs in the series are on sale at the Saint Mary's box office. The office, located in O'Loughlin Auditorium, is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Visa and MasterCard orders are accepted at 284-4626.

Art, photography on display

SARA HARKER

Jeremy Turner's paintings and Dan Myers' photographs are on exhibition currently at Saint Mary's College in Moreau, Little Theatre and Hammes Galleries through October 12.

Turner, of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, is having her paintings displayed in Moreau Gallery. The body of work is filled with information. The colors glow in a contrast that causes one to discover the content of the work.

The non-traditional perspective includes animal figures intertwined, stylized nude female figures stripped of any beauty, and stylized male figures finding satisfaction in themselves. "These paintings are for this particular period in history. They are meant to amuse, amaze, frighten their audience. But primarily to provide insight into the realities of our present society," explains Turner in her artist's statement.

She stylizes the female figure giving her neither beauty nor ugliness and paints her in a red-brown pigment with outside forces manipulating and changing her.

In a piece called "Master Race," one of these female figures lays strapped to a bed cringing in pain while Barbie and Ken figures surround her, attempting to inject into her a solution of sperm—presumably the solution of utter perfection.

The painting's bright colors attract the eye of the viewer; however, upon closer inspection of the piece, the coldness of the colors and the glazed looks on the faces and in the eyes of the figures bring out the reality of the painting.

Her other works can be viewed in the same way, in that in each there is a human truth as well as violence that comes through.

Dan Myers, a photographer who attended Southern Illinois University and Cranbrook Academy, has his works on display in Little Theatre and Hammes Galleries.

He describes his work like this: "...The pieces involve themselves with the shifting, unstable relationship between inside-outside, between what was real in the past and what was invented."

The photographs cause the viewer to study the blurry images of memories. All of the photographs are black and white, each with different images, yet each evoke the same response of wonder.

One in particular, titled "Real Events No. 1," includes a series of nine inch by 6 inch framed images. Upon close inspection, each of them involves two or more individuals posing for the picture.

What makes these photographs interesting is that the artist has taken the image and manipulated it so that it is not as visible as it once may have been, iterating the artists thoughts on the mechanical recovery of memory and the reclamations of personal history.

Both of these exhibits are open during regular gallery hours: Tuesday - Friday 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. - 4:00 p.m., Saturday 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon, and Sunday 1:00 p.m. - 3:00 p.m.

The Sailing Club has been training since August for their season. Led by Watts Hud­gens and Dave Kraemer, the 1990 team has already partici­pated in races as distant as New Haven, Connecticut. At the Harry Anderson Regatta, held at Yale Uni­versity September 1-2, the team faced several Eastern sailing powerhouses, and was relegated to the second division.

"It was a good experience to see what the real guys in the big leagues are like," Kraemer said. The team made an impressive showing at the Detroit Yacht Club during the weekend of September 16.
BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox failed to clinch the American League East title Tuesday night and sent the race down to the final day by losing to the Chicago White Sox 3-2 in Ozzie Guillen’s two-out RBI single in the 11th inning.

The Boston loss, which came about one hour after Toronto won in Baltimore 2-1, left the Red Sox one game ahead of the Blue Jays with one game left in the regular season.

Dennis Lamp (3-5), Boston’s fourth pitcher, was unable to hold Chicago in the 11th after the Red Sox failed to score with the bases loaded and two out in the 10th against Dunn Pall (3-5). Ellis Burks flied out to end the inning after an intentional walk to Wade Boggs.

With one out in the 11th, Ben Karkovice lined a single to left and took second on Robin Ventura’s single to center. Scott Fletcher popped out but Guillen pulled a low-outside pitch into right field and Karkovice just beat Kevin Romine’s throw to catcher Tony Pena.

Wayne Edwards, Chicago’s fourth pitcher, pitched the 11th for his second save. Romine singled with two out but Pena forced Romine to end the game.

Detroit (AP) - A television reporter filed an assault and battery charge against Isaiah Thomas of the Detroit Pistons on Tuesday, saying the NBA All-Star choked him and threw him against a car.

Ving Jacques, a reporter with Detroit's WJBK-TV, said he didn't want to file a report on the incident for the Tuesday night report, but he says he confronted him so he could file the report.

Jacques, who said he was cut on the neck, filed the complaint Monday in Oakland County, where the Pistons had just concluded an informal practice.

"I want to know what he did, you're going to have to ask him," Jacques said. "I was going to go on this report on the two-time NBA champion Detroit's practice session. If he says I confronted him or provoked him in any way, he's lying.

Phares helps women's golf

Irish golfer Kathy Phares has proved to everyone that last year was not a fluke. Phares has continued her winning ways in the 1990 fall season. At the Irish Invitational this September, she was the second highest Notre Dame finisher and at the lady championship, university of standings. She also played two excellent rounds at the Spartans Invitational over the weekend, but did not place well due to a UNLV may get the chance to defend title

LAVESGAS (API)—The NCAA has agreed to reconsider its decision banning UNLV from defending its national basketball championship, university officials said Tuesday.

The NCAA's Infractions Committee will meet Oct. 28 in a special session in Chicago to consider "a clear signal" the NCAA is willing to modify the sanctions.

"We're very pleased. We think this is a good sign for the universe of college sports," UNLV officials said they placed before the committee a list of different penalties, but did not specify what alternative sanctions the panel would adopt.

"We'll be trying to formulate ideas for alternative penalties right up until Oct. 28," university official Brad Booke said.

"We've discussed virtually every idea possible." Booke acknowledged that one of the possible proposals would be for UNLV to ask coach Jerry Tarkanian to resign during postseason play. Other continuing, he said, are including limits of recruiting or the loss of some scholarships for the basketball program.

UNLV had been set to appeal the postseason ban before the NCAA Council if the Infractions Committee reaffirms the post-season ban.

The committee imposed the sanction June 21 as a final resolu- tion of a legal battle with Tarkanian that stretched to 1977 when Tarkanian won a court injunction prohibiting the NCAA from ordering his suspension from coaching for two years after the 1977-78 season.

Tarkanian did not attend Tuesday's news conference called by Maxson to announce the NCAA decision.

Booke said, though, that university officials have discussed a variety of possible sanctions with Tarkanian.

"There's certain things Coach Tarkanian can do that are probably permissible under his injunction," Booke said. "We've discussed several ideas with the NCAA, and if the NCAA Council if the Infractions Committee reaffirms the post-the Irish Invitational, her first collegiate tournament, and at the MSU Invitational. At the Franklin Invitational, she earned medalist honors after breaking a seven year tournament record with single round score of 72.

If the Mets don’t pay, Strawberry wants LA

NEW YORK (AP) — If the New York Mets want to keep Darryl Strawberry it will take more than big bucks. He wants some help, too.

In his latest declaration, Strawberry let it be known the bidding for his services is between the Mets and the Los Angeles Dodgers. That, of course, could change in a day or two.

He also stressed that the Mets front office better come up with a leadoff hitter, preferably fellow free agent Vince Coleman.

“We've got a couple of guys around here who have to grow up,” Strawberry said. “I'm not going to start naming names, but we've got guys that care too much about their own stats.”

“I don't want to be around a team like that. I mean, we not winning this year is ridiculous. But it has to start with the front office,” Strawberry said. “I've got to have a better relationship with them after all the negatives I heard this year.”

General manager Frank Cashen and senior vice president Al Harazin traveled with Strawberry to Los Angeles to negotiate.

Strawberry missed the final week of the season with a pulled back muscle and was on the bench Sunday when New York was shut out San Diego — for now — says. “That'll be my first priority.”

“If I do get the offer from the Dodgers, that's where I'll be. I'm not going to lie — if they give me a five-year deal at today's rate, that's where I'll be.”

The Mets offered Strawberry slightly more than $9 million for three years in July and he rejected it. He wants a five-year deal for $30 million to $35 million.

New York halted contract talks in mid July and Strawberry, a Los Angeles native, went on to have his best season at the plate. He hit .333 with 33 home runs and 108 RBIs.

“They have quality hitters already — Kal Daniels, hubie Brooks, Eddie Murray,” Strawberry said Monday night in Pittsburgh. “That'll be my first priority.”

“But if I do get the offer from the Dodgers, that's where I'll be. I'm not going to lie — if they give me a five-year deal at today's rate, that's where I'll be.”

It was his latest declaration that he wants Los Angeles, the team he knew would be a logical landing spot.

“Strawberry's relationship with Cashen has deteriorated since the GM said the right fielder wasn't a $1 million player,” Harazin said team owners Nelson Doubleday and Fred Wilpon will not intervene in the negotiations.

“I'm quite sure I'm going to listen to what the Mets have to say,” Strawberry said Monday night in Pittsburgh. “That'll be my first priority.”

“Whether it's said. "We will make a major effort," Harazin said. “We will tell.”

“We will make a major effort,” Harazin said. “We will tell.”

But it has to start with the front office. I've got to have a better relationship with them after all the negatives I heard this year.”

“I don't want to be around a team like that. I mean, we not winning this year is ridiculous. But it has to start with the front office,” Strawberry said. “I've got to have a better relationship with them after all the negatives I heard this year.”

Strawberry said he has ruled out San Diego — for now — and any team that plays on an artificial surface.

“The Dodgers know how to win,” Strawberry said. “They’ve got heart and pride.”

“I’ve had a lot of experience. It’s not like I’m just thrown into big matches now,” she says.

A tennis resume like Vitale’s attracts college recruiters like a fire attracts firefighters, but the decision to attend Notre Dame was a fairly easy one for her.

“I loved the school,” Vitale says. “I had a great recruiting trip. I came last year for the Michigan State game. I really like the girls on the team. Everyone gets along really well and I really like the coach.”

With tennis helping her establish a name for herself at Notre Dame, Terri Vitale doesn’t have to worry about living in her famous dad’s shadow, although questions about her father persist.

“A lot more people have said things to me here than at home in Florida,” Vitale says. “My friends at home didn’t mention it as much as here on a college campus where college basketball is so big.”

Despite the many inquiries about her dad, Terri doesn’t see her father’s fame as a burden.

“T’s been that way all my life,” says Terri. “It’s just like a part of me. I’ve never really thought ‘what would it be like if I wasn’t his daughter?’”

With a few more matches under her belt, Terri Vitale should establish a name for herself, as a tennis player, as a student and as a person on the Notre Dame campus. But until then, she doesn’t mind being known chiefly for her famous father.

“I don’t even think about it. Everyone else thinks of him as Dick Vitale. Commentator. I just think of him as my dad.”

Theodore’s
Rini leads men's swim team against tough Cardinal

By KEN TYSIAC
Associate Sports Editor

Swimming laps at 6:15 a.m. is not for everybody. But for Brian Rini, tri-captain of the Notre Dame men's swim team, it is a way of life. Although he doesn't exactly enjoy it, Rini doesn't seem to mind his early-morning ritual too much.

"I'm used to it," says Rini, a senior from Chagrin Falls, Ohio. "If you do it a lot, it doesn't really bother you."

The practice has paid off for Rini. Last season he was the most valuable player on a team that finished 12-1. He also holds Notre Dame records in the 500- and 1000-yard freestyle. As the Irish men prepare to host national power Stanford on Friday, Oct. 5, at the Rolfs Aquatic Center, it is clear that Rini will be counted on to lead his squad.

"Brian leads mostly by example," says swimming coach Tim Welsh. "He also leads vocally when it's really needed. He is not only a high point scorer. He is also a practice leader, and attendance leader, and even a social leader for our team."

Welsh has high expectations for his star. "Rini will probably swim the 500- and 1000- freestyle as well as the 200 fly this weekend. Even though Rini was last year's team MVP, the Irish coach is convinced that Rini can improve himself even more.

Rini's training habits may be his greatest asset. According to Welsh, Rini has a knack for arriving at the pool three hours before a meet rolls around.

"He is a good technician," Welsh says of Rini. "He is very good on turns, and he always trains hard. He is in good shape, and he prepares well. He has good race design and is a very smart racer."

Since there are only 13 let­termen returning from last year's squad, many freshmen are going to be expected to fill the gaps left by graduation.

With such a young team, one might expect that Rini might be inclined to bear too much of a burden, but this is not the case.

"The freshman class is out­standing," Rini explains. "Every year the freshmen get better and better here because the program is expanding and improving. I really don't feel any pressure at all. I'm glad to be a senior and glad to be one of the captains, but I don't feel any added pressure."

It seems that neither Rini, nor any of the other players feel any added pressure with Stan­ford, which finished third last year's NCAA champi­onships last year, coming in this weekend. Instead, they are rather looking forward to it as an event.

"The meet is more of a week­end fare," says Rini. "We are looking to be good hosts and show that we are proud to swim for Notre Dame. It will be a great chance to meet people who are Olympic-caliber swimmers. We will also be hosting them—they'll be staying in our rooms, and that should be fun. Most swimmers get along with each other pretty well because they are the same type of people."

If they are anything like Rini, they don't mind swimming at 6:15 a.m. As long as it means that they will improve, they will get used to it.

A big challenge for Murphy and his coaching staff of Mike Gibbons, John Flanagan, Mike Mondiae and Greg Hudson is in­stilling in this team a blue col­lar work ethic. In 1989 that was a lot easier because there weren't many scholarships or nationally ranked players—just a bunch of local kids who were overweight. Now the Irish are get­ting some of the blue-chip pros­pects that Murphy wanted when he came here.

"We're the most talented team we've had since I've been here," Murphy said. "Some of the sophomores have great years last year. We just had a meeting about the sophomore jinx. That comes from laziness and lack of preparation. They're going to have good years because they prepared and worked hard.

"There is a lot of young staff, with a nu­cleus of four sophomores, is the strongest and a key aspect of the Irish squad.

"They're still maturing," said Murphy. "They don't have the images yet to be accomplished pitchers like (Brian) Piotrowicz.

"Dave Sinehs (9-2), who led the Irish in ERA with a 1.91, anchors the staff. Although he was nothing short of outstanding statistically, Murphy ac­nowledges there's more to the game's on the line he'll make every play.

With these and a plethora of other fine players the Irish could be in for a big year. They'll start finding out how much a player can improve with time," explained Murphy. "When the game's on the line he'll make every play."

back wins in last week's Tom Fallon Invitational that were a signal that he can become a national contender, it's no surprise that Murphy looks for him to provide leadership for the young pitchers.

"The team can get people out at any level," explained Murphy. "He could take his 72 mile per hour fastball to the minors and be successful because he knows how to pitch."

Matt Kral, Cory Mee (a con­verted second baseman) and Dave Yawman will battle to fill the returning from last year's team MVP, the Irish men are going to be expected to fill the gaps left by graduation.

With such a young team, one might expect that Rini might be inclined to bear too much of a burden, but this is not the case.

"The freshman class is out­standing," Rini explains. "Every year the freshmen get better and better here because the program is expanding and improving. I really don't feel any pressure at all. I'm glad to be a senior and glad to be one of the captains, but I don't feel any added pressure."

It seems that neither Rini, nor any of the other players feel any added pressure with Stan­ford, which finished third last year's NCAA champi­onships last year, coming in this weekend. Instead, they are rather looking forward to it as an event.

"The meet is more of a week­end fare," says Rini. "We are looking to be good hosts and show that we are proud to swim for Notre Dame. It will be a great chance to meet people who are Olympic-caliber swimmers. We will also be hosting them—they'll be staying in our rooms, and that should be fun. Most swimmers get along with each other pretty well because they are the same type of people."

If they are anything like Rini, they don't mind swimming at 6:15 a.m. As long as it means that they will improve, they will get used to it.

Lyght practices, says he can play against Stanford

When the subject of Notre Dame's defense is brought up, it inevitably comes out in two parts: Inexperience has been the biggest obstacle for the defensive backfield. Strang said, "Greg Davis leads starters with three career starts, cornerbacks Reggie Brooks and Greg Lane have two apiece, and free safety Tom Carter started his first game Saturday against Purdue. The four combine for eight career starts between them. That total should increase by 28 this week if Todd Lyght returns to the starting lineup as expected. The All-American field cornerbahck practiced on Monday and Tuesday after missing the last two games with a pulled hamstring. "Todd Lyght has been able to practice," said Holtz. "Hopefully, he'll be able to play against Stanford. Todd says he feels better than he has in a long time, but it (the injury) still concerns me."

"If Todd Lyght can play, and I won't say he will, he will start at one corner and Reggie Brooks will start at the other," Brooks replaced Rod Smith at short cornerback in the Michigan opener and started the next two games. He made a game-saving interception against the Wolverines, but it was just last spring that he lined up on the other side of the field.

"We knew we had a problem in the defensive secondary going into the spring," said Holtz. "Reggie Brooks is a very talented person who we felt might be able to play in the defensive secondary. He's still young, he's still learning, and I don't know if he feels real comfortable over there yet."

"But he is a very smart person, he is a good hitter, he likes the game, and he has excellent speed. His height (5-10) is not what you like in a defensive back, but his feet do touch the ground," Holtz further sacrificed height for speed last week when he moved freshman Clint Johnson from quarterba ck to cornerba ck in an effort to add more depth to the Irish secondary.

"Last year, we had a veteran defensive secondary," said Holtz. "This year, we don't match up quite as well. We don't have the options we did last year when they (opponents) pass the football. Our secondary will get a big test this week."

All-American cornerba ck Todd Lyght, shown here in the Michigan Game with safety Greg Davis (26), has recovered from a hamstring pull and may play in this Saturday's game with Stanford.

Notre Dame welcomes 'Weekend of Champions'
Men's tennis will face best in nation

By DAVE MCMAHON

When the Notre Dame men's tennis team plays host to three-time NCAA defending team champion Stanford Cardinal Friday at the Eck Tennis Pavilion, led by Irish sophomore Chuck Coleman to continue his dominance that has led head coach Bob Baylis to think that he may have another All-America in his numbers. But don't be surprised to hear talk from Baylis, he's one the main reasons why Coleman decided to play for the Irish instead of Alabama, the other school that he considered attending.

"Coach Baylis is a big reason why a lot of guys come here," Coleman complimented. "He puts academics first and he really knows his tennis. He's helped me tremendously in every aspect of my game." By giving some attention to technical aspects of his game, Coleman has seen marked improvement in only a few matches on the young season. "He's improved a lot on his volleys and slice backhands, as well as his serve," said Baylis. By improving in these areas, Coleman put together back-to-back victories against some of the top programs in the country..." The situation we're in is demanding academically and difficulties any athlete would have been wonderful to have for Wheaties placement, " said Notre Dame sports marketer Bill Scholl. "It's a perfect spot for Wheaties..."

For Coleman, look for Irish sophomore and budding analyst Dick Vitale, Notre Dame freshman and budding tennis star. Despite being one of the top-ranked players on the Notre Dame women's tennis team and the daughter of ABC's and ESPN's top basketball commentator, Vitale is having the same experiences and difficulties any freshman at Notre Dame has.

"The demands academically are a lot tougher than in high school," says Vitale. "It took me awhile, but I'm finally getting in the swing of things." Once got on the court, though, Vitale had little trouble adjusting to college life. She will go into this weekend's match with top-ranked Stanford occupying a spot in the middle of the singles ladder (either No. 3 or No. 4) and playing No. 2 doubles. Coach Jay Louderback is clearly impressed with her play, and her attitude, so far.

The Weekend of Champions has been described as "an event that will pit many of Notre Dame's Olympic sports teams against some of the top programs in the country..." The Wichita Shockers, who come to Covy for games against some of the top programs in the country..." Vitali boosts women's tennis team

Having a famous father might cause problems or be a burden to some people, especially to one seeking to build a national reputation for herself. Not for Terri Vitali, daughter of basketball analyst Dick Vitali. Notre Dame freshman and budding tennis star. Despite being one of the top-ranked players on the Notre Dame women's tennis team and the daughter of ABC's and ESPN's top basketball commentator, Vitale is having the same experiences and difficulties any freshman at Notre Dame has.

The Week of Champions

Thursday (7 p.m.) and Friday (8:30) against the Irish baseball team, certainly fit the bill as a top program. The Shockers won the College World Series in 1989 and followed that up with a 45-19 mark last season.
