Fundamental differences in American and Islamic foreign policy need first to be overcome. But the process of resolution of the Middle East crisis becomes a possibility, according to Dr. Amjad-Ali, a visiting authority on Islamic-American relations.

Amjad-Ali, director of the Christian Study Center in Rawalpindi, Pakistan, pointed out several factors which could prevent an agreement in the Persian Gulf crisis.

Amjad-Ali spoke of the United States' constant need for a binary opposite, or foreign enemy, to make American foreign policy relevant. With the recent changes in the Soviet Union and the hope of a future Soviet-American binary opposite must be sought, he said.

"Islam is the new enemy," said Amjad-Ali.

"We should not come as a big surprise, however, according to Amjad-Ali. Since the Iranian hostage crisis in 1979-80, new tensions in the Middle East are constantly created: Ayatollah Amjad-Ali. Since the Iranian surprise, however, according to Amjad-Ali, said.

Malloy: ND ready to face the future

By NATASHA WILSON

Notre Dame is well prepared to handle the challenges of the future while remaining faithful to the school's tradition, said University President Edward Malloy in his upbeat annual address to the faculty on Wednesday afternoon.

The strides Notre Dame made in the areas of academics, finances and physical expansion during the last decade have better equipped the University to deal with the impending opportunities and threats of the 1990's, Malloy said.

In his speech, he recalled the University's achievements of the 1980's, presented his views on several current issues and opportunities at Notre Dame and analyzed the upcoming challenges facing the University.

"Hard work and cooperative interaction is the spirit that has characterized the last decade and this year [at Notre Dame]," Malloy said.

He contrasted that spirit with the atmosphere of enrichment and financial anxiety that recently has characterized colleges nationwide. Notre Dame has escaped many of the problems faced especially by large research universities, he said. "Notre Dame is small enough to be manageable and large enough to have sufficient resources.

Notre Dame has tried to ensure its financial stability through fund raising activities. Malloy said. The University has strengthened its financial position through the incremental growth in its endowment, which now totals $600 million. The current development campaign, which started with a goal of $300 million, will probably have raised $450 million by the time it ends in December, he said.

In response to the threats of an impending economic recession and a war in the Middle East, the University has started strategic planning for the future. The administration recently developed a five year budget building plan that would help the University respond to emergency situations.

For the future, Malloy described bright prospects for Notre Dame. "I look forward to the 1990's with great confidence," he stressed the University's commitment to remain "true to itself" while it adapts to future situations.

FBI agent warns ND students about white-collar crime

By MICHAEL SCHOLL
News Writer

"Say no to greed."

That was the message given to Notre Dame students in a lecture by William Clancy, Assistant Special Agent in Charge of Notre Dame's FBI office. Clancy, speaking to a packed crowd in Hayes-Healy auditorium, Wednesday night, said there is a crisis of ethics in America.

This crisis has created an upsurge in white-collar crimes, which Clancy believes will continue into the near future if the economy goes into a recession.

As a result, Clancy said, ND students will face many temptations to commit white collar crime if they go on to deal with the business world.

In order to persuade students not to engage in criminal activity, Clancy read letter from a banker who was convicted of embezzlement. The banker writes of how the anguish he felt because of his arrest drove him to consider committing suicide. The banker resisted that impulse and accepted a five year prison sentence.

According to Clancy, such harsh sentences are becoming increasingly common due to the increasing realization of the damage white collar crime does to the economy.

To give an example of such damage, he recounted his investiga­tion of a scandal in Detroit in which unscrupulous real-estate brokers, contractors, and government officials conspired to defraud the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) by charging huge sums of money for housing repairs which were never made.

Their actions, according to Clancy, have caused much of Detroit's housing stock to become uninhabitable while leaving HUD without the monetary resources to remedy the situation.

Clancy said that when one of those convicted in connection with the case said he had to commit fraud "to stay in business," Clancy told him that "he should have invented business" rather than commit crime.

Clancy gave similar advice to ND students.

"Don't let your bank statements rule your lives," Clancy told the audience. "If you go into business, don't act out of greed but out of a desire to do good with the money you earn."

But not by basing their business

House Democrats rebel against budget package, Medicare an issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberal House Democrats rebelled Wednesday against the $500 billion deficit-reduction package as President Bush turned con­gressional leaders pushed hard for the plan on the eve of its final vote.

Leading House Democrats and Republicans expressed confidence that both sides would round up a majority of votes by Thursday night to pass Bush's full House plan to vote on a outline of the package of tax boosts and spending cuts.

That is my intuition, that when we work hard there will be a majority of both parties," said House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash.

But Bush, Foley and House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., worked furiously behind the scenes, with Bush privately with rank-and-file members and dispatching top lieutenants to do the same. Democratic leadership aides, speaking pri­vately, offered conflicting assessments of how worried they might be about the prospects.

Democrats and Republicans figured on Wednesday night they would each vote 40 votes short of what they need and that a considerable number of law­makers remained uncommitted.

A number of liberal Democratic said they would op­pose the proposal, complaining about its reliance on $60 billion in Medicare cuts over five years and about the $11 billion in tax breaks it contains for small businesses.

"To cut $60 billion from Medicare means a lot of low-in­come elderly are going to be faced with difficult out-of­pocket expenses," said Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif. "These people didn't create the deficit."

After a day of White House lobbying, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the needed votes still were not in hand, and declined to say how many votes the White House would muster.

Bush kept close tabs on the results of lobbying efforts, checking in with Fitzwater at the end of the day for a reading of what the Congress members were telling reporters. Fitzwa­ ter told him that "most say they are considering it, they're listening and they're sympa­thetic to the argument."

Twenty-seven more Republican Republi­cans met with Bush at the White House, the third straight day on which GOP lawmakers were summoned by the presi­dent for his sales pitch. One White House official called the operation the Bush administra­tion's biggest lobbying effort,
The Feast of Saint Francis of Assisi will be observed at the University of Notre Dame Thursday by a Mass, a simple meal, a candlelight procession and a prayer vigil for peace. The Mass will take place at 5 p.m. in the Sanford/Keenan Hall chapel. It will be followed by a meal of soup and bread at 6 p.m. in the Center for Social Concerns. At 7:30 p.m. there will be a candlelight procession from the War Memorial fountain to the Center for Social Concerns. This event is sponsored by the Women and Campus Ministry.

As East Germany disappeared on Wednesday, the Soviet Union moved to officially end its relations with the former nation and transfer bilateral agreements to the united Germany. The Supreme Soviet voted 303-23, with 35 abstentions, to adopt a resolution “taking under consideration” an East German proposal to annul a 1975 treaty governing relations with the Soviet Union. It was not clear whether the resolution actually ended the treaty or if further action would be needed. The official news agency Tass interpreted the vote as a cancelation of the treaty.
Arms agreement reached in principle by U.S. and U.S.S.R.

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union announced an arms agreement in principle Wednesday on a comprehensive treaty to limit non-nuclear weapons in Europe. If signed, such a treaty could represent the first limits on those weapons since the end of World War II.

The two sides also said they had made "substantial progress" on a separate agreement to limit long-range nuclear weapons.

The agreement came at the end of a week's worth of talks between Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

The negotiators agreed to skip the last remaining roadblocks — the issue of conventional or limited nuclear weapons and verification procedures.

In terms of his experiences abroad, Bellis focused on the cultural differences that result in culture shock.

He defined culture shock as "what happens to the individual's psychology when one confronts a new culture, a new way of life." He shared many humorous anecdotes of the difficulties he experienced amidst a new culture.

Bellis said that culture is learned behavior. Most things we know are subconscious. By the time Americans go to school at 6 years old, we are fluent in English.

He advised that when one goes abroad, he or she should be aware that "most of that culture you'll never even come face to face with in explicit ways.

"The challenge of living abroad," said Bellis, "is to attempt to control and come to terms with the continuing evolution of your learned way of life." Bellis said culture shock is also experienced when a person returns home. The traveler has experienced a "life changing" in his or her culture.

"Cross-cultural living is the most extraordinary and peaked form of behavior you will have ever experienced," said Bellis.

"What makes the culture clash such a terrific experience," Bellis said, "is that you have a very learned way of life, and you have to modify."

Another point remaining concerning limits on helicopters, "but that is not very difficult" and could be resolved by NATO and Warsaw Pact negotiators in Vienna, Bellis said.

The most difficult issues are the restriction on the "adaptive systems," Beilis said. These are the systems that can be modified to change in the face of new threats. The Soviets have used them to develop new weapons.

"The Soviets have a lot of that," Bellis said. "They have a lot of room to maneuver."

He said that Notre Dame plans to expand the faculty, increase graduate fellowships, offer more financial aid, provide better resources for the library and the computer labs and give additional funds to the University's institutes and centers.

Malloy predicted that the faculty would receive more national and international recognition for their publications and research. The salaries of the Notre Dame faculty rank in the top quintile of all research and teaching universities. Aggressive recruiting efforts have increased the size and improved the quality of the faculty, Malloy said.

The president also said that in the future the Notre Dame community will become increasingly sensitive to multicultural concerns. During the last five years the percentage of minority students has grown steadily.

There has also been an increased commitment of resources to financial aid and the preservation of high admission standards, Malloy said. On the graduate level, the construction of new graduate student housing will enhance student life, he said.

Issues such as Notre Dame's Catholic character, the teaching of ethics, gender-related concerns and the needs of student athletes, deserve the attention of the entire Notre Dame community, Malloy said.

"Our Catholic identity is our greatest strength," Malloy said. He also stressed the need for the community to address its obligations to society and to the Church "with openness and concern for the common good."

On the topic of student athletes, Malloy said "it is possible for us to maintain a high quality competitive athletic program that is consistent with our heritage."

In response to the recent nationwide concern about drug use among athletes, Notre Dame has implemented education programs and tried to create a climate of drug prevention in its athletic programs, he said. For example, the school's athletic department has regular unannounced drug tests of student athletes.

Malloy said Notre Dame can instill ethics in its students by introducing them to a theoretical framework of ethics that they can apply to real life situations.

In light of the Year of Woman, Malloy stated that during the last four years the number of females as increased from 22 percent to 37 percent of the undergraduate population.

Since 40 percent of the applicants are female, Malloy said that the University should either adopt gender-blind admissions policies or continue to adjust the ratio to reflect the applicant pool. He is recommending that the Board of Trustees consider that issue.

Addressing the issue of violence against women, Malloy said, "We need to cultivate a place where women are treated with dignity and respect."

Some current efforts toward achieving that goal include improved lighting around campus, emergency phones in parking lots, increased security patrolling and the Safe Walk program.

Ad hoc committee seeks means to combat sexism and racism on campus

By DUSTIN KLINGER

The ad hoc committee for combating racism and sexism at Notre Dame, set up as a result of educational campus about acquaintance rape and educating first-year students about racial and gender issues during their first meeting.

Facilitated by Kathleen Maas Weigert, faculty liaison and academic coordinator at the Center for Social Concerns, and Kate Halischak, executive office of the Gender Studies Program, the group was originally created as an offshoot of the Friday Forum and began meeting at the end of the 1989-90 school year.

Educating first-year students and acquaintance rape carried over as the two top issues and open forum at the end of the 1989-90 school year.

During an open forum Wednesday the group of 10 students and nine faculty and staff members also discussed the need for a campus-wide inclusive language policy, discussion about harassment in the classroom and a mentor program for first-year students.

Facilitated by Kathleen Maas Weigert, faculty liaison and academic coordinator at the Center for Social Concerns, and Kate Halischak, executive office of the Gender Studies Program, the group was originally created as an offshoot of the Friday Forum and began meeting at the end of the 1989-90 school year.

Facilitated by Kathleen Maas Weigert, faculty liaison and academic coordinator at the Center for Social Concerns, and Kate Halischak, executive office of the Gender Studies Program, the group was originally created as an offshoot of the Friday Forum and began meeting at the end of the 1989-90 school year.

The resident assistant training program, which emphasizes acquaintance rape awareness, prevention and counseling, was also mentioned as a positive step in combating the problem. The need for these kinds of dormitory administered programs to be extended to grad­uate dormitories was expressed as well.

The Freshman Year of Studies was agreed upon as the primary target for incorporating issues of sexism and racism into the curriculum to ensure early awareness. Some sugges­ted that a faculty training program could be implemented, and that Patricia O'Hara, vice president of Student Affairs, and Eileen Kolman, dean of Freshman Year of Studies, be included in developing these programs.

When the floor was opened for new discussion, one member asked how a student could respond when a professor repeatedly makes sexist and racist comments within a class. The official policy suggests that students take a complaint di­rectly to the professor. Weigert suggested that filing a compla­int with a group of students would be the most effective.

The adoption of a mentor program establishing a direct faculty connection for individ­ual students to take their concerns to was discussed as a way to clarify the procedure for reporting offenses. The mentor program established last year by the Office of Minority Stu­dent Affairs was suggested as an example to follow.

The committee also agreed that a policy of inclusive lan­guage should be adopted by the committee and suggested to the administration. Inclusive lan­guage was illustrated in replacing the word "freshmen" with "first-year students."

The committee will continue meeting to discuss these issues, but needs to find a permanent facilitator because Halischak will not continue after the Oct. 3 meeting. Weigert has also asked to be replaced at the end of this semester.

Anyone interested in joining this group is invited to join them at their next meeting in the Center for Social Concerns from 7 p.m. to 12 a.m.

Mutiny in Philippines reaches major city

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Mutilous soldiers seized a major southern city before dawn Thursday in a new attempt to overthrow the government of President Corazon Aquino. Manila radio stations said the mutineers, led by the former chief of Mrs. Aquino's guard force, were also in control of a regional military headquarters in the city of Cagayan de Oro. The armed forces went on nation­wide alert, and Mrs. Aquino huddled with her Cabinet and senior military officials and congressmen at the presidential palace. "I'm calling once again on the people to rally against these troublemakers," Mrs. Aquino said on the radio. "The constitution will be upheld with force when challenged with force." Steps were taken to isolate the rebels who seized the 402nd Brigade army base, located in the city of Butuan, on Mindanao island about 500 miles south of Manila. Flights to Mindanao were canceled and schools on the island were closed.

About 200 troops led by three medium-rank officers seized the brigade at about 1 a.m. Thursday (noon Wednesday EDT), army chief Gen. Renato de Villa said. One report said the mutiny commander had joined the mutiny. The rebels later gained control of Butuan, a port city of about 200,000 people to rally against these troublemakers. The Soviets, wher­ever they are stationed in the Middle East, rather than Iran, said it would attack U.S. aircraft if they launched a bombing campaign on its oil-rich province.

Malloy likes eligibility of freshman athletes

By KATE MANUEL

University President Father Edward Malloy spoke in favor of freshman athletic eligibility in his address to a meeting of the Faculty Senate Wednesday. When most schools talk about freshman ineligibility, it is virtually giving allowance to five-year red-shirting, according to Malloy. He said, "Where many have not been given sufficient weight by the faculty and the administration, one such is the Faculty Board on Athletics. Very seldom does a large institution like this function by ballot or referendum. The proposal, as I understand it, did not seem to represent any significant advances." Malloy believes tenure decisions should rest with the departments and colleges, not the upper-level administration and he questions whether anything could make the tenure process less painful for those denied it. "I am not aware that there is any situation where this is done except and comfort," said Malloy. "And I am not convinced that another level of review would help." Malloy’s attendance at the Faculty Senate followed his annual faculty address earlier the same day. Paul Conway, associate professor of finance, presided at the meeting and welcomed Malloy.

SMC gets grant from local bank

By CORRINE PAVLIS

Saint Mary’s College has received a $100,000 gift from Society Bank, Indiana for assistance in the renovation of the College’s largest classroom building. The grant will be part of a projected $2 million renovation project proposed for Madeleva Hall. In addition to classrooms, the building will house the majority of faculty and department offices.

The project calls for reconfiguration of office and classroom space and design of existing areas to accommodate computer facilities, study areas and student lounges. The heating and cooling systems for the building will also be repaired.

Society Bank is pleased to assist in the renovation of Madeleva Hall on the Saint Mary’s College campus," said Michael Hammes, president of the bank.

"The building is a landmark in the community and a lasting memorial to a great educator. Helping preserve it is an important responsibility that we wholeheartedly accept in partnership with Saint Mary’s," he added.

"We are grateful to Society Bank for this gift, which is indicative of the increasingly significant role that the local business community pays in support of higher education," said Saint Mary’s President William Hickey.

"We are pleased to be part of this growing partnership in the promotion of academic excellence." Madeleva Hall, named in honor of Sister Madeleva Wolff, president of Saint Mary’s from 1934 to 1961, was completed in 1961. Included on the lists of departments located in Madeleva are education, history, political science, mathematics, philosophy, psychology, religious studies, business administration, economics, sociology, anthropology, social work, and women’s Studies. The day students’ lounge and Pasqua Program are also located in the building. It has not yet been announced when construction is scheduled to begin.
FORMER HEAD OF PEACE CORPS: RUPPE SPEAKS ABOUT ITS FUTURE

When Loret Miller Ruppe took over as director of the Peace Corps in 1981, she was dismayed at the fact that the budget for the Corps was equal to the budget for the National Cable Television Network. The program is derived from issues, for distribution over a national cable network.

She found this troubling, since she had done the same thing for the Peace Corps. She described the program as a "disservice" to the American people, and its social needs and role of the Catholic Church in the nations to return to popular government.

In her lecture, Ruppe said that she was concerned about the changes that the Corps was bringing to the world.

Bear market is trouble for mutual funds

NEW YORK (AP) — The millions of Americans who sock away money in mutual funds didn't escape the bear market — lingering on Wall Street during the past six months.

In addition to taking a toll on the blue chips of the Dow Jones industrial average, the quarter that ended Sunday belted funds across the board, according to the Lipper-Penniman-Grey Global and the weakening economy were to blame. There were very few places to hide in the third quarter," said Michael Lipper, whose company, Lipper Analytical Securities Corp., released its quarterly performance report on nearly 1,800 mutual funds Wednesday.

Lipper groups the funds into 27 categories based on the type of investments they make, such as growth stocks or corporate bonds. Two-thirds of these groups performed as poorly as they did in past recessions.

But we look at our measures of prior down markets, and gave the new top spot to Wilmington, N.C. “I don’t think that (top rank) was any honor,” said Ken "We’re going back into the 'food and fuel' problem of the early "70s for low-income and senior citizens," predicts Edwin Rothschild, an energy specialist at Citizen Action, a consumer and environmental group.

Sharply higher prices could make the average season heating bill of $800, common in much of the Northeast, closer to $1,200 this winter, government and energy experts predict.

And federal budget negotia- tors are adding to the cost spi- ral. The new deficit-reduction bill that President Bush signed into law Tuesday would cut $25 billion from the budget, including $1 billion in energy conservation funds for states.

The program provided $217 million this year, but the Administration wants to cut that to $30 million for this winter, and many states are cutting public assistance programs aimed at helping the poor pay for heat. Federal energy subsidies for low-income families have been halted since 1985 to $1.05 billion for this fiscal year — enough to cover only one in ever-­ four people eligible because they are below or near the poverty level.

"We think the states should be picking up more" of the cost, said Net Fox, director of the office in the Department of Health and Human Services that administers the fund. Indeed, the Bush administration wants to phase out any other federal program that helps low-income people make their homes more energy-effi cient. The program provided $217 million this year, but the administration wants to cut that to $30 million for this winter, maintaining states already have too little money available for such programs.

But many state officials said their energy conservation funds are shrinking.

Dear Editor:

And several other members of the Notre Dame community, challenge the presence of ROTC at our University. We are students and faculty who believe in the tradition of non-violence taught by Jesus Christ and held by the Catholic Church since its origin. Because of our beliefs, we find Notre Dame’s commitment to the military through ROTC inconsistent with its profoundly respect the numerous reasons, particularly the financial reasons, that motivate students to join ROTC. Our dissent is not directed at these students, but at the institution.

The first is that we have no desire to judge, criticize or in any way alienate the students enrolled in Notre Dame’s ROTC program. Although we do not necessarily agree with them, we profoundly respect the numerous reasons, particularly the financial reasons, that motivate students to join ROTC. Our dissent is not directed at these students, but at the institution.

The second point is that we are not naive idealists. We understand fully that the immediate removal of ROTC from Notre Dame is a practical impossibility. Our disagreement with the present situation, though, has led us to formulate an agenda which a majority of the students at Notre Dame, including many who do not share our beliefs, could respect and support. It is an agenda which we believe is practical and deserving of serious consideration. We urge the students, faculty and administration of Notre Dame to reflect upon this agenda and work for its implementation.

Our agenda consists of two goals:

1. The establishment of a professional University staff position as part of Campus Ministry for the counseling of students who become conscientious objectors. The services of this counselor on conscientious objection would be available to all students including, but not limited to, those in ROTC. The counselor would have a designated office and office hours, a phone number listed in the campus directory, and would be well publicized. There is presently no one hired by Campus Ministry specifically for this purpose.

2. If a student in ROTC decides to leave the program, that student should not have to leave Notre Dame for financial reasons. There should be scholarship money available for such students. Notre Dame has already demonstrated its commitment to the military. By providing such a scholarship program, Notre Dame would be demonstrating an equal commitment to its ROTC students who decide that military service is not right for them.

We recognize that a call for the removal of ROTC at this time would fall upon deaf ears. If implemented, though, the goals we propose would make Notre Dame an environment far more amenable to those who find the military inconsistent with their beliefs and values.

Hispanic organizations extend welcome

"Hello? Que tal?" is a common phrase among many Hispanics around campus. It is an expression of sincerity. Translated in English, it means, "Hello, how are you?" Whether you have ties with Mexico, Central America, South America, Puerto Rico, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Spain, or any other Hispanic area, you will never feel left out (unless you decide to seclude yourself from others). This hospitality extends to other cultures as well.

"The Hispanic American Organization (HAO) welcomes everyone to learn more about the Hispanic culture and its customs," says Jorge Vera, the president of the Club. The club consists of students from a wide array of Hispanic backgrounds, including students of non-Hispanic backgrounds who enjoy discovering more about Hispanic traditions.

The club focuses on three main aspects: culture, society, and service. Each year HAO members organize a number of cultural activities to promote awareness on campus. The Posadas is one such event which commemorates the pilgrimage Mary and Joseph took to Bethlehem. Another cultural event honors the Virgin of Guadalupe (December 12), the patron saint of many Spanish-speaking countries.

The Annual Hispanic Semi-formal and the Big Brother/Big Sister program round off the social activities of the HAO. Cultural music played at the semi-formal will include the polka, corrida, cumbia, salsa, and merengue. The Big Brother/Big Sister program stepped off its first year with a cook-out at Carroll Hall.

Generally, Hispanic cultures are renowned for their strong faith and unity. Members of the HAO share these virtues with others through various service projects. Each Sunday several HAO members attend a Spanish mass at St. Stephen's Catholic Church in South Bend. Following the mass these students stay to assist teachers with the children's catechism program.

Service efforts are also shared at El Campito day care center in South Bend. Students are involved in coordinating activities for the young ones. In addition to HAO, ND/SMC Hispanic students may participate in the League for United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), a national organization with a branch founded at ND last spring. Although this club is politically oriented, it also sponsors a variety show called "Latin Expressions" at the end of the year.

Finally, Ballet Folklorico de Azul y Oro, Rachel Reyna at 283-4912. NOTE: Tonight there is an HAO meeting open to everyone at 7 p.m. in the T.V. room of Farley Hall. In addition, Ballet Folklorico de Azul y Oro will open its season this Friday with a performance at the Field House Mall at 4:30.

Written by Susie Ramirez and Rachel Reyna, vice president of the Ballet, make plans for the upcoming Ballet Folklorico in Siegfried Hall.

"Ferris Bueller" leaves audience unconscious

When asked what he has in common with the gorgeous girl from the season premiere, Ferris responds, "a weird name." This joke was even more humorous on the small screen.

"Ferris Bueller" was not worthy of comparison between its movie version, the new Ferris Bueller. Ferris is not happy even in his own right. This character proved to be one of the key elements in a classic film, and the humorous relationship between Ferris and his principal is necessary for the success of the television program also.

Unfortunately the conflict in this relationship seems forced, trite, and lacks humor.

Ferris Bueller tells his audience that "there exists only two states of consciousness: sub and un." Guess in which state his audience found itself?

Chris Wimmer and catcher Doug Mirabelli pace the team offensively. Mc Clawghan hit .340 and Wimmer .332, and both were named to the 1989 second team All-America. Hall hit .336 and Marcelle 302.

Notre Dame

For the Irish, viewers can expect sophomore David Slanes to start tonight’s game. Slines, a first-year Freshman All-America pick, led the nation with a 1.05 ERA. He set a 9-2 record while pitching primarily as a starter, but occasionally as a reliever.

In the second game, Murphy is undecided on his decision. Sophomore Pat Lesky (8-3, 3.14 ERA) or freshman Tom Price would get the call.

For both games, a circling bus will transport fans to Coveleski, located in downtown South Bend. A bus will leave from the main circle tonight starting at 6 p.m. and tomorrow from Gate 10 of the JACC at 7:30 p.m.
Here’s a look at the probable starters for Thursday’s game:

Catcher: Matt Krall was the backup catcher for senior captain Ed Lund last year. Krall hit .304 last year with one home run and six RBI in 46 at bats. If not Krall, last year’s second baseman Cory Mee will be behind the plate.

First Base: This year’s captain Joe Binkiewicz will return for his third year at first. Binkiewicz hit .322 with four home runs and 29 RBI last season, and also compiled a 4-4 record on the mound.

Second Base: Expect fresh talent lies, and with good reason. Jacobs hit .277 last year, but led the team in home runs (11), slugging pct. (671) and on-base pct. (.429). His 60 hits were eight better than anyone else on the team, and he missed 18 games with a back injury.

Designated hitter freshman Pat Lesky is a multi-talented player. The 6-7 sophomore went 1 for 3 last season, but Murphy has been impressed by Lesky’s hitting prowess. Edwin Hartwell and Adam Maisano will get considerable time at third.

Shortstop: Senior Mike Coss had a .265, 4 HR, 34 RBI season last year. Krall hit .302 last year with one home run and six RBI in 46 at bats. If not Krall, last year’s second baseman Cory Mee will be behind the plate.

Irish, Cardinal to meet in pool
By ROLANDO DE AGUIAR

The Irish and Cardinal squads will eat, live, and train together, as well as compete against each other, at the Rolfs Aquatic Center on Saturday.

Continuing the tradition of academic excellence, the Notre Dame swimmers will have a short lesson on what it takes to become, and remain, a collegiate powerhouse in the pool.

With a vast amount of talent, Notre Dame boasts strong swimmers, in their own right.

The Irish women's team is lacking winners on the roster, the ND swimming coach says, but with only six monogram winners, the team's 11th in collegiate tennis, and Vitale.

Christy Doran return, and will compete for superiority in the Rolfs Aquatic Center on Saturday.

Three freshmen among its top five players, while only one senior, Kim Pacella, in the team's roster, Villar Tracy Barton led the team to a 17-8 record last year, qualifying it for the NCAA tournament.

Barton, Pacella, sophomore Melissa Harris, and junior Christy Doran return, and will see action against Stanford.

For the Stanford match, the three freshmen follow Barton at the second, third, and fourth spots.

Christy Faustmann, from Allen S.C., Terri Vitale, out of Bradenton, Fla., and Lisa Tholen, of Wichita, Kan., have

"We want to redefine normality for the Rolfs pool," said Coach Welsh. "Bringing in Stanford this early in the season will help us do that."

Indeed, it should. Stanford finished last season with an outstanding third-place finish at the NCAA Championships, and this year's squad is backed by Jeff Rouse, a world record holder and NCAA champion in the breaststroke. The Stanford team also features the likes of distance freestyler Alec Kostich, a competitor in this summer's goodwill Games, and sprinter Erik Maurer.

The Irish boast strong swimmers, in their own right.

Senior captain Brian Rhi, last year's MVP and university record holder in the 500- and 1000-yard freestyle, will lead a squad that features ten freshman.

Senior Jim Byrne and sophomore John Godfrey bolster the Irish backstroke events, and Colin Cooley, another university record holder, heads the Irish breaststroke events. All in all, the squad returns 13 letterwinners.

"This is a great chance to see how much we have improved since last year," said Coach Welsh. "We also want to see each of our freshman race and try to find out which events suit them best. It's a good opportunity for our captains to show their leadership in a meet and generally an advantageous opportunity for our program."

The Stanford men's tennis team, hoping to continue its dominance on the national level during the weekend of Champions with one of the most talented bodies ever assembled.

With four players in the preseason Top 50, the Irish will have their hands full with the Cardinal when action gets underway Friday at the Eck Tennis Pavilion. The number one, two, and three singles matches begin at 6 p.m.

Notre Dame All-American David DiLucia, 7-0 after being ranked 10th in the preseason Volvo Tennis Poll, will probably face Stanford sophomore Jonathan Stark, ranked as the preseason Top 50, the Irish are coming off a year in which he posted a dual-match record of 22-3 (.880).

The home court advantage could be a deciding factor in some of the matches, according to Rosas.

"When you get on any kind of roll, the crowd really helps you keep the momentum. It's easy for the opposing team to get frustrated when we've gotten the crowd behind us."

With a respective showing against the three-time defending national champions, the Irish may gain enough momentum to propel them to the top of the pack in college tennis.

Fielder, who walked and lined out in his first two at-bats, sent a 2-1 pitch from New York Yankees rookie Steve Adkins into the first row of the upper-deck in left field in the fourth. He took four steps out of the batter's box, watched to see if the home run was fair, and then, didn't, did begin walking up and down and pumping both fists in the air.

"It was a relief," he said. "I'm just elated, I jumped for joy."

The two-run homer put Detroit ahead 6-0. After striking out, increasing his major league-leading total to 182, Fielder hit a three-run homer in the eighth off Alex Mills into the lower deck in left.

Fielder led the majors in homers and with 132 RBIs this season. He had gone 2-for-21 since his last home run; his longest drought of the year without a homer was 45 at-bats.

Fielder went 0-for-4 in each of the first two games of the season-ending series at Yankee Stadium. He struck out five times, popped out twice and grounded to the mound.

Of the last five players to hit 50 home runs, four were later named Most Valuable Player. The one who missed out was Mance, who hit 54 homers to Maris' record 61 in 1961 in the home run race between Yankee teammates.

For the second straight game, Tigers manager Sparky Anderson moved Fielder from the third spot in the lineup to second, hoping to get him an extra at-bat. Fielder drew a walk in a four-run first, capped by Gary Ward's grand slam, and lined out to left in the second.

The historic homer was the third given up by Adkins in 24 innings this year.

Fielder, 27, finished far ahead in the race for the home-run title. By Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs is second in the majors with 40, but was unable to catch Fielder.

The Tigers signed Fielder last December as a free agent, giving him a two-year, $3 million contract. At the time, many criticized the move, saying the Tigers had spent too much on an unproven player.

"The Detroit Tigers took a chance," Fielder said. "They believed and a lot of other people didn't believe. Things were said that weren't nice about Cecil Fielder, even before spring training."

"I wouldn't wish that on anyone in baseball."
Belles tie when the dark comes

The Saint Mary's soccer team (7-1-1) tied St. Joseph College 0-0 yesterday at Saint Mary's Field in a hard-fought match against the tough Division II squad.

The Belles made an impressive showing yesterday dominating both in offense and defense. Unfortunately the Belles were unable to score before play was suspended due to darkness after ten minutes of overtime.

Saint Mary's contained the aggressive St. Joseph team throughout the entire physical match. The Belles had many scoring opportunities but they couldn't get on the scoreboard.

"The team showed lots of composure," said head coach Tom Van Meter. "We played extremely well overall considering the wet and windy conditions."

Holtz would go for the victory

Auburn head coach Pat Dye heard the critics even before he sent kicker Jim Von Wyl onto the field.

With his Tigers trailing Tennessee 26-25 and only 1:56 remaining in Saturday's Southeastern Conference matchup, Dye chose to go for the extra point instead of the tie. But Von Wyl's field goal attempt was blocked, and the Volunteers escape with a 26-25 victory.

"The situation then was that the only chance we had for national championship at that time was to win," said Holtz. "A tie would have eliminated us as well. We weren't involved in a conference race, but it's still nice to keep you in the national championship race and you don't feel you have a good chance to make the two-point conversion, then you probably ought to kick it.

"I didn't want to go for the tie in his first conference game. That's his decision."

Quick-take Gene McGauley had arthroscopic surgery performed on his knee last Sunday. He tore cartilage in the knee Saturday against Purdue and is expected to be out two to four weeks. McGauley will be replaced in the starting lineup by Winston Sandri, who returned last week from a per­ceived back injury. McGauley could be considered a starter when he returns.

Irish baseball will kickoff Weekend of Champions

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO

Assistant Sports Editor

When 1989 NCAA Baseball Champion Wichita State takes to the field at Stanely Crouch Stadium tonight at 7 p.m., Irish Head Coach Pat Murphy can take all the credit.

Sure, it's the Weekend of Champions, and much planning and effort was spent in making sure Wichita State's attracting such a prominent baseball program. But Pat Murphy isn't just responsible for convincing Wichita State coach Gene Stephenson to come here. He's responsible for the entire fall sport concept.

"When we first played in the fall, it was just to get Notre Dame football and baseball on the same billing," said Murphy, referring to the "Battle Before the War" two years ago, in which the Notre Dame and Miami baseball teams played a two-game series during the Irish-Miami football weekend.

"The same type of talent attracts people to the games, and it's an obvious lead-in to the football games. We do whatever we can to do help the total picture of athletics here at Notre Dame, but those type of weekends are all predicated on the schedule of the football team."

In recognition of the football team's tremendous influence, we pause one moment in thanks for the Win.

Simien is up to the challenge

Who is the best lineman in college football?

While the names of Michael Stonebreaker, Donn Grimm, Andre Jones, Devon McDonald, Alfred Williams (Colorado), Kanavis McEach (Colorado), and Maurice Crum (Miami) may be given in response to that question, another name lurking close behind.

Eric Simien

A sophomore outside lineman from Los Angeles, he is all about talent, and he strives to live up to it. Last year, Simien saw action in 12 games, and in the run-up to the matchup with Michigan State. Despite his back injury, he made 69 appearances on special teams, and added 13 more special teams tackles. His presence is embodied by contributions against Colorado in the Orange Bowl.

Over the whole of 1989, he recorded nine tackles (two solo, seven assisted) and was also awarded a Notre Dame mono­gram. Last week against Purdue, he twice sacked

No doubt about the victor; the A's will take the Series

I'm going to go out on a real limb here: the Oakland A's will win the 1990 World Series.

I know, I know, it's not the most outrageous prediction; but sometimes you just can't argue with the facts. It's boring, too, because there will be no surprise.

Fortunately, none of this year's underdogs could muster the strength to overthrow any of the division leaders and battle for what could have been wide open playoff berths.

The most exciting, or comical, as I prefer to call it, part of this season's finale surrounds (surprise, surprise) the Boston Red Sox and their infamous ability to nauseate the masochistic fans who, yearly, ride the team's annual rollercoaster to oblivion.

Statisticians have recently determined that Boston's quality of play in a game is inversely proportional to the importance of its outcome.

Of course, the Sex winning the AL East delays the inevitable. Meanwhile, those fans born after 1918 will try to replace visions of grounders rolling past haggard infielders with delusions of Roger Clemens pitching eight straight perfect games and winning it all for his team. Trust me, my roommate is from Massachusetts and I've seen it happen.

So who will Oakland beat for the World Championship?

Both the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates have spent the past few weeks plodding towards the finish line with one eye gazing fearfully behind them.
