The candidacy of Paul Peralez for District 1 Student Senator has been revoked by the Student Government Elections Committee for "evidence of campaign violations," according to Matt Caito, committee chair.

There will be no run-off election today for District 1, and Billy Allen will be named William Stenger pending appeal to the Student Senate, according to Caito.

Peralez will appeal the decision today in a meeting with Student Senate.

In a letter Tuesday to Peralez, Caito said that the committee found him in violation of five election rules, including failing to seek approval for campaign posters, and defaming his opponent during the campaign.

During the campaign period, the District 1 race took on racial overtones. Peralez, who is Hispanic, publicly expressed outspoken views about Student United for Respect (SUFR), and some of his posters claimed that his African-American opponent was a member of that controversial student group.

Peralez also claimed that his campaign had been sabotaged by opponents who removed and destroyed his campaign posters.

Allen expressed satisfaction with the committee's decision. "I'm really happy to see that the rules are followed, because they are there for a reason."

The ruling to revoke Peralez's candidacy was a unanimous decision by the committee, Caito said, and made with the authority invested in them by Student Senate's Campaign Rule 17.

Peralez responded to the decision by saying his violations were due to misunderstanding the rules he called "ambiguously and are not explicit enough."

"The rules have been consistently enforced, and I haven't been," said Caito of the decision. After it was brought to Caito's attention that Peralez was posting unauthorized posters in Dillon Hall, Peralez was found in violation of Rule 10, which states that "Copies of all campaign material and posters must be handed in to the Elections Committee for approval and stamping before posting..."

The posters must be approved by both the Office of Student Activities and the Elections Committee.

According to Caito's letter, "at least four of Paul's posters were not approved or would not have been approved for posting by the Elections Committee."

Some of the posters made references to his opponent and to SUFR, urging students to vote for Peralez because of his stance against SUFR and its tactics. "You know where S.U.F.R. stands, you know where he stands," read one of Peralez's posters.

In Tuesday's Observer, Allen said that he was not a member of SUFR.

Peralez called the violation of this rule, "a minor infraction," explaining that the posters in question were displayed only in Dillon Hall, for "about ten minutes."

He expressed concern that the rule prohibits candidates from making displays promoting candidates or activities, including "proposing that [the] rule be changed, that's because it's a wrong rule, that's because it's a wrong, unjust rule," he said.

Peralez was also found in violation of the Elections Committee Rule 10, which states that a candidate cannot "not solicit an endorsement from a (residence) hall."

One of Peralez's posters read, "That S.U.F.R. guy from Alumni Hall, Paul of Dillon Hall," and the letter from Caito said that there was at least one additional poster in which he is endorsed by Dillon Hall.

Peralez said that he did not believe saying that he is from Dillon was implying an endorsement, and said he would understand the charge if he had not been aware of the frame of his rector or hall president.

"Is this poster really an endorsement?" he asked.

Rule 10 of the Campaign Rules states candidates "will be held responsible for the behavior of their supporters and anyone in their campaign organization."

Peralez said that he was aware that certain "overzealous supporters" placed posters defaming his opponent around Dillon Hall, and said he removed all of these posters that he saw.

"How can I be responsible for the psychology of every person who happens to support me," he argued.

Peralez's behavior during the campaign was also questioned by the Elections Committee. He was found in violation of Rule 12, which states that unethical behavior includes, "insulting or defaming other candidates," according to Caito's letter.

Two of Peralez's posters were found to "specifically deface the character of his opponent," according to Caito's letter, and "implied defamations exist on his other posters," Peralez said he did not believe that his posters crossed the line, and questioned the Committee's decision that "accusing him unfairly."

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of every eight children in America doesn't get enough to eat and is far more likely to become sick and miss school than youngsters who do, according to a childhood hunger study represented as the most comprehensive ever undertaken in the nation.

Those 5.5 million children come from the poorest families, which spend so much of their income on housing that they can afford an average of only 68 cents per person for each meal, said the Food Research and Action Center, which released the report Tuesday.

The nutrition advocacy group's three-year, million-dollar survey of 2,135 randomly selected families "paints a disturbing picture of the day-to-day struggle of low-income households to maintain a nutritionally adequate diet," said Executive Director Robert Fersh.

"It shows that shelter costs dominate the budgets of most households, leaving little money for food and other necessities," he said. "It shows that many working families, including those with a member employed full time, cannot escape hunger."

The doo-to-door survey was conducted in seven areas of the country where the characteristics of the low-income population reflected the impoverished population of the country overall. The organization said it was "the most rigorous and comprehensive study of childhood hunger ever conducted in this country."

The people surveyed came from families whose annual income was 185 percent of the federal poverty level or less. Since the government's poverty level in 1990 for a family of four was $12,700, families of four at 185 percent of poverty would earn $23,495.

The 185 percentage figure was used because it is the one used to determine eligibility for free school lunches and food stamps. The survey found that low-income families are resourceful in using whatever government assistance is available to supplement their earned income, but they still can't get enough to eat.

"They are not buying frozen dinners with their food stamps. They're buying things like rice, beans and cornmeal," said Cheryl Wehler, director of the survey project.

The surveyors asked questions of families in urban areas of Connecticut, Michigan, Minnesota and New York and rural areas of Alabama, California and Florida. Based on those answers, they classified some families as hungry and others as at risk.

The surveyors said the families whose children were categorized as hungry had average incomes 25 percent below the poverty level. They spent nearly a third of their income on food, but that amounted to only 68 cents per person per meal.

Most of the family income went for housing, the surveyors found, with the poorest families spending more than 60 percent of their income on shelter.

"This share was substantially larger than the typical American household, whose shelter expenses were 22 percent of their gross income in 1987," said the report.

Economy frustrates senior job search

The small decline in interviews does not accurately reflect the job climate, Powell said.

"You do hear that the companies still coming to campus have fewer job openings this year," he said.

Purdue has suffered even more. General Motors, historically the biggest employer of students from the school, has canceled all interviews this year. Overall, the school has seen a 10 percent decline in scheduled visits by recruiters.

For example, on April 1 this year the school has just four companies scheduled to visit the school. On the same day last year, 28 recruiters had shown up.

"That's telling me things don't look real great," said Richard Stewart, director of the Purdue placement office for 30 years.

For the past five years, Indiana colleges report, on average, that more than 80 percent of their seniors land jobs within six months of graduation.

About 18,000 students at Indiana, Purdue and other state-funded universities are expected to get bachelor's degrees this year, the Indiana Commission for Higher Education said. Private colleges graduate about 5,000 per year.

To me it's scarier this year than others," said Kitty Arnold, director of career placement services for the University of Notre Dame. "It (the recession) is unpredictable. It's not industry specific but goes across all kinds of industry lines."

Students are told to be flexible and willing to relocate. Companies with openings have the upper hand and so can afford to be more selective and offer smaller salaries.

Fink, who headlined for Texas, said he received offers from four companies in Chicago, but the salaries offered were $4,000 or $5,000 less than what he saw last year when he tested the market.

Placement officials say students in computer, math, engineering and other technical fields won't have to hunt as hard as students with liberal arts and other non-technical degrees. "I never thought a recession would affect an honors student," said Purdue senior Mark Schoell of H. Wayne. "It's been frustrating."

(Allen) of being in SUFR is a form of defamation. The violation of Rule 19 involved Peralez's failure to settle the penalties discussed during a phone call with Caito Monday evening. "Paul was asked to remove posters in violation from Dillon Hall and to return them along with a receipt for their printing to student govern- ment," the letter said.

He was supposed to complete this process by Tuesday morning, Caito said, and Peralez still had not delivered the necessary materials by 5 p.m.

Peralez rebutted this violation as well, asking if the necessary materials by 5 p.m. had not delivered the processing, Caito said, and Peralez still had not delivered the materials later that day.

The decision to terminate Peralez's candidacy was based upon Rule 17, which says, "The Election Committee will be the arbiter of all penalties and reserves the right to change any penalty based on the magnitude of the offense."

Peralez argued that "the magnitude of the violations" was very small. He noted that the posters in question were displayed only in Dillon Hall, "not in every dorm, not in every bathroom."

There is nothing in the by-laws that prohibits Allen, a current student, from voting on the appeal, Student Body President Bob Pasin said. However, Allen said, "I would disqualify my vote."

Deacons to be ordained on campus

Special to The Observer

Four deacons will be ordained Roman Catholic priests by the Congregation of Holy Cross in Sacred Heart Chapel.

The ordination will take place on April 6 at 1:30 p.m. Those to be ordained are John Domato, serving St. Francis Xavier parish in Richmond; Cliff David Guffey, serving Little Flower parish in South Bend; Paul Koliman, serving St. Joseph's parish in South Bend; and Patrick Neary, serving St. John Vianney parish in Goodyear, Ariz.

The ordaining bishop will be the Most Rev. Paul Waldschmidt, auxiliary bishop (retired) of the Archdiocese of Portland in Oregon.

All those to be ordained joined the Holy Cross fathers as candidates in the seminary programs at Notre Dame and made their first vows in the Holy Cross order at Holy Cross Novitiate in Cascade, Colo.

Continuing Education will follow the ordination.

Supreme Court rules on trial procedure

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided Supreme Court veered from previous rulings Tuesday and said criminal defendants whose coerced confessions were improperly used as evidence are not always entitled to new trials.

By a 5-4 vote, the court ruled in an Arizona case that using such confessions may be "harmless error" if other trial evidence was sufficient to convict the defendant. Dissenters said the decision "disdoses one of the fundamental tenets" of justice in America.

In other decisions, the court:

- Ruled, 6-3, that U.S. citizens working in foreign nations for American companies are not protected by a federal law banning bias against women and minorities.
- Removed a major threat to the government's efforts to police the savings and loan industry by ruling unanimously that federal regulators may not be sued over their alleged negligence in handling the savings and loan operations of all thrifts.

In the coerced-confession case, the court's dissenters said the decision "overrides (a) vast body of precedent ... and ... disdoses one of the fundamental tenets of our criminal justice system" — that such evidence never may be used.

In decisions dating back to 1884, the court has said confessions are coerced and unconstitutional if not made "freely, voluntarily and without compulsion or inducement of any sort.

Confessions obtained through physical beatings and psychological ploys alike had been ruled inadmissible as evidence in a series of decisions, many of them in the 1960s from a liberal court led by the late Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Today's court is far more conservative, as reflected by the five-member majority in Tuesday's decision. That majority included William Rehnquist, appointed by President Richard Nixon and elevated to chief justice by President Ronald Reagan; the court's three Reagan appointees — Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Antonin Scalia and Anthony Kennedy; and President Bush's sole appointee, Justice David Souter.

"This ruling doesn't chip away at past decisions. It goes right to the heart of the Warren court era," said Ira Robbins, an American University law professor. "This is a major departure from the past, perhaps traceable to the absence of Justice (William J.) Brennan."

Brennan, formerly the court's leading liberal, retired last July.

He was replaced by Souter. Scott Wallace of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers called the decision "a major change in the legal landscape for coerced confessions." The ruling does not directly affect the court's landmark 1966 decision in Miranda v. Arizona, requiring police officers to warn criminal suspects about their rights before questioning them.

Confessions given to police in the absence of such warnings remain inadmissible at trial. But now, such a confession wrongly admitted as evidence would not necessarily require a new trial.

Tuesday's ruling actually yielded three distinct votes among the justices, with Rehnquist and Justice Byron White taking turns speaking for shifting five-member coalitions.

The court first ruled that a confession given in Ore the Fullmanate's Arizona murder trial had been "the product of deliberate deception." Joining White in that holding were Scalia and Justices Thurgood Marshall, Harry Blackman, John Paul Steven. The court, led by Souter, then ruled that coerced confessions wrongfully made at the time of arrest may be used at trial sometimes are "harmless" and do not require new trials.

And finally, the court ruled that the use of Fulminante's confession at his trial sometimes is barred as evidence.

Bush appeals Gorbachev to end the stalling and break the arms stalemate

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a summit conference on hold, President Bush has appealed to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to exert his authority over the military to break a stalemate on two stalled arms treaties, officials said Tuesday.

Bush is asking the Soviet leader to remove stumbling blocks to the already-signed Conventional Forces in Europe treaty before the United States is willing to attend a superpower summit on nuclear arms.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwatter said Tuesday.

A personal letter from Bush to Gorbachev delivered Monday is a thinly veiled attempt by Bush to get Gorbachev stop deferring to military commanders whose doubts about weapons reductions is considered by the administration to be the main reason for the stalemate.

The letter urges the Soviet leader to "energize the process" by asserting his authority, officials who declined to be identified said Tuesday.

Bush also discussed the Soviet situation with the visiting German finance minister Theo Waigel.

Waigel told reporters they talked about "how difficult it is right now to provide economic aid for the Soviet Union for a number of reasons."

Waigel said Bush raised the Soviet oppression in the breakaway Baltic republics and said "it would be very important for the Soviet government to set a positive sign in the Baltic states, and that then would make it easier for us to ... to provide economic support for the Soviet Union."

The United States is upset over what it considers Soviet violations of the spirit of the CFE treaty.

So deep are the disagreements that Secretary of State James Baker III was unable to break the deadlock during a trip two weeks ago to Moscow even though he brought along his senior arms control experts.

Negotiations are due to resume among technical experts on April 15 in Vienna.

The differences on the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (START) are possibly deeper — so much so that Baker found the Soviets unwilling even to discuss them during his Moscow trip.

Baker's analysis of the situation is that Gorbachev was deferring to the Soviet military on arms control in exchange for their political support as he tries to survive criticism of his reform program.

Negotiations in Vienna to put the treaty into effect went into informal recess last Thursday with no resolution of disputes that are keeping the Bush administration from submitting it to the Senate for ratification.

From the U.S. standpoint, the biggest problem was the Soviet military's insistence that three naval divisions assigned to shore duty be exempt from cutbacks required under the treaty signed last November in Paris by Bush, Gorbachev and the leaders of 20 other countries.

Similarly, negotiations to reduce long-range nuclear weapons went into recess in Geneva last Wednesday without agreement on how to monitor the contemplated 30 percent reductions in missiles, bombers and submarines.

The stalemates are preventing even to discuss them during his Moscow trip.

The stalemates are preventing the rescheduling of a Bush-Gorbachev summit in Moscow.

"We would still like to hold a summit. We would like to resolve these CFE matters as a means of expediting and setting up a summit date," said Fitzwatter.

Elderly men fight intruder

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Two elderly brothers, blind and hard of hearing, were bloodied but unbroken after they fought an armed intruder who broke into their house.

Edgar Maulfby, 84, and his 79-year-old brother, Tom, required a total of 40 stitches for head cuts after Sunday's attack.

Police said the attacker first demanded payment of a $40 bill.

The brothers gave him $20, but he continued to say the bill was not enough and then forced his way in by breaking through the screen door. He then attacked Tom, and Edgar came to the rescue, authorities said.

Study: Church displayed as authoritarian by media

NEW YORK (AP) — A study of news coverage of the Roman Catholic Church shows that the church has been overwhelmingly portrayed as an oppressive or authoritarian institution, its authors said Tuesday.

According to the study of four major news organizations, church conflicts often were presented as between the church hierarchy and lower-level clergy, laity and others.

"The result was a long-running media drama that pitted a doctrinaire institutional hierarchy against reformers from within and without," said the report by the Washington-based Center for Media and Public Affairs.

"The descriptive terms most frequently applied to the church emphasized its conservative theology, authoritarian forms of control and anachronistic approach to contemporary society," the report said.

The study, which involved counts of sources quoted for or against church positions, said more favorable news reports were consistently focused on church teachings than defended them over the past three decades.

Regarding sexual morality, the report says 56 percent of views quoted disagreed with church positions, including 91 percent of priests and 86 percent of laity involved. Church teaching was upheld by 5 percent of bishops quoted.

"Church teachings on sexual morality were endorsed almost exclusively by members of the hierarchy," it said. "The overall effect was to present the debate over sexual morality as a split between the church hierarchy and everyone else."

The study was sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, a traditionally lay Catholic fraternal organization, and the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights, an anti-defamation organization to defend religious rights.

S. Robert Lichter, a political scientist who directed the study with two sociologists, said it found that the media had portrayed the church "as authoritarian, but not beyond my competence," he said in an interview.

"Yet in the 15 years included in our four time frames studied, the report says the four media organizations ran more than 10,000 news items about the U.S. Catholic Church from which a sample of 1,876 news items were "qualitatively" and "quantitatively" studied.

The report claims that content-analysis method shows researchers to "classify the news objectively and systematically."

However, it noted that in some categories, relatively few stories out of the total were considered in making the comparative counts.

Everette Dennis, executive director of the Gannett Foundation Media Center at Columbia University, said the content-analysis method is technically valid in some cases, but questionable in dealing with news reporting.

Since news largely stems from controversy and problems, he said the negative element almost invariably prevails, whatever the institution involved. "It's not all Valentines or warm responsive features," Dennis said.

The report says news sources "supporting the church were in the minority on the broad range of debates relating to sexual morality and church authority," as rights of dissent, control, clerical celibacy and role of women.

"The major objection to this part involved eccumenical efforts," the report says. "Even on this dimension, however, opinion was split on whether the church was helping or hindering efforts to promote inter-religious understanding.

Concerning church authority and dissent, the report says, "church scientists" in news stories consistently favored centralizing power. Support for change was almost twice as frequent as defense of the status quo.

On birth control, for example, 53 percent of sources quoted disagreed with the church's stand against contraception, but on abortion 56 percent of sources agreed with the church position, the report says.

It says most stories that employed descriptive language depicted the church as oppressive and lacking reverence to the modern world. "In sum, the imagery of news coverage has been generally and increasingly unfavorable to the church," the report said.

"Whether this was justified or not is beyond my competence," he said in an interview.

In the case that prompted national outrage, motorist Rodney King is seen in a video being beaten 56 times with batons, kicked and shot with a Taser electric stun gun during a nighttime traffic stop March 3 in Lake View Terrace. Doctors say King may suffer permanent damage from 11 skull fractures. The videotape was made by a neighborhood resident, George Holliday, from his balcony. He was honored at a ceremony by Kenneth Hahn, a Los Angeles County supervisor. Called a hero, Holliday said, "Things like this need to be done."

In other developments, the California Highway Patrol completed an internal investigation of two of its officers on the scene, a county grand jury has reconvened to hear evidence about numerous officers who watched the attack, and the FBI has run into trouble questioning some police officers.

During the Superior Court arraignment, lawyers for the four charged police men lost bids to have the indictment declared insufficient on grounds the charges were vague. They also failed to show the men were entitled to preliminary hearings.

The officers were ordered to appear in court Thursday. Judge Gary Klausner said a trial would probably begin the week of April 28.

Defense attorneys claimed prosecutors were rushing the case to trial because of publicity generated by the videotape.

Los Angeles (AP) — Four white policemen pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges stemming from the videotaped beating of a black motorist after their attorneys failed to have a grand jury indictment tossed out.

In soft voices, a sergeant and three of his officers answered "not guilty." If convicted, the four men face maximum penalties of four years to nearly eight years in prison.

Deputy District Attorney Terry White denied the allegation. "This office has done a very thorough and professional job," he told the judge.

State highway patrol Commissioner Maury Haxman and three executive assistants will review results of its probe, said CHP spokesman Sam Haynes. The findings and recommendations will be given to the district attorney's office, the state Department of Personnel and the governor's office.

The investigation reviews the actions of highway patrol officers Tim and Melanie Singer, who were among 21 city police officers present when the attack occurred.

FBI agents seeking to question about 250 officers at the station where the indicted officers were assigned called off interviews with about two dozen officers when investigators were told they would not voluntarily cooperate, a lawyer said.

Cecil Marr, an attorney for the Police Protective League, which represents the 8,300-member city force, said the FBI is insisting on only voluntary interviews.

FBI officials, who sent dozens of agents into the field, refused to discuss the investigation.

Support for change was almost twice as frequent as defense of the status quo." On birth control, for example, 53 percent of sources quoted disagreed with the church's stand against contraception, but on abortion 56 percent of sources agreed with the church position, the report says.

It says most stories that employed descriptive language depicted the church as oppressive and lacking reverence to the modern world. "In sum, the imagery of news coverage has been generally and increasingly unfavorable to the church," the report said.

"Whether this was justified or not is beyond my competence," he said in an interview.

In the case that prompted national outrage, motorist Rodney King is seen in a video being beaten 56 times with batons, kicked and shot with a Taser electric stun gun during a nighttime traffic stop March 3 in Lake View Terrace. Doctors say King may suffer permanent damage from 11 skull fractures. The videotape was made by a neighborhood resident, George Holliday, from his balcony. He was honored at a ceremony by Kenneth Hahn, a Los Angeles County supervisor. Called a hero, Holliday said, "Things like this need to be done."

In other developments, the California Highway Patrol completed an internal investigation of two of its officers on the scene, a county grand jury has reconvened to hear evidence about numerous officers who watched the attack, and the FBI has run into trouble questioning some police officers.

During the Superior Court arraignment, lawyers for the four charged police men lost bids to have the indictment declared insufficient on grounds the charges were vague. They also failed to show the men were entitled to preliminary hearings.

The officers were ordered to appear in court Thursday. Judge Gary Klausner said a trial would probably begin the week of April 28.

Defense attorneys claimed prosecutors were rushing the case to trial because of publicity generated by the videotape.
In the business world, you run across many means of communicating.

Isn't it great to know that Macintosh is multi-lingual.

Apple SuperDrive.

The Apple SuperDrive is part of every Macintosh computer sold today. This disk drive can not only read Macintosh diskettes, but also diskettes used in IBM or IBM compatible computers. That means that you can take your friend's diskette with a Lotus file created on an IBM computer and pop it into your Macintosh. With Apple File Exchange, a software program shipped with every Macintosh, you can quickly transfer the Lotus file to a Macintosh file so it can be used with your favorite Macintosh spreadsheet application.

If you really want to run applications you use on your IBM or IBM compatible computers, you can do so by adding either software or hardware to your Macintosh.

Bottom line, the Macintosh is the best of both worlds. It's multi-lingual!

This week, anyone can enter into the free drawing of a Mac SE/30, by registering in the computer lab of Hayes-Healy. The drawing is on April 18th, and you must be present to win.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The 1992 race for the White House is starting with the arrival of long-shot, undeclared Democratic candidates who are attempting to use domestic issues to blunt the postwar euphoria benefiting President Bush.

"George Bush thinks we should have a coronation," said former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas, one of the possible contenders. "I checked the Constitution and there's no provision for a coronation."

None of the long-shots is ready to formally stake his claim to the Democratic nomination for president. But this is where it starts, with the country's first major Democratic test in the caucuses of Feb. 17. 1992.

And if nothing else, the potential candidates say it's time to start poking holes in Bush's armor.

In a swing through the state this week, two-time candidate Jesse Jackson assailed Bush's "moral vulnerability" as the nation's focus shifts from the Gulf War.

While Jackson said he wasn't ready to decide on a third run, "we will not allow this race to be a referendum on one piece of real estate in the world."

Jackson arrived on the heels of 1972 Democratic nominee George McGovern, here to test the waters, and just hours before Tsongas met with party activists Monday.

Though early and iffy, such potential contenders serve a purpose, state Democrats say. "The race has to begin sometime," said Attorney General Bennie Campbell, a former Iowa Democratic chairwoman.

"This is the beginning of the season when people check it out. Iowa is a good place to do some reality-testing."

"You can't win an election unless you pose alternatives," said Rep. David Nagle, D-Iowa, another former state chairman.

Tsongas, for one, offered his own options. The number one objective we have as Democrats is to convince this country we know something about economics and drop some of the old dogma," said Tsongas, who left the Senate in 1984 because of cancer, which he has since beaten.

Amherst selectmen extend anti-nepotism laws to bar 'significant others' from office

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Contending that a "significant other" isn't just another taxpayer, selectmen in this college town have extended the state's anti-nepotism laws to their friends and lovers.

In a 3-1 vote Monday night, selectmen adopted a policy barring the appointment of their own relatives or "significant others" to town boards and committees.

Selectman Harry Brooks cast the lone vote against the policy.

Last month his fiancee Margot Parrot publicly broke their engagement, maintaining she had failed to gain appointment to the Finance Committee and the Planning Board because of her romance with Brooks.

"This is totally absurd," said Selectman Carolyn Holstein.

"This is totally absurd," said Selectman Carolyn Holstein said a policy dealing only with spouses and immediate family members did not "adequately reflect the diverse nature of relationships in Amherst or in the 20th century."

Most of us have heard about the radical changes taking place at "politically correct" colleges and universities across America. Many schools now prohibit derogatory remarks directed at homosexuals, minorities, the disabled ("differently abled" to the politically correct), and women ("women" to the politically correct). Students of politically correct professors are taught that the heart of Western civilization is racism, sexism and classism.

Some universities, yielding to pressure from politically correct students and faculty, are eliminating traditional course requirements with teach the classics (such as Plato's Republic and Dante's Divine Comedy). These other events are the result of a system of beliefs shared by many radicals in the education field. This system attempts to set the basic precepts of politically correct philosophy.

1. Truth is lies. The idea that anything can be objectively known is dismissed as unholy. Lies are accepted as truth by the politically correct. Thus, when Americans read the New York Times recently admitted in the New York Review of Books that "nothing in deconstructionism provides an ethical criticism of Nazism."

2. Knowledge is Ignorance. When we think of "knowledge," we think of historical facts, mathematical theorems, and the like. This, say the politically correct, is the essence of being ignorant. Every field of study from physics to philosophy is essentially political. Thus, the facts and theories that come out of them are nothing more than politically correct dogma. These dogmas are labeled "true" to face value, we are building our ignorance, not our knowledge.

We only gain true understanding when we grasp the realities of politics, racism, sexism, and classism. Thus, when we study law, we study the like. This, say the politically correct, is the essence of being ignorant. Every field of study from physics to philosophy is essentially political. Thus, the facts and theories that come out of them are nothing more than politically correct dogma. These dogmas are labeled "true" to face value, we are building our ignorance, not our knowledge.

Arguments that champion the individual over the group, the "politically correct" individuals, belonging to the largest or dominant group, identity politics, say the politically correct. The culturally politically correct. The culturally correct.

Dear Editor:

Political Correctness. The term is bandied about by individuals of all political stripes, although those on the conservative end of the political spectrum have attempted to appropriate the debate by redefining what is and is not appropriate to say and discuss by claiming that they are the victims of the sort of left-wing plot to stifle their thought.

I, academicians who are the National Association of Scholars have come out against what they see as the liberal infill culture of the university. Are these rights critical? Is there some sort of plot to persecute conservatives? Or is it the other way around? Are conservatives actually trying to stifle everybody else? Or is there a problem at all, and if so, does it actually break down along the aforementioned ideological lines?

To answer this, we must first define what political correctness can be defined as a syndrome whereby a certain group of people attempt to stifle thought and force others to think within designated ideological lines. This definition says nothing about actuality which does this to whom, or in what particular context. The issues around diversity can be perceived as the kind of non-Western thought and the curriculum, which is based, almost exclusively, on Western thought. On the other hand, there are those who advocate a traditional core curriculum, which is actually necessary, let us hope, to prevent this kind of political correctness which they decry.

The heart of this debate is whether or not diversity is an issue that is worth the respect or lack thereof given to certain groups of individuals by those in the business of expanding the mind.

Since it has been the more conservative elements of society which have been crying foul regarding attempts to stifle their thought with their alleged grievances; however, I will show that they do in fact have some legitimate points to make.

On the other hand, we have those who are championing the cause of diversity and basic respect for the human individual, regardless of his or her views.

On one hand we find those who advocate a traditional core curriculum, which is based, almost exclusively, on Western thought. On the other, there are those who advocate for some sort of modification of this, including the introduction of diversity and a perspective, as well as the greater inclusion of women and minorities, who have been there underrepresented in many educational endeavors.

The defenders of the traditional viewpoint claim that his interests are trying to undermine Western Civilization as we know it, are attempting to force their particular political ideology on all others, and can those who disagree with them racist, sexist and many other epithets. Thus, they claim to be victims of the scourge known as political correctness.

What they do not seem to understand is that through defining their viewpoint of society as the only one which should be taught, they themselves are propagating a viewpoint. Indeed, political correctness seeks to restrict discriminatory persecution actually mask their own biases. [Another area where political correctness is seen is in the hiring process. Many people claim that attempts to increase representation in the faculty is tantamount to a quota system, and therefore not allowed to be attempted. There are some who believe that this quota is a way to right past wrongs in terms of discrimination. Again,]

Accent Writer

I make my way to the Pasquerilla Center which houses all ROTC programs for the University, reminding myself of who I am going to talk to. Lieutenant Colonel Douglass Hemphill, commissioned since 1966 in the United States Army, was one of the officers chiefly responsible for the Defense Department’s approval and deployment of the Patriot missile in the mid-1980’s. Reflecting on the possibilities of events had the Patriot never come into existence, I make my way up to Col. Hemphill’s second floor office. In my position as Accent writer, student and campus activities are my beat, and rarely do I write about topics of national significance. Accordingly, I look forward to getting an interview with Col. Hemphill underway.

He greets me, shows me into his office, and makes sure I am comfortable. “It must be a slow news day,” he says, “if they want to do a story about me.” Slow news day or not, the facts of Hemphill’s 25 year career stand out. From his 25 months as an advisor in Vietnam to his ultimately successful efforts in helping clean up the Army’s drug problem in the mid-70’s, to his work on the Patriot missile in his Pentagon days in the 80’s to his current tour at Notre Dame, Hemphill has run the gamut of nations and assignments.

He finds his most significant work, however, to be his current extended tour of duty as an instructor in the ROTC program here on the campus. The customary four-year tour has been extended a year in his case, and the prospect of having to leave is one of the factors in his imminent retirement. “I consider my work here to be the most important and the most fun of my career,” he says.

An instructor of Military Ethics and the Law of War, among other classes in the ROTC program, Hemphill has twice led Notre Dame’s program to first place in rankings of 78 Midwestern collegiate ROTC programs. He also serves on Notre Dame’s Committee on Ethics in ROTC.

Hemphill describes his mission here at Notre Dame. “We must make sure that students who will be commanding as lieutenants are ready as can be to go into any situation and take over and lead it.” Greater than his formal teaching duties, Hemphill finds the most significant aspect of his task is as a round-the-clock example for the ROTC students. He sees his role as a model showing the right way to act and to lead.

Aside from his ROTC duties, Hemphill, also a deacon at Sunnyside Presbyterian Church, teaches a War Law and Ethics class for the Theology department. He also makes occasional presentations in some Government classes.

Hemphill sees an immense difference between the Army of the 70’s and today. “An Army draft is just a draft,” he says. “Before, the Vietnam War, most prominently in the years 1975-77. At that time, Hemphill served as a Brigade Adjutant, Battery Commander, and Battalion Operations Officer for what he describes as an “isolated division” in Germany.

At that time, due to factors such as the draft, a huge problem involving drugs and drug dealing existed in the Army’s ranks. The concentration of the Army’s supervisory and command personnel in the Vietnam region also led to a loosening of control in other areas of the world.

Hemphill describes a FISO as one of his favorite assignments; difficulties in getting a weapons system approved and amplified when there is a concerted opposition within the Pentagon. “They seem to be keeping a low profile lately.”

Hemphill, along with the missile’s designers, adequately disproved the objections to the system and improved the Patriot’s shortcomings.

The interview is finished. “Has Hemphill had the opportunity to speak to the former opponents of the Patriot since its effective showing in the Gulf War?” “No,” Hemphill says with a smile, “but I’d love to. They seem to be keeping a low profile lately.”

Has Hemphill had the opportunity to speak to the former opponents of the Patriot since its effective showing in the Gulf War? “No,” Hemphill says with a smile, “but I’d love to. They seem to be keeping a low profile lately.”

"Has Hemphill had the opportunity to speak to the former opponents of the Patriot since its effective showing in the Gulf War? “No,” Hemphill says with a smile, “but I’d love to. They seem to be keeping a low profile lately.”

The evolution of the Patriot missile can be traced back to the American failure in the 50’s to develop an air defense artillery system. In 1958, when the Air Force informed him that when the Patriot was first used in the sky, there was no one in the Air Force who could defend against a missile attack, the missile was developed by the Army at this time.

The focus by the Army of the ABM treaty could safely be shifted to an emphasis on the deployment of ICBMs to protection of the soldiers in the field through surface-to-air missile systems. At times in its history called Sentinel and Safeguard, among others, the system eventually became known as Patriot.

The extraordinary effective ness of this anti-aircraft system in tests led Hemphill and the various staffs working on the project to attempt to pre-empt possible efforts of other governments to take out the Patriot system once it was deployed. Since it would be near impos sible for aircraft to take out the Patriots, the most effective choice to counter the Patriots would be to use missiles. Thus, the Patriot system is the primary anti-missile system in the United States.

The Patriot's performance in the Gulf War proved that it was an effective anti-missile system. In the 1990 Gulf War, the Patriot missile was instrumental in protecting the United States against Iraqi Scud missiles. Hemphill has been a strong advocate for the deployment of the Patriot missile system to protect against the threat of long-range ballistic missiles.

Hemphill has earned several awards and decorations, including a Bronze Star, a Meritorious Service Medal, an Air Medal, and a Republic of Vietnam Psychosocial Operations Medal, among others. Despite the varied career that has earned him so much recognition, Hemphill still insists on the eve of his retirement that his most important assignment has been his time here at Notre Dame.

As to his future plans, Hemphill, who earned his MA in International Relations here, says, "I want to stay at Notre Dame. I love to continue to teach a bit. It's hard for me to imagine not having some kind of contact." The interview is finished. After a mutual exchange of thanks, Hemphill reiterates his statement that if he ever wanted to teach a bit, he would love to continue to teach. It's hard for me to imagine not having some kind of contact." The interview is finished. Entering the NHL in 1967, Terreri, who has a point in 21 of the 25 games he played this season, gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead with a power-play goal at 9:25 of the opening period. Larry Murphy made sure the puck away from Philadelphia defensemen to forward and turn in a breakaway goal for the Devils, who raced in and beat Pete Peeters on a breakaway.

Curt Burgess tied the game for the Flyers 31 seconds later with his seventh goal of the season, the result of a long diagonal pass from Mike Bossy. With Washington, which got two goals from Soviet rookie Dmitri Khristich, has 77 points and is tied with New Jersey in the Metropolitan Division. The Flyers are two points ahead of Philadelphia.

NEW YORK (AP) — After playing poorly the second half of the season, the Oklahoma Sooners were so discouraged they almost turned down an invitation to the National Invitation Tournament. Now they're glad they accepted.

With four straight NIT victories, the Sooners have extended their streak of 20-win seasons to 10 and moved into Wednesday night's championship game against Stanford at Madison Square Garden.

Not bad for a team that tied for sixth in the Big Eight and lost 11 of 13 games heading into the NIT.

"The NIT has been great for us," said Oklahoma coach Billy Tubbs. "It's given us a chance to end our season on a positive note."

When Tubbs led Oklahoma to the NIT semifinals in 1982, it served as a springboard for a highly successful decade. He hopes this year's NIT performance will do the same thing for the Sooners (20-14), who advanced to the final four of the NIT with four victories, including a 73-71 semifinal win over Massachusetts.

"They're a very physical team," Tubbs said. "They're just bigger and stronger than we are."

Keefe, a two-time, All-Pac-10 selection, is averaging 18.7 points and 9.5 rebounds per game.

"He's big and strong, but he's also a good athlete," Tubbs said. "Unlike most Oklahoma teams in the 1980s, this year's squad doesn't have a star like Wayman Tisdale, Stacey King or Mookie Blaylock. But the Sooners do have a balanced scoring attack, with four players averaging double figures and two others averaging 9.7 points per game."

The leading scorer is forward Jeff Webster, who gets 18.7 points and 5.5 rebounds per game.

"They've got a lot of quickness and speed," Montgomery said. "It's going to take a great effort for us to keep up with them."

Montgomery is worried that his team may be tired after a hectic week of travel. Stanford played at Wisconsin and Southern Illinois before coming to New York.

"I'm glad we'll be getting those TV timeouts," Montgomery said.

Stanford hasn't won a postseason title since 1942, when it captured the NCAA championship. Oklahoma has never won an NCAA or NIT title.

"The NIT has been great for us," said Oklahoma coach Billy Tubbs. "It's given us a chance to end our season on a positive note."

U.S. hockey squad will not include NHL players

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — College players and foreign-based pros, not NHL players, will be used on the 1992 U.S. Olympic Hockey team, USA Hockey announced Tuesday.

Olympic coach Dave Peterson said USA Hockey doesn't expect many, if any, NHL players to be available for the Olympics, but that the pool of college and European-based professionals gives the U.S. "the largest talent pool we've ever had."

The three-pronged selection process will begin with a preliminary selection camp at Lake Placid, N.Y. on May 22-23. The second stage is the U.S. Olympic Trials camp at St. Cloud, Minn., from June 18-29, followed by a final selection camp, also at St. Cloud, in early July.

Peterson said about 40 skaters and four goaltenders will be invited to the final selection camp, with about 30 players to comprise a team that will play at an international summer tournament in Mirabel, France — site of the 1992 Olympic tournament.

Peterson said that after the group returns from France in late August, the roster will be trimmed to 25 players. That team will play a 30-game pre-Olympic schedule that will include at least 15 games against American-based NHL teams, 8-10 games each against the Canadian National Team and Soviet teams and the rest against college and minor-league teams.

USA Hockey also announced that it will send a Select Team to the Lensingrad Pravda Cup, a six-team international tournament for national "B" teams, scheduled for March 31-April 7. The team will be made up of college players supplemented by some Americans who play in Europe.
EAST RUTHERFORD (AP) — Mookie Blaylock scored six of his 25 points in overtime and Derrick Coleman had 22 points and 13 rebounds as the New Jersey Nets defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 98-95 Tuesday night.

The victory was the Nets' second straight overtime win at home and their fourth in their last five starts at the Meadowlands.

Charles Barkley had 32 points and 17 rebounds for Philadelphia.

Nets 97, Warriors 94

CHARLOTTE — Charlotte made its biggest comeback in team history, rallying from 20 points down, and Rex Chapman scored 21 points and 17 rebounds for Indiana against Atlanta. Reggie Miller also scored 24 points for the Pacers, who improved their record at home to 25-10. Dominique Wilkins led the Hawks with 34 points, and Kevin Willis scored 21.

Heat 104, Cavaliers 98

MIAMI — Kevin Edwards scored 28 points and Grant Long hit four key free throws in the final 34 seconds as Miami snapped an eight-game losing streak by beating Cleveland. The Cavaliers, who suffered their first loss in 10 games this season, but lost to both Dallas and the Spurs in overtime during their 0-3 Texas road trip.

Suns 117, Wolves 95

PHOENIX — Kevin Johnson scored 16 of his 27 points during a one-sided first half as Phoenix continued its domination of Minnesota. Xavier McDaniel added 22 points while Mark West had 12 points and 13 rebounds for the Timberwolves. Sam Mitchell paced Minnesota with 19 points and 11 rebounds.

Angels 16, Cubs 4
Palm Springs, Calif. — Junior Felix Segura homered, doubled, singled twice and added an RBI single.
Lance Parrish went 4-for-4, lifting his average to .350, and Wally Joyner homered. The Angels scored eight runs in every inning and surpassed the 20-hit barrier for only the third time in a week.
Mark Langston (3-0) got the victory while becoming the first Angel pitcher to pitch six innings this spring.

Giants 5, Padres 1
Yuma, Ariz. — Matt Williams hit a three-run homer and Ken Oberkfell added a two-run homer for San Francisco.
Left-hander Bud Black started for the Giants and allowed six hits and one run in five innings. Trevor Wilson pitched 2-3 hitless innings and Jose Segura and Dave LaPoint were scoreless.
Williams left the game after three innings with a sore neck. Giants manager Graham had no update on the injury and it was only a precaution because the weather was cool.

Those with tickets are being advised to be prepared for extra security because of the possibility of terrorism in response to the Persian Gulf War.
Spectators will be prohibited from bringing emergency pagers, cameras, video recorders, televisions, radios, coolers, bottles, cans and other containers. Purses and bags must be opened for inspection and hand-held metal detectors will also be used to check spectators as they enter the Hoosier Dome.
Officials will open the gates three hours before the start of Friday's public practice session, Saturday's opening semifinal game and Monday night's championship contest to allow fans to pass through the extra security and reach their seats in time for the games.
"We know that some of the security procedures may cause a little hard feelings," said Bill Hancock, director of the NCAA Division 1 Men's Basketball Championships. "Some people might even be angry. But if we don't do it someone might get hurt. We'll take anger over injury any day."

"We'll go down there and we'll play well," said Murphy. "We won't have a full strength, but that's part of the road trips and part of the way we go."
National rankings are another distraction for the Irish. Currently, the Irish are 20th in the Baseball America's poll, and questions about post-season play keep plaguing the Irish.
"Everybody's worried about the national picture," said Murphy. "Everybody's talking to us and asking us if we'll go to the World Series. You have to block it out, you have to have fun playing the game, and play with enthusiasm and positive attitude."
That is the attitude the Irish will take to Purdue.

Those with tickets are being advised to be prepared for extra security because of the possibility of terrorism in response to the Persian Gulf War.
Spectators will be prohibited from bringing emergency pagers, cameras, video recorders, televisions, radios, coolers, bottles, cans and other containers. Purses and bags must be opened for inspection and hand-held metal detectors will also be used to check spectators as they enter the Hoosier Dome.
Officials will open the gates three hours before the start of Friday's public practice session, Saturday's opening semifinal game and Monday night's championship contest to allow fans to pass through the extra security and reach their seats in time for the games.
"We know that some of the security procedures may cause a little hard feelings," said Bill Hancock, director of the NCAA Division 1 Men's Basketball Championships. "Some people might even be angry. But if we don't do it someone might get hurt. We'll take anger over injury any day."
Visitors will also find it hard, if not impossible, to get a hotel room. The Indianapolis Convention and Visitors Association reports that the city's 15,500 hotel rooms were all reserved as of Jan. 25.
A special housing bureau set up for the Final Four has been recommending hotels in nearby cities. A few rooms were available in Kokomo, about 50 miles north of the city, and Bloomington, about 50 miles south.

Jackson vows to return to sporting life in three network television appearances

NEW YORK (AP) — Bo Jackson vowed today to overcome what he called a serious hip injury and again play both baseball and football.

Jackson went on a television blitz, appearing on the morning shows of all three major networks within an hour, to criticize doctors who had predicted he would play again.

"If, but when I come back, they will be sticking out there with their feet in their mouth," Jackson said during his appearance on NBC-TV's Today Show.

"No one knows me better than me or my personal doctor, Dr. Ed Whitlock and my family and my important teammates," Jackson said. "It's one of the reasons we've been here.

UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian praised Jackson.

"Nobody in this room knows how unselfish this guy is," Tarkanian said. "He absolutely doesn't know how many points he had after the game. The only concern with Larry is whether we win or lose.

"In two years he hasn't complained once about not getting the ball. Sometimes he goes 7-8 minutes without getting the ball. I'm the one who gets mad, not him. I yell, 'get him the ball.'

"He's probably the nicest guy I've met in athletics," Tarkanian said.

Jackson and Steve Smith of Michigan State were the only seniors on the NABC Division I All-America team, also announced Monday. Joining them were junior Billy Owens of Syracuse and sophomores Shaquille O'Neal of LSU and Kenny Anderson of Georgia Tech. All were finalists for the Eastman Award.

Picked for the NABC Division II All-America team were Corey Crowder of Kentucky Wesleyan; Dave Vonesch of North Dakota State; Armando Becker of Central Missouri State; Lambert Sholl of Bridgport; and Myron Brown of Slippery Rock.

On the Division III team were Brad Baldridge of Wittenberg, Andre Foreman of Salisbury State; Chris Fite of Rochester; Lamani Stricklers of Christopher Newport; and James Bradley of Otterbein.

Johnson again;

ST. LOUIS — Kenny's birthday was named winner of the Most Outstanding Player of the Year, while Larry Johnson was selected as the college basketball player of the year Tuesday by The Sporting News.

It was the second time Pinotino has received the Sporting News honor. He was selected five years ago when he coached Providence into the Final Four.

This season, Kentucky had a 22-4 record but was prohibited from playing in a postseason tournament because the school is on probation for recruiting violations.

Powell will throw out first ball

NEW YORK (AP) — George Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will throw out the first ball for the New York Yankees' home opener.

Powell grew up in the South Bronx, not too far from Yankee Stadium.

Robert Nederlander, managing general partner of the Yankees, said Powell will be joined in the ceremony before the April 15 game with the Chicago White Sox by the family of Marine captain Manuel Rivera, the first Bronx resident to lose his life in Operation Desert Storm.

Atlanta games stealing Barcelona's thunder

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games is about to scale back the sale of merchandise associated with the 1996 Games to avoid conflicting with the marketing of the 1992 Games in Barcelona.

Items bearing the star-and-circle logo of the '96 Games have been a huge success in the six months since Atlanta was awarded those Games in a marketing effort limited to Georgia and neighboring states.

For example, T-shirt and sweatshirt sales have each surpassed 500,000 items, said Bob Hollinsid, AGRO director of merchandising.

But international Olympic Committee policy stipulates that, beginning in April, Atlanta will have to suspend — or at least greatly restrict — its merchandising campaign until after the 1992 Games.

Atlanta officials are talking with Barcelona about a possible compromise. Possible alternatives include selling Atlanta merchandise alongside Barcelona goods or selling Atlanta items only locally.

"We don't want to offend our friends in Barcelona," ACOG President Billy Payne said.

Irish baseball collides with Boilermakers on road

By JENNIFER MARTEN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame baseball team's 30-game road trip continues with a swing to Purdue today. The game in West Lafayette represents the first time the Irish (13-7) play against Big Ten teams this year. Purdue has been ineffective against the Boilermakers, but already this season.

Notre Dame coach Pat Murphy is cautious about Purdue. "Purdue's always a good club," he said. "It's been just recently that we've had great success over them," said Murphy. The Irish will not be at full strength for this game with several players staying here for academic reasons. Missing players should not affect the Irish game plan as the team plans to do what they do best: play baseball.

"We know we have a good club," said Murphy. "What we've got to do is block out distractions."

One of the distractions Murphy is referring to is the Oscar Mayer Classic in Minneapolis this weekend. The tournament is one of the biggest in college baseball, and the Irish will face Minnesota, Stanford, and UCLA in the Metrodome.

For Murphy and his Irish, the tournament overshadows the contest with Purdue. However, the team will keep today's game in mind.

Lacrosse hopes to turn season around

By RENE FERRAN
Associate Sports Editor

The Notre Dame lacrosse team (2-3) tries to break a two-game losing streak this afternoon at 3:30 p.m. against the Air Force Academy (1-1). The Irish come into today's match in similar fashion as they did before last year's game against the Falcons. And just like last season, Notre Dame hopes the results are the same.

Last year, after struggling early in the game, the Irish came from six goals down to pull out a 12-11 win from Air Force at the San Diego State Tournament.

That was the best game I've ever played in," said senior co-captain Mike Sennett. "It really set the tone for the rest of the season. It taught us how to win," said senior co-captain Mike Sennett. "It really set the tone for the rest of the season. It taught us how to win," Sennett said. "We need to put pressure on our opponents rather than on those (five) in our sights."

Starting with today, Notre Dame enters a favorable stretch of its season. Irish hopes of returning to the NCAA tournament may hinge on their taking advantage of this soft spot in their schedule.

"These are very important games coming up," Sennett said. "For a tourney bid, it's between us and Michigan State, Michigan State and Ohio State. We need to turn the season around right now and get back on the right track."

Mike Sennett

Sennett anticipates Air Force to employ a physical style of play against the Irish.

"It's always a good game. They never give up, and they're very well-disciplined," he said. "We have to try to play a solid game to beat them."

Notre Dame has had problems scoring in its first five games. Junior Mike Sullivan leads the Irish with 11 goals, while sophomore Brian Mayglassing has added eight. However, their top five scorers account for only 36% of the team's goals, a cause for concern to Sennett.

"We have to start coming together as a team," he said. "We've had some individual performances, but we need more balance as a team." Sennett said. "We need to put pressure on our opponents rather than on those (five) in our sights.

Rocket could make run to the border for big CFL deal

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Raghib "Rocket" Ismail, expected to be the first player taken in next month's NFL draft, is considering a $6 million, two-year offer to play for the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, his agent confirmed Tuesday.

Ed Abram, agent for the Heisman Trophy runner-up from Notre Dame, has been negotiating with the New England Patriots, who have the first draft pick. Abram said the offer from Toronto appears to be genuine.

"If Toronto puts together a package that's hard to refuse, we have to take a serious look at it," Abram said of an offer from Oakland, Calif. "If it comes before the draft, it's before the draft. If it's after the draft, it's after the draft. We have no control over those things.

Argonauts owner Bruce McNall said the offer was "in the $3 million-a-year range. Let's see if he finds that attractive."

Aragonauts general manager Mike McCarthy, who is negotiating with Abram, wouldn't say how close the two sides are but did confirm that "big dollars" are being discussed.

"It would be a hell of a coup for us to sign him," McCarthy said. "He would be a huge draw and whatever money Mr. McNall would spend on him, I'm sure it would easily be recouped in two years' time with the kind of impact a guy like Ismail would have on the league."

He isn't a franchise player, he's a league player. He'd help the whole CFL.

Ismail, an All-American return specialist and flanker, will pass up his final year of college eligibility to turn pro.

Abram said the offer was made to Ismail by McNall.

"There's something to it. I have had conversations with Toronto, and they seem to be pretty serious," Abram said.

He said he has talked with Ismail about it, but right now the main focus is still with New England.

"We're in negotiations with the Patriots, and we wouldn't care to upset the apple cart here. But as good, practical business people, you have to look at all options, and one of those options is now coming from Toronto," Abram said.

"We don't know what the thousands of ticket available.

"We mainly get them from people who get to buy tickets through the NCAA lottery and then decide they won't come," he said. "We've done this for several years. This year it's a lot more fun because there are a lot more tickets available. There were few very tickets available last year in Denver."

Ticket agencies had the largest ads and reported a brisk business.

"We have four phone lines going constantly," said Dave Brustman, president of Preferred Tickets and Tours, which had the largest advertisement — 2 inches by 2 1/2 inches in the classified section and another 2 by 4 1/4 inch ad in the sports section.

"We're selling tickets from $200 to $2,500 each," said Brustman. He estimated he would see TICKETS / page 17
