A doctor of juridical science (J.S.D.) program is now offered at the most advanced degree in the field of law has been added to the Notre Dame Law School, according to Father William Lewers, a professor of law and director of the newly introduced program.

"This is a research degree parallel to the Ph.D.," explained Lewers, who is also the president to the Ph. D. "It is a professional graduate degree, a professional graduate degree, a professional graduate degree," will focus on human rights law. Lewers expects one student, a J.S.D. candidate," said Lewers. Students in the program face a one-year residency requirement, during which they will develop dissertation outlines and participate in course work as students or teachers, Lewers explained.

Students will have a maximum of five years to complete the program, which includes approximately two years for writing their dissertation. Lewers expects one student, a Notre Dame graduate, to begin work on the degree this fall. The J.S.D. program was approved by the University’s ACADEMIC COUNCIL and has applied for approval from the United States Bar Association.

Advocates continue to promote drug treatment in lieu of incarceration. However, the city of South Bend continues to battle the issue with increased police presence.

According to Lt. Ed Summers of the South Bend Police Department, the "Five Points" Area, indicated on the map below, is a common place for attacks on students to occur.

A sudden increase in assaults and robberies traditionally associated with the return of Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s students to campus, said Doug Way, director of Crime Prevention at the South Bend Police Department.

"Our suspicion is that several different factions are fighting for crack distribution throughout the South Bend area," said Way. Way said the first football weekend in which students become primary targets of robberies, since there are so many students walking around the city, to off-campus parties and bars.

Students should not be afraid to knock on a door and ask a resident to call the police, he said, especially if being followed. Attackers often follow lone students until they catch up with them, he said, and "a block away from a bar in any direction" is prime mugging territory.

Off-campus students often make the dangerous mistake of letting neighborhood kids into their apartments for parties, Way said, adding, "That's taboo as seen in the map below.

A sudden increase in assaults and robberies traditionally associated with the return of Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s students to campus, said Doug Way, director of Crime Prevention at the South Bend Police Department.

Notre Dame students, who are primarily brought up in middle-class neighborhoods, often do not take the precautions necessary to avoid being victims.

Street-smart attackers know to prey on students, Way said, since they are unsuspecting, often inebriated and, most importantly, they seldom prosecute.

Way told a story of a man who attacked a Notre Dame senior then had the trial date moved to summer, when it was inconvenient for the student to travel across the country to pursue the charges. The assailant, who later shot a man, passed his knowledge on to other local criminals.

Another tactic criminals use is preying on inebriated students, because they know the victims will not be able to articulate well to police, and because their intoxication will be noted on police reports, Way said.

Crack has hit the streets of South Bend in increasing amounts this summer, he said, and there has been a "rash of drug-related crimes," including drive-by shootings, especially on the west side of town.

Lt. Ed Summers, a South Bend narcotics officer, confirmed this report, but refused to comment whether drug-related crimes have been prominent in areas that commonly been used for off-campus student housing.

Patrols have been increased in the Notre Dame area since students returned, though, he said. Summers said he could not provide additional information until he spoke with superiors.

Use your head and be careful

It's the first official weekend of the school year. The time is right for party-and-bar-hopping, making the rounds of all the social events before the weather takes a turn for the worse. Unfortunately, the time is also right for some less-festive activities, like muggings and robberies. And before you know it, something other than the weather might be taking a turn for the worse.

You're back in town, perhaps in South Bend. You've been gone for the summer, and frankly you missed out on what appears to be a worsening crime situation. While you were gone, you missed crack cocaine and its undesirable friends increasing their presence in the area. You missed some gang warfare, with drive-by shootings.

You missed out on the transformation of a nearby apartment complex into a rent-by-the-week-to-the-kind-of-people-making-quick-territed. They've been spotted all over town, deadlier than most of you have ever encountered. They've been spotted all over town, from Notre Dame Ave. to St. Louis St. and residence less than 24 hours after arriving in town.

If you're looking for a party, try not to drive too slow that somebody's grandmother could jump the car. And for God's sake, keep your eyes open. Once you get to your destination, make sure it's safe to stay. If you're going to the bars, don't overestimate yourself. Alcohol does funny things to one's reasoning. Don't let it destroy you. The walk between Club 23 and the Commons that used to be "double" at a fast pace is simply ludicrous now. Don't even think about it.

But what if you follow all the rules and still find yourself in an uncompromising position with some of South Bend's finest gang members? Don't get cocky or smart. Chances are, your life is in danger. Your group of friends is in trouble. And the police will do what they can to protect you. They will make excuses but the real reason they will do it is to stop this achievement and keep the people of Libya oppressed. Wait and see."

The Notre Dame Irish Guard has announced its lineup for the 1991-92 year. This year's squad will be captained by seniors Christopher Woods, Jim Mercurio; juniors W oods' third year with the team.

The Irish Guard has been in existence since 1951. The squad marches in front of the Marching Band "making sure no one cuts us through the band," according to Woods. They march at football games and perform a traditional Irish cold dance after each home victory.

The squad also travels with the band, which means they will be performing this year at the Florida game and at a bowl game in which the team plays.

All members of the Irish Guard must be at least 6 feet 2 inches tall, and, according to Woods, it takes about two hours for the squad to put on their uniforms.

MURDER SUSPECT GUILTY OF ROBBERY

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The prime suspect in the slayings of five Gainesville college students was convicted Thursday in the armed robbery of a grocery store.

The case may help place the new refill mug and will re­use them. "I would remind everyone that just because he's found guilty of these charges ... it does not mean in anyway that he's guilty of anything else, anywhere else," said public de­fender Mary Lou Cuellar.

The jury convicted Rolling of armed robbery, attempted armed robbery and aggravated assault on police in the holdup of a Tampa convenience store a few days after the last of five bodies were discovered in Gainesville.

Rolling is charged in several other burglaries and robberies stretching from Tampa to Gainesville, where last month prosecutors said he robbed a bank the day after the first two bodies were found last August.

And earlier this week, a police affidavit listed evidence that may tie Rolling to a 1989 triple slaying in his hometown, Shreveport, La. In that crime, a victim was posed similar to some of the Gainesville victims. He's also wanted in the at­tempted murder of his father, a former Shreveport police of­ficial.

No one has been charged in the student murders in Gainesville. Prosecutors said they plan to present evidence to a grand jury in November on Rolling and former University of Florida student Edward Humphrey.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A senior European envoy on Thursday accused the federal army of siding with Serbian rebels in their war with Croatia and said only foreign observers can guarantee peace in the breakaway republic.

The war between the ethnic Serbian minority and the Croatians appeared to have entered a lull, although sporadic sniper fire was exchanged in several areas, the Croatian news agency Hina said.

Croatian and Serbian media said a tense calm prevailed in the besieged eastern Croatian town of Vukovar, on the border with Serbia and site of the worst fighting in the past week.

More than 50 bulldozers of mothers of conscripts in the Yugoslav army traveled to Belgrade to demand that their sons be released from the federal forces. Some said Serb civilians harassed them as they traveled through the republic.

In the Croatian town of Osijek, 10,000 mothers converged on an army building to make the same demand.

Fighting between Serbs and Croats has torn Croatia since the republic declared independ­ence on June 25.

Leaders of Croatia's 600,000-strong Serbian minority oppose secession and demand self-de­termination for areas where they live if the republic leaves the Yugoslav Federation. Although for outmanned, the Serbs now occupy about a fourth of Croatian territory.

The Serb-dominated federal military also is involved. Its leaders say the federal soldiers are keeping Croats and Serbs apart, but European Commu­nity envoy Henry Wijsaendts, who visited Vukovar on Wednesday, disputed that.

"Given the tight armaments we saw on the Croatian side, the level of force apparently used by the federal army seems difficult to reconcile with the role they claim, namely that of an interposition force between fighting factions," he said in a statement.

"If this visit convinced us of anything, it is that impartial foreign monitors are indis­pensable if a cease-fire is at least to hold," said the state­ment, sent to The Associated Press in Belgrade.

The EC has blamed Serbia for the failure of all cease-fire ef­forts. It has proposed a peace conference to end the fighting, which has killed at least 230 people.

The EC repeated the accusa­tion on Thursday, and threat­ened to halt talks with the most powerful Yugoslav republic if it does not accept the latest EC peace plan.

Speaking on behalf of the current Dutch presidency of the EC, Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek said the Netherlands believed the door of an arm y building but to abortion in voting for the nation's first freely elected parliament since World War II.

In an unprecedented appeal published by the episcopal press office, the bishops called for participation in the Oct. 27 elections "an important moral duty."

Noting that the first demo­cratic parliament in post-Com­munist Poland will prepare and approve a new constitution, the bishops said the elections will "decide about the future sys­tem" of Poland.

A "Christian cannot choose a system which refuses God a place in public life," the statement said, adding that Catholics were bound to support the social teachings of the church.

"There are laws which no human power can change: ... the right to live, from the mo­ment of conception to a natural death, and the right to religious freedom," the bishops said.

Responding to charges that they were interfering unduly in politics, the statement noted that priests are not running for office, and the church is not supporting any party in the elections.

The church is respected for its role in depoting Commu­nism, but many Poles have crit­i­cized the church-backed legis­lation that introduced religion classes to schools and opposed a proposal to outlaw abortion.

Although about 95 percent of the 38 million Poles are Roman Catholics, a recent poll showed that more than half the popula­tion believes the church's role in public affairs it too great. Nearly two-thirds want church-state separation written into the next constitution.

Poland's current parliament was chosen in 1989, becoming the first in the Soviet bloc to in­clude non-Communists. But the elections were rigged to guar­antee Communist and their ali­ances two-thirds of the seats in the lower, decision-making house of parliament.

In November, Poles elected as their first democratically chosen presi­dent since the fall of Commu­nism.

Security cautions students

Crime throughout South Bend is on the rise, and campus security is warning students to be aware of new dangers on- and off-campus.

A major area of concern is the neighborhood directly south of campus, according to Rex Rakow, director of Notre Dame Security. In the past, many of the homes in that area were rented out to students during the school year. Recently, however, Rakow said that many of the houses are being rented out by the week or the month.

As a result, the area is now inhabited by a "more transient group," said Rakow. "There's been a lot of violent crime this summer," including drug-related crimes and gang violence.

Security is concerned for the safety of students living in and frequenting establishments in the area south of the campus, which includes Bridgeport, McGuire's Filling Station, The Commons and Club 23.

Many students find themselves in that part of town between 10 p.m. and 3 a.m., according to Rakow. This adds an additional element of danger because students under the influence tend to lose their judgement and reflexes, and, in turn, are more susceptible to attacks, he said.

However, Rakow added, "students should just be concerned whenever they're out in small groups," because crime can happen anywhere.

Rakow recently had a meeting with Ron Marvinick, South Bend police chief, and Mayor Joe Korman in an effort to "share information." Two departments will be working together to increase safety on and around campus through a variety of cooperative programs, said Rakow.

The city's Neighborhood Enforcement Services Team (NEST), which patrols problem areas as a preventative measure against crime, will be stepping up its patrols between Thursday and Saturday, according to Rakow.

"South Bend, in general, is seeing a bigger crime picture," said Rakow. "There's been a lot of violent crime this summer," including drug-related crimes and gang violence.

Rakow fears that this may not be the case. "We hear rumblings," he said, "that some students think this is just being put out into the public because we want to curb drinking." He denied this assessment. "We wouldn't be spending the time and the money talking about the northeast neighborhood just to curb drinking."

“Once they’re assaulted they become the victim: when they think this is just being put out into the public because we want to curb drinking.”

He added, "We're not spending the time and the money talking about the northeast neighborhood just to curb drinking." Rakow said that there are a number of things that students can do in order to avoid being a victim.

- Don't overconsume alcohol, he said, because it dulls judgment and reflexes.
- Be aware of surroundings.
- Try to travel in groups and avoid dark areas, he said.
- Don't go tee-to-toe with an attacker. "It's better to drop something and make a retreat," he said.
- If the attacker has a weapon, "give up the wallet and get out of there." Rakow said.

Rakow recalled a recent incident in which a student was robbed at gunpoint at night. "This man dove into water and tried to escape," Rakow said. "But he didn't make it."

The only reason neighborhood kids come in, he said, is to cause the homes for drugs and items that can be stolen later.

The only reason neighborhood kids come in, he said, is to cause the homes for drugs and items that can be stolen later.

The perpetrators are almost never over age 20. "They range in age from 12 to 16," Way said.

Way also advised that students stay at home if they want to drink alcohol, or arrange for transportation. They should also bring out the minimal amount of money possible, he said.

"Once they're assaulted they wise up," he said. "If they don't, they'll be reading about it in the paper."

The inmates, meanwhile, posted a sign that said "Pray for us." The seven men and two women hostages, as well as 121 Cuban detainees and 18 American inmates in the occupied unit, were given hamburger, rice, beans, bread and coffee only a few hours after the Cubans released one ailing hostage.

Prison officials said the released hostage — Kitty Sud­ndeth, a 34-year-old prison secre­tary — was receiving medical treatment Thursday, but re­fused to disclose her condition or where she was being treated.

The officials asked hostage families to avoid the new me­dia. But a member of the Sud­ndeth family, speaking on condi­tion of anonymity, said, "We're related. Kitty is free ... We praise the Lord for her safety. We thank the negotiators, and we are praying for the other hostages' safe release.

Food had been withheld from the unit since the takeover be­gan the morning of Aug. 21, but was delivered early Thursday. Inmates posted a sign from the roof Tuesday night that read: "We have not been fed for a week. The hostages are dying due to the lack of food."

Among signs raised by five Cubans who went on the roof of the besieged unit Thursday was one that read "Pray for us." Greg Bogdan, a spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, said Thursday at least two hostages needed "significant medical attention." He didn't elaborate.

"Moreover," Bogdan said, "we are concerned about the long­term psychological effect this stressful ordeal is having on the hostages and detainees that might not want to be there.

The Cubans in the besieged cellblock are among thousands who arrived in this country during the 1980 Mariel boatlift, and some have said they would rather die than return to their homeland.

Warden Roger Scott said that detectives examined the nine hostages and detainees at a grille at the entry to the unit, but that they were not allowed to fully assess the condition of the hostages.

Fiers said he reported the di­version to three of his superiors, one of whom told him to withhold the information from Congress.

During some of that time, Gates was deputy director to William Gates, becoming acting director of the agency in De­cember 1986 when the late CIA chief became too ill with a brain tumor to work. Gates served in that capacity until Webster became agency director in the spring of 1987.

Kerr, 55, became deputy CIA director when Bush named Gates as his deputy national se­curity adviser in January 1989. It wasn't the first time he had followed in Gates' footsteps. Kerr became the head of the agency's intelligence analysis directorate in April 1986 when Gates was promoted to deputy CIA director.

He was named as a long-shot among potential candidates for the top agency job when Web­ster announced his retirement in May after four years at the helm.

Kerr hasn't escaped mention in the annals of the Iran-Contra scandal, either. Records show that a former CIA analyst, Charles Allen, told Kerr in Au­ gust 1986 that he suspected Iran was being overcharged for the weapons it was buying from the United States and the prof­its were being used to arm the Contras.

Kerr told congressional in­vestigators in 1987 that he passed Allen's concerns to Gates, who asked to be kept in­formed. Gates, according to the report of the congressional Iran-Contra committee, said he didn't remember the conver­sation with Kerr. Allen subse­quently sought out Gates di­rectly in October 1986 and passed on his suspicions, both have testified.

Kerr was born in Fort Smith, Ark., grew up on the West Coast, graduated from the Uni­versity of Oregon, and joined the CIA in 1960 as a military analyst.

Like Gates, he has served as an analyst of Soviet affairs. He analyzed aerial reconnaissance photos during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962, was the CIA liaison with the U.S. Pacific Command and chaired the committee responsible for the requirements and uses of satellite imagery.

In 1976 he was named direc­tor of the office responsible for worldwide political analysis.

Title: Subway operator admits drinking during work

Body:

New York (AP) — The operator of a speeding subway train said he had been drinking and was falling asleep at the controls just before the train derailed, killing five people, according to court documents released Thursday.

Robert Ray, 38, had a blood-alcohol level of 0.21 percent, twice the legal limit, according to tests taken about 13 hours after the accident. Tests showed no trace of drugs, police said.

Police had reported earlier that a stain with traces of cocaine was found in the motorcar's cab.

Ray was arraigned on five counts of second-degree manslaughter and was ordered held without bail.

The transport union representing him announced it would agree to random drug and alcohol testing to offset "the perception of substance abuse among transit workers."

He said he planned to propose testing to Metropolitan Transportation Authority head Peter Stang at a meeting late Thursday.

"My members ... have no fear of drug and alcohol testing," he said.

Mayor David Dinkins praised the decision.

"It sure can't hurt and I think it could help a lot," he said.

"Whether it would have avoided this particular situation, obviously nobody knows."

The Transit Authority tests employees when they are hired, for any promotion, as part of their regular physical checkups, and when an accident or "any incident warranty," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits fell slightly in mid-August, the government reported today.

For the week ending Aug. 17, there were 421,000 Americans filing first-time claims for help, down 9,000 from the previous week's mark of 430,000, the Labor Department said.

The 9,000-decrease, though not large enough to reverse the 22,000-spurt that had occurred in the previous week b efore, at least stemmed recent increases in jobless claims.

The level of new jobless claims can be extremely erratic from week to week and analysts hesitate to read too much into the number until the level moves in the same direction for three or four weeks in a row. However, the number is seen as a bit of fresh evidence that hiring practices across America.

Claims had risen for two straight weeks, so the 9,000-decline for the week ending Aug. 17 stops — or interrupts — that upward trend.

Since hitting peaks of more than 500,000 in March, the level of new claims had fallen, for the most part, until June, when it began fluctuating between 400,000 and 430,000.

For the week ending Aug. 10, there were 3.3 million Americans actually claiming unemployment benefits, a decrease of 23,000 from the previous week, the Labor Department said.

New York (AP) — The operator of a speeding subway train said he had been drinking and was falling asleep at the controls just before the train derailed, killing five people, according to court documents released Thursday.

Robert Ray, 38, had a blood-alcohol level of 0.21 percent, twice the legal limit, according to tests taken about 13 hours after the accident. Tests showed no trace of drugs, police said.

Police had reported earlier that a stain with traces of cocaine was found in the motorcar's cab.

Ray was arraigned on five counts of second-degree manslaughter and was ordered held without bail.

quoted Nazarbayev as saying.

The fragmentation of the union has raised the specter of new republics — some whose names were unrecognizable to Americans before this week — becoming nuclear powers over the years, with the attending hazards of attack or accident.

Kazakhstan is of special concern because it hosts 15-20 percent of the Soviet Union's fixed silo nuclear missiles, as well as two nuclear weapons testing ranges and a bomber base which is probably nuclear capable.

In his radio address, Yeltsin ruled out a division of strategic arms among the republics.

Nazarbayev issued a decree closing the test range at Semipalatinsk. He demanded compensation for the "damage done to the health of the population" by tests at the base since 1949. There have been no tests there in two years. Gorbachev told the Supreme Soviet he was dispatching a delegation to Kazakhstan because the situation "got more complicated." He spoke three times by telephone with

Dear Editor:

I think it is long past the time for sports fans, various alumni, athletes, coaches and the media to give more time and concern evaluating the meaning and purpose of competitive sports activity in our culture and country.

Some people have suffered the loss of a livelihood; their reputation and their good name because of the web of suspicion and perhaps their innocent involvement in administering competitive sports activity.

Those who are guilty might have hadlessly tarnished the reputation of their conferees by their web of suspicion and perhaps their effort must and I know will be made to exonerate these injured people.

More of us must take an active concern in maintaining the honesty, the integrity, the safety and the wholesomeness of this area of our national life.

The media and appointed crisis in the monitoring cannot hope to be successful without the help and cooperation of more of us who are able and can render invaluable assistance maintaining the integrity of competitive athletics.

We are an honorable, generous and good people. The Judeo-Christian Ethic and a sense of propriety that characterized America in the past as an ideal and a goal, is disappearing in many segments of American society and not just as an idealized competitive athletes.

The pristine value of the family and family life must be restored to its lofty and primitive place that it once enjoyed. If society is sick it is because the family is sick.

This is where we must focus our attention; on the restoration of the family and family life and then the restoration of society will surely follow. We read from the daily newspaper that most violence stems from the home among family members and their acquaintances so we can plainly see that the family is pivotal. The family is the first school for children, and mothers and fathers are the children's first teachers.

When and where morality is divorced from competitive athletics what follows is the continual spiral of violence and dishonesty which in turn gives life to revenge, the brutality and the cry to win at any price.

Sports can be an antidote to softness and easy living and an additional avenue in relieving tensions, stress, pressure or even mental strain. Sports activity must be pursued in prudence and moderation to be effective for the health of the participants.

Sports is the school for the body, mind and soul, such as loyalty, courage, honor, sportsmanship, mercy, compassion and fair play.

Our bodies are Gods masterpiece, and the dignity and chasteness of our bodies must be cultivated so that we can render due homage to the Divine Creator and the edification of all.

Sometimes when we win, we lose and sometimes when we lose, we win. Mr. Granland Rice, one of the famous sports writers of this century, once observed in a poem: 'For when the one great scorer comes to write against your name, WHENEVER YOU CAME TO WRITE AGAINST YOUR NAME, HE MARKS NOT THAT YOU WON OR LOST... BUT HOW YOU PLAYED THE GAME...'

Coaching is a very important role in the development of youth to face the joys, sorrows or whatever in your adult life long after you have left the playing field. The priorities they are educating to will probably be the following: (I) Home, church or synagog and family life. (2) School books and study. (3) And then ATHLETICS if you are so inclined, let young people never forget that what they are in their homes, that they will be for the rest of their lives, and if they pass this time with little or no fruit, it will be a hopeless delusion later on to make good the omissions of their precious days at home.

In closing, permit me to quote Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians, where he stresses to sports to signify his religious and human mission as an apostle to us. It is taken from his epistle to the Corinthians, 1st Corinthians, Chapter 9, Verse 34 to 35. "Do you not know that in a race all the runners run, but only one gets the prize? Run in such a way as to get the prize. Everyone who competes in the games goes into strict training. They do it to get a crown that will not last; but we do it to get a crown that will last forever."

Loy Holtz of Notre Dame football coach emphasizes 3 rules to his players. They are: 1. Have a goal in life. 2. Do your best. 3. Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

Spring Forward with Satisfaction Guaranteed

By AURELIE GALLAghER

Satisfaction Guaranteed! You don’t hear that very often anymore, but there is a group of students here at Notre Dame that has been made possible once again. According to Joe Cassidy, Director of Student Affairs, these students, who have been very active in a variety of campus activities, felt that the Notre Dame/Saint Mary’s community was in need of an organization dedicated to sponsoring high-quality performers at reasonable prices—guaranteed to satisfy your expectations and more.

This group, Satisfaction Guaranteed, seeks out performers with the potential to “make it big” before they get too expensive.

Satisfaction Guaranteed is working in conjunction with the Student Activities Board. With the students’ ideas and the Board’s funds, they are bound to provide great entertainment. First up, Craig Karges in his show “The Magic of the Mind.” Captivating and intriguing, he is a mentalist and an ESP showman. A master of mind over matter and illusion, Karges stretches the potential of the human mind to amazing limits with no hocus pocus. Craig’s a great kickoff,” said Cassidy.

“We only use 10 to 20 percent of our minds,” explained Karges. "Think of the capabilities that lie in that 80 to 90 percent of our unwrapped minds.”

Karges believes that “the most incredible, the most fascinating computer in the world ... is your mind.” He may demonstrate the mind’s capabilities, but he dares you to reach for your full potential because it is only limited by your imagination.

He was awarded the Certified Speaking Professional (CSP) designation by the National Speakers Association, which has only been awarded to less than 10 percent of their membership.

The National Association of Campus Activities (NACA) also nominated Karges “Campus Entertainer of the Year” and “Novelty/Variety Entertainer of the Year.”

Karges has fascinated audiences of all ages across the country. "Absolutely extraordinary! It’s not only you, it’s me and the audience. They are involved. I never talk to an empty chair. We have things outside while it’s free. The name of the weekend is a description to ‘kick off the year’ with. Lowry said that SAB hopes the freshmen and upperclassmen come to see their clocks keep going the same even when the seasons change. Saint Mary’s is scheduled to Fall Forward this weekend.

For this second annual event, the Student Activities Board (SAB) expanded the roster of activities that began with a picnic on Thursday and will end with Club Tuesday on, appropriately, Tuesday.

Maureen Lowry, vice president of Student Affairs, said that there will be at least one event each day that will give students from both Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame an excuse to put the books aside.

"Everyone is so excited in the beginning of the year," Lowry said regarding the timing of Fall Forward. "It will be nice to have things outside while it’s still warm." The name of the weekend is a description to "kick off the year" with. Lowry said that SAB hopes the freshmen take advantage of this opportunity to meet new people and upperclassmen come to see old friends and get, or stay, involved.

Last year’s program was on a smaller scale and included a luau, which was "a hit!" Even though less was expected, the anticipating attendance response to the SAB program was unanticipated.

"We SAB (student activities board) had the year to plan for. The framework before the 21st kept in mind for the other. Lowry said that the event was a hit! Even though less than expected, the anticipating attendance response to the SAB program was unanticipated."
Karges is more than just an entertainer; he can prepare his presentation to fit any situation. He has been known to deliver everything from motivational shows to sales presentations.

He insists that he does not prearrange anything. If you still don’t believe him, he has a $10,000 offer, payable in charity, if you can prove he uses stooges or confederates to accomplish his demonstrations.

All of the performers scheduled to appear as part of this series are promised to be as talented as Karges—Satisfaction Guaranteed!

Some of the other entertainers that have been scheduled are Tim Settimi and Lynn Trefzger.

Settimi is “a one-man vaudeville,” and “a nut on wheels!” said Cassidy.

He was awarded Top Entertainer on college campuses in 1988 and, according to Cassidy, “he is still going strong.”

Trefzger is a ventriloquist and a comedian. Audience participation is one of her greatest assets, along with her ability to ad-lib during her self-written shows.

Entertainment at its best is what Satisfaction Guaranteed is looking for. You won’t be disappointed—that’s their guarantee!

Craig Karges will be performing this weekend, Saturday, August 31, and Sunday, September 1 at Washington Hall at 8:00 p.m. Dates of upcoming performances will be announced.
Are ND students more brain-washed than parents?

On my last evening in London this summer, the young couple offering me dinner gave me some poems to read out loud to them. I liked the poems so well, I brought home the book so I could share them with you.

Watch the exercise. And even the world was coming to an end at lunchtime.

One of the charms of Judaism is embroiler on the theme, 'Make peace, not war.'

When the bus stopped suddenly to avoid damaging a sports car on my way home, we were all a little embarrassed, especially me.

Good humor may be mown out from experience, with a little help from their friends.

As a religious, aged 65, I know the songs of love are not for me; and I have no regrets. I'm young enough to remember that a thing of beauty can be a joy until morning; and old enough to have compassion on the youngsters who haven't discovered that there will be a tomorrow, and when it comes, it could find them feeling shabbily, like the hotel room they wake up in.

But those of us who defend rules should tread lightly when we intrude on other people's freedom, like angels and ministers offering the divine assistance.

British education used to mean that students were brainwashed in Catholic ways that would help them save their souls. Shouldn't they be taught to see truth as though it were a lamplight at the end of the road leading them home, no matter how often they have left the reservation.

Some of the announcements I have heard of seminars on date rape, Alcoholism, drug use, and AIDS-prevention look ominous. In my day, we were just warned that eating at the light at the end of the road would put a cold sheet on their relations.

How can the gurus of the brave new world deliver their grim warnings, without making students feel that they are more brain-washed as Catholics than their parents were?

NEW YORK (AP) — It is all so easy. Open the phone book for U.S. Open, and all so hard for him to pick up.

Give him fortune without fame, without respect, with no responsibilities.

His was a big hit tennis balls forever.

Saturday, as a kid at 10, it caught between his desires and his needs, wanting to make the U.S. Open his "home away from home" as Boris Becker has done with Wimbledon, but feeling he must escape the inevitable celebrity.

He found himself straining on the court to reach the third round on Thursday, then breaking up uncomfortable talking about it, as if every question was a volley that he had to play. On a day when fans and players were colliding in the heat and humidity, Sampras breezed in the shade of the grandstand and his opponent's shadow, then Andrei Chernetsov, giving up a sprained ankle in the opening set. The indicated match lasted almost as long as Sampras' first-round, straight-set rout of which he yielded only five games to Christian van Houten, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3. The young, U.S. Open men's winner in history will now play for the title again. His 125-mph serves are kissing them as they did a year ago, his volleys are crisp and his legs don't look like they did a year ago, during the victory here in 1989.

"My game is as high as it has been in a long time," Sampras said. "I am playing probably as well as I could have played in the first two sets today." Sampras is peaking at just the right time, coming in here after winning two of three tournaments this summer following many months of injury and surgery. The first few months after winning the Open last year, he said, were "just utter chaos" as he backed out from exhibition to exhibition, talk show to talk show and one interview and rejection after another.

"Maybe it was my fault," he said. "Maybe I didn't control the situation the way I should have. But you live and learn about these things. If I had it to do over again, I would do it differently. I don't think I would have done the same interviews and talk shows, which I was committed to. I would have said, 'Listen, let me just find my groo- and let it sink in.' I don't enjoy doing talk shows. I showed a little nervous when I went to see Johnny Carson. But I have a tape to show the grandkids. I don't like to be the center of attention. No one likes to be famous.'

Yet, he is caught in a contradiction between the media of the world, the international capitals of the world, insisting that he would love to make the U.S. Open my home away from home. You know, like they talk about Becker at Centre Court at Wimbledon being his home. This is good tournament to me to be my home.'

Becker wouldn't mind making the U.S. Open his second home. He won here in 1989 and is looking forward to reaching the third round with a 6-7, 7-6 (7-4), 6-1 victory over Alexander Volkov.

Volkov upset Stefan Edberg in the first round before Volko's power or quickness to the net. "I could sense after I won the tiebreaker that the match was over," Volkov said. "In truth, I thought as if Volkov just quit trying in the final set, either overpowered by Becker or the heat, or both."

"In truth, I thought as if Volkov just quit trying in the final set, either overpowered by Becker or the heat, or both."

Ferreira was one of four players who quit in midmatch for, among other reasons, CourtSide temperatures over 100 degrees took a toll on Sweden's Christian Bergstrom, who re- tired because of heat exhaustion, according to France's Arnaud Boetsch.

Aaron Krickstein, who upset Andre Agassi in the first round, reached the third round when Jaime Yagura missed a straight right knee while losing 1-6, 1-3, 6-2, 3-6.

Bubka, Foster win gold medals at World Championships

TOKYO (AP) — Sergei Bubka didn’t know if he could win, and Greg Foster didn’t know if he did win.

But with one last leap and one last bound, both had gold medals for the third straight time at the World Track and Field Championships.

Foster edged Jack Pierce in the 110-meter hurdles on Thursday, while an ailing Bubka of the Soviet Union soared 19 feet, 6 1/4 inches for a dramatic victory in the pole vault.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Casey Weldon threw for 268 yards and two touchdowns, outplaying Ty Detmer in the contest of quarterbacks as top-ranked Florida State whipped No. 19 Brigham Young 44-28 Thursday night in the Pigskin Classic.

Heisman Trophy winner Detmer was 19 of 29 for 279 yards with one interception. But he kept his 24-game TD passing streak alive when he hit Eric Drage with a 30-yard shot with 7:22 remaining.

But the effort came far too late for the Cougars, whose inexperienced offensive line made Detmer an easy target all night.

Behind Weldon, the Seminoles' explosive offense rolled up 543 yards, and he completed 21 of 28 passes with no interceptions.

Leads 28-14 at halftime, the Seminoles continued to roll in the third quarter, scoring 86 yards in 11 plays to score on a 2-yard run by Edgar Bennett with 7:10 left in the quarter.

Detmer threw for only 16 yards in the third quarter while being sacked for an 8-yard loss. The Cougars' ground game was even worse, posting a 12-yard loss during their only possession.

A bad snap on a punt by Florida State resulted in a 40-yard loss and set up the Cougars' touchdown of the half, a 6-yard pass from Detmer to Eric Turral with 2:27 remaining.

Florida State's Edgar Bennett scored two touchdowns, rushing 19 times for 87 yards and catching four passes for 57 yards. Amp Lee ran for 75 yards on 13 carries.

Against the undermanned BYU defense, the Seminoles rolled to a 13-0 lead on their first two possessions as Bennett caught a 4-yard pass from Weldon and ran 3 yards for another score.

On BYU's first three possessions, Detmer was 2-for-5, had one interception and was sacked for a 14-yard loss. But he regrouped in the second quarter and his 33-yard pass to Micah Matsuizaki keyed a 76-yard scoring drive that ended with Peter Tuipulotu's 21-yard run to make it 13-7 with 14:28 left in the half.

But the Seminoles answered with scores on their next two possessions, on a 6-yard pass from Weldon to Eriic Turral, followed by Matt Frier's reception for a two-point conversion, and Lee's 5-yard run.

BYU narrowed the deficit to 14 points on a 10-play, 92-yard drive that ended with Tuipulotu's 23-yard TD run with 2:18 left in the half. Tuipulotu finished with 58 yards on 10 carries to lead BYU.

The Seminoles became the first winner of the Pigskin Classic after Colorado and Tennessee played to a 31-31 tie in the inaugural game.

Florida State won its seventh straight game dating back to last season. The Seminoles' last loss was to a 20-17 setback to Auburn on Oct. 20.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, coming off their worst season in 38 years, aren't interested in moral victories when they play host to No. 3 Miami on Saturday.

Coach Jack Crow said it's not his intention to "cover up the ball, kick it down the field, cover up the ball. That's not the kind of defensive game plan we're going to have. That's not the kind of defensive game plan we're going to have."

Arkansas, whose 3-8 record last season was its worst since the 2-8 mark of 1952, faces a team that is 55-5 the last five years, a span in which the Hurricanes finished no lower than third in the Associated Press poll.

"This is their opportunity to come out of the chute and beat a team that's ranked third in the country, get that tradition back and get things going in the right direction," said Miami coach Dennis Erickson, whose team is a three-touchdown favorite.

Despite its high ranking, Miami has only four returning starters on offense and six on defense, plus two others with some starting experience.

Arkansas' quarterback will be Gary Adams, who has attempted 12 passes in two years as the backup for Quinn Grovey. Jason Allen was supposed to push Adams this fall, but he has been on the sidelines since he hurt his hand on the first day of practice.

Adams was recruited as an option quarterback when Ken Hatfield was still Arkansas' coach. Preston threw for 950 yards in a run-oriented offense at Mount Vernon, Texas.

Look who's No. 1 in the NL West.

Atlanta caught Los Angeles on Tuesday and waved goodbye to the Dodgers on Wednesday by taking a one-game lead. The Braves are trying to get back to first in the span of a year.

"Back when the Braves had a little dry spell, people were saying reality had set in," Mets manager Bud Harrelson said. "No one's saying that now."

Tom Glavine pitched a four-hitter to beat New York 3-1 and become the major league's first 17-game winner.

Glavine (17-8), pitching with a heavily-taped right ankle which he sprained in his last start, struck out four and walked one for his eighth complete game.

"I'm starting to feel real comfortable again," said Glavine, the leading candidate for the NL Cy Young Award. "I can't say I'm not going to struggle again this year, but I feel a lot more confident again, like I did before the All-Star break."

The Braves have won six of eight and have an NL-best 31-16 record since the All-Star break.

Pirates 6, Dodgers 4

Bobby Bonilla drew a one-out walk with the bases loaded to force in the go-ahead run in the ninth inning as Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium to take a five-game lead over St. Louis in the East.

Padres 2, Cardinals 1

Fred McGriff snapped a tie with a ninth-inning sacrifice fly and Bruce Hurst won his 15th game as visiting San Diego ended St. Louis' five-game winning streak. The Padres have won four of their last five.

Tyson might face grand jury investigation

over alleged rape of pageant contestant

Indianapolis (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Mike Tyson may appear this week before a grand jury investigating an allegation he raped a beauty pageant contestant last month, according to a published report.

A judge approved a motion Wednesday for Tyson's lawyer in Washington D.C., Vincent J. Fuller, to represent the boxer during legal proceedings here, The Indianapolis Star said in today's editions.

It also said that a source said a person close to the investigation confirmed Tyson would testify before the grand jury, which is to meet again Friday.

An 18-year-old woman who competed last month in the Miss Black America Pageant in Indianapolis told police Tyson raped her July 19 in a room at the Canterbury Hotel, where Tyson was staying as a guest of Indiana Black Expo.

The Star reported that James H. Voyles, Tyson's Indianapolis attorney, said Wednesday he didn't know if his client would appear before the jury.

"I have no idea. I really don't know," Voyles said. "That's a decision for Fuller to make."

No charges have been filed against Tyson, who has denied the accusation.

The special Marion County grand jury of three women and three men began investigating Aug. 12.

David J. Dreyer, chief counsel for Prosecutor Jeffrey Modisett, has said he hoped the investigation would be completed by Labor Day.

The jury, meeting for a third day, heard testimony from contestants in the pageant and also from the Rev. Charles Williams, president of the Indiana Black Expo.

Under Indiana law, testimony before grand juries is confidential.

Prosecutors have said that Tyson was subpoenaed to testify, but as the target of the investigation, is not obligated to appear.

No motion to quash the subpoena has been filed with Marion Superior Court, the court to which the grand jury will report. That motion, if filed, automatically grants help by judges for those who are targets of investigations.

Judge Patricia J. Gifford approved the motion for Fuller to be an attorney of record in Tyson's case, Voyles said.

Because Fuller is not an accredited Indiana lawyer, he needed a judge's permission to practice here.

Williams confirmed he answered questions for about two hours, but he cannot publicly reveal what he said.

More than 16 people have testified, either on Wednesday, or Aug. 16 or 23.

NEW YORK (AP) — In a late-August game, the Blue Jays found everything they needed to win a division title and maybe even more.

Toronto discovered David Wells can win, particularly when backed by spectacular defense. The Blue Jays' 6-2 victory over the Yankees on Thursday afternoon was a course in textbook baseball.

There were two great defensive plays in the third inning and a complete-game effort from Wells for Toronto's fifth straight victory and a 2 1/2-game lead over Detroit in the AL East.

Hot-hitting Devon White also chipped in with a homer, double and single to give the center fielder 14 hits in his last 32 at-bats.

"This is the type of baseball you have to play in a pennant race," White said. "You have to take advantage of the opportunities and take them away from the other team."

With Toronto ahead 3-1, Yankees starter Jeff Johnson (5-8) hit a batter and gave up a single to Pat Tabler before a walk put runners on second and third in the sixth.

After an intentional walk to Pat Borders, Rich Monteleone relieved. Manager Stump Merrill's strategy backfired, however, when Manuel Lee hit Monteleone's first pitch into the gap in right-center, clearing the bases.

"Monteleone pitched fine after that but that one pitch was very costly," Merrill said. "I don't know what to tell you.'"

Toronto also used some clutch defense to take some runs off the scoreboard.

With the the Blue Jays leading 2-0 in the third, second baseman Roberto Alomar robbed Don Mattingly of a two-run single with an over-the-shoulder catch of a soft liner to shallow right field.

In the only other game played in the AL, Chicago beat Cleveland 7-2 to snap its nine-game losing streak.

In addition to his three-run double, Lee made a diving stop of Bob Geren's grounder up the middle in the seventh to start a 4-3 double play. For a moment, it looked like first and third with none out.

Both Wells, who had lost his previous five starts, and the Blue Jays went through a rough time for much of August but seem to be going in the right direction heading into September. Wells (13-9) had given up 27 runs over 26 1-3 innings in losing his previous five starts.

"I think we are more relaxed right now," said Gene Tenace, who's filling in as manager for Toronto while Cito Gaston is sidelined with a bad back.

"We're getting better pitching and that always helps." Wells gave up two runs, eight hits, struck out five and walked none for his second complete game of the season.

"David was in a little rut," Tenace said. "But the performance he had out there tonight shows he's working out of it."

White gave the Blue Jays a 2-0 lead when he hit a solo homer, his 14th, with one out in the third, a shot deep into the Toronto bullpen in left. He also helped build a run with a single in the first.

"I look at it as being happy and appreciated," said White, who was acquired last December from California. "It started in spring training under Cito and I've been successful in the leadoff spot."

Baltimore — Best-selling author Tom Clancy is considering trying his hand at writing a new chapter in Baltimore professional football lore.

Clancy, author of the "The Hunt for Red October" and current New York Times No. 1 best-seller "The Sum of All Fears," is considering applying for ownership of a prospective NFL expansion team in Baltimore, according to his attorney, David Cohen.

Clancy is examining the cost of owning an expansion franchise before making a definitive statement, Cohen said. He's not seeking to align himself with any other group seeking an expansion franchise.

He aced the 165-yard fourth hole of the Runon Golf Club in Omaha, Neb., on Saturday with a 6-iron and followed it Monday with an ace on the 121-yard fifth hole of the Watertown Country Club with a 9-iron.

While DiLucia's summer results were phenomenal, doubles partner Coleman caught a spark after summer school as well, winning the U.S. Collegiate Davis Cup in New York over Georgia's Bobby Maratchek, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1. Coleman's next stop was at the USTA National Amateurs, where he lost in the semi-finals to Marco Cacopardo, 3-6, 7-6, 3-6.

Coleman also took summer classes and spent much of his time in the weight room, which had been a rarity.

"Lifting helped out more than anything else," said Coleman. "It's something I should've been working on awhile, so it was good to see that it paid off."

The top-notch play of the DiLucia-Coleman duo should pay off as the Irish go for their second straight trip to the NCAAs.

"It's good that we have such a difficult schedule. We have high expectations, and we want to become a Top 20 program, and the only way to get there is to play the best teams."

And for the Irish to win on Saturday, they will have to continue to show progress in two major facets of the game: passing and defense.

"Our effort and our pursuit (on defense) have been pretty good, but we need to become more comfortable with our skills and going to the floor to play balls than where we are away from the other team,"

DiLucia ready to play for ND after summer with ATP tour

By DAVE McMAHON
Associate Sports Editor

Although the Notre Dame men's tennis season's team's season ended in the spring with a spot in the NCAA tournament, the wins kept coming all through the summer. Though not competing for the Irish the past months, the summer performances of three-time All-American Chuck Brown should greatly improve the team outlook for the season.

After reaching All-American status for the third time as many years during last spring's NCAA men's tennis tournament, DiLucia faced an opportunity to grow.

He could have joined the Association of Tennis Players (ATP) tour and try to earn enough points to gain a qualifying position at the U.S. Open in Flushing Meadow, New York, or he could have taken summer school classes to lessen his class load for the current year and work on the physical aspect of his game. In typical DiLucia take-charge fashion, he ended up doing both.

After contemplating his options with Irish tennis coach Bob Bayliss, DiLucia opted for another few weeks in South Bend, taking three classes and working extensively on his physical game.

"He made a conscious decision to come for summer school," said Bayliss. "He wanted to lift and become better physically, which he did because of a great job by the strength coaches. He's also guaranteed a lighter load for his senior year, which will help him get out a lot during the season."

A representative of Team USA at the Pan American Games in early August, continued DiLucia through hard spring practice, rolling to the singles finals before falling to Mexico's Luis Herrera, 6-3, 6-2. But DiLucia was only halfway through—he later teamed with professional Pam Shriver to bring home the gold medal in mixed doubles.

While Bayliss liked what he saw in DiLucia in Havana, he was concerned that the United States Tennis Association (USTA) would view DiLucia's decision to stay on the ATP circuit as a setback to his game. He was concerned the USTA hierarchy might think that tennis wasn't important to Davis," said Bayliss. "But they saw what he's capable of by what he did there, and I really think his Pan Am performance earned him a spot in the quarters at the U.S. Open.

The qualifying positions normally go to other touring professional players who have earned a minimum number of ATP points, but the Open committee invited DiLucia over many pros. A rotator cuff injury in his second qualifying match cut his stint short at the Open and forced DiLucia to cut his losses when his return.

He was concerned the USTA hierarchy might think that tennis wasn't important to Davis," said Bayliss. "But they saw what he's capable of by what he did there, and I really think his Pan Am performance earned him a spot in the quarters at the U.S. Open.

The qualifying positions normally go to other touring professional players who have earned a minimum number of ATP points, but the Open committee invited DiLucia over many pros. A rotator cuff injury in his second qualifying match cut his stint short at the Open and forced DiLucia to cut his losses when his return.

DiLucia leads ND Linebackers

When the Fighting Irish take the field against the Hoosiers from Indiana University to open the 1991 season, one question will be on the mind of Irish fans—How good is the defense?

One area that will be under scrutiny against the Hoosiers, as well as the rest of the line backers. The Irish have lost six line backers from last year's team, four graduation, and two transfers. The lone returning starter is inside linebacker Demetrius DuBose. DuBose's predecessor is Jim Flanigan, a sophomore, earned the starting spot last year and this year in fall practice. The Irish defense is expected to be led by senior Devon McDonald. He will be complemented on the other side by sophomore Anthony Peterson. However, DuBose was being challenged by Karmeeley McGill, a versatile player who moves in and out of the defense, and defense, and depending on where he is needed.

The Irish line backers are young, so they have spent much of their time working on their defensive assignments now for starting positions are Choquette and Turner—who led the Irish in kills (321), aces (42) and digs (261) in 1990— at outside hitter, senior Katie Kavanagh as defensive specialist, and sophomore Janelle Karrlan (38 assists, 226 digs) at setter.

"At the defensive specialist position, Katie Kavanagh has done a great job," Brown said. "It's going to be important for us to have her on the floor as much as possible. She plays great defense, she passes very well, and I imagine that I'll find a way every game to have her in there.

"Janelle also is going to be a key player for us. The setting role is a critical one, and she's going to rely on her heavily to do a good job, and I have confidence in her to do so well for us.

A setback for Notre Dame occurred Wednesday, however, as senior Jennifer Silnor went down in practice with a knee injury. While at first appearing serious, doctors have told Brown that surgery will not be necessary and that Silnor should be back within two to three weeks.

"Obviously this is a disappointment, but this is a resilient team, and I'm sure it will respond to this adversity in a positive way," Brown said.

While Silnor's injury will not affect the Irish greatly in Friday's exhibition, they certainly could have used her against the Boilermakers.

Purdue finished 21-11 last season, was ranked 20th in the final coaches' poll and reached the NCAA tournament for the first time since 1987. Two of its top returnees are senior Sarah Hopkins (2.59 kills, 218 digs) and junior Gail Halinka (2.7 kills) who shared the team's Most Improved player award.

Purdue is one of 12 matches Notre Dame faces in 1991 against NCAA tournament competition from last year.

"It's nice to have the alumni match first because we can get the preseason jitters out in a low-pressure situation," Brown said. "But I like opening with a
