sub committee have been formed: one to study environmental and make recommendations for a better campus and make recommendations for minority students. Its purpose is to examine the situation of minority students on campus and make recommendations to the university. The group is comprised of six faculty members, eight students and six administrators. Three sub-committees have been formed: one to study environmental issues, another to study diversity, and a third to study safety and security. The first meeting of the subcommittee was held on Monday, and the committee members are now looking to see how they can make recommendations to improve the situation of minority students on campus.

Notre Dame's Academic Council will review the Academic Code of Honor at the organization's first meeting in February. According to Father Oliver Williams, associate provost and member of the committee, the Council implemented the code of honor in 1988, for a four-year trial period to end this January. During the code's first year, freshmen committed to certain terms in certain courses. Professors of upper-class courses could propose that their courses be governed by the code. If the course dean approved, and no students in the course objected, the code was in effect for all courses, according to Williams.

The honor code is now effective for all courses, according to Williams. These four years have not been Notre Dame's first experiment with an honor code. A code was in effect prior to 1969, when members of the Student Honor Council resigned because they did not think students were committed to the code. Williams, Academic Code of Honor Committee chair when the code was implemented, commented then that he thought students would be more supportive of the new code.

And they have been, he says. "The code has been quite successful," according to Williams, who recalled that the key reason the Council first supported the code was that "it would be a tool of moral education." The code's terms are similar to those in the "real world," Williams said, "although the penalties are much harsher here." An example is the "non-tolerance clause," which states that a student must urge classmates to confront the code once during their University career, he said, and "the code's meaning. Here, many people continue to discuss the code's meaning. Many people make mistakes, but they are not to be penalized.

Students' attitude toward the code has changed during the last four years, Sepeta said. Those who were against the code in their junior or senior years were very critical, he said, and now they are "so much more positive. It's really come a long way."

Sepeta related the story of a freshman taking her first math test. Her professor left the solution on the desk and went to have a cup of coffee during the test, saying that because of the honor code he trusted them not to cheat. The student, Sepeta related, was "so proud that (the professor) trusted them." She was later caught while cheating, but she was not penalized.

The belief that the code is basically a "promise not to lie" is a misconception, according to Sepeta. Really, "the student is saying, 'I am willing to submit to the code,'" according to Sepeta.

Most importantly, one must realize "the sum is bigger than the parts," according to Sepeta. Students' attitude toward the code has changed during the last four years, Sepeta said. Let's talk about the graffiti syndrome.

This is an ailment that seems to be affecting more individuals around here than one would like to think. In short, the graffiti syndrome is a disorder in which individuals express angry, vile, hateful notions and/or point their opinions about something on the wall (or the other without taking credit for it, i.e., they do so anonymously). Obviously, the name comes from graffiti such as that which can be found in nearly every study carrel in that tower of intellectual purity called the Hesburgh Library. I have always been interested in the excruciatingly hateful things people will write in this institution are capable of scratching: racial epithets, slurs against women and homosexualities, and the ever present invitations to perform any number of sexual acts.

Why is this important? More importantly, is it important? Well, yeah, I think so. You see it all comes down to accountability, taking responsibility for the things you say.

Two semesters ago, I was awakened by the incessant jangle of my phone. Fumbling through my room with all the grace and speed that could be expected at 3:00 a.m., I reached the phone.

"Hello", I groveled.

What I had just pulled out of the phone was the most well rehearsed tirade I have ever had the pleasure of experiencing. Wow, did I get an earful. I was so tired, I just stood there and listened. I was a sexist. A really, really big sexist. In my mind, the Observer was obviously jaded and bitter. I wasn't funny (this one snapped me awake).

My heart sank lower. The last thing in the world I had wanted to do with my career was become seriously offended someone. These allegations really concerned me. I figured a discussion should ensue so I could get a better grasp on her perspective. But not now, not at 3:00 a.m. I was exhausted and in no position to handle anything coherently. I would set up another time to talk.

So I asked her name. Silence. Maybe she didn't hear me. I asked her name again. She just started talking again, ignoring me. I asked her name again. And again. And again. She hung up. I stood there with the phone in my hand.

I had just raised some serious issues and although I didn't agree with her point of view, I realized that she may have some insight that I might be lacking. But there was no discussion, no exchange of ideas and as I tried to get back to sleep I realized that I had just been the victim of intellectual terrorism. Blind-sided by someone who obviously lacked a strong enough conviction in her ideas to associate her name with them.

Now I've learned to expect feedback only when I've done something wrong. I can live with that. All I ask is that if you do have an opinion to express, take responsibility for it.

Because the graffiti syndrome and intellectual terrorism are just euphemisms for something far more fundamental—cowardice.

Imelda Marcos returns to Manila

■ MANILA, Philippines—Former first lady Imelda Marcos returned Monday to a railway welcome nearly six years after a population that considered her and her late husband corrupt despots drove them and their untold riches into exile. Mrs. Marcos, 61, told supporters she had come to unite the country and vindicate her husband, who died in exile in Hawaii in 1989. The government says President Ferdinand Marcos and his flamboyant wife stowed $10 billion from the Philippine people during his 20-year rule. Mrs. Marcos faces nine tax fraud and other charges in connection with allegations she and her husband pillaged the treasury before their February 1986 exile in the "people power" revolution. President Aquino's chief aide, Franklin Drilon, said the former first lady was allowed to return so the government could prosecute her and thereby meet Switzerland's conditions for returning $350 million from banks there.

INDIANA

■ INDIANA—Appears that a new federal clean air law will increase demand for ethanol as fueling a drive by producers of the corn-based gasoline additive to expand their capacity. The federal law requires that by November 1992, gasoline must be reformulated to control carbon monoxide and smog in the nation's 39 areas with the worst carbon monoxide pollution. One way to create an oxygenated, cleaner-burning fuel is to add ethanol, a colorless grain alcohol brewed from corn.

Senate begins another MIA probe

WASHINGTON -- A dozen senators will launch today another investigation into the controversy that has bedeviled the nation since the end of the Vietnam War regarding whether there were any U.S. servicemen left captive. Reports of live Americans sighted in Southeast Asia, photographs of questionable authenticity and Hollywood's box-office fiction have refueled thoughts that somewhere in the jungles, Americans languish at the hands of communist captors. More than 15 years after the Vietnam War ended, 2,273 Americans still are listed as missing in action. Almost all of them are considered by the Pentagon to be dead, but many families remain skeptical about what the government has told them.

The Vietnamese are more cooperative than ever before, and so is the Pentagon, which in the past has been accused of giving the brush-off to families of the missing, keeping too much information secret and dismissing evidence that may have merited further attention.

CAMPUS

■ Notre Dame student acquitted

■ NOTRE DAME, Ind.--A female Notre Dame student was acquitted in D-Z South parking on Nov. 2 at approximately 1:50 a.m., according to Chuck Hurley, assistant director of Notre Dame Security. The student told Security she was approached by a black male who grabbed her arm. She was able to reach her phone before hitting him with a flashlight she found nearby. The student was not injured in the incident, he said. Security is investigating the incident.
Surgeon General targets TV beer and wine ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeon General Antonia Novello asked the alcohol industry Monday to pull television ads that use cartoon characters, bikini-clad women at beach parties and other such images that she says target underage drinkers.

Industry representatives defended their companies' ads. They said they will discuss teen-age drinking with Novello, but have no plans to halt any of their ads.

Rep. Joe Kennedy, D-Mass., who is sponsoring legislation to require that alcohol advertising carry health and safety warnings, said it was "naive" to believe the industry will act voluntarily.

While Novello said she prefers voluntary action — executives, she said, "will know what to do" — she added that she would seek stronger action if the industry does not comply.

Novello did not say what that action might be.

Most of her criticism was directed at ads that portray beer drinking as part of a sexy and glamorous lifestyle of attractive young people that includes beach parties and active sports like skiing and surfing. The ads imply that drinking builds confidence, she said.

"The constant pounding of messages about drinking widens the opportunity for kids to believe it is OK to do it and most important that it is safe to do it," the surgeon general said.

Novello, who has been campaigning against teen-age drinking, said she wants the beer and wine industries to remove any ad that appeals to youth, "especially (ads) that have music that appeals to them and anything that has cartoon." Liquor products are not advertised on TV.

She has invited the top executives of major brewers, vintners and distillers to meet with her Dec. 11 to discuss her criticism of their advertising.

A spokesman for the Beer Institute, Jeffrey Becker, said industry leaders are willing to meet with Novello to discuss underage drinking, but added that "I don't think you're going to see the end of the lifestyle ads."

"There is a middle ground," he said, adding, "I don't know what that is."

John De Luca, president of the Wine Institute, said his industry's voluntary advertising code does not contain the use of athletes, rock stars or "anything that targets underage drinking."

Novello also released an inspector general's report which concludes that federal regulation of the alcohol industry is fragmented, that enforcement authority is limited and that alcohol industry standards do not effectively restrict ads that appeal to youth.

Pilot succumbs to cold before rescue

TORONTO (AP) — Twelve hours before help arrived, the pilot of a military supply plane that crashed in the high Arctic succumbed to the brutal cold after he insisted that an injured survivor wear his jacket.

Capt. John Couch was alive and unhurt after the C-130 Hercules transport plane crashed Wednesday afternoon into the tundra 12 miles south of Alert, Northwest Territories, a secret military base at the top of the world.

But after working frantically for hours in 8 below zero temperatures and bitter winds to tend the 13 other survivors, Couch, 32, lay down to sleep outside the wreckage wearing only a light jacket. He never woke up.

The leader of the search and rescue team, Warrant Officer Fred Ritchie, told reporters in Edmonton, Alberta, "He never ceased. He was like a mother to them all out there."

Four others also died. Lt. Joseph Bales, the co-pilot, said the crew had parked but weren't wearing them while operating the aircraft. The crew jumped onto impact and the cockpit exploded. The cause of the crash wasn't known.

The crash trail was a mile long, with survival gear strewn over the snowy terrain.

"Everything was pitch black," Bales said in an interview with the Toronto Globe and Mail. "We were running around for the first few hours. It was terrible. Just the combination of cold and dark. We were carrying bodies and just sweating profusely."

No one was killed outright, but "four people died within the first hour of severe injuries that first-aid techniques couldn't look after," the co-pilot said.

orders, eating disorders and self-blame are common, according to Eslinger. The chances of becoming pregnant are believed to be less than one percent. For rape victims, they often feel like their privacy has been ripped away from them, and they may even change their home residence.

The police department's primary concerns, according to Werntz, are first to look out for the victim's interest. They must next collect evidence and help prepare a case for the prosecuting office, she said.

It is crucial that they prove three elements for the state of Indiana to prove one assault or rape, said Werntz. It must be vaginal rape and performed with a lack of consent. They must also try to get the identity of the suspect quickly, said Werntz.

scribe to the whole process," including the judicial process and penalties, he said.

Sepeta likened the honor code pledge to the Pledge of Allegiance. "It's an affirmation...it doesn't have to be paradoxical for a person who believes in it," he said.

Some students criticize the penalties the code outlines. But "the penalties have been around forever," Sepeta said, and "there would be those decisions whether we had an honor code or not."

Sepeta advocates some changes in the policy. For example, take-home test procedure should mimic homework procedure, he said. If students are permitted to collaborate on homework, he explained, they might be more inclined to work together on take-home tests, regardless of instructions.

The discrepancy over procuring must be cleared up, Sepeta said. Some students are offended if a professor passes out different colored tests or tells them to sit a couple of desks apart, he said, "but we just acknowledge that as human beings you get tempted."

In turn, some professors think they are obligated to leave the room during a test, Sepeta said. As he interprets the code, professors "can stay in the room, can pace the room once, and if they see blatant cheating, they have to report it."

Some professors think they are not permitted to be in the classroom during a test, Sepeta said, so they pretend they are not there, ignoring any cheating that goes on.

Things to know about rape

According to Laurel Eslinger, of the Madison Center Sex Offense Services:

- 1 out of 4 women will be sexually assaulted in their lifetime.
- On college campuses, 1 out of 6 women will be raped.
- Rape is one of the most underreported crimes with only 10 victims reporting the crime.

In order to prevent rape, Eslinger suggests:

- While going to your car carry your keys and lock underneath Werntz.
- From a legal standpoint, the state of Indiana defines rape as, "A person who knowingly has sexual intercourse with a member of the opposite sex who is not the person's spouse."

Sepsa said, and they may even change their home residence.

Two Kuwaiti wells capped; crews battle final two fires

RAWDATEIN, Kuwait (AP) — Firefighters capped two gushing oil wells Monday and blasted flames at the final stubborn pair of the 640 wells set ablaze by the Iraqis during their occupation of Kuwait.

They hoped to finish them off before Wednesday's planned ceremony marking the end of the firefighting effort.

The snuffing of the final fire will mark a surprisingly quick end to an environmental and industrial disaster. Iraq forces damaged a total of 732 of Kuwait's 940 producing wells, most during their February retreat under allied bombardment after a seven-month occupation of Kuwait.

Smoke from the fires polluted the air, black rain was reported as far away as Bulgaria and Kuwait's desert remains marred by soot and oil lakes.

Nevertheless, scientists say predictions of a global catastrophe have not come to pass. The Kuwaitis estimated that the destruction cost their oil industry $43 billion, though officials said two weeks ago they expected the figure to be lower because of the rapid progress.

But a rapid increase in the number of firefighting teams, greater availability of equipment, more plentiful water supplies and quickly gained experience sped-up the campaign.

On Monday, crews capped two wells in the Rawdatain and Burgan fields which had been extinguished earlier.

The troublesome blazes are in the Rawdatain and Sabriya oil fields, north of Kuwait City.

Notre Dame Orchestra set to perform fall concert

Special to The Observer

The University of Notre Dame Orchestra will perform their fall concert on Thursday, Nov. 6, at 8 p.m. in Washington Hall. The concert, sponsored by the University's music department, is free and open to the public.

Conductor Guy Victor Bordo will lead the orchestra with graduate student Michelle Lalliberte, Yi Xi and Kavan Rambukwelle as violin soloists performing Gabriel Fauré's "Pelleas and Melisande Suite, Rambukwelle as violin soloists.

Bordo recently completed his doctorate in orchestral conducting at Northwestern University. After his debut concert at the 1988 Arts Jubilee Festival in North Conway, N.H., he served as music director for the New England Symphony Orchestra. Bordo is currently orchestra conductor at Notre Dame as well as resident conductor of the North Suburban Symphony Orchestra in Lake Forest, Ill., and chamber orchestra conductor at the University of Chicago.

Bordo earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in music at the University of Michigan. He has studied conducting with Gustav Meier of Tanglewood Music Center, assistant conductor Carl St. Clair of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and presently with Victor Vangolisky at Northwestern University.

From 1983 to 1988, he was an assistant professor of music at Plymouth State College in Plymouth, N.H., later serving as music director of the Lakes Region Symphony Orchestra and the New Hampshire music Festival Orchestra.

Lalliberte is a second-year graduate student at the University of Michigan. She has studied the violin for 17 years and is now a first-year graduate student at Notre Dame.

Rambukwelle is also a first-year graduate student at the University of Michigan. He has studied the violin for 10 years and is now a first-year graduate student at Notre Dame.

Five U.S. presidents gather at Reagan library opening

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan opened his presidential library Monday and invited the world to "come and learn from it." He was joined by President Bush and their three predecessors in the first gathering ever of five U.S. chief executives.

Eleven years to the day since he was elected into his 80-year-old Reagan joined Bush, Jimmy Carter, Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon at the hilltop library under brilliant, windless skies. A band played "Hail to the Chief" as they took the stage. Air Force One flew over.

"The doors of this library are open now and all are welcome," Reagan told a crowd of 4,200 invited guests. "The judgment of history is left to you, the people. I have no fears of that. We have done our best. And so I come and learn from it." In addition to the presidents and their wives, Lady Bird Johnson and her daughter represented the late Lyndon Johnson, and John Kennedy Jr. and Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg went for their late father, John Kennedy. There was also a retainer of Franklin Roosevelt.

Reagan's fellow chief executives took turns at the microphone, praising him and looking back on their challenges of their own administrations.

Bush, who was Reagan's vice president and the man who ruined his reelection bid, hailed him as "an American original...a man who is about as genuine and who is about as beloved as anybody has ever been in our history," said, "Our nation stood strong...and we won." seniors who believed in freedom and democracy and who "restored America's military might," Ford said.

Even Carter, who huddled back from election-monitoring in Zambia to attend the dedication, had kind words for the man who ruined his reelection hopes. Under Reagan, Carter said, "Our nation stood strong and resolved and made possible the beginning of the end of the Cold War."

Carter, the only Democrat of the five, jokingly alluded to Reagan's presidential dominance in the last quarter-century. "I have one concern, and that is that the Republican representation has four times as much time on the program as the Democrats," Carter said to laughs from the largely GOP crowd. "My side has another advantage over me. At least all of you have met a Democratic president. I've never had that honor yet." Republican president, called him his men and admired him as "an American gentleman and they've run our nation for years." Reagan knew, "I have one concern, and that is that the Republican representation has four times as much time on the program as the Democrats," Carter said to laughs from the largely GOP crowd. "My side has another advantage over me. At least all of you have met a Democratic president. I've never had that honor yet."

Bush said he felt badly about Nixon, saying, "I have one concern, and that is that the Republican representation has four times as much time on the program as the Democrats," Carter said to laughs from the largely GOP crowd. "My side has another advantage over me. At least all of you have met a Democratic president. I've never had that honor yet."

Ronald Reagan predicted that communism would land in the dustbin of history and his tim e."

"Today that wall exists only in museums, souvenir collections and the memories of a people, no longer oppressed," he said.

Also on hand for the ceremony were 25 full-time staff members to operate the library at $1.1 to $1.5 million a year.

In the latest reading on Reagan's standing, nearly three weeks after he left the White House, a Los Angeles Times poll published Monday suggested that people who gave Reagan landslide victories are divided on his legacy, and many consider him a good and successful president. He was the great communicator, he said.

A number of concerns and strictly defining what groups are considered minorities in specific situations be addressed.

The task force will submit two reports to Malloy, Warner said. The first, due January 15, will be a general report of information gathered thus far, and the second will make specific recommendations.

The Senate also discussed the formation of committees to study its constitution and the honor code.

The constitution has been changed in bits and pieces over the past two and a half years so that it is repetitive and contradictory in places, said Student Body President Joseph Blanco. The constitution will be studied the whole institution will also be included.

What's There: 47 million documents, including 6.3 million pages of White House documents and papers to researchers; 1 million photographs; 87,750 feet of motion picture film; 20,000 videos; 32,000 audio tapes; 75,000 museum objects; 15,000 books; extensive White House gift collection; displays on Reagan's life and the Reagan presidency.

Who's Attending: Slated to attend Monday's dedication are Reagan, President Bush and former presidents Carter, Ford and Nixon; Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney; Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro; Jihan Sadat, widow of slain Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

In the lastest reading on Reagan's standing, nearly three weeks after he left the White House, a Los Angeles Timespoll published Monday suggested that people who gave Reagan landslide victories are divided on his legacy, and many consider him a good and successful president.

Arm3y delayed notification of soldiers’ kin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army delayed for months notifying relatives of soldiers killed by friendly fire in the Persian Gulf War, The Washington Post reported in Tuesday editions.

The newspaper said the Army broke its own rules by not immediately providing families with full information on how their servicemen died as soon as it was known. But an Army official said it was necessary to deviate from regulations if prudence demanded it.

The Post said that initial Army regulation 600-8-1 required the service to make immediate and full disclosure of friendly fire to next of kin. The Post asserted the Army disobeyed its own regulation.

The newspaper said the Army refused to notify the families, however, had to wait until August for official acknowledgment, the newspaper said. It quoted Lt. Gen. William Reno, deputy chief of staff for personnel, as saying: “I am obliged to comply with my own personnel, as saying: “I am obliged to comply with my own personal development."

“Every decision we made with respect to notification of families was made with the motive of care and compassion for the families,” he said.

The Challenge consisted of eight events including a physical fitness test, in which the Notre Dame team placed first, weapons assembly, and orienteering. It is both physically and mentally grueling because the cadets are continuously challenged the entire three days of the competition, said Gritz.

All members of Notre Dame’s team are volunteers, and they are led by Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Greg Hendry, said Gritz. Other team members are seniors Greg Cannata, Jed O’Meara, Mike Deperrro, and Darrell Driver, and freshmen Greg Cannata and Jed Turbyville.

Hendry has competed in the Challenge for four years, and he noted the experience gained by the young team. “As everyone gains experience they will benefit the whole squad,” he said.

Mideast delegates have mixed feelings

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Arabs and Israelis went home Monday with mixed feelings of frustration and anticipation after an intense four days of talks in a last-ditch effort to resolve the most intractable regional conflicts in the world.

Few concrete achievements resulted from last week's three-day Middle East conference and the three sets of direct Israeli-Arab talks that ended early Monday with a bitter Israeli-Syrian session.

But the talks smashed a 43-year taboo on direct Israeli-Arab talks, setting in motion a process of face-to-face negotiations to resolve one of the most intractable regional conflicts in the world.

The United States and Soviet Union sponsored the talks, and President Bush's administration was: "We have a long way to go in the United States comes up with an acceptable location. Officials on both sides said Washington or other sites in North America were possible.

An Israeli spokesman said Monday that Syria's main demand is for the return of the Golan Heights, captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war. There were also reports that Israeli troops shelled the positions of radicals Muslim guerrillas in Lebanon.

In the Iranian capital of Tehran, Shi'ite Muslim demonstrators burned American and Israeli flags and an effigy of Uncle Sam outside the former U.S. Embassy compound to mark its takeover 13 years ago by Iranian radicals.

The late-night talks in Madrid were the first-ever direct discussion between Israel and Syria and they lasted five hours, into the early hours on Monday. But the enemies failed to move even an inch from their positions, or even shake hands. Even coffee breaks were taken in separate rooms.

Syria rejected an Israeli request to establish direct contacts to arrange the site for the next round of talks, scheduled later this month.

House votes against FDIC bailout

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Monday overwhelmingly defeated legislation designed to rescue the nearly insolvent Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and provide new business opportunities for the nation's struggling commercial banks.

The 324-89 vote sent lawmakers searching for a more acceptable package.

One available possibility was a narrowly drawn bill already introduced which would replenish the FDIC and make a few regulatory changes that have generated little controversy.

Before adjourning for the year, Congress must provide more funds for the FDIC or leave the agency in danger of being unable to protect 110 million depositors.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady called on the House to "now craft new comprehensive legislation to address the real problems of the banking system including an appropriate balancing of interests between the insurance, securities and banking industries."

"A narrow recapitalization of the bank insurance fund will only delay the day of reckoning," he said.

But Democrats most involved in crafting the bill said they saw little chance of passing anything more than the narrowly drawn bill, given the level of controversy and scant few weeks left before adjournment.

The Senate planned to start debating its version of the banking bill this week. The House and Senate versions then could be melded in a conference committee later allowing Congress in the end to send the president broad banking legislation despite Monday's defeat.

The Bush administration, which objected to changes in the bill made at the urging of Democratic leaders, campaigned to defeat the House measure. It was joined by Democrats opposed to restrictions the package would have placed on bankers.

The nation's largest banks lobbied hard against the measure which took nine months to draft and was under debate on the House floor for three days.

Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., pleaded for passage of the measure, urging lawmakers to forget about the lobbyists.

"We hear a lot about what this lobby wants and what that lobby wants," Gephardt said. "... Let's forget about the hobbies and start worrying about what's good for the American people and the American taxpayers for a change."

But, 170 Democrats joined 153 Republicans and one independent in defeating the bill. Voting yes were 83 Democrats and six Republicans.

In addition to increasing the taxpayer-backed borrowing authority of the FDIC, the bill would have permitted banks to expand freely across state lines for the first time since 1927 and enter the securities business, although under tight restrictions, for the first time since 1933.

Both the narrow and broad bills would give regulators new power to crack down on weak banks and forbid most bailouts covering deposits over the $100,000 per-account federal insurance limit.

Campus Ministry...

Formation for Life

Sometimes I get the impression that the goal of our Notre Dame education and of all our student affairs policies is to provide our students with four nice years - peaceful, untroubled, and enjoyable - that will be remembered with gratitude and nostalgia, and hence, bind our alumni into the ever-growing network of responsible American citizens who wear Notre Dame T-shirts while they jog.

With a heavy commitment to dormitory systems where there are a lot of rules and plenty of control, and with a student body that has a strong sense of its need to work very hard to conquer an excess of material, our atmosphere can sometimes feel like it hardly gives anyone time to look up and see what kind of person they are becoming. Our worst stereotype is of a student life that looks like five nights of compulsive study, followed by two nights of compulsive drinking - no integration, no balance. A more pleasant image is of people just getting by, doing what they're told to stay out of trouble - being nice.

The hassle is really not the students, its the grownups. We haven't made it clear enough what we think is important. We allow folks to move through four nice years, maybe working too hard, maybe not, but without the challenge and help to clearly enough articulate what values they will live for and build a life around after graduation.

The Center for Social Concerns tries, Campus Ministry tries, Notre Dame Encounter does some of it, the rectors and dorm staffs do a lot. Still I wonder if our students hear a clear message and a clear call.

Inquiry, belief, community - these are the markers of our self-image. But where do we do it? How do we practice integrating these things together? When do we help each other to set up patterns that will carry into our future life? What are the values that must be embraced if our self-description is to be valid in the real world?

What I think we really need are more creative experiences of community. Our students need to spend more time and energy together searching for what it would mean to be an adult and a Christian in the modern world. Our "grownups" need to examine their lives more closely and see if our witness of daily life is truly an invitation to our students to see the world in a new way and to live with new hopes, or are we just quietly passing along the common, pedestrian values of our culture?

We need to figure it out together. We need to talk more and more about what is more important. We need to call one another to the most satisfying and sustaining values of life, for example - fidelity, simplicity, and wonder.

Notre Dame is a great place to be, to study, to make friends, to pray, to discover new talents. But in the end, it is not a place set up to help people just have four nice years. It is about formation for life.

Lecture will articulate Church’s teaching on homosexuality

Dear Editor:

One of the important issues that has arisen recently in the Notre Dame community is that of our attitude toward and treatment of persons with a homosexual orientation.

Last year a number of departments in the university and several campus organizations sponsored a five-part lecture series on Homo-sextual Orientation. Our intent was to promote a better understanding of the psycho-social, religious, cultural, philosophical, and historical aspects of homosexuality and to extend to gay people, as it was advertised.

It seemed as if the invited speakers, from the perspective of philosophy (anthropology, philosophy, theology), presented only one point of view. Several of the lectures were outright advocacy of the homosexual lifestyle (Professors Richard Mohr, Ethical Perspectives on Homosexuality, Oct. 16; Dr. Louise Douce, Homosexuality: A Psychologist’s Perspective, Nov. 13): others argued that homosexuality is not against nature (Professor Paul Gehard, Historical and Cross-Cultural Perspectives on Homosexuality, Oct. 9), nor contrary to anything in the Old Testament, nor the teaching of St. Paul in the New Testament, nor the mind of Christ (Mohr and Douce).

One lecture urged that the Catholic Church and her sister ministries become monogamous (i.e. and genital) relationships among persons who are of an irreverendable homosexual orientation and not called to celibacy for the kingdom of God (Reverend Richard J. McCormick, S.J., Perspectives on Homosexuality and the Church, Oct. 30).

The exception by a number of members of the Notre Dame community was that this lecture series was flawed by its imbalance. It was one-sided, expressing only positions conflicting with the centuries-old position of the teaching authority of the Roman Catholic Church on the question of homosexual orientation and homosexual acts. Sensitive to this perceived imbalance, and acting in accord with our purpose of fostering intelligent discussion of the issues of the day on this campus, we at the Graduate Student Union: Intellectual Life Committee and the Student Union Board Issues and Ideas Commission are sponsoring two events of interest this week.

This evening, Nov. 5 in the Hayes-Healy auditorium, we will be sponsoring a lecture entitled ‘The Homosexual Person and Catholic Moral Teaching’ by Reverend John Harvey, O. S. F. S. While perhaps most of the members of the Notre Dame community are as Roman Catholics faithful to long-standing Church teaching, op-posed to the homosexual lifestyle, perhaps they feel they do not adequately understand the reason for the Church’s teaching on this matter.

They may have a difficult time articulating and justifying this traditional tenet of Catholic morals. Father Harvey proposes to do precisely this: To explain the Church’s teaching on homosexuality and to do so by locating it within the broader context of the teachings of Christ, Scripture, and the tradition on the nature of sexuality itself.

It clearly does not follow that if one is opposed to the homosexual lifestyle on Christian and ethical grounds that one is thereby homophobic. Certainly no one can accuse Father Harvey of homophobia. Having been involved in the pastoral care of homosexual men and women for over 35 years, it is doubtful whether there is a more articulate Catholic person in the United States who has more experience with and sympathy for the difficulties and struggles of the homosexual person than Father Harvey.

Father Harvey is the founder of the homosexual support group, Courage, and the author of one major study, “The Homosexual Person: New Thinking in Pastoral Care” (Ignatius Press, 1987) and over 40 scholarly articles on the subject.

As a further means to fostering discussion of this issue, on Wednesday evening of this week, Nov. 6, in the Galvin Life Science Auditorium, we will be sponsoring a debate on the issue of whether this university’s non-recognition of a homosexual student organization is inconsistent with her mission as a Catholic university.

Professor Lawrence Bradley of the Management Department will be arguing the affirmative side of this question, Professor Ralph McNamara of the Philosophy Department will be arguing the negative. All are in-vited to attend and participate in this event: There will be a question and answer sequence to follow.

Reader claims referees, ’Phantom II’ helped ND to victory

Dear Editor:
The Observer’s football re­porters need to be more objec­tive and critical. Why don’t they declare what television viewers across the country know: Tony Brooks didn’t reach the end zone with the ball in the game against USC. He fumbled it into and out of the end zone.

It wasn’t just a “controversial” call by the ref­eree. It was errant. USC should have gotten the ball on the 20. Instead, Notre Dame got seven points.

That referee’s call was an in­tegral part of our victory. We might have won games like that, but, face it, if we didn’t win this game like that, we quite possibly would not have won at all.

Ten years ago in the Coliseum, USC beat Notre Dame by virtue of a referee error. The next day the Los Angeles Times headline read, “USC wins on goal-line sham.” That score is now known as the “Phantom Touchdown.”

Brooks’ touchdown against USC was equally dependent on an errant call. Can we be as candid as the press in southern California and boldly call this touchdown “Phantom II”?

We in the stands might not have recognized what was going on, but those watching the game at home saw the referee’s mistake replayed several times. When those viewers ponder why USC can’t beat Notre Dame in South Bend, they don’t give Regis Philbin’s three reasons: our coach, our team, and our fans.

Instead, they give just one: our refs. We should at least try to understand why they might legitimately think that.

From the Notre Dame gridiron to the Canadian Embassy in Ireland, Michael Wadsworth has made quite a name for himself. The position is merely one of a series of unexpected promotions thrusting the ambitious 1966 alumnus into the limelight. Wadsworth, who was on campus last week lecturing on the campus last week lecturing on the Canadian Football League (CFL) and its development, finds the Notre Dame environment more than enjoyable. "The campus would still be the same time. Amazingly, he did just that. At the same time, the CFL would induce players with the opportunity to start a career while playing football. He would have to attend law school during the mornings and early afternoon and then practice from 4 to 8:30 p.m. with the Toronto Argonauts. If the schedule sounds execrable, it wasn't. "You could do it then, you couldn't now," Wadsworth said. He spent five years with the Argonauts until a call to the Canadian Bar Association and a nagging knee injury told him it was time to move on. But although Wadsworth was leaving the playing field, he would not abandon the game. Although he had "no background" in journalism, Wadsworth's retirement from the game led to jobs working as a radio and television commentator and newspaper columnist. He worked as a radio and television commentator for the Toronto Argonauts games from 1971-1981. At the same time, he was also a sports columnist for the Toronto Star from 1972 to 1973. "You could do it then, you couldn't now," Wadsworth said. He spent five years with the Argonauts until a call to the Canadian Bar Association and a nagging knee injury told him it was time to move on. But although Wadsworth was leaving the playing field, he would not abandon the game. Although he had "no background" in journalism, Wadsworth's retirement from the game led to jobs working as a radio and television commentator and newspaper columnist. He worked as a radio and television commentator for the Toronto Argonauts games from 1971-1981. At the same time, he was also a sports columnist for the Toronto Star from 1972 to 1973. And through all of this, he maintained a successful practice in criminal defense law. By 1981 Wadsworth had "started to become a little restless," going through "a period of wanting new options" beyond the legal field. He decided to expand his horizons and try a different profession: business. With the assistance of an acquaintance looking for a new executive, a businessman was born. At 38 years of age, Wadsworth and his family moved to the United States as he embarked upon a career with Tyco Laboratories Inc. in New Hampshire. Three years later, another opportunity arose: a bit closer to home in Toronto, and he went to work for Crowns, Inc. The observer/Sean Farnan

1966 graduate Michael Wadsworth has found life full of opportunity. He rose steadily through the ranks at Crowns, he said, until 1989. That was the year he heard of an even better opening: the position of Canadian Ambassador to Ireland. Family ancestry proved the basis for Wadsworth's active interest in Ireland. He and his wife Bernadette grew more interested after taking a dozen trips to the country between 1980 and 1989. By this time he had also become very involved with the Ireland Fund, a charity organization to "raise funds outside Ireland for non-sectarian, non-political uses" under the motto "peace, culture and charity." Needless to say that when he heard of the open position, Wadsworth knew he wanted the job. About 15 percent of Canadian ambassadors are from the private sector, including the Ireland Fund. Since a mentor in the legal field had introduced Wadsworth to Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney years before, Wadsworth formally declared his interest in the job. Then he waited. About eight months later, he received a call from the Prime Minister and was offered the position. In October of 1989, he and Bernadette moved to Dublin. The job of an ambassador is multi-faceted, Wadsworth said. "An embassy creates a whole host of services, from helping distressed Canadians abroad to fostering cultural and academic exchanges between the two nations." Halfway through his four-year appointment, Wadsworth is already looking to the future. The appointment is usually only one-term, so his options are numerous. Still, he's not predicting his future. The European situation intrigues Wadsworth, who said experiencing the everyday changes in the political and economic structure will be a "great plus" to his business career, whatever he decides to do. Notre Dame's reputation in Ireland has been pleasantly surprising to Wadsworth. "The Irish people know soccer more than football. But they know about Notre Dame." The Irish feel a certain kinship with (Notre Dame)." With the Notre Dame delegation's visit to Ireland comes talk between religious, business and academic leaders interested in forging a stronger relationship between the University and the country. During his tenure, Wadsworth will encourage this relationship. Having just celebrated his 25th reunion, his memories of Notre Dame run deep and strong. "The feeling hasn't left me, after all this time. I wouldn't trade it for the world."

Sing along

Choirs anticipate busy semester

BY JEANNE DE VITA

This season the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Women's Choir and the Collegiate Choir are rapidly making a name for themselves among the country's musical community.

"I feel the Women's choir is one of the strongest I have ever heard," said Menk, choir director for the Saint Mary's music department. "It is not merely moments. In order to be convincing, but fails on the truly compelling, but fails on the truly

The Women's Choir is one of two separate choirs that serve the Saint Mary's and Notre Dame communities. A select group of 30 women were chosen by audition to add their voices to the Women's Choir.

20th century pieces created to challenge the woman's voice are chosen for this choir. The choir generally sings a cappella, using various repetitions and rarely sings in fewer than three or four parts.

The Collegiate Choir is a "fun group," which "gives more people the opportunity to sing in a mixed choir," said Menk. 50 or 60 students from both Saint Mary's and Notre Dame participate in this choir, singing musical selections representing all periods and styles.

Menk anticipates a busy semester for the choirs. The two choirs will perform a concert in the Little Theatre, Thursday, November 8, at 8 p.m., as part of the rigorous preparation process for a guest performance in February.

The Women's Choir has been invited to participate in the Central Division Convention in Chicago this February. The invitation to perform a variety of contemporary Midwestern composers' work for women's voices at the Convention is "a real honor," said Menk, as this year marks the first year that the choir will be performing in the Central Division.

Several men from the Collegiate Choir will perform with members of the Women's Choir at Saint Mary's Madrigal Dinners this December. Entertainment at the dinners, which are recreations of an Elizabethan feast, will be provided by the mixed choir.

Eight pieces of music for voices that have been commissioned, premiered, published, or composed by the Saint Mary's community - whether in the past in Oregon. Two of the pieces were composed by Saint Mary's Dr. Zwenn, his "Grandma's Alleluia" will be performed by the Choirs at the concert Thursday.

Various selections from the other published works are regularly performed in the community.

The officers of the Saint Mary's choirs include President Ed Palonisano; Vice-President Cecelia Martin; and Secretary-Treasurer Cara Belog.

The 1991 season promises landmark achievement for the Saint Mary's Choirs. A semester of rigorous training and preparation have been rewarded with national performances and recognition.

Students are invited to the Choirs' concerts and campus performances and also to participate in the choirs. Menk reminds students that auditions for the Collegiate Choir are held each semester, and the choir welcomes tenors and bass voices to auditions in the coming weeks.

'Tate' disappoints and misleads viewers

BY ELIZABETH HAYES

Movie Critic

If a ballet is a series of stationary poses, a piece of music a collection of isolated harmonies unconnected to each other, or a play consistent of one-liners, then a movie like "Little Man Tate" is a prime example of what cinema should be.

However, art, or even entertainment, is not merely moments. In order to be "finished" or "whole," the work must have something more substantial than filler to hold up the moments heavy with quality and inspiration. Otherwise the work of art will collapse under its own weight.

This may seem like a tall order for most popular, commercial cinema. The rising trend in movies has been to convey a few moments of real entertainment, while distracting the viewer the rest of the time with gags, music, or action.

For this very reason I do not judge "Little Man Tate" that harshly. Its "bits of the sublime" are better than most I have seen on the big screen in the past few years.

The film reaches the heights of true cinematic art at several places, but the rest of the movie (the hour and ten-odd minutes left of the film) not only disappointing the viewers, but bores them.

"Little Man Tate" is the story of a music/mathematics genius only seven years old. He is the son of a waitress who has no money, education, or husband.

The child is bored by his regular school, and his mother, played by Jodie Foster, tries to stimulate him as best she can. She obviously loves him, but her love is hardly enough to sustain his ravenous mind.

Dianne Wiest plays a former child prodigy and now-brilliant doctorate who rescues him and brings him into her school for the young and talented. The obvious tug between the two maternal figures is nicely presented, but is best to death throughout the course of the movie.

The child, played by Adam Hann-Byrd, plays most of the role convincingly, but fails on the truly emotional moments of the movie. This is partially the fault of the script.

The writer does not seem to have really watched kids act when they are under pressure, frightened, or disappointed - whether they are child prodigies or regular kids.

No kid at age seven would take as stoically as Fred does the outrages, upheavals, and existential angst that he undergoes. There is a line in this movie: "The pain of the mind is often far worse than the pain of the body."

For children this is doubly true. Fred Tate's buddy, is disturbingly regular. He doesn't cry, he doesn't get hostile, and he even blames the correct parties instead of himself. He may be far ahead of the adults in this movie intellectually, but nothing but time and experience matures a person emotionally.

That is the major flaw of this film, in that it assumes that Fred can handle more emotional pain than other seven-year-olds. For the truly gifted children, with their understanding of both the events and the consequences of what happens to them, the reverse is probably true.

The rest of the movie, excluding the hour and ten-odd minutes left of the film, is largely responsible.

Foster plays the part of the overprotective victim-mother with all the imagination found on a soap opera, and is shown up by the relatively untrained actors Connick and Hann-Byrd.

The moments of glory in this movie, such as the scenes of Fred's thoughts as he figures out math problems or analyzes a pool game, the segment with Connick set to "I Get A Kick Out Of You," and the close-ups of Fred buried in thought, are irreproachable in both their invention and execution.

Volunteers hope to end inconsistency on Saturday

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee coach Johnny Majors says he is more concerned about his own team than the one it's about to face — Notre Dame.

Forget the tradition-rich mystique of the fifth-ranked Fighting Irish, the Volunteers' opponent Saturday in South Bend, Ind.

Majors wants to unravel the mystery of No. 13 Tennessee's schedule. And Majors knows it's about to face — Notre Dame (8-1).

"Knowing thy self is more important than knowing other people," Majors told a Sunday teleconference.

"We're more mistake-prone than any team I can recall in a long time." That will be the focus of this week's practice as the Vols prepare for Notre Dame (8-1). A solution may be elusive.

"It's mystifying," Majors said. "We've penalized people; we've disciplined people. I think we've been getting excellent effort, but the consistency has not been there and that concerns me."

The Vols (5-2) had a school record 603 yards in offense in Saturday's 52-24 victory over Memphis State. Andy Kelly ran for 169 yards and three touchdowns.

But Tennessee defensive end Kacy Rodgers dropped the opening kickoff. In the second quarter, the Vols fumbled on the Memphis State 15 yard line.

Late in the game, Tennessee was on the verge of putting the game away with a second-and-goal at the Memphis State 4 when nose guard Chris Hodges intercepted a Kelly pass and ran 95 yards for a touchdown. It tied for the second longest interception return in school history.

"I'm displeased with a lack of consistent play," Majors said. "We're more mistake-prone than any team I can recall in a long time."

"That will be the focus of this week's practice as the Vols prepare for Notre Dame (8-1). A solution may be elusive."

Majors said he found comfort in Memphis State's inability to score on the Vols' defense in the second half. "But we've got a lot of work to do to get ready for what's ahead ... Notre Dame can score against anybody if they get the ball enough," he said.

Saturday's game is key to the postseason hopes of both the Volunteers and Notre Dame, which is coming off a 38-0 victory over Navy.

"There's no question of the significance for both of us," Majors said. "We're still in the hunt for a major bowl bid but we have to beat Notre Dame. It's our chance to get back in the Top Ten.

As for the Notre Dame mystique, "I definitely think it's something you can spend too much time on," Majors said. "A lot of our players don't even remember Joe Theismann, much less George Gipp and Knute Rockne."

"Besides, Majors said perhaps with relief, "We won't be playing or coaching against any of those people."

Native Americans protest outside Redskins game

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dozen Native Americans protested peacefully outside RFK stadium before the Houston Oilers-Washington Redskins game as part of their campaign to get Washington to change its nickname.

The group at Sunday's game, which included members of the American Indian Movement and the Congress of American Indians, banging on drums, recited Indian chants, and carried signs that read "The Team Has a Racist Nickname" and "If I'm a Redskin, Jack Kent Cooke is a Hoinkie." Cooke, the Redskins owner, and other team officials maintain that the term "Redskin" speaks to the proud, loyal heritage of Native Americans. But the Indian groups maintain the term is derogatory and racist.

"They don't understand our culture," said Daniel Love, a Cherokee who lives in Greenbelt, Md. "We're very spiritual people, and we take the nickname and all the antics as an insult."

Nearby the 12 Indian protesters, about two dozen District of Columbia police officers stood by. But police said there had been no clashes between the demonstrators and Redskins fans entering the stadium.

"Most of the fans have been receptive, but there have been a few derogatory remarks and obscene gestures," Love said. "That's to be expected, I guess."

The group also were protesting against the Redskins Marching Band. Each of the band's 90 members was wearing a headdress.

"This is about education, both for Indians and white people," he said. "We've been ridiculed and degraded all our lives."

Joan Benoit Samuelson recovering from asthma after New York Marathon

NEW YORK (AP) — A shaken Joan Benoit Samuelson, who suffered from severe dehydration and asthma, was taken to the hospital after the New York City Marathon, returned home to Maine on Monday with a new medication to ease her health problems.

"It brought her considerable relief," Fred Treseler, a spokesman for John Hancock Financial Services Inc., said. Treseler talked with Samuelson before her departure, said of the medication.

"She was buoyant as anyone could have been for someone who went through the trauma she did."

Samuelson's difficulties began past the 17-mile mark of Sunday's 26.2-mile race through the city's five boroughs. Until then, she had stayed with the women's leaders — eventual winner Liz McColgan of Scotland, runner-up Olga Markova of the Soviet Union and third-place finisher Lisa Ondieki of Australia.

After that, Samuelson, who never has dropped out of a marathon, started courageously to finish, winding up strong.

Her condition was described as hypovolemia by Dr. Andres Rodriguez, medical director for the race.

"I was wheezing and I ran slow, like I did today," she said after Sunday's scary experience. "I started to shake. I was having trouble getting air. The difference between this time and last time was that I was coherent. I figure to have us get a handle on this condition."

Lewis Maharam, who attended to Samuelson in the acute medical tent and in her hotel room after the race, and Dr. Lorraine Giordano, a member of the medical team who helped administer four liters of intravenous fluid, may have found the cure for the 1984 Olympic silver medalist and American record-holder.

"The doctors indicated that the medication she was taking contributed to the dehydration," Treseler said. "When she left today, she was feeling much better."

Should Samuelson have continued running when the asthma and dehydration set in? "If a physician would have noticed she had hypovolemia at the 17th mile, he would have advised her to drop out," Rodriguez said. "Her condition was an extreme form of dehydration — it was worse than dehydration. Her condition was not painful, but she was totally exhausted. The asthma could have aggravated it."

Despite the bitter disappointment of not winning at New York, when victory had nearly covered — will not hasten Samuelson's retirement. "It is not out of me as a marathoneer," the 34-year-old Samuelsen, said. "I trained hard for this race. I think I was in better shape than before than I ran the Boston Marathon."

At Boston in April, she finished fourth with her best time in six years.

She said she was uncertain whether she would compete in the women's U.S. Olympic marathon trials at Houston on Jan. 26 or try to make the team as a 10,000-meter runner.

"First, I'll take an easy month" before making her decision, she said.

McColgan was timed in 2 hours, 27 minutes, 23 seconds, the fastest time ever by a first-time woman's marathoner.

Passaquetti West 14, Off-Campus 15

The Passaquetti West interhall football team snatched a victory from the jaws of defeat in Lofthus on Sunday night against the Off-Campus Heathens. The Heathens took an early lead in the first half with the speedy running back, Larry Alkidas. The speedy senior left the P.W. defense in the dust with the long touchdown run.

With minutes remaining in the half, P.W. pulled its offense together and was driving when time expired. A mural out for the second half with a renewed confidence in its abilities thanks to a frank half-time talk with coaches Jim and John Gordon, Chip Malin, and Larry Clark.

"Gordo (P.W. head coach Jim Gordon) waske me to believe he was a team," said P.W. quarterback Bethany Riddle. "I went out in the second half and really wanted to help all of our sophomore receivers Bridget Graham, Alileen Mee, Kristen Lefere, and Jenny Tate, Riddle led the drive downfield. Facing an unforgetting O.C. rush, Riddle was forced to scramble near the 30-yard line when holes opened up and the P.W. offense changed into the end zone. O.C. denied P.W. in its extra point attempt.

Riddle then took over, running the P.W. defense down to work. Key saks by linemen Mee and Jten Marten held O.C. to three downs.

However, P.W. did their job again. With a little over a minute remaining in the game, running back Ronnie Alvarez broke free down the sideline for the touchdown. Sophomore Gall Carey caught the successful two point conversion to put P.W. ahead 14-12.

O.C. had time to score again until senior Terry Cotter of P.W. grabbed an interception to end the drive.

P.W. faces B.P. at Stephen Field next Sunday at 2 p.m.
Winless Colts continue the search for some answers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Forget about the trick plays. Right now, the Indianapolis Colts can't even execute the basics.

"We don't have many deceptive plays in our game plan," quarterback Jeff George said. "But that's not for me to say. To me, we've just got to start scoring touchdowns."

Indianapolis, the NFL's only winless team at 0-9, hasn't scored a touchdown in five quarters this season and their only scoring touchdowns were field goals or touchdowns.

"It's definitely a down feeling right now," Hester said. "We just have to keep our heads up and go forward and try to come back. Offensively, we aren't always on the same page. We just need to get everyone doing the same thing."

Unlike the other games this year, the Colts never really were out of Sunday's 10-6 loss to Miami. "Everybody's trying to hold onto their own piece of the fort. We just need to get more W's," Biasucci, who had two field goals and four extra points.

"We came out playing hard, moving the ball," George said. "We did some things we wanted to do, but it was the same old story. We stopped ourselves." The first chance ended with an interception by the Dolphins' Louis Oliver. Then, after Miami's Pete Steyanovich missed a field goal attempt with 2:54 to go, the Colts drove across midfield before turning the ball over on downs.

"I made a bad throw," George said. "It's extremely frustrating to come out of each game with a loss," linebacker Scott Radetic said. "We made some good adjustments and had opportunities, but we just didn't win it."

George said the Colts' game plan for the Dolphins was "pretty much the same as the first eight games."

"We played a lot harder, but the fact is we're 0-and-9, and we need to stop that. I've said this many times, but until we stop shooting ourselves in the foot and quit making mental errors, we're not going to win."

Indianapolis plays Sunday at the New York Jets, who beat the Colts 17-6 in the Hoosier Dome earlier this season. "We can't play well one quarter, ... We've got to play well the full four quarters," George said.

This page sums up the Colts season to date as Indy still seeks its first win. It will get its next chance against the Jets on Sunday.

"I don't care how well we played (earlier), we didn't execute on the fourth-and-5. I thought that wasatisfying, but this game proves it isn't. That's why we lost."
New York Rangers extend win streak to six games with 4-0 shutout of Flames; Sharks lose for their 11th career shutout and Vanbiesbrouck is 3-7-1 lifetime games by beating the Calgary Flames.

Neither the Rangers nor Vanbiesbrouck have fared well against the Flames. New York ended a five-game winless streak against Calgary while Vanbiesbrouck hadn’t won against the Flames.

But the Rangers controlled play from the start, taking a 2-0 lead on goals 59 seconds apart by Mike Gartner and Paul Broten.

Islanders 6, Bruins 4
UNIONDALE, N.Y. — Steve Thomas and Pierre Turgeon both scored twice, leading the New York Islanders over Boston.

"It gets you nowhere, and it’s an admission of guilt," said Davis.

"This is something I’ll always remember. I can always reflect on it," he said. "It doesn’t take this to bring those memories back."

"There’s nothing I can say to you, but I really appreciate the years we had," added Ken Griffey Sr. "I hope you all continue to enjoy the game forever."

It was just the second time in their brief history.

The victory saved face for the Islanders, who had lost in back-to-back games.

"We had control of our destiny," said Davis. "We knew then we had the turn around, the drama and it was, with the Tigers prevailing 10-8 in Chapell Hill."

"After the North Carolina game, that was it for us," said Davis. "We knew then we had to do something...think it matured us and let us know that was the only situation we had the way. Once we passed that test, we were ready."

Bengals change for better but Wyche is still same

CINCINNATI (AP) — Coach Sam Wyche hasn’t changed now that his Cincinnati Bengals have finally won a game.

The Bengals dodged three last-minute scoring threats to beat the Cleveland Browns 23-21 on Sunday. Wyche was in a contentious mood in his media briefing.

He took more swipes at the media, with whom he’s feuded since Sunday, than usual.

"They played one man short the whole game," said Alumni captain Eric Horvath, whose team won 3-1. "Otherwise, the outcome was not in doubt."

Horvath was not intimidated by the prospect of defending the powerful Stanford offense, which tallied a 7-0 victory against El Cardet on Sunday.

"We haven't seen Stanford, but we have a strong defense. We should be okay," Horvath noted Volker Blankenstein as the team's defensive standout in their most recent victory.

The other game was postponed until Monday, as Zahm Northern went for a win.

"We came out really strong and scored two quick goals in the first half," said Zahm captain Dan Kavanaugh. "Thank God we only play 25 minute halves; when you get out to an early lead, you naturally start to breakdown and get into a defensive shell."

Both Cavanaugh and Zahm are powered by their defense. The Crusaders, backed by freshman goalie Chris Volker, have not allowed a goal by their opponents this season.

The Moose defense, led by goalies Brian Ceponis and John Stephen, is equally stingy. "Both of them tried out for the varsity squad and could have made it, but they weren't able to finish (due to injuries)," said Kavanaugh.

"There's a definite rivalry between us and Zahm in all sports because we are neighbor dorms," said Schwartz.

For Kavanaugh, the match against the Crusaders will be no more than just playing a dual with a familiar rival.

"We'll be fired up for Cavanaugh," he admitted. "When we played them last, the Crusaders were hot and we were disappointed with our play. We're not worried about them just wanting to average the loss."

Irish volleyball sweeps matches

The Notre Dame volleyball team swept two matches this weekend from the University of Toledo and Bowling Green Universities.

The Irish (16-7) trounced Toledo 15-5, 15-3, 15-4 on Saturday night, then traveled to Bowling Green to defeat the Falcons (19-4) 15-9, 15-13, 15-11.

Junior Jessica Fiebelkorn was the weekend star for the Irish, posting nine kills and three service aces against the Rockets and following up with 15 kills and 14 digs against the Falcons.

Other outstanding performances were turned in by junior co-captain Alicia Turner (seven digs vs. Toledo) and freshman Christy Peters (nine kills, nine digs vs. Bowling Green).
