HPC debates Freshman Class Council
By BECKY BARNES
News Writer

The Hall Presidents' Council debated the option of allowing dorm rectors and staffs to amend the present constitution concerning the dorm representative to the Freshman Class Council and passed a resolution concerning the proposed removal of the washing machines from Washington Hall.

The first resolution asked for the option to choose representatives by a committee comprised of the dorm rector and various members of the hall rather than by hall election as the constitution presently reads. The bill states that "the election process is unfair to large dorms where it is difficult for freshmen to know each other well enough to make an informed decision as to the best leader."

Opponents to the resolution cited accountability, asking whether a representative chosen by the hall rector would feel accountable to the rector or to the students he or she represents.

One opponent stated, "It is every student's right to choose who's going to represent them." In return a council member said, "After one month, freshmen will vote for a friend rather than for a leader."

After prolonged discussion, the proposal was finally tabled until next semester.

Warner approves support group for ND homosexuals
By PETER LOFTUS
Assistant News Editor

A new support group for families and friends of homosexuals at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's has been given a green light by Father Richard Warner, ND director of Campus Ministry.

Participation in the new group, called Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays at ND and Saint Mary's, is tentatively restricted to faculty and staff after an agreement last week between Warner and Edward Manier, ND philosophy professor and one of the organizers of the group.

"There is a need to address the concerns of some people to come to terms with problems in family life when one of their relatives is a homosexual," said Manier, explaining the main focus of the group.

Since the group is not a student organization and Manier is a tenured professor, University "support," rather than official recognition, is key to the group's survival, said Manier.

Full support from Warner may come sometime in the spring semester, according to Manier, after the group's composition becomes apparent.

Warner's main concern, Manier said, is that the new group might become another Gays and Lesbians at Notre Dame (GLND/SMC), an underground support group for homosexual students which has been denied formal University recognition at various times over the past several years.

The group's decision to limit membership to faculty and staff assuaged Warner's concerns. Manier called Warner's concerns "legitimate."

"The reason the group's first meeting will be open only to faculty/staff is to insure a greater degree of confidentiality and simplicity of dialogue, and to provide a core group of faculty and staff with the opportunity to develop an organizational identity and facilitate self-determination of the group's long-term agenda," according to a flyer announcing the group's first meeting, scheduled for Dec. 15.

Another poster refers to the first meeting as a "closed meeting for faculty and staff."

Manier acknowledged the possibility that his group would decide to extend its membership to students, either with or without a minimum age requirement.

For now, Warner "fully supports the idea," said Manier. "He thinks the presence of such a group on campus fills an extremely important need, so long as it targets faculty and staff."

"In my 32 years on the ND faculty, my observation of the campus environment is that in its social environment there's inadequate support for both homosexuals and for families and friends of homosexuals," said Manier. "Our support group could make life more meaningful, more hospitable" for relatives and friends of homosexuals.

The new group, which has about five "core organizers" among the faculty, is modeled after the national organization, Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays, an underground official University support group which has a chapter in the Michiana region.

Students face the reality of Honor Code

"It is not an informant system where students are encouraged to 'tell on one another.' —The Academic Code of Honor Handbook

The Honor Code is described in the Handbook, saying, 'The purpose is to foster the development of a step-by-step, no-assembly required language. But some practical illustrations of the Code in action should make things clearer for the persistently confused.'

The Committee recommends that one should report oneself if one discovers one in wrongdoing.

"I've finished my blue book, sir, and I—Oh! GOD! THE GUILT! I thought I could do it, but I hear THE SHRIEKS OF A THOUSAND EARS—I knew all of the answers ahead of time. ALL OF THEM—I even made two of them wrong on purpose to fool you. THE SHAME! I COULD DIE! Please don't tell my mother." The Committee recommends that students confront suspected sinners orally or in writing to clarify if they are, in fact, cheating.

Top. Tap. Tap at papajapapajapapajapapaj. "Hey! Hey Nick! What is this, a thesis? Is that al­lowed? Is that fair? Do you think that’s fair for the other students in the class who have to write this essay based on their own, God-given vocabulary? Do you think that’s fair for the students who must wade in the mire of your polysyllabic redundancy before assigning you a grade? Do you think that’s fair for the editors of the thesaurus, who probably meant the book to be read at Christmastime around a crackling fire of hot cider at hand, and would probably resign if they knew it was being abused in this classroom today? I thought as much. Go, Nick. Hang your head in shame, for I know you for the revolting weasel you are."

The Committee recommends that students discuss any suspected foul play with instructors or department heads.

"Father Malloy, I felt I had to come to you because I feel—well, violated. I think that Mr. Hall—was kind of looking my way, and at first I thought—was kind of looking my way, and at first I thought it could be because the clock was behind me, but then I looked at his paper, just to check, and there it was: 17:17. So, you gonna expel him?"

Any expulsions? (And just in case.)

On my honor, I have abided by the Code of Honor Handbook. I have not cheated on any written assignments with in inner city schools. An information session will be held in Haggar from 4:15-5:00 p.m. For more information contact the Counseling and Career Development Center at 284-4565.

Junior wins SMC speech competition

■Maria Rosa DeRosa, a Saint Mary’s junior from Highland, Ind., was the first-place winner in the Saint Mary’s College Department of Communication’s oral interpretation competition, held Monday. In South Bend, about 2,900 students out of 21,000 have missed school in recent days because of the flu. Individual school corporations decide for themselves whether to remain open. "The state does not have a policy for closing schools," says Lee Chamberlin, a communicable disease consultant to the Board of Health. The only reason to close is having too few students for teachers to make a school day worthwhile, Chamberlin said. Closing schools will not prevent the spread of the disease, she said. "Students still meet at the mall," she said. Doctors warn parents not to administer aspirin to children with the flu. Aspirin has been associated with the onset of Reye’s syndrome, a sometimes fatal swelling of the brain that most frequently occurs after a viral illness, such as the flu.

Musical trio to perform concert this Saturday

Special to The Observer

A viola, clarinet and piano trio concert will be presented by the University of Notre Dame music department Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Snite Museum of Art's Annenberg Auditorium. Violist Christine Rutledge, assistant professor of music, will be joined by guest clarinetist Richard Hawkins and pianist Laura Ward, both from the University of Michigan. The trio will perform music by Mozart, Schuman, Rebecca Clarke, and Max Bruch.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Rutledge, who joined the Notre Dame faculty this year, is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music. She was assistant principal violist of the Louisville Orchestra for six years and served as a member of the Kentucky Center Chamber Players and Ceruti Chamber Players.

She has performed at the Blossom Festival and the Taos Chamber Music Festival and was named a fellow of the Aspen Music Festival Orchestra. In 1985 she was the second recipient, playing for the new Aspen Viola Competition.

Rutledge has given recitals and master classes at the Interlochen Arts Academy and the Oberlin Conservatory, and she recently performed for the "WPPK Live" recital series and the Locust Grove Recital Series, both in Kentucky. She also recently plays viola for the Notre Dame String Trio.

Hawkins joined the faculty at the University of Michigan School of Music this year. He holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and is pursuing a master's degree in music.

He is the principal second clarinetist with the Flint Symphony Orchestra and frequently performs solo and chamber recitals in New York, Houston, and Detroit. He taught at the Interlochen Arts Camp between 1988 and 1990 and was recently inducted into the twenty-member Young Performing Artists Division.

Ward has distinguished herself as one of the country's finest young accompanists. She was on the faculty of the Music Academy of the West's Summer Festival in Santa Barbara, Calif., where she accompanied the Faculty Artists Series and numerous master classes, in addition to recording for National Public Radio.

She holds a master's degree from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, where she was a student of Ken Griffiths, and a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan. She performs extensively throughout the United States as both a vocal and instrumental accompanist.

ND students earn honors at Model U.N. conference

Special to The Observer

Four members of the Model United Nations club at Notre Dame won recognition at the recent American Model United Nations Conference in Chicago.

Sophomore Joe Rogers won the Outstanding Delegate award in the Security Council for his representation of the country of Austria. Junior Rich Kurtz, junior Ken Busch and senior Michael Faehner won Outstanding Delegate awards for their performances as judges.

Rutledge has performed for the International Court of Justice. The Outstanding Delegate award is given to students who display an exemplary understanding of international relations, and demonstrate considerable diplomatic decorum.

Fourteen Notre Dame students attended the conference, and represented Austria and Zaire in all of the United Nations bodies, including the International Court of Justice and the Security Council.

The Model United Nations conference gives students practical experience in international relations.

MOM, DAD, ANG & PEACHES
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. secretary-general on Tuesday blamed Iraq for starting the 1980-88 war with Iran, delivering a decision long sought by Tehran and representing another step in Iran's rehabilitation in the world.

Some diplomats raised the possibility that Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's finding may have played a role in the release of most of the Western hostages in Lebanon.

The diplomats, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Iran cooperated in getting the hostages released partly in hopes that such a finding would pave the way for winning war reparations from Baghdad.

More than a million people are thought to have died or been wounded on both sides of the brutal conflict, which saw boys as young as 13 fighting as soldiers and whole villages wiped out by poison gas.

Perez de Cuellar, in a letter to the U.N. Security Council, made no reference to the hostage situation, and U.N. officials have strenuously denied that assigning blame for the war was linked to any other factor.

But the U.N. chief's letter noted he redoubled his efforts on the war issue on Aug. 14, by sending letters to Iran and Iraq asking them to spell out their views on the cause of the conflict.

That was six days after a pro-Iranian Shiite Muslim group released British hostage John McCarthy with a message for Perez de Cuellar asking him to increase efforts to free not only the Western hostages but also Arabs detained by Iran in an enclave it occupies in southern Lebanon.

Progress in resolving the hostage situation soon picked up, with Israel releasing some of the 300 detainees and kidnappers in Lebanon freeing a total of 10 Westerners. Israel, in turn, released a total of 300 of some seven servicemen missing in Lebanon.

Tuesday's letter comes a day after he thanked Iran for its help on the hostage releases, along with Syria, Lebanon, the Japanese and German governments.

Perez de Cuellar is still trying to arrange the release of two Germans held by Lebanese kidnappers, who are seeking freeing dozens for two convicted terrorists imprisoned in Germany.

In the letter assigning blame for the Iran-Iraq war, Perez de Cuellar underscored the "illegal use of force and the disregard for the territorial integrity of a (U.N.) member state" as the cause of the conflict.

"The outstanding event under the violations referred to ... above is the attack of 22 September 1980 against Iran" by Saddam Hussein's army, he said.

Border skirmishes preceded the invasion, and the Iraqi president claimed that Iran's "radical Shiite regime" was attempting to destabilize his country and the whole Middle East. But the U.N. chief rejected that argument.

"Even if before the outbreak of the conflict there had been some encroachment by Iran on Iraqi territory, such encroachment did not justify Iraq's aggression against Iran — which was followed by Iraq's continuous occupation of Iranian territory during the conflict ... " he said.

Perez de Cuellar reminded the Security Council that he had sent teams of chemical weapons experts to the region who found "chemical weapons had been used against Iranian civilians in an area adjacent to an urban center lacking any protection against that kind of attack."

That report led the Security Council in August 1988 to condemn such attacks against Iranians, although the council did not name Iraq as the aggressor in the war.

The U.N. chief gave his finding Tuesday as part of a report on whether he would recommend setting up a commission of inquiry into the causes of the Iran-Iraq war, one of the possible steps he could take under the 1987 Security Council resolution that led to a cease-fire.

He said such a commission would not serve "any useful purpose," adding: "The events of the Iran-Iraq war, which for many years provided the news headlines in the world media, are well known to the international community." Perez de Cuellar issued the unusually partisan report just three weeks before he retires Dec. 31.
Buchanan will run for presidency

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Conservative columnist Patrick Buchanan vowed Tuesday to "take our country back" from a misguided President Bush as he launched a challenge for the Republican presidential nomination.

Buchanan blamed Bush for breaking his word not to raise taxes, causing the recession with taxes and budget deficits and failing to defend American interests against "the predatory traders of Europe and Asia."

He called for a "new nationalism" where in every negotiation... the American side seeks advantage and victory for the United States."

"He is yesterday and we are tomorrow," Buchanan told a crowd of about 200 jammed into a building lobby across from the state Capitol. Another 100 waited outside as he said of Bush, "He is a globalist and we are nationalists. ... He would put America's wealth and power at the service of some vague new world order; we will put America first."

Buchanan's appearance in Chicago, saying: "We must not pull back into a building lobby across from the state Capitol. Another 100 waited outside as he said of Bush, "He is a globalist and we are nationalists. ... He would put America's wealth and power at the service of some vague new world order; we will put America first."

Bush shot back during an appearance in Chicago, saying: "I learned that lesson as a young kid fighting the Second World War."

Buchanan's announcement came exactly 10 weeks before New Hampshire's earliest-in-the-nation primary. New Hampshire is suffering through its worst recession since the Depression, and Republicans predict Buchanan can get anywhere from 10 percent to 40 percent of the vote in the state that revived Bush's flagging 1988 campaign.

In advance of Buchanan's announcement, a Boston Globe poll published Sunday found one in six New Hampshire Republicans preferred him to Bush. The only other GOP challenger to Bush is former Ku Klux Klansman David Duke, who has decided to bypass New Hampshire's Feb. 18 primary.

Republican National Committee Chairman Clayton Yeutter discounted the threat from Buchanan, saying, "Pat has an appeal to a very limited segment of the Republican constituency."

Court overturns law on criminals' profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's decision Tuesday shackled government efforts to keep criminals from profiting from publishing books about their crimes, overturning a law that seizes profits criminals might make from published works.

The law, known as the "Son of Sam" law, enacted in 1977 in New York, imposes a civil penalty on anyone who makes money from the fruits of the crimes committed by someone who is either convicted of a crime or who admits to a crime.

"The state has a compelling interest in compensating victims from the fruits of the crime, but little if any interest in limiting such compensation to the proceeds of the wrongdoer's speech about the crime," she said.

Most and the federal government have enacted laws that use New York's as a model. The law allowed authorities to seize profits from any such ventures and give them to crime victims.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, writing for the court, said the New York law violated free-speech rights because it singled out profits from expressive works.

"The state has a compelling interest in compensating victims from the fruits of the crimes committed by someone who is either convicted of a crime or who admits to a crime, but little if any interest in limiting such compensation to the proceeds of the wrongdoer's speech about the crime," she said.

She said the list of targets might even include someone such as St. Augustine, who confessed to "carnal corruptions" and stealing pears.

Tuesday's ruling in no way prevents states from relying on broad forfeiture laws that let officials confiscate the assets of criminals — regardless of where the money or property comes from.

Smith takes stand; says 'I'm innocent'

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A tense William Kenneth Smith took the stand Tuesday and painted his accuser as a sexually voracious woman who seduced him twice in a half hour, then cried rape for reasons he can't explain.

The prosecutor asked Smith sarcastically: "What are you, some kind of sex machine here?" An objection blocked the answer: "The issue here is I'm innocent!" Smith explained as he folded off repeated suggestions by Assistant State Attorney Moira Lauch that his story was unbelievable.

Repeatedly she challenged his assertion that the woman was the sexual aggressor in an Easter weekend encounter that began at a nightclub.

"What are you saying, that she raped you, Mr. Smith?" the prosecutor snapped.

"Absolutely not!" said Smith.

The 31-year-old defendant was pale and nervous as he took the stand but gained confidence during questioning by his attorney, Roy Black.

In 4 1/2 hours on the stand, Smith gave a calm, step-by-step account that contradicted many points in the woman's testimony last week.
Activist's son claims Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The oldest son of pro-democracy activist Aung San Suu Kyi accepted the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize for his detained mother Tuesday, calling it a reminder of the struggle for human rights in Burma and elsewhere.

"She would say this prize belongs not to her, but to all those men, women and children who, even as I speak, continue to sacrifice their well-being, their freedom and their lives in pursuit of a democratic Burma," said Alexander Aris, Suu Kyi's 18-year-old son.

In Rangoon, the Burmese capital, hundreds of students staged one of the most significant anti-government protests since the military junta crushed the pro-democracy movement led by Suu Kyi in 1988. Chants of "Release Aung San Suu Kyi!" and "Down with dictatorship!" rang across Rangoon University.

Alexander Aris said he accepted the Nobel prize for his mother "in the name of all the people of Burma." He was joined at the ceremony at Oslo City Hall by his brother Kim, 14, and their British father, Michael Aris.

His mother could not accept the $1 million prize in person because Burma's military junta said it would not allow her to return if she left the country.

Suu Kyi, 46, has been under house arrest since July 1989, and her family has not seen her for two years.

The six other 1991 Nobel laureates received their prizes in Stockholm, Sweden, where they were honored for their contributions in science and literature. They were: Linde Goerdimer of South Africa, literature; Pierre-Gilles de Gennes of France, physics; Richard Ernst of Switzerland, chemistry; Erwin Neher and Bert Sakmann of Germany, medicine; and Ronald Coase, a Briton who lives in the United States, economics.

Suu Kyi, daughter of Burmese independence hero Aung San, swept to prominence in 1988 from 20 years abroad. She refused to honor her party's overwhelming victory in May 1990 elections.

"We must also remember the lonely struggle taking place in the heavily guarded compound in Rangoon is part of a much larger struggle worldwide for the emancipation of the human spirit from political tyranny and psychological subjection," Aris said.

The elegantly clad guests at the Peace Prize ceremony protested against the regime by waving bright yellow buttons that said "Free Suu, Free Burma."

Suu Kyi won the Nobel Peace Prize for "insisting on non-violence in Burma's struggle for democracy and human rights." In his awards speech, Nobel Committee Chairman Francis Sejersted encouraged others to follow her example.

"I now appeal to all, to show humility and fearless humanity, like Aung San Suu Kyi. The result may be a better world," he said.

Yugoslav troops leave Canadian capital

CROATIA (AP) — Yugoslav troops rounded up civilians from the Croatian capital Zagreb Tuesday night, the first time in nearly three months that Zagreb has been the target of massacres by fascist forces in Croatia.

Three Yugoslav army aircraft bombed Zagreb and nearby areas Tuesday night, the fourth night in a row that Zagreb was targeted.

All 11 streets leading to the Zagreb airport were closed to traffic, and military checkpoints were set up at the entrances of the airport. Zagreb residents were told to stay at home.

The Yugoslav army said that 20 civilians were killed and 200 wounded in Zagreb during the night. The army also said that more than 600 Croatian civilians had been killed in the Zagreb area since November 1991.

The Yugoslav army said that it was responding to an attack by Serbian forces in the area.

Croatian officials said that the attack was a violation of the Dayton peace agreement, which was signed in November 1995.

The attack was the latest in a series of violations of the Dayton peace agreement, which has been repeatedly violated by both sides in the war.

Croatian officials said that they were prepared to respond to any further violations of the peace agreement.

The Yugoslav army said that it was defending itself against attacks by Serbian forces in the area.

The Yugoslav army said that it was ready to respond to any further violations of the peace agreement.

The Yugoslav army said that it was determined to protect the Dayton peace agreement at all costs.

His merchandise is all environmentally correct.

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Entrepreneur Dan Bernard can sell you a non-polluting sports car, a planet-friendly yo-yo and dozens of other diverse items, all certified as environmentally correct.

His inventory includes recyclable batteries, a humane mousetrap and a “safe Styrofoam” coffee cup made of porcelain.

A year and a half after starting his business in Lewiston, the 33-year-old says he is weathering the recession — doing well by doing good.

“We want to increase awareness of the environment and stimulate people’s thinking,” he says. “We try to offer practical solutions and, at the same time, to be a little whimsical.”

As the environmental movement wins converts, a growing number of businesses such as Bernard’s Signs & Symbols have reaped the marketing benefits of “going green.”

While there are no exact fig­ures on the size and scope of environmentally oriented busi­nesses, those close to the market say it has grown exponenti­ally in the last year and a half.

“It started on Earth Day ’90, and since then there has been a greening of the marketplace,” says Nora Goldstein, executive editor of In business magazine.

During that period, the num­ber of retail operations similar to Bernard’s ballooned from about a half-dozen to more than 100, Goldstein said.

“It’s a definite niche-type success story,” she said.

Bernard’s big-ticket item is the Destiny 2000, the electric sports car featured in the movie “Naked Gun 2 1/2.” The battery-powered two-seater, augmented by solar panels to power the accessories, is manu­factured in California and sells for $25,000.

“We haven’t sold any yet, but when we do it will be exciting,” Bernard said. “But even if we inspire people to just think about it, that’s good, too.”

His lower-priced wares in­clude 49 color containing papers made of recycled books, a $2.55 cardboard ballpoint pen crafted of recycled paper and a $2.80 yo-yo of recycled plastic.

Other products made of recy­cled plastic include fly swatters, frisbees like “New Age Sauces” and a bench suitable for backyard use. There are also various writing materials made of recycled paper.

The catalog features a hu­mane mousetrap designed to snare an errant rodent without hurting it. “The ‘Freedom Door,’ is opened, the mouse can be set loose in fields or woods.

While the concepts behind the products are serious enough, Bernard sometimes injects a note of whimsy.

NeXTstation computers are extremely fast and powerful workstations. But you’ll have to be fast to take advantage of our special holiday savings, because they end January 31st.

Even without savings, the price/performance of these workstations is unequalled anywhere in the industry. They offer features like an easy-to-use graphical interface, Sym 386s of RAM, enormous disc space, a standard UNIX® operating system, true multi­tasking, and a 15MIPS CPU. They also have built-in Ethernet networking, a large monitor with true display PostScript® and a built-in DSP chip for CD-quality sound.

They’re equally suited to every kind of academic work—from comp­utation-intensive math and science projects to report writ­ing, complex research, in-depth analysis—and, yes, even com­poser music.

That’s partly because the best versions of many industry-leading software products are the ones written for NeXTstations. These products include WordPerfect®, Adobe Illustrator®, Lotus® Impress, Soft P.C.®, and a great many more. Mathematica® the acclaimed numeric-processing software is now even included free.

Given all this, the only way we could improve the price/performance of a NeXTstation is to make the price lower. Which is just what these special savings do.

So we recommend you visit your campus reseller today—before this offer becomes ancient history.

BCAF refutes criticisms about Peralez incident

Dear Editor:

As the officers of the Black Cultural Arts Festival at the University of Notre Dame, we feel that it is necessary for us to address the very misleading and incorrect articles printed by Diane Stephen, printed in the South Bend Tribune on Sunday, December 1, 1991, and John O'Brien, printed in The Observer on Nov. 24, 1991 regarding Paul Peralez.

First of all, the Black Cultural Arts Festival (BCAF) is an organization, not an event. The event in question was an LAC which had a variety show, "Black Images," that is sponsored by the BCAF.

Secondly, the show was on Saturday, Nov. 23, not Friday, Nov. 22 as was stated. John O'Brien made an error in his article.

The failure of Diane Stephen, Tribune staff writer, to contact the officers of the BCAF even after being given our names, shows blatant irresponsibility on her part. It seems only logical that we would be best equipped to discuss any discrepancies that might arise from our production. If she had only taken the time to check the facts, (which is why she is our job as a reporter), Mr. Kimes and countless others would not have been misled by her unsubstantiated information.

Furthermore, Ms. Stephen misquoted Notre Dame, African-American Arts and Cultural diversity. For one who did not attend "Black Images," and worked in the office of the event, to suggest that there was no interaction between an event and an organization, we are appalled that she is so familiar with the手术 on whose behalf she is comment to subjects on which he has no knowledge.

As the officers of the BCAF we wish to reiterate our extreme disappointment in these newspapers and our disgust with Paul Peralez. In our eyes they have done nothing but maliciously malign a reputable organization with the ideas of one who has solely disregarded himself during his years here at Notre Dame. If the Tribune and The Observer wish to become respectable community newspapers, it would be in their best interest to contact all involved parties - get the facts, check their sources - get the facts straight, and when writing about the BCAF - Get the facts straight-from-us.

Native Americans endure a legacy of oppression

Dear Editor:

As Native Americans we would like to clearly state for the record that we are in complete disagreement with the article written by Mona Holland printed on November 26. We are offended and alarmed that she not only completely misrepresented the truth, but also stated that many Native Americans would agree with her. While we can not speak for all Native Americans, we do not know of any who would be so foolish as to agree with her. It is precisely because of people like her that Native Americans today continue to be misunderstood and misrepresented. The following information consists of documentable facts which we hope that people will remember as the truth and subsequently denounce the misleading information that Mona Holland has tried to pass off as fact.

Treaties were originally entered into because the U.S. government was anxious to secure lands for its rapidly growing population. All of our treaties were broken, the reason that no documentable evidence exists is because the federal government has issued propaganda instead of the truth so that no one will question their taking of land. Even though the tribes possessed some bargaining power, the treaty-making process put them at a disadvantage. Since the treaties were written in English and not accurately explained, the tribes often did not know what they were signing. Add to that the fact that land ownership and governmental relations were often wholly foreign to the tribal culture and you have a definitely unfair situation.

To make matters worse the federal government often negotiated with members of the tribe who had no official status within their tribes. At a time when on the U.S. regained its power, the federal government decided that treaties were no longer necessary and in order to gain the land that they wanted, they resorted to genocide. All of our treaties were broken, the reason that no documentable evidence exists is because the federal government has issued propaganda instead of the truth so that no one will question their taking of land.

While the passage of the Indian Claims Commission Act in 1946, did provide some compensation, it did not substantially correct the injustices of the past. The settlements were unfair because they were not allowed to push the loss of sacred lands. As far as Native Americans benefiting from a tax payer funded multimillion dollar bonanza, we can only laugh at her ignorance because we did not feel dry. Today's Native Americans are living in desperate poverty, the Sioux reservation at Pine Ridge is located in the poorest county in the U.S. and the Standing Rock reservation is in the second poorest county. Please visit reservation and see how we are living. The fact that the federal government is finally offering some compensation should not be attributed to niceness, the federal government has never been nice. The Trail of Tears is not an aberration of history. It was common practice. The Native American population was reduced from 5 million to 250,000. Since 1942 approximately 50 million Native Americans have been killed by starvation and European diseases. We are the survivors of the greatest holocaust in history.

We say we are still suffering the effects of this brutal treatment. We have the highest rates of teen suicide and alcoholism in the nation. As many as one of four children are born with Fetal Alcohol Syndrome. Our future remains uncertain.

The U.S. was built by slave labor and exploitation of the Native American peoples. To continue to deny these facts only contributes to the racism which continues to hurt our nation. Why can’t the majority accept that the U.S. is guilty of human rights violations and in need of continuing the injustice, end it by making retributions.

The fact that Native Americans are still surviving despite 200 years of oppression gives us continued hope because we are still alive and able to write letters such as Mona Holland's.

Questions raised about Burttchael case

Dear Editor:

I celebrate The Observer’s edición de mi vida (Dec. 7, 1991) and Professor Manier’s remarks in response to the issues and concerns about the “case” of the Reverend James Tunstead Burttchael, CSC. Holding, as I do, the informal Chair of Pariah-in-Residence at Catholic Reporter, I may set forth the following queries:

Who “leaked” the rumor-rich charges against Father Burttchael to the National Catholic Reporter? And thereafter to the South Bend Tribune, inter alia?

Who, in our administration accepted said charges sans proof?

Given the left-wing tendentiousness of the NCR, why was that otherwise competent newspaper chosen as the vehicle of ad

Dear Editor:

In the wake of a scandal such as that surrounding Father Burttchael’s arrest, it is quick to point fingers, crack jokes, and levy accusations. The charges against the man are certainly grave and should not be taken lightly.

But I took a theology course from Father Burttchael in my freshman year and I remember a brilliant scholar, engaging lecturer and effective teacher. But the three years since, few other professors have challenged me to work so hard or learn as much. I also remember an essay written by Father Burttchael which was sent to the class of 1992 as a freshman. The essay advised us to choose a major not because it would be useful in finding a job, but because it was what we truly wanted to study. Wiser words are seldom heard.

I sadden me to think that Father Burttchael will be remembered at Notre Dame not for his vast contribution to the world and this community but for his weaknesses. I defend neither Father Burttchael’s actions nor the university’s inexcusably slow response. Both must be held responsible.

But do I ask the Notre Dame community to remember that every one of us has failings. There is not one of us who has never made a mistake, used poor judgment or hurt another person. By focusing on Father Burttchael’s faults and not remembering his many strengths, we risk the same sort of condemnation for ourselves in another place and time. It raises no one to bring another discussion.

Burtchael should be remembered for his contributions, not mistakes

Correction

In a letter to the editor published Dec. 9, 1991, it was stated that the Black Cultural Arts Festival (BCAF) is an event when it is really an organization. The event in question is the Black Cultural Arts Festival show, “Black Images” that was sponsored by the BCAF. Also, the show was on Saturday, Nov. 23, not Friday.

Finally, the author of the letter misquoted the South Bend Tribune. A student attending “Black Voices” was quoted as saying “I’m not having oral sex when the Tribune really reported that the student in question claimed he was merely accused.”

The Observer regrets the errors.

ND grad student Carol Stewart hopes to prevent disappearances in Guatemala

The mother of the family Stewart stayed with in Guatemala holds a picture of her missing daughter, who was "disappeared" five years earlier.

By PAIGE SMORON
Assistant Accent Editor

"These people are in agony, day in and day out. They don't even know if their sons or daughters are dead—they just know they've been 'disappeared.'"

The families of missing Guatemalans are in an emotional limbo. They don't know whether they should hope for the recovery of their loved ones, or to grieve over their probable deaths.

Carol Stewart, a graduate student at Notre Dame, is travelling to Guatemala in January to hopefully prevent—or at least ease—any further agony.

Stewart will be working with Peace Brigades International (PBI), an antiviolent organization that works in Guatemala, El Salvador, and Sri Lanka. PBI provides volunteers who accompany people who have been threatened with death or "disappearances."

By her very presence, Stewart may save lives. "International (volunteers) are less likely to be harassed because there would be international repercussions," says Stewart. "But there are no guarantees of safety for anyone."

PBI hopes to deter violence in Guatemala, but if that fails, at least they can be witnesses. "We are there to be aware, and to describe," says Stewart.

The situation in Guatemala is one of violent repression and conflict, according to Stewart. There have been 100,000 confirmed deaths in the past few decades, and 40,000 people are recorded as "missing," greater numbers than in any other Latin American country.

Stewart says that there is a sense of terror in the country, that at times intensifies. Any attempt to organize or rebel is immediately squelched. "A large number of the people coming to the PBI for help had no idea why their son or their daughter had disappeared," says Stewart. "That really struck me—sometimes the violence was so random."

Stewart was first confronted with the problems in Guatemala when she travelled there to study Spanish. When she heard of Archbishop Oscar Romero's assassination in El Salvador in 1980, she joined a peace group. But she wasn't ready to commit herself—yet.

"It was overwhelming," says Stewart. "The situation is shocking not just because it is happening, but because our government supports these governments."

But now, having lived with a family in Guatemala who had experienced the disappearance of a daughter, Stewart is ready for service in PBI. She will spend six months in Guatemala, starting in January.

But she won't be alone. Stewart explains, "The (PBI) organization is effective not just because of the base in Guatemala, but because backing up these 10 or 12 volunteers is an international network."

People can get involved with the program even if they can't volunteer in Guatemala. International phone calls and telegrams can be extremely effective in pressuring Guatemalan authorities, says Stewart.

For more information. It is possible to contact Stewart before January at 232-3330. Participants and donations are vital to maintain PBI. After the new year, inquiries can be directed to Women United for Justice through the Center for Social Concerns.

For her part, Stewart will make a new year's resolution a reality in Guatemala. "I always knew I'd do something," says Stewart. "There are awful things going on all over the world. You have to just pick your battles."

Take home the gift of laughter for X-mas

Ah, the grandeur of Christmas. Time to abandon fruit cake and aspirin with your siblings and drink egg nog until you puke.

It's the most wonderful time of the year.

Authors, artists and singers all like to portray the Christmas season with families sitting around, bedecked in warm, fuzzy sweaters, drinking hot cocoa and listening to Grandpa read "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

In reality, though, Christmas can be one of the most dangerous times of the year. For some of our families, Christmas means sitting around arguing about who is going to put up the damn tree, drinking warm beer and listening to obnoxious Uncle Henry burp to the tune of "We Three Kings."

So to help make sense in this, the time of the year when most suicides occur, here are some thoughts, musings and vignettes to amuse you.

Sgt. Dan Kavanaugh is waiting to turn right at the stoplight at the corner of Juniper and Dorr Roads. The Notre Dame-Louisville basketball game that’s playing on the car radio is barely audible under the squawking police scanner.

As the light turns green, the conspicuous Chevy Caprice, painted with the colors and markings of the Notre Dame Security Police, turns the corner. A snowball, thrown by one of a group of nearby students, explodes with a thump against the passenger side door of the cruiser. With a sigh of disgust, Kavanaugh keeps going.

"Notre Dame Security is not here to force the students to grow up," he says, "but the department is here to make it as safe for them as possible to grow up. The students are here to learn more than just things from books, and we just want to keep them safe."

It’s all part of a day’s work for Notre Dame Security’s Sgt. Dan Kavanaugh.

A Notre Dame Security officer since 1987, Kavanaugh is a graduate of the Indiana Law Enforcement Academy in Plainfield. He lives in South Bend with his wife of seven years and his two sons, ages six and two.

Every day Kavanaugh arrives at the Security Building for roll call at 3 p.m. At that time he and his fellow officers are briefed on activity during previous shifts that may affect their shift. Then they take care of miscellaneous paperwork that takes up much of the early hours of his shift. Eventually he hits the road to patrol campus.

Each day, Kavanaugh heads over to the intersection of Douglas and Old Juniper Roads, by Notre Dame Credit Union, to direct traffic. Often traffic backs up there due to Support Services employees getting off work, Kavanaugh says.

"You’ve got to be sharp, you have to watch that traffic does not back up all the way to the light at Juniper," he says. When that happens, Support Services personnel and people working on the St. Michael’s Laundry Building have a hard time getting out, he adds.

After fifteen minutes of directing traffic, it is back to the cruiser. Almost immediately the radio crackles with instructions to report back to the Security Building and get a key to the Stepan Center.

After answering that call, Kavanaugh receives a call for a jump out on the C-1 lot. Kavanaugh cruises over and looks for the "party," who is supposed to be with her car. He waits for fifteen minutes, listening to the radio, until he sees no one.

Another call comes in. A resident of Holy Cross house is experiencing breathing difficulties. Kavanaugh radios back making sure Fire Department personnel and an Ambulance were on the way. Despite hitting two stop lights, he is on scene in less than five minutes.

People are waiting outside the house to bring the rescue crew up to the second floor. The Fire Department arrives at almost the same time and together they and Kavanaugh set up the logistics for the paramedics to best help the victim.

"Those guys (the fire department) don’t get enough credit," comments Kavanaugh. "They are always at any accident and invaluable. It’s great for the paramedics to know they are there, because they do a lot of the work and the ambulance crew know they’ve got good help."

As the night goes on, a female student working as an intern at WNDU requests an escort to North Dining Hall. "That’s a long walk alone and in the dark," he says. "People here are number one. It’s our job to keep people safe," he reiterates.

At 8:30 p.m., a call comes reporting of tripped alarms in the new St. Michael’s Laundry Building. Kavanaugh and two officers in another car respond, with the other officers going in the front and Kavanaugh going around back to the loading bays. The two officers in the first car canvass the building and report no sign of any intruders.

"You never know what to expect on a call like this," he says. "You have to be prepared for anything and act accordingly, but you always hope it’s nothing. That call could have been anything from a coat rack falling and tripping the alarm to a person walking around looking for copper pipes."

Patrol duty is far from exciting, Kavanaugh says. For some officers it consists of driving around and answering calls, checking the parking lots, driving by the new Fisher Union, to direct traffic. Often traffic backs up there due to Support Services employees getting off work, Kavanaugh says.

Graduate, residencies, and making themselves visible. "If criminals know that we are around, hopefully that’s a big deterrent," he says.

But Kavanaugh stressed patrol cannot be a routine thing. "You can never set a schedule," he says. Kavanaugh never goes to the same places at the same times during his patrols. "We cannot be predictable, and the good thing is that each officer patrols in different ways. The way I go about things is different than the way the guy before me or the lady after me," he says.

While going down Notre Dame Avenue, he suddenly turned into Pine Grove Cemetery. "There was someone here recently," he said. He explained there were wet tracks leading into the cemetery.

"I’m looking for possible vandalism, but you never know what you will find," he said.

Finding no one in the cemetery and he drives to the B-2 and D-2 lots. After a slow drive around the lots, a student approaches the car, asking for a jump start. After starting the car, Kavanaugh heads back to the Security Building.

"I usually go home and read the paper (after work) then I go to sleep," he says.

King, Perdue lead Bulls past Sonics
Wilkins scores 41 in Hawks’ win; Pacers knock off Spurs

CHICAGO (AP) — Centers Stacey King and Will Perdue, averaging a combined 13.8 points per game, led the Bulls to an 89-79 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

The loss was the Bulls’ 15th in 16 games, while the loss snapped Seattle’s winning streak at three.

King, averaging 10.4 points, scored a season-high eight for Chicago, and had a hot hand in the third quarter, as the Bulls fended off a SuperSonics rally.

Bicky Pierce led the SuperSonics with 20 points and hit all five of his free throws to give him 68 without a miss, 10 short of the NBA record set by Calvin Murphy of Houston in 1980-81.

Scottie Pippen, Chicago’s 23rd point, while Michael Jordan scored 19 and Perdue a season-high 13, compared to his season average of 3.4.

Shawn Kemp scored a season-high 24 points for Seattle.

The SuperSonics trailed only 70-69 in the final minute of the first half, but the Bulls outscored them 17-7 in the quarter to increase their lead to 92-74.

Hawks 118, Bucks 104
ATLANTA — Dominique Wilkins scored 41 points and Kevin Willis had 24 points and 14 rebounds as Atlanta took control in the second quarter and coasted against Milwaukee.

Wilkins, who had an NBA season-high 52 points Saturday night, also had 13 rebounds.

It was the eighth consecutive road loss for the Bucks, who trailed 57-43 at halftime and never got closer than 10 points the rest of the way.

Moises Malone, returning to Atlanta for the first time since signing with the Bucks, led Milwaukee with a season-high 27 points and 13 rebounds.

It was the 19th consecutive game with double figures in points and rebounds for Willis, who failed to accomplish that feat only in the season opener when he had nine points and 12 rebounds.

Pacers 109, Spurs 102
INDIANAPOLIS — Reggie Miller scored 25 points, including a key layup in the final moments, as Indiana handed San Antonio its fifth consecutive defeat.

The Spurs, who started the season 10-3, were led by Willie Anderson with 22 points and David Robinson with 20 points and eight blocked shots.

Michael Williams had 23 points for the Pacers, and Eric Person scored 20.

Miller’s layup with 13.5 seconds remaining tied the game at 102 before Donald Royal missed one of two free throws for San Antonio with 10.9 seconds remaining.

The Spurs did not get the ball in scoring position again.

Rik Smits and Detlef Schrempf sealed the victory by hitting two free throws each in the final 10 seconds.

Knicks 114, Nets 88
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Patrick Ewing had 23 points and 12 rebounds and New York beat New Jersey for the seventh consecutive time.

The Knicks, who never trailed in the game, outscored the Nets 34-21 in the second period to take command of the game and roll to their eighth victory in nine outings, leading by four points, New York used a 10-0 run for a 37-23 edge.

Later in the second period, Ewing scored on a three-point play and Gerald Wilkins covered Charles Oakley added baskets, giving New York a 55-33 edge 2:17 before the half.

New York continued to roll early in the second half, expanding their 19-point halftime lead to 73-43 with a 14-3 spurt.

Dravon Petrovic led the Nets with 22 points.

Mavericks 114, Heat 110, OT
DALLAS — Rolando Blackman scored 31 points, including a pair of free throws with 26 seconds left in overtime, as Dallas snapped a four-game losing streak and handed Miami its fifth consecutive loss.

Blackman, who scored 11 points in the fourth quarter, gave the Mavericks their final margin of victory with his clinch free throws.

Miami’s last lead came with 2:04 left in overtime as Tony Selkay’s follow shots made it 110-108. Derek Harper sank a jumper with 1:48 to play and then gave Dallas the lead for good with two free throws at the 1:22 mark.

Miami was led by Willie Burton with 23 points, and Grant Long with 22. Selkay finished with 18 points and 14 rebounds.

The resurgent Nordiques, who have four victories and a tie during the streak, have moved within one point of the Buffalo Sabres, the fourth-place team in the Adams Division.

The last time Quebec had that long an unbeaten streak was in March 1986. The Nordiques have also won six straight games at the Colisée for the first time since 1985.

North Stars 4, Devils 3
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. Bobby Smith scored with 3:14 left, just 2:58 after New Jersey goalie Chris Terreri allowed the tying goal on a slow roller, as the Minnesota North Stars rallied for a 4-3 victory over the Devils.

Penguins stay hot at home with 5-3 win; Red Wings skate past Blackhawks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Errey scored short-handed to complete a four-goal second period that included two Mark Recchi goals and the Penguins remained hot at home, beating the New York Rangers 5-3.

Mario Lemieux also scored as Pittsburgh turned a 2-1 deficit into a pair of two-goal leads that prompted Rangers coach Roger Neilson to scratch goalie Ron Leflar, who had won four of his last five starts.

The Penguins, beginning a key stretch of Patrick Division games, are 5-0-2 in their seven home games and 7-2-1 overall. They lead the Adams Division by 7-4-4 at home after starting the season with two victories in their first five games.

Red Wings 5, Blackhawks 3
DETROIT — Sergei Fedorov had two goals and an assist and Jimmy Carson scored two goals as the hot Detroit Red Wings beat the Chicago Blackhawks 5-3.

Detroit, 11-1-3 in its last 15 games, outshot the Blackhawks 33-22, including a 25-8 margin in the first two periods.

The Blackhawks only managed four shots in each of the first two periods, and took 6:07 to record their first shot of the third period. The Red Wings led before a late flurry by the Blackhawks.

Islanders 7, Blues 5
UNIONDALE, N.Y. — Brett Hull, the NHL’s leading goal scorer, had a hat trick for St. Louis and Ray Ferraro for New York.

The Blues and the Islanders played to a 7-7 tie on Tuesday night.

The Islanders, who earlier announced that owner John Pickett had agreed to sell the team, got a dramatic goal from Steve Thomas with 17 seconds left in regulation to pull out the tie.

Earlier, Hull’s hat trick — the 13th of his career — had impressed the league leading total of 27. He has led the league in goals for two straight years, including last season.

Capitals 4, Flames 1
LANDOVER, Md. — Al Iafredo and Peter Bondra scored less than a minute apart midway through the second period as the Washington Capitals defeated the Calgary Flames 4-1.

Don Beaupre made 20 saves and won his third straight game as the Capitals, 21-9-0, tied Montreal atop the overall standings.

Dino Ciccarelli and Sylvain Cote each had a pair of assists for the Capitals, who have won three of their last four games.

Joe Nieuwendyk scored for the Flames, who have lost five of the last six games.

Nordiques 5, Bruins 2
QUEBEC — The Quebec Nordiques stretched their unbeaten string to five games, their longest in five years.

Greg Paslawski and Mike Hough got two goals apiece in a 5-2 victory over the Boston Bruins.

The resurgent Nordiques, who have four victories and a tie during the streak, have moved within one point of the Buffalo Sabres, the fourth-place team in the Adams Division.

The last time Quebec had that long an unbeaten streak was in March 1986. The Nordiques have also won six straight games at the Colisée for the first time since 1985.

North Stars 4, Devils 3
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. Bobby Smith scored with 3:14 left, just 2:58 after New Jersey goalie Chris Terreri allowed the tying goal on a slow roller, as the Minnesota North Stars rallied for a 4-3 victory over the Devils.

Angels wheel-and-deal at baseball's winter meetings

Herzog makes two trades, resigns Finley

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Whitey Herzog again stamped his trademark on baseball's winter meetings, swinging two more trades Tuesday and then making sure Chuck Finley won't slip away.

The Angels, who got Von Hayes from Philadelphia in a deal Sunday and lost free agent Mike Jorgensen on Monday, were at the move all day.

Herzog traded for Hubie Brooks in a swap of outfielders that sent Dave Gallagher to the New York Mets, and acquired Chuck Grim from Milwaukee for Mike Fittre in an exchange of relievers.

Herzog, however, did not want to trade Finley, despite rumors that he might get Ruben Sierra, Kevin McReynolds or other power hitters in return. So the Angels signed the left-hander to a four-year, $18.5 million contract.

"We're not done yet. We want to see if we can strengthen this thing a little more," Herzog said. "You have to be a little smarter than everyone else to do it, or at least think you are.

The addition of Brooks further reduced the chances the Angels would want free agent Wally Joyner on Monday, were for Mike Fetters in an exchange.

"You have to be a little smarter than everyone else to see if we can strengthen this thing. So the Angels will stay put as the catcher accepted Pittsburgh's offer of salary arbitration.

Also, journeyman catcher Jerry Willard, who won Game 4 of the World Series with a sacrifice fly, signed another one-year contract with Atlanta. Once again, he is not guaranteed a spot in the majors.

In a minor league deal that moved a trade of 2 for 2 swap. All four players spent last season in the majors and minors, with the best prospect being new Cleveland outfielder Kenny Lofton, who was voted the Pacific Coast League's top player.

As usual, there were more rumors. San Francisco was considering sending Kevin Mitchell to Texas for reliever Jeff Russell and, in the most juicy tidbit, Oakland confirmed that Jose Canseco's name had come up in talks with the New York Yankees.

"It was a typical conversation between two teams knocking around ideas about what could happen," Athletics general manager Sandy Alderson said. "I'd be surprised if it happened."

NL president Bill White said his teams talked about re-alignment when Denver and Miami join the league in 1993.

Hubie Brooks (shown here when he was with the Dodgers) was traded Tuesday from the New York Mets to the California Angels.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jeff Smulyan told the American League owners on Tuesday who is trying to sell the Mariners and said the franchise's future is now "in the hands of the people of Seattle."

Smulyan announced Friday that the Mariners were for sale for $100 million. Local buyers, with perhaps financial assistance from the city government, have 120 days to purchase the club.

If local ownership does not come forth in that period, Smulyan would have to give notice to do so.

Chuck Finley is correct. "There are going to be three options. almonds," Athletics general manager Sandy Alderson said. "I'd be surprised if it happened."

"There already have been rumors that if local ownership is not found in Seattle, the team would move to St. Petersburg."

"We felt we could no longer do the job in Seattle," Smulyan said. "The revenues in Seattle have never approached that of any other team in the major leagues."

One of the biggest problems for the Mariners has been revenue from television and radio rights. The Mariners make a majorleague low $1.5 million from their media deal.

"We will have to do what we think is correct," AL president Bobby Brown said. "We can't afford the bankruptcy."

Smulyan, however, said his group had no intention of filing for bankruptcy. Smulyan, who paid $160 million to purchase the Mariners for $76 million in 1983, said he was "too much a sports fan" to walk away from the team.

"This issue is in the hands of the people of Seattle," Smulyan said at the winter meetings. "The lease provides the community the right to own this team. But I'm not going to give any guarantees. It is out of my hands. If no one comes forward in 120 days we feel the team has a right to leave Seattle."

Sheridan drops out of running for Texas job

AUSTIN (AP) — North Carolina football coach Dick Sheridan, reportedly on a short list for the Texas job at Texas, said Tuesday the future "looks bright and exciting" for them both and that he doesn’t plan to seek another coaching position.

With Sheridan apparently removing his name from the Texas coaching search, attention was expected to focus on Illinois coach John Mackovic, who has been endorsed by his ex­boss, former Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry.

The News-Gazette in Champaign-Urbana reported Tuesday that the University of Illinois has been working on a long-term compensation package for Mackovic to ease the Illini football coach and athletic director Don Joyce’s departure for the University of Texas.

The compensation package has been under development for several months and is based on the presumption that he would want to stay on as athletic director at Illinois until the end of the season.

Illinois spokesman Mike Pearson said he couldn’t confirm any more information other than Mackovic was in his office Tuesday and not taking telephone calls from reporters. But Illini offensive tackle Tony Laster said Mackovic had talked to the team on Friday about the coaching rumors.

"He told us not to believe everything we hear," Laster said.

Unidentified sources close to the Texas athletic department quoted by the Austin American­Statesman as saying Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds and UT-Austin President William McRaven most likely would interview Mackovic on Wednesday, outside of Austin. Mackovic meets the criteria set by Dodds when announcing the search. Dodds said then that he wanted someone with Division I-A and possibly pro coaching experience.

Dodds was in New York City on Tuesday for an academic banquet. His office said he wouldn’t be back in Austin until late Wednesday.

Tony Laster said several times that Texas is considering six to seven coaches who have interviewed, that he opened up with the Dec. 2 resignation of David McWilliams.

Huskies’ coach unwilling to campaign for national title

SEATTLE (AP) — If the Washington Huskies beat Michigan, even by a single point, in the Rose Bowl on New Year’s Day, they’ll be coach Don James’ first national champions.

He said he doesn’t know if his second-ranked Huskies then would deserve to be first in The Associated Press poll or the USA Today-CONN polls ahead of Nebraska and Miami.

"But they’ll get my vote," James said Tuesday.

The Big Ten Conference champion Wolverines are ranked fourth. Miami is playing 11th-ranked Nebraska in the Orange Bowl. The Huskies then will play the winner.

"We’re not taking the approach we’re playing Miami," James said. "We’re playing Michigan, I’m not assuming anything.”

He said winning a national championship has been his top goal since arriving in Seattle from Kent State 17 seasons ago. He emphasized it’s not an all-important goal, though.

"It’s not something I go to bed at night saying prayers about," James said. "Here, Lord, give me Michigan. I’m not assuming it."

The Huskies finished second to Brigham Young before beating Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl after the 1994 season. They were 11-1 that season.

James votes in the coaches’ poll ahead of top-ranked Miami at the final word. He said he’d set­tle for the AP national title, which is decided by the media.

"Whichever one would vote for us," he said. "I could care less. But as long as we get one national championship, I can’t see anybody pouring any oil on Michigan," he said.

"They’re too good. I’d take a one-point victory right now.”

James said if Michigan beats Washington and Nebraska beats Miami, then he’d vote for the Wolverines as national champions.

The Wolverines are a much better team than the one that lost to Florida State 51-31 in Ann Arbor in their third game of the season, he said.

"Don’t see a weakness," James said of the Wolverines.

"They appear to be a good bit quicker than we were in last year’s Rose Bowl. I think trying to defend them will be as big a challenge as we’ve had in years," he said.

The New Year’s Day game is important to Washington, but James plans to let his players have their share of fun in their stay in the Los Angeles area.

"It’s not going to be a Marine boot camp," he said.

Indiana routs Vanderbilt; Iowa rolls

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — No effort meant no start for Indiana's Calbert Cheaney. Eric Atkins and Jon Bryant may well have had better reputations with the Hoosiers' 88-51 rout of Vanderbilt (3-2) on Tuesday night.

Cheaney, the team's leading scorer last season, was benched by coach Bob Knight, who has been unhappy with his team's offensive production in a 3-2 start.

Cheaney had started each of Indiana's first four games, Anderson three and Bailey two.

"I've put the people out there like this for 20 years that will give us effort," Knight said. "Effort involves paying attention to what is to be done. I don’t think that's asking too much to be a kid.

The trio started the second half and made their presence known immediately by scoring Indiana's first nine points.

Cheaney had five points in the first half and were ahead by as many as 18th time in 20 meetings. The Hooisers' lead to 45-34 with 28 points late.

California on Dec. 20. The team worked out the following five days before leaving for Southern California on Dec. 20. The team will train at the Los Angeles Rams’ practice field.

James smiled slightly when a reporter asked him if he would pour it on 10-1 Michigan to im­press the voters in an effort to win the national championship.

"I can’t see anybody pouring any oil on Michigan," he said.

"They’re too good. I’d take a one-point victory right now.”

Eagles sign Archer to replace injured McMahon

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles signed free agent quarterback David Archer to a one-year contract Tuesday, while his former teammate, Jim McMahon, remained in the hospital with four broken ribs.

Coach Rich Kotite said Archer would practice Wednesday with the team as it prepares for Sunday's game against the Dallas Cowboys.

"He'll spend a lot of extra hours with quarterback coach Zeko Bratkowski over the next few days and we'll take things from there," Kotite said Tuesday.

Jeff Kemp, who relieved McMahon the past two games for victories over Houston and New York, was expected to start Sunday. Rookie Brad Goebel is the other backup.

"I'm just excited to get an opportunity to come in and contribute to a team the caliber of the Philadelphia Eagles and a team that has a chance to go to the playoffs," Archer said.

The Eagles, riding a six-game winning streak, are tied with New Orleans, Atlanta and Dallas at 9-5 with two games left in the race for the last two NFC wild-card berths. San Francisco (6-6) is also in the picture.

Archer becomes the sixth quarterback to join the Eagles, who have been plagued by injuries in that position.

McMahon took the starting job after Randall Cunningham was knocked out for the season with torn knee ligaments in Philadelphia's season opener.

McMahon on Sept. 30 suffered ligament damage in his right knee and was out for four weeks. Former New York Jets quarterback Pat Ryan and Goebel both were ineffective as McMahon's place.

McMahon broke his ribs Sunday in the second quarter of the Eagles' 19-14 victory over the Giants.

McMahon remained in the intensive care unit of Graduate Hospital on Tuesday night.

"This last half of the season, she really picked up her game and played extremely competitive person," explained Fiebelkorn. Women's swimmers dominate meet

Williams, Wood lead Irish to easy win at National Catholics

By JENNIFER MARTEN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's swim team won the National Catholic Swimming and Diving Championships at Boston College over the weekend for the second straight year thanks to a total team effort. The Irish won 14 of the meet's 20 events including all five of the relays.

"We entered a strong team and dominated the meet," said Notre Dame coach Tim Welsh. "We took twenty girls to the meet and all twenty scored more than once."

Junior All-American Tanya Williams had another stellar meet winning three events including the 200 individual medley, the 400 individual medley, and the 200 backstroke events. Her performance earned her the most valuable swimmer of the meet award for the second straight year in a row.

Senior Becky Wood also had a successful trip to Boston, winning both of the breast-stroke events. Wood is the first person to win the same event four years in a row.

Freshman Jennifer Dahl was also a double winner for the Irish, winning the 500 and 1650 yard freestyle events in addition to placing second in the 200 yard freestyle.

"I knew she would swim very well," said Welsh. "She had prepared well for it. She has great spirit, enthusiasm, and drive."

All the freshmen played a big part in the victory. In addition to Dahl, Meghan Brooker won the 500-yard freestyle event and Cara Garvey won the 100-yard backstroke event. Colleen Higginbotham, Lorraine Horenkamp, Haley Scott, Angie Roby, Amy Bethem, and the rest of the freshmen all contributed to the Irish effort.

"The freshmen class is one of our strengths," said Welsh. "There was a freshman on every one of our winning relays."

Notre Dame was followed in the standings by LaSalle which finished second and host Boston College which finished third. Fordham, Seton Hall, Providence, and Holy Cross also placed well in the meet. However, the Irish domination was kind of expected according to Welsh.

"I thought we would probably be the strongest team at the meet. Mainly because we brought probably our fastest team ever and Villanova which finished second in the meet last year was not there," said Welsh.

Porter named Observer's women's soccer MVP

By MIKE SCRUDATO
Sports Writer

This season the Notre Dame women's soccer team enjoyed its most successful season ever, as the Irish compiled a 15-2-3 record, won the Midwestern Collegiate Conference championship and received their first national ranking, peaking at 13th.

One of the many reasons for this tremendous success was the Observer women's soccer Player of the Year, Stephanie Porter.

Porter, who is only a sophomore, led the Irish and the MCC in scoring with 16 goals and four assists for a total of 36 points. These statistics earned her the Notre Dame records for most goals in a season and most points in a season. Currently, in 27 games second all-time scoring list behind graduating senior Susie Zivlits.

She was named to the All-MCC team, as well as earning MCC Player of the Year honors.

Porter turned in one of her best performances of the year in a 4-0 win over then 21st-ranked Cincinnati, as she recorded her second career hat trick.

Despite her impressive numbers, Porter was not the only star on this year's team, junior goalkeeper Michelle Lodyga set an Irish record and led the MCC with a 0.53 goals against average. She was also named to the All-MCC squad.

The well-balanced Notre Dame attack had three other players, besides Porter, score or more points: sophomore Alison Lester, freshman Jodi Hartwig and Zivlits.

Lester had nine goals and 10 assists for a total of 28 points, and Hartwig scored nine goals and nine assists for 27 points. Both were All-MCC selections.

Zivlits capped her spectacular career by netting seven goals and getting six assists for a total of 20 points.

Two hundred years ago, a man named Paul Revere kept New Englanders alert to a possible British invasion of the American colonies. But this evening’s Fighting Irish visit to Chestnut Hill, Mass., is unlike to rouse such hubbub outside of the 9,681-seat Conte Forum, home of Boston College.

Cold-shooting Notre Dame upped its record under first-year coach John MacLeod to 1-3 with a 71-66 come-from-behind road win over Valparaiso on Monday night.

The 9-3 Irish start prior to defeating Valpo was the worst in the 87-year history of the program.

Perhaps worse, the poor start could not come at a more difficult time for Notre Dame, whose game against Boston College is in the second of a record-long nine game road swing, the likes of which has not been seen by an Irish team since the 1922-23 season.

Yet after the likes of freshmen Malik Russell and Billy Taylor against Valparaiso, MacLeod has reason to be optimistic.

"Taylor was on fire," said Irish senior LaPhonso Ellis, reflecting on the team’s first win.

"On the night, Taylor was 8-of-11 from field, hitting key shots to preserve Notre Dame’s inaugural win of the MacLeod era. Russell, meanwhile, shot two-of-five while pulling down five rebounds and dishing out five assists.

Russell also blocked a shot and stole one for Valpo.

The Eagles, meanwhile, are undefeated, and a win tonight would give the Fighting Irish back-to-back victories over Notre Dame for the first time ever.

Last season, Boston College edged the Irish 199-197 at the ACC. Six-foot-three guard Howard Eley scored a 15-foot jumper with time winding down to seal the win for the Eagles.

On their last trip to Boston, however, it was the Irish who came away with the victory, 80-67. In that game, Keith Robinson keyed the Notre Dame effort, going five-of-five from the field and hitting all of his free throw attempts for a 21-point showing.

After season-opening exhibition wins over Marahlon Oil and Canada, the Eagles ripped through the New England states for a 5-0 start. The Eagles’ wins came over Brown, Brooklyn, New Hampshire, Harvard and Hofstra.

Tonight’s game will be televised on ESPN, with tipoff slated for 8 p.m. Eastern time.

Co-Players of the Year lead volleyball team to 26-10 mark

Throughout the year, one of the Notre Dame volleyball team’s primary strengths was its balance.

No one player dominated the statistics, and it seemed as if a different person would step forward each match to give the Irish a timely lift as they racked up a 26-10 record, their best mark since the 1987 season.

It’s only fitting then that the 1991 Observer Player of the Year award would go to not one, but two athletes. Junior Jessica Fiebelkorn and freshman Christy Peters received the honor on Monday at the annual volleyball banquet.

Fiebelkorn, a 5-foot-10 middle blocker from Osseo, Minn., returned from a stress fracture suffered midway through last season to lead Notre Dame in digs (425), blocks (186) and average 13.2 kills and 15.3 digs down the stretch, coming off my injury," added Fiebelkorn, "I progressed nicely throughout the year, but towards the middle of the season, I had some doubts about whether I was tapping my potential."

"I spent the year gaining confidence after being hurt last year, learning to have fun and love the game again." It was at that midpoint of the season that Fiebelkorn really showed what she was capable of. After a loss to the Akron match, she came back for the final 16 matches of the season and averaged 13.2 kills and 15.3 digs down the stretch, a new career high.

Fiebelkorn especially shone in pressure situations, makingetter than 80 percent of her free throws.

Fiebelkorn said, "If the ball was sent into the net, she’d do something smart with it."

"I didn’t know what to expect coming off my injury," added Fiebelkorn. "I progressed nicely throughout the year, but to
