Two Notre Dame students assaulted on campus over weekend

By ANDY RUNKLE
News Writer

Two Notre Dame students were assaulted in separate events on campus Saturday night, according to Chuck Hurley, assistant director of campus security.

The first incident involved two male students in Siegfried Hall. One student struck another in the face, according to Hurley. In the second incident, a student returning to St. Edward's Hall was struck from behind by an unidentified attacker on South Quad, according to Hurley. The attacker ran from the scene after the victim retaliated, knocking the attacker to the ground.

The incident in Siegfried Hall occurred at approximately 1 a.m. The victim declined medical treatment at the Student Health Center. The fight stemmed from comments about the friend of another student, Hurley added.

The second incident occurred while the St. Edward's student was walking back to his dorm at approximately 3 a.m. He had been dropped off at the Main Circle and was walking on South Quad. He was struck from behind by surprise in the upper right shoulder, near the neck, according to Hurley.

The victim then retaliated by striking the attacker and knocking him to the ground. The unidentified attacker then ran from the scene. The victim was only able to describe the attacker as a large male of unknown race. The victim was treated by University Health Services, according to Hurley.

Alumni discuss increased service role

Members of the Notre Dame Alumni Association discussed increasing social service opportunities through local alumni clubs in the Alumni Social Concerns (CSC) Sue Cunningham Forum held last weekend at the Fatima Retreat Center.

Panelists were Father Don McNeill, director of the Center for Social Concerns (CSC), Sue Cunningham, coordinator of Urban Plunge and Summer Service Projects for the CSC, Peter Pranica, coordinator of the service programs of the Alumni Association, and Kathleen Sullivan of the Continuing Education Department of the Alumni Association.

Pranica said that the need for Notre Dame alumni to use their professional talents to help others was realized in 1989. Since then, he and Katharine Sullivan, registrar of Lewis Hall, have been developing a process to involve alumni clubs in social service.

The program has four goals, said Pranica:

• to foster sensitivity to social concerns presented at the institution of “study days” on the Thursday and Friday before Finals Week, the hiring of a private security force to patrol the Five Corners area, and the development of a “campus card” which would allow students to open charge accounts with on-campus businesses.

The Notre Dame election season begins today as the candidates for student body president and vice president officially start their campaigns.

Four presidential/vice presidential ticket will be competing in the election, to be held Feb. 10. If no ticket receives a majority of the vote in the initial balloting, a runoff election between the top two vote-getters will take place Feb. 12.

The candidates for president and vice president, respectively, are:

• Greg Butrus and Molly O’Neill
• David Certo and Matt Bomberger
• Rich Delevan and Joe Wilson
• George Smith and Mike Goodwin

A debate between is scheduled for Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Notre Dame Room of LaFortune Student Center. The debate is open to the public. The candidates will respond to questions asked by members of campus media and members of the audience.

Butrus, Stanford Hall co-president, and O’Neill, Lewis Hall co-president, plan to lobby for the institution of “study days” on the Thursday and Friday before Finals Week, the hiring of a private security force to patrol the Five Corners area, and the development of a “campus card” which would allow students to open charge accounts with on-campus businesses.

O’Neill said she and her running-mate understand that it can be “hard to change things” at Notre Dame, but feel they have the experience in student government necessary to “get things done.” She countered that their ideas are “quite feasible,” since they have been implemented successfully at other universities.

Certo, an Alumni Hall resident, who represents the South Quad in the Student Senate, said he believes his ticket has the “energy and talent that can make a difference” in student government.

Certo said his participation in debating competitions and in the Model United Nations has allowed him to develop strong public speaking and negotiation skills. These skills are important for a student body president, Certo said, because whoever holds the position must be able to effectively “speak up for students.”

A third ticket for the student body positions consists of Rich Bomberger; Father William Beauchamp presents the Dooley Award to Dennis Nigro as part of last weekend’s Alumni Social Concerns Forum.

NASCCU holds 3rd conference

“Service in Society” was the topic of the third annual conference of the National Association of Social Concerns Colleges and Universities (NASCCU), held at Notre Dame last weekend.

NASCCU was founded in 1989 to give a voice to students at Catholic colleges and universities. The organization offers an opportunity for students from across the country to come together and discuss issues that are unique to the Catholic university.

Paul Timmons and Viv Pritchard from the University of St. Thomas in Minnesota gave a presentation Saturday detailing their school’s particular organizations for community service.

One St. Thomas organization, called Volunteers in Action, includes five areas of service: social, health, education, youth, and senior citizens. Pritchard described the group as successful, involving more than 300 students.

Another St. Thomas social service presented was known as Business 200. The “class” is

Schools switch to milk pouches

HOLLAND, Ind. — The first shot has been fired in a battle to supply tri-state schools with milk, but it wasn’t from a revolutionary plastic pouch that some school administrators had feared. Instead, they worried that the clear half-pint plastic pouches were too radical a departure from the traditional paperboard “gable top” milk carton. School administrators also were concerned that students might try to squeeze the milk out of the pouches using the pointed straws used to pierce the plastic containers. If every school in Holland’s Indiana and Kentucky markets had switched, the milk company would replace the old cartons with pouches 1,755 fewer tons of trash would go into the region’s landfills each year.

Scott continues recuperation

NOTRE DAME — Baby Scott, one of the Notre Dame swimmers injured in a Jan. 24 bus crash, remains hospitalized with a spinal cord injury, according to Stephen and Charlotte Scott, her parents. Scott “has regained both some feeling and some movement in her legs and has been gaining strength day by day,” said the Scotts in a statement released Friday. “She is in good spirits.” The family said that they deeply appreciate the widespread public affection and concern shown for Scott.

Scott and his wife, who were present at the conference for the second consecutive year. Nathan Hatch, vice president for graduate studies and research, will participate in a panel discussion on Feb. 5. Principal speakers at the meeting will be Father J. If elected, Smith and Goodwin said they would advocate the adoption of a "student bill of rights" that would ensure the rights of "free speech, privacy, and equal treatment" for Notre Dame students. The candidates also support a greater stress on multi-culturalism in course offerings, but said they would oppose efforts aimed at requiring students to take a distinct "multi-cultural class."

ND professor lectures on dangers of dioxin

By TONY POPANZ

News Writer

Great controversy surrounds dioxin, an industrial waste material caused by conflicting environmentalism and industry. Dioxin is a carcinogen, but its degree of toxicity in humans is not yet determined. The importance of the market place, according to Himes, is that it exemplifies the 19th-century doctrine of Social Darwinism. Himes opened by presenting "The Brothers Karamazov" by Fyodor Dostoevsky. Himes' second example was "The Brothers Karamazov," by Fyodor Dostoevsky. Himes told of a woman who has no faith in God. "Nothing in life is real except the seeds that grow on my grave," she says. The advice which she receives is that she must come to love others, and then by bit by bit will discover it is impossible not to believe in God. The point is, according to Himes, that the existence of God is so intimately bound to the existence of our neighbor. In the next segment of his lecture, Himes used Jesus' Good Samaritan parable in Luke's Gospel to make the point that if you think you can love God and not your neighbor, than you don't understand Christianity at all. Drop the love of God, and you cannot love your neighbor, Himes said, nor can you continue being merely human because the world becomes vicious and inhuman. Himes concluded by answering the final question, "How do we as alumni respond to the call of social justice?" He said we must omit the classical view of justice from our lives—that there exists a mindbody conflict in every human being. The classical view of justice only induces pain and violence, and Christianity has nothing to do with this kind of virtue, said Himes. Instead, it is love that produces justice. When you are absolutely in love with the other, then you will do them justice, he added.

Aftershocks shake Tokyo but no injuries reported

TOKYO (AP) — A series of small aftershocks shook the Tokyo area Monday after a strong tremor left more than 30 people injured, but caused only minor damage.

The morning of the nearly 20 aftershocks registered 4.2 on the Richter scale and was centered in Tokyo Bay, near the center of Sunday’s quake. There were no reports of injuries or damage in the area.

Many of which were too weak to be felt by humans.

The early-morning earthquake on Sunday left 32 people injured and caused several fires, officials said. Most of the injuries were due to falls or items that dropped off walls and shelves, authorities said.

The quake registered 5.7 on the Richter scale, which measures its overall strength, and 5 on the Japanese scale of 7, which measures intensity at specific places. The Tokyo area had not had a quake of 5 on the Japanese scale since Oct. 4, 1985.

The Tokyo Fire Department said a telephone survey of 1,000 people immediately after the quake showed that because of the hour, 98.4 percent were not using stoves, heaters or other heating equipment.

Fire was the major killer in Japan’s worst earthquake, which hit as many families were cooking lunch on Sept. 1, 1923. Some 100,000 people died in the Tokyo-area quake, estimated at 7.9 on the Richter scale.

Less than 1 percent of the people surveyed Sunday said they fled their homes.

An official of Japan Railway Tokai, speaking on condition of anonymity, said 17,000 people were affected as more than 100 high-speed “bullet” trains leaving or arriving in Tokyo were delayed by up to 2 hours and 45 minutes or canceled. Another 110,000 were inconvenienced by delays on local lines.

Bullet trains stopped again for about 20 minutes in the afternoon for track inspections after a minor earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale hit Ajiro, about 50 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Sunday morning’s major quake was centered about 50 miles under Tokyo Bay, and about 16 miles south of the capital.

An earthquake measuring 5 on the Richter scale can cause considerable damage if the epicenter is close to ground level; one measuring 6 can cause severe damage.

William Gray, III, president and chief executive officer of the United Negro College Fund (UNCF) will make a presentation at Notre Dame Feb. 3 as part of the Student Government Lecture Series.

The lecture, “Changes, Challenges and Opportunities in Education and Why I Decided to Leave the House,” will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Hesburgh Library auditorium.

Gray, former U.S. House of Representatives Majority Whip, is a longtime supporter of education. This new challenge allows me to continue the mission of fostering positive change and growth in the area of education,” he said at the start of his tenure as UNCF’s president. “There is no area more crucial than education.”

to get involved” and the beginning of a “lifetime habit of service.”

In the future, Pranica hopes to strengthen alumni club ties to the CSC and current students. He wants to increase student involvement now, because “if they drink beer and watch football as students, that’s where they’ll do it later, as alumni.”

The ultimate goal of the program is to grow “not large, but deep, in awareness, spirit, and commitment.

Members of the audience raised the concern that service programs were not desired by many members of local alumni clubs. One said, “A good percentage of graduates stand for something very different than social concerns.” Another, who works in social service, added, “These folks have no interest in what I’m doing...and they feel bad that Notre Dame produced people like me.” Others returned that people who dislike service need more education. “A lot of them are just afraid. It’s easy for them in their clean quiet neighborhoods with their money and their social status,” one participant stated.

Another member stated that the tradition of Notre Dame must be acknowledged. “If Notre Dame is a place where upwardly mobile Americans send their children...I don’t think that’s going to change,” he said.

Other participants referred to the difference between charity, such as donating canned foods and building a house, and real social change. “Charity is safe,” said one, “but people who are really committed to social change are necessarily going against the status quo.”

“Where are our alumni who have degrees in economics and public policy?” asked another participant. “These are the alumni I would like to see mobilized,” he continued.

McNeill concluded that the discussion raised both positive and negative aspects of service through alumni clubs and raised many points to consider.

ND students get to play Indiana Jones in Knott Hall charity event

By BEVIN KOVALIK
News Writer

A buried treasure will soon be lurking somewhere in the nooks and crannies of Notre Dame's campus.

Knott Hall has summoned all curious ND students to track down a glorious olympic-sized medal using five clues to the location of the medallion. Knott Hall's Special Events Committee will sponsor Notre Dame's first annual Charity Medallion Hunt to help support Catholic Worker House in South Bend.

Beginning today, students can register for the hunt by buying "Kiss Me I'm Irish" buttons for $1 at lunch in North and South Dining Halls. During the week of February 10-14, The Observer will publish clues in the "Of Interest" section of the paper which will direct the participants to the location of the medallion.

"We wanted to host an event that everyone could participate in, and one that didn't involve too much time," said Sara Skalicky, Chairman of Knott Hall's Special Events Committee.

The first registered pirate to discover the medallion and return it to Sara Skalicky of 419 Knott Hall will win a dinner for four at Tippecanoe Restaurant, Luxury Linens service to and from dinner, and a traveling plaque for his or her dorm.

"Knott Hall doesn't have a tradition event to put us on campus before," said Skalicky. "The Medallion Hunt is a different idea that hasn't been done on campus before."

Knott Hall will donate proceeds from the hunt to Catholic Worker House in South Bend.

"Catholic Worker House assists unemployed, catholic families by giving them a place to live until they can get back on their feet," said Skalicky. "The families work through the faith with social programs and counseling facilities in a religious environment."

"We hope to raise as much money as we can by selling the buttons at a dollar a piece," said Skalicky. Participants in the hunt must not destroy University property and cannot claim the prize without registering with the purchase of a button, said Skalicky. The medallion will be hidden in easily accessible areas above the ground, but perhaps underneath snow piles or leaves. It will not be concealed inside buildings.

ND cable TV show wins award

Special to The Observer

The 34th annual New York International Film and Television Festival recently awarded a program produced for public and cable television by the University of Notre Dame.

"Religions of the Book: Holy Places and Pilgrimages" was cited for outstanding achievement in religious television programming. The program, one of four dealing with Christian, Jewish and Muslim beliefs, was part of the University's "Today's Life Choices" series.

The series is completing its third season on VSN, a nationwide interfiber cable network, and is also broadcast on more than 50 PBS stations across the country.

Notre Dame faculty members appearing on the program, parts of which were filmed in the Middle East, were Father Paul Bradshaw and Roger Brooks, professors of theology, and Father Patrick Gaffney, associate professor of anthropology.

Previous "Life Choices" programs have won the prestigious Gabriel award for religious television programming, as well as a silver medal from the Council for the Advancement and Support of Higher Education.

Notre Dame is believed to be the only American college or university producing regular programming for cable and public television. "Today's Life Choices" is produced for the University by Golden Dome Productions, South Bend, Ind.

Bush's health reform plan aims to control medical costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Health and Human Services Louis Sullivan said Sunday that President Bush's health reform plan will give a new push to managed care to bring spiraling costs under control.

Sullivan said the plan, which Bush is expected to announce in detail Thursday in Cleveland, will be fully paid for.

Americans will spend more than $500 billion on health care this year, and Bush said in his State of the Union address that the health bill could double to $1.6 trillion by 2000.

Bush said he would propose tax credits of up to $3,750 per family to help poor and middle class families buy health insurance. He also promised changes to allow workers to switch jobs without losing coverage, make insurance more affordable for small businesses and lower medical costs.

Bush also has proposed raising Medicare premiums for wealthier retirees. A Bush proposal to make upper-income employees pay income tax on a portion of their health insurance benefits was stripped from the budget when it sparked an uproar among Republican lawmakers.

Mitchell says budget contains 'gimmicks'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said Sunday that Congress will take the "gimmicks" out of President Bush's economic recovery plan and add a tax cut for the middle class.

Mitchell denounced Bush's March 20 deadline for action as "a political ploy," but said Congress may well act before that date.

"The Congress will act promptly because it's the right thing to do, not because of any deadline," the Maine Democrat said on NBC's "Meet the Press." He said Bush's $1.52 trillion budget for fiscal 1993 is "filled with gimmicks," including an accounting change that understates the deficit by $40 billion for 1992 and 1993.

Bush's budget forecasts record deficits of almost $400 billion this year and $351 billion in 1993.

"The first thing we'll do ... is take out the gimmicks," said Mitchell. But he said Bush also offered "some good suggestions and we'll act on them." Mitchell didn't elaborate on other "gimmicks." But Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Jack Kemp used the same word Saturday to describe the tax credits and reduced withholding in Bush's plan.

"It's no secret that I've never liked tax credits. Basically those are gimmicks," Kemp said on CNN's "Evans & Novak" show. Kemp said adjusting withholding tables to allow "people another $30 a month is (not) going to spur economic recovery." But he lauded Bush's proposal to cut the capital gains tax to 15.4 percent.

The United States already spends $1.6 trillion on health care for every man, woman and child in the country, twice as much as most nations, Sullivan said.

Almost 35 million Americans are uninsured, including many in families headed by someone who brings home a paycheck but has no health plan on the job.

"We have enough money in the system," Sullivan said on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley. "We need to spend it more wisely.

Phonathon benefits SMC

Dear Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to relate my personal experience to the college community as a student volunteer at the Saint Mary's Phonathon last fall which raised needed dollars for the Annual Fund. The Annual Fund supports items such as student scholarships, financial aid and faculty salaries that otherwise would go unfunded since tuition cannot cover everything.

It is a little known fact that due to the Office of Annual Giving's new feature of academic calling, the Phonathon is a great career networking tool. I spoke with two Saint Mary's alumnas from my major, Communications, who asked me to send them my resume. The Phonathon also has great nightly prizes and free long distance phone call for all volunteer callers who complete a mere two hours of calling.

The next Phonathon is February 3-13, 1992 at Haggard Center. Room 303. It's an opportunity to do some networking, eat some free food, win super prizes and help Saint Mary's stay strong. For more information or to sign up, call 284-4706 or 284-4582 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Hope to see you there.

Faith means seeking God with our hearts, minds

Dear Editor:

As a student of Mr. Schwartz's in his philosophy class, I must take exception to one of his statements from his recent column, "Cynical column relies on reason alone." In the column, he says, "unquestioning belief that does not require proof or evidence." He goes on to illustrate this point with an example of the Christian faith. However, I believe that the gospel of Christ is not just a belief that requires no evidence, but is a faith that requires conclusive proof and evidence.

Schwartz claims that the Christian faith is "ridiculous," but I have an even more fathomable image of this. In a corner of the expansive universe, there exists such huge matters as God's existence and belief. In an unbreakable universe, in an unbreakable faith, we need conclusive proof that the God who is credited with the creation of the expansive universe by speaking a word really exists.

I'm not suggesting that anyone become a "faithful believer," who is unquestioning and not requiring of any proof or evidence. That is certainly a caricature. That was not the kind of believer that Thomas Aquinas and Augustine were.

God, indeed, does not want us to believe illogical and unsubstantiated things. But look closer. The Christian faith is not a faith that requires no evidence. In other words, we need conclusive proof that God exists, His works in the universe.

Schwartz claims that the Christian faith is "ridiculous," but I have an even more fathomable image of this. A world which Schwartz did not quote. "A world in which we can only "guess in the wake of last week's tragedy. When he suddenly realizes that neither reason nor proof (nor for that matter, Webster's dictionary) can adequately explain the unexpected death of loved ones, maybe he will see for himself the insanity of proof, and the limits of reason. And maybe then he will understand the nature of the gap that so many of us span when we make our leap of faith.

Finally, although reason alone does not forbid Mr. A. to speak without restriction, and even to say some unpleasing things, I might humbly suggest that Mr. A. could have made even more appropriately time his decision to label Christians insane, give a chance for the rest of us to know our thoughts. I think that his put faith in reason alone and not in God will be overly tested, and it is seemingly already since is his column he seems so hurt and cyni-

I was greatly shaken. I could not understand how maybe we're all only collections of atoms. God, indeed, does not want us to believe illogical and unsubstantiated things. But look closer. The Notre Dame International Students Organization (ISO) presented an exciting display of cultural diversity Saturday night at Washington Hall when it presented its annual International Festival Program to a capacity crowd.

Close to 150 performers, from countries ranging from Mexico, Spain, and India, to the Dominican Republic, Chile, Africa, and the United States, shared a piece of their diverse cultures through a variety of native songs and dances.

The show opened up with a bit of a Latin flare. Following an opening laser light show, performers from Mexico took the stage and performed the Jarabe Tapatío, also known as the Mexican Hat Dance. They were followed Cristina and Mara Galaitas' rendition of the Serrilhones—a Native Spanish dance which came from Gypsy dances.

Hawaiian dancers then demonstrated the graceful and rhythmic dances of native Hawaii, performing to the Hawaii Sunset beaten. Then, Jackie Bayliss and Rachel Cruz performed the Mexican folk songs “Los Laureles” and “Ciela Azul.”

Troop Notre Dame, Notre Dame’s own modern dance organization, also entertained the crowd with a street-style mix of contemporary hip-hop and dance music.

The Merengue, a dance that has gained huge popularity in Latin and North America, as well as in Europe, was performed by a group of dancers from the Dominican Republic. Providing a sharp contrast to the enthusiastic Merengue was the slower, and more tempered Mexican La Brega.

A fashion show followed the first half of the International Festival, with models wearing native designs and costumes from the regions of Hawaii, Mexico, India, Egypt, Germany, Alaska, Guatemala, and Korea.

The second half of the program began with the Titikling Dance, a native dance of the Philippines, and was followed by the Chilean dance, La Queena Chilena, the Chinese Ritual Lion Dance, the Jarabe Nayarite, and dances from East and West Africa.

The American Lebanese dance, the Dabke, was followed by a sizzling Latino Mix of the Merengue, Punta, Salab, Latin Reggea, and the Lambada.

The International Festival Program presented last Saturday night by the International Student Organization featured dances from the world.

Another spectacular laser show capped off the exciting evening of entertainment and enjoyment.

The ISO, headed by Manuel Miyar and Patricia Pulmara, is the largest student organization on the Notre Dame campus, with over 800 members representing approximately 70 countries.

The ISO’s primary goal is “the diffusion of internationalism in the Notre Dame, Saint Mary’s, and South Bend communities,” according to Miyar.

The International Festival Program is put together in a span of less than two weeks, according to ISO member Felix Villalba. It is entirely student-produced, with over 50 people working behind the scenes (in addition to the performers), Villalba said.

The program is just one of the large number of activities the ISO organizes to “promote and maintain a continuous exchange of ideas and experiences among the different cultures that are lived for in the Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s communities, in hopes that the peaceful interaction will provide audiences with hope in today’s world.”

The figurines from that first part almost all portray the female. Most of these pieces are similar in the possession of fertility shifts from the male ruler-figure to the female. The ruler is the man to whom the gods give the blessings of fertility.

This fertility motif is further accentuated in a jade blood-lettor in the exhibit. The blood-lettor is beautifully shaped as a hummingbird, the shape of choice for royalty when opening their veins in sacrifice to the gods. There is a quasi-symbiotic relationship between the gods and the ruler figure. The blood spilled by the ruler feeds the gods, who in turn endow the ruler with blessings of fertility in the corn.

Bradley explained, “The fertility of the leaders flows through their blood.” In addition to the small jade blood-lettor the collection possesses a two-foot long and indeed very formidable scepter/blood-lettor, broken off in places according to custom.

In the second part of the exhibit the symbolic possession of fertility shifts from the male ruler-figure to the female. Most of these pieces are similar in the symbols and designs on their bodies.

“An original contribution is the identification of a previously unrecognized deity who seems to be doing or crawling over the heads of the figures. The recognition of the Diving God allows the interpretation of abstract designs symbolizing his body parts, the back of the heads of thousands of Precolumbian figures, particularly females,” Bradley said.

Most of these abstract designs are called ‘tectone,’ literally, ‘green grass.’ ‘Tectone’ was a direct ancestor of corn and is basically the same thing for the Olmec. Each ‘tectone’ is represented on the female as a triangle with a dot in it. This pattern is repeated over and over on an entire half of the collection, marking the symbol in the sculpture, representing the ‘hands of the gods’ over the heads of the gods.

These are two major themes in the display, but this description in no way does justice to the variety and scope of the images in the exhibit. There are several pieces of absolutely exquisite jade, including one of three black jade duck bills known to man.

Various sculptures represent the ‘Old god’ and his ancient wife, who begat humankind, as well as the fecund earth monster as the source of all life. There is a veritable plethora of different pieces in the collection, including a funky little cylinder that was used to roll out a hand print on birch bark.

This exhibit comes in a year commemoration both Notre Dame’s sesquicentennial and the 500-year anniversary of Columbus’ discovery of the Americas. This is an appropriate time and place for the exhibit according to Bradley.

“I think it’s very important that Notre Dame have a pre-Columbian art collection, considering the number of Latin-American students Notre Dame has and has always had. Father Sorin established a precedent for this type of collection years ago when he brought in the Native American art from around the country,” Bradley said.

The official title of the exhibit is “The Lords of Life.” The Iconography of Power and Fertility in Preclassic Mesoamerica.” This is what Bradley will be speaking on to the public tomorrow from 12:10 to 12:55 p.m. in the East Gallery of the Snite.

“You don’t need to know about the iconography to come in and enjoy some of the wonderful pieces of sculpture here,” said Bradley. “We want people, primarily students, to come in and see what this exhibit has to offer. What you get when you come in is a look into the hearts of these 3500 year old people through the symbolism of their art.”
Late Night Olympics raises hopes and money for the Special Olympics

Raising spirits as well as approximately $3,000, the 6th annual Late Night Olympics was held last Friday night to benefit the St. Joseph County Special Olympics. About 1,000 people were involved in the competitions, which included 3-on-3 basketball, indoor soccer, broomball, volleyball, Whiffle ball, and Nerf football.

The Sorin/Walsh team walked away with first prize: a pizza party that will be given before spring break, at which the medals they earned will be awarded. The Lewis/Stanford team, which had been champion for the last 5 years, placed second.

"I'd like to thank everyone involved for their good sportsmanship and patience," said Pat Flynn, the organizer of Late Night Olympics. "There were a lot of people working and running around until 3:30 in the morning."

Flynn said that this was the first year that representatives from St. Joseph County Special Olympics were present, and he hopes that next year some of the Special Olympics athletes themselves will be involved.

of rhythm and routine to the old gym. Though some left their sense of good taste in their dorm rooms.

Remarks about Ellis' grades grew tiresome, as did those referring to the tough assignment drawn by Joe and Jon Ross. Despite these merciless and unfair attacks, the Duke students earned respect even from those that they lampooned.

"They always have a great crowd and they're always in games," said Elmer Bennett. "They can affect the way you play and sometimes they can affect the refs. But that's Duke for you."

In fairness to the game's officials, calls went both ways in Saturday's contest. But on at least one occasion, a very questionable intentional foul on Jon Ross, officials met to discuss the call only after the Cameron crowd roared in protest.

And roar they did. Unlike those of many big-time basketball arenas, Cameron's architects did not consider acoustics. They didn't consider anything but basketball.

Cameron Indoor Stadium is not a stadium. It isn't even an arena. Simply put, Cameron is a gymnasium. With a capacity of 9,314, the gym is smaller than New Castle (Ind.) High School's 9,325, and is half the size of the architecturally North Carolina's Deane Dome (21,444).

But Cameron is more than just like a high school gym. When Cameron is empty, it evokes smells like your high school gym. The sounds are similar (but louder), and the players can hear every fan's comment.

And the crowd makes sure that it goes its points across to its team, demoralize its opponents and make Cameron home to the Blue Devils and college basketball mania.

"It was a scene from the movie. The seconds are ticking off the clock. The ball is down by one point against cross-state rival Saint Francis. From the outside, junior guard Kristen Crowley hits the three point jumper, leading the Belles to a 67-65 victory Friday night."

"It was quite a feeling," explained Crowley. "It was just fortunate that the shot went in. It was important that we were in the game so that my shot would count.

"The game was back and forth. But in the last quarter they took the lead. We missed easy shots. We came through at the end and won it," Belles coach Croner said.

In unfamiliar territory and still shakiness from Wednesday night's disastrous meeting against Northeastern Illinois University, the Belles went to Saint Francis determined to walk away with the victory. The Belles shot 42 percent from the field, and only 64 percent from the field.

Seniors Catherine Restovich, forward, and Kim Holmes led the Belles offensive scoring with 15 points each. Senior forward Janet Lishing chipped in 14 points. Crowley added another 13 for the winning three point goal.

The Belles opened up the game with 11-0 lead points. Saint Francis stayed with the Belles offensively, exchanging baskets. The Belles fast break broke up in the end of the first half as Saint Francis opened up a seven point lead. The Belles left the half trailing 32-39.

In the second half, the Belles jumpedstarted their fast break, closing their deficit in the first six minutes of action. The two teams struggled for control and the lead for the remainder of the game. In the last minute of the game, Saint Francis lead the Belles 64-62. Crowley penetrated the circle and tied the game with 12 seconds remaining. Saint Francis had the opportunity to seal the victory, but sophomore Liz Vernanco broke the play, fouling her opponent. Unable to convert the two shots, the Belles were given another opportunity to steal the victory.

Senior forward Catherine Restovich rebounded the missed foul, drove the ball up court to Crowley. Seeing her shot, Crowley sunk the three point jumper at the buzzer for the Belles 67-65 victory.

"Everyone went crazy. It was quite a game," Crowley said. "We played as a team and that's how we win. As a team!"

"The whole time we were working so hard that it had to come out in our favor," explained Restovich. "We had other games like this, close, and it didn't go our way, but we kept working for the team and it was good for our coaches."

Tonight the Belles host cross-town rivals Bethel at 7 pm at the Angela Athletic Facilities. The Belles have beaten the Pilots in all six matchups. Last season, the Belles trounced the Pilots 87-65. Despite these past outings, the Belles are prepared for an aggressive matchup.

In their 74-80 loss to Trinity College on Saturday, Bethel's Kelly Moran chipped in 18 points, and grabbed 10 rebounds. Heidi Copey tallied 22 more points for the Pilots.

tion for us," said MacLeod. "The game was out of reach with five minutes left, so we put in our freshman. It was an opportunity to get valuable playing time."

Duke considerably outrebounded Victor Davis on both ends of the court. The Irish had five offensive rebounds to Duke's 17 defensive boards.

"They really beat us up on the offensive boards, and whenever that happens you can't expect to win," said MacLeod, who finished with 18 points on 7-of-11 shooting. "The game was lost when we fouled," Bennett also tallied 18 for the Irish.

Five Blue Devils had at least four rebounds. Laetner and Grant Hill both had six. The Irish had three players with five rebounds.

meeet. Senior Peppard finished ninth in the event. Sophomore Leeney finished seventh.

The track team for the women were freshman Eva Flood and junior Lisa Gorski. The men were freshman Jack and Gorski placed eighth. In the regular men's mile, freshman Nate Ruder ran brilliantly and qualified for the NCAA meet in addition to finishing fourth in the mile final.

In the women's 3,000-meter finals, freshmen Becky Affler and Kari Krajci were second and ninth respectively. For the men in the triple jump, freshman Mike Lecotone beat Weipa and also qualified for the IC4AA meet in addition to finishing fourth in the mile.

The meet marked the track debuts of several Irish football players who also run track. Mike Miller, Tom Carter, and Lee Beoton tested the waters of indoor track in several events at the meet. Their performances were very promising. "I am very anxious to see Mike Miller, Tom Carter, Lee Beoton, and Dylon Lyle compete again," said plane.

On Friday, the Irish will host the Midwest's Collegiate Conference Indoor Track Championships that was supposed to be on January 24th. The meet was postponed due to the winter storm that occurred.
Women's tennis loses opener

By RICH SZABO

Sports Writer

It was not the way the season was supposed to begin.

Expectations are high this year for the Notre Dame women's tennis team, as they currently occupy the 23rd position in the national poll, but statistics and rankings were not enough to overcome a pumped-up Illinois team.

Playing the dedication match in a new facility, and backed by an enthusiastic crowd, the Illini broke in their new building with a 5-4 triumph over the Irish in a contest that could have gone either way. "It was a tough match," said Irish coach Jay Louderback. "I think we were good going in. This was our first match of the year, and some of us played a little scared."

Things started out promising for the Irish, as, in a battle of NCAA tournament players, seventh-ranked Melissa Harris defeated Lindsey Nimmo 6-4, 6-4 at first singles.

At second singles, freshman Laura Schwab dropped a 6-1, 7-5 contest to Christy Medya, while Terri Vitek fell to Linda Gates 6-3, 4-6 at the fourth slot.

Chrisy Faustmann pulled out a 6-4, 6-4 win for the Irish at second singles over Mary Williams, and at fifth singles, Lisa Tholen bounced back from a set down to defeat Camille Baldridge 6-7, 6-1, 6-1.

The Illini tied up the match after singles, with Kristen Jones beating Katie Clark 6-1, 6-1. It was Clark's first match in a year after recovering from a back injury. "Katie's been playing real well in practice," said Louderback. "but she hadn't played a match in about a year. We'll be using her, Ann Brashaw, and Eniko Bende a lot in singles this season, and she'll be a big plus for us."

With the score tied at 3-3, the match hinged on the doubles contests. At second doubles, Brashaw and Bende put on a doubles clinic, pounding Baldridge and Medya 6-2, 6-0 to give the Irish a 4-3 lead.

"Needing only one win out of two matches, the remaining Irish doubles teams lost extremely close matches, both in the third set. At first doubles, Faustmann and Tholen jumped out to a 6-1 lead, but could not close out the second set at 6-4-3 in the final set, the Irish tandem could not convert, as the Illini pair whipped off three straight games to take the set and win the match.

The Irish 10-11 will be in action this weekend, with three matches in two days. Notre Dame hosts Kansas State on Saturday, and then Drake and Miami (Ohio) on Sunday. Also, Melissa Harris either way.

The Irish showed why their are ranked tenth in the nation, opening the tournament by embarrassing Colorado 6-1. Dave Dilucia, ranked second in the country, started the Irish onslaught by beating Mark LeClair 6-3, 7-5. Five other Irish victories followed, the most impressive coming from Andy Zurcher who beat the Buffaloes' Jasper Witt. Witt was ranked 24th in the nation entering the matchup, nineteen spots ahead of Zurcher.

In Saturday's match with Michigan St. coach Bob Bayless decided to rest Dilucia and Zurcher for Sunday's matchup against Texas, choosing to give Chris Wojtalik and Tommy North an opportunity to perform against the Spartans.

"We are a very deep team," said Bayliss. "We have players like North and Wojtalik who would be playing every match for other teams. It gives me the option to rest players when necessary."

North and Wojtalik didn't disappoint. They tallied victories, as did the rest of the Irish in the 6-0 victory. In the singles competition, no Irish player lost more than four games in a set, and Chuck Coleman lost only one game one way to easily 6-1, 6-0 win.

Although the wins over Colorado and Michigan St. were significant ones a win over perennial ranked Texas would be a monumental achievement for an Irish team new to the rankings.

The Irish put to rest any doubts that they can play with the nation's best, dominating the Longhorns 8-1. The usual names filled the Notre Dame win column. Dilucia, Forsyth and Zurcher swept to easy, straight set victories, and Coleman continued his sterling play beating Ernesto Ponce 6-0, 6-0. The only setback that the Irish suffered was in the third singles where North and Wojtalik were bested by Clyde Thompson and Mark Taylor 6-3, 6-2.

Bayliss remarked on the significance of the win, but admitted being surprised by the wide margin of victory.

"It is really good for Notre Dame tennis to bring a team like Texas here and beat them as soundly as we did," said Bayliss. "I was very surprised by the decisiveness of the score. Texas will be heard from again, I expect them to be a top-twenty team by the end of the season."

Bayliss also saw the weekend as a success, due to the emergence of Chuck Coleman as a top player for the Irish. In his last four matches Coleman has lost only six games dating back to Notre Dame's opening meeting with Minnesota.

"The guy who has been unbelievable is Coleman," said Bayliss. "We have a very pleasant problem as sending a message to me that he is ready to move up in singles play."

Chuck Coleman, shown here in a match last fall, is turning heads with his play at the Prince Classic this weekend.

Irish fencers finish weekend with perfect record

The Notre Dame track teams opened up the indoor season on Saturday at the Meyo Invitational at Loftus Center. Members of both the men's and the women's teams performed well in the first meet. Notre Dame track head coach Joe Plano was pleased with the results. "There were a lot of very good performances," said Plano. "And to get them the first race out is terrific."

"We really did not know what to expect out there," said men's track coach captain Brian Peppard. "It was a type of test to see how things are going." The top three teams in the conference and also they mark the first time all season that they have put together two consecutive victories. It looked like it would be another long day for the Irish in the early going. Loyola jumped out to a 9-3 lead, but the Irish went on a 19-4 run to take an eight point lead midway through the first half and they never looked back. Hayesburt and Marciniak came off the bench to lead Notre Dame to six of eight points, respectively. Marciniak showed some of the moves that made him the nation's prize recruit last season, including a jump around pass for the highlight films that was nullified by a charging foul and an offensive threat for the Irish was made by Loyola's main inside threat. Scheinert was well below her average with only 15 points. After trading baskets with the Irish for the first ten minutes of the second half, the Irish went on an offensive surge, increasing their lead to 20 points. The lead was never less than 10 points the rest of the way, but the team was upset with their overall consistency. "We did a lot of good things, but we also had some lapses," Washington noted. "We tend to play in spurts and now we're trying to get to the point where we're playing consistently throughout." The Irish have much time to improve that consistency, however, with a trip to Cincinnati to face conference leader Xavier on the slate for Thursday night.

OSU dominates ND wrestlers

By JIM VOLG
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame wrestling team (3-3) endured a tough 32-9 loss to tenth-ranked Ohio State (10-3) on Saturday.

While virtually dominated throughout, the Irish did show some bright spots. The crowd went home on an uplifting note following the scoring bouts that included a sixth-ranked heavyweight senior Chuck Weathersby. Weathersby off-rushed seventh-ranked Ray Mason (26-6), by a 4-2 decision.

"It was a case where Weaver started initiating him a bit," said Coach Dennis Cooper. "Weaver's corps and Mason's team are cut from the same cloth.

"Every time the guy got out of his seat, Chuck picked him up and put him in the mat, and that took a lot out of him. Chuck's really starting to come into his own."

At 126, Irish star Marcus Gowens (17-4), as predicted, dominated OSU's Mike Doll (1-4) with four takedowns in the first period. Then Gowens quickly pinned Doll at 2:12 in the second, good for six team points. It was Gowens' fifth pin on the season, tying him for the team lead with the 167-pound Todd Tomazic.

"Gowens is one of our few seniors," said McCann. "He's wrestled at this level many times, unlike a lot of our younger guys. He just went out there and got the job done."

In the most anticipated match of the evening, J.J. McGrew (5-4) faced off against OSU's Kevin Randleman at 177. Just a sophomore, Randleman boasted a third-place national ranking, an undefeated record (25-0-1), and a Charles Atlas physique. "Randleman is a physical specimen," admired McCann.

But McGrew, fresh off recovering from an injury, refused to let his opponent intimidate him. First, he brought the crowd to a frenzy by driving Randleman 20 feet across the mat, only to see the Buckeye cleverly escape the takedown.

Then before the second period, Randleman lost his cool. Considering McGrew's constant headlocks disrespectful to a 260 pounder, Randleman let the crowd know his displeasure, saying "If he hits me like that...I'm gonna bag him!"

The Irish started off the match in a hole, forfeiting at 118. Starter Chris Jenson, lost McGrew, still recovering from an injury, refused to let his opponent intimidate him. First, he brought the crowd to a frenzy by driving Randleman 20 feet across the mat, only to see the Buckeye cleverly escape the takedown.

ND squad sweeps AFROTC hoops tournament

By GEORGE DOHRMANN

Twenty-seven mens' and four womens' teams from all over the country competed in the sixth annual AFROTC basketball tournament this weekend at the University of Notre Dame.

The vast number of teams couldn't find a way to beat the Irish, as the Notre Dame mens' Navy team captured the mens' title and the Notre Dame Tri-Military team won the womens' competition.

In the mens' final, Notre Dame's Navy and Air Force teams met after weathering through a field which included teams from Tennessee, South Dakota, Wisconsin, and Minnesota.

The Irish overcame the lead the game finally.

DURHAM—Notre Dame's men's basketball team faced a loaded arsenal in the form of the Duke Blue Devils Saturday afternoon.

All-American Christian Laettner fired the first shot and missed on few occasions thereafter to lead the top-ranked Blue Devils in a 101-71 blowout of the Irish.

Duke's offensiveness, combined with chest-to-chest defense, sent the Irish home with their fourth loss in four tries at Cameron Indoor Stadium.

"I really like the way our kids made the extra pass and played hard defensively," said Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski, who has coached the Blue Devils to four consecutive Final Four appearances, highlighted by last year's NCAA title. "We have more depth than Notre Dame and we're a more experienced team. There's nothing negative to say about our effort today."

Little went wrong for Duke (16-0), which recorded its 400th win at Cameron and showed why it's been ranked as the number one for 11 straight weeks.

With Irish senior center Keith Louder out for 2-6 weeks with a broken elbow, Duke exploited the inexperience of starter Jon Ross. Laettner finished with 29 points on 11-of-14 shooting from the field.

"With them losing Louder and not having much recovery time, I knew that hurt them," said Krzyzewski. Duke's all-time winningest coach. "Laettner was terrific and we looked to get him the ball."

The Irish stayed with Duke in the early going.

Down 9-2, Notre Dame came within three points of the Blue Devils, 19-16, with just over 13.00 left in the first half.

Ferris State found success mainly on the transition, with most points coming from shots in the lane.

Then Duke denied the open looks, shots which spelled trouble for the Irish. The Blue Devils also began to control the lane on the offensive end, continuously putting up second and third shots.

"They physically manhandled us in the first half," said Notre Dame coach John MacLeod. "I was really impressed. They move the ball well, give it up easily and are really tuned into the team concept."

Notre Dame (7-9) had several chances thwarted on some unfortunate fouls, including an intentional foul by Jon Ross. Antonio Lang hit both shots and then a field goal to put Duke ahead 34-18 with 8:30 left in the half. Lang's four-point play occurred during Duke's 32-12 run that ended the half at 51-28.

"I thought their guy [Lang] grabbed our guy first, but they said our guy [Ross] grabbed their guy first," said MacLeod.

Duke picked up in the second half where it had left off. The Irish held Duke to a 49-42 advantage, but both teams played tight with the second half with reserves. Freshman Malik Russell provided the Irish with seven second-half points.

Ferris State completes hockey sweep with late rally

Buoyed by two periods of scored goals, the Irish (7-12-6) came from behind to beat the Notre Dame hockey team 5-3 Saturday night.

The same pounding Bulldog defense that the Irish (10-13-1)打包ed Friday night against the Irish, the Bulldogs lost 3-2 to Notre Dame in 49 games.

But Saturday, the Irish struck early and often, Mike Curry, Curtis Janicke and Troy Casey all notched first-period goals, giving Notre Dame a 3-1 lead into the second period.

Janicke recorded an assist on Casey's goal, giving the junior center 100 points in his career. He is just the 34th player in Notre Dame history to accumulate that feat.

That second period, however, proved difficult for the Irish, who were whistled for eight penalties in 20 minutes. Ferris State, when it was not serving its six penalties, capitalized on Notre Dame let-downs to draw within 3-2 after the second period.

"We needed to be under control," said Irish coach Rich Bouchard. "In the first period, we played really well and executed well. But we shot ourselves in the foot in the second period. This is one of the teams that we wanted to do well against, and a team we could have beaten."

"Fatigue took its toll on us, and their physical play took us out of our game. Ferris State came to play a lot better in that second period, but eight penalties in 20 minutes wasn't very clever on our part. We were on the ropes."

After two minutes of three-on-three skating, the Irish went on the attack at full strength. Yet Bulldog goalkeeper Pat Maczell deftly deflected Notre Dame's shots, and Ferris State found itself with a three-on-two break away.

Irish goalie Greg Lourder dove for a loose puck in from of the net, but was unable to control the shot. Two Bulldog players and three Notre Dame defenders piled onto Lourder, with Janicke whistled for delay of game as the knot of skaters was being untangled.

The Ferris State power play unit fired a barrage of shots at Lourder, with defenseman John Gruden finding the net at the 17:57 mark.

Notre Dame escaped the second period without further damage, but found itself on the ropes again in the final period.

After killing two Irish power plays, Bulldog wing Aaron Asp shot Notre Dame from the frying pan and into the fire with a game-tying shorthanded goal 10 minutes into the period.

Just two minutes later, Ferris State took the lead for good on a seemingly harmless shot.

Duke's Christian Laettner puts another one over the Irish as the Blue Devils coast to victory on Laettner's 29 points.

Duke's 6th man MVP material

DURHAM—There is no place like home and, no one knows it better than the Duke Blue Devils.

Cameron Indoor Stadium has long been a death trap for any college basketball team that dares to enter its doors, as Notre Dame discovered Saturday afternoon.

The Irish entered the list of Cameron's victims, becoming Duke's 500th Cameron victim after a game-long abuse session administered by the Blue Devils.

Over 9,000 Blue Devils.

Duke's fans, especially its student-fans, painted blue and wearing basketballs as hats, have become legendary among college basketball followers ever elsewhere. With arcanse references to opposing coaches' past girlfriends and referees' past boyfriends, at a decibel level rivaling any jet engine's, Duke's students consistently surprise those who pay attention to their screaming, whining and meaning.

Against Notre Dame, the student-fans were characteristically manic. After exciting plays by the Irish, the Duke students reminded them of the score, chanting, "It just doesn't matter," and followed a missed alley-op with the ridiculous assertion that "LaPhonso (Ellis) can't dunk."

Compact and close to the floor, the student section was boisterous and organized, and most screaming brought senses to DUKIES/ page 15
