Students provide tax assistance

BY MOLLIE MUDD

Over 60 Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students will work with CPA volunteers from South Bend, Mishawaka and Plymouth, Ind., as well as members of ND and SMC faculty, Milani said. With the large number of volunteers and the convenience of ten centers, he said that "Notre Dame has the largest program in the area."

Last year, more than 1,900 tax returns were filed by the volunteers.

"I explained that "Notre Dame has good coverage of the city." Most city-wide tax programs have only one inconvenient center," he said. "We actually go into the low-income neighborhoods so the people can get to us easily," Milani said. There is also an expansion of CPA coverage this year with three centers, instead of the previous see TAXES / page 4

Plane crashes into Indiana motel, restaurant killing 16

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) - A military transport plane plunged nose-first into the ground Wednesday and crashed into a motel and restaurant, spewing blazing fuel and killing at least 16 people, authorities and witnesses said.

"It looked like Pearl Harbor," said Mark Whitehead, who lives in to the rear of the JoJo's. "It was the back of the JoJo's," said Whitehead. "We were yelling for her, yelling back, 'Yeah, yeah. I'm here!'" He said the woman was knocked down, tried to get up and fell, and said, "We were yelling for her, yelling back, 'Yeah, yeah. I'm here!'" He said the woman was knocked down, tried to get up and fell, and said, "We were yelling for her, yelling back, 'Yeah, yeah. I'm here!'" He said the woman was knocked down, tried to get up and fell, and said, "We were yelling for her, yelling back, 'Yeah, yeah. I'm here!'

Fifteen to 20 people were in the building when the plane crashed, he said.

A cook, Michael Kelley, 26, of Evansville said he was in the rear of the building when the plane crashed. "There was a girl in the back. We were yelling for her. 'Louie! Yum-Yum!' And she said, "There was a girl in the back. We were yelling for her. 'Louie! Yum-Yum!' And she didn't answer, you know. So we yelled back, 'Yeah, yeah, I'm here! But we couldn't get to her," he said, weeping.

According to the report, "Research has presented teaching as the top priority of administrators and faculty. Undergraduate education at Notre Dame is suffering as a result." Increasing class size, decreasing course availability and limited student-faculty interaction all illustrate the far-reaching effects of this transition, the report stated.

Karen Storh, the committee chairperson, focused her presentation officially on problems of the College of Arts and Letters. She said that "if there is a problem, it is in the College of Arts and Letters, all students in the university feel them," she said. "I illustrated the pressures put on the college: nine out of thirteen university requirements are arts and letters, placing a high demand on faculty. The course load on faculty, however, has been reduced from three to two courses per semester, she said. "As a result, students both inside and outside the college have much difficulty getting into the courses they need to graduate. At the 200-level of philosophy, for example, an average of fifty-nine students per section were shut out, she said. Those students who do not get shut out see REPORT / page 4

Students address quality of teaching

Members of student government presented their report on the status of undergraduate education at a research university to the faculty and student affairs committees of the Board of Trustees yesterday.

The report, titled "Back to Basics: Undergraduate Education at a National Catholic Research University," addresses the issue of how the quality of undergraduate education is affected as Notre Dame progresses into a national research university.

The student committee said it used statistics and comments from faculty and student surveys as a basis for their claim that undergraduate education is no longer a primary focus at Notre Dame. According to the report, "Research has replaced teaching as the top priority of administrators and faculty. Undergraduate education at Notre Dame is suffering as a result." Increasing class size, decreasing course availability and limited student-faculty interaction all illustrate the far-reaching effects of this transition, the report stated.

for Evansville Regional Airport, about a mile from the restaurant and motel, said the plane's crew was using the airport to practice landings.

"They were doing exercises known as touch-and-go, where they touch down and fly out immediately," said Alom. "They did two touch-and-go. And they asked permission for a low approach and were taking off when they fell into the ... hotel."

"It dropped out of the air and into the Drury Inn's pool, and a wing came off and careened into the back of the JoJo's," said Whitehead.

Fred Pratt of Bozeman, Mont., said he saw the plane drop vertically, "then all of a sudden there was this humongous fireball and it went down behind the building."

JoJo's manager Dennis Serio said the plane "came through the window. I got up and every- one was running toward the door. Walls were falling in, steel was all over the place. One cook was knocked down, tried to get up and fell, and said, 'I'm just going to dish washer and just couldn't.'"

One about-fourth of the restaurant was destroyed by the impact. The four-story motel was damaged mainly by fire. Only part of the plane's charred tail was recognizable.

The 24-hour restaurant and the plane's crash site are about 41 miles in this city of 125,000 at the southern tip of Indiana.

The C-130 Hercules is a workhorse for the military, a medium-range craft that carries mainly cargo or people on a variety of missions. The four-engine plane normally has a wingspan of 132 feet and is 97 feet long.
Reaping the benefits of a little math,

After suffering the humiliations of making a "D" in Algebra II in high school, I said hell would freeze over before I agonize over matrix systems again.

Hell froze over. Today I took the first finite math test of the semester. If you think you don’t have a math test coming, you are wrong. I have discovered the value of mathematics and am not ashamed to say that using my left brain has changed my life.

Three days ago I was sitting in my Writing for Publications class in the security building. I wrote the date at the top of my pages—1-29-92—like I do in all my classes. Then I reduced it to 1-2-96.

Last semester I forgot to record a $300 withdrawal from my savings account. (Oops!) imagine my surprise when I got a bank statement that sprung the news on me after I had gone shopping singing "I’m in the money." This semester I no longer wait 18 entries in my checkbook before dropping down the total. And I’m not afraid anymore of using basic mathematical operations such as, uh, subtraction.

Linear graphs run through my mind as I walk back to my room after class. Imagine, if you will, the squares on the sidewalks that run in front of McCandless and on the LeMans side of the dining hall are points on the "x" and "y" lines. Now tell me you haven’t wondered what the slope of the sidewalk is between McCandless and the library.

At least in the past week there was a special on cosmetics at the Lancome counter. I really get into these samples, but this time I had to purchase $17.50 of make-up to get the bonus. The Passionate Pink lipstick I want is only $16, so I’d have to buy two things. Very sneaky of Lancome. Before finite, I probably wondered what the slope of the sidewalk is.

Cure. For instance, I still jump in on the end of conversations and draw some unrelated conclusion. I won’t know the "x" of who, the "y" of everyone’s relationship to each other, or the "Z" of why we’re discussing them. Sometimes I feel like a nasty fraction that, no matter how many times it is explained, just can’t be reduced to 1-2-996.

Sometimes I feel like a nasty fraction that, no matter how many times it is explained, just can’t be reduced to 1-2-996.

I wrote the date at the top of my paper—2-4-92. As you will, the squares on the sidewalks that run in front of McCandless and on the LeMans side of the dining hall are points on the "x" and "y" lines. Now tell me you haven’t wondered what the slope of the sidewalk is.

Today I took the first finite write-in. If you see me after you’ve read this column, you will know I survived. While I want to do well grade-wise, I have discovered the value of mathematics and am not ashamed to say that using my left brain has changed my life.

Chemistry Professor Kohn receives honor

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—James Kohn, assistant chair and professor of chemical engineering at ND, has been named a Fellow of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. Fellow status recognizes his outstanding contributions as an educator and researcher in high pressure thermodynamics, and is one of the highest honors bestowed on a chemical engineer. A Notre Dame graduate and faculty member for 35 years, Kohn has consulted and taught special courses for several organizations, including the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and Standard Oil of Indiana.

Quayle brings medical aid to Baltics

TALLINN, Estonia—Vice President Dan Quayle launched a trip to the Baltic states today with a gift of emergency medical supplies for the Estonian government. Greeted at Tallinn airport by Health Minister Andres Ellumaa, Quayle said the United States had allocated $18 million in aid to Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania in the 1992 budget. Quayle’s two-day visit is the highest-ranking U.S. mission to the three Baltic states since they achieved independence from the Soviet Union in September. Red Cross trucks were unloded to unload 50,000 tons of medical supplies from a U.S. military C-141 supply plane as Quayle’s Air Force 2 taxied up. Quayle said the United States also would supply Estonia with 100,000 tons of feed grain. Quayle’s visit comes as the Baltic states wrestle with economic problems related to the collapse of trade relations with the former Soviet Union.

Cuomo supporters wage write-in CONCORD, N.H.—It happened 28 years ago when, in a write-in effort propelled Republican Henry Cabot Lodge to a stunning victory in New Hampshire’s first-in-the-nation presidential primary. Now, supporters of Mario Cuomo are staging a write-in campaign for the New York governor in hopes of seeing history repeated in the Feb. 18 primary. Polls show considerable support for Cuomo, even though he is not running. One survey had him in a virtual tie with former Sen. Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts and Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas at about 20 percent. But few voters say they plan to pencil in Cuomo and most analysts say that, for that matter, Cuomo himself was skeptical Thursday when asked...

Video will highlight seniors’ memories

By BECKY BARNES

Notre Dame’s senior class is putting together its first ever class video of highlights from the past four years, including Junior Parents’ Weekend footage, films from individual dorms and commencement moments, according to video committee member Katie Pamenter.

Special events such as SYVs, athletics, An Tostal and dorm sponsored projects such as the Keenan Revue and Fisher Regatta, will be part of this video to be shown at the graduation dance May 15, said Pamenter.

Since the committee also wants to include pieces of individual dorm life, they will be filming for a half an hour in each dorm Saturday, Feb. 7 and Sunday, Feb. 8, said Pamenter. While they will be filming all seniors together first, the committee said they plan to continue on to individual rooms.

The idea for the class video originated while working on last year’s JPW slide show, according to Pamenter. Senior Class President Jennifer Switzer and Secretary Jill Beth Hayes are also involved in the project.

The video will be taken from versions of the video, including the individual dorm clips, senior week and commencement to be completed by early summer. Orders for the video will be taken during commencement.

ND students sent letters from inmates

By ANDY RUNKLE
News Writer

Two female Notre Dame students have received "penpal-type" letters from prison inmates, according to Chuck Hurley, assistant director of security.

"In the letters, the inmates indicate that they are just looking for someone to correspond with, on a penal level," Hurley said. There was nothing obscene or threatening about the letters, according to Hurley.

One letter was received from an inmate in the Indiana State Penitentiary in Michigan City, Ind. The other letter came from an inmate in a New Jersey prison.

"We have no idea how they (inmates) got student addresses," Hurley commented. Hurley said he plans to contact the Michigan City prison to determine how the inmates got student addresses.

The letter from the Indiana State Penitentiary was clearly marked as being from a prison. It is obvious from the exterior of the envelope that the sender is an inmate. The letter received from New Jersey did not indicate that it was from an inmate.

"There is a place on the envelope (from the Indiana prison) to mark ‘return to sender’ if future letters are received," Hurley said. Students should refuse to receive this mail if they do not desire to correspond. "This is just a warning that if students don’t wish to correspond with the inmates, they should return the letter to the prison," Hurley said.

The student volunteers form two "SWAT" teams, that is, Students Working At Taxation. Milani explained that "the first group is responsible for the undergraduate teaching faculty. They work to the real world." The students efforts are also moving in the direction that Monk has been emphasizing: students in contact with South Bend residents in a very realistic setting," Milani said.

Student volunteers receive academic credit for their efforts, though "their work is worth a lot more than that one credit," Milani said. "The students really climb into someone's life in a very real way."

Travel to exotic lands

They learn their income, marital status, children and problems.

Participants are required to write a reflection paper at the conclusion of the program, and Milani said that "almost every paper begins with 'I never realized what it was like to live on $10,000 a year.'" The "volunteers learn that the poor are a working poor," and that the students get "a different look on what it means to be low income," Milani added.

The Tax Assistance Program begins on Feb. 8 and will continue through April 15 (with the exception of spring break, March 15-26). The program will be set up in the CSC's Coffeehouse on Wednesdays from 2:30 to 5 p.m. to help Notre Dame students and faculty with their questions and returns.

Kitty Cat case suggests civil rights endangered

By NICOLE MCGRATH
News Writer

While the United States prides itself on maintaining equal rights for all citizens, current trends have pointed towards a dominant government clipping away at such rights, said South Bend attorney, Charlie Asher in a lecture at Saint Mary's last night.

Facing a struggling economy, increasing violence and other domestic difficulties, the American public has allowed the government to gain more influence over issues that were once considered private matters, according to Asher.

"I sense a deterioration in our collective commitment to leave others alone", he said. Asher, who initially defended Indiana's Kitty Cat lounge's right to provide entertainment, said he sees this case as an example of this disturbing trend.

The case gained national attention in 1991 when the Kitty Cat lounge defended its right to have nude dancers. According to Asher, the lounge was charged with public indecency. He says the case was defended on two premises: the nude dancers were a form of entertainment which should enjoy first amendment protection and nudity alone should not be enough to remove this type of entertainment.

When Asher defended the case in the court of appeals, he won the case. The case was appealed again. In January 1991, the Supreme Court heard the case in the court of appeals, he won the case. The majority of judges agreed with the initial defense but said Indiana could prohibit "the last bit of nudity." Suggestions of genitalia were eliminated as an observation point for undergraduate child psychology class.

The Board of Trustees is meeting today in its entirety to discuss this matter and the possible addition of another day care center.

He said that the American public has become less tolerant of people whose choices do not reflect the majority's attitude.

"Government should not be in the business of conducting decency," said Asher. The cure for bad speech is more free speech, he said. "I see more private agendas wanting the government to step in more on their behalf."

Asher says that the test for the Kitty Cat lounge is allowing free speech to be too offensive to some interest groups.

Free speech is only one area that the government seems to be exercising more control over. Asher said. According to him, the lounge case reflects only of many cases which have been reviewed by a more conservative court than in the past.

If the United States allows the government to gain more control over these areas, such as health care or abortion, there is a risk that the end could lead to totalitarianism, here, Asher said.

The United States is 3.8 trillion dollars in debt and the government is far from balancing the budget, according to Asher. With the government having a significant amount of control over businesses, Asher believes that pure economics might be the way back to balance.

"People who have not been born yet are going to be paying the price and we have been paying", said Asher.

"These cases are in a period of searching for a new national identity, according to Asher. "We do not have Russia to define us anymore...the new one is Japan-bashing.", said Asher. But in this search, we are not going to prevent problems like prostitution or loss of family values by censorship, he believes.

This lecture, titled "The Kitty Cat Lounge Case," was presented by the Saint Mary's Political Science Club at Saint Mary's Hagar Center.

Addressing the questions of how literature should be taught in America's universities today and which works should be chosen, Eva Brann, Dean of Studies at St. John's College, Annapolis, spoke to Notre Dame students yesterday in a lecture titled, "For the Canon of Western Tradition." Drawing from her literary knowledge and 35 years of teaching experience, she said students should be allowed to explore literature, free from teachers' preconceptions. Even supplying students with an author's biography is "intellectually debilitating," she said.

She explained, "In young readers especially, suspicion should surely be allowed to arise, but it should not be pre­induced."

Confident in students' inter­pretable abilities, Brann recom­mended "a minimum hypoth­esis; it gives the teacher least control over the student's un­derstanding and to the student the greatest responsibility."

Stressing the teacher's equality with the students, Brann defined the teacher's role as that of a "tutor," "protector," and not a "professor.

Brahn suggested an approach "with the minimum of pomp and circumstance, directly, im­mediately, the sooner the bet­ter.

Books that Brann considers worthy to be taught in America's universities are those of the "canon," which she de­fined as "a list of books held in reverence, even revered, revered by a stable community of readers.

Brahn claimed, "As in individu­als, so in tradition, the passage of time is needed to con­firm excellence.

Brann specifically addressed gender and race in literature. Concerning the role of gender in literature, she said, "Most of the canon is indeed written by men, many are about men, but few are written for men."

She excused some author's incorrect opinions about women's roles as unimportant to their theses.

Emphasizing the world is "universally westernized" and that "in this univer­salist tradition that there arises a canon," she claimed that the world is "universally westernized" and the most un­davergeous way of reading."

Defending her Western em­phasis, she claimed that the world is "universally western­ized" and that "in this univer­salist tradition that there arises a canon," she claimed that the world is "universally westernized" and the most un­davergeous way of reading."

Scholastic celebrates 125th year of operation

By DANA ANDERSON
News Writer

Former editors and writers of Scholastic magazine will gather today through Sunday to celebrate the magazine’s 125th year of publication with panel discussions, tours and social gatherings.

Nearly 100 alumni are expected to return to campus for this celebration, according to Frank Lipo, one of the organizers of the event. A variety of careers will be represented, including business people, artists, an Ohio Supreme Court justice, a South American archbishop and a parole agent, Lipo said.

"As was expected, many respondents pursued careers as journalists after graduation," Lipo added. Many even credited Scholastic for its role in their careers.

Besides spending time sharing their memories, the group will also participate in two panel discussions and a lecture on Saturday. The first discussion, titled "The Press and the Presidency," will start at 9 a.m. in The Center for Continuing Education (CCE).

Noted members of the panel include Robert Schmuhl, acting chair of American studies at Notre Dame, Thomas Begat, a '66 ND graduate and producer of ABC's Nightline television program, and John Tully, an editor of the Chicago Tribune, who is also a '66 ND alumnus.

Panelists for the second discussion, "Student Journalism at Notre Dame," starting at 10:30 a.m. in the CCE, include the current editors of both The Observer and Scholastic magazine, representatives from various student organizations and Jack Powers, a '52 ND grad and former editor of the South Bend Tribune.

"It should be really interesting to take part in the student journalism discussion, especially to see how the relationship between the student press and the administration has changed over the years," said Scholastic Editor Ian Mitchell, who will be a member of one of the panels.

Mathew Storin, a '64 graduate and executive editor of the New York Daily News, will lecture on the "American Media in the Coming Decade" Saturday at 4 p.m. in the CCE. The lecture and discussions will be open to members of the Notre Dame community.

Powers will also serve as master of ceremonies at a Saturday evening dinner at which University President Father Edward Malloy will speak to the alumni. Before departing from campus, alumni will celebrate Mass at 9:30 a.m. in the Stanford-Korean chapel presided by Father David Schlaver, editor and publisher of the Ave Maria Press.

The Scholastic was initially founded at Notre Dame on Sept. 7, 1867, when Father Gillespie, editor of the Ave Maria at the time, sent it out as an eight-page bulletin of campus activities tucked onto the Ave Maria, then sent to parents of students. Today, it has grown to a weekly 28-page magazine that is produced by students on campus.

In addition to celebrating their anniversary with a Scholastic reunion, the staff has pulled old articles from past years and featured them in this year's magazines as a way of presenting ND history to their readers. This week's edition is devoted to the anniversary, with a variety of articles about Scholastic's 125 years of history.

"After going through back issues, it should be fun to actually meet some of the people behind the bylines at the reunion," Mitchell said.

Take a chance, vote Smith/Goodwin

Students at Notre Dame have slim pickings this year for the positions of Student Body President and Vice President. Essentially there are four choices: the odd couple, the upright bureaucrats, the establishment or the outsiders.

Regarding the ticket of Rich Delehan and Joe Wilson, we believe Wilson appeared committed, convincing and sincere at the debate Wednesday. Delehan, however, has exhibited a public abrasiveness and overt displays of temper—both of which are hard to overlook. We doubt that this ticket will be able to work together effectively and believe Delehan’s faults would overshadow Wilson’s strengths.

The ticket of David Certo and Matt Bomberger was stiff and uninspiring—merely presenting their platform of “real promises, real results” at the debate. For all of their eloquent speech, they gave the student body nothing to remember except their empty rhetoric and slogans.

Greg Rutrus and Molly O’Neill are experienced and knowledgeable in the workings of student government and raised the standard campaign issues. While they appear to be strong favorites based on their experience, they fail to offer anything different from candidates elected in previous years.

Among these mediocre tickets, George Smith and Michael Goodwin proved they are not a joke with their desire for change and willingness to challenge the status quo. While they may be relatively unknown and some may doubt their sincerity, Smith and Goodwin are a refreshing break from the repetitive droning of the student government types.

Unlike the other candidates, Smith and Goodwin didn’t offer the usual listing of proposals they would enact if elected. Instead of promising everything and delivering nothing, Smith and Goodwin offer a new attitude—the possibility of a student government not afraid to tackle controversial campus issues like homosexuality, minority concerns and co-educational housing.

If you want the same student government you’ve had for years, we suggest you vote for Rutrus and O’Neill—at least you’ll know what you’ll be getting. But change is needed in Notre Dame’s student government and the ticket of George Smith and Michael Goodwin just might be the answer. Remember: you take a risk and vote for the outsiders. You have nothing to lose.

Voting

The election for student body president and vice president will take place on February 10. If no ticket receives a majority in the initial balloting, a runoff election will be held on February 12.

All on-campus students can vote in their residence halls between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on February 12 and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Off-campus voting will take place in LaFortune Student Center, the Hesburgh Memorial Library and both dining halls.

Dear Readers:

We’ve received your letters for a day to focus on the upcoming student body presidential elections. Here you will find a profile of each candidate and a statement for the respective tickets. Also, you’ll see the endorsement of The Observer’s Editorial Board for president and vice president appearing to the left. Here’s the menu. Choose a dish. Just remember you’ll be digesting it for a year.

Smith/Goodwin

Statement

“A little rebellion now and then is a good thing” - Thomas Jefferson

We’re running on the premise that the ticket Smith/Goodwin has the right to the best possible education that Notre Dame can provide, both in and out of the classroom. In the past, we’ve been that saving grace. It’s because of our experience that we know the problems of a student government are not of the student body, but of the administration.

We’ll address this right by pushing for increased student input in administrative decisions, and by increasing student understanding of campus and global problems such as sexism, racism, homophobia, the environment, etc.

In the next five years, we’ll work for increased student participation in class rooms, fraternities, sororities and Greek organizations. We’re pushing for increased student participation in administrative meetings.

The administration is not going to sit back and watch the student government take the lead. We’re going to make sure that the student government does the lead and let the administration react.

Additionally, we believe the Honor Code and Alcohol Policy should be revised or abandoned. Most students do not agree with the Honor Code’s requirement to turn in fellow students who violate the Honor Code. We believe that the Honor Code and Alcohol Policy should be revised or abandoned.

Moreover, we believe that the Honor Code and Alcohol Policy should be revised or abandoned. Most students do not agree with the Honor Code’s requirement to turn in fellow students who violate the Honor Code.

Furthermore, the University does not adequately educate students and faculty about the House Code. We are pushing for increased student participation in the House Code. We are pushing for increased student participation in the House Code.

The Alcohol Policy does not promote responsible drinking. Essentially, the policy brands drinking as something to be done only when hidden from the public eye. Arbitrary enforcement further confuses the students.

Delevan/Wilson

Statement

We, Rich Delevan and Joe Wilson, want to open this with a question. Why is Student Government so useless to most people? Some people say it’s the system, others say the people. Both things lie in other hands. Some people think it’s the system—the power of the student government, and others say we are unwilling to address important issues.

The issues are out there. People are worried about safety, about campus crime, about what place they have in a “research university.” We have specific proposals to deal with these issues—to form neighborhood watch programs with campus students and the South Bend Police, to increase the availability of SafeWalk, to make the parking lots more secure, and to the university to commit to improving the amount of classes that students have with professors in the form of independent research or seminar classes—bringing the benefits of its commitment to a “research” university to every undergraduate.

Most importantly, the issues which people find controversial must be addressed, not backed away from as so too often happens. That is the point of electing student leaders in the first place.

The mechanics are there. Student government has the resources, most importantly the dollars, to make itself useful to everyone.

Weekend Wheels is a good example of a program, run by students, which is providing a valuable service for the money that we pay for it. It’s an example of a Student Activity Fee. The Student Senate and the Academic Council has the power to move Student Affairs and force them to address this issue. But it isn’t used for critical issues such as recommending changes to the Local Ordinance.

Most importantly, the Student Government is not only the legitimate voice of the student body, but is the best testament to a “research university.” We have received, at the beginning of the year, information on watch groups. We will ask tough questions of the administration.

Three Major Goals

1) Safety: Increased funding and support for safe transports system, such as Weekend Wheels, neighborhood watch groups, pressure the University to realize date rape as the serious crime that it is, create a program of self defense seminars.

2) Undergraduate education concerns: We will take an active role in ensuring a commitment to undergraduate education.

3) Make Student Government relevant: Becoming a full partner in the constructive dialogue and debate concerning issues important to the student body, bring together students and faculty members, and by involving all school institutions to debate issues important to all college campuses.

Butrus/O'Neil

Statement

The first question people have asked us is "What makes Butrus/O'Neil different? What makes you better?" In answering this question, we ask you to do two things: First, examine what we have accomplished, and second, examine what we propose.

We have more experience working not only in Student Government, but also in dealing with the many aspects of university administration. We have been elected by our peers to hall and class offices, we have been appointed to serve on university committees, and among leaders, we have been chosen for leadership positions. So what do we propose? First, we have developed a sound specific plan to deal with off-campus crime in the five corners area. By offering private security for the sole purpose of student protection, we offer a practical solution which is both feasible and inexpen-

Three Major Goals

1) Student life: A system to allow students to pay for services with a "campus card" rather than with cash.

2) Academics: We will call on the administration to accept our plan of extending grading options to all final exams. Simply ending semester grades, we believe, will make finals week a much more manageable time for all students.

3) Crime: We believe the administration should support our proposal for a coordinated effort between Student Government and other student bodies to provide security on weekend.

"Can't take it personally. "You continue to plot your own true.""

A veteran session player, Wingfield built his studio work has included sessions with Son Seals, Luther Allison, Albert "Twist and the Mellow Fellows. "The difference between the professional musician for about 25 years, it was in '76, '77. I really "He just won't have the blues circuit," Wingfield says. "Recording a recording portfolio includes performances on U.S. and ench releases."

A flamboyant and aggressive performer, Wingfield backed blues Barst Allison for four years, through the late 1970s by the late Big Bud for some five years. "When Luther, we spent quite a bit plans the difference between American and European blues is that Europeans are frequently presented by blacks. "In Europe, I knew a kind of like a god. The plan is that we're going to enhance the beauty in Chinquapin Parish. Megan Thomas is cast as Annelle Dupuy - DeSoto, a born-again Christian whose native lends humor and warmth to the production. Clairee Belcher played by Dawn Overstreet and Quincy Boudreaux played by Carolyn Daly complete the cast. Clairee, a wealthy radio station owner and Ouier, an eccentric woman attached to her hairless dog provide the necessary comic relief. The six characters complement one another. Each dishes out her own down-to-earth thoughts on food, men and life itself. Their ability to share secrets and openly criticize one another testifies to the special relationship among them.

Co-directed by Lewis residents Kathy Hipp and Cara Schaefer, "Steel Magnolias" mixes laughter and sadness. Trudy captures this combination of emotions best by declaring, "Laughing through tears is my favorite emotion."

While mourning the death of her daughter in the final scene, M'Lynn states, "Men are supposed to be made of steel or something." In contrast, it is the women of this production who are made of steel and who share an unbreakable spirit.

Performances of "Steel Magnolias" will be held at the Library Auditorium this Friday and Saturday evening at 8:10 p.m. with a matinee performance this Sunday afternoon at 2:10 p.m. The cast were rehearsing for performances at the Women's Center on Saturday afternoon. The show is priced at $7 and $12 for Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students. Group rates are available at the LaFortune Box Office at 239-4626 or the LaFortune Student Center Information Desk at 239-8128.

Tickets may be purchased in various locations, including the Library Box Office and LaFortune Student Center Information Desk.

A and you thought the Keenan Revue was it. Watch out, Notre Dame-here comes Mr. Stanford. This Saturday night, the seventh annual Mr. Stanford contest comes to Washington Hall again, this year as ever to entertain its viewers.

Last year, the STUDS of North Bend treated their audience from every decadeable Barry Manilow impersonations to raw musical talent on the piano and guitar. You may remember Mike D'Amico's death-defying acrobatic endures on that cold winter night last February, or Freshman Bill Kemp audaciously strutting his stuff in a stentorian outfit made of tinted blue saran wrap. There was absolutely no shame for these titanic performers.

Wingfield and Davis will grace Laughlin Auditorium on Sunday at 6 p.m. Tickets are $8 and $12. The show is held at 210 Irving, the office in O'Laughlin. For more information, call 9284-4638.

This weekend the Library Auditorium will be transformed into a beauty shop, complete with champagne bottles, hairspray and blow dryers. In their first offering, the Lewis Hall Players provide a delicious slice of southern culture in their production of Robert Harling's "Steel Magnolias." Set in Louisiana's "Truvy's Beauty Shop," the play reveals the unique relationship among six women, and how each character relates to the other. Miss Truvy, played by Dawn Overstreet, is a wealth...
Is Christianity about to become politically correct?

Is Notre Dame, as a university, still a Catholic and Christian place? If it is, let us pray to God to keep it so. If it is not so, let us pray to God to make it so.

I don’t care to waste time, asking whether Notre Dame is losing its Catholic soul. For centuries, the Catholic Church has had answers that nobody wanted, because nobody knew what the questions were.

Now that we see what the problems are like, Christianity could again become fashionable. If Notre Dame has finally reached its hour of greatness, it may not be because now we have enough money to recruit scholars, but because as an American university, we can be uniquely credible and creative as a think-tank of the Church.

You have to understand that I am a rabb, rabb Catholic who believes the Church has a future. As the bridge over troubled waters. If I were gifted like G.K. Chesterton or C.S. Lewis, I would love to write an update of the case for Christianity. Maybe God, if He’s serious about making Notre Dame Number One, will send us such an apologist as His sesquicentennial gift. Could he inspire young Domers to tell the company that they are interwoven with that Christ is their hero?

The least that you can say of Him is that He was a Jew at least. At the very least. He being a Jew would have been easier for the Chosen People, and for acting as though they believed they were that privileged.

Christ went on trial for claiming to be the only-begotten Son. In His day, only the Chosen People at home with the Old Testament tradition could realize how scandalous it was for Jesus to claim kinship with the Master of the Universe. In every pogrom, all through World War II, we saw that Jews tend to have that kind of loyalty to one another. If this is true, then the Holocaust is part of Christ’s on-going Passion; how could it be otherwise? In every pogrom, all through World War II, we saw that Jews tend to have that kind of loyalty to one another.

I suspect that every time a Jew is put on trial by the anti-Semites, Christ goes on trial as their brother. If this is true, then the Holocaust is part of Christ’s on-going Passion; how could it be otherwise? In every pogrom, the sins of the fathers are visited onto the children, and Jews were punished as though they were part of the howling mob for whom Christ prayed: “Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing.”

Isaiah wrote of the Jews collectively as the Suffering Servant of Yahweh, though Christians later transferred the imagery to Christ in His passion. Has Christ not been the stumbling block which has caused both Yahweh’s servant, an unmitigated history of suffering? St. Paul indicates that the Jews will have a special place in the Kingdom. This must be because God, Who made everlasting covenants with the patriarches, and even the Semites, Christ goes on trial as their brother. If this is true, then the Holocaust is part of Christ’s on-going Passion; how could it be otherwise?

raved Stewart of Salvin (11-9).

"We just hope he wrestles the best he can, and hopefully things will fall his way."

At 138, sophomore Xavier Rivera hopes to establish himself after earning a draw in his first match of the season.

Rivera defines the term “student-athlete.” An academic scholarship winner from Anchorage, Alaska, he had a career 115-27-2 high school record. He joined the Irish grapplers as a freshman.

"Last season, he showed good promise. He had good skills and a lot of desire," said Stewart.

After taking last semester off to get his grades up to scholarship requirements, he returned to the team at an opportune time. With 118-pound starter Chris Jensen and backup Ed Jamieson both out, Rivera missed just one meet to get down to weight before in­heriting the starting job.

While the Irish may be out­matched at 118, 142, 190, they hope to trump the Orangemen at heavyweight, 177, 150 and 125.

Heavyweight Chuck Weaver (14-4) won due to forfeit in the last match at Illinois, and should also steamroll Connecticut's Andy Faustmann (1-10).

Leading the Belles this season is senior Lynn Pfeffer. Pfeffer broke school records for the javelin, long thrower for what we see in our area," said Szczeszykowski. "She's been there for us for the last four years. She does a real good job."

Pfeffer is concentrating on one goal—breaking the school javelin record set by Janet O'Neill three years ago. O'Neill recorded a toss of 116 feet, 5 inches. Pfeffer has come within two feet of that record and hopes to break it this year.

"I want to break that javelin record," she said. "I'm only two feet away. I will break it. But if I don't, I'll have fun trying."

Also returning for the Belles this season are Sharon Fisher, LaBarbera, Jackie Buckley, Cheryl Fortunak and Linehan. Fisher set the indoor record in 1500 meter (5:38.6). LaBarbera and Linehan set the outdoor 4x100 record with Pfeffer. Linehan also set the outdoor record in the 100.

As for tomorrow's meet, Pfeffer and her teammates are very excited. "It's very hard being against big schools," she said, "so we have to do better track team than we did my freshman year. I'm psyched for this track meet."

Pfeffer was voted most valuable player for field events at the indoor track meet. It is ironic that Pfeffer was recruited by Saint Mary's to play basketball. Then basketball coach Mary Wood recruited Pfeffer to play for her team. But as Pfeffer explains, "I only wanted to do one sport in college. I like track better, so I chose to do track.

Pfeffer was a league all-star for her high school basketball team in Braintree, Mass. She also competed in the javelin in the state track and field tournament during high school.

Choosing to run just track at Saint Mary's, Pfeffer says she never planned on getting caught up in the intense level of competition of collegiate sports. For her, track has been a way for her to have a little fun. For her, track has been a way to stay in shape. I didn't do it so much for the competition," she said. "It just ended up working out for everybody."

"She's a real good javelin thrower. I don't know if we see in our area," said Szczeszykowski. "She's been there for us for the last four years. She does a real good job."

Pfeffer's latest bunch of recruits—the current freshman class—were never even coached by the man who brought them to South Bend.

The schedule. John MacLeod did not see this year's Notre Dame schedule until after he had accepted the head coaching position. MacLeod promptly declared that the rigorous schedule—with its game road trip—would never be duplicated while he was coach.

The fact that MacLeod planned for a jazzy game and did not deliver is not mitigated by the strength of the Irish schedule. The schedule is not so much a factor in the speed of the play as it is in the win-loss column. Notre Dame could easily have lost 10 games this year by playing its standard half-court offense and coached by Digger Phelps.

What the Irish would not have done under Phelps, however, was raise expectations of glamour and instead deliver goulash.

SMC track opens 1992 season
Senior Lynn Pfeffer leads Belles into Grand Valley Invite
By CHRIS BACON

The Saint Mary's track team will step foot into collegiate action tomorrow at the Grand Valley Invitational in Grand Rapids. The Belles have not been to the invitational in six years and are not sure what to expect in tomorrow's indoor meet.

"Basically, we run the indoor season to get ready for the outdoor season," explained Belles coach Larry Szczeszykowski. "We don't know what to expect because most of our girls are young and nervous about their first college meet.

Before deciding their fate, a few points merit consideration.

nounced that the Irish—bolstered by the presence of fresh-­ guard David Rivers—would play a faster-paced game. Notre Dame basketball and Digger Phelps' brand of play, declared Sport magazine, would never again be synonymous with boredom.

The Rivers Experiment, hower, did not yield an NCAA championship. It did not even yield a trip to the Final Four. Rivers graduated and Phelps welcomed a new generation of players—LaPhonso Ellis, Dalmon Sweet, Elmer Brown, Keith Tower and Monty Williams.

But incumbents Joe Frederick and Jamere Jackson went from super sophomores to second­half substitutes.

As Digger was preparing for his second foray into the jungles of up-tempo basketball, he mysteriously resigned. Ellis has been ineligible for the sum total of one full season, Williams, agonized with a dangerous heart condition, was medically barred from competition.

Point guard Tim Singleton, leader of the Irish in the wake of numerous departures, him­self went down with a nagging back injury.

Phi lps' latest bunch of recruits—the current freshman class—were never even coached by the man who brought them to South Bend.

SMC hoops goes for third win in a row

Two's company, three's a crowd, except for the Saint Mary's basketball team, currently riding high on their first two-game-winning streak for the season.

Ranked during the preseason, the Belles (6-3) have had a turbulent season. Coming off of their two last-second upset victories, they are preparing for victory number three against the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh (14-5) this Saturday in Oshkosh.

"We've played some good competition this season," explained Belles coach Don Cromer. "I think if we can stay with them in the first half, we'll be okay.

The matchup between the two schools is the first. Since Saint Mary's has never played the Lady Titans, or anyone in the Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (WWIAC), the Belles are not sure what to expect when they travel north.

"It's going to be hard to go into a game not knowing anything about your competition or their league," said senior forward Catherine Restovich.

Restovich led the Belles in Monday night's 78-75 victory against Bethel College with 17 points and 11 rebounds.

Trailing through the first half, Bethel nearly defeated the Belles at home. Saint Mary's stole the lead in the second half, but both teams struggled to gain control of the game. The Lady Pilots ran out of gas in the final minutes of play, allowing the Belles to coast to victory.

Four players reached double digits in the Bethel matchup, including Restovich. Junior center Kim Holmes chipped in 14 points. Sophomore guard Liz Vernacosa tallied 13 points, while senior forward Janet Libbing added 15 points, 15 rebounds and four steals. It is this type of team work that the Belles will need to defeat the Lady Titans.

"I think we're just beginning to gel. The last two games that we've won, we've really come together as a team," said Cromer. "We've just going to try and move the kids in and out so they don't get tired and so we can get eight or nine out there playing."

A win against the Lady Titans won't come easy to the Belles. They first must conquer the five-hour bus trip to Oshkosh. "One key (to winning) will be that trip," explained Holmes. "It's hard to stay up for a game after a five-hour trip."

The Belles will also need to maintain their intensity on defense and on the fast break, two of the team's weaknesses. "We're trying a little different pressure," Cromer explained. "It's like we're trying to get our feet back under us, on court pressing. We've been working on this and the practices this week went well."
Irish to face another top opponent in no. 15 Michigan

This team came back from a second-half deficit to upset Michigan State earlier in the year, and took top-ranked Duke to overtime before eventually falling to the Blue Devils.

"Every one knows how good Michigan's freshmen are," said sophomore Joe Ross. They are a good team, and this will be a big game for us.

The Irish, meanwhile, have established themselves as a three-man team, whether they want to be or not. Seniors LaPhonso Ellis (16.5 ppg, 10.6 rpg), Elmer Bennett (17.3 ppg, 5.7 apg) and Daimon Sweet (16.8 ppg) have carried the Irish this season, and are the predominant scorers on the team. Shut them down, and the Irish, though not bad, do not have the depth to compete with the nation's best.

SMC swim team works on 'little things'

By CHRISTINE PENOTE
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

After an intense week of training, the Saint Mary's swim team is ready to take on the University of Indianapolis at Rolî's Aquatic Center tonight at 6 p.m.

This week's motto for the Belles is "It's the little things." After smoothing out any rough edges on their strokes, it's finally time to focus on the details. And in preparing for this difficult meet, Belles coach Dennis Cooper has put great emphasis on the team's starts and turns.

"The basic fundamentals must be done correctly in order for us to succeed," he noted.

Senior captain Michelle Calbumer agrees that this week of practice was not only vigorous, but needed.

"We will be tried and tested and we knew he swam us through this meet," said Calbumer. "But we really needed to work on our starts and turns because those are the weak

"We will swim real well," he predicted. "We've worked hard and our efforts will pay off."
The Notre Dame men's and women's fencing teams depart today for the University of Illinois, where they will face perennial Midwestern powers Wayne State and Detroit in a meet that will present a challenge to the undefeated Irish fencers.

"It will be a good test as we gear up for the postseason," said Irish head coach Mike DeCicco. "It should be interesting.

Also competing in the meet will be Michigan State and Purdue, but it is clear Detroit and archival Wayne State will provide ND's main competition. In the men's full competition, the Irish will be challenged by an excellent Detroit squad, but they will counter with senior Mike Trisko and Ed Lefevre, and junior captain Jeff Piper. Trisko and Lefevre both compiled undefeated records at last week's meet in Angola, Ind., and they will be counted on this weekend in Illinois.

"It should be a hard-fought match," said DeCicco of the full competition, "It will come down to who wants it more.

In another interesting matchup, the Irish women should have their hands full with an impressive Wayne State full team. All-American Heidi Piper, who went 1-0 last weekend, will look to lead the Irish women's foilists to victory. But the match will hinge on the success of Piper's supporting cast, which includes sophomore Corinne Dougherty, junior Kathy Redus, and seniors Tara Kelly, Mary Westrick, and Kelly and Rachel Haugh.

"The key is how well they come forward in support of Heidi," said DeCicco. "And if we get a performance from Heidi like we had last weekend, we'll have a real strong shot at it.

Turning to the men's sabre competition, we find that the Irish are prohibitive favorites. Senior captain Chris Baguer, who sports an outstanding 18-1 season slate, will team with brother Ben Finley, who went 7-0 in his first competition of the year last week.

Joining them will be junior All-American James Talarfero (17-6), seniors Henry Chou and David Kirby, and freshman Mike Trisko. Last week Chou tallied an impressive 5-0 record.

The Notre Dame men's and women's fencing teams are in action this weekend at the Midwest Open.

"We're going to have to carry the load," noted DeCicco. "If they fence well, we should come back still undefeated.

The Irish season record stands at 10-0, and although they carry a 33-match winning streak into this weekend's competition, DeCicco is not worried.

"I'm definitely optimistic we can end our dual meet season at 14-0," said the legendary coach.

The explosive Western Michigan offense is led by senior winger Keith Brown, who leads the team in scoring with 41 points.

Notre Dame will have to get its offense back on track against the Broncos. The Irish were limited to only three goals, all scored in Saturday's contest, in last weekend's losses.

Part of the problem has been the sudden departure of the Notre Dame power play. The Irish had one of the nation's top five most efficient power play units, converting on 31 percent of their opportunities going into last weekend's matchup. The Broncos have had a different story against Ferris State, as Notre Dame could only manage one power play goal in 16 opportunities.

"We really worked on the power play this week," explained Janicke. "It was one of the things that we concentrated on.

The Irish will look to Janicke, the leading scorer, to get the offense back track. Janicke scored his 100th career point last Saturday with a goal and an assist, giving him 30 goals and 70 assists for his career.

"It's a pretty good accomplishment," said Janicke. "To be in the company of Lou Zadra and Dave Bankoske is really something.

Tennis teams face stiff competition this weekend

By RICH SZABO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's tennis team returns home this weekend, intent on proving that last week's loss to Illinois was a fluke and that they are a team to be feared.

The Irish, upset in the season-opening match at Illinois, 5-4, host three matches in a two-day period at the Eck Pavilion.

On Saturday morning at 10:00 am, the Irish will tackle Kansas State, a team receiving votes in the current poll, in which the Irish stand at number 25. A doubleheader is featured for Sunday, with the Irish meeting Drake at 9:00 a.m. and then taking on the Texas Christian tandem of Bujan and Luis-Noriega, the number-five seed at the Rolex Indoors, at 11:00 a.m.

"Each match we win, we get a little more confidence going into the next match, and we're hoping things will snowball," said Irish assistant coach Rick Stewart.

The Irish look to avenge last year's 21-1 loss to Orangeburg, which came thanks to an early 12-3 lead after four classes. Marcus Goves, Todd Layton, Mark Gerardi and J.J. McGrew all returned from Syracuse with individual victories last season.

"I haven't seen much of (Syracuse this year) so I don't know what to expect," said Notre Dame head coach Fran McCann. "They were ranked at the beginning of the year and then they dropped out so I'm not sure what happened to them. I do know they have two good wrestlers at 142 and 190 (Rich Santana and (Mark) Kerr are two of the best in the country.

ND's Mike Fox (8-13), who has faced a barrage of tough opponents all year, will draw the third-ranked Syracuse. "He's here for the challenge," said Fox. "I think at this point in the season, he's lost a little confidence in himself. He's got to get his momentum and start all over. We're coming up on the West Regionals, and that's what he's got to gear up for.

Kerr, also third in the country with an 18-3 record, will battle Irish senior Tom Scanlon. "It's improved tremendously this year,"
