South Africans vote to end apartheid

Mandela: 'I still cannot vote'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Nelson Mandela said Wednesday that apartheid was "very much alive" in South Africa, despite white voters' stunning endorsement of plans to share power with the black majority.

Whites voted 68.7 percent to 31.3 percent Tuesday to forge ahead with talks that will end white rule and give blacks voting rights for the first time in South Africa's history. The margin of support for President F.W. de Klerk's reforms was much higher than expected and was a jolt to pro-apartheid white conservatives.

De Klerk won in 14 of 15 electoral districts, apparently bolstered by a record voter turnout of more than 85 percent.

The last major election, the 1989 vote for Parliament, drew 69 percent of the voters. A 1983 vote creating Parliament chambers for mixed-race people and Indians drew 76 percent.

"Today, we have closed the book on apartheid," said de Klerk, who celebrated his 56th birthday Wednesday.

The election gave de Klerk the decisive mandate he needs to continue negotiations with Mandela's African National Congress and other black groups.

But major issues remain to be resolved and there is not likely to be a swift transfer of power.

The gulf between the government and the ANC was highlighted Wednesday afternoon when thousands of ANC supporters marched in major cities to protest the 1992-93 budget.

The budget, announced shortly after the final vote results, includes vast disparities in social services for blacks and whites and was denounced by the ANC as an "apartheid budget."

Task force chair discusses new ND smoking policy

By SARAH DORAN
News Writer

Notre Dame's new campus smoking policy was created because the rights of non-smokers take precedence over the wishes of smokers, according to John Duman, chairman of the smoking policy task force.

"The University of Notre Dame, out of concern for the health, safety and well being of the members of the campus community establishes...[that] smoking is prohibited in all buildings, stadiums, and vehicles owned, leased or operated by the University," states a portion of the smoking policy, which cites health reasons as its rationale.

There are five exceptions to the smoking ban. Smoking may be permitted in:

• private offices not open to the public;
• dormitory rooms if the roommates consent;
• graduate housing pending upon the consent of roommates;
• individual hotel rooms of the Morris Inn although some rooms will become permanently smoke-free, and
• Graphic/page 4
• approved smoking lounges that are totally enclosed and properly ventilated.

The policy will also be related to future students and faculty ahead of time.

The task force that created the policy was formed in March, 1991 at the request of University President Edward Malloy by the Environmental Issues Committee, according to Duman, who is associate dean of the College of Science and a biology professor. The group was composed of 14 students, faculty and administrative officials including the directors of the Morris Inn, J.A.C.C. and the Library.

It met through the summer to decide on the policy and solicited information from students, rectors and other members of the community to help make the decision. The task force voted 13 to 1 in approval of the adopted policy.

Duman supported the creation of the smoking policy and cited the medical evidence of the health hazards of secondhand smoke. There are only two places on campus where the air is not recirculated while in all of the other places the smoke in the air is diluted and recirculated, he said.

Duman also mentioned that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is currently conducting a study to determine guidelines on safe levels of tobacco-related chemicals in buildings. If the study finds that chemicals in the air in University buildings exceed these guidelines, the task force will provide appropriate guidelines.

ND swimmer returns to campus

By KATE KECKLER and JASON KELLY
News Writers

Notre Dame swimmer Haley Scott returned to campus this week and is successfully recovering from injuries sustained during the Jan. 24 swim team bus accident.

Despite sustaining severe spinal injuries, Scott is recovering from extensive surgery and hopes to be swimming competitively as early as next year.

Scott, a Lyons Hall freshman, "was discharged from Memorial Hospital in South Bend on the Thursday before break, and she spent break at home in Phoenix," said her rector Sister Kathleen Beatty. "She returned to campus the Friday after break."

"I'm doing great," Scott said in a Tuesday interview. "I've been doing out-patient therapy at Memorial Hospital in South Bend every day. I swim, and now I'm working on a lot of higher-level balance stuff like practicing walking on my heels and skipping and running."

"I've been wearing a back brace, which hopefully I can take off in about a month," said Scott, "after that, my surgeon says I may be able to start diving."

After the accident and subsequent surgeries, the doctors didn't know if she would ever walk again. Less than two months later, however, she is not only walking, but she is back in the pool trying to regain her swimming form.

"A lot of it was attributed to the shape I was in before the accident, but other than that it was just luck," Scott commented. "They never predicted anything for me, the doctor said it is a miracle."

Although Scott's recovery has been quick, walking around campus still presents a challenge. Beatty has attempted to ease Scott's difficulties of getting around on campus. "We've moved Haley and her roommate down to the first floor, and she drives a golf cart with her name on it to her classes," said Beatty.

Scott plans on catching up in all her classes, and finishing this semester on time. "I've talked with all my teachers, and they've all been supportive. I have to make up all the tests, but they are going to waive some things like quizzes."

"Also, I can stay after a few weeks if I need to, but I hope to go home on time," she said. "The faculty and athletic department have been great, getting me anything I need," Scott said. "It's nice to have people understand what you're going through."

The lunch lady just about freaked out the other day when she took my ID. She jumped right off the stool and gave me a big hug. I think the line got backed up. It's great to be home on time," she said.

Returning to school is just the first step in her recovery process, however, she said. Eventually she hopes to return to the swim team, adding another milestone to an already remarkable comeback.

"I will swim with the team again," Scott explained. "I don't know when, maybe the beginning or middle of next season, but I will compete again."

MTV, 1980's pop culture remembered

As I was playing with my Rubik's Cube the other day, I began to ponder, with some irritation, that somewhere between Oliver Stone's distorted nostalgia for the 1960s and the revival of classic rock and disco, too many people have undervalued the worth of the pop culture of that "golden decade"—the 1980s.

Maybe it's because of the backlash against the 1980s because of Iran-Contra and corporate greed, or maybe it's because we're only two years into the 1990s, but somehow songs like Wall of Voodoo's "Mexican Radio" just haven't worked their way into today's pop culture like "Light My Fire" and "December '62 (Oh, What a Night)" have.

The 1980s, in particular the earlier half of the decade, were a time when most of us were in the first years of high school or junior high. The music of Michael Jackson and Bruce Springsteen should serve as a perennial soundtrack to the memories of our years of puberty and coming of age.

But what do we hear on the radio and see in the movies? Jethro Tull's "Aqualung" and 1969. It's time for a change.

Personally, I revel in my memories of being fascinated by the breakdancers in the video for "Hungry Like the Wolf." Men Without Hats' "The安全 with a 40 percent chance of snow in the morning.

Senior receives scholarship

■ NOTRE DAME—William Moran, a University of Notre Dame senior from Hope, R.I., has been awarded the Rotary Foundation's Japan Program Scholarship. The recently instituted award was given this year to 15 scholars representing eight countries. Moran will begin the 21-month program in July with intensive language training for nine months followed by an academic year at Kyoto University, where he will do research on the effect of culture and tradition on the modern politics of Japan. Moran will graduate this year with majors in Japanese studies and government and international studies. Moran will be the third Notre Dame student to study at Kyoto University.

Callier impersonates ND Security

■ NOTRE DAME — A female student received a phone call from a man impersonating a Notre Dame security officer at 2:30 a.m. on March 4, according to Assistant Director of University Security, Charles Hurley. Hurley said the man told the student he had found that her car had been struck while he was checking the lot, and he asked her to meet a security guard at the lot to check the damage. The student walked to the lot and found no damage to her car and no one waiting. Security advises any student receiving a similar call to ask the name of the officer and verify it with Security to be safe.

Germany bids farewell to U.S. army unit, stationed there since 1951

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — Germany on Wednesday bade farewell to the U.S. Army's VII Corps, the formidable fighting force whose soldiers battled on the Normandy beaches and in the Gulf War.

The 72,000 VII Corps soldiers, the largest U.S. Army Corps stationed in Europe, had been headquartered in Stuttgart since October 1951.

"I will miss you. I didn't want you to leave," said Stuttgart Mayor Manfred Rommel, the son of Erwin Rommel, the "Desert Fox" commander of German forces in North Africa in World War II.

The fall of the Iron Curtain and the collapse of communism ended the mission of the VII Corps, which will be officially deactivated in April in the United States as part of the U.S. forces drawdown in Europe.

"I won't say goodbye," said Gerhard Stoltenberg, who has led the corps since October 1999. "I will miss you. I didn't want you to leave."" said Stuttgart Mayor Rommel, the son of Erwin Rommel, the "Desert Fox" commander of German forces in North Africa in World War II.

S. Africa continued from page 1

There also are sharp differences between the black groups taking part in negotiations, particularly the ANC and the Inkatha Freedom Party. The two groups are engaged in a violent struggle for power.

Mandela welcomed the outcome of Tuesday’s referendum, but warned it was just the “absolute last” whites-only vote. There were 3 million whites and 30 million blacks in South Africa.

“Separatism is still very much alive. I still cannot vote in my own country,” Mandela told reporters.

A radical black group, the Pan Africanist Congress, denounced the vote. “The all-white referendum is an obscenity and an insult to the dispossessed masses of our country,” it said. The PAC has refused to negotiate with the government.

Andries Treurnicht, leader of the pro-apartheid Conservative Party, conceded defeat.

“Mr. de Klerk has won his referendum. Just like Gorbachev, who is Gorbachev is today out of power... and the de Klerk is negotiating his own government out of power,” Treurnicht said.

Right-wing groups say they will fight rather than accept a black government.

Several blacks interviewed on the streets of Johannesburg either had not heard of the referendum or were pessimistic it would improve their lives.

“Change?” said Tebago Mphaki, a black student. “It’s been like this forever, and this won’t bring any big change.”

Abby Gerald, who is also black, was more optimistic. “I think this is what I’ve been waiting for,” he said.

When de Klerk came to power in August 1989, he was viewed as a stalwart of the governing National Party who would continue its policies of white domination. But within six months, he stunned the world by legalizing black opposition groups and freeing Mandela after 27 years in prison for trying to topple the white government.

De Klerk abolished major apartheid laws, but he was forced to go back to nervous whites and plead for a mandate after the National Party was trounced by the Conservatives in two special elections to fill parliamentary seats.

When asked about the smokers whom the policy is affecting, Duman stated, “It is not a minority we are trying to pick on.” He elaborated that the policy “wasn’t trying to stop smoking on campus because it is immoral.”

The policy is a courtesy to non-smokers and especially to those allergic to smoke, said Duman, adding that it is “not an inherent right to smoke.” According to Duman, a number of people said that the policy did not go far enough. He cited a bulletin to management by The Bureau of National Affairs stating that 40 percent of companies have a total ban on smoking.

ND graduate student Joel Barstad was the one dissenting vote of the task force. Barstad stated that he believes that “the freedom of those who wish to smoke is unnecessarily restricted” by the new policy.

ND student Michelle Duman commented on the statement proposed by Barstad regarding inadequate representation of staff by citing that only two were smokers, and one of these was trying to quit, leaving him as the only smoker. But Barstad said that he is “not criticizing the selection process of the task force.”

Duman commented on the statement proposed by Barstad regarding inadequate representation of staff by citing that only 22-23 percent of the population smokes. In accordance with this statistic it is not unrealistic that “there may be only one smoker in a group of 14,” said Duman.

Japanese still reject birth control pill

TOKYO (AP) — The government Wednesday refused to ease its strict control on birth control pills, fearing AIDS could spread if oral contraceptives were sold.

Pharmaceutical firms had expected approval to sell low-dosage birth control pills, but officials said more study was needed on a possible rise in cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The Health and Welfare Ministry was examining a request by nine companies seeking to import and manufacture birth control pills.

"Considering how quickly AIDS is spreading in Japan recently, the release of birth control pills may boost the disease depending on how many they are used," said a ministry official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Japan limits birth control pill use for medical problems such as irregular menstruation.

The government had for years opposed the pill, citing fears of side effects and harm to public morality. But in 1986, it finally set guidelines for clinical testing.

Oral contraceptives, considered the most effective birth control method, were first approved in the United States more than 30 years ago and are used by an estimated 60 million women worldwide.

Ministry officials said an AIDS Surveillance Committee report listed 238 people with AIDS or having the AIDS virus in Japan — compared with 97 in 1990.

Mizuko Fukuhashi, a lawyer active in women's issues, told the newspaper Yomiuri: "I am not a big supporter of pills, but the approval should be solely based on judgments of whether their use is safe for women.

Islamic group claims they bombed Israeli Embassy

Buenos Aires, Argentina (AP) — An Islamic fundamentalist group claimed responsibility Wednesday for the Israeli Embassy bombing that killed at least 20 people, injured more than 100 and reduced the building to chunks of concrete and twisted metal.

Among the dead were at least 11 Israelis, said a spokesman for a Jewish group.

The death toll also seemed likely to rise. Rescuers who worked slowly all night with picks and shovels eventually switched to cranes and front-end loaders as the possibility of finding survivors faded.

An embassy spokesman said five Israelis and possibly other victims were missing and believed dead in the rubble.

The latest death toll, given by Supreme Court attorney Alfredo Blower, was unofficial and did not include names. The Supreme Court is leading the investigation into the incident.

Earlier, the Interior Ministry said 11 people died and 252 were injured. A body was found in the rubble shortly after the ministry statement, raising the death toll to 12.

"We hereby declare with all pride that the operation ... is one of our continuous strikes against the criminal Israeli enemy in an open-ended war which will not cease until Israel is wiped out of existence," a communiqué said.

There was no way to prove the claim's authenticity. But the phraseology and the Koranic verses it contained were the same as those used in previous communications from the group.

Islamic Jihad gained notoriety in 1983 after suicide bombings against Western targets including the U.S. Embassy and bases of American and French peacekeeping troops.

It is a protege of Hezbollah, the pro-Iranian Shiite umbrella group. In Israel, Reuven Hazak, a former top official of the Shin Bet internal security, said use of a car bomb had the "fingerprints of Hezbollah or some similar group."

Antimissile site chosen in N. Dakota

WASHINGTON (AP) — If an antimissile system is meant to protect the U.S. population, why put it in one of the nation's most remote areas?

The initial system the Defense Department is developing as a shield against long-range ballistic missile attack is scheduled to be located about 100 miles north of Grand Forks, N.D., near the isolated village of Nekoma, population 63.

The Pentagon chose that site because Congress, in agreeing last year for the first time to actually build the system, said that it must comply with the 1972 Antiballistic Missile Treaty between the United States and the former Soviet Union.

The ABM Treaty stipulates that each country may have only one antimissile site. The Soviets chose Moscow in order to protect their capital. The United States chose Grand Forks and actually built an antimissile system there in 1975 to protect the nearby fields of Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles.

That first system, called Safeguard, was canceled shortly after it became operational, and the site has been largely abandoned ever since.

Democratic hopefuls regroup, head back to Northeast

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The Democratic presidential race shifted to the Northeast on Wednesday as former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas placed second in immediate battleground, with votes on Tuesday, looming as the strategy for upcoming primaries. Connecticut, which votes on Tuesday, boomed the immediate battleground, with New York following two weeks later.

"The realities are we have to start winning," conceding Tsongas, who placed second in Illinois and third in Michigan. He paid a quick visit to unsent former President Bush in Hartford before flying home to Massachusetts to confer with fund-raising aides.

"Connecticut is a place where Bush is the winner, and go on to New York and show you can win a big state," Tsongas said.

Clinton, who rolled up the blue-collar vote in Tuesday's victories, spent the day at home in Little Rock to rest and regroup. He planned to play to win in Connecticut, which has been battered by the recession and defense cuts.

Jerry Brown, hoping to build on his strong second-place finish in Michigan, turned his energies to Wisconsin, which holds its primary April 7, the same day New York. He insisted the Democratic race was far from over.

"While the numbers are very impressive for Clinton, he has got to win New York and California and Indiana and the major states that determine whether or not he can run a good race against Bush," he said.

Democratic Chairman Ronald Brown agreed, saying, "You've still got over half the delegates to be chosen. It's too early to declare a de facto nominee."

On the other hand, any objective observer has to conclude that Bill Clinton has taken a giant step toward the nomination.

Tsongas, facing potential money problems, said his concern was "do you have the resources to get the message out." He said he wouldn't be hamstringed by limited resources in Connecticut because it's a geographically small state whose voters already know him.

Tsongas side-steps questions about whether a Connecticut defeat would drive him from the race, saying only that, "I want to be heard in California," which votes June 2.

On the Republican side, challenger Patrick Buchanan admitted it appeared that "only a celestial intervention" could stop President Bush from getting the GOP nomination. But he vowed to keep his campaign alive because "we think we are winning the national debate."

Bush and Clinton had commandinger leading in the latest Associated Press delegate counts. The president was within 400 of what he needs; Clinton had 34 percent of what it takes to capture the Democratic nomination.

With Tuesday's results, Bush's total is 711, while Buchanan has 46. Clinton's total has climbed to 947, 25, while Tsongas had 430.25 and Brown 129.25.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as Bill Clinton pulls ahead of the Democratic presidential field, an Associated Press survey indicates nagging unease among some state party officials that there may be another "shoe to fall" regarding the Arkansas governor.

In Yemen, Saddam remains a hero

SAN'A, Yemen (AP) — While many nations press for tougher sanctions against Iraq, Saddam Hussein remains a hero in this desert nation at the southwestern tip of the Arabian Peninsula.

Posters of Saddam are everywhere — plastered on cars, army checkpoints and corner shops with names like "Mother of All Battles" photo studio. Saddam is a popular name for newborns.

At the United Nations, Iraq is under strong pressure to comply with resolutions requiring destruction of its unconventional weapons. Yemenis don't put much stock in the U.N. resolutions, which were the terms of the cease-fire that ended the Persian Gulf war after Iraq was driven from Kuwait last year.

"Aren't all decisions from the Security Council the same?," complained Sheikh Hussein Fayid Mujallah, a northern tribal leader.

"Why don't they enforce the decisions against Israel like those against Iraq? Why does Iraq have to destroy its weapons but not Israel?" Yemen, where the fabled Queen of Sheba ruled in the 10th century B.C., stood behind Saddam as much because of its longstanding enmity toward neighboring Saudi Arabia as its old links with Iraq and fervent support for Saddam's brand of Arab nationalism. It has paid a high price for such sentiments.

Since Saddam's August 1990 invasion of Kuwait, it has lost an estimated $1 billion a year in aid from the Persian Gulf states, which also sent 1 million Yemeni guest workers packing.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration has drawn up plans for a bombing strike that could be carried out against Iraqi weapons facilities if Saddam Hussein keeps blocking U.N. destruction of his arsenals, U.S. officials say.

The plans also call for possible seizure of Iraq's bank assets in the United States and in other allied countries, expansion of the ban on Iraq helicopter flights in northern Iraq, and an increase of U.N. inspections in Iraq to include monitoring human rights violations. Money from the seized assets could be used to keep the financially pressed U.N. Inspection and destruction team going.

The contingency plans are part of a broader strategy — likely to be announced within weeks — to further erode the Iraqi president's standing in his beleaguered country, said the officials. They commented only on condition of anonymity.

A decision to bomb would depend in part on the outcome of a trip by a U.N. team to Iraq this Saturday to destroy equipment for building Scud missiles. Iraq prevented the team from entering its territory last month, prompting the Security Council to warn that further defiance would result in serious consequences.

"The next inspection could be the trigger," said one official. By agreement with U.N. allies, any U.S. action "would be a limited, specific strike," said another official who spoke on condition of anonymity. The plan was to use U.S. carriers alone, with the administration's thinking. Iraq would be given notice of the raid to avoid harm to civilians, he added.

The United States maintains bomber forces in the Persian Gulf region, both on land and on the USS America aircraft carrier currently in Gulf waters.

But Assistant Secretary of State Edward Djerejian, asked Tuesday during a congressional hearing about policy on Iraq, appeared to rule out any immediate attack.

First, he said that, given Saddam's "cheat and retreat strategy, the time has come to truly reinforce the (U.N.) inspection regime inside Iraq.

But when Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., said he understood that no military action was under active consideration, Djerejian answered, "That is basically a correct statement." Still, he added that "nothing was ruled out."

Officials concede that such veiled warnings, including ones made in recent days by President Bush, are designed in no small part to keep Saddam off balance.

Since the Gulf War ended more than a year ago, the United States has faced vague threats of military action but has failed to follow through. This, said the first official, reflected Pentagon nervousness about a new conflict with Iraq.

But in internal policy deliberations, the State Department has been raising increasing doubts about the effectiveness of the existing policy of tough language and international economic pressure.

"There is genuine ferment, a real feeling of unease" about the policy, said the official. "Our current policy isn't sustainable in perpetuity."

Officials contend that the economic sanctions imposed on Iraq in August 1990 are impairing the general population but not affecting Saddam's inner circle on which he relies for his survival.

U2 is in flap about Japan bashing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Irish rock band U2 is trying to quiet a flap arising from a newspaper report that the words “Bomb Japan Now” flashed on TV screens during a concert.

The words actually occur separately in a stream of words that flash by rapidly, according to a text issued through the group's Los Angeles public relations firm.

A portion of the stream reads: “Everyone is a racist except you bomb where ultimately Japan chaos. I want everything I want it now gum...”

A March 6 concert review in The Atlanta Journal-Constitution said the phrase “Bomb Japan Now” showed up in “a spate of buzz words flashed at near-subliminal speed.”

Music critic Steve Dollar said Wednesday he wrote down what he had gleaned from the presentation but that the pace is so fast there's only time to pick up certain words.

“It would be impossible to watch it and then repeat verbatim what the actual words were in this segment,” he said, adding that there are many “loaded words” and it should be expected that people will instinctively try to get a message out of them.

The words are flashed individually on monitors for a tenth of a second, publicist Paul Wasserman said in a telephone interview from Boston, where the band had a date on its “Zoo TV” concert tour Tuesday night.

“Nowhere are the words ‘Bomb Japan’ next to each other,” Wasserman said.

Asked if it weren't possible for someone to string words together given the speed with which they are presented and stage distractions, Wasserman said: “No, because there are all these words in between.”

Wasserman said it was “just coincidence” that “bomb” and “Japan” were so close to each other. "They're not for bombing anybody," he said.

Dollar said that after "bomb" the next word that makes sense is "Japan." However, he said the presentation seems to be some kind of ironic commentary and nothing gives the impression it's meant to be taken seriously.

Wasserman said that after the review was reported in Ireland, the Japanese ambassador to Ireland protested to the foreign office. The publicist said the band spent weeks working on choosing words, but he said "they're just flash words" and do not have a particular meaning.

Two Virginia churches report ‘weeping Mary’

WOODBRIDGE, Va. (AP) — Children and adults at a Roman Catholic church reported seeing a statue of the Virgin Mary shed tears after Mass was celebrated by a priest involved in other recent reports of weeping statues.

Water reportedly trickled Tuesday from the face of a wooden statue that stands in the lobby of Our Lady of Angels Church while the Rev. James Bruse was celebrating Mass for 450 schoolchildren.

St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Church in nearby Lake Ridge, where Bruse is the associate pastor, reported last week that statues of the Virgin Mary wept there during a Mass on March 8.

"I saw the tears from the chest, and I saw the tears on her face," 11-year-old Nicole King said of Tuesday's episode. "It was kind of weird. Some of my friends were kind of crying."

Jennifer Velens, who has two children at the school, said she saw it too.

"I was in absolute awe that this was happening right in front of me," she said.

Bruse and Sister Mary Evelyn Docker, the school's principal, have declined to discuss the incident.

But the sisters sent a note home with each child saying: "After Mass, the adults present as well as the children saw the statue cry."

The statue has never wept before, said the Rev. Paul Burns, pastor of Our Lady of Angels.

"It's so unexplainable, and most of us are quite skeptical about these things," Burns said. "This has us quite befuddled in a nice kind of way."

IMPORTANT MEETING FOR SENIORS-TO-BE
Sacrificing income for national pride

If American consumers are willing to sacrifice some of their income to buy somewhat more of made-in-the-U.S.A. products, Americans could be put back to work. That sentiment, judging from my reading of the letters-to-the-editors columns, is commonly expressed in the country today. Indeed, it appears that in the automotive sector, if consumers will soon be given the opportunity to pay more, as Japanese auto companies are reported to be raising their prices partly for political reasons, to give hard-pressed American producers more room to compete and even to charge higher prices themselves. Consumers shopping for a new car may soon find enhanced price competition, both at home and in America to work.

Like other plausible undertakings, however, the project of paying more than is necessary for goods of a given quality should be carefully scrutinized to determine how much of the contribution actually makes it to the intended beneficiary. Suppose that many car-buying consumers had the income, and an income, to buy a car and rush home to his $35,000-a-year job. Is it not reasonable and of paying more than is necessary for goods of a given quality, and rising home sales, increased retail sales, and pocketbook in this country, "somehow more optimistically?"

The Federal Reserve noted in its latest survey of business conditions, conducted by its 12 regional banks, that most segments of the economy have been "increasingly upbeat." The survey said that "several districts report glimmerings of recovery in manufacturing sector, with expectations for future activity. The survey said Philadelphia, Richmond and Dallas reported modest gains in factory production or shipments.

"Business sentiment is described as modestly more optimistic in many parts of the country, though it remains cautious," the central bank said in summarizing the latest findings of the review, which it conducts eight times a year.

The assessment was the Federal Reserve's most optimistic on the economy since the second quarter of last year. However, the central bank had been "somewhat more upbeat," as the survey found little increase in bank loan demand in other areas. In a review released Jan. 23, the Federal Reserve had described the economy as "lackluster" with factory output declining and retailers disappointed with Christmas economy.

The Federal Reserve's latest "Current Economic Conditions" report was used by some Federal Reserve policymakers meet on March 21 to review interest rates.

Senate upholds veto on China's trade status

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Wednesday upheld President Bush's veto of a bill that would have imposed human rights and other conditions on renewal of China's normal trade status.

The 60 to 38 vote fell six votes short of the two-thirds majority needed to override the veto and extended the president's unbroken streak on veto confrontations to 26. The House had voted 357-61 last week to override the veto.

Failure to override means China's most-favored-nation trade status, which confers the lowest available tariffs on its imports, will almost certainly be renewed when it expires in July.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell accused Bush of blindly adhering to a policy that puts economic considerations ahead of human rights, trade and weapons proliferation. Mitchell said that the United States used China as a counterbalance to the strong Soviet Union, and has a trade surplus with the United States "in the millions of dollars on arms and on trade with China." Mitchell said that Chinese human rights record "is deplorable." Mitchell said that Bush's veto was an attempt to "pander to Beijing" and to " intentionally more upbeat." Dear Editor:

Given the plethora of articles, letters, and editorials by several students in recent months about Fr. Burchaell, CSC, and the Congregation of Holy Cross in general, I thought it would be appropriate to simply add a few thoughts of my own on these matters.

Holy Cross is celebrating its 150th anniversary of service to God and God's church in the world. Our founder, Fr. Basil Moreau, formed a group of priests, brothers and sisters under a common mission: service to Christ through the promulgation of the gospel. Over the years, Holy Cross has been blessed with growth and success in this mission.

Also, the congregation, being made up of sinful human beings, has failed at times, and even disappointed at others. Yet just as we accept Christ's cross, we must acknowledge his forgiveness and resurrection. We are a people of hope.

Earlier this year, charges of impropriety were revealed about one of our brothers, Fr. Burchaell. Understandably, this has evoked feelings of pain, anger, and confusion from many of us who know Holy Cross and Jim personally. We, too, grieve the situation and pray for God's healing touch.

In recent months, however, some have taken this opportunity to attack the nature of the entire congregation. More specifically, it is the view of celibacy, and the congregation's ability (or inability) to live this out authentically, that has been questioned.

By our public profession of the vows of poverty, celibacy, and obedience, we invite such scrutiny. But, when unfounded stories are applied to an entire group, some sort of accountability is called for.

I joined Holy Cross and professed these vows because I want to work with and relate to, the people of God in a manner that allows me to be as available as possible as a minister. Celibacy enables me to minister to others in a unique manner. By foregoing marriage and exclusive relationships, I believe I can best serve God and the church. This vocation stands alongside marriage and the single life as means to ministry in the Lord. The gift of celibacy isn't attractive to all, of course, but it is one which I embrace wholeheartedly.

It is true, we have stumbled in our mission from time to time. But knowing that God's plan of salvation has found victory in Jesus Christ, I have confidence in the Church, and in the congregation as well. May God continue to bless us in the years to come.

U.S. and Europe share uncivilized abortion laws

Dear Editor:

The Observer recently printed the world's abortion laws. The United States and most European countries allow an abortion upon request while most African nations only permit an abortion if the mother's life is at risk. European countries and the United States are supposed to be the more civilized countries of the world, yet they allow the slaughter of millions of innocent lives. Which nations are the more civilized?

Guest speaker relates the 'message of life' to Notre Dame campus

Dear Editor:

On Tuesday, March 5, Dr. Dolores Grier, Vice-chancellor of the Archdiocese of New York gave a talk on campus entitled "Race Genocide and Abortion." The purpose of Dr. Grier's presentation was to bring to Notre Dame what she brings to the streets of Harlem in her everyday work: a message of life.

When counselors strongly advise poor black women to have an abortion, they imply that black women are not capable of surviving nine months of pregnancy, when in fact, as Dr. Grier noted, black women have survived much more.

A true respect for life demands that other options be made available for black women, and Dr. Grier's job is to provide other options, such as the option to be a 'girl's' home until the baby is born and can be put up for adoption if the mother decides not to keep her baby. Dr. Grier spoke of being able to "resolve problems with life when you believe in killing."

But even beyond the race genocide problem, Dr. Grier advanced some compelling arguments for life. She asked how America can hold respect for life anywhere if we do not respect it in the womb. She questioned why America stands for liberty, but the unborn are denied the liberty of birth. And while she agreed that America stands for choice, she denied that those who promote abortion support choice.

Those who support the abortion law support abortion, not choice, since it was abortion which was legalized, and not choice. The "pro-choice" moniker is in place, Dr. Grier said, because those who believe in abortion do not want to deal with the reality of life. By expressing "pro-choice," Dr. Grier called for everyone to "say what you are." Perhaps the most effective example of the evening came from a member of the audience, a social worker from Chicago who declared that the women she works with "need alternatives" to abortion and that if given options, people will take them.

She presented as evidence an adorable set of twins whom she had adopted after convincing their biological mother not to undergo an abortion.

Now a single mother of three adopted children, this woman says that her children have changed her life for the better. She then dared anyone to try to kill the twins she prevented, as a doctor would have been able to do with abortion. A response came from a member of the audience: "Of course not, they're alive." Precisely.

One of Dr. Grier's questions came back to me. Why is it illegal to stop the heartbeat of a baby born four months prematurely, but legal to terminate the life of a nine month old human? The answer: We do not yet fully respect life. We must learn to respect life in all its forms.

Letterson and Civil Rights movements to stage a New Age revolution

Dear Editor:

The editor of the New Hampshire paper had his interest piqued by the letter of Edgar Acosta in last week's issue. Acosta, a letter writer from Boston, Massachusetts, wrote about the need for a new Age Revolution. The editor was intrigued by the idea of a new Age Revolution and decided to write a letter to the Boston Herald about the topic.

In his letter, Acosta argues that the current political system is outdated and that a new Age Revolution is needed to address the challenges facing society. He cites various issues, such as income inequality, racism, and environmental degradation, as reasons for the need for a new Age Revolution.

Acosta also suggests that the new Age Revolution should be led by people who are not politicians. He proposes that a new Age Revolution could be led by people who have the skills and expertise to solve the problems facing society. He suggests that this new Age Revolution should be inclusive and should have the support of the many different groups of people who are affected by the issues.

The editor of the Boston Herald was impressed by Acosta's letter and decided to publish it in the newspaper. The editor also added a few comments of his own, expressing his agreement with Acosta's ideas and proposing some potential solutions to the problems facing society.

Overall, the editor of the Boston Herald was impressed by Acosta's letter and feels that the idea of a new Age Revolution is a valuable one. He hopes that more people will become involved in the process and that a new Age Revolution can be achieved.

Father Henri Nouwen shares special message of L'Arche community

By HELEN DIETEMAN
Accent Writer

Have you ever felt God's love? Henri Nouwen, a former Notre Dame professor and now priest-in-residence of L'Arche-Daybreak in Toronto, Ontario, will share how he has experienced this love on Thursday, March 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Auditorium.

His presentation, titled "God's Love Experienced in Community," is open to all, especially those who work or live with the developmentally disabled and those who are searching for a deeper understanding of God's love.

With Nouwen will be several L'Arche residents and assistants from their respective communities at Daybreak (Toronto), Mobile (Alabama), Heartland (Kansas City), and Arch (Clinton, Iowa), as well as representatives from Emmaus, a South Bend community with the mentally handicapped.

Nouwen and his guests can look forward to a busy and eventful weekend, beginning with Nouwen's and others' presentations on Thursday evening. Friday's plan includes a tour of campus, lunch hosted by Keenan Hall, and a tour of the Logan Center. Later that evening, there will be a worship service titled "A Celebration of the Variety of Our Gifts" at 7:30 p.m. The gathering will be open to all and will be at Epworth Memorial United Methodist Church. It will be followed by a reception. On Saturday afternoon, there will be a collection and prayer titled "Listening to God's Call in a Noisy World: Discipleship and the Spiritual Life" from 2 to 5 p.m. at the CSC.

This weekend at Notre Dame is Nouwen's second trip here since he has been at Daybreak; he visited Notre Dame in 1989 for a similar weekend. He has been invited to return by the Emmaus community and through the CSC.

As Sandy Baron, assistant at the CSC, explains, "Father Nouwen is an inspiration to all people, handicapped and volunteers. His words are ecumenical; he speaks to everyone who is concerned about the quality of life for the developmentally disabled, regardless of religion."

"L'Arche, French for "the ark," began in France in 1964 when Jean Vanier invited two handicapped men to share his home. In 1969, Daybreak was founded. Now, L'Arche communities are in over 20 countries and number over 90 homes. Inter-racial and inter-denominational, L'Arche helps over 1500 people with developmental handicaps. In each L'Arche house, there are five or six handicapped residents and two or three volunteer assistants. Each L'Arche home is a real home — every person does his or her part of the cooking, cleaning, and maintenance, as would any member of a family."

As the different bands perform, the audience "penny" vote will act as judges, casting their vote with pennies. The winner of Nazz will be chosen by various factors such as talent, costume, and music selection, according to Sarah Williams, co-chairman of the Nazz committee. Each judge will have one vote and the audience "penny" vote will serve as a single vote. "Students play a large part in Nazz," explained Pamenter.

The band chosen by the judges and audience will perform as the opening band for this year's AnTostal band, which has not yet been selected. Different kinds of music will be represented at Nazz, including rock, country, Irish music and rap. "There's a lot of diversity this year," Pamenter said.

Campus bands scheduled to perform include The Generics, XYZ Affair, Palace Laundry, Victoria's Real Secret and Katharsis.

"It's great exposure. It's a chance to play in a different environment than a bar or a dance," explained Dave Geist, guitarist for The Generics.

"It's free exposure and a good opportunity to display our talents," agreed Kevin Baillie, a member of Palace Laundry.

Nazz closes out Sesquicentennial Week

By JAHNIELLE HARRIGAN

Pennies will be in demand this weekend as students can use them to vote for the campus band of their choice at Nazz, a battle of the bands concluding the Student Sesquicentennial Week this Saturday.

Nazz, sponsored by Student Government in accordance with Notre Dame's Sesquicentennial, is being held at Stepan Center from 6 p.m. to midnight on Saturday. Twenty-four campus bands will perform 15-minute sets as they strive to become the best in the battle of the bands.

To ensure continuous musical play, two separate stages will be set up, according to Katie Pamenter, chairman of the Sesquicentennial Student Week committee.

"It's a student-oriented week and music is a big part of our lives," Pamenter said. "There's a lot of musical talent on campus."

Taylor Richards, a deejay from WNDU, will emcee the event. As the different bands perform, the audience will play an active role in determining the winner of the "battle." In addition to judges Richards, Thomas Morris, philosophy professor, and Kevin Fisherty, WNDU station manager, students will act as judges, casting their vote with pennies.

WHAT CAN I DO WITH A DEGREE IN MATHEMATICS?

A lot! The training and analytical skills acquired studying mathematics are precisely what many companies and professional schools look for.

CAN YOU BE MORE SPECIFIC?
WHAT KIND OF JOBS AND WITH WHAT KIND OF COMPANIES ARE SOME OF OUR RECENT NOTRE DAME MATH GRADUATES WORKING FOR?

Among our recent graduates two very popular kinds of jobs have been actuarial and as computer programmers or analysts.

A few of the insurance companies hiring our graduates as actuaries are Allstate, Massachusetts Mutual, CIGNA, The Travelers, Prudential, Aetna Life and Casualty, and Metropolitan.

AT&T, Arthur Andersen, DaPonte, IBM, GE, Ebasco Services, Morgan Stanley, NCIL, General Motors, and Xerox are a few of the companies where our math graduates work as programmers or analysts.

THAT IS AN IMPRESSIVE LIST—BUT ARE THESE DESIRABLE JOBS?

The 1988 publication JOBS Rated demand, security, stress, and work environment. The top five, out of 250 job classifications, were in descending order: actuary, computer programmer, accountant, mathematician, and statistician.

WHAT ABOUT THE PROGRAMS OFFERED BY THE MATH DEPARTMENT?

DO ANY NOTRE DAME MATH MAJORS GO ON FOR HIGHER DEGREES IN THE MATHEMATICAL SCIENCES?

Certainly. Some of our best students continue in pure applied mathematics, computing science, statistics, and other mathematical sciences.

They’ve gone to places like Harvard, Princeton, Chicago, Oxford, Berkeley, and Wisconsin. Math majors also go to colleges and universities across the country. Others work at places like Bell Laboratories or at government organizations like the National Security Agency.

WHAT ABOUT THE PROGRAMS OFFERED BY THE MATH DEPARTMENT?

The department offers, all in the College of Science, a major in Math with possible concentrations in Life Sciences, Education, Engineering Science, Social Science, Computing, and Information Assurance. A student can also double major in Math and in, say, Philosophy. The department also offers an Honors Mathematics Major in the College of Science and one in the College of Arts and Letters.
Cunningham and others to conduct mini-camp PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Eagles quarterback Randall Cunningham, anxious to come back from knee surgery, is flying four of his receivers to Las Vegas for a personal mini-camp next week. Eric Dickerson of the Colts also is expected to join them for a week of workouts at Cunningham's alma mater, UNLV. Cunningham has spent more than $30,000 for air fare, expenses, equipment, and rental of the field, office space and gymnasium, according to his business manager, Terry Bender. Sessions will include film study, conditioning workouts and passing drills.

Aguirre may play for Mexico in Olympics DETROIT — While Pistons star Isiah Thomas was passed over for the U.S. Olympic team, his teammate Mark Aguirre may make it to Barcelona by playing for Mexico. Though he grew up in Chicago and has been a U.S. citizen his entire life, Aguirre may play for Mexico in the Olympics under a rule that allows players to represent a country where their father was a citizen. Aguirre, whose grandfather and father were born in Mexico, met earlier this month with Mexican Basketball Federation president Julio Ortiz in Los Angeles to discuss the possibility.

Bishop receives sentence for brawl BATON ROUGE, La. — Louisiana State tight end Harold Bishop was sentenced to 15 hours of community service for his part in a brawl between football and basketball players at the athletic dorm in November. Bishop pleaded guilty to negligent injury. He was told to confine his fighting on the football field by officer Gary Shuford during the brawl in November.

Retirement of ref due to mental stress LONDON — An English soccer referee who was head-butted by a fan who was suffering from mental stress. Indiana turns off Heat in OT victory MIAMI (AP) — Michael Williams scored 26 points, including seven free throws in overtime, as Indiana scored its final 12 points from the line against Miami. Chuck Person scored 27 points and Reggie Miller 23 for the Pacers, who pulled 1 1/2 games in front of the Heat in the Eastern Conference playoff race. Glen Rice had 21 of his 26 points in the first half and Ronny Seikaly finished with 24 points and 14 rebounds for Miami. Williams, who hit 16 of 17 free throws, made two for an 113-109 advantage with 18 seconds remaining. After Miami's Grant Long hit two from the line, Williams made one of two to give the Pacers a 114-111 lead with 13.6 seconds left.

Brian Shaw, whose 3-pointer tied the score 100-100 with 9.1 seconds left in regulation, missed a 3-point attempt for the Heat before Miller completed the scoring with two free throws.

Spurs 118, Kings 80 SAN ANTONIO — Sean Elliot scored 26 points, including eight during a 20-2 run midway through the game, as San Antonio handed Sacramento its 100th consecutive loss. David Robinson, playing with a sprained left hand, had 14 points and 15 rebounds for the Spurs, who moved within two games of Midwest Division-winning Utah. Mitch Richmond scored 20 points for the Kings, now an NBA-worst 4-30 on the road.

Trailing 47-46 with 2:08 to play in the game, San Antonio scored the final six points of the half and 14 of the first 16 in the third period to pull ahead 66-49 with 7:25 remaining in the quarter.

Clippers 117, Mavericks 86 DALLAS — Danny Manning scored eight of his 23 points during a 30-19 second-quarter burst that lifted Los Angeles past Dallas, which lost its 11th consecutive game. The Clippers, who got 22 points from Ron Harper, won for the eighth time in 12 games and have four victories in their last seven road games. Larry Brown's record improved to 12-7 since taking over as coach of the Clippers on Feb. 5.

Mavericks coach Richie Adubato again failed in a bid for his 100th career victory. Mike D'Antoni led Dallas with 19 points.

Tennessee, Virginia win; Ball State, Wis-GB play today

(AP) Ball State's first round National Invitation Tournament matchup at Utah Thursday night comes complete with a little extra baggage.

"This is a well-thought-out, disguised National Invitation Tournament matchup they have made," Ball State coach Dick Hunsaker said. "It's not an afterthought. We will have one of the most unique games in the entire postseason."

What makes it so special is that Utah coach Rick Majerus coached at Ball State for two years and led the Cardinals to their best record ever (29-3) in 1988-89 with some of the same players he will be facing Thursday. His assistant was Hunsaker.

"This is very awkward," Majerus said. "It's very difficult. I recruited and recruited some of the players. I have a lot of good friends there. It's tough emotionally for me to play them."

The game between Ball State (24-8) and Utah (20-10) is one of nine NIT pairings Thursday.

The others are Wisconsin-Green Bay (25-4) at Manhattan (23-2), Butler (21-9) at Purdue (26-14), Richmond (22-7) at Florida (16-12), Rhode Island (20-9) at Vanderbilt (15-14), Southern Illinois (22-7) at Arizona State (22-7), and Loyola-Chicago (14-14) at Northwestern (16-12).

There is a possibility of marriage.

The Buckeyes have had trouble with Big East teams recently. They were eliminated from last year's NCAA Tournament by St. John's and lost to Seton Hall on Super Bowl Sunday. Seton Hall could continue this trend and send the Buckeyes home early for the second straight year.

Finally, there is Duke. The consensus favorite to win it all. Duke has two major obstacles to clear in the regionals—Seton Hall and Kentucky.

The Hall is a tournament team. In the Pirates' last two NCAA appearances they have reached the championship game (in 1989) and the Elite Eight (in 1991).

Seton Hall plays top-notch defense which is something that tends to carry teams a long way.

In the second round, Kansas could play another game in front of a biased opposition. Though the Irish have enjoyed some success under similar situations this season, they could stop the Jayhawks in its regular-season finale and the Aces continue to play well, then roll to a Midwestern Conference championship.

St. John's or Tulane, who both opened the season 20-0, but are probably still reeling from Sunday's upset at the hands of Purdue, which knocked them out of the NCAA's round of 16 in 1990 before losing to eventual champion Kansas in the Final Four.

The NIT, unlike most other tournaments, does not deter-
The Notre Dame lacrosse team bounced back from three straight road losses to trounce Lake Forest 26-3 at Cartier Field yesterday. Lake Forest was no match for the motivated Irish, who took control of the game from the start. All players on the Notre Dame roster saw some action in the game with an equal distribution of scoring among the starters and the reserves.

Lake Forest scored its first goal near the midway point of the second period, and then followed with two more in the games final minutes. The score was almost a duplicate of the score turned by the two teams in an exhibition game prior to the start of the season. In the previous meeting the Irish had won 22-2.

"We played them in the pre-season and knew what type of team they were," said junior Pete Senger. "We expected that type of score."

Although the win came over a lesser foe, it was still an important win for the Irish if they are to continue their surge towards national prominence.

"We talked about it, (the three road losses), and we know we can play with the nation's best teams if we minimise our mistakes on offense and defense," said Senger. "We came into this game a little more determined, because of the losses."

The win marked the eleventh consecutive regular season win over Lake Forest.

Notre Dame has some time off before they face national powerhouse Hofstra on March 28. The game will be another opportunity for the Irish to prove their worth against the nation's elite.

The Irish fell 13-7 to the University of Maryland-Baltimore County earlier this season. UMBC beat Hofstra a week earlier. The Irish can take consolation in the fact that, despite inconsistent play on both offense and defense, they were competitive in the UMBC game. Hopefully consistent play will bring more favorable results against Hofstra.

Irish divers and swimmers participate in NCAA meets

By JENNIFER MARTEN

The 1991-92 diving season came to a close over break and the swimming season is in its final days. Two Irish divers, sophomores Sean Hyer and Angela Gugle represented Notre Dame at the NCAA Zone Diving Championships. At the men's competition in Minneapolis, Hyer dove in both the one-meter and three-meter events. On Saturday he finished 26th in the high board event with 397.15 points. At the women's event in Indianapolis, Gugle participated in the one-meter event on Friday and the three-meter event on Saturday.

The sophomore did the full list of required dives which included two forward dives, two backward dives, two inverted dives, two reverse dives, two twister dives, and a free dive.

Gugle was honored to compete in the meet because she did not qualify for the zone disadvantage. "I was definitely glad to make the meet. It being my first time at the meet definitely had an effect on me. It can be kind of intimidating," said Gugle.

Notre Dame junior Tanya Williams travels to Austin, TX to compete in the NCAA Swimming Championships this weekend. This will be the second year that Williams qualified for the meet. Last year, she earned All-American honors with her eighth place finish in the 400 individual medley with a time of 4:25.97. This year, Williams will compete in the 200 individual medley today, the 100-yard backstroke on Friday, and the 200-yard backstroke on Saturday. Currently, the All-American holds Notre Dame records in all three events.

At the United States Olympic trials in Indianapolis at the beginning of March, Williams finished 13th in the 200 backstroke, 22nd in the 200 individual medley, and 23rd in the 100 backstroke.
SMC softball opens season
Spring break scrimmages help solidify roster

The Belles will be without the pitching skills of junior Stephanie Kiscomi. The pitcher has decided to take the season off for personal reasons. Freshman Lisa Bright will take over the duties on the mound for SMC. By MAGGIE HELLRUNG Sports Writer

Well sports fans, with spring just around the corner, the sites and sounds of softball have once again infiltrated the Saint Mary's campus for eight days in Fort Myers, Florida. The Saint Mary's Belles are paving their way to what will be an exciting and challenging season.

"We girls did a great job," said coach Don Cromer.

The Belles played seven games and one scrimmage that week, averaging two runs per game. They faced an assortment of teams including two Division II teams, one being Keene State, which is the top-ranked in the nation for Division II. The extensive playing time allowed the Belles to tryout different playing positions, and get a 1992 lineup in order.

Due to a basketball injury Janet Libbing, one of the veteran star players, is out for the season creating several changes for the Belles infield. "When we lost Janet, we needed someone to fill her role," said Coach Don Cromer.

"1992 Schedule / page 14 lost a really good bat and a great leader," said Cromer. The Belles also lost four seniors to graduation, and junior Stephanie Kissconin, last year's pitcher, who will be taking this season off. Due to these circumstances, the Belles were forced to create an almost entirely new infield, including three freshmen, one sophomore, and two juniors.

The infield is made up of sophomore Sara Miller, playing first base, junior Margie Pelton and freshman April Rhoades rotating at second, and freshman Kristen Martina at third. Bridget McCourt has taken Libbing's position as shortstop, after playing third base last year. Freshman Lisa Bright is pitching, with sophomore Jane Murphy behind the plate.

When asked about the team's fresh-faced pitcher, Cromer was pleased with the play of Bright.

"Lisa has done a real good job for us; we're really happy with her," said Cromer.

The Belles however did not lose their offfield, which is returning from last year. Senior Carol Grobner, who is the only senior playing this year is playing center field, with sophomore Stacy Bogejaj in right field, and sophomore Erin Vachter in left field.

"I feel that our outfield is solid, I really have confidence in Carol, Erin and Stacy," said Cromer. "Carol will hold a real leadership role for the team.

Also playing for the Belles this season are sophomore Andrea Salazar, and freshmen Laura Stambaugh, Seanne Patrick and Jen O'Dell. Captains for the '92 Belles are Janet Libbing, Carol Grobner, and Jane Murphy.

The Belles swing into the new season when they play in the Division I Butler University at three o'clock on Friday afternoon at Saint Mary's softball field. The team will then travel to Fort Wayne on Saturday where they will go head to head with Saint Francis.

ND skier places at ski championship

By RAN AKEY Sports Writer

Spring break, for many Notre Dame students, involves a week of hitting the beaches of Florida or Texas for some relaxation. Senior Bob Reich, however, spent his break in an entirely unique fashion—skiing off the powderd ski slopes of Lake Placid, New York, in pursuit of a National Collegiate Ski Association championship.

Reich, the first Notre Dame student to ever qualify for NCAA championships, raced against that nation's cream of collegiate skiers in the Slalom and Giant Slalom events. The field included members of many foreign national teams, as well as numerous future professionals.

"Many of my competitors train seven days a week under the advisement of a coach," said Reich. The Notre Dame student fared well against his trained competition, placing 23rd of 90 in the Giant Slalom. A fall prevented a comparable finish in the Slalom. Although his week may not have been the carefree break many Irish students enjoyed, Reich spoke well of his experience.

"It was a real honor to compete against the best college skiers in the country," said Reich. In placing 33rd, Reich himself certainly deserves to be classified among the nation's elite.

No Notre Dame fencer seriously injured in accident

By MIKE SCRUDATO
Sports Editor

Senior David Calderhead, the Notre Dame fencing team's two-time epee All-American and captain, was hospitalized late Tuesday evening due to injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident.

David Calderhead, a native of Wandsford, England, was exiting the Cash Station at 11:30 p.m. at the US 23-Ironwood intersection on a motorcycle when he was hit by an oncoming car. Neither direction had appeared to have seen the other. Calderhead's knee was shattered in the impact and he was taken to the hospital.

By the time most of you are reading this, arguably the greatest sports event in America, if not the world, will have begun—the NCAA Tournament. Over the course of the next two weeks 64 teams will try to find their way to Minneapolis. Though almost everyone has their own bracket filled out and has their own idea of who will be in this year’s Final Four, there is really no way of knowing.

How many people picked Eastern Michigan to reach the Sweet 16 last year, given that so many of you had Villanova winning it all in 1985 or North Carolina State in 1983.

These are the things that make the NCAA Tournament so special. Upsets are almost every year. Every year the entire country is provided with a Cinderella team to root for.

This year two of the biggest long shots in the field are Campbell and Howard. The Camels have the dubious distinction of facing defending champion and top-ranked Duke today. Howard is the lowest ranked team in the field to reach Sugarloaf’s Power Rankings, coming in at 243rd. The Bison make their Tournament debut against Kansas tomorrow.

Do either of these teams have a great chance of winning? But the fact that they have a chance is the thing that makes the NCAA’s so much fun. In a single elimination tournament, anything is possible.

Though the Camels and the Bison will most likely be spectators by Saturday, there are some lower-seeded teams that have a chance to make some noise.

For a while it looked as if the Notre Dame men’s basketball team’s season would come to an abrupt end last night at the Joyce ACC.

Irish hang on to beat WMU 63-56 in NIT

Russell sparks ND in last nine minutes with big plays

Notre Dame made one last run as they opened up a 23-point lead, 66-43, with 9:38 remaining in the game.

While UCLA (20-9) was not sizzling from the field either, 27 offensive boards compensated for its 41 percent shooting.

"When you are an aggressive team on defense like we are, you tend to get on the boards more," explained Bruins coach Billie Moore. "We also were able to get the game to our tempo early, and we changed what they wanted to do offensively.

"We were able to get into the game to our tempo early, and we changed what they wanted to do offensively.

"Notre Dame point guard Nicole Anderson exploited her quickness advantage on her Irish counterpart Kara Leary, scoring 10 first half points, two better than her season average and dishing off three assists.

"I noticed that while Leary played me tough the entire game, she had a difficult time staying with me," noted Anderson, who finished with 16 points.

However, the Irish were able to stay close in the first half. Despite shooting less than 30 percent for the half, they were only down 37-24 at halftime. Freshman Letitia Bowen’s 12 first half points helped keep Notre Dame within striking distance.

Coming out of the locker room after halftime, the Irish still hung tough, holding UCLA scoreless for over four minutes at one point early in the second half. But they could score just seven points themselves during that stretch, putting the Bruins lead to nine, 44-35, with 14:49 remaining in the game.

"We stayed with them for a while and played good defense during that period of time, but we just couldn’t capitalize," said McGraw. "We were hoping to get into a groove by working hard on the defensive end," added freshman Michelle Marinich, who led Notre Dame with 21 points.

"We played well in spurts, but we were never able to get into the flow of the game." After a UCLA timeout, the Bruins were able to build back a comfortable margin. Sophomore Amy Jalwala scored 13 straight points for UCLA during a 16-4 Bruins run as they opened up a 23-point lead, 66-43, with 9:38 to go.

"A team will be successful if its spurs last longer and are more productive than it’s opponent’s," explained Moore. "Tonight, our spurs were more explosive and more productive."

Notre Dame made one last spurt effort two minutes later. Co-captain Jennifer Mullan scored 16-footer from the baseline and then hit two free throws.

LOS ANGELES—The tone of the game was set in the first two Notre Dame possessions. First, senior Margaret Nowlin missed a wide-open layin. The next, Germaine Rabyse could not convert after a nice drive to the basket.

It was a good kind of night for the Irish, who hit only 34 percent from the field in a 93-72 loss to the UCLA Bruins in the first round of the NCAA women's basketball tournament.

Notre Dame's first-over appearance in the NCAA's got off to a bad start as the Bruins raced to an early 17-3 lead. The Irish never looked back. During the stretch, the Irish (14-18) made just one of their first 14 shots.

"I thought all of our shots early were good ones," said Notre Dame coach Muffet McGraw. "But we were extremely nervous at the start, and we never regained our composure."

And while UCLA (20-9) was not sizzling from the field either, 27 offensive boards compensated for its 41 percent shooting.

"When you are an aggressive team on offense like we are, you tend to get on the boards more," explained Bruins coach Billie Moore. "We also were able to get the game to our tempo early, and we changed what they wanted to do offensively.

"We were hoping to get into a groove by working hard on the defensive end," added freshman Michelle Marinich, who led Notre Dame with 21 points. "We played well in spurts, but we were never able to get into the flow of the game."
