A University task force was involved in developing a revised food and drink policy for the University's libraries this summer.

According to Sonja Jordan, assistant librarian and head of the task force, the policy, which prohibits food and drink in ar­ exs of the library other than the pit, has always existed; the task force's aim was to develop a means of enforcing the policy.

"But it was never enforced because we realized it was a problem until the last couple of years," she said.

The problems, according to Jordan, have been limited to isolated incidents, but neverthose have caused a threat to the University's library collections. She added that the increased use of the library by both graduate and undergraduates, although a positive change, has also lead to complaints from students that,
due to eating and socializing, the library has become less conducive to studying, and books are being damaged or destroyed.

According to Jordan, as well as a flyer published by the University Libraries, "In order to reduce avoidable mainte­ inance concerns, to help insure the protection and preservation of library materials, and to prevent the disruption of the study and research functions of the University Libraries, the Food and Drink Policy is strictly enforced."

Jordan said along with the flyer, the library has posted a sign to remind library users that no food or drink is allowed.

"There will be some who will say 'Oh fine, this will restore order and peace to the library,'" said Jordan, "and others who will see it as a personal inconve­ ience. We're hoping most will see it as a rational decision and say 'OK.'"

The rationality in the decision, according to Jordan, lies in the fact that along with an effort to conserv e our natural resources, we should also make a concerted effort to preserve our intellectual heritage.

"If we don't protect our collections now, someone will have to pay for it down the line," said Jordan.

But the process of developing the revised food and drink policy was not an easy one. Following an initial miscommunication be­tween Bong Miquibas, a student senator, and the task force,
Jordan said the student input became a part of the final policy.

The grass is greener on the other quad

The university made some nice improvements around campus over the summer, but the decision to put sidewalks across South Quad leading to the dining hall was not a good one from the student's perspective. (No more South Quad foot traffic.)

Not one person I have talked to has had anything—positive to say, except that it might save 10 seconds of walking time, since pedestrians can cut through the quad rather than walk around the grass.

Anyone on South Quad knows that the students there enjoy these areas for recreation, study, and sun bathing. While we can still lay out for sun, nobody is going to lay out for a catch knowing there could be a nice slab of concrete off the field.

Why would the university spend the money to construct a road through our football field? Maybe to save a buck in the long run.

Admittedly, the quads get pretty torn up after weeks of use, but we have gotten along so far with that turquoise spray-on grass stuff. Besides, the golf course takes its share of abuse, but we don't see cement tee-off areas. Maybe to save a buck in the long run.

Besides, the golf course takes its share of abuse, but we don't see cement tee-off areas. Maybe to save a buck in the long run.

Maybe the solution that would benefit both the school and its student body would be to take out the grass and replace it with artificial turf. They could call it Domerturf, patent it and sell it at the bookstore marked up, oh, five hundred percent.

This is a pretty good idea. They wouldn't have to mow, spray, or water it. They wouldn't have to poke those goofy holes in it and leave dirt pellets everywhere, just sweep it off after football weekends. Now that's how to save and make money.

Actually, that's not a very good idea either. Maybe the students should boycott the sidewalks. They could write to the Dean of Students and say, Walk to the dining halls the old way and send a message that Notre Dame students like grass. Honest to goodness, the quads here is not really the quad, but the move by someone, presumably in the domed building, to do this without really notifying students or even asking for student input.

The best response, then, is to boycott those silly sidewalks.

While the money spent to repair the grass was probably the main reason for the move, it does not appear that the concerns of the students were addressed in making the decision.

Such decisions do not coincide with the idea of this being a university for students, but rather a business for the bosses.

Surely not all the bosses wanted to oust our natural turf, but some people did. I'm sure everyone appreciated all efforts that tried to make Notre Dame a bit more green, a bit more environment-friendly.

Maybe we can still play football there, but if we do, it may be a parking lot next year.

DeBartolo Building puts ND ‘on the cutting edge’

Notre Dame’s new Edward DeBartolo Classroom Building integrates multi-media and computer technology into the educational environment, putting the University “right on the cutting edge,” said Sister Elaine DesRosiers, director of educational media.

“This is something that a lot of universities are coming to look at,” said Lisa Berg, assistant director of campus clusters at the Office of University Computing.

The project cost $22 million to complete. DeBartolo donated $16 million to the building, part of a $33 million gift to Notre Dame in 1989, the largest in the history of the University, according to Dennis Brown, assistant director of public relations.

With 84 classrooms ranging from 20-seat seminar rooms to a 450-seat auditorium, the 136,000 square foot DeBartolo Building gives professors the opportunity to tap into as many as six media presentations at the touch of a button.

The heart of the building is a Media-on-Call system, which connects classrooms to a Master Control center, DesRosiers said. The fiber optic network will eventually let professors pre-schedule a variety of media sources, including videocassettes, satellite transmissions and television.

“We already have a large number of professors who use media presentations,” said DesRosiers, “and we expect it to increase.” She predicts that at least 40 rooms will be using the Media-on-Call system on a daily basis.

The University is now in the process of converting 54 old classrooms for other uses, primarily for office space, according to Brown. With the completion of the new facility, Notre Dame has 175 classrooms on campus.

The building also offers:
• A Learning Resource Center, including ten video carrels for individual viewing and four small-group viewing areas with space for six people in each.
• Two computer classrooms with a total of 30 Macintosh and 30 DOS stations. The Freshman Writing Program plans to use collaborative writing software in the Macintosh classroom, said Berg.
• A first-floor computer cluster that contains 78 computers, including 52 Macintosh computers and 26 IBM PS-2 computers. The cluster will be open 24 hours on weekdays starting Sept. 7, according to Berg.
• Four rooms that can connect with the satellite uplink at WNDU to originate a teleconference.

The building is the second of a projected four-building quad­rangle on the south end of Notre Dame’s campus. The Hesburgh Center for International Studies on the southwest corner of the quadrangle was completed last year.

Work will begin in June 1993 on a new business school complex just south of the DeBartolo building. The remaining $17 million of DeBartolo’s gift will go toward the construction of the Marie DeBartolo Center for Performing Arts.

Despite reports in the Wall Street Journal last February about DeBartolo’s financial difficulties, Dennis Brown of public relations said that there have been no reports that De­Bartolo will not be able to meet his pledge.

The newly constructed DeBartolo Classroom Building combines computer technology and undergraduate education. This year many students will have the opportunity to learn in this building.

During past years, Notre Dame students have been victims of a number of assaults in the off-campus area south of the University.

The principal area of concern is indicated on the map below, but other attacks have occurred east and north of campus.

The number of violent crimes on University property remains relatively low, but reports have been made of individuals who have been accosted along St. Mary's Road, St. Joseph's Lake and the parking lots east of Juniper Road.

Here is what the University is doing to protect you:

- University security and police officers provide 24-hour foot and vehicular patrols on the campus property. Additionally, security personnel are stationed at the East and Main Gates 24 hours every day.

- Eighteen Emergency Call Stations have been located in peripheral parts of campus; these phones should be used to report suspicious activity or crimes to the Security/Police Department. Telephones are also located at the main entrance of residence halls. Contact security/police by dialing 283-4444 or 239-5555. You may also summon assistance by calling 9-1-1 from any pay telephone on campus.

- Campus lighting has been increased. The University is continuing to evaluate the sufficiency of lighting on campus.

- University security/police personnel are available for crime prevention programs, discussions and/or consultations both on and off campus. Off-campus programs are cooperative efforts with the South Bend and St. Joseph County Police Departments.

- Officials from the City of South Bend and the University meet on a regular basis to work together to make the South Bend - Notre Dame community safer.

Here is what you can do to protect yourself:

- Assaults have occurred in the area south of campus and in the peripheral areas of campus. If at all possible, avoid those areas after dark.

- Don't over consume alcohol. Alcohol dulls your judgment and awareness and slows your reflexes.

- Use good sense. Don't provoke or otherwise instigate an incident. Avoid large threatening groups of unfamiliar people.

- Be aware of your surroundings at all times. Is there someone in front of you or behind you? Does someone appear to be following you? If a person ahead of you appears threatening, cross the street.

- Don't walk alone. Avoid dark areas. Try to travel in groups. Note, however, some reported incidents have involved victims walking in groups of two or three.

- If driving a car, park in well-lit areas and lock your doors.

- Use the SafeWalk escort service on campus from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. by calling 283-BLUE (283-2583), at other times call Notre Dame Security at 283-4444.

- If you are a victim, don't threaten or pursue your attacker. Try to get a good description and immediately report it to police. On campus, call 283-4444 or 239-5555. Off campus, call 9-1-1.

- Learn more about crime prevention strategies by participating in or sponsoring a crime prevention program available through Notre Dame Security/Police or area police agencies.

- Take responsibility for your personal safety and the safety of others by BEING ALERT AT ALL TIMES. Immediately report suspicious activity or crime to the police.

If you see trouble on or off campus, report it!
On Campus, Call 283-4444 or 239-5555 — Off Campus, Call 9-1-1

ND professor emeritus Fischer dies at age 77

By PAUL PEARSON
Associate News Editor

Edward Fischer, professor emeritus of journalism and American studies at Notre Dame, died on Aug. 10 at St. Joseph's Care Center in South Bend. He was 77.

Fischer, a 1937 graduate of Notre Dame, was born Aug. 17, 1914, in Buechel, Ky. He joined the ND faculty in 1947 after writing for the South Bend News-Times and the Herald-Examiner of Chicago. Before teaching at ND, he taught journalism at St. Joseph's College in Benesvelder, Ind.

Fischer wrote 14 books, including "A Chancy War," and "Notre Dame Remembered," his autobiography. He also wrote and starred in a television series on film study produced in Hollywood.

Thomas Stritch, professor emeritus of American studies at ND, called Fischer a highly successful teacher who "taught both writing and design in innovative ways."

Edward Fischer

Fischer's wife, Mary, a civic leader and host of a public television show, died Aug. 7, 1991. Both Edward and Mary donated their remains to medical science.

Fischer wrote 14 books, including "A Chancy War," and "Notre Dame Remembered," his autobiography. He also wrote and starred in a television series on film study produced in Hollywood.

Edward Fischer

Fischer is survived by two sons, John of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Thomas of Albuquerque, N.M.; two grandchildren; and a sister, Bertha Fischer of Louisville, Ky.

Deviny dies from cancer

By PAUL PEARSON
Associate News Editor

Patrick Deviny, a 1991 Notre Dame graduate from Bellevue, Wash., died on June 23, after a long battle with illness.

Deviny, a resident of Stanford Hall and an active member of the Glee Club during his years on campus, earned his bachelor's degree in aerospace engineering.

Grace Hall rector Father Terence Linton, who was assistant rector at Stanford when Deviny lived there, met Deviny when he was hospitalized by his cancer. He said that Deviny was very "well-liked" by the people who knew him.

Despite the severity of his illness, Deviny was very straightforward about his condition, Linton said. "He had a great personal strength."

Searle, theology professor, dies after fight with illness

By PAUL PEARSON
Associate News Editor

Mark Searle, associate professor of theology at Notre Dame, died Aug. 16 in his home in Niles, Mich., after a bout with illness. He was 51.

A native of Bristol, England, Searle joined the Notre Dame faculty in 1978, specializing in pastoral liturgy and ritual studies. He also served as associate director of Notre Dame's Center for Pastoral Liturgy, editing its publication "Assembly" from 1978 to 1984.

In 1983 Searle was elected president of the North American Academy of Liturgy.

Searle coordinated Notre Dame's graduate program in liturgical studies, and he directed the master's degree program in theology from 1983 to 1988.

In addition, Searle wrote or edited seven books, including the textbook "The Church Speaks About Sacraments with Children." He also wrote the script for "Priestly People," a popular video on liturgy.

Searle married Barbara Schmich in 1980. She survives with their children, Matthew, and Justin, his parents, seven sisters, and two brothers.
Bush pays official visit to area of Florida hit hardest by Hurricane Andrew's winds

MIAMI (AP) — President Bush toured hurricane-shattered neighborhoods here and Miami on Monday and assured families driven from their homes that federal officials "will do everything we can to help."

The president said he had directed federal troops into southern Florida "to provide any emergency services," if requested by state authorities.

Bush, whose tour included a Miami neighborhood hit by some looting, noted that Gov. Lawton Chiles had ordered the National Guard onto the streets and has "full confidence in them," Chiles also said he would impose a curfew.

The president's motorcade took him past wrecked homes and shopping centers and overturned tractor-trailers. In shirt sleeves and no tie in the tropical heat, Bush walked through a parking lot littered with dead birds and topped palm trees.

"I think it's the greatest national concern," he said, as he stood next to mattresses spread on the front lawn of South Miami Se­nior High School, which had been converted into a rescue shelter.

"When you have families hurting, it's hard to think it's important they know the president cares," he said.

Bush was widely criticized in 1989 for what many saw as a slow response by the federal government after Hurricane Hugo struck the Carolinas. Seventy-one days before the election, he appeared deter­mined Monday to avoid a re­peat of that.

He made a beeline back from a campaign trip in Connecticut instead of returning directly to Washington as planned.

Standing outside a devastated record store, Bush said: "We came here to make sure the federal government will do everything we can to ease the suf­fering of the people and I want to let the people know at this moment, this terrible moment, that all of us are concerned.

"And I'll say to the people of Florida, the rest of America, here to back you in any way we can."

"It's appalling," Bush said. "The estimates ... are prelimi­nary but they're in the billions," he said of damage reports received by the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

"Then you think of the human cost, the anxiety of families. That's the one that touches your heart."

Bush said a disaster-response group had been formed in Washington consisting of all 27 federal agencies involved in providing emergency relief. Moreover, he said, a joint fed­eral field office would be estab­lished.

"I am ready if necessary to move in units of the U.S. armed forces to provide any emer­gency services," he added.

Earlier Monday, the president authorized federal disaster assistance for parts of Florida hit by the storm. White House Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said funds were ap­proved for Bade, Broward and Monroe counties and other areas probably would be design­ated later.
Allies plan "no fly zone" despite Iraqi objections

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Iraq made a last-minute bid Monday to keep the United States and its allies from declaring a "no-fly zone" in southern Iraq, but Western powers were undeterred.

Washington warned Iraq to stay out of the dispute. Iraq's ambassador, Abdul al-Amir al-Abadi, met with representatives of the United States, Britain, France and Russia to object to plans to ban Iraqi aircraft south of the 32nd parallel, said sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Iraqi planes have reportedly attacked Shiite Muslims in the southern marshlands, and the allies plan to warn Iraq, whose planes could be shot down. President Bush is expected to announce the plan Tuesday.

The restriction would effectively divide Iraq into three parts — the Shiite zone, a "safe haven" in the north set up by Saddam Hussein's Sunni Muslim government and the rest of the country west of the Shatt al-Arab, the Tigris-Euphrates system that runs through Iraq.

Details of Iraq's presentation Monday were not immediately available. It was believed, however, to be an outline to Baghdad's objections to the restrictions.

Deputy U.S. Ambassador Alexander Watson and French Ambassador Jean-Bernard Merimee told reporters they intended to proceed with the "no-fly zone."

"What he told us won't be of a nature to make us change our mind," Merimee said.

In Washington, a U.S. source said the United States sent Iraqi diplomats a letter warning them not to take advantage of limitations being imposed on the Iraqi military. Iran has armed and trained Shiites, many of whom oppose Saddam, and the "no-fly zone" could increase Iran's influence in the area.

Iraq and Iran fought a 1980-88 war that claimed more than 1 million lives, according to some estimates.

"This move will allow neighboring countries to send in terrorist elements.... There are training camps within the Iraqi borders ready for operations in case of such a division," Nabil Nejm, Iraq's representative at the Arab League, told reporters Sunday in Cairo, Egypt.

Iraq's U.N. ambassador, Kamal Khazaali, asked about any U.S. warning, told The Associated Press, "I don't know about that. I've got to check."

Publicly, Iran backed the principle of protecting the Shiites from Iraqi attacks, but questioned the motives of the United States and its allies.

The English-language Tehran Times asked last week: "What is the objective behind aerial defense of bits and pieces of Iraq? If behind this attempt lurks the intention to partition Iraq, Iran under no circumstances can accept such a division and change of geographical demarcations."

A peace conference sponsored by the European Community and the United Nations was set to open Wednesday in London. Attending were leaders of the warring Serbs, Croats and Muslims in Bosnia, as well as senior officials of Serbia and Croatia.

Bosnia's majority Croats and Muslims voted for independence from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia on Feb. 29. Ethnic Serbs in Bosnia took up arms against that plan and now control two-thirds of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

At least 8,000 people have been killed in the conflict; some estimates put the number as high as 35,000. About 1.3 million have been made homeless, many in "ethnic cleansing" campaigns to drive unwanted ethnic groups from certain regions.

Serb fighters reportedly hold about 7,500 people in camps; Croats and Serbs fewer than 2,000.

Sarajevo, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — A U.N. team investigating alleged atrocities of the Bosnian war was refused entry into a prison camp, and the mission's leader on Monday accused the Serbs running it of covering up conditions inside.

Former Polish Premier Jan Olszewski arrived in Sarajevo one day after his team failed to gain access to the Manjaca camp at Banja Luka, about 100 miles to the northwest.

Fighting in Sarajevo intensified as night approached. Doctors at hospitals, coping with frequent electrical and water outages, reported six dead and 18 wounded in a new round of mortar and rocket attacks on the capital.

The airport was reopened Monday. U.N. peacekeepers had closed it to aid flights over the weekend after shells hit the runway.

In Brussels, Belgium, meanwhile, NATO military authorities drew up new plans that sources said called for deploying 6,000 soldiers to protect humanitarian aid shipments to Bosnia.

Ambassadors of the 16 North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations will meet Tuesday to consider the plans, revised after an earlier draft for a larger mission of 100,000 soldiers was rejected.

The airport was reopened Monday. U.N. peacekeepers had closed it to aid flights over the weekend after shells hit the runway.

In Brussels, Belgium, meanwhile, NATO military authorities drew up new plans that sources said called for deploying 6,000 soldiers to protect humanitarian aid shipments to Bosnia.

Ambassadors of the 16 North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations will meet Tuesday to consider the plans, revised after an earlier draft for a larger mission of 100,000 soldiers was rejected.

A peace conference sponsored by the European Community and the United Nations was set to open Wednesday in London. Attending were leaders of the warring Serbs, Croats and Muslims in Bosnia, as well as senior officials of Serbia and Croatia.

Bosnia's majority Croats and Muslims voted for independence from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia on Feb. 29. Ethnic Serbs in Bosnia took up arms against that plan and now control two-thirds of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

At least 8,000 people have been killed in the conflict; some estimates put the number as high as 35,000. About 1.3 million have been made homeless, many in "ethnic cleansing" campaigns to drive unwanted ethnic groups from certain regions.

Serb fighters reportedly hold about 7,500 people in camps; Croats and Serbs fewer than 2,000.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — A U.N. team investigating alleged atrocities of the Bosnian war was refused entry into a prison camp, and the mission's leader on Monday accused the Serbs running it of covering up conditions inside.

Former Polish Premier Jan Olszewski arrived in Sarajevo one day after his team failed to gain access to the Manjaca camp at Banja Luka, about 100 miles to the northwest.

Fighting in Sarajevo intensified as night approached. Doctors at hospitals, coping with frequent electrical and water outages, reported six dead and 18 wounded in a new round of mortar and rocket attacks on the capital.

Western fire spread by wind

ROUND MOUNTAIN, Calif. (AP) — Pre-dawn winds blew a new life into a 64,000-acre wildfire Monday, causing hundreds out of their beds and into their cars as the flames jumped control lines in at least two places.

The 5-day-old fire already had destroyed more than 300 homes, and hundreds more were in its path.

"A sheriff's deputy woke us up at 4 a.m. and told us, 'Hey, get out! The fire's coming!'" said Dave Buddy, 43, who lives near Round Mountain, Napa County.

In Idaho, meanwhile, firefighters used a brief moment of cooler temperatures Monday to try to cut off a 257,000-acre fire about 30 miles east of Boise.

The Foothills fire reportedly destroyed Idaho's oldest ponderosa pine tree and huge amounts of big game habitat, as well as many deer and elk themselves.

The blaze was slowed during the weekend by daytime temperatures that dropped from near 100 into the 70s, higher humidity and rain.

"They're backing the sides of the fire and they're going to try to pinch it off," Boise National Forest spokesman Kay Beall said. "This cooler weather has helped slow things down a lot, but we still have some erratic winds so the fire's still moving." Across Idaho, more than 5,000 firefighters continued working on fires that have burned across nearly 320,000 acres of forest and range.

About 1,800 people were fighting the Foothills blaze, which entered its sixth day.

Crews hoped to contain it by Wednesday or Thursday, when rain is expected.

The fire destroyed 307 homes when it roared through Round Mountain and several other tiny communities about 200 miles northeast of San Francisco. It has blackened 300,000 acres of timber and is threatening nearly 500 houses.

Bulldozer crews cleared 80 miles of firebreaks around the fire and containment was at 40 percent, the California Division of Forestry said. But winds of up to 25 mph were expected to worsen Northern California fire conditions in a region bone-dry from six years of drought.

About 3,000 firefighters battled the blaze as they moved north toward old-growth forests along the Plit River and southwest toward Mills Creek, Oak Run, Fern and other villages.

Elsewhere, forecasted winds from 25 to 30 mph and low humidity threatened to kick the 6,400-acre Barker fire over containment lines, said CDF Bob Buhrt.

More than 1,200 firefighters managed to keep an 8,200-acre blaze in Inyo National Forest on the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada from spreading into inhabited areas, fire spokesman Jeff From said. Fire bosses expected to extinguish the 5-day-old blaze by Saturday.

The centerpiece of Bush's plan calls $3,000 vouchers for adults to use for retraining at trade schools or community colleges. These would go to people who had lost their jobs, been notified their jobs were being terminated, or who worked in declining industries and wanted to sharpen their skills.

Young men in work clothes at the Lincoln Technical Institute howed when Bush singled out Clinton's idea to finance job training through the new tax on employers. "He sees job training as a tax raiser and he wants to tax workers to pay for their own training and tax small business — this is the one that's the worst — taxing small busi­nesses around the country 1.5 percent," Bush said, speaking to about 700 students and faculty members inside a cinderblock mechanics shop.

Bush said, "There is no point in training people for jobs if their plan is going to be in the process of destroying jobs.
WASHINGTON (AP) — Hillary Clinton and Tipper Gore fired back Monday at Republican assaults on Mrs. Clinton and painted the GOP as a party that wants to bash "other people's families" rather than solve family problems.

"They had their chance to talk about the future ... and instead they chose to make up stories and launch verbal grenades," Mrs. Clinton said in her first detailed reply to last week's attacks on her at the Republican National Convention.

She and Mrs. Gore gave a double-barreled response on Monday morning's talk shows, appearing on NBC's "Today" and "CBS This Morning" in interviews taped during the Clinton-Gore campaign's weekend bus tour of the Rust Belt. Also Monday, the two women were featured in a Cable News Network spot.

It was their first national exposure since last week's GOP convention in Houston, where President Bush's supporters focused on values and aimed much of their fire at Mrs. Clinton, a Yale-educated lawyer.

Conservative Patrick Buchanan cast Mrs. Clinton as a radical feminist who likens marriage to slavery; Marilyn Quayle got in a more subtle dig, saying liberals are disinterested "because most women do not wish to be liberated from their essential natures as women."

Mrs. Clinton told CBS that Mrs. Quayle's remark was "a bit of an insult to today's modern women, most of whom are working mothers and struggling very hard to balance their family's needs with the family's economic needs."

"There's no reason for us to be dividing women against women or men against women. This country needs people who want to reach beyond these boundaries and quit pointing fingers at one another," she said.

Mrs. Clinton said the Republican charges against her were "so preposterous" it was difficult to respond. She said she didn't take the attacks personally, dismissing them as typical Republican campaign tactics.

"How could you get hurt by things that aren't true?" she asked. "It's a very calculated, unfortunate kind of political tactic ... But it doesn't affect us."

Mrs. Clinton is a former board member of the Children's Defense Fund who for years has worked in Arkansas on programs to help preschoolers and reduce infant mortality. She and Democratic nominee Bill Clinton, the Arkansas governor, have a 12-year-old daughter, Chelsea.

Mrs. Clinton said she didn't want to get into a "rhetorical battle" with Mrs. Quayle.

Israel expresses goodwill in new round of Mideast peace talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new round of Mideast peace talks opened Monday with expressions of goodwill from Israel and statements from the Arabs that Israel's change in government could set the stage for real progress.

Syria, especially, was cheered by Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's assertion that U.N. resolutions calling for territorial withdrawal applied to the Golan Heights, which Syria hopes to recover at the peace table. It apparently was the first time Israel had made the concession in the nearly 10 months of negotiations.

"We heard today a different tone, a different approach and style and atmosphere" from the Israelis, said Syrian spokeswoman Boushra Kanadifi.

She said the Israelis were "reasonable and constructive" and had expressed a willingness to trade land for peace as outlined in U.N. Resolution 242. In previous rounds, Israeli-Syrian tensions had heightened and each side recalculated the positions of the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights.

The Syrian spokesman said recovering the territory was "the most important issue for Damascus, and Syria's chief negotiator, Muwaffiq al-Allaf, said Israel must give up all land on all fronts that the Arabs lost in the 1967 Six-Day war.

But Israeli sources said Itamar Rabinovich, the Israeli negotiator, had not offered any interpretation of the 1967 resolutions and a parallel one adopted by the U.N. Security Council in 1973. The sources said Israel had not offered to trade land for peace in the session.

Meanwhile, Israeli spokesman Yossi Gal registered a mild objection to any "preconditions," but insisted a chance to reaffirm at a press conference Israel's determination to hold on to the strategic buffer zone. And he said concluding a peace treaty with Lebanon should be "relatively easy" because Israel had no "territorial designs there."

"There is a new reality in the Middle East," Gal said. "There are now realities in Israel." He urged the Arab side to avoid "waging a war of words" in public and offered to limit sessions with reporters as a way of making headway.

Jordanian spokesman Marwan Moussabeh concurred on the improved atmosphere following June elections in Israel that led to hardliner Yitzhak Shamir being replaced by Yitzhak Rabin.

"The Israelis for the first time talked about a comprehensive settlement, a term they have not used before, and we think that is a positive development," Moussabeh said.

As in four of the past five rounds beginning nearly a year ago, the State Department provided the setting, along with waiters in black tie to serve coffee and snacks. Expectations were heightened by a number of Israeli gestures, including the reversal of deportation orders for 11 Palestinian Arabs, in the first negotiations since Rabin became prime minister.

"We see opportunities for real progress, and we've urged all parties to come prepared with serious, substantive proposals," Joseph Sayres, a State Department spokesman, said.

But his statement also acknowledged that the negotiators were dealing with "complicated issues that cannot be resolved overnight."

"Syria, at the outset, made clear its objective was an Israeli withdrawal from the Golan Heights and all the other land the Arabs lost in the 1967 Six-Day war. Only after Israel agrees to this "basic principle" will Syria be prepared to discuss security arrangements for the strategic territory or a peace treaty, said Muwaffiq al-Allaf, the chief Syrian negotiator.

The talks resumed with expectations that the new government in Israel might be more willing to make concessions to the Arabs than its tougher predecessor. One of Rabin's first moves was to slow down Jewish housing on the West Bank and in Gaza.

But Rabin, chief of staff in the 1967 war and a former defense minister, is probably as determined as his irascible predecessor. Yitzhak Shamir, to hold on to the Golan Heights as a security buffer. Before Israel's victory in 1967, villages in northern Israel were routinely shielded from the hills across the border.

The demand for total Israeli withdrawal on all fronts was leveled by al-Allaf as he entered the State Department building. "We are here for a comprehensive and total peace," he said, "not for a partial peace. The only way to reach a comprehensive peace is to return all the territories occupied in 1967."

Itamar Rabinovich, the chief Israeli negotiator in the talks with Syria, avoided a clash on the issue in his remarks to reporters. "We are expecting to see more progress," he said. "As you know very well, Israel has a new government. We come here with a lot of good will, many high hopes."

Simultaneously, Israeli and Lebanese negotiators began their meetings and chief Israeli negotiator Ulyakim Rubinstein and Haidar Abdul Shafi, the leader of the Palestinian delegation, met separately.
Protection needed for U.S. airlift

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Relief officials said Monday a planned U.S. airlift was desperately needed by Somalia's starving in remote areas of the drought-ravaged country. But they warned they might not be able to protect the food from bandits who operate freely during Somalia's civil war.

"We are optimistic, but there's a lot of freedom gunmen out there," said David Bassiouni, U.N. humanitarian coordinator for Somalia. "We can only hope for the best."

Bassiouni said a 500-man Pakistani army unit would help protect food shipments but the troops would not arrive before mid-September.

He presumed leaders of war­ring Somali clans to permit the Pakistani guard Mogadishu, Somalia's capital and main port where an uneasy U.N.-mediated truce took effect in March.

Officials said "Green Berets" of the U.S. Army's Special Forces would protect three airstrips in southern Somalia but only while U.S. cargo planes are on the ground. The strips are in the hardest-hit parts of Somalia, where relief officials estimate hundreds of thousands are just weeks away from death.

Once unloaded, the sacks of grain will be the responsibility of the U.N. World Food Pro­gram, which must rely on a ragtag army of hired armed guards for security.

"It's a worrisome situation, all right," said Mark Stirling of Australia, representative of the U.N. Children's Fund, or UNICEF.

But hungry families cannot wait, Sterling said.

Somalia's death toll is esti­mated at about 2,000 people a day, mostly children, but relief workers say they cannot esti­mate accurately since so many stricken areas are beyond their reach.

Officials said the increasing flow of food could attract ban­dits beyond control of war­ring clan leaders. As smaller ship­ments trickle into areas where no relief agencies operate, they are vulnerable to isolated loot­ing.

Although the airlift can help only a small fraction of the 1.5 million to 2 million Somalis in immediate danger, it will bring new energy to relief efforts and help until larger shipments can be brought in by ship, officials said.

Bassiouni said the country remains extremely tense, threatening to burst again into widespread clan warfare.

About 140 foreign aid work­ers are in Somalia, not counting 50 unarmed U.N. peacekeepers sent to observe the cease-fire in Mogadishu between rival factions of a rebel army that ousted President Mohamed Siad Barre.

Muslims muster support in Lebanese national elections

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Muslim fundamentalists linked to former hostage-takers em­barrassed the secular govern­ment with a strong showing in Lebanon's first parliamentary elections in two decades, ac­cording to unofficial returns Monday.

Four candidates from Hezbollah and several others associated with the Shiite Mus­lim group won seats, giving radical factions a boost going into voting rounds in Beirut and other stronghold of President Elias Hrawi's pro-Syrian government.

The Parliament speaker was among the losers in the voting held Sunday — the first of three rounds that will likely end the Christian dominance of political power.

Right-wing Christians have urged followers to boycott the vote to protest the presence of Syrian troops, which were called in under an Arab League mandate to end the 1975-90 civil war in this half-Christian, half-Muslim nation.

There were complaints of fraud from all sides during Sunday's voting, which was limited to the predominantly Shi'ite Bekaa Valley of east Le­banon and in north Lebanon, which is half-Christian, half-Sunni Muslim.

The elections are scheduled to be conducted on three con­secutive Sundays, giving Le­banese security forces time to shift from region to region.

Christians, who have called for a boycott when their region votes on Aug. 30, urged Hrawi's government to cancel the election and resign.

The right-wingers and Hrawi belong to the Maronite Catholic Church. But while Hrawi has cast his lot with the Syrians, the right-wing Phalange Party has long opposed Syria, Lebanon's mostly Muslim and militarily powerful neighbor.

In the absence of elections, which are supposed to take place every four years, Parlia­ment has simply passed legis­lation extending its life since the mid-1970s. This has con­tinued the constitutional supremacy accorded to Ma­ronites ever since Lebanon gained independence from France in 1943.

The elections are being con­ducted under an Arab League plan which ended the civil war. The new 128-member Parlia­ment is to be half-Christian and half-Muslim and take office Oct. 15.

Hezbollah, long considered the umbrella group for the holders of Western hostages, fielded six candidates in the Bekaa. Four won, including Hezbollah standard-bearer Sheik Ibrahim al-Sayyed, a se­nior clergyman, according to unofficial results. The fate of the other two was not known.

Two Sunnis, a Greek Catholic and a Maronite Catholic aligned with Hezbollah also won. These­ alliances are a result of the election system, which appor­tion seats in a combination of geographic districts and reli­gious quotas.

The Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, claimed defeated Parliament Speaker Hussein Hussein by a margin of more than two-to­one, 32,342 votes for the black­ turbaned clergyman, and 14,510 for Hussein.

Congress reveals corruption in Brazilian government

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Congress accused President Fernando Collor de Mello on Monday of running a government riddled with corruption, increasing calls for the impeachment of Brazil’s first directly elected leader after decades of military rule.

The final report of a two-month corruption probe revealed the inner workings of what it termed an “industry of influence trafficking” that it said Collor should have known about.

The report was the culmination of months of suspicion and scandal since Collor’s brother Pedro charged the president with corruption in a magazine interview published in May.

Brazilians see the scandal as a test of their new democracy. Traditionally, powerful Brazilians have broken the law with impunity, and ordinary citizens in Latin America’s largest country wonder if this time things will be different.

“Brazil will not be the same,” said Amir Lando, the report’s author, as he read the entire 220-page document in a national television broadcast. He called the case “a huge scandal.”

Collor, who denies any wrongdoing and refuses to resign, ignored the five-hour reading of the report and presented over a ceremony at the presidential palace. His spokesman, Everaldo Dias, called the report “a pack of lies.”

The reading was interrupted briefly when students entered Congress with a sign reading “Impeachment Now.” Security guards removed them.

Share prices on the Sao Paulo stock market, Brazil’s largest, were slightly up by noon. “It was like a sigh of relief,” said Eduardo Levy, a former president of the exchange. “It represents optimism that the crisis is ending and Collor will leave office, either through resignation or impeachment.”

Recent polls show up to 70 percent of Brazilians want Collor out, and pro-impeachment rallies are held daily across the country.

Collor began his five-year term in March 1990 promising clean government and a better economy. He now faces a 20 percent monthly inflation and high unemployment.

His election came after two decades of military dictatorship and a military-chosen interim government. There is no indication public wants the military back, despite the current scandal.

The report said Collor reaped at least $5.6 million from his 1989 campaign treasurer Paulo Cesar Farias, who is accused of graft, influence peddling and tax evasion.

Legal experts say he could be charged with “passive corruption” — soliciting or receiving undue benefits — and lack of decorum. Both are impeachable offenses.

A request for impeachment must be approved by two-thirds of the 503-seat lower house of Congress. In that case, Collor would be automatically suspended for 180 days, and the Senate must decide whether to remove him permanently.

The Brazilian Bar Association has said it will request impeachment.

The report is to be sent to the Attorney-General’s office, which will decide whether to formally charge Collor. Corruption is also the subject of a fine and a prison term of up to eight years.

The panel said its report to the prosecutor would include 1,000 pounds of checks and documents.

Collor has tried to shore up support by throwing open the public coffers in an effort to buy votes in Congress.
Man charged with Sudafed poisoning

SEATTLE (AP) — An insurance agent, hoping to collect $700,000 on two policies his wife issued to him, married her, made her severely ill and killed two strangers by poisoning cold medicine with cyanide, prosecutors said Monday.

The tampering in early 1991 led to a nationwide recall of Sudafed 12-hour cold capsules.

Joseph Earl Meling, 31, of Olympia, was indicted Friday at a federal grand jury on six counts of product tampering, two counts of giving false statements in lawsuits and 12 counts of mail fraud. The tampering charges cover the two deaths, his wife's injury and three contaminated capsules found later in Tacom-area stores.

The indictment was sealed until Meling could be arrested Sunday at his home. He was to make an initial appearance before a federal magistrate Monday. Meling held in a Seattle area jail, will plead "not guilty" to all charges, said his attorney, Cyrus Vance. U.S. At­torney Mike McCurry said.

Vance said, "If the surveillance showed his phone use, that would prove he was probably contacting his wife at the time she was poisoned."

The surveillance showed Meling had gone to a store that sold cold and allergy medicine to look for his wife and had tried to influence his wife and other family members not to talk to prosecutors, McKay said.

The indictment alleges Meling poisoned the capsules to kill his wife, Jennifer Meling, 29, so he could collect the life insurance from his then-employer, Prudential Insurance Co. On Jan. 23, 1991, 10 days before she was poisoned, Meling added a double-indemnity rider on her policy to provide for accidental death, McKay said.

Three months earlier, Meling had asked a fellow Prudential agent if the rider would pay off in the case of a poisoning by an over-the-counter drug, McKay said.

In court papers, McKay portrayed Meling as selfish and manipulative, and above all toward his wife. On Dec. 22, 1990, Meling told police in a 911 call that her husband tried to push her face into a kitchen cupboard. She declined to press charges, McKay said.

Although the couple was saddled with heavy debts — Meling at times worked three jobs to help pay bills — Meling indulged in expensive hobbies such as photography and computers, and frequented strip-tease bars where he paid dancers hundreds of dollars to perform, McKay said.

On Jan. 18, 1991, six days before his wife was poisoned, Meling told a fellow Prudential agent if the rider would pay off in the case of a poisoning by an over-the-counter drug, McKay said.

A female detective who overheard the conversation at a strip-tease bar later told police she had seen Meling with a girl in a car later that day. She said he had a black bag and was carrying a weapon, McKay said.

The surveillance showed that Meling had not been at his wife's house for a week before she was poisoned, McKay said.

The indictment alleges that in late January 1991, Meling complained to his wife that her snoring was keeping him awake and that she ought to take a decongestant. It says he planted a cyanide-tainted capsule among his wife's Sudafed, which she took on Feb. 2, 1991, in the couple's apartment. She fell into a coma, but recovered.

Study: Family change will slow

WASHINGTON (AP) — A half-century of change in family structure is likely to slow in the 1990s, but there is no likelihood America will return to the "Ozzie and Harriet" model of the late 1940s to early 1950s, a study said Monday.

"Ozzie and Harriet" was a recurring theme in this year's presidential campaign, but Carol De Vita, a senior research demographer at the Population Reference Bureau and an au­thor of the report, said the study did not look at particular families.

In policy-making generally, she said, "the discussion fo­cuses on the 'traditional fam­ily.' But in doing that you're leaving out a lot of other people. ... What we need to do is broaden our view of what the family is."

Much has changed since the start of the Baby Boom after World War II.

"The average age at first marriage is highest in a century — 26.3 years for men and 24.1 years for women."

"The marriage rate fell nearly 30 percent between 1970 and 1990, while the divorce rate increased nearly 40 percent."

"More than half of all mothers with preschool children worked outside the home in 1991, compared with one in five in 1960."

"One in four babies is born to an unmarried mother, com­pared with one in five in 1960."

In 1991, the most common family unit was the married couple with no children living at home. They constituted 42 percent of the families, but they included couples in various sit­uations — younger couples planning to have children, older couples whose children had left home, couples childless by choice, and others.

Nearly in eight families was headed by a single parent last year, and that percentage was five times more likely to be a mother than a father.

About a quarter of all chil­dren, more than 16 million of them, lived with only one par­ent in 1991. That's double the percentage of 1970 and nearly three times that of 1960.

"Whatever is going on, it is evidently not peculiar to the United States," De Vita said.

For example, in 1989 in the United States, 27.1 percent of all births were to unmarried women, up from 18.4 percent in 1980, from 10.7 percent in 1970 and 5.3 percent in 1960. Canada experienced a similar increase, from 4.3 percent in 1960 to 23 percent in 1989. In France, the increase during the period was 6.1 percent to 28.2 percent, and the United King­dom, 5.2 percent to 26.6 per­cent.

The analysis projects a slower rate of change in the 1990s, mostly because of the aging of the Baby Boom generation. Members of this group — those born 1946-1964 — are in their prime childbearing and child­rearing years. Through the end of the century, there likely will be little change in the overall share of families with children, the report said.

Professor sees steps missing in ‘fingerprinting’ debate

Dear Editor:

Notre Dame professors (“Kniec discusses legal aspects of abortion,” The Observer, April 30, 1992) and “Abortion, how law ignores science,” (Chicago Tribune, July 14, 1992) have claimed that new biological evidence, the Jef­frey’s technique of DNA fingerprinting, is used to pin down criminals. However, many people still are missing, and may be non­existent or incoherent.

DNA “fingerprinting” is used to determine the disease, or to include a suspect in the class of those possibly present at a crime scene. Such “fingerprints” have convinced American jurors that of the 250 or 2500 US citizens whose DNA fingerprints are indistinguishable from the ev­i­dence, only the accused could have committed the crime.

In such circumstances, an otherwise meaningless se­quence of eight digits would make a fine fingerprint. But which major ethical tradi­tion agrees that a genetic “bar­code” defines human individu­ality?

Are we being asked to think genetic determinism compatible with the Catholic moral tradition?

Segregation can only hurt us

Dear Editor:

As we begin the school year, I am calling for everyone to make an effort to increase racial harmony on campus. In the past at Notre Dame, there have been racial tensions which have promoted stereo­types, fears, myths, lies, igno­rance and hatred.

We need to ease the racial tensions by communication and interaction among the races. If this is done, we will find out we have more in common than one might expect. Some people believe segre­gation is the only way as an American people can have rac­ial harmony.

Segregation only promotes fears and myths among the races and such an ideal can destroy a nation.

We must work together as one people in order to survive; if we do not, we will then de­stroy each other.

As you walk around campus and see the variety of skin complexes, please look at one another as unique children of God instead of stereotypical off­spring of some color.

Mary Beth Wilkinson is the first woman to try out for Irish Guard.

The Irish Guard is not as strange as it may seem.

"I want to go to law school, and I figured if I could survive this, I could survive anything," Wilkinson said.

Still, the physical and emotional elements of tryouts and the traditional male camaraderie of the group have exceeded her expectations.

New Jersey wins Little League night game

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — South Holland, Ill., became the third team to advance to the Little League World Series when it defeated Titusville, Pa., 4-1, Tuesday. Titusville went 3-0 in round-robin play to reach the title game.

In other games, Lake Charles, La., 5-0 Monday night in the first night game in the history of the Little League World Series. In other games on Monday, Long Beach, Calif., the Dominican Republic and the Philippines also won.

Pitcher Matt Wolski handcuffed Lake Charles, which managed to hit the ball out of the infield just twice, and his triple in the first inning drove in the only run his team would need. Matt O'Neill added a three-run homer in the fifth.

In other games on Monday, Long Beach took a 7-1 lead in the top of the fourth, but South Holland rallied for five in the bottom of the inning to stay close. "I didn't think that until the final swing that they thought they were out of it," South Holland manager David Beezhold said. "When they put up the six runs, we thought we were capable of coming back."

But Burroughs sealed the victory with five strikeouts in the last two innings after his team added three runs. This year's tournament is the longest since Little League began in 1939. In the new format, each team will play three games in round-robin play.

the team in order to concentrate on academics, and potential loss of Demetrius DuBose has made it even shakier for the Irish.

At outside linebacker, both Devon McDonald, 1991 honorable mention Sporting News All-American, and Karmeeleyah McGill have impressed Holtz with their performances throughout the fall.

"McDonald is playing better than I've ever seen him play, and McGill is vastly improved," Holtz said.

McGill's improvement began at the end of last season, as he started the final regular season game versus Hawaii and against Florida in the Sugar Bowl, where he had six tackles, two sacks, another tackle for lost yardage and a pass deflection.

At inside linebacker DuBose, a 1991 Butkus Award semifinalist, is slated to start alongside Anthony Pettus. If DuBose is declared ineligible by the NCAA, Pete Bercich, a junior who started seven games last season, will replace him in the lineup.

Up front, Junior Bryant, Bryant Young and either Jim Flanigan or Oliver Gibson will start for the unit which could determine how successful Notre Dame is this season.

"My main concern is the defensive line, that is where the defense has got to start," Holtz said. "How strong we are there is going to determine how strong the defense is going to be."

We cannot be a great football team until we have a great defense."
NFC rosters clipped to 60; Stams dealt to Cleveland

(AP)—Two weeks before the season opener, Denver coach Dan Reeves remains concerned about the left side of the team's offensive line.

He did something about it Monday when he cut tackle Harvey Salem as the Broncos reduced their roster to 60 players.

It was a bad day for a lot of players—rookies, veterans and free agents alike—but the first mandatory cuts were made. All teams have to be down to 60 by noon Tuesday and to the Sunday limit of 48 by next Monday.

Among those cut were Niko Noga, one of the eight players suiting the NFL for free agency in a Minneapolis court, Noga was cut by the Los Angeles Raiders, who also released fullback Vance Mueller.

The Cardinals cut Craig Patterson, a part-time starter last season.

Two former members of the San Francisco 49ers’ Super Bowl offensive line were cut, tackle Bubba Paris by the Detroit Lions and guard Collie by the New York Jets.

The 31-year-old Salem, acquired by Denver from Detroit last year after being a regular with both the Lions and Houston Oilers, played 10 regular-season games and both postseason games with the Broncos last season.

The release of Salem reflects concerns Reeves has about his line.

"There’s a lot of questions there, in an area offensively that you’ve got to execute," Reeves said of a unit which has allowed 18 sacks in four exhibitions.

Guard Sean Farrell has recurring shoulder problems and Reeves said rookie Chuck Johnson, Farrell’s competition, "didn’t play very well" in a 13-7 loss to Dallas. At tackle, neither Jeff Davidson nor Salem has solidified the position that Reeves said of a unit which has allowed 18 sacks in four exhibitions.

Cornerback Stan Smagala, a Notre Dame graduate, underwent arthroscopic surgery Monday on his left knee and also will not play for four weeks. D.J. Johnson, who started opposite Woodson last season, has a sprained right shoulder and will be out for three weeks.

Reeves said of a unit which has allowed 18 sacks in four exhibitions.

Among those cut by the New York Jets was Bruce Collie, a part-time starter at guard on San Francisco’s 1988-89 Super Bowl champions. He had been cut by Philadelphia in April.

Also among the 10 players cut were Joe Mott, a two-year veteran lineman, quarterback Mike Norseth and Roy Hart, Norseth had spent time with Cleveland, Cincinnati, Houston and Green Bay and also played in the World League. Hart also played in the World League and was signed when not protected by the Raiders this year. His only full NFL season was with Seattle in 1991.

Two injured New York Giants regulars, safety Myron Guyton and wide receiver Ed McCaffrey, went on injured reserve, meaning they cannot play this season.

The Los Angeles Rams traded fullback Judd Garrett, one of the eight players who also released fullback Noga, signed as a Plan B free agent. Noga, one of the eight players suing the NFL for free agency in a Minneapolis court, cut by the Los Angeles Raiders, who also released fullback Vance Mueller.

The Denver Broncos are the NFC team with the most new faces on offense this season because of missed assignments and missed execution when they haven’t had, in my opinion, a chance to execute.

Bears

Defensive end Richard Dent says William “The Refrigerator” Perry is a relatively svelte 328 pounds. Other Bears say they don’t care what Perry weighs because of missed assignments and missed execution when they haven’t had, in my opinion, a chance to execute.

Don’t get too down on our players because of missed assignments and missed execution when they haven’t had, in my opinion, a chance to execute. Bears

Gladden’s homer downs Twins
Ripken fails to prove worth as Orioles lose 5-2

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Dan Gladden, in his first game against the team he helped to World Series titles in 1987 and 1991, capped a four-run fifth inning with a two-run home run that sent the Detroit Tigers beat the Minnesota Twins 6-2 on Monday night.

Gladden made two leaping catches at the left-field wall in addition to hitting his sixth home run. Cecil Fielder added a 423-foot homer in the eighth inning, his 28th shot of the year, but first since Aug. 16.

Eric King (4-4) allowed one run and four hits in seven innings for Detroit, which had lost eight straight at the Metrodome.

Bill Krueger (10-5) lost consecutive decisions for the first time this year as Minnesota fell seven games behind Oakland in the AL West.

Kent Herbst’s hit for Minnesota, which has lost seven of its last nine.

Athletics 9, Red Sox 3
BOSTON — Terry Funk’s two-run home run, his 11th, ended a five-run inning and Dave Stew art won his 13th straight game against Boston.

Stewart (9-8), whose streak against Boston includes three victories in the AL playoffs, lost last to the Red Sox on Aug. 15, 1998. He went 5-1-3 innings, giving up three runs on four hits and three walks. Stewart is 13-5 lifetime against Boston and 2-1 against the Tigers.

The Athletics won their third straight game, scoring all their runs in the third against John Davenport (6-6). Oakland added four runs in the ninth.

Yankees 9, Brewers 8
NEW YORK — Mike Stanley’s RBI double capped a four-run comeback in the eighth inning and New York handed Milwaukee its seventh straight road loss.

Robo Yount singled to start a three-run seventh that tied it for Milwaukee, then doubled home the go-ahead run in the eighth as the Brewers took an 8-5 lead. Yount now has 2,964 career hits.

But the Yankees bounced back in their half, tagging Doug Henry (1-2) with two outs on Danny Tartabull’s two-run double, giving the Mets the gold and Stanley’s double. Kyle Skipper pitched the ninth for his 20th save.

White Sox 8, Blue Jays 4
CHICAGO — Lance Johnson, Carlton Fisk and George Bell homered to lead sizzling Chicago over struggling Toronto.

Besides losing five of their last six, the Blue Jays have been outscored 43-17 in that span.

American League’s going 5-4 as the Yankees began a four-game road trip with consecutive series at Boston and New York. The Angels, whose previous trip to Baltimore in May followed a calamitous bus ride from New York in which manager Joe Kennedy and several players were injured in a frightful accident on the New Jersey Turnpike.

Major league presidents call meeting over Vincent

NEW YORK (AP) — The league presidents on Monday ignored the objection of Fay Vincent and called a special major league meeting on Sept. 3 to discuss the commissioner's status. It was not clear if a group of dissident owners would attempt to force Vincent out of office during the session, which will be held at Rosemont, Ill. Vincent's term runs through March 31, 1994, and the commissioner and his supporters say he cannot be fired. However, some owners disagree with that interpretation of the Major League Agreement.

"I don't know what's going to happen," Chicago Cubs chairman Stanton Cook said. "We kind of have to go through the meeting and go through the issues they want to discuss."

Asked what those matters were, Cook said, "The duties of the commissioner and the performance in office." American League president Bobby Brown and National League president Bill White asked for the meeting on Aug. 17, but Vincent refused the request last Thursday, saying the purpose of the session would be "unlawful and contrary to the Major League Agreement," the contract that governs baseball. He also sent a five-page letter to owners in which he vowed never to resign and to fight any effort to remove him in court.

"I am pleased that the league presidents have called a meeting," said Chicago White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf, believed to be one of the leaders of the anti-Vincent group. "I'm looking forward to a frank and open discussion of the problems which have necessitated the calling of the meeting."

The Major League Agreement has a provision that allows the league presidents to call a joint session if a commissioner refuses to act on their request within five days. White personally delivered the formal call for the meeting to Vincent on Monday before a brief telephone conference call among owners to approve the sale of the Detroit Tigers.

"I have no comment," Vincent said later in the day. "I think I addressed the issue in my letter."

Baseball officials said Vincent probably will not attend the session because he believes it will be unlawful. In his absence, the owners would elect a presiding officer, and one owner said Monday he expected the league presidents would run the session.

One owner, speaking on the condition he not be identified, said he didn't expect a firing to come during at the meeting. "I don't think that's the goal," he said. "I think the goal is to find out how everybody feels, to see what kind of majority there is."

The Major League Agreement states in Article IX: "Nothing shall be unlawful and contrary to the Major League Agreement, or powers of the present or any succeeding commissioner, shall be made during his term of office."

However, some owners have cited an article by University of Connecticut law professors Robert L. Bard and Lewis Kurlantzick in the Aug. 17 issue of The Connecticut Law Tribune in which they say the matter of a firing is unclear.

"I have no way of predicting," Brown said when asked what he expected from the meeting.

Asked if a firing or vote of no confidence was possible, Brown said, "I just can't comment on that. You have to get the opinion of owners from themselves."

Irish football graduates 90% Special to The Observer

The graduation rate of the University of Notre Dame's football-playing students has earned honors from the College Football Association (CFA) for the 13th consecutive year. Among 14 universities receiving honorable mention from the CFA, Notre Dame was one of just four to graduate better than 90 percent of its football student-athletes. The top honor in 1992 went to Boston College and Texas Christian University, which also received the Academic Achievement Award by graduating 100 percent of their football student-athletes. Notre Dame was the first school to hit the 100 percent mark in 1988, when the Fighting Irish also won the national championship on the field.

The University of Virginia, Duke and Vanderbilt Universities joined Notre Dame as the only schools to top 90 percent.

Ripken signs $32.5 million megacontract

BALTIMORE (AP) — Cal Ripken got a very expensive birthday present on Monday: a $32.5 million, five-year contract that's the richest total deal in baseball history. Ripken, a 10-time American League All-Star, will average $6.5 million a year under the contract, which is in average annual value terms only, the deal Ryan Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs agreed to in March, a four-year contract worth $7.1 million per season. In total money, Ripken's contract surpasses Bobby Bonilla's $29 million, five-year deal with the New York Mets.

"This contract represents the fair value of Cal Ripken to the Baltimore Orioles," Orioles president Larry Lucchino said. "When you're negotiating, you do it from all the data you can accumulate. We know what Cal Ripken means to the Orioles, and to their fans."

Ripken, who is making $2.1 million in 1992 in an option year, will get a $3 million signing bonus, part at the end of this year and part next year. He gets salaries of $4.5 million in 1993, $4.8 million in 1994, $6 million in each of the 1995 and 1996 seasons and $6.2 million in 1997. The final two years are at Ripken's option.

Included in the deal is a $2 million offer for a post-playing career employment contract with the Orioles at a salary of $500,000 per year.

Lucchino said that because $2 million is for after the end of Ripken's playing career, it should not be included in determining the contract's value, in which case the average would drop to $6.1 million. However, if past practice is followed, it would be included in contract evaluations by management's Player Relations Committee and the Major League Baseball Players Association.

"It's a gigantic amount of money, a gigantic commitment," Lucchino said. "We made an offer of $30 million at spring training, and this is an improvement on that."

The Orioles announced the deal prior to their game against the California Angels. Moments after doffing his hat to the standing crowd, Ripken scooped up a grounder and started a 6-4-3 double play in the top of the first inning.

In his first at-bat, he hit into a fielder's choice with two outs and two runners on base. It was his 1,698th consecutive game, the second-longest string in major-league history behind Lou Gehrig's 2,130.

"Reaching an agreement with the Orioles was a continuing objective of Cal's in this negotiation, and a truly unique and harmonious relationship between a club and player has been cemented," said Ripken's agent, Ron Shapiro.
Murphy picks Irish over 'Canes
Baseball coach declines Miami's offer to leave

By MIKE SCRUDATO
Sports Editor

When students finished school in May, two things were expected from the Notre Dame baseball team.

The Irish were going to have a successful trip to the NCAA Tournament, and Notre Dame coach Pat Murphy was going to accept an offer to become head coach at the University of Miami (Fla.). Fortunately, only the former came to be.

Notre Dame almost shocked the college baseball world in the first round of the tournament, which featured top-ranked Miami (Fla.).

After dropping their first game in the double-elimination tournament to South Carolina, the Irish bounced back to defeat Miami, Delaware and South Carolina, respectively.

The three wins left them one game from Omaha, the site of the College World Series. The Hurricanes, however, were not about to let coach Ron Fraser end his 30 year career with a loss to Miami without a trip to Omaha, the site of the College World Series.

The Irish coach commented. "I could say that this is going to be a rebuilding year, but I honestly think this group will come together and be a good club."

"The confidence is based on how hard I know they (the players) will work and the fact that we believe in ourselves."

Despite the tremendous achievements of the Notre Dame program, Murphy "strongly considered" the offer from Miami, which boasts one of the most successful programs in the country.

The photograph, taken by noted sports photographer Rick Clarkson, was taken from the Irish 35-yard line as they prepared to kick off and spans a full 360 degrees. The three-inch high 35mm negative was then enlarged to integrate audio system.

The three-inch high 35mm negative was then enlarged to 14 separate photographic transparencies one inch high 35mm negative was then enlarged to 14 separate photographic transparencies which houses the florescent material. These panels are called Duratrans. When assembled "in the round," the entire photo mural spans a twenty foot diameter, not including the outer structure which houses the florescent tubes that backlight the Duratrans.

The Fiesta Bowl photo had been displayed until this spring at the NCAA's Visitors Center in Overland Park, Kansas before being replaced by a photo of the 1992 Rose Bowl. Thanks to conversations among the NCAA Visitors Center, Notre Dame sports information director John Reisler and Alumni Association associate director Charles Lennon, Jr., the Duratrans panels made the journey from storage to South Bend in May.

But the panels are only part of the story. Lennon hired Bruce Auerbach, associate professional specialist in Notre Dame's department of communication and theater to create the framework into which the Duratrans would be displayed with an eye toward making the whole cyclorama transportable. The result is a free-standing structure faced in fake brick, complete with Notre Dame pennants and crowd noise delivered via an integrated audio system.

The cyclorama will be placed in the Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center fieldhouse during home football weekends, providing visitors to the alumni hospitality center the Joyce Center fieldhouse the opportunity to step back in time. The hospitality center is open to all alumni, friends and visitors to the University beginning at 9 a.m. on game days and closes one hour after the game's conclusion. The center features food, concerts by the Glee Club and Shamans, performances by the Notre Dame cheerleaders and pom pom teams, Notre Dame videos, and large screen television.

Varsity Softball will hold an informational meeting for new or returning players on August 27 at 4:30 p.m. in the JACC Football Auditorium. Questions? Call the softball office at 239-6167.

The Observer Sports staff will hold a meeting on August 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the third floor of LaFortune for all returning staff.

Anyone who is interested in writing sports for the Observer is encouraged to attend.

Rugby practice starts today! All returning players and anyone interested come to Stepan fields at 4:15 p.m. for some 7's and ball handling. Rookies need no prior experience. Everyone brings cleats, mouthpiece and proof of insurance. Questions call 287-3587.

Sports Briefs are accepted in writing during office hours Sunday through Friday in the Observer office on the third floor of LaFortune. Please submit your name, brief, telephone number and the date the brief is supposed to run.

Football fans will have a second reason to visit South Bend when the National Football Foundation's College Hall of Fame is completed in 1994.

The 50,000-square foot facility will be located at the corner of Washington and St. Joseph streets, directly across from the Century Center. The hall will house exhibits spanning the history of college football, beginning with the first game played between Rutgers and Princeton in 1869.

University officials maintained that securing the hall is a triumph for the city alone to savor.

"It's probably more Hall of Famers than anyone," said Father E. William Beauchamp, executive vice president. "But it's more important for what (the decision) means to the city and the local community."

Irish football coach Lou Holtz agrees. He said the decision is "a real tribute to the leadership in this community" and should not be viewed as a "University success." Still, some say the Notre Dame connection is hard to ignore.

The hall is expected to open in time for the 1994 season, and the attraction is expected to draw 300,000 people a year. A 10-acre site will be required, and the facility will be located at the corner of Washington and St. Joseph streets, directly across from the Century Center.

"This is a very special occasion for Notre Dame," said Father E. William Beauchamp, executive vice president. "It is the result of a long and difficult process, and we are grateful for the support of the entire community."

Irish women come a long way
Talented freshman class gives veterans a boost

By MIKE SCRUDATO
Sports Editor

Only five years ago, Notre Dame did not have a women's soccer team.
Just two years ago, the Irish were playing Division III pushovers such as Indiana University-South Bend and Calvin College.
Then last season, they burst upon the national scene by cracking the top-20 and narrowly missing the NCAA Tournament.
This season the Irish are setting their sights even higher.
Under pressure, the talented freshman class, which has exceeded Petrucelli's high expectations thus far.
"You never know how freshmen will react until they get here, but they have made the adjustment to the next level. We will probably start four freshmen and have six or seven who play.
"The additional talent comes from the talented freshman class, which has exceeded Petrucelli's high expectations thus far.
"We will be a better team this year," Petrucelli commented.
Notre Dame lost only three players from last year's team which lost to Central Florida in a game that had significant implications on NCAA Tournament selections.
"We had never been in that situation before. This year we are going to find ourselves in a lot," Petrucelli commented.
"The Irish will have to use that experience to their advantage if they are to be successful against a much tougher schedule which includes Duke and SMU.
One place this experience will be evident will be in goals where senior captain Michelle Lodgy returns from a fantastic season.
She posted a 0.54 goals against average along with 11 shutouts.
In the backfield Petrucelli expects the already strong defense to be even more athletic than the 1991 version which yielded only 0.72 goals per game.
Former Irish star Lisa Gorski will serve as the team's captain this year and should be a good leader in addition to running solid cross country races.
Petrucelli would have liked more depth in the group.
"It would be nice to have another outstanding uppersclassmen, but the girls came along well last year, so I'm not worried," said Piane.
"Last year, the Irish women finished third at the National Catholic Invitational, second at the Notre Dame Invitational and second at the Midwest Conference Championships.
"This year Notre Dame graduates will team up during the National Football League season to help youngsters in need of medical attention.
"John Carney, a 1969 alumus, and John Carney, place-kicker for the San Diego Chargers and a 1987 graduate, have created KickStart For Kids, a venture designed to support the Fresh Start Surgical Gifts program.
"This season the Irish are experienced than last year."
"We will not be at 100 percent for the game, but we will be more age in the group.

"The midfield ranks amongst Notre Dame’s Director of Cross County.
"We are going to have to rely on Alison (Lester) and the freshmen," Petrucelli explained.
"We are not going to have one dominant goal scorer, but we are going to have a lot of good goal scorers.

For his humanitarian efforts, Petrucelli received the 1992 Dooley Award from the Notre Dame Alumni Association. Petrucelli says his inspiration to found Fresh Start was that of his mentor and former NFL referee, Dr. Thomas Dooley, the Notre Dame Class of 1959 alumnus, who died in 1991 at age 34, attended to thousands of refugees in Southeast Asia.

Local prep stars move on to Saint Mary's program

Two local athletes will continue their basketball careers on the collegiate level at Saint Mary's College this season.
Colleen Andrews, who averaged 14.7 points per game as a senior at Mishawaka Marian, and Laura Wright, a defensive specialist from Goshen High School, are the two newest members of the Belles' incoming freshman class.
Andrews, who also averaged five steady and three assists per game in her senior year, helped lead the school to three-point goals in a game and in a season. She earned 10 varsity letters as a senior at Goshen.

Volleyballers prepare to spike
Debbie Brown begins second year at helm

With the first match quickly approaching, the Notre Dame volleyball team is gearing up to try to improve upon last year's season.

The Irish completed their first 20-win season since 1987 with a 26-10 record as well as finishing second in the National Invitational Volleyball Championships to close the campaign.

This season officially starts on September 1 at 7:30 p.m. when the Irish take on Ball State at home, but the team has been practicing twice a day for over a week.

Second-year head coach Debbie Brown is happy with the preseason practices.

"So far we have had a pretty good preseason," said Brown. "We've made some real good progress."

The Irish will have a few spots to fill with the loss of Jennie Bruening, Chris Choquette and Katie Kavanaugh to graduation. Fortunately for Notre Dame, the team is returning a strong core of players.

"Each year presents a new challenge," said Brown. "The seniors were valuable and important parts of the team, but they are not irreplaceable. The returning starters and underclassmen are very competitive, have good skills and are good athletes."

The volleyball team will also have two new comers this year in Shannon Tuttle and Brett Hensel. Tuttle is a setter while Hensel is an all-around player with strengths in defense and passing.

Providing leadership for the team will be senior captain Alicia Turner. The outside hitter will be a major contributor on the offense.

"She has been a real contributor and team player. She has very good all-around skills and good leadership qualities and she's a real smart player," said Brown.

Also returning for the Irish will be outside hitter Marilyn Cragin, middle blocker Jessica Fiebelkorn, setter Janelle Karlan and middle blocker Molly Stark. Notre Dame will also be looking for Andrea Armento, Dyan Boulier, Nicole Coates, Julie Harris, Cynthia May and Christy Peters to contribute this year.

Berticelli brings Notre Dame to national ranking

Men ranked twentieth by Soccer America in preseason standings

By JASON KELLY

Last year, the Notre Dame men's soccer team proved that it could play with the nation's best teams.

This year, Soccer America agrees.

For the first time ever, the Irish finisher a campaign ranked among the nation's elite.

But third-year coach Mike Berticelli doesn't put much faith in his team's 20th-place ranking.

"I think of it like my math classes in high school," he said. "I knew I had an A at the beginning of the year, but after the tests I knew where I really stood. We're in the same position where we are at the end of the season, not at the beginning. It's hard to look at early-season games and face its share of tests this season, beginning next Saturday with an exhibition game against perennial powerhouse Indiana at the Golden Boot Classic in Bloomington."

"You have to play the best schedule possible," Berticelli explained. "Playing good teams is the only way to get better, and I'm going to use that every season as we work our way up the depth chart."

With a roster full of freshmen and sophomores, those early-season tests appear even more formidable, but with nine starters and seven veterans returning, the Irish are more experienced than they have been in past seasons.

Senior captain Mario Tricori leads the list of starters returning from last year's 13-5-2 team. Also returning is sophomore goalkeeper Bert Bader, 1991's Gatorade Player of the Year, and midfielders Eric Ferguson, Ben Ketchum and Drew McElroy.

While several newcomers could make an impact, most of the freshmen will see only quality playing time, because the Irish are deep at almost every position.

Midfielder Ben Ketchum, a sophomore who saw only 3:42 of playing time last season, is expected to see a lot of time at forward. He's also excited about the 1992 season.

"We're young, but that is the basis of our program right now," Berticelli explained. "Young players offer a lot of positives to the team, they have the ability and they are also very enthusiastic."

Irish soccer fans are very enthusiastic about the 1992 season.
