Clinton to make campaign speech at Notre Dame

By EMILY HAGE

Democratic presidential candidate Governor Bill Clinton will visit and deliver "a major policy address," according to University public relations.

The site and exact time of the address were not released following the announcement by University of Notre Dame officials. Ethan Zinbler of the Clinton campaign in Little Rock, Ark., said that no additional information is available at this time.

The Arkansas governor's decision to speak at Notre Dame comes in response to a recent invitation by University President Father Edward Malloy. Continuing a long-standing Notre Dame tradition, Malloy invited each of the major party's presidential aspirants to discuss current issues and public concern related to the university.

"Clinton's intention to visit has galvanized his impression of the success of the campus democratic movement during the first weeks of the grass roots effort at Notre Dame," said Wesley Kirkpatrick, Clinton's campaign manager for Notre Dame.

"As college democrats, we're very excited about the visit," he added.

Notre Dame College Democrats said Clinton's visit would "generate a major policy address," according to University and Clinton campaign officials. It is not concerned about Clinton's visit. "We feel that Vice President Quayle gives us a large advantage in Indiana and a national appeal, so we expect to campaign hard to win," Clinton's vice president, said.

Students for Life Co-president Richard Greenberg was concerned about the invitation to the University. "I understand why Clinton was invited," he said. "But taken in conjunction with some other moves it makes me wonder the value the University places on the right to life."

The Northeast Development Corporation, boosted by a substantial loan from the University and Clinton campaign in Little Rock, Ark., invited each of the major party' s candidates, Matteo said.

"What we are going to do is are to receive the building.

Matteo said that "the neighbor­ brhood, he said.

Matteo said lax management of the property, short-term leases and high crime rate in the neigh­ bordhood caused a lot of problems, stemmed from the apartment project."

More intense management of the apartments and the houses should discourage crime problems from recurring in the future, he said.

While the University and the city have a definite interest in seeing the area cleaned up, Matteo said that "the neighborhood is very pleased about what is going on and very pleased that students will be back."

Notre Dame is involved in several other projects to improve the area south of campus:

• The University plans to sell the apartments and several single family dwellings, Matteo said.

• On Aug. 31, three area residents were assaulted outside the apartments, Matteo said.

• The University began purchasing houses along the avenue. Four houses were torn down, four were renovated and are being rented to faculty and staff and one remains vacant, Matteo said.

• The University recently purchased a building on the corner of St. Peter and Howard

Trops fire on ANC in Johannesburg

BISHO, South Africa (AP) — Troubled in the troubled black homeland of Ciskei opened fire Monday on an ANC march by the region's military government, killing at least 24 people and injuring almost 200.

South Africa said it would send troops to Ciskei at the reest of the homeland's pro­

Terrorists parlor to guard important installations from possible retaliatory attacks. Homeland troops patrolled the capital, Bisho, guarded the border, where ANC supporters staged their annual day.

Ciskei is one of several homelands formed by South Africa's apartheid to create separate nations for blacks. The Ciskei homeland borders South African aid, have been failures and most are dominated by white settlers.

The homelands are expected to rejection of the homeland constitu­tion to share power with the black majority.

But the bloodshed in Ciskei threatened to plunge South Africa into a violent and block efforts to revive stalled talks between the African National Congress and the government on giving blacks the vote and ending apartheid.

The ANC, which considers the homelands vestiges of trying to seize power, said the government would not resume power-sharing talks until the Ciskei ruler Brig. Gen. Oupa Gqozo (OU-pa COR-sa), who was on the scene. The ANC demands that the government monitor political violence.

Ciskei troops fired on the march, ending the engagement of ANC supporters calling for the removal of Ciskei ruler Brig. Gen. Oupa Gqozo (OU-pa COR-sa), witnesses said. The march began in King William's Town.

Soldiers with semi-automatic weapons fired into the crowd as terrified people ran screaming for cover. Some witnesses said the troops fired for at least ten minutes before throwing tear gas grenades.

Crime problems escalated in the last year.

INSIDE COLUMN

Who's better off now than 12 years ago?

Last Tuesday and Wednesday nights Notre Dame and Saint Mary's had their respective Activities Nights and students seemed to be very interested. One stand was handing out bumper stickers and was decorated with signs for various political candidates. This stand had a constant flow of people who seemed really enthusiastic about the upcoming election.

Being that this was an event at one of the most conservative schools in the country, most would assume that the aforementioned organization was College Republicans, but it was not. It was College Democrats.

Its representatives were well informed and answered questions intelligently about their candidates—Bill Clinton and Al Gore. When asked why one should vote for the Democrats, he or she was given descriptions of Clinton's proposed educational and health care reforms, and Gore's environmental record.

One walked away from the booth with a good understanding of the Democratic ticket and why it made sense to vote for it on November 3 or on his or her absentee ballot.

If one posed the same question to the Republican representative at Saint Mary's, the same question, he or she really wasn't given any real answers, only more questions and comparisons between Clinton and Jimmy Carter.

"Did you watch the (Republican) Convention?" I saw five minutes of it, and the lone impression I was left with was of a woman asking the delegates if the country was better now than it was four years ago. Though she managed to get on an enthusiastic "Yes," most Americans would probably disagree.

Since this tactic was used by Ronald Reagan 12 years ago against Jimmy Carter, one would assume that is why Republicans are comparing Clinton to Carter.

Why else would anyone compare the Arkansas governor to a President who was voted out of the White House 12 years ago.

If the Clinton-Carter connection is supposed to be Clinton's campaign cards, why wasn't the Bush-Gerald Ford link made in 1988 or the Reagan-Richard Nixon connection made in 1980 and 1984? Both Ford and Nixon were in office 12 years before those elections.

These pairings sound absurd, as is the Clinton-Carter one. The next thing Republicans will be comparing is real life problems with sitcoms.

It seems that Americans are finally looking at the real world. Rumblings that the country is in trouble this campaign season, not political the issues and realizing the country is in coms.

He passed his powers to parliament speaker Akbarsharif Iskandarov, in accordance with the constitution.

"Taking into account the political situation, and in order to stabilize it and stop the fratricidal war, I decided to relinquish my powers as president," he said. His statement was later broadcast on television throughout the Commonwealth of Independent States.

Nabiyev also forewarned any "provocation or intrigues" in Tajik politics, the ITAR-Tass news agency reported.

The cabinet voted to give Nabiyev a pension along with the home in which he lives, and to provide bodyguards.

Nabiyev and a group of lawmakers had gone to the Dushanbe airport to fly to his native Khuzhand, in northern Tajikistan, to meet with other pro-Nabiyev lawmakers boycotting the legislature.

They were detained in the VIP lounge by militants who identified themselves as "the youth of Dushanbe," the group which last week occupied the palace and took officials hostage, Interfax said. They released the last of the hostages on Thursday and left the complex without incident on Saturday.

A Dushanbe journalist who witnessed the scene said about 1,500 people surrounded the lounge. He said one of Nabiyev's guards fired accidentally, and the militants fired back, wounding two presidential guards in the legs.

Four Russian tanks and two armored personnel carriers arrived at the airport during the incident, but did not intervene, the journalist said.

Homestead, Fla. (AP) — Two weeks after being pounded by Hurricane Andrew, south Florida staggered Monday toward what might have to pass for normalcy, as temporary crises gave way to the beginnings of a long recovery. Authorities said shelter, food, water and clothing were available to everyone who needed them. The desperate scramble for life's necessities was replaced by long lines for food stamps and federal grants, dozens of help-wanted signs sprouted throughout the Commonwealth of Independent States.

New federal and state aid centers opened, handing out millions of dollars in food stamps, disaster grants and interest-free loans.

"It's beginning to look more like the old neighborhood again," said Bob Borel, moving a neighbor's lawn in the hard-hit Cutler Ridge area. "It's good to see the clean-up guys here."

Down the block from Beedot, county garbage crews loaded debris into dump trucks. At another house, a contracting crew nailed plywood and tarpaper on a roof pooled apart by Andrew's 165 mph wind Aug. 24.

Federal and state aid centers opened, handing out millions of dollars in food stamps, disaster grants and interest-free loans.

Help-wanted signs sprouted along U.S. 1, some for home supply stores struggling to keep up with demand. Contractors roamed tent cities seeking laborers at $10 an hour.

Federal marshals escorted the residents to work.

"We don't want people just sit around all day," said Eric Thompson, a deputy U.S. marshal.

The five tent cities, initially shunned by most storm refugees, suddenly were nearly full Monday. Evacuees were sent out of 11 schools that had served as shelters; the schools had to be prepared for the start of classes Sept. 14, two weeks late.

"We feel it's real important that the kids get back into school. It will put a normal pattern back into their lives," said Nancy Betherford, a Red Cross spokeswoman.

Military tents housed 2,154 people early Monday, and Army Lt. Col. Bill Reynolds said more tent cities may be built.

"It's no longer just a few tents," said Roland Bombalier, who went to the one at Harris Field six days earlier. "It's really a small town."

His new neighborhood includes a medical tent, kitchen, showers, a barber shop, a YMCA day care tent filled with raucous children, and a tent with lawyers offering free advice. Amenities such as televisions and videocassette recorders have been added, and a sound stage was being built for live band performances.

"We even had The Miami Herald thrown to our front door today," said Bombalier, 46.

Baboon Liver patient dies after transplant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Doctors were not sure Monday what caused the death of a mystery man who survived for 71 days with a baboon's liver, but they said the historic operation helped pave the way for more animal-to-human transplantations.

The 35-year-old man, whose name was not made public, died Sunday as doctors at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center tried to wean him from a respirator.

The man died from bleeding inside the skull but did not have a stroke as was first announced, Dr. John Fung, chief of transplant surgery.

Autopsy results were not in yet, he said. Early indications were the hemorrhage probably was not directly related to the transplant.

Dr. Howard Doyle, a member of the transplant team, said the man had suffered from hepatitis B, which had attacked any transplanted human liver, doctors said.

"We really have an opportunity to carry over to the community to make an impact," he said.

"It's given us an idea of what to look for, what the drawbacks and what the potential benefits are," Fung said.

Susan Manko, a medical center spokeswoman, said she and her co-workers were told only the man under which the man was registered. Even the alias under which the man became known to his co-workers were told only his first name, Fung said.

"He probably didn't want to be known in the news media," she said. "If people found out who he was, we would be calling him all the time. I'm talking about the National Enquirer and 'A Current Affair.'"

Animal rights activists opposed animal-to-human transplants had raised ethical questions.

Animal rights groups should feel vindicated, though we don't applaud the death of any person," said Wayne Pacelle, national spokesman for The Fund for Animals Inc., based in Silver Springs, Md.

The man was able to move out of intensive care Aug. 3 and into a regular room at Presbyterian University Hospital, also at the center.

He was able to eat hospital meals and drink chocolate milkshakes, Manko said. He began leg and arm exercises and could walk around his room or down the hall, pulling along the pole that held his intravenous feeding.

He watched videotape movies — Danny DeVito was his favorite actor — and eagerly read newspaper stories about himself. The man kept his sense of humor and laughed at baboon stories, Manko said.

"He had a really light attitude about everything," she said.

Doctors believe the patient developed a blood infection before dye was injected into his bile duct Aug. 28 for an X-ray possibly introducing bacteria. A fever sent him back to intensive care.

major living in South Bend, founded the Northeast Development Corporation specifically for this project. He also owns Lafayette Square Tower complex and rents several single family homes in the area.

Dead and wounded people were scattered about as survivors tried to care for them. Some struggled to crawl away, dragging dead or injured friends, witnesses said.

"People were paralyzed — even the ANC leadership," said local journalist Guy Jepson. "It was absolutely terrifying."

Witnesses said the first of two bursts of gunfire erupted when the marchers stormed through a back entrance of a stadium on Bishop's outskirts. More shooting broke out a few minutes later, after protesters began ripping down razor wire erected to contain the march, they said.

Ciskei Defense Chief Brig. Gen. Marius Gelsch said his forces began shooting after being attacked by a group of marchers armed with handgrenades and grenades.

A spokesman for the South African embassy in Ciskei, said 24 people had been killed and 196 wounded, most of them by bullets.

"The blood of the slain and the injured has indelibly stained the hands of Brigadier Gqozo and his henchmen. ... An equal responsibility devolves also on the De Klerk government," the ANC declared in a statement.

Serbs promise to grant U.N. control of heavy guns

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnia's Serb leader promised to comply by next week with a deadline to halt a campaign to beat a deadline to put heavy guns under U.S. supervision, but shells still rained on Sarajevo and officials said the city could run out of food stocks in three days.

With five days left before the noon Saturday deadline agreed to at London peace talks last month, shells resumed after a morning lull and closed the airport used by U.N. planes, officials said.

No casualties were reported at the airport, but Bosnian Health Ministry said 26 people died and 182 were wounded in fighting republic-wide in a 24-hour period ending noon Monday. Those included 13 dead and 77 wounded in Sarajevo.

An airlift using Western air force planes to ferry humanitarian aid was suspended Thursday after a Ukrainian transporter was downed approaching the capital. All four crew members were killed; their funeral in Italy drew 10,000 people.

Officials say the airlift had brought in about two-thirds of the city's food shipments.

Bosnian government faced new pressure when the Croatian military leader in Sarajevo withdrew his support Sunday and ordered the Bosnian army out of key suburbs by Monday. There were no reports of Croat-Muslim clashes by dusk Monday.

Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic, a Muslim, wants a unified, independent country. But Serb and Croat militias have taken control of most of Bosnia since a February referendum approved secession from Serbian-led Yugoslavia.

At least 8,000 people have died — some estimates say 35,000 — in the 6-month-old civil war pitting Serbs against the mainly Muslim Bosnian government.

Under a London agreement last month, Serb militias are to gather their tanks, rocket launchers, field guns and large-caliber mortars surrounding the Bosnian capital, the eastern town of Gorazde, and Bihać and hand over their weapons.

Serbian forces are heavily armed in the town of Jajce to the west, for the main Bosnian Muslim Army to march fast from the town of Gorazde, and Bihac and the main Muslim Bosnian Army to march fast from the town of Gorazde, and Bihac and capture the Bosnian capital.

First black woman to enter into space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Mae Jemison, a doctor-turned-astronaut, will be taking one small step for equality when she rocketed into orbit aboard Endeavour.

Jemison, whose mission is scheduled to begin Saturday, will be the first black woman in space, an honor she accepts with some guilt feelings.

"I'm very aware of the fact that I'm not the first woman of color, the first African-American woman, who had the skills, the talent, the desire to be an astronaut. I know that I happen to be the first one that NASA selected, right now the only one," Jemison, 35, said.

Only three black Americans, all men, have flown in space. The first was Guion Bluford, on the eighth shuttle flight in 1985.

Of NASA's current 92 astronauts, five are black; four men and Jemison, who was chosen in 1987.

"In that sense, yeah, I want people to know," Jemison said, referring to her flight. "I don't want it to just be Lieutenant Uhura in 'Star Trek,' whom I watched all the time and I referred to her flight. "I don't know what else you can make of it."

"It's important not only for a black girl growing up to know, yeah, you can become an astronaut because here's Mae Jemison. But it's important for older white males who sometimes make decisions on those careers of those little black girls."

Three decades ago, in an inner-city neighborhood in Chicago, Jemison was one of those little black girls.

White-collar salaries fall in downward spiral

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wages of college-educated, white-collar workers and women are in a downward spiral, a new study says.

The inflation-adjusted wages of college-educated workers fell 3.1 percent between 1987 and 1991, with male college-educated workers experiencing a steeper 4.4 percent decline, said the study released Sunday by the non-profit Economic Policy Institute.

Overall, white-collar salaries fell by 4.4 percent, it said, adding that a 5.5 percent wage gain registered by female workers in the 1980s has eroded by 2.8 percent since 1989.

"Unfortunately, this Labor Day we find that the economy is falling to maintain high wages for nearly all American workers," economist Lawrence Mishel said in a statement accompanying the report, which he co-authored with Jared Bernstein.

The two economists said wage setbacks for white-collar workers and the college educated marked the end of a 1980s boom in finance, retailing, banking and real estate.

Mishel and Bernstein said that the recent recession bore a distinctly white-collar stamp: a greater rise in unemployment among white-collar workers than among their blue-collar counterparts. Declines in income were most severe among upper-middle-class families.

Lewis telethon raises record amount despite protests from disease victims

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Jerry Lewis raised a record $45,759,368 Monday through his annual muscular dystrophy telethon, despite protests from victims of the disease and a White House appointee.

"The American people are listening. They heard me," Lewis said as the total board registered the new record, nearly $68,000 over a record amount set last year.

His voice broke as he praised his staff and told a cheering audience: "We're so grateful we have a shot at winning this thing."

The Muscular Dystrophy Association had been concerned about breaking the 1991 telethon mark because of protests by muscular dystrophy victims, including a Bush administration official with a mild form of the disease.

Lewis, who has worked for years for the association, said earlier that it was important this year's telethon collect "one dollar more" than last year's total of $45,071,857. Last year, corporate sponsors presented checks for an additional $65 million.

This year's figure for additional corporate donations was not immediately tabulated.

The telethon featured appearances by dozens of stars, including Billy Crystal, Robin Williams, Whoopi Goldberg, Liza Minnelli, Bono Starr and others.

Association officials said about 100 million people watched the telethon annually. Lewis kicked off the 21 1/2-hour event Sunday night with an appeal for Hurricane Andrew victims and a promise that this year's show would be the best, despite the controversy.

Some muscular dystrophy victims are critical of Lewis for an article he wrote in 1990 in which he envisioned himself as a muscular dystrophy victim and said he experienced the disease.

Clinton embraces middle class

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Bill Clinton offered himself Monday as a true champion of the middle class and its values, framing his Labor Day campaign send-off as "the beginning of the end of George Bush's presidency of broken promises."

"If you give me a chance at the end of the Cold War, I will do what Harry Truman did at the end of World War II: more opportunity, more responsibility, an America strong at home as well as strong abroad," the Democratic nominee told a rally in Truman's hometown.

"We are running on vision and hope and we are going to do what Harry Truman did for the next 57 days. Go across the country, give them hell and make America what it ought to be again."

In a speech cut short when ominous thunder gave way to a downpour, Clinton struck a confrontational, populist tone, using the ceremonial Labor Day campaign kickoff to frame his contest with Bush as the future against the past, a candidate with a管理系统 of the economy for all Americans against a president resolute in defending the rich and the status quo.

The Observer
Tuesday, September 8, 1992

At stake, Clinton said, was "nothing less than the economic future of the middle class that Truman's programs fathered."

"On Labor Day in Harry Truman's hometown, it is time for us as Americans to reaffirm who we are and to remember who George Bush is," said Clinton, who got drenched as he worked the crowd after his speech. "Harry Truman woke up every day dedicated to doing right by people who work hard, raise their kids, pay their taxes and play by the rules. Harry Clinton did not wake up every morning wondering how to one time more lower taxes on millionaires."

Independence and Truman were Clinton's chosen symbols for the fight for what he calls the "forgotten middle class," particularly here in Midwest and heartland states that both campaigns believe will swing the election.

Later, at a riverfront labor rally in Cincinnati just across the Ohio River from Kentucky, Clinton said "Jobs in America as a priority at home" would anchor his economic plan. He was running applause when he promised a program guaranteeing college aid in return for part-time payer deductions or public service.

"They will try to make you afraid of change," Democratic vice presidential nominee Al Gore said in introducing Clinton, praising his economic development record in Arkansas while warning of heated Republican attacks to come.

As he offered his Labor Day assessment of the stakes and issues facing voters, Clinton again faced questions from reporters about an issue that has dogged him since the early primary season: his Vietnam draft status.

Clinton said that while some additional details "not worth a bill of beans" had come out in recent weeks, he had not changed his story about how he opposed the war and briefly committed to an ROTC program to avoid being drafted. Nor had he been proven inaccurate, Clinton said.

He then called on journalists to use equal vigor in investigating new information on whether Bush supported "illegal conduct" during the Watergate scandal that took him to key battleground states.

"I am proud that we helped change the world," Bush said, citing his role in the Cold War and the fact of Poland and other former Soviet bloc nations in Eastern Europe.

"You are the Poles that count," Bush told the crowd. Bush was booed by some members of the audience and there were rival chants of "four more years" and "no more Bush" during his speech.

And at one point during the parade of weights,kyloren and roaccum stem cell s at Bush from the back of the crowd. He held out his hands as if to catch the vegetable he despises, while Secret Service agents briefly hurried him away.

In all, Bush campaigned over the long weekend in states with tall memories of past defeats — more than a third of the 270 electoral votes needed for victory.

Suggesting the presidential campaign had been going on for months too long, Bush told his Wisconsin audience: "Otherwise, this is the official kickoff day. My opponent will kickoff his campaign with a message of fear."

"At a time of uncertainty, at a time of wrenching change, I want to assure American workers so he can slip into office with that fear tax-and-spend policies of the past," he told the GOP picnic.

Shortly after sunrise, Bush led the annual walk across the Mackinac Bridge in northern Michigan, the first in a series of stumpings he has planned that will take him to Washington State and New Mexico before September 15.

Bush charged across the bridge with great exuberance, doffing his hat at oncoming motorists in the simple lane left open to traffic and at one point shouting: "we're running — let's go."

Bob Kaufman, White House political director of the audience and there were rival chants of "four more years" and "no more Bush" during his speech.

"At a time of uncertainty, at a time of wrenching change, I want to assure American workers so he can slip into office with that fear tax-and-spend policies of the past," he told the GOP picnic.

Shortly after sunrise, Bush led the annual walk across the Mackinac Bridge in northern Michigan, the first in a series of stumpings he has planned that will take him to Washington State and New Mexico before September 15.

Bush charged across the bridge with great exuberance, doffing his hat at oncoming motorists in the simple lane left open to traffic and at one point shouting: "we're running — let's go."

Bob Kaufman, White House political director of the audience and there were rival chants of "four more years" and "no more Bush" during his speech.iline

Student government welcomes ND students

Dear Editor:

Molly and I welcome all of the new and returning students of Notre Dame! We at student government are off and running in our efforts to make this year a productive and meaningful one.

We will keep you informed of new projects and ways to get involved via the Student Government newsletter, The Observer.

Student Government and CAUSA (Catholic American Union of Student Advocates) are working together to raise money for the victims of Hurricane Andrew in southern Florida and Louisiana. Donations can be made payable to "Catholic Charities," with checks set up in LaFortune and both dining halls.

However, we can impact the many houseless families by extending our support in their time of need.

S.U.B. (Student Union Board) is sponsoring They Might Be Giants in concert in Stepan Center on Thursday, Sept. 10. Also, Fred Barnes and Jack Germond, both of McLaughlin Group fame, will be on campus on October 7 for a mock presidential debate.

We are exploring new ways to improve the FRED line (283-3733), a telephone service where students can ask questions and receive input to student government. In addition, for those of you who may not know, the FRED line provides the time schedule for Weekend Wheels, a transportation service for students returning from off-campus.

We welcome any input and will follow up on all suggestions made.

On another front, Lynn Friedewald and the rest of her committee are hard at work at Second Floor in preparing a follow-up report to the Board of Trustees regarding the quality of undergraduate education. Since this issue is important to all of us, we welcome any suggestions you have as to the direction and substance of our report.

Student Government will also be holding a student voter registration drive for the upcoming November elections. The drive will be held between Monday, September 14, and Thursday, September 17, with sign-ups in both dining halls and in LaFortune.

Any questions you have can be directed to political awareness commissioner, Chris Setti at 239-6760.

These are just a few of the many projects we have started. As always, your participation is what makes Student Government work, so we encourage you to stop by our offices on the second floor of LaFortune.

Again, all of us at student government send our best wishes for a great year!

‘Fear and ignorance’ prevail, vandals fail artist’s ink blot test

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to an act of vandalism that occurred to works of sculpture by Maria Kaplan, a Chicago artist, on the grounds of Saint Mary’s College late last Thursday night.

Apparently, some individuals took offense to these large biomorphic, abstract forms made from fiberglass and resin. Some people felt offended by the content of which they felt made references to sex organs.

The funny thing, though, is that this supposed "offensive content" which they assumed was implicit was simply the stirrings of active imaginations. I feel that those involved acted cowardly and ignorantly. It has become clear through their actions that ignorance is not bliss but rather it is something to fear.

Because they didn’t understand them, they acted to censor them; rather than to inquire about and learn from them.

In summary, ignorance is a thing which causes some to be afraid of their own ignorance, and causes others to fear the ignorance which surrounds them. In any case, however, ignorance is never bliss.

The Summer Intern program, in its second year, sent 20 students overseas, both as interns and as delegates attempting to secure future internships.

Within two years we expect 50 people to be able to go," said Kiel. So far, both delegates and students over seas, both as interns and as delegates attempting to secure future internships.

The goal of the program is to be able to eventually bring students to every continent. This goal could be realized as early as next summer, as delegations went this past summer to South America and South Africa. Programs are already in place North America, Europe, Asia, and Australia, he said.

Students have interned with a variety of companies, including JP Morgan in Geneva, the United States Olympic Committee in Barcelona, Honeywell in Moscow, and the United States embassies in Paris and Barcelona. Students also interned at an English school in Poland and worked for the Polish Central Bank.

Moscow also played host to a student writing for a Russian business journal, according to Ed Padinske, who worked at two major English-speaking newspapers in that city.

Padinske said that his work at the paper saw him covering a concert in Moscow which included pop singer Roy George. He said that he attended the concert and had the opportunity to interview him because the music reporter had broken his leg while skydiving the day before.

The social aspects of the internships made for a strong experience as the business success aspects. Kiel said of his visit to Singapore. He said that the cultural differences were immeasurable.

"In America, people of our age go to the movies for fun," he said. "In Singapore, they sang, played cards, and told stories for fun instead of partying. I can't describe the diversity of cultures I saw."

Junior Joe Rogers was one of the students who participated in the Council's internship in Poland. Rogers totaled a wide variety of economics and English in the Polish private sector. His students included professors, lawyers, architects, and other representatives of the professional world.

"One of the most important things in this world is gaining experience. The reason that I became interested in the council's internships is to try to broaden my scope, which is what I see as the result of my teachings in Poland," said Rogers.

Rogers taught at Jagellonian University for about three hours a day for the full twenty three days of the program. The University had an agreement with the internship program that they show the student how to their facilities for teaching in the mornings and then take classes there in the afternoon.

The purpose of the program, according to Kiel, is to give students both business and international experience.

"Today, the international experience is invaluable in business," he said.

The native Soviets made the experience memorable, Padinske said.

"Moscow is such an incredible place," he said. "The people here really seem to like Americans. It was such a different atmosphere, but I can't wait to go back there."

Cowboys pound Super Bowl-champ 'Skins

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Washington Redskins had one of the Super Bowl champions in 49 states.

Not in Texas.

With Emmitt Smith rushing for 130 yards and seven touchdowns, Mark Martin returning a punt 79 yards for a touchdown and Troy Aikman passing for 210 yards and a TD, the Cowboys easily took themselves out as Super Bowl contenders in their own right by opening the season with a 23-19 win on the Redkins on Monday night.

It was Dallas' third win over Washington in their last four meetings. Two of the last three losses by the Redskins, 17-2, in their march to the NFL title last season, came after losses of 14 yards in two plays in which the Redskins had trouble getting off the line because of the noise.

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU of WASHINGTON. Made it 23-19. It hardly mattered.

The Cowboys made it 17-6 with 1:02 left in the half from a pass from Akemann to 6- yard Alvin Harper, who used his height advantage to leap over 5-Barrel GA's. The advantage was exploited by both Harper and Michael Irvin all throughout. The Redskins came on a drive that covered 67 yards in just 35 seconds after Mike Sexton had it 1- yard away from the Redkins at their own 1 with a 54-yard punt.

Then, with 6:42 left in the third quarter, Martin fielded Kenney's punt and burst nearly untouched through a wall of Redskins and sailed 79 yards for a touchdown. It was his second punt return for a TD in last three postseason games — he had one for 85 yards in Philadelphia in the last game of the last season.

Chop Lohmeyer's 49-yard field goal 1:42 into the second period made it 23-10.

Rypien was 20 of 38 for 208 yards, many of those toss in the air and hardly looked the part of last year's Super Bowl MVP. He was intercepted twice and lost it fumbled another time when he was sacked by Charles Haley, just obtained from San Francisco.

He also underthrew a wide-open Art Monk on one play and overthrew an open Ricky Kiley. Haley's club of the 63 crowd, also filled almost all the seats.

Haley's sack came on a late snap when he called a play and automatic over the crowd noise and the safety on the first down. Haley's first possession came after losses of 14 yards in two plays in which the Redskins had trouble getting off the line because of the noise.

member executive council in charge of baseball. The council is made up of American League president Bobby Brown, National League president Bill White and eight owners: Jackie Autry of California, Bill Bartholomay of Atlanta, Douglas Danforth of Pittsburgh, Eli Jacobs of Baltimore, Fred Kuhlmann of St. Louis, Carl Pohlad of Minnesota, Haywood Sullivan of Boston and Tom Werner of San Diego.

Philadelphia Phillies owner Bill Giles said the executive council would meet by telephone Tuesday and would meet in person Wednesday in St. Louis to discuss whom to put in charge for now.

Among the possibilities are former AL president Lee MacPhail, Democratic National Committee chairman Ron Brown, the current league presidents and former Montreal Expos executive John McHale.

"I doubt anybody will be given the title of commissioner, but we'll see," Reinsdorf said when asked what would happen in the near-term. "The council consists of 10 very able people. We'll see what they want to do." MacPhail, for his part, said no one has talked to him about the job and added, "I wouldn't want to..."

Vincent, elected on Sept. 13, 1989, to a term through March 31, 1994, had argued that the Major League Agreement to create a 'figurehead' commissioner is 'certainty the goal of some. And while it is bad for baseball, I cannot prevent that change. ... I cannot govern as commissioner without the consent of the owners,' he said.

Reinsdorf has said he would like to see the office restructured to make it a chief executive office reporting to the 28 owners as a board of directors.

"I respect Fay's decision to step aside" Autry said. "For all of us associated with baseball, we must now strive to find solutions to the problems that confront us."

The owners opposing Vincent met by telephone conference call after the resignation was announced and decided not to continue their special major league meeting on Vincent, which had been scheduled to resume Wednesday in St. Louis. Instead, the leagues will conduct their scheduled quarterly meetings Wednesday, followed by the regular joint major league meeting Thursday.

"We've been through some turbulent times and I hope we can resolve it in a peaceful way and get back to playing ball," Brown said when contacted at the U.S. Open tennis tournament.

Giles said he believed the group against Vincent would have had enough votes for a firing, even if it would have sparked a court fight.

"That would not be pretty. It would not have been good for baseball," Giles said. "It's like it's the most important thing that's been happening and to go further would have been even worse."

The executive council is to appoint this week a committee that will examine restructuring the commissioner's office.

Vincent said he hoped owners would not lessen the commissioner's powers. "I can only hope owners realize that a strong commissioner, a person of experience and stature in the community, is integral to baseball," Vincent wrote. "I hope they learn this lesson before too much damage is done to the game, to the players, umpires and others who work in the game, and most importantly, to the fans."

Vincent's opponents labeled the resignation and tried to look ahead.

"He just didn't have that ability to address the problems and the leadership ability to accomplish it," Minnesota Twins owner Carl Pohlad said.

"Fay Vincent has made a statesmanlike decision and I respect him for that," Selig said. "I am disappointed. Baseball and others who work in the game, and most importantly, to the fans."

Fay Vincent, under tremendous pressure from the major league baseball owners, resigned his position as commissioner yesterday.

The move against Vincent had its roots in the collective bargaining negotiations of 1990. Vincent entered the talks with the Major League Baseball Players Association only with permission from Selig, chairman of the Player Relations Committee. Selig and Reinsdorf later began to feel that the interjection weakened the league's bargaining position with the union.

Owners became slightly more disenchantcd in 1991 when Vincent gave AL teams $42 million of the NL's $190 million in expansion money, or a total of $3 million for each AL team. AL owners felt the money wasn't worth giving up three players in the expansion draft.

Opposition to Vincent appeared to wane in June when other owners failed to support a move to oust Vincent. But by August, the commissioner was facing a more serious challenge.

Brewers win 2-0; Yount nears 2000

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Robin Yount closed within two hits of 3,000 and Cal Eldred won his sixth straight decision Monday as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Cleveland Indians 2-0.

Yount hit a 3-2 pitch through the hole on the right side for a fourth-inning single off Cleveland's Dennis Cook (5-7). Yount grounded to third in the first and lined to center in the sixth.

Eldred (7-1), who allowed only two earned runs in his last 14 innings, twice worked out of bases-loaded jams. He struck out six and walked one.

Cubs lose Harkey for the season with knee injury

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs pitcher Mike Harkey is out for the season after injuring his knee, apparently while clowning during warmups.

"It's real, real severe," said Cubs manager Jim Lefebvre. "He's sure done for the year and will probably have surgery (today). It's devastation to us."

Witnesses said Harkey stumbled and fell on the steps into the Cubs dugout, but Lefebvre said the injury occurred earlier.

"They tell me he was running wind sprints and people in the crowd were yelling to him. He got caught up in it. He was just playing. He did a cartwheel," Lefebvre said.

Harkey was allowed two runs in his last 44-3 innings, gave up only four hits in seven innings. He walked four and struck out three. James Austin pitched the eighth and Doug Henry pitched the ninth for 26th save.

TwinS 4, Mariners 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Gene Larkin made up for a costly error with a two-run homer and a two-run double as Minnesota snapped a four-game losing streak.

Larkin's bases-loaded, one-out double off the right-field fence broke a 2-2 tie and made a winner Scott Erickson (11-10). Erickson struggled in the early going, twice working out of bases-loaded jams by inducing double-play grounders. Rick Aguilera got the final four outs for his 37th save.

Tim Leary (6-6) held the Twins hitless through 3 2-3 innings but couldn't halt the Mariners' losing streak, which reached five games.

Red Sox 3, Rangers 0

BOSTON — Roger Clemens, here throwing in practice, outdueled Nolan Ryan to win a 3-0 decision over the Rangers, lowering his league-leading ERA.

Harkey was admitted to Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

Harkey, unbeaten in four decisions, had been scheduled to pitch Tuesday night when the Cubs visit the Pittsburgh Pirates. Shawn Bobbie (5-7) will take his place.

A highly touted rookie in 1991, Harkey missed almost all of the season with a shoulder injury. He underwent surgery May 2, 1991, and did not return to action until July 20 of this year.

In seven games this year, Harkey worked 14 innings, allowed 34 hits, struck out 21 and walked 13. He had a 1.89 earned run average.

Cardinals beat Expos 8-7 on tenth-inning home run

MONTREAL (AP) — Bernard Gilkey's solo homer leading off the tenth inning gave the St. Louis Cardinals an 8-7 victory over the Montreal Expos on Monday.

The Expos, who have lost three straight, remained four games behind Pittsburgh in the NL East. Gilkey led off the tenth with a 2-0 pitch from John Weteland (3-4) over the left-field fence for his fifth homer of the season.

Bryn Smith (1-0) pitched one inning for the win and Lee Smith pitched the 10th for his third save of the season.

Stan Bellinda (5-4), who had pitched two scoreless innings immediately got into trouble in the 11th by allowing singles to Byae Sandberg and Mark Grace, who each had three at-bats.

Andre Dawson bounced into a force play before Patterson replaced Bellinda and May hit his seventh homer.

Assenmacher (4-2) pitched a scoreless 10th for the victory after Bob Scelani got his 13th save despite allowing run-scoring singles by Jose Lind and John Wetteland in the 11th.

Braves 7, Dodgers 1

ATLANTA — John Smoltz won for the first time in a month, setting down Los Angeles on three hits over seven innings as Atlanta won its third game in a row.

The win, only Atlanta's eighth in 18 games, kept the Braves 6 1/2 games ahead of Cincinnati in the National League West. The Red beat Houston 10-0.

Smoltz (15-16) was 0-4 in his last five starts with an ERA of 5.28 before Monday. The win was his first since beating Cincinnati 5-3 on Aug. 6, and the 15 victories is a career-high.

The right-hander was 14-13 last season and 14-11 in 1991. It was also his first win over Los Angeles since 1990. He had a no-decision earlier this year and was 0-4 in 1991. Smoltz is 0-4 lifetime against the Dodgers.

Smoltz struck out nine and walked five before leaving for a pinch hitter after seven innings. Mike Stanton pitched the eighth and Mark Whorlock pitched the ninth, allowing a run.

Cubs 6, Pirates 5

PITTSBURGH — Derrick May hit a three-run homer on reliever Bob Patterson's first pitch in the 11th inning and Alex Arias went 5 for 5 in his second major league start, leading Chicago over Pittsburgh.

The Cubs outslipped the Pirates 21-10, who were out-hit in 7-3-4 innings by four Pittsburgh relievers until May's drive, the second first-pitch homer allowed in this series. Todd Bennington hit a home run and slamm'd off Patterson in the Pirates' 6-5 come-from-behind victory Friday over Los Angeles.

Reds 10, Astros 0

HOUSTON — Jose Rijo held Houston to three hits over seven innings as Cincinnati routed Houston for its fourth victory in five games.

Rijo (11-9) escaped a bases-loaded jam in the second inning by striking out Retan Williams and then retired the next eight batters in a row. He struck out six and walked four.

Greg Swindell relieved Rijo and pitched one inning while striking out Brian Williams and loaded the jam in the ninth, allowing a run.

Milt Hill pitched the final inning for the Reds.

Williams (7-5) walked the bases loaded in the first inning and Hal Morris scored the first run on Glenn Braggs' grounder. Bill Doran tripled and scored on Rijo's single to center field in the second inning, and then also scored on Barry Larkin's single to left. Rijo gave up an 0-3 lead.

Mets 6, Phillies 3

PHILADELPHIA — Pete Schourek won his third straight start and Todd Hundley and Dick Schofield each drove in two runs as the New York Mets defeated Philadelphia. Philadelphia outslipped the Mets 12-6. The Phillies have lost three in a row and 13 of 14.

Schourek (6-0) allowed 10 hits and two earned runs in 6 2-3 innings. Anthony Young retired the bases loaded and two outs in the ninth and got Mariano Duncan on a grounder for his 13th save.

Terry Mulholland (12-10) allowed four runs and five hits in four innings. He left the game with an inflamed left knee, but the injury did not appear to be serious.

Petrecelli commented. "But, I believe our players are more experienced in the game than their's.

The Bulldogs top scoring threats are Kori Strnad and Kristen Neff who netted both goals for her team on Monday and Chris Johnson, the team's leading scorer in 1994 with seven goals and 12 assists.

With no progress in the injury department, Petrecelli will once again count on his younger players.

"The difference between the first and second halves on Saturday was unbelievable. The game gained an extra dimension that was definitely helpful," the second-year Irish coach said.

Most impressive of the freshmen in Saturday's game was Rosalina Guerrero, who recorded a hat trick and could be the big scorer the Irish are missing.

"She has the ability to score goals and I hope she becomes a dominant figure," Petrecelli said. "But, we have a number of players that are capable of scoring goals."

St. Mary's volleyball plays pre-season match

By KILEY COBLE

Sports Writer

The Belles volleyball team had an impressive pre-season opener at the Kalamazoo College Tournament on Saturday, placing third out of nine college teams.

In pool play, Saint Mary's enjoyed a first-round 15-5, 15-5 in its first match of the tournament. The team then went on to defeat Carthage 10-15, 15-10, 11-15, in its second game of pool play.

Saint Mary's, seeded first after those two games, went on to play North Central and lost 15-2, 15-6, 15-0. The Belles were still ranked ahead of North Central, however after this defeat and bounced back after the third match to crush Kalamazoo, 15-7, 15-6.

In the semi-finals, Saint Mary's still held on to the first-place slot when they went up against Spring Arbor, who was ranked fourth. The Belles lost a disappointing match against them, however, 15-10, 11-15, 7-15.

"We were worn out when we went up against Spring Arbor," Coach Julie Schroeder-Biek said. "We did very well, though. Our stats as a team look good."

The individual stats are impressive as well. Co-captain Karen Lorton led the team with 77 kills, Kim Brandstetter pulled off 26 kills, Mary Wheeler accomplished 25 kills, and co-captain Laura Paniwicz held her own with 17 kills.

Junior Michelle Marini led in assists, collecting 122 during the Tournament. This put her setting average at 69%, averaging 9.4 assists per game.

"We play a lot differently this year, more as a team," Marini said.

"Our offense is tremendous, but our defense needs work."

The team has started a new defense this year and according to Schroeder-Biek they had a good number of digs. "But at the end of the day we were tired and we had a dull defense," Schroeder-Biek said. "Our weaknesses are very workable, this is only the pre-season."

The Belles will be traveling again on Thursday to go against Bethel College at 7:00 pm.

Vincent's resignation is bad news for baseball fans

Take me out to the ball game. Take me out someplace crowed.

But wait until April of 1994. With the resignation yesterday of baseball commissioner Fay Vincent, a dreadful possibility looms largely real: that the 1993 season will end up as a wash, a summer-long lockdown of money-grubbing major-league players by money-grubbing major league owners.

Skyrocketing salaries, and owners willing to pay them, have put several clubs, and indeed the entire institution of major league baseball, in financial jeopardy.

With the expiration of the Major League Agreement set for 1993, major league owners will have the option of opening the agreement for restructuring before next year's season begins. With profound gaps between the twin aims of the owners and the players' union, a lockout seems like the most likely scenario for next April's opening day action.

But despite the fact that the owners are willing to go to the mat with the players' union, they are forgetting their own recent history. The owners never won their court cases. Sunday, on This Week with David Brinkley, political analyst/baseball scholar George Will likens the major league owners' legal record to the regular-season marks of the infamous Cleveland Spiders in the late 1880s.

But like those seasons must have dragged on for the Cleveland Spiders, so the summer of 1992 will drag for baseball fans from South Florida to Seattle. The big business, especially big business in the public eye, has a tendency to drag labor-agreement proceedings. The players, after all, are willing to go to the mat with the owners.

When Aug. 20, 1992 had a "I now resign," that was the only sensible thing he could do," Reinsdorf said. "It was his best interest and in our best interest. The important thing is that the commissioner made the decision that was right for himself, for baseball and for everybody. We don't have to speculate on what we would have done had he not done that.

Vincent took over as baseball's eighth commissioner when his friend, A. Bartlett Giamatti, died on Friday of Labor Day weekend three years ago. He has become the third commissioner forced to leave early, joining Happy Chandler and William Eckert. In addition, Bowie Kuhn was defeated in his bid for a third term and Peter Ueberroth departed prematurely after sensing owners would not re-elect him.

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Fay Vincent gave up the fight to keep his job and resigned Monday, four days after an overwhelming no-confidence vote by major league owners.

"I've concluded that resignation — not litigation — should be my final act as commissioner in the best interests of the game of baseball," Vincent wrote in a three-page letter to owners that he made public through a local reporter.

On Aug. 20, Vincent had vowed "I will not resign," adding "But the team owners in 18-9 with one abstention Thursday urged him to quit, and he decided to resign after a weekend of reflection at his vacation home in Harwich Port, Mass.

Vincent was forced out by owners angry at his refusal to relinquish the commissioner's "best interests" power on collective bargaining, his unilateral order to realign the National League and his stance against superstations.

The group was led by Jerry Reinsdorf of the Chicago White Sox, Bud Selig of Milwaukee, Stanton Cook of the Chicago Cubs and Peter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It would be an even greater disservice to baseball if I were to precipitate a protracted fight over the office of the commissioner," Vincent wrote. "After the vote at the meeting last week, I can no longer justify imposing on baseball, umpires and fans when baseball is required to endure, a bitter legal battle — even though I am confident that in the end I would win and thereby establish a judicial precedent that the term and powers of the commissioner cannot be diminished during the remaining months of my term.

Reinsdorf also sounded relieved that a flight was avoided.

Under pressure, Vincent resigns

Women's soccer team takes on Butler

By MIKE SCRUDATO

The 18th-ranked Notre Dame women's soccer team learned a lot on Saturday against fifth-ranked North Carolina State. Tonight the Irish will try to put it to use as they travel to Indianapolis to face Butler.

"They are a very organized team that is difficult to score against," Irish coach Chuck Petrucci said. "I know we have more talent than them, but that doesn't mean we are going to win.

"They (Butler) are excited about playing Notre Dame. This is their biggest game of the year."
