Morgan's "lack of respect" has led to her isolation, she said.

Today, Morgan is doing just the opposite. She is part of a small group of students who are working hard to improve her school and her community. The group includes Lisa Brown, a junior, and Kristin Johnson, a senior.

"We are trying to make a difference," Morgan said. "We are trying to make our school a better place for everyone to learn."

The group meets after school every day to discuss their plans and to work on projects. They have already begun painting murals on the walls of the school and planting trees in the courtyard.

"We are changing the culture of our school," Johnson said. "We are making it a place where everyone feels welcome and respected."

The group's efforts have not gone unnoticed. They have received support from the community and from school administrators.

"I am proud of these students," said Principal John Wilson. "They are doing a great job of making our school a better place to be."

It takes more than good hair to be a star

I finally got the call Wednesday.

Many, many weeks after signing up last week. After shaving the sideburns I had grown for lit., the people making the movie "Rudy" asked me to be an extra for the movie. My big break into Hollywood? Glamour and bobswooshing with the stars idolized by half the free world (and gossip columnists everywhere)?

Then, I went to the filming place.

Friday at 11 a.m. I arrived in the basement of the Knights of Columbus building with two changes of clothing. First they took me to the wardrobe trailer. Apparently, the clothes I had brought weren't right for the scene, and I got a 70-style set of clothes.

I wasn't sure whether to be angry that my clothes were no good or relieved that I didn't own any real 70s fashion.

I was then sent back to the K of C, where I was given over to a hairdresser. After 20 minutes of scissors and spray, I had an Art Garfunkel-esque Afro.

After that, the other extras and I had some lunch. If nothing else, we had a decent meal for all our troubles. Any chance to avoid a Dining Hall lunch for free cannot be all that bad.

After lunch, we waited. And waited.

Between sessions, we talked about our parts. Of course, a few of the extras, the students and the actors there to play priests (they needed extras to play priests at Notre Dame, for some reason or other), three of us, Corey, Sally and myself, spent all day in the K of C basement waiting for our call and were paid minimum wage to sit around and wait.

To entertain ourselves, we played cards, told each other the stories of our lives and watched all sorts of films to annoy the movie people (like taking one of their walkie-talkies and sending an acolyte on a phony mission to the Stephan Center).

At around 7:30 p.m., we were hungry and restless, and I was wondering if this was how they would allow us for a while, we went upstairs to order some pizza.

That's when they sent for us.

Because it was now night, the directors had decided to shoot a scene where Rudy goes to the Grotto, lights a bunch of candles and prays for a minimum wage to stick around and wait.

By that time, the sun had set, the temperature had plunged well below freezing and the wind was at least at gale-strength. Because of the cold weather, I got a wool cap to wear, putting my new haircut to waste.

For the next hour or so, in the bitter cold of a December night, I knelt on a metal bar at the Grotto with my hands clenched in a pseudo-prayer (the only thing I was praying for was warmth) filming a 20-second scene that probably won't ever be seen.

Explosion rocks Virginia coal mine; traps miners

NORTON, Va. (AP) — An explosion rocked an underground coal mine early Monday, trapping eight miners about a mile inside. One miner crawled to safety, authorities said. Relatives gathered at the mine in the heart of Appalachia to await word.

Among them was the sister of 30-year-old Brian Owens. "I'd say if he's feeling like we are, he's scared to death," said Melissa Honaker.

"You think you're going to come out of there every time and you never know when it's going to blow up," the miner who crawled out had been working closer to an entrance than those trapped, said Mike Abbott of the state Division of Mines office in Big Stone Gap. He suffered burns.

EIGHTEEN RESCUE SQUAD UNITS converged on the mine near the Guest River, about a mile outside Norton, a city of about 4,000 people in the southwestern corner of Virginia.

Rescuers wearing oxygen masks entered the mine about four hours after the explosion to check whether gases may be present and assess the danger, Abbott said.

The explosion also severely damaged the office building at South Mountain Coal Co. mine No. 3, said Wise County Sheriff Bill Kalle.

There was no word on the cause of the blast. Explosions in coal mines can be caused by ignition of airborne coal dust or methane, a naturally occurring gas in coal seams, although safety measures suppress dust and ventilation systems remove or dilute methane.

By midday, rescuers had not been able to communicate with the trapped miners, said a mine employee who would not give his name.

"They probably barricaded themselves in to hold what air they had until rescue workers could reach them," the employee said.

Each miner carries a mask and about an hour of oxygen, rescue workers said. Large

Law may halt lead poisoning

Will require that home buyers be warned

ATLANTA (AP) — New federal legislation will help the nation meet its goal of eliminating childhood lead poisoning in 20 years, scientists said today.

"We must begin to prevent lead poisoning before it occurs," said Dr. William Roper, director of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. "We are of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control... lead poisoning before it occurs," Tuesday, December 8, 1992 The Observer page 3

Clinton to stop tests at hazardous waste site

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration, in an early show of commitment to environmental protection, will move to stop testing at an Ohio hazardous waste facility, Vice President-elect Al Gore said today.

Gore, who will run the new administration will refuse a final-stage testing permit to the East Liverpool plant, which some local residents say is dangerous.

Gore said in a statement the testing permit would be denied until Congress investigates the legality of the plant's operating license. He cited "serious questions concerning the safety of the facility.

"For the safety and health of local residents rightfully concerned about the impact of this incinerator on their families and their future, a thorough investigation is urgently needed," Gore said.

Radical South Africans declare war on whites

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Nelson Mandela on Monday condemned attacks on whites at a restaurant and golf club by a radical black group and said talks on ending the conflict are at a standstill.

The radical group, the Azanian People's Liberation Army, said it has declared war on whites. The group took responsibility for recent attacks in which five white civilians were killed.

Mandela said his African National Congress opposed the Azanian group. "We condemn any use of force against civilians, whether black or white and we think it is unacceptable that innocent civilians should be killed — for any reason," he said during a visit to Namibia.

He said he was confident the attacks would not disrupt talks between the white minority government, the ANC and other parties on ending apartheid and sharing power with the black majority.

President F.W. de Klerk condemned the Azanian attacks Monday and said the government was considering emergency steps to halt the violence. He gave no details.

The Azanian group claimed last Sunday it plans operations in 19 cities and towns around South Africa, including Cape Town and Pretoria. Police earlier warned the country may face a Christmas bombing campaign.

The group took responsibility for a Dec. 3 bombing of a restaurant, in which one white was killed, and a Nov. 28 gun and grenade attack on a country club, in which four whites died.

3 Israelis killed by Palestinians

JERUSALEM (AP) — Three Israeli reservists were killed early Monday when Palestinian guerrillas raked their patrol with gunfire in the occupied Gaza Strip, the army said.

The attack came just hours before Arab-Israeli peace talks reconvened in Washington. The Muslim fundamentalist group Hamas, which opposes the talks, claimed responsibility and said it would intensify its attacks to mark the beginning of the sixth year of the Palestinian uprising, which began Dec. 9, 1987.

Hamas, in an interview with Israeli radio, acknowledged that sealing off Gaza would increase internal tensions in the coastal strip.

Two of the reservists were identified as 1st Lt. Hugai Amiel, 24, and Sgt. Udi Zamir, 23. The name of the third victim was not immediately released.

It was the worst attack on Israeli troops since February, when three soldiers were hacked to death at their training base in northern Israel by fundamentalist Israeli-Arabs.

"If they believe that this will bring about a decision by Israel to put an end to peace negotiations, they are wrong," Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said.

The government retaliated by sealing off Gaza would increase internal tensions in the coastal strip. But he said the government was more concerned with protecting Israeli citizens.

The order to seal Gaza could take a serious toll on the coastal strip's economy, which depends heavily on jobs in Israel. About 30,000 Gaza workers cross daily into the Jewish state through heavily guarded checkpoints, U.N. officials said.

The army patrol was hit as it passed through a Gaza City neighborhood. Armed men in a passing car opened fire, then circled back and fired again, officers said.

Palestinians at an army roadblock nearby said the assailants shouted "Allahu Akbar," or God is great, the rallying cry of Islamic militants.

India bans fundamentalists

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government moved to ban fundamentalist groups and sent the army into Bombay to secure order Monday after religious riots broke out across India, leaving about 200 Hindus and Muslims dead.

Fighting with firebombs, knives, axes and stones engulfed dozens of towns across India after Hindu zealots destroyed a Muslim mosque in northern India on Sunday and began building a Hindu temple at the site.

The sacking of the Babri Masjid mosque enraged India's Muslim neighbors. Pakistan and Bangladesh, spurred calls for the ouster of Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao and threatened widespread violence among India's 700 million Hindus and 100 million Muslims.

Clinton hesitant to agree with reports of economic recovery

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas Foley promised a productive partnership with President-elect Clinton on Monday as Democrats anointed him and his leadership team for two more years.

Foley told reporters, "I sense a new beginning, renewal." As both parties convened to elect their leaders for the coming two years, Republicans elected Texas Rep. Richard Armey over incumbent Californian Jerry Lewis to chair the Republican Conference, the organization of all GOP House members. The vote was 88 to 84.

"Compromise is not going to be in the vocabulary" in the session of Congress that begins Jan. 5, complained Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., a member of the party's shrinking moderate wing.

Along with Foley, D-Wash., Democrats re-elected Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., and Majority Whip David Bonior, D-Mich. They also expanded the leadership team to include a Hispanic, Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., as a fourth chief deputy whip.

Republicans retained by acclamation Minority Leader Bob Michel of Illinois and Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia.

Later, a Democratic leadership panel ousted Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., chairman of the Appropriations Committee after 14 years at its helm.

On the verge of announcing his economic team — he's expected to nominate Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as treasury secretary later this week — Clinton appeared to be seeking to dampen expectations that a spate of upbeat economic indicators over the past few weeks spell better times ahead.

Female reps draft position statement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 18 female newcomers to the House took just an hour Monday to draft a position statement on their priorities: Head Start, family leave and abortion legislation, and better protection against sexual harassment for women working on Capitol Hill.

"One thing I was amazed at was how easily the women put this together," said Rep. elect Deborah Pryce, a Republican from Ohio.

"I think perhaps it's just the way women work," she said. "The dynamic of the group when the room was totally female was very different than other meetings I've been in. It's hard to explain."

The 15 Democratic and three Republican women said their first priority will be to get the Head Start program enough money to serve all needy pre-schoolers.

Lawmakers have given the program enough money to serve only a fraction of eligible children.

The women also said they'll push for legislation guaranteeing workers the right to unpaid leave when there's an illness or other family emergency.

Northwest to receive financial aid

— NEW YORK — Northwest Airlines announced a dose of financial relief Monday, saying lenders had agreed to let the company assume $750 million in debt. The company said it would let the strapped carrier delay or cancel $6.2 billion in planned orders. Northwest will still receive $2.9 billion in cash from suppliers and other funders to fund operations during the typical slow winter travel season.

Court delays asbestos settlement

— NEW YORK — A court ruling blocking the reorganization of the Manville asbestos trust means that claims worth a $2 billion settlement will remain unpaid until resolution of a legal and worker health crisis that appears to defy solution. Ironically, the planned restructuring, now 2 years old, was designed to speed payments to workers or their descendants who say asbestos-containing products made by the former John-Manville Co. caused a range of illnesses.

AMR Corp. takes $525 million

— DALLAS — AMR Corp., parent of American Airlines, said it would take a $525 million after-tax charge to year-end earnings to comply with new accounting standards facing most large corporations. In September, AMR chairman Timeothy Saltzgraph, a spokesperson for the company, announced a similar charge of $1.01 billion Monday and Transco Inc. said it faced a $321 million charge.

Digital cuts work force by 6,000

— MADRID — Telefonica, Spain’s state-owned telephone company, said it would outsource jobs and lay off 6,000 administrative workers in the coming year. The cuts will be made in the late 1980s when accumulated debt, Japan’s economic contraction and a rising recession pushed Chrysler to the brink.

Bank Machines to be linked

— PHILADELPHIA — Five networks of automated teller machines will be linked by next summer, giving 26 million card holders access to 13,000 machines in 16 states, officials said. The joint venture announced Monday will include the Money Access Center, or MAC, machines that serve 16.6 million card holders in seven states, primarily in the Mid-Atlantic region.

GM never asked Isocaccia

— HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. — Chrysler Corp. chairman Lee Iacocca said he was prepared to make his offer Monday to rescue Chrysler. Chrysler’s former chairman, who made his offer Monday, was not asked. Iacocca, who made his offer Monday, said it was a multi-million dollar business that allowed him to raise his $2 billion plan.

NEW YORK (AP) — The advertising industry’s best-known forecaster trimmed his estimate of 1992 ad spending growth Monday, trimming a percentage point to 4.5 percent but said he expects a 6.7 percent increase for 1993. Robert Coen, a senior executive at the ad agency McCann-Erickson Worldwide, blamed a sluggish economic recovery and weak spending growth by local advertisers for the downward revision. Coen, who has been making annual forecasts of ad spending for 20 years, said he has been factoring in an exceptionally optimistic scenario. Indeed, he initially estimated 1992 growth at 6.2 percent last December but scaled that back to 5 percent in June. The researcher told the opening session of the weekling PaineWebber Media Conference that the pickup in the economy and recent performance of some of the media business is signaling a brighter growth next year. Advertising spending trends are closely monitored by the newspaper and broadcasting industries, which rely heavily on sales of space and time to stay in business. INDEPENDENT (AP) — It’s only been in effect five months, a law that allows the state to tax drug offenders has been used to assess $48 million in taxes and penalties. Unfortunately, only a fraction of that amount has been collected, however, an Indiana Department of Revenue spokesman said. Indiana is one of three states that have adopted laws that impose taxes on illegally delivered, manufactured or possessed drugs and marijuana.

Since July 1, the start of the state’s fiscal year, revenue officials have been able to issue tax warrants against drug offenders. “The idea behind it is, why are alleged drug dealers doing what they are doing? Obviously, it’s to make money,” said Chief Special Prosecutor Larry McKee. "Illegal drugs is a multi-million dollar business that operates outside existing law and tax laws." Often, McKee said, when drug suspects are arrested, their bungled bank accounts are untraceable without evidence of a direct relationship between the assets and the illegal activity.

"This (law) goes far beyond that to get it back," McKee said. The tax and penalties add up quickly. Some assessments against individuals suspects have been in the millions of dollars, McKee said. When you’re talking $40 a gram on some of these substances, it doesn’t take long before you get into that. Then, there’s a 100 percent penalty attached to this,” he said.

There’s still a problem in collecting the tax. Of the approximately $24 million assessed in tax and an other $24 million in penalties assessed as of mid-November, only $208,000, or 0.1 percent, had been collected, McKee said. The bulk of the money goes to local law enforcement agencies that made the initial arrests and to drug programs. Very little is kept by the state, McKee said.

"It may take several years for that money to make its way back to local law enforcement agencies because no one of this money can be distributed until they (the offenders) exhaust their appeals,” McKee said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans took out their credit cards again in October, spending more than in any month since 1942, the latest gain in installment credit to its first back-to-back increase in a year, the government said Monday. Consumer debt outstanding rose 0.4 percent, a seasonally adjusted annual rate, after a 2.4 percent increase in September, the Federal Reserve said. Economists said that’s a sign Americans gradually were becoming more confident and optimistic in the economy just before the start of the crucial holiday shopping season.

The consumer seems more confident. He seems to be “spending freely, and put down some money,” said economist David Wyss of DRI-McGraw Hill, a Lexington, Mass., forecasting firm. “But I don’t think we’re out of the woods yet. There’s still a chance this recovery could stall out again, as have the last two.”

Before the latest gains, consumer credit increased by 0.3 percent for eight straight months and for 13 of the previous 16 months. December’s gains, if they hold, could begin to backfire in September-October 1991.

Consumer credit gained for accounts for roughly two-thirds of overall spending, so the largest increase in 21 years is a key to how long a recovery can be sustained.

Unlike in previous recessions, consumers had been very cautious in the face of stagnant income and an uncertain job outlook. Also, many people were striving to reduce debt built up over the 1980s. But that’s changing and credit card use is increasing.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trans World Airlines owner Carl Icahn has agreed to provide financing to TWA and to guarantee more than $1 billion in pension benefits, TWA officials said. The agreement will allow the carrier to emerge from bankruptcy protection.

TWA to emerge from bankruptcy protection

The TVA’s existing pension benefit trust was 200 percent funded. TWA agreed to pay $200 million in cash to the pension fund and to guarantee $200 million in financing to TWA and to bankrupt court Jan. 12, would reflect the elimination of more than $1 billion in debt as well as wage and benefit reductions of about 15 percent, totaling about $660 million over three years, which TVA officials said was agreed to in September.

The dispute over the underfunded pension plans had been the last major obstacle to the company’s return to its creditors and employees.

In October, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. dropped its demand that the carrier first settle its $1.2 billion pension fund shortfall.

The TWA board chairman and chief executive estimated U.S. ad spending growth rose a slim 0.6 percent for 1992, and will be up 3.2 percent next year.

There will be "steady improvement but no great boom-bust until economic conditions improve," Periss said.

He said his estimates differ from Coen’s because they exclude local advertising, which is a heavily specialized media. He has also generally been optimistic about spending trends. A year ago, he forecast a 1.2 percent rise in U.S. ad spending for 1992, five full percentage points below Coen’s estimate.

All three spending forecasts included

Ad spending projections for 1992 were compared to the worst year for TV, or 1984: Ad spending fell 16.5 percent in 1984. Ad spending fell 1.5 percent in 1991 in its first decline in 30 years and its biggest decline since 1942.

Coen said national advertising rose 3 percent for the first five months of the year. Local advertising was up 3.5 percent. The combined total was up 4.5 percent at $132.1 billion.

Getting a date in under two hours would be very good for most freshmen. But my freshman experience was that a third of my dates would fail through by Thursday night. Parents would come into town or papers would become due. Nine out of 10 excuses were bogus.

May be girls were too shy to say no, and had to get up their courage to break an unwanted date. But it rarely happened to me as a sophomore, and never thereafter. A lot of them simply accepted several dates and decided later which one to keep.

Not every Saint Mary's student had a date every weekend. Some were so shy that no guys knew they existed. Some were plighted to absent swains. Some were not des- tined to be asked out, while others were so attractive that most guys were scared of them.

But there were also Saint Mary's students who had a Friday night date, a Saturday pre-game date, a post-game date, and a Sunday day-date, as well as a Sunday supper date. On average, SMC did alright.

But we were jerks, too, and could be spectacularly foul. Friday and Saturday night, a primordial howling would issue from the Circle, where hordes of drunken students would clog the area, attempting to hitch rides with cruising townies, pounding on the cars as they drove through, shouting, screaming, running after them, and occasionally getting in for... what? I'm not sure.

The stories were of fast, sweaty, and generally unsatisfactory sex in the back seats of cars, but guys who would hitch in the Circle would also lie.

This appalling spectacle went on throughout weekends of my freshman and sophomore years, interrupted only by winter, but I don't recall it beyond 1969. Perhaps the cops found a way to cut off the cruizers.

What remained a fact that a woman walking on the Notre Dame campus was bound to be harassed. If you consider it harassment to be leered at, or to overhear what one person says about another, then it was impossible to cross the campus without harassment. But it was also likely that you would have some vulgar proposition or observation made directly to you, and that became a near certainty if you walked between the Fieldhouse and Cavanaugh, where students hung out the windows shouting obscenities at passing women.

Mind you, I had a fairly active social life. But I worked as if it were too hard and most of the relationships were unsatisfactory. Even friendships were incredibly difficult to nurture. When I got away from Notre Dame and found that, elsewhere, people treated each other with respect and even affection, it certainly made me question what I had endured.

From what I have seen in my visits to campus, whether you are where you want to be or not, you are a whole lot healthier than we were. I mean, geez, you'd have to be, right?

Saint Mary's art department offers a history of resources

By BETH NESSNER

Accent Writer

For a smaller school, Saint Mary's boasts one of the oldest art departments among Catholic schools. Through a nationally accredited program with unique college requirements, the art department features a history of faculty resources and student innovation found commonly at larger schools, according to senior art major Frances McMahon.

"I wasn't aware of the art department here when I came," she said. "At a small college, you don't get a lot of the lab space and resources, but I've really been impressed by their work.

The art department has been a part of Saint Mary's since the 1850s, not long after the school began and according to senior art major McMahon.

"I think it's one of the oldest departments on campus," he said.

Saint Mary's College began as an academy in Bertrand, Missouri, in 1844, when it was founded by the Sisters of the Holy Cross. At that time, the interest in art and preparation of art teachers was discovered in old notebooks and journals, according to a written biography of the department.

Tradition states that the first art teacher came from Canada, although there are no written records to back this up. The idea is, it is believed, stemmed from the fact that Mother Saint Sauveur (Morineau) hailed from Canada in 1848 and was named Director of the Academy that year. Sauveur made many improvements and first introduced "art" to the Sisters by demonstrating how to make artificial flowers. The biography concluded that it was from this that Sauveur became interested in promoting art and its techniques.

The school proudly published catalogues full of playing everything from the criteria of art supplies to different artworks, according to the biography. Saint Mary's hosted many talented professors who taught continuing to make the Art Department even stronger.

By late in the century, the department had earned national recognition in the Chicago New World in Feb. 1899. Eliza Allen Starr, a later teacher, spoke of Saint Mary's as one of the very few real art schools among Catholic institutions.

According to the biography, Starr was one of the most influential teachers in the history of Saint Mary's Art Department. Starr impacted students from 1871 to 1877 by helping mold future artists and art professors and later returned to Saint Mary's as a visitor or a lecturer. Many other later teachers were pupils of Starr's.

One man who contributed greatly to the history of the college in general was Father John Zahm, who assisted in securing some valuable paintings. Some of the paintings he helped secure were "The Immaculate Conception" and "A Holy Family" by Murillo.

Another prominent art professor arrived at the turn of the century—Johnson Emilien Paradis, a graduate of Notre Dame. According to the biography, Paradis brought artistic influence directly from such cities as Paris and Rome, as he studied at the Ecole Nationale des Beaux Arts, according to the biography.

"After seven years of study abroad, he came back to Notre Dame with a strong wish in his heart...to organize a good and thorough school of drawing and painting," according to "Opus Cited."

Five-Eight, 'I Learned Shut Up' highlights southern talent

By ROLANDO DE AGUIAR

Music Critic

Athens, Ga. has long been a cultural center. Since the loved days of yore, when Pylon, R.E.M. and B-52s played the clubs of this college town every weekend, Athens has been a favorite business destination for A&R representatives from every major label, and a bright beacon for hundreds of bands looking for a big break.

The latest pop/rock phenomenon to emerge from the haze of musical activity that still lingers over Athens is Five-Eight.

The guitar, bass and drums of this straightforward three-piece transcend barriers of genre and categorization, as their songs, with familiar themes—love, sex, alienation and infatuation—and sounds—R.E.M. and on overdrive—speak to the disinclined.

Mike Mantione's vocals do most of the communicative work for the band, alternating between storytelling and poetry, while even combining the two occasionally—a rare feat for many pop songwriters.

"There's visions of lovers with smiles entwined / Over a pool table their looks mock mine," he sings in "Desperate Tonight," the mellower of the 11 songs on the album, which tells the story of a young man driven suicidal by his romantic frustration.

Suicidal thoughts and desperation are themes central to many of the songs found on I Learned Shut Up. The album kicks off with "Looking Up," the tale of a depressed man, turned to drugs to cure his illness, who suffers every possible side effect of the lithium on which he relies.

Five-Eight keeps a certain southern rock groove throughout the album, consistently bringing the message of their songs home with those familiar sounds, rediscovered by the Allman Brothers and changed by other influential bands.

But Five-Eight's music is not mere rehash, and does not become tiresome. Mantione's lyrics and guitar, supported by the active bass sounds of Dan Horowitz and Patrick Ferguson's cymbal-laden rhythms, drive the songs quickly and forcefully into the heart and mind of the listener.

Possibly the catchiest song on the album, "Lemon Love Drops" immediately hooks the listener with a nifty lyric: "Her skirt's worn thin by the sun's probing grin," sings Mantione, who proceeds to tell a story of a great love lost.

While deep emotion rings true to the two occasionally—a rare feat for many pop songwriters.

Oilers convert turnovers into 14 points, sixth straight Bowl Wins

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers converted a pair of Chicago turnovers into touchdowns en route to a 26-14 victory over the Chicago Bears. The Bears, who led 7-0 three times in the game, could do nothing right on offense against the Houston defense.

McDowell intercepted a Tom Wells pass and tagged up 26 yards down the sideline with 40 seconds left in the second quarter to give the Oilers a 10-0 halftime lead.

Midway through the third quarter, Webster Slaughter caught a 6-yard pass from Cody Carlson in the fourth quarter to make the score 17-0. The Oilers scored twice after that to push their lead to 26-0.

When a 38-yard pass interference penalty against Houston's Frank Jerkins allowed a touchdown, the Bears scored three plays later to make the score 17-7.

The Bears tried a fake field goal on fourth down but punter Chris Davis's punt was blocked and Denver Retter was downed first at the Oilers 42. Three running plays took them to the 4.

Extra game costs Alabama defense

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — No. 2 Alabama was hoping to become only the second team in NCAA history to lead the nation in all four major defensive categories. But an extra game cost the Crimson Tide.

Alabama (12-0) was ranked first in total, rushing, passing and scoring defense. But an extra game cost the Tide.

The Gators, rallying from a 21-7 deficit, became the first team to score three touchdowns against the Tide, which gave up 287 yards passing and 317 yards total.

That shaky performance knocked Alabama to second in all four major defensive categories.

Matthews had had a good game to that point against the nation's best defense, which got a lecture from line coach Mike Dubose after the Gators tied it up.

"He told us, 'This is your team. You've got to win the game. Somebody has got to make a big play,"' Langham said.

"Not surprisingly, it was Langham who came up with that big play. It was his third touchdown of the season, all three coming at critical times for the Tide."

"He's just got a knack for making the plays," coach Gene Stallings said.

One week earlier, Langham had returned an interception 61 yards for a touchdown against Arch-rival Auburn to break a scoreless tie in the third quarter. Alabama won on to win 17-0.

I should have thrown the ball somewhere else," he said. "It was a bad decision on my part.

Pendegast honored as soccer team's MVP

Special to The Observer

Pendegast, who hails from Simsbury, Conn., had five goals and one assist for the Irish this year and finished 10th in career scoring with 71 total points in his four years and ninth in goal scoring with 29. He earned four monograms during his career.

Mario Tricoci, team captain, and Brendan Dillman, both seniors, were also honored. Trico- ci started the last 57 games of his career and Dillman earned first-season honors. Last season's contest between the Hoosiers and the Irish isn't one Notre Dame wants to remember. In MacLeod's second game as head coach, the Irish got spanked, 78-46, by Indiana. Notre Dame hit just 36.7% of its shots on the night.

"Indiana just thoroughly dominated us last year. We had all kinds of difficulty running our offense, which is a tribute to their defense," MacLeod said.

"I was impressed with Indiana. This is another very strong Indiana team," said MacLeod. "Indiana poses many, many problems. They're a multi-talented team. They ran the ball out court better than four monograms."

The "Coach's Award" went to sophomore Kevin Adkisson. He started 16 contests and had one assist.

Mike Palmer, a junior from South Bend, earned the Notre Dame club of St. Joseph's scholar-athlete award. He started in all 19 games and notched four goals and three assists.

anybody gets them credit for." MacLeod is also pleased with where his Irish team is after two games.

"2-0 is a good mark at this stage," he said. "This is the real thing, not practice. We see the need to battle. We had better be feisty."

The only other Saint Mary's volleyball player to capture a title happens to be second-year volleyball coach Julie Schroeder-Biek in 1986, when Schroeder-Biek was a student at Saint Mary's. At the time, Saint Mary's participated in the NAIA organization and Schroeder-Biek secured an All-state title.
