With three ex-presidents standing behind him, President Clinton signed supplemental trade agreements Tuesday that the White House hopes will overcome formidable opposition to establishing the world's largest free trade zone.

During an elaborate East Room ceremony, Clinton and former Presidents George Bush, Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford attacked opponents of the North American Free Trade Agreement who they said are distorting the truth and playing on Americans' worst fears.

Clinton used the blustery language, railing in on Dallas billionaire Ross Perot, the agreement's most vocal critic, who has contended that it will put 5.9 million American jobs in the United States at risk. He said opponents seek cheaper wages and lax enforcement of environmental and work-force standards in Mexico.

"Unfortunately, in our country now, we have a demagogue who has unlimited financial resources and who is extremely careless with the truth who is preying on the fears and the uncertainties of the American public," Carter said, drawing a standing ovation from the crowd of NAFTA supporters.

Perot spokeswoman Sharon Holman said the former independent presidential candidate would not respond to Carter's attack. "We're going to stay focused on the issues," she said.

The 2,000-page main trade agreement was completed in August 1992 by the Bush Administration. It would remove virtually all barriers to trade and investment between the United States, Mexico and Canada over a 15-year period.

Clinton demanded three supplemental agreements on enforcement of environmental laws, an economic analysis and sudden import surges to correct what he saw as flaws in the main agreement.

Those supplemental agreements were signed Tuesday in separate ceremonies by Clinton and Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, Canadian Prime Minister Kim Campbell, who is facing a tough October election, signed the agreements without a public ceremony Monday night in her office.

The White House had most of the Cabinet on hand along with 13 governors, four mayors, various business executives and Democratic and Republican leaders from the House and Senate.

Clinton, who was forced to pass his economic program without a simple Republican vote, is counting on GOP support to offset widespread defections by liberals in his own party.

The president said that those who opposed NAFTA were playing on the "fears and insecurities that are legitimately gripping the great American middle class.

FATTON: Strife complicates African democratization

By AMY SANTANGELO
News Writer

Rival parties competing for power in emerging African nations complicate the process of democratization, according to Robert Fatton, professor at the University of Virginia.

This problem stems from the fact that these groups have varying ideas as to what is best for the African nation, according to Fatton who spoke at lecture. "Civil War and Democratization: The Politics of Civil Society in Africa."

The three main groups attempting to gain power are the Predatory Block, the Middle Sectors, and the Popular Civil Society sect. Each one has its own view of what the democratization process in Africa entails, Fatton said.

The Predatory Block uses its position in the state to promote its own interests. The members of this "party" believe in controlled liberalization. Controlled liberalization entails granting certain freedoms to the people while simultaneously keeping them under a fair amount of direction.

The Predatory Block cannot exist as the one true form of government, said Fatton. "The in-definite position regarding democratization, and its struggle to retain absolute power, according to Fatton.

The second "party" is the Middle Sector. This segment of society is the most extensive. It seeks its own interests.

The third "party" is the Popular Sector. This group is the most unstable. Its political stances are difficult to predict, according to Fatton.
Police and media pull vanishing act

Several questions have been raised about the priorities of the South Bend Police Department and the local media for the way they have handled recent crime-related incidents involving Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students.

We feel specifically, students are asking why an incident such as this past weekend's S.U.D.S. raid of a student party, which led to 16 underage drinking citations, has received more coverage by the police and the media than the continued rash of burglaries on off-campus housing.

Monday night's burglary of a Lafayette residence brings the total number of reported break-ins there in the past three weeks to six, not to mention several car vandalisms and attempted break-ins.

Yet, despite the fact that one-fifth of the 30 student-occupied units have been burglarized, vandalism and attempted break-ins.

At the same time, the S.U.D.S. bust was widely publicized throughout the media on Sunday, the day after the incident occurred.

The policy at the Tribune is to report all robberies and only commercial burglaries unless there is an unusual or extraordinary break-ins in a residential area, according to Metro Editor Nancy Sulok.

Ken Bailer of WNDU added that the police department is responsible for disseminating such information to the media, yet the police did not make it clear to them that there had been a recent rash of burglaries at Lafayette.

Sulok said: "There is a major question remaining is why haven't these crimes been highlighted in the police reports? Isn't it unusual if not extraordinary that a small residential development occupied by students has been hit with such a large number of burglaries in such a short period of time?"

Both Sulok and Bill Kirk, assistant vice president of ND Residence Life, said they do not believe law enforcement is that uncommon.

Every year students living off campus experience the same instances of crime, they said. "We're not sure if the chief of Police Ken Martiniak added that an estimated 60 to 70 burglaries were committed city-wide during the same three week period, making the six occurring in Lafayette less significant.

In addition to the residential crime complex within this group has had as many burglaries as Lafayette. With a small area that student occupies, the number of crimes committed there is extremely unusual and highly extraordinary.

If it wasn't the assistant to the mayor of South Bend would not have been called into an emergency meeting with Chris Matteo, the owner of the townhouse's prohmes, on Friday, Sept. 3, the day after the fourth break-in was reported, and extra police surveillance of the area added.

Police and media pull vanishing act

More European tourists fall victim to random violence in Florida

MONTICELLO, Fla.

Margaret Ann Jagger, bleeding from a bullet that grazed her chest and right arm, cried into the telephone, "He's dying! He's really dying... Please hurry!"

The British tourist's boyfriend had just been fatally wounded at an interstate highway rest stop in northern Florida, the latest in a series of attacks that are threatening the state's lucrative tourism industry.

Jagger, 35, and boyfriend Gary Colley, 34, who arrived Thursday in Orlando, pulled off Interstate 10 for a nap in their 10 unmarked rental car early Tuesday. The rest area was well-lighted. There were other people around.

Then two armed youths approached, knocked on the windows and demanded money. "They woke up and tried to back out and that's when they were shot," said Jefferson County Sheriff Ken Fortune.

Jagger called 911 from a phone booth nearby. "And there was blood all coming out of his mouth and I think he's dying," she told an emergency operator.

Colley, who lived with Jagger for about 12 years, was the ninth foreign tourist in Florida to be killed since October. Early Thursday, a German honeymooner driving an unmarked rental car from the Miami airport to his hotel was shot to death in an apparent highway robbery attempt.

Although police said it appeared that Colley's killers were unaware he and Jagger were foreign tourists, Gov. Lawton Chiles suspended all tourist alerts for Florida — at home and abroad.

The governor also ordered beefed-up patrols at the state's 48 interstate highway rest stops, deploying 540 auxiliary officers from the Florida Highway Patrol, Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission and Marine Patrol.

The officers have law enforcement powers as long as they remain in contact with police.

The state also was exploring ways to hire private security for a permanent 24-hour presence at the stops.

"We have to turn our outrage into determination," Chiles said. "Violence and brutality have no welcome mat in Florida."

Kevorkian violates court order again

REDFORD TOWNSHIP, Mich.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian was arraigned Tuesday on a second charge of assisting in a suicide, this time in the death of a man who killed himself while Kevorkian was free on bond.

District Court Judge Richard Manning released Kevorkian on $10,000 bail with the condition that he not commit any more suicides.

Kevorkian waved to cheering spectators as he left the courthouse, but had no comment. His attorney, Geoffrey Fieger, said he was sure his client wouldn't be convicted.

The latest charge came in the death Thursday of Donald O'Keefe. The 73-year-old cancer victim was the 18th person to die in Kevorkian's presence.

Police, summoned by an emergency phone call, found O'Keefe dead at his home with a mask and tube over his nose and mouth. A canister of carbon monoxide gas was nearby and Kevorkian was in the house, Police Chief David Parker said.

The call came hours after Kevorkian was bound over for trial in last month's death of 30-year-old Thomas Hyde Jr. Kevorkian has not described what role he played in O'Keefe's death.

On Tuesday, Assistant Prosecutor Tim Kenny asked District Court Judge Richard Manning to forbid Kevorkian to be present at the World Trade Center trial.

"Something happened at the World Trade Center," Fieger said. "Exactly what happened and who was responsible can only be ascertained by a jury willing to listen to what the evidence is, not what the sporulation is." Security was heightened at the courthouse and at the Trade Center several blocks away, where six people were killed and 1,100 injured in the Feb. 26 blast.

At the Trade Center, extra guards were in the garage where the bomb exploded and a police officer and his dog patrolled near the turnstiles of the nearby PATH train platform that was damaged.

The four Islamic fundamentalists born in the Middle East are charged with conspiracy and face a maximum penalty of life in prison without parole if convicted. Two other suspects are fugitives, a seventh has been severed from this trial for reasons that remain unclear.

NATION AT A GLANCE

Florida tourist killings

Yesterday's string was the second such attack on a foreign made in less than a week in Florida and the fifth within a month.

Gary Colley and Margaret Ann Jagger, sitting in rental car at a rest stop, are held at gunpoint and were shot to death.

They try to back out and are shot. The driver, Mr. Colley, is killed and Mrs. Jagger is wounded.

Last week's killing

A Florida tourist was shot in Orlando.

"It's a new and hard thing to have to deal with," said Mrs. Colley after the death of her husband.

They tracked the hot line to a bail. Both tourists side windows of the car were blown out.

World Trade Center trial jury seletion starts

NEW YORK

The judge in the World Trade Center bombing trial started setting through a list of 3,000 prospective jurors Tuesday, saying he doubted he could find anyone unfamiliar with the case "if I went to a monastery."

So U.S. District Judge Kevin Duffy told jury candidates to forget anything they've heard or read about the case — even the federal grand jury's charges against the four defendants.

"At this point, the indictment in this case is good for making paper airplanes," Duffy told the first 50 or so jury candidates.

"Something happened at the World Trade Center," Duffy said. "Exactly what happened and who was responsible can only be ascertained by a jury willing to listen to what the evidence is, not what the speculation is." Security was heightened at the courthouse and the Trade Center several blocks away, where six people were killed and 1,100 injured in the Feb. 26 blast.

At the Trade Center, extra guards were in the garage where the bomb exploded and a police officer and his dog patrolled near the turnstiles of the nearby PATH train platform that was damaged.

BOG approves 1993-94 budget

By ELIZABETH REGAN
Assistant Saint Mary’s Editor

The Saint Mary’s Board of Governance kicked off the 1993-94 academic year by approving their budget at last night’s meeting.

“We tried to make the budget as fair as possible,” said Student Body President, Mary Beth Wilkinson. “But we are also trying to play it safe with our money.”

The budget provided $40,000 for the Student Activities Board, which was a major increase over previous years.

“It is only natural that we have allotted such a large amount of this year’s budget to the SAB because our main thrust was increasing the student activity fee and we want students to benefit from more activities and events,” Wilkinson said.

By allotting $15,000 to campus clubs in general, BOG has estimated that each club will receive approximately $200 each.

“This amount of money, the majority of the clubs on campus should be able to get what they want,” said Director of Student Activities Georganna Rosenbush.

Rather than allocating a set amount of money to the individual committees of Student Academic Council, SAB and Residence Hall Association, the new budget requires committees to submit proposals in order to receive money.

“This is a real motivator,” Wilkinson said. “When good proposals are brought up, money will become available.”

In other business, the group discussed a paper recycling program which would entail working with the administration or tapping into a Notre Dame program.

BOG is also concerned with the future of the Detex security system to be installed in the residence halls and tunnels at Saint Mary’s.

“We need student input on the subject now,” Rosenbush said. “In order to avoid any unpleasantities later.”

The need for a stronger community service program was also brought to the attention of the group last night.

The Sisters of the Holy Cross have proposed a plan for the edition of the Christian Service Center at Saint Mary’s. This organization would be aimed at networking student volunteers into the local community. The Sisters of the Holy Cross have access to many resources in the community that would benefit the organization.

“There needs to be a push on our campus to really serve,” said senior Melissa Whelan.

“We have so much to give to the community.”

The last item on the agenda was the Keenan Review. Due to a negative response from many Saint Mary’s students after the Review last year, BOG will reach out to students in an effort to find out if the Review is something they want on the campus in the future or if there is a movement to replace it with a similar Saint Mary’s talent show.

These and these other issues will be debated further at upcoming BOG meetings.

“We accomplished so many of our year-long goals this summer,” Wilkinson said, “which has enabled us to put our time and money into issues that haven’t been explored yet.”

The Lafayette Square townhouse complex has instituted a 24-hour security patrol, effective yesterday, in response to six burglaries at the student residences in the last three weeks, according to complex owner Chris Matteo.

Two burglaries have been committed in the past five days, despite the two-man patrol from 8:30 p.m. until 5 a.m.

In addition to the increased security presence, the complex is currently upgrading each townhouse’s alarm system by installing a mechanism that allows the systems’ motion detectors to be operational while the occupants are sleeping, said Matteo.

“We’re doing everything we can,” Matteo said.

According to Matteo, an arrest warrant was issued 10 days ago for the man suspected of committing all of the burglaries, but police have been unable to apprehend him.

The Northeast Neighborhood Partnership Association will be meeting with Chief Bob Marcinisk of the South Bend police, David Shock, head of the crime prevention unit, and the tenants of the Lafayette Square complex tomorrow to inform tenants on the development of the investigations and get feedback.

SMC begins teaching lecture series

By CHRIS GILLIAND
News Writer

A lecture series entitled “Teaching” will begin today at Saint Mary’s College. Keith Egans, head of the Center for Spirituality, will speak today at Stapleton Lounge in LeMans Hall at 12:15.

Egan’s lecture, “The Classroom: A Sacred Space,” will explore the classroom as the center of the educational system. His lecture is the first of five that will emphasize the importance of teaching and learning in the classroom.

As Saint Mary's celebrates its sesquicentennial, these lectures can give students and faculty an opportunity to reflect upon what is most important in the college experience.

“Learning is a sacred experience,” noted Egan. “The sacred moments that go on in the classroom are what makes Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame Catholic.”

“If the students should be active in discussing what education is all about.”

Future lectures will look closely at women’s experiences in the classroom, and will feature speakers from Saint Mary’s College and the South Bend school district.

One of those speakers will be focussing on a different approach to teaching in the classroom.

According to Assistant Professor of Business Administration and Economics, Joyce Hicks, the lecture will concern bringing a Benedictan approach to the classroom.

The lectures are open to the public, and will be held Wednesdays in Stapleton Lounge in LeMans Hall at 12:15.

Restructuring now, when both the College and the Congregation are strong, allows the Sisters and the laity to have meaningful discussions about the future of the College, according to Hickey.

"In the corporate structure we have now the laity sometimes feel they are excluded from certain kinds of conversations," he said. "I think it will really provide an opportunity for the lay representation to assume a much greater role and much more active role in defining the future of this institution."

The College corporation was restructured in 1972 after the collapse of the plan to merge with Notre Dame. It took its first steps toward establishing the College as a separate corporation in 1975 when it was incorporated separately as Saint Mary's College in the state of Indiana.

Portions of the plan contain specifications for retaining the Catholic character of Saint Mary's, but the College and the Congregation are not yet ready to reveal those specifics.

"Their were certain premises which were held to be not up for discussion," Hickey said. "Those premises were that the Catholic, remaining women and we remain in the liberal arts tradition. These were simply protected and not up for discussion."

The new by-laws will be presented to the Board of Regents for review at their upcoming October meeting.

The decline in membership in the congregations of sisters across the nation has been a problem plaguing the Catholic Church since the release of Vatican II, according to Sr. Patricia Riley, former assistant director of the Sisters of the Holy Cross membership office.

"The declining membership is not something that has just happened to the Sisters of Holy Cross, Riley said. "It is the direction that is happening in all communities.

"The order of the Sisters of St. Francis used to see about 18 to 20 women enter the novitiate each year, but the number has shrunk to about one or two a year now, according to Franciscan Sr. Dorothy Specchiala.

Both sisters said that while membership continues to decline in the United States that vocations in third world countries has been on the upswing. Various factors have lead to the decline in membership in the order.

"A lot of values have changed in the U.S. and many don't see vocations to religious life as important anymore," Sr. Dorothy Thum of the Sisters of Mercy said. "Also the role of the laity has been emphasized and needs to be, but that has made somewhat of a difference.

Specchiala agreed that the decline in religious vocations cannot be attributed to a single factor. "I think the secularism and materialism of our society has made an impact," she said. "Part of it is also due to a lack of understanding about religious life. Young people don't know all the possible options."

The decline is not discouraging for Riley though. "If the order were to die out then God's work has been accomplished," Riley said. "I'm not in charge of the order and the direction of it, God is."

The declining membership does not mean that the orders have not actively tried to increase the numbers of women entering the novitiate. "The Sisters of the Holy Cross invite people into the convent to experience the prayer and community as a means of gaining potential members, Riley said. "Vocations have always come from those who know the sisters, she said. "We just encourage the sisters to invite people into their lives."

ND alum Eli Shaheen, dead at 85

Special to The Observer

Funeral services were held today for Eli Shaheen, a long-time benefactor of both the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's communities. Shaheen, 85, died following an illness. Shaheen served as an officer in the Army during World War II and was president and owner of Sutton Tool Co. in Sturgis from 1945-86.

Known for his support of higher education, Shaheen served on the Saint Mary's College Board of Regents for 16 years and was financial secretary, treasurer and trustee of the Knights of Columbus at Notre Dame for more than 50 years. Shaheen made financial contributions that helped remodel the old SMCC library into what is now the Haggar College Center and Shaheen Bookstore. Saint Mary's dedicated the complex in 1983. Their gift also made possible the construction of the Shaheen-Mestrovic Memorial, a statue and sculpture quadrangle on O'Shaughnessy Hall which includes three sculptures by Creation sculptor Ivan Mestrovic.

(Shaheen) was a great benefactor of Notre Dame who gave very generously...Notre Dame was very important to him and he wanted to pass on the tradition to others to enjoy, as well," said William McLean, associate dean of ND Law School.

"(Shaheen) also worked behind the scenes to get students into Notre Dame and help pay their way," added Jed Eide, Shaheen's son-in-law.

Shaheen is survived by his wife; two daughters, Christine Broussard of Beaumont, Texas, and Paula Eide of South Bend; and eight grandchildren.

Nazi ties cloud Clinton's Joint Chiefs nomination

By DONNA CASSATA

WASHINGTON

The Senate should reject President Clinton's nominee for Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman if the Army generally hid his father's service in a Nazi Waffen SS unit, a Republican lawmaker said Tuesday.

"If he's a party to deceit, that's a disqualifier," Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania told Defense Secretary Les Aspin at a confirmation hearing. "We have to know what the facts are.

In early August, Clinton nominated General John Shalikashvili to succeed General Colin Powell as commander of the nation's military. Late last month, archive documents showed that Shalikashvili father, Dimitri, served in a Nazi unit that fought the U.S.-led allies in World War II.

According to his own writings, Dimitri Shalikashvili appears to have collaborated with the Nazis almost from the start of the war in hopes that the Germans would defeat the Soviets and free his native Georgia from communist rule.

It was not clear whether the White House was aware of the late Shalikashvili's wartime service when his son was nominated.

Questions about the screening process following the hearing, Aspin said: "We take security checks of the guy ... not his father."

In a Rose Garden ceremony announcing the nomination, Clinton became emotional when he recounted how the Shalikashvili family fled Europe. He described the general's late father as a Georgian army officer.

Correction

In Tuesday's issue, the Observer incorrectly included Mark Gesell of Sorin Hall as a 2003 graduate. He is not a graduate and cited for undergrad drinking. He is, in fact, Mark Gesell living in Sorin Hall.

In a Rose Garden ceremony announcing the nomination, Clinton became emotional when he recounted how the Shalikashvili family fled Europe. He described the general's late father as a Georgian army officer.

WASHINGTON, as reports sprang from the spokesman's office could not hour Tuesday in the West reports said. The army and Palestinians said. The army spokesman said could not immediately confirm the reports. Two Palestinians had died in attacks on Israelis that injured one soldier and gunned wounded three other soldiers Tuesday, less than a day after Israel signed an accord with the PLO.

Some Palestinian and Israeli hard-liners oppose the peace agreement, and the Palestinian opponents have sworn to keep attacking Israeli authorities. The army said it would seal off the Gaza Strip on Wednesday at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) until 3 a.m. Sunday (9 p.m. EDT Saturday) in an attempt to prevent anti-Israeli assaults during the Jewish new year holiday.

PLO chairman Yasser Arafat pledged to curb attacks on Israel as part of the recognition accord that preceded the autonomy pact. But violence is expected to increase as Hamas and other radical Palestinian groups try to wreck the deal. Al Arafat, 19, of Gaza City, carried out an apparent suicide attack by blowing himself up when the electric gate of a Gaza police station opened for a car, the Israeli army and Palestinian reporters said.

Also in Gaza, Abdullah Sheluhet, also 19 and of Gaza City, was shot and killed by Israeli soldiers after he wound a soldier at the observation post atop the municipal building in Palestine Square, the army and Palestinians said.

In the West Bank, shots fired at an army jeep badly wounded two soldiers and slightly wounded a third, Israeli reports said. The army spokesman's office could not immediately confirm the reports. In other developments, about 10,000 people marched for five hours Tuesday in the West Bank city of Nablus in the largest rally yet in support of President Yitzhak Rabin's peace policy. About 5,000 supporters also marched through Israeli-occupied Gaza.

By BARRY SCHWEID

The historic Israeli-PLO accord born further fruits of peace Tuesday as Jordan and Israel signed a framework for negotiations and Morocco moved toward formal recognition of the Jewish state. Yasser Arafat, once condemned as a terrorist, was warmly received in Jerusalem.

"We will continue now rapidly to break down the barriers between Israel and other nations," said an approving President Clinton.

Jordans and Israelis said an "Agenda for Peace" at a relatively low-key State Department ceremony. The agreement lays out a framework for future negotiations. Ambassador Fayez Tarawneh, who signed for Jordan, said he hoped it would establish an agenda for discussions and lead to "a comprehensive peace that will transform the lives of all our peoples."

As the product of painstaking diplomacy, the pact could lead to settlement of the border between the two countries and launch joint efforts to harness water resources, protect the environment and develop the Dead Sea region. Negotiations would seek a "mutual commitment not to threaten each other by any use of force" or terrorism.

While that ceremony took place, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was in Morocco for a surprise meeting with King Hassan II, who has long taken a moderate position toward Israel. The meeting was expected to lead to diplomatic relations.

Rabin said it would not happen instantly. "But the fact that from Washington we are coming to Rabat and are meeting with the king perhaps is another step forward in everything that is linked to establishing relations," he said.

In Washington, a senior official said Secretary of State Warren Christopher had sent letters to some 10 U.S. embassies in Europe, the Middle East and Asia, suggesting the host governments "pro- provide political and financial support" to the Palestinians.

The official said appeals made by any nation to the European Community, Japan, Saudi Arabia and other Persian Gulf states.

Arafat, denounced in America for nearly three decades as a terrorist, said he was not ready to shock his military uniform. But he was clearly relishing a new Washington role of good-natured statesman.
Dialogue about campus intellectual debate

One evening, after blowing myself on another secret recipe of the dining hall’s, I walked back to the dorm with a friend of mine and remarked that intellectual debate at Notre Dame is at best weak and at worst nonexistent.

“I don’t believe that,” my friend objected. “We talk about more lives,” our friend growled. “Do we going on?” I chimed.

My friend and I stepped back from the room, his eyes fixed on me, w e heard a disembodied voice yell.

“Yeah, baby, that’s it!”

Curious, we entered. “What’s going on?” I chimed.

"Yeah, baby, that’s it!"

“Shut up, I’ve only got a few minutes,” our friend growled at me.

“Don’t mind him,” the previously disembodied voice emerging from a human assured me. “He’s never been to this level before.”

My friend and I stepped back into the hall and continued our conversation.

“You see what I mean; people care more about Nintendo than real intellectual debate,” I explained.

Well, you’re just basing that opinion on this one instance, believe me, if you get people interested, they can say a lot of interesting things on some important stuff, my friend replied.

Moments later, a gaggle of Notre Dame ladies walked by us with pre-creamers in hand. We couldn’t help but listen in on the tail-end of their conversation.

...and, it was like, if she couldn’t tell me to my face, I was like, she shouldn’t have told her anything. Do you know what I mean?

The other yo-creamers nodded in agreement.

Then, as her voice trailed off, we heard her whine. “I never liked her anyway, she’s...like...so fake...”

My friend turned to me and smirked.

“You see what I’m saying?” I stated confidently, “everywhere you go people are spending their time on petty things. I guess it’s good to have your fun and gossip from time to time, but it seems to smother intellectual debate or any interest in it.”

My friend appeared to be losing interest himself as he whirled around to greet another friend of ours who happened to be walking by. “S’up, dudes?"
Dear Editor:

This is a response to Stephen Zavestoski's column (The Observer, September 14) headlined "Poor habits fuel death." The purpose of his column, as he clearly stated, was to condemn Notre Dame students of "the absolutely ridiculous lives" we lead. If Coca-Cola and McDonald's did drop off the planet, as he suggests would be a great benefit to us, we would lose countless assets from our society. These companies provide many jobs for people all across the country and the rest of the world. Aside from the economic benefits that these companies bring to our society, they give us satisfaction. Nobody "needs" a Coke or a burger, but we buy them because we like them and enjoy the effects we receive from consuming them.

Why is it so terrible to eat a hamburger in the dining hall? Does Mr. Zavestoski realize that the leather weaves belts he also condemns have their origin at the same place as those evil hamburgers? They are from cows, animals bred as a resource for human nourishment and other uses for human prosperity.

We are a nation of consumers. If we were not, we would be on the same level as any third-world country. Why do we shop at the malls that he claims are "the absolute American inner cities"? Because these malls are competitive, affordable, and give more satisfaction to the customers than the locally owned stores in South Bend. Indeed, any business must be competitive nationally and internationally to survive. Certain business major, for example, has recognized this simple truth, and unfortunately, others like Mr. Zavestoski have not. If a locally owned, or any company, wants to succeed in the economy, they must work for it, and can not rely on the pity of naive consumers.

I am an accounting major, and proud of it, because as Mr. Zavestoski said, I will hopefully become prosperous in a short time. He can't criticize me, or any other business major, for desiring success. And why shouldn't we donate money to Notre Dame? That's a business operation. There are many students and me, and hopefully someday I will be able to reciprocate in a monetary way. If Mr. Zavestoski does not attend school that is good enough for him and that meets his qualifications, maybe he is an English major. Even though I would not choose this particular area of study, I can still respect whatever he and every other non-business major chooses to study because that subject is his/her passion, something different for all of us.

I think it would greatly benefit Mr. Zavestoski to take an introductory economics course so he can begin to learn about the actual commercial world and separate it from his ideal dreamland. Even after reading about the tremendous earning power of a Coke and eat at McDo- nald's. Why? Because I want to. As he suggested, I considered the implications of my conclusions. And I realize that every dollar I spend helps the economy and the people who live and work in it. Hopefully he will be able to get a job right out of college and will not have to interview with any "ridiculous" person who majored in business. I am sure that though the interview- er would love to know what a ridiculous life he or she leads. In the eternal words of Elwood Blues, "Don't yell at me. Try not to be so negative all the time. Why don't you offer some constructive criticism?" Mr. Zavestoski must learn the way that the real world works. For until he understands, he will be at a great disadvantage to those who already do understand. He would be doing himself a great favor by gaining this knowledge, and will do the rest of the world a great favor by stamping out his own ignorance.

Dear Editor:

This is a response to D. Foulois' column (The Observer, September 14) headlined "Poor habits fuel death." The purpose of his column, as he clearly stated, was to condemn Notre Dame students of "the absolutely ridiculous lives" we lead. If Coca-Cola and McDonald's did drop off the planet, as he suggests would be a great benefit to us, we would lose countless assets from our society. These companies provide many jobs for people all across the country and the rest of the world. Aside from the economic benefits that these companies bring to our society, they give us satisfaction. Nobody "needs" a Coke or a burger, but we buy them because we like them and enjoy the effects we receive from consuming them.

What Little Susie forgot to do

One day little Susie woke up very late. In fact she woke up so late, she had to rush in order to get herself ready for the day. In all this chaos, Susie forgot to do a few menial yet important things throughout her day.

As she was getting ready in the morning, Susie forgot to sing a hello. She forgot to make funny noises as she gargled. She forgot to look in the mirror and tell herself "I love you." She forgot to call her boss to say please. She forgot to say thank you. She forgot to tell a clean joke. She forgot to be the first to say hello. She forgot to smile at a child.

As the day went on, Susie forgot to give an unexpected gift to someone she loved. She forgot to say please. She forgot to say thank you. She forgot to buy lemonade from the kids on the corner. She forgot to have a firm handshake. She forgot to look someone in the eye. She forgot to return a car with the gas on "F." She forgot to look people in the eye. She forgot to demand on others. She forgot to think first of others. She forgot to laugh. And she forgot to laugh a lot.

That wasn’t all.

Little Susie forgot to pet the stray dog. She forgot to wave at the kids on the school buses. She forgot to feed a stranger's expired parking meter. Susie forgot to forgive a grudge and to mend a quarrel. She forgot to seek a lost friend. Susie forgot to dismiss suspicion and replace it with trust. She forgot to write a love letter. She forgot to share some treasures with friends; or with strangers. Susie forgot to encourage youth. She forgot to dismiss suspicion and replace it with trust.

Susie forgot to dispassionately examine her childhood, and to be gentle. Susie forgot to expand her world and give him the respect of knowing she would be there. And she forgot to help an older lady cross the street.

As she was getting ready in the morning, Susie forgot to sing a hello. She forgot to make funny noises as she gargled. She forgot to look in the mirror and tell herself "I love you." She forgot to call her boss.

Toronto Blue Jays win fourth straight; New York Mets top slumping Philadelphia

Detroit (AP) — Tony Fernandez drove in five runs and Juan Guzman won his fifth straight game Tuesday night as the Toronto Blue Jays won their fourth in a row, 9-2 over the Detroit Tigers.

Guzman (12-3), who hasn't lost in seven starts since July 20, allowed six hits over 7 1-3 innings, struck out six and walked three. Duane Ward pitched the ninth, striking out two.

The Blue Jays stayed 1 1/2 games ahead of second-place New York, which beat Milwaukee 12-5. Baltimore also won and stayed two games back.

Rickey Henderson broke a 5-5 tie in the eighth against Starn Davis (2-7) with an RBI groundout.

The Yankees added three more in the fifth, knocking out Rick Honey (10-10). Paul Gibson (1-0) went five innings, allowing four hits and a run in relief of starter Bob Wickman.

Orioles 11, Red Sox 3

BOSTON (AP) — Fernando Valenzuela got his first victory since July 23 and Chris Hollos homered to start a late nine-run outburst that led Baltimore to the victory.

Hollos hit a two-run homer in the seventh against Danny Darwin (14-11), putting the Orioles ahead 2-0. The Orioles added two more runs in the seventh and five in the eighth.

Valenzuela (7-9) pitched an eight-hitter, walking two and striking out six. It was the fifth complete game of the year for the left-hander, who was 0-2 in his last starts.

The Royals led 5-2 in the seventh, but Frank Thomas' one-out double launched Chicago's seventh-inning rally. After Hipolito Pichardo (6-8) walked Moises Alou and Damon (14-11), who also lost five straight and blow the pennant.

Try to make it out for at least one of the matches. It might be nice to have some fans in the photos on Monday.

Detroit (AP) — Jeff Kent blooped a bases-loaded single in front of Lenny Dykstra in the sixth and the ball bounced past the center fielder as Atlanta scored, lifting the New York Mets past the slumping Philadelphia Phillies 5-4.

Philadelphia, which led the Expos by 14 1/2 games on Aug. 13, leading just 4-2 with two outs in the ninth, scored seven runs in the ninth to win for the left-hander, who was 0-2 in his last starts.

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Gant hit a solo home run in the eighth to give Atlanta a 6-0 lead. Glavine got his 19th victory as the Expos have won eight of their last 10.

The Royals led 3-2 in the seventh, but Frank Thomas' one-out double launched Chicago's seventh-inning rally. After Hipolito Pichardo (6-8) walked Moises Alou and Damon (14-11), who also lost five straight and blow the pennant.

IU, UK rivalry goes beyond basketball season

By STEVE HERMAN
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS
Kentucky, a longtime Indiana rival in basketball, may become the favorite team Hoosier fans love to hate in football, as well.

Already, in many parts of Indiana, the new rivalry no longer needs much selling to spark fan interest, coach Bill Mallory said.

"Certainly we don't have to in the southern part of the state. They'll probably crank up a little quicker on Kentucky than they will Purdue," he said. "I get around and speak to a lot of alumni associations, and down south, boy, I'll tell you right now, Kentucky comes to their lips real quick."

Indiana (2-0) plays Kentucky (1-1) in Memorial Stadium on Saturday. Since Indiana-Kentucky became an annual series in 1987, the two teams have each won three times.

"Maybe up in the northern part of the state, Purdue still might be a little stronger in their thinking," Mallory said of Indiana fans' favorite opponent. "But I think over the past few years, Kentucky has become a much stronger rivalry (than it was). Prior to that time, we were not playing Kentucky every year. Now we are. I think that certainly has made the rivalry more intense."

He called Kentucky "a team that's improved and a team that we're going to have to go out and play certainly better than we did this past week. We're going to have to make some good strides this week."

Curry said he was surprised when he first saw the intensity of the Wildcats' rivalry with the Hoosiers.

"The first time we got ready for Indiana, I was shocked at the players' intensity. I was thinking Georgia Tech, the SEC, all that stuff," said Curry, who previously coached at Georgia Tech and Alabama. "And of course those are big rivals, too. But I'm not sure Indiana's not the biggest rival that Kentucky plays."

"And I didn't realize that Louisville was kind of split. I had driven through it a thousand times, but somehow it didn't register that Indiana is right here next to us and IU and UK fans are going back and forth all around the year, so it's quite a thing. It's a lot of fun. It's one of the more healthy rivalries I've been a part of."

 Coach Wacker disappointed in Gopher's struggle against I-AA Indiana State

By MIKE NADEL
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS
Jim Wacker frowned as he recounted the gory details.

"First drive, we're first-and-goal on the 5, we have to settle for a field goal. Second drive, we're first-and-10 on the 24, we miss a field goal. Third drive, we're first-and-10 on the 20, we throw an interception."

"Wacker was on a roll Tuesday at his weekly news conference, talking about the way his Minnesota Gophers failed to roll up the points three nights earlier in an unimpressive 27-10 victory over Division I-AA Indiana State."

"Second quarter, we finally score a touchdown, then fizzle on two drives. Third quarter, first-and-10 on the 19, we fumble, first-and-10 on the 14, we throw an interception. You just can't make those mistakes."

"Then, thank goodness, fourth quarter, touchdown, field goal, touchdown. We ended playing the way we're supposed to play. But up until that time, it was a series of frustration."

"If Tim makes good throws on the two interceptions (against Indiana State), that's two touchdowns, we blow them out, we're all feeling great about it," Wacker said.

Haywire injuries could mean Penn St. victory

By GREG SMITH
Associated Press

IOWA CITY
Penn State has won four of five games against Iowa in Iowa City and Haywire coach Hayden Fry says the Nittany Lions might make it five out of six this weekend if his wounded players don't heal in time.

"If they come in here full speed and we're down, we're going to have a long afternoon," Fry told reporters at his Tuesday news conference. "They're still right there, they're coming to win." Fry's team is 2-0 and Penn State, which has won four of five games against Iowa in Iowa City, is 3-1.

"The injury forced Burmeister from the Iowa State game for a brief time and doctors thought his kidney might have been bruised.

Fry said tests were negative and that Burmeister has a "deep bruise in the small of the back. He's extremely sore."

Normally a player who misses too much practice time won't start on Saturdays, but Fry said Burmeister needs to play in medical clearance, not practice time.

"He's earned that," Fry said. "Our whole football team is healthy. Penn State coach Joe Paterno confirmed later in a teleconference his team is virtually injury-free."

Iowa State quarterback Paul Burmeister is recovering from a back injury.

Iowa State Graduated

By CHUCK SCHOFFNER
Associated Press

AMES, Iowa
Imagine you were carrying a football and a grizzly bear tried to take it. Who do you think would end up with the ball?

Chris Webb, a 255-pound center who probably weighs 100 pounds more, did.

Webb and Mike Wells, Iowa's 267-pound fullback, managed only 13 yards rushing against Wisconsin and a anybody but don't knock the ball out, it knocks your shoulder off, too," Chris Webb, a 255-pound center who probably weighs 100 pounds more, said. "I didn't like it. I'm sorry he happened."

Fry said he hasn't received an injury report from Penn State and he assumes the Nittany Lions are healthy. Penn State coach Joe Paterno confirmed later in a teleconference his team is virtually injury-free.

Iowa State has scored 82 points against some of the nation's best defenses.

"Iowa escaped virtually injury free after the Tulsa game but that wasn't the case after last Saturday's victory, Fry said.

As many as nine players will be listed on the injury report from Penn State and they aren't healthy. Penn State coach Joe Paterno confirmed later in a teleconference his team is virtually injury-free.

Iowa State Graduated

AMES, Iowa
Imagine you were carrying a football and a grizzly bear tried to take it. Who do you think would end up with the ball?

Chris Webb, a 255-pound center who probably weighs 100 pounds more, did.

Webb and Mike Wells, Iowa's 267-pound fullback, managed only 13 yards rushing against Wisconsin and a anybody but don't knock the ball out, it knocks your shoulder off, too," Chris Webb, a 255-pound center who probably weighs 100 pounds more, said. "I didn't like it. I'm sorry he happened."

Fry said he hasn't received an injury report from Penn State and he assumes the Nittany Lions are healthy. Penn State coach Joe Paterno confirmed later in a teleconference his team is virtually injury-free.

Iowa State has scored 82 points against some of the nation's best defenses.

"Iowa escaped virtually injury free after the Tulsa game but that wasn't the case after last Saturday's victory, Fry said.
Notre Dame Rugby opens season against MSU

More than one set of Spartans are headed into South Bend this weekend. While one competes on the gridiron, the other will be out at Stepan Field as the Notre Dame Rugby Club meets Michigan State in its first collegiate match this weekend.

The Irish are expecting strong performances from the talented underclassmen who are new to the squad and the returning players who have worked hard in preparation for the season.

In the last two weeks, the club played the University of Michigan's men's club and the Northwest Indiana men's club. Last weekend in Ann Arbor, the Irish were overcome by a club team which features former collegiate and foreign players. Mental mistakes doomed the Irish in the close loss to the Northwest Indiana club.

Club president Mike McGowan explained the difficulty of beating a men's club.

"The last three weeks we played well, but its hard to beat 26-27 year old men who have played for several years," said McGowan. "They know the fundamentals. They've played four years rather that two weeks like the rookies."

The Irish generally play five or six men's clubs a year, but it is against the college teams that the club excels. In each of the last three years, Notre Dame has gone to the Midwest finals.

This year, the club will be improved by the addition of coach Bart Butterfield. According to McGowan, having a coach has helped make the practices more effective.

On Saturday against Michigan State, the B-side will play at 10:30 a.m. and the A-side will play at 11:30 a.m. at Stepan Field.

BOXING
The Boxing Club had an "unbelievable" response at Activities Night according to club president Jeff Gerber. 110 prospective boxers signed up including 12 women. It is the strongest response from women ever with several expressing sincere interest in competing.

The novice program which would include any boxers who signed up at Activities Night will start on Monday, September 27, at 4 p.m. at an informational meeting in one of the Auxiliary gyms in the JACC.

RACING
The Racing Club has started practice, but both the novice men's and women's team are looking for more rowers. Anyone interested is welcome to join the current rowers at the Main Circle at 4:15 any afternoon.

The varsity squad is looking forward to its first competition, the Head of the Ohio, on October 2 in Pittsburgh. Novice competition doesn't start until November.

EQUESTRIAN
The Equestrian Club started practice this week, but it is looking for anyone who is interested in participating. No experience is necessary and those interested should call club president Megan Turpin. The schedule will be set after a regional meeting this weekend.

Men's Soccer rebounds, upends Detroit Mercy

By MIKE NORRUT

Any early season doubts about the quality of this year's Notre Dame men's soccer team were quickly forgotten yesterday as the Fighting Irish blazed through some inclement weather and dominated conference foe Detroit Mercy, winning 3-1 to even their record at 2-2.

Notre Dame went to Detroit with a two-game losing streak, their latest loss coming on a 4-2 shocker in their home opener against Butler Friday night. Detroit took a 3-1 record into the contest, including three shutouts posted by freshman goalie Kal Kaliszewski. Another freshman, forward Vincent Lacozza, was tied for the conference lead in scoring with six points, tallying two goals and four assists in his first four games.

The Notre Dame defense, led by Dane Whiteley and Brian Eppes, controlled the first half, not allowing a single Detroit shot on goal, while the offense took advantage of Detroit errors and good winds to keep Detroit Mercy down throughout the contest.

The Irish opened the scoring with Thompson's 38:31 mark in the first half when junior Jean Joseph scored off of a Mike Palmer pass to give Notre Dame a 1-0 halftime lead. Palmer, the senior captain of the Irish, finished the game with two assists.

The Irish outshot Detroit 6-1 in the first half and scored four goals and six assists, boosted in the only score of the first half with 24:36 remaining in the game. Sophomore midfielder Tiffany Thompson, who garnered three assists on the night, earned her fifth assist of the season on the play.

Notre Dame outshot Indiana 6-1 in the first half.

Lester gave the Irish their second goal and game winning goal five and a half minutes into the second half with a header off of a Thompson corner kick.

Senior tri-captain Alison Lester gave Notre Dame the lead back for good. Palmer, the senior captain of the Irish, finished the game with two assists.

Notre Dame failed to put away the tenacious Titans, however, as they could not cash in on several scoring opportunities, including a missed penalty shot early in the second half. Detroit Mercy made a second half surge, taking back some momentum when freshman Radek Papiez scored off of a cross pass from Dave Pooniaowski 7:07 into the second half to tie the game at 1-1.

In the crazy weather, we didn't settle well and we didn't finish," said Irish head coach Mike Berticelli. "We could have scored a few more goals."

The game remained deadlock for twenty minutes until sophomore Bill Lanza headed a Tim Gates pass into the right corner with 12:20 left to play to put the Irish ahead for good.

Gates, who was recognized as the MVP of the Indiana Med.Life Classic last week, did not start the game, but still made a substantial contribution for Berticelli and the Irish.

"I give a lot of credit to Tim Gates," said Berticelli. "We wanted to use him sparingly and he came in and put a point on the board right away with his assist to Bill Lanza. He's the kind of player that can make things happen."

The final Notre Dame goal came with 25 left on the clock when junior Jason For scored off of a beautiful path pass.

The Irish finished with 19 shots on goal.

Senior tri-captain Alison Lester gave the Notre Dame women's soccer team all of the offense it would need last night en route to a 5-1 thumping of Indiana University.

Her hat trick led the unbeaten Irish in their blow-out of the Hoosiers at Bill Armstrong Stadium in Bloomington.

Lester, who now leads the Irish in scoring with four goals and six assists, finished the contest with twelve yard blast just inside the right post which, again, Thompson assisted.

Sophomore forward Rosella Guerrero, who led the squad in scoring last season but hadn't earned a point since she scored a hat trick in the season opener against LaSalle, continued the Irish scoring flurry two minutes later with an unassisted shot from 19 yards out.

The Hoosiers netted their only goal of the evening midway through the second half on an 18 yard shot by forward Jill Thurman. Forward Amy Friedrick assisted on the goal.

Lester wrapped up the Notre Dame scoring and her hat trick with 12:55 remaining on a rocket from 20 yards out that beat Indiana goalkeeper Jennifer Schiecck to the right side of the net.

Having proclaimed prior to the match that the Irish would "need to play with intensity" in order to be successful against Indiana, Lester certainly fulfilled her part of the challenge.

"We didn't play a very good first half," Notre Dame head coach Chris Petrucelli said, "but Alison Lester just wouldn't let us lose."
