Fireside chats begin

Stirring to educate the community in an informal environment, the Multicultural Executive Council (M.E.C.) is sponsoring five fireside chats as part of the annual Multicultural Fall Festival, according to Patricia Acosta of the M.E.C.

"Speakers from any and all cultures were invited to speak in a relaxed setting about a topic they believe is important to inform people on," said Acosta. "It's basically an education process.

The chats, which began yesterday on "The Myths and Realities of AIDS" presented by an HIV-positive woman, are presented by many different types of people—from a black worker to an Austrian, said Acosta.

The fireside chats are held today, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, from 12:15-1 p.m. in the Notre Dame room on the second floor of LaFortune.

Subjects include:

• Today's Families: How Could Both Dan Quayle and Mike Pence Be Right? presented on Tuesday by Joan Aldous, Kenen professor of sociology;

• "On the Road Again," presented on Wednesday by a local Teamster's Union member;

• "New Wings of Faith," presented on Thursday by a local minister of this local, non-denominational church;

• "Life in Australia," presented on Friday by a former Australian.

Just 16 weeks after her election to the U.S. Senate, Kay Bailey Hutchison was indicted Monday on charges of misconduct during her 2 1/2 years as a state treasurer.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, was accused along with two aides of using her treasurer's office for personal use and destroying records as part of the investigation.

She denied any wrongdoing and added the charges to the list of a political controversy surrounding the United States Senate's sending peacekeepers to Somalia in December "with our eyes open" but "may have underestimated" the difficulty of restoring political stability. U.S. cannot be active in all world conflicts

President Clinton told the United Nations Monday the American people will support sending U.S. troops to keep peace around the world only if new missions are sharply limited. "The United Nations must know when to say 'no,'" he declared.

Noting that he is the first president born after creation of the organization, Clinton insisted on new rules for "new times" as he outlined his foreign policy views with a mixture of caution and high purpose.

Clinton is prepared to send as many as 25,000 American troops to Bosnia if peace terms can be worked out, and he defended keeping 4,700 U.S. peacekeepers in Somalia. But he told the representatives of more than 180 nations that the U.N. must limit its involvement in international fighting, beginning "by bringing the rigors of military and political analysis to every U.N. peace mission."

He also proposed a network of nuclear arms restraints, including a worldwide ban on stockpiling of weapons-grade uranium. And yet he hinted he might abandon his three-month-old ban on underground weapons blasts if China resumed its testing program.

At a news conference later with Japanese Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa, Clinton said the United Nations should send peacekeepers to Somalia in December "with our eyes open" but "may have underestimated" the difficulty of restoring political stability. "I still believe President Bush made the right decision," the American senator said when asked what he would do "now." New election rules discussed Past violations in the election process have led the Student Senate to discuss a solution to the problems.

There have been problems in past years with election procedures, according to Student Body President Frank Flynn.

"The campaigning period for Student Body, Class Office and Senate elections should be extended," he said. "The candidates should be able to campaign earlier in the year, and the judges could try to win through the judicial process what they were unable to win in the last election," she said.

"I am sickened but frankly not surprised that a grand jury was appointed to look into the problems," he said. "However, I believe that the judges should be able to win through the judicial process what they were unable to win in the last election," he said.

Cord transplant promising

When it came time to replace the bone marrow of Newfoundland-born Derick Pritchard, whose own marrow was destroyed by chemotherapy and radiation for his leukemia, doctors used an unusual source.
They injected him last month with blood from the umbilical cord and placenta of an unrelated newborn.
The blood cells have now replaced his marrow, a researcher said, boosting hopes for developing an alternative to some marrow transplants.
It will take a couple of years to know if Derick's leukemia is in long-term remission, but for now "the fact that the cord blood could make his bone marrow grow is really very important," said Dr. Joanne Kurtzberg of Duke University Medical Center in Durham, N.C.
Derick remains hospitalized, but may be allowed to become an outpatient in a week.
Before the blood transplant on Aug. 24, Air Force Staff Sgt. Steven Pritchard and his wife, Susan, had been told that their son would be the first person to get umbilical cord blood from an unrelated donor.
"We didn't care about that," Pritchard said Monday in a telephone interview from the medical center. "All we cared about was this was the last chance for our son."
"He's a fighter, he wants to fight it, so we'll fight with him," added Pritchard, who is based at Randolph Air Force Base near San Antonio.
Transplants of cord blood, which is collected after birth and actually comes mostly from the placenta, had been done before. Derick's is significant because the blood came not from a newborn sibling, but from a specialized donor.
His transplant appears to be the first in the world to use blood from an unrelated donor and follow standard procedures of Western medicine, said Dr. John Wagner of the University of Minnesota, who keeps an international register of cord blood donors.
Reports of similar procedures in China are still sketchy, he said.

Dutch groups against no-women party

AMSTERDAM

Dutch lawmakers and women's groups on the offensive Monday against an ultra-orthodox Christian party that banned new women members.
"It's unbelievable, absolutely out of place in our time," said Meike van den Burg, women's affairs spokeswoman for the Labor Party.
The decision is discriminatory and attests to a contempt for the talent and intellect of women," said Amsterdam's leftist Volkskrant newspaper.
"It's unbelievable, absolutely out of place in our time," said Meike van Burg, who works for the Labor Party.
But the party, which wants to have at least one woman on its political agenda, lost a vote of no-confidence in the Senate last week.

Keds donates millions in settlement

The Keds Corp. won't demand that its shoes be sold at specific prices and will donate $5.7 million to women's and children's charities to settle a price-fixing case, federal and state authorities said Monday.
The settlement comes after an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission and the New York attorney general into retailers' complaints that Keds prohibited discerning prices on certain styles.
Last September, "in order to protect the long-term image of the brand," Keds told retailers to hold to certain prices for six women's styles, including the popular white canvas sports shoe at $19.99 and a similar leather Retailers say they didn't believe it violated any antitrust laws and "continue to believe its pricing policy was entirely lawful," said a company statement. New York Gov.
resolved to decide the issue and avoid any business disruption.
Under an agreement with the FTC, Keds will refrain from fixing retail prices, pressuring any dealer to adhere to any resale price, trying to get dealers to commit to a certain price, and requiring or even suggesting that retai-ers report others who sell any Keds product below the stated retail price.
Right now, we don't have suggested retail prices," said Kellherr.
The agreement with the New York attorney general's office on behalf of all the states also requires Keds to contribute $5.7 million to five charities and $1.5 million in administrative costs related to the case.

Father erupts as Poisson leaves court

A 76-year-old man was sentenced to two to 10 years in prison Monday for molesting his step-grandson, who killed himself as the case approached trial.
"You rot in hell," the boy's father yelled as a trial-official said the boy had killed himself last September, at age 15.
"You killed me," the boy's father yelled as the trial approached Monday.
A Poisson pleaded guilty to last month to felonious sexual assault on Gary Lawrence Jr. when the boy was 9. His parents say he killed himself last September, at age 15, because he couldn't take the pressure of the upcoming trial.
Karen and Gary Lawrence and their son Brian, 15, and daughter Carrie, 18, fought tears, hugged and consoled one another during the sentencing.
Assistant County Attorney John Weld read a school paper Gary wrote before his death, detailing seven years of torment and abuse. "I had a pretty good childhood until I was 8 years old," the boy wrote.

Soviet program said to send POWs in Gulag

By ROBERT BURNS

WASHINGTON

A U.S. report on American servicemen missing in the Korean War sketches a picture of American airmen being hunted by Soviet intelligence teams and shipped off to labor camps.

The report, which was provided to Russian officials at a recent meeting in Moscow, along with several hundred American POWs, included records of Soviet military and intelligence officials, and U.S. records that the Soviets used a well-practiced system for transferring the Americans, the report said.

The Soviet operation appeared to have two main objectives: grabbing U.S. aviators who could provide useful information about U.S. fighter planes and air force stations, and taking some who would be useful in the Gulag forced labor system.

In many cases, the report said, captured American airmen were interrogated by Soviet military intelligence officers at Poyt, just across the Soviet border from Russia, and taken north to Kharakovsk.

The United States has not indicated it has conclusive evidence of specific American POWs being held at specific sites in the former Soviet Union. Rather, it cites a range of evidence that a Soviet POW-grabbing operation was carried out.

The charge, based on a 77-page report titled "The Transfer of U.S. Korean War POWs to the Soviet Union," was made by the American side of the U.S.-Russian Joint Commission on POWs-MIAs at a recent commission meeting in Moscow.

U.S. researchers concluded from newly available Russian documents, interviews with former Soviet military and intelligence officers, and U.S. records that the Soviets used a well-practiced system for transferring the Americans, the report said.

For the defeat, Georgia lost an unequal battle. Shevardnadze had left Sukhumi but declined to say where he was. He had warned that the government's defeat could lead to civil war between ethnic minorities across Georgia.

Shavardnadze's office in Tbilisi said he may have to accept a Russian offer for evacuation in the region and said that he had left Sukhumi but declined to say where he was. He had warned that the government's defeat could lead to civil war between ethnic minorities across Georgia.

Shavardnadze's aides in Tbilisi said he might have to accept a Russian offer for evacuation, but would try to avoid that humiliating step.

Although Russia has officially said it is intent on finding a way out of the conflict, Georgia's government announced the Soviet military plans to supply arms and other aid to Abkhazia.

Russia can ship both ships and airframes to the region and has already started sending military aid to Abkhazia.

Georgia's parliament, which gave Shavardnadze special powers and disbanded the general two weeks ago, went back into emergency session Monday night.

The lawmakers were expected to approve Georgia's enlargement of Abkhazia. It now controls 44 percent of the territory of the former Soviet state.

A few people would find more suffering and starvation if the deal is rejected.

But Mohamed Filippov, a leading opponent of Abkhazia's "flying fascist" Democratic Action, said ethnically dividing Bosnia would cause "three fascist states in this country — one Serb, one Croat and one Muslim."
Mrs. Clinton to face many tough questions

By KAREN BALL

WASHINGTON

Hillary Rodham Clinton's presence on Capitol Hill once posed a delicate puzzle for some lawmakers: Can you really ask tough questions and challenge the president's wife? But as she opens debate on the White House health care package this week with appearances before five separate congressional panels, lawmakers said they don't need to tiptoe around controversy.

"She's not asked for any special treatment," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., and chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, one of Mrs. Clinton's five stops. "She'll get the courtesy and same hard questions as anybody.

"Everybody's going to be polite," added Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., "but that doesn't mean you can't bear in on questions. I think she's going to get some stiff grilling on the cost estimates" of President Clinton's plan to provide universal coverage at a cost of about $350 billion over five years.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said GOP lawmakers will keep pushing Mrs. Clinton on specifics, just as they have during the first lady's months of consultations on Capitol Hill. "We were not treating her as the social-tea first lady, we were treating her as the president's point person on health care, and we're still going to ask pointed questions," said Packwood, the ranking Republican on the Senate Finance Committee, which will question Mrs. Clinton on Thursday.

Mrs. Clinton, as a chief architect of the White House plan to overhaul the nation's $900 billion health care system, will serve as the administration's lead witness in Congress. House and Senate committees with jurisdiction practically competed for her time, so she'll pack in five different hearings over three days this week, starting with House Ways and Means on Tuesday morning.

Back in the spring, some when Mrs. Clinton was first making the rounds with lawmakers, Sen. Dan Coats and others complained that her status as first lady unnerved lawmakers and made them reluctant to ask the tough questions.

"Nobody gets ticked off. They don't raise their voice. They don't challenge her," said the Indiana Republican, who has complained loudly about Coats' office said he didn't want to talk anymore about Mrs. Clinton's treatment on Capitol Hill.

But other lawmakers say the jitters about grilling Mrs. Clinton have mostly dissipated, largely because she's proven herself as an expert on health care, and in most cases, knows more about the subject than members of Congress.

Economists say numbers don't add up

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL

WASHINGTON

Some economists, treading at the numbers in President Clinton's health plan, questioning whether they can cover everybody while drastically slowing medical inflation and cutting $91 billion from the federal deficit.

But other doctors say there could be 2 million. Still other doctors have yet to recognize it as a real disease.

Six years ago, the CDC issued what it called a rough definition of CFS: Persistent, severe fatigue for more than six months with no other physical or psychiatric illnesses, plus eight of 14 other symptoms, which range from a fever to headaches, depression and forgetfulness.

Now, the CDC has told international CFS researchers that it may drop those excess 14 symptoms. The reason: New research shows CFS causes different symptoms in different people, so the checklist may be unnecessarily strict.
New York tourist shot and killed in Florida

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press

MIAMI — Just as travel agents from Germany were getting a VIP tour to persuade them to keep sending tourists to Florida, another out-of-state visitor was shot to death on a Miami highway.

The seemingly senseless killing unleashed a new flurry of negative publicity about crime against visitors in a state with a $31 billion a year tourist industry.

Miguel Sanchez, 40, of New York City, was gunned down Sunday night while going to a restaurant. A motorist pulled alongside his cousin's car and fired a single shot through the passenger window, hitting Sanchez in the head.

"At this point we really do not have a motive," said Metro-Dade police spokesman Ralph Rinaldi, president of Sun Tours, a state's travel agency called the anti-Florida movement.

"They told him not to go . . . I guess he didn't think it would happen to him," said Olga Morales, Sanchez's sister-in-law.

The attack on Sanchez follows the slayings of 10 foreign tourists in Florida in the past year.

The shooting couldn't have come at a worse time, said Aldo Rinaldi, president of Sun Tours, which helped bring 22,000 Germans to Florida last year.

Rinaldi had 15 German travel agents in Key West on Monday as part of a campaign to calm European tourists frightened away by the violence.

"It's already on TV in Germany," groaned Rinaldi, whose new bookings are only half the 400 to 500 a month he once averaged. "We've been losing here and right — I don't know what to do anymore."

Two of those German travel agents called the anti-Florida movement.

"In the big cities, downtown, we have the same problem in Germany," said Sharon Duseart of Mannheim.

"The killing is symptomatic of problems across the country, said state Sen. James Hargrett of Tampa. He and other black Florida legislators discussed urban violence in a symposium last week.

"The rest of the world has the chance to see its future by looking at Florida," Hargrett said.

"Across the nation, in every metropolitan area, there is a Third World community — a little Somalia — with people running around in the streets with guns," Gov. Lawton Chiles has stumped the state over the past month, promising more security while emphasizing that violence against both tourists and Florida residents has dropped in recent years.

"The state seems to be under a microscope right now," complained the governor's spokesman, Ron Sachs. "The State Department of Commerce has shown fairly clearly (that) less than one tenth of one percent of the millions of visitors in Florida express the prospect of becoming a victim of crime."

The violence has had a limited short-term effect with "a scattering of cancellations, but not a mass exodus," said department spokeswoman Joy Mills.

"But it's very difficult to measure the long-term impact," she said. "It hasn't helped, but how much it's hurt we're just not sure."

A real estate group, BOMA International, announced last week it would switch its January meeting from Miami to Phoenix because of the violence, the first Miami cancellation after the recent problems.

Road safety received renewed scrutiny following the Sept. 8 slaying of a German tourist, Uwe-Wilhelm Raekbrand, during a robbery attempt in a car near Miami International Airport.

Days later, the governor ordered extra state police to help patrol the turnpike.

On Sept. 14, British tourist Gary Colley was fatally shot at Interstate 10 rest stop in northern Florida during a robbery attempt.

Convicts given prison reprieve

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Officer Laurence Powell had already spent his first night in prison for the Rodney King beating and Sgt. Stacey Koon was just surrendering when a judge suddenly allowed them to go free Monday.

U.S. District Judge John Davies gave Powell and Koon about two weeks to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, setting Oct. 12 as the new date for them to start serving their 2-1/2-year sentences.

Both men had faced a deadline of noon Monday for checking into the Dublin Federal Prison Camp, a converted military barracks without bars or fences 40 miles east of San Francisco.

Powell surrendered at the prison Sunday afternoon. Koon arrived at 11:30 a.m. Monday, around the time Davies issued his ruling, and hadn't yet been processed.

They left together in a car, about 3 1/2 hours later, said prison official John Orla.

Attorney William Kopeny, representing the two, said he would file an emergency request Tuesday with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, asking that the men be allowed to remain free on bail while they appeal their convictions and sentences.

O'Connor oversees California matters.

Koon, Powell and two other officers who were tried this year on federal charges in the March 1991 beating of King, a black motorist stopped after a chase. A shocking videotape of the beating was broadcast repeatedly worldwide.

The officers' acquittals on state charges in 1992 led to deadly rioting in Los Angeles and other cities. The officers were tried this year on federal charges of violating King's civil rights. Koon and Powell were convicted; officers Theodore Briseno and Timothy Wind were acquitted.

In August, Davies gave Koon and Powell surprisingly lenient 30-month sentences that were criticized by prosecutors and King. Davies said King himself was to blame for many of the blows he suffered in the beating.

The judge refused to let the officers go free on bail while they appealed, and last week the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals rejected their request for a bail hearing.

Two of the appeals judges issued a strongly worded 10-page dissent arguing for bail, however, and in its ruling Monday, Davies said O'Connor should be given time to review their arguments and see if she is swayed by them.

U.S. Rep. Maxine Waters, a Democrat whose South Central district was hard hit by the 1992 riots, said that Davies "sent the wrong signal" by delaying the sentences.

"Judge Davies acted irresponsibly and is exacerbating an already tense situation," she said in a statement. "There is a perception in the African-American community that there is a double standard at work in our criminal justice system."

Kopeny, the officers' lawyer, said he didn't believe Davies gave them special treatment.

At the 244-bed prison camp, inmates are housed four to a room and work from 7 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. in such manual labor jobs as landscapers, cooks and roofers for 12 to 14 hours a day.

Last week, Powell was described by attorney Michael Stone as "terrified" of prison. Powell remained out of sight in the last few weeks, even missing his parole Board of Rights hearing, where a panel recommended that he be fired.

Lobbying for NAFTA heats up

In the battle over NAFTA, some companies are wooing shareholders for passage of the measure of coercion in that umbraila group for NAFTA Mexico.

"Please put a high priority on completing these assignments," he wrote in the Apr. memo, a copy of which was obtained last week.

"There's a certain subtle measure of coercion in that message that says 'if you're loyal to this company you will have this opinion,'" said Angela Ledford, field director for the Center for Media and Democracy, the umbrella group for NAFTA opponents.

The efforts were made to contact unionized auto workers, who were told that if they didn't take the course it could result in a job shift to Mexico.

health plan simple enough

Last week the news sections of the local news journal provided an avalanche of detail, pro and con, concerning the Clinton administration calling it an "intricate blueprint for insurance reform". I argue that the backbone of the Clinton's health plan is relatively simple. It is superior to each of the available alternatives, none of which is simpler either in basic approach nor in the patchwork, ad hoc Plan B, that the preferred Plan A falls short.

The best forms of insurance manage risk in ways which increase the economic efficiency of risky technologies (shipping, agriculture), and of technologies which remediate the negative outcomes of risky businesses (medicine and biomedical research).

Physicians and surgeons have no greater immunity to technology than medieval farmers or American garment manufacturer; nor does the future quality of American health care depend upon protectionism. A "transformational" humor of physicians and drug companies who think God made them "number one." They will be supplantated by successors who understand the significance, in an integrated economy, of the high tech molecular and imaging revolutions transforming medical practice. Government involvement in unavoidable in any industry where capital is provided to individuals who cannot afford prices which would return a profit (textile mills, shipping and transportation infrastructure, social safety net, health care, etc.). Not alone can one of these sectors continually demand 100% of the aggregate growth rate.

Thirty seven million Americans are without health insurance as health care costs continually rise twice as fast as inflation, headed toward 20% of GDP by the year 2000. If these circumstances are not remedied, the increasing costs of health care will consume 100% of the nation's projected economic growth even as 15% of its population is left unprotected against life's most basic risks.

Can we reduce the number of uninsured while we reduce the rate of increase in health care costs? Can any form of insurance accomplish this?

The Clintons' plan occupies the ground between the left (Senator Wellstone, D. Minn... who favors the Canadian "single payer" system) and right (Republican Senators led by Dole, Kansas, Merrill Mathews and John Goodman of the National Center for Policy Analysis in Dallas, TX, who would require every individual to purchase health insurance, with federal subsidies for those whose income falls below 240% of the federal poverty level).

Given the simplicity of the popular opposites represented by the Canadian system and the "informed, autonomous" individual in the medical market place, the middle ground may appear complex, an "intricate blueprint." The appearance is false. The Clintons' plan is not inherently more complex than either of the major alternatives.

The Clintons would guarantee every citizen and legal resident of the nation's projected economic growth even as 15% of its population is left unprotected against life's most basic risks.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Columnist looks for easy way out

Dear Editor:

In the Sept. 21 issue of The Observer, Mark Krejci wrote an abhorrent Inside Column proposing a new American Catholic Church. The author argued that because the Catholic Church is stagnant, the current Holy Roman Catholic Church to be stagnant in its teachings. I found the article disgusting and repulsive. It is a case of easy way out for the Church to remain stagnant.

Mr. Krejci also asked, "Will it take 300 more years for it (the Church) to realize sex is not only for procreation?" However, the Church already realizes that sex is an expression of love within the confines of marriage. In fact, the Church allows the rhythm method of birth control for married couples.

The only thing the Church teaches about procreation is that the possibility of procreation cannot be inhibited through artificial means. The Church also teaches that sex must be performed within the confines of marriage; however, this is not a teaching the Church arbitrarily created.

Adultery is defined as sex outside of marriage in the Old Testament, and is taken one step further by Jesus who said if you think about sex it is also adultery. It was not created by a small body of men in Rome.

In the article, Mr. Krejci also questions the authority of the Vicar of Christ, and the bishops of the Church in deciding the Church teaching. Does he realize this also has a biblical basis? Christ told the disciples what they hold bound on earth shall be held bound in heaven. The bishops are considered the descendents of the apostle, and that way they can determine what is held against you.

No one is forcing Mr. Krejci to remain a Roman Catholic. If he does not agree with teaching of the Church, he should find a new Church. He takes the attitude that if a majority of people feel an action is acceptable then it should become acceptable. That attitude was used to justify the seizure of Native American lands, and the incarceration of Japanese-Americans during World War II. Now Mr. Krejci is suggesting the same justification for the bastardization of the Roman Catholic Church.

It seems to me that Mr. Krejci just wants an easy way out of things. But, whoever said that being a Catholic, and a Christian, would be easy? The early Christians were looked upon as being strange for the practices they held. It seems as though Catholics who follow the teachings of the Church are also looked upon as strange. The early Christians could have easily bowed to pagan traditions to make the Church more popular, yet they did not. I feel the Catholic Church should do the same in not bowing to the popular will of American Catholics.

Dear Editor:

One can only shoulder in response to the Sept. 21 article in the Inside Column by Mark Krejci entitled "A new Church to combat stagnancy".

The article suggests the formation of a new "American Catholic Church" in light of the increasing disagreement of many American Catholics on Papal authority regarding modern social issues such as women in the priesthood, contraception, homosexuality and divorce.

The author claims that "it seems pretentious that a small body of individuals can proclaim that all its rulings represent the will of Christ and the formation of an American Catholic Church would take authority from the trained hands of theologians and place moral decisions on the shoulders of the untrained American community. Does it not seem even more pretentious that any of their rulings would represent the will of Christ?"

The author also suggests that Notre Dame could join this "American Catholic Church" and also "maintain a Catholic character". This is clearly impossible. The proposed American church would separate itself from the Catholic position on all the social issues mentioned above. The allowance of women priests would sever all ties to a Catholic clergy. The very idea of a national Catholic Church is contrary to the concept of the universal Catholic church which we currently have. Division from the Pope would cut off all claims this church might produce for apostolic succession and tradition. The entire concept sounds the call of Protestantism.

And so I ask you, In what possible ways could this proposed church call itself Catholic? Clearly there are none.

DAVID DEZERN

Dear Editor:

In his letter (The Observer, Sept. 20), Andrew Feske compares homosexual persons to serial killers. He makes this comparison when he suggests that a person (a male, in his example) who says that his homosexuality is morally OK because he was born gay is no more credible than a person who says that his killings are morally OK because he was born a serial killer. The important issue that Mr. Feske addresses is obscured rather than clarified by this ludicrous comparison.

If the absurdity of Mr. Feske's comparison were its only remarkable feature, I would not have written. What compels me to write is the other feature of his comparison: its violence. In this country, we live in a climate of violence that is fed by economic dislocation and armed with easily accessible handguns. Elderly persons, children, foreign tourists, and women are frequent targets of this violence. As the American Catholic bishops have recently reminded us, homosexual persons are also frequent targets. Mr. Feske needs to be informed that the American Catholic bishops have condemned violence against homosexual persons. He needs this information because his comparison of homosexuals to serial killers is the kind of invidious rhetoric that contributes to the prevailing climate of violence.

By means of this comparison, he encourages his readers to be frightened of those homosexual persons with whom he is having a religious argument concerning sexual morality. People who are frightened and armed keep one hand on the gun in their pocket. Mr. Feske's desire to put forward his side in the national debate on homosexuality is respectable; the menacing tone of his letter is not.

Comparison of homosexuals, murderers is 'ludicrous'
Notre Dame student recognized for service commitments

By MATTHEW HEALY
AcceIX Winer
Upholding Notre Dame's history of leadership in public service is just one of the reasons why Christopher Ashby spends so much time working in the community.

Last April Ashby was honored at the third annual Public Service Awards for his outstanding work in public service. This program, held by the Indiana Conference of Higher Education, honors college students who exemplify the "ideal of voluntary community service."

Ashby, then a sophomore at Holy Cross College, was nominated to represent Holy Cross in the program. He received a plaque to commemorate his honor.

During his two years at Holy Cross College, Ashby participated in a number of community service programs, many of them sponsored by Notre Dame's Center for Social Concerns. He has given his time to the South Bend Center for the Homeless, Urban Plunge, Walk for Hospice, Christmas in April and Logan Center.

Ashby is now a junior at Notre Dame. He said he plans to continue his habits of service by participating in the Big Brother program, which provides underprivileged children with companions.

"I'm really looking forward to being a big brother," he admitted. "That will definitely be my main service project. Ashby will balance this project with his classes and his part-time job at the University Club."

"My main focus needs to be academics, but I'll still be involved with projects like Urban Plunge and Christmas in April."

Ashby cited religion as his main inspiration to perform public service.

"Catholicism really emphasizes the value of serving others," he said, adding that his faith had been strengthened by public service.

"When I came to Holy Cross and got involved in service, I really came to understand the importance of my faith." Ashby said that Notre Dame has a strong sense of the link between faith and service.

"Notre Dame has a great sense of community. I remember before Hesburgh's autobiography and seeing that Notre Dame was really involved in beginning the Peace Corps. I just want to uphold Notre Dame's strong tradition of leadership in public service."

Ashby's beliefs about service have inspired his interest in politics. He is a government major and he spent the summer interning in Washington for his senator. "Government involves helping other people and serving others is what I want to do."

How to avoid the 'Kissing Disease'

By RYAN J. GRABOW
EMT-B, W

During these "pleasant" fall months here under the Dome, we are exposed to a risk of infection due to the close contact we often have at the Commencement, the dry heat in our rooms and the minor colds we seem to pick up. This disease, known as "The Kissing Disease," can be transmitted via saliva. The mono virus can cause many problems for any student unfortunate enough to contract it.

The early symptoms of mono are very similar to those of the flu: fever, headache, sore throat and extreme exhaustion are experienced shortly after infection. Within a day or two of the onset of these symptoms, the lymph nodes in the neck and possibly in the armpit and groin begin to swell. Not surprisingly these areas will be very tender to the touch.

The spleen and liver may become enlarged and a skin rash may develop. Minor liver damage may also occur, leading to jaundice (yellowish skin tone) for a few days. If you notice any of these symptoms, you should see a doctor to be tested for the disease.

Due to its viral origin, mono does not respond to antibiotics and in some cases the symptoms may last for years. Most patients recover after four to six weeks with rest and a healthy diet. For a month or so to allow the body to adjust, the mono virus destroys the white blood cells of the immune system.

Treating this disease is as simple as treating any virus. No cure is known for this disease. As with any viral disease, prevention is the best medicine. How can we protect ourselves from this disease? With a standard virus, prevention begins with hygiene. Wash your hands frequently to rub your eyes or nose (primary entry points for viruses) with dirty hands, wash your hands thoroughly after a drink with anyone having symptoms of the disease. Also, it is important to get as much rest as much as possible and eat three nutritional meals a day to help keep your immune system strong.

DePaul 3-0 in Chicago. Though the odds definitely seem to be in the Irish's favor, the team does not want to get into the same situation they were in two weeks ago.

On September 10, Notre Dame hosted Butler University after winning the Midwestern Classic. The Irish seemed to overlook their conference foe, and the Bulldogs made pay for it, shocking Notre Dame 4-2 with a 4-2 win.

"We won't have a letdown against DePaul," continued Mark Leach, the team scoring leader with 11 points.

Wendy Stahlstrom, who has been the most effective player tonight through hitting .361. Jennifer Skarp is the most effective server tonight, with 15 aces, and the Irish are very comfortable with the serve in the second set, but now has to show consistency.

"We have three tough matches this weekend, so the Irish may have to play well against DePaul. Motivation should not be a problem for us," said DePaul coach John Osachek, who will lose all of his starters except for Jennifer Skarp two years ago.

Following a strong performance against the Missouri State, the Irish bench looks to continue its improvement as the season progresses. Freshman Kristina Ervin and Jen Briggs both had good games against the Houckers and 63, 53 kills, and nine blocks for the tournament.

B. P., Howard in clash of unbeatens highlights games

by CRISTINA CORONADO
Sports Writer

Breen Phillips will play Howard Hall in the battle of the unbeatens in the featured game of tomorrow night's three. Both are tied with records of 1-0.

Number four seed Howard has been practicing extremely hard to face their opponents on Wednesday. "We're really excited about the game," co-captain Lynn Quenan stated. "Breen Phillips is one of the best teams on campus and we've worked really hard to play our best game."

The Breen Phillips team is ranked number five, right behind Howard. The Breen Phillips players are expecting a good game as they have practiced very hard for the game. "We know it'll be a tough game tomorrow as they have a tough defense and a good team," player Michelle Hurst stated.

"We will not be able to score against Howard as easily as we did against Lyons," coach Chris Jones said. "Hopefully our defense will be better prepared this week."

That defense gave up 35 points in last Thursday night's game.

That may not be so easy due to injuries to two starters on the Breeze's defense, but the team has added new plays and is working on their defense in hopes of a win.

Pangborn vs. Lyons

In the battle of the winless, Pangborn takes on the defending Lyons Hall. Pangborn has not yet won, but are hoping to turn their streak around in the upcoming game.

"We got off to a rough start on our first game," team captain Karen Kolodziej stated. "We are ready to come out fighting."

The team as a whole is young and lacking in experience, but has a lot of talent. "We want to pull together to get a win," Kolodziej added.

The Lyons team also has a record of 0-1, and will do their best to come out winners in the game to come. They dropped their first game to B. P. in an offensive shootout.

Walsh vs Badin

Walsh who had been thought to be the team to beat this season already has one loss and faces number one ranked Badin.

Badin is undefeated and is ranked number one. The Walsh team is anticipating a good game and their spirits are up to play the undefeated Badin team.

The Walsh team is coming in the game after a disappointing loss to Howard last week. "They're a good team, so we've practiced that much harder," player Kerri Carpenter stated. "It'll be a good game."

The Badin team is on top and are expecting many challenges in the game to come. They are practicing very hard to stay on top.

Pasquerrilla West raised their record to 3-0 by dropping rival Pasquerrilla East 14-0 during Sunday night's Women's Interhall action. In their first two games P.W. has outscored opponents 35-0. This time the offense was provided by senior quarterback Bethany Riddel and sophomore Kristen Hellenbrook.

Riddel gave P.W. a 6-0 lead in the first half with her scramble for a score. In the second half, Hellenbrook contributed to the scoring with a two-yard run. Riddel then scored on the two-point conversion which made the score 14-0.

"Our defense held them at bay throughout the game," said coach Jamie Irvin, who was obviously pleased with his team. Hacking up his claim was Kieu Zu, who had a second half interception to preserve the shutout.

Lewis 14 Farley 0

In the second game of the day, Lewis overcame a slow start to shut out their second consecutive opponent. The first two series for Lewis resulted in two interceptions. However, as was the case most of the day, the Lewis defense kept Farley from capitalizing.

When Lewis got the ball back they quickly scored on a beautifully executed reverse with Kim Gold taking it the distance. Colleen Barry the scored the next two-point conversion to make the score 8-0 at the half.

The rest of the way it was Lewis's defense that carried the team. Early in the second half defensive back Jeni Schellenberger intercepted a Farley pass and raced almost the entire length of the field for the score.

Schellenberger was pleased with the team especially the defense. "Most first teamers are back from last year," said Schellenberger, "We adapt and work together very well."

If the defense holds up, opposing teams may find it very difficult to score on undefeated Lewis Hall.

Siegfried 26, Knot 0

Siegfried used two first-half touchdowns passes from quarter-back Angie Luzio to pull away from Knot.

Luzio hit Margret Zimmermann on forth down early in the first half. Later in the second half, the half Luzio threw her second touchdown, this time on a sike to Michele Klesa. The two-point conversion put Siegfried up 14-0 at the half.

The second half continued much the same way with freshmen Tricia Shafritz scoring on an option and Klesa passing to Zimmermann for her second score of the day.

Fisher and Sorin put up the only points in the blue league as Fisher scored twice to beat the Otters. Fisher got all the scoring they needed in the second quarter, then clung to the lead for the final score.

Sophomore quarterback Jeff Biever connect-ed with junior tight end Don McGinty on a 20 yard pass play for the first touchdowns. Then Fisher recovered a fumble by Sorin, which led to another pass play by Biever, this time to senior flanker Mickey Perez for the 14-0 lead going into halftime.

Sorin opened the second half by recovering a muffed handoff by Fisher. On a 25 yard pass play, freshman quarterback Jeff Faragher connected with senior tight end Scott Curtin for the touchdown, but Sorin missed the extra point and Fisher led 14-6.

Sorin continued to move the ball in the second half, but couldn't quite put the ball in for the score.

Zahn 0, Cavanaugh 0

Defense was the name of the game this week and the Zahm-Cavanaugh game was not an exception to the rule. "We worked on our defense all week after we had problems in a scrimmage with Flanner," said Cavanaugh coach Tony Novak. "It was a little surprised we struggled so much on offense, but Zahn is an excellent team.

Inexperience on offense may have contributed to the problem for both teams, Cavanaugh had three new starters in their backfield after losing a lot of people from last year's 4-0 squad.

Zahn started freshman quar-terback Mark McKenna who said, "I was nervous and it was intimidating starting (for Zahn), but we look forward to improving next week.

Turnovers became a problem early, as Cavanaugh recovered two fumbles and had one interception in the first half. The second half had two interceptions and two fumbles.

Zahn had a chance to win the game at the end when their kicker teed up for a 52 yard field goal, but it fell short and the game ended in a 0-0 deadlock.

St. Edwards 0, Carroll 0

Coming into the first game of the season, Cavanaugh had an advantage, but St. Ed's have been the team like a vastly improved team from their disappointing 0-4 record last season.

The opening half was a defensive show down that featured only one big offensive play. Early in the second quarter it appeared that St. Ed's would break the deadlock when they drove deep in Carroll territory, but the Carroll defense stopped in. Carroll safety Kurt Schreck's touchdown run. Carroll had a chance to win the game at the end of the first half, but when the score was 7-6 in the fourth quarter, we made them, said Cavanaugh coach Tony Cavagna.

However, in the second half, Zahn started their game, and when they did the drive usually ended in a turnover.

St. Ed's and Carroll both showed that they need to improve their offenses to do well this season, but their defenses will keep them in games.

Second half rally propels Dillon to victory

By G.R. NELSON
Sports Writer

After a sluggish start, Dillon rallied in the second half to defeat Flanner 14-7, in one of three games played in the division of men's interhall football.

With Dillon trailing 7-6 in the fourth quarter, Chris Monahan blocked a Flanner punt, and Joe Bergan picked it up and scored the decisive touchdown.

Flanner controlled the first half. "We came out on fire," said Flanner captain Brian Parker. On its first possession, Flanner marched down the field and took the lead on Mike Thompson touchdown run.

However, in the second half, Dillon made the plays. "We were definitely overmatched in the first half, but when the time came to make the plays (second half), we made them," said Dillon captain Zach Budzichowski. Dillon scored its first touchdown on a 60 yard drive, culminated by Mike Schreck's touchdown run.

Stanford 24 Grace 0

Stanford Hall dominated every facet of this game in its route of Grace. Stanford racked up 280 yards of total offense while limiting Grace to just two first downs.

Stanford took a six point lead on Lamar Guildry's three yard run and then broke the game open on Mike Brown's (9-12, 148 yards and two TD) 60 yard touchdown pass to game breaker Mike Miller, who was playing like his namesake, caught four passes for 83 yards.

John Mele and Matt Coles also scored for the Studs. Chad Smock, one of four Stanford captains, offered these comments about the game: "It was a good start, but we have a long way to go."

Morrissey 6 Off-Campus 0

In a game where defenses dominated, Morrissey scored the only points of the game on a two yard touchdown pass to game breaker Nick Justin Krueger's one yard off-tackle right touchdown run. The Studs, led by Paul Lopach, were also successful on defense.

With only two minutes remaining, Morrissey's defense forced a fumble in Off-Campus territory, and Paul Lopach made his second fumble recovery of the game.

In the second half, the Studs showed they can play with any team remaining. After two quarterback sneak-advanced the ball to the one yard line, Krueger received the call on third and goal and delivered.

After the game, Krueger credit-ed his teammates for the score. "Paul Merlitti (right guard) and Greg Graccoff (right tackle) did a great job of blocking for me, and all I had to do was break one tackle."

Martino silent star for Saint Mary's volleyball

By Kiley Cable

Senior setter Michelle Martino has been the silent player for the Saint Mary's volleyball team for four years despite holding several impressive team records.

Tri-captain Martino finished her freshman year tenth in the nation for number of assists per game. And in her sophomore year, she broke all four records for assists per game, individual assists average, career assists per game, individual assists average, and individual assists per game.

Coach Julie Schroeder-Biek commented on Michelle's steady playing ability.

"Michelle has a competitive attitude and runs the offense well," said Schroeder-Biek. "She has great knowledge of the game. She also brings a wealth of experience to the team."

Besides bringing experience to the team's matches, Martino brings her family. She is the second youngest of eight children from Elmhurst, Illinois. Before her father passed away last year, he and her mother came to everyone of the team's games.

"Now my older brother and his wife come down with Mom for the games," said Martino. "They all are coming up for Senior Dads' weekend so I won't be alone.

Martino never had a back up setter before this year. Freshman Mindy Cota came along as replacement setter, but unfortunately fractured her foot early this season and won't be able to play till next year. Cota commented on how Martino sees herself as setter and how Cota herself sees Martino's position.

“She gave me a paper on the responsibilities of a setter," said Cota. “A server is involved in every play. Michelle does a lot for the team and picks up the pace by being the only one who jumps serves.”

Martino now sees her responsibilities heading towards a different direction. She is now sending her resume off to different firms, hoping to find a position on a accounting firm. She hopes to take what she learned from being on the volleyball team for the past three years with her into the work force.

“I’ve learned a lot about teamwork and friendship since freshman year, as well as communication beyond belief,” said Martino.

The Belles, 9-6, are in Holland, Michigan today, going up against Hope College. Last year the Belles defeated the Flying Dutch 15-12, 15-6, 15-9.

Belles soccer even record with weekend loss

By JENNIFER GUSTAFSON

The Saint Mary’s soccer team's record dropped to 3-3 over the weekend after falling to John Carroll University 1-0.

The loss for the Belles was typical of a problem they have been unable to beat the Hornets, so a win will also be key in raising team morale.

Sophomore forward Tiffany Raczynski agreed.

“If everyone plays their best and gives 100% effort, there’s no reason why we shouldn’t be able to beat them," she added. “We definitely have the talent to do so.”

The game begins at 4:00 on the field behind Angela Athletic Facility.

The Saint Mary’s soccer team takes on Kalamazoo College tonight hoping to overcome their disappointing loss to John Carroll.

The linebackers were the center of attention at Monday's practice, as a two newcomers had arrived while an old veteran returned.

Jeremy Sample and Jeremy Nau put a strong hold on the starting inside linebacker spots. While former starter Anthony Peterson practiced for the first time since injuring his knee in the Northwestern game. Sample earned his spot into last Saturday's Purdue game when senior Pete Bercich went down with a shoulder separation. Although it was hoped that Bercich would be available for this week's matchup with Stanford it appears that he won't be making the trip.

"Pete Bercich is going to miss this game," said head coach Lou Holtz. "Just how long he is going to miss is the question." Nau got the nod over sophomore Renaldo Wynn in the Purdue game and performed well. The junior was slated as a second teamer after a strong spring and fall by Wynn, but apparently the coaching stuff felt a need to make the switch. "Renaldo had a great spring. I don't know what it was, maybe stage fright," said Nau about the coaches decision.

Wynn practiced with defensive lineman Monday, but could still be available in a reserve role. Although he still is not the Peterson of old, the news of the return of the two year starter is a definite positive.

"The knee feels great," said the six-foot 233 pound Peterson. "Wearing the knee brace was weird at first but once I got accustomed to it, it just feels like a part of my leg." He practiced with the second team and looked solid but still looked a step slow. "My stamina is not where it needs to be," said Peterson. Depth a linebacker is a concern. Bill Wynn, behind Justin Goheen, is the only player on the second team who is at full strength and game proven.

Tailback Lee Becton ran for part of practice with the offensive line but sat out the later half. Holtz was uncertain as to what role he would be able to play in Saturday's game, due to a nagging hamstring injury.

Linebacker Pete Bencich, shown here against Northwestern, will miss this weekend's game against Stanford after separating his shoulder.

Men's soccer looks to regain form against DePaul

By MIKE NORBUT

It's gut check time for the Irish. The Notre Dame men's soccer team will try to avoid dropping their record to the .500 mark as they host DePaul University at 7 p.m. this evening at Alumni Field.

The Irish dropped to 4-3 after a disappointing 3-0 loss to No. 3 Indiana Friday night.

Notre Dame outplayed the Hoosiers in the first half; trailing only 7-4 in shots but holding a 6-0 advantage in corner kicks at halftime. Unfortunately for the Irish, Indiana led in the key category, the score. The Hoosiers took a 1-0 lead into halftime when junior Todd Yeagley bounced a shot past a diving Bert Bader off of a 25 yard direct kick.

Indiana dominated the second half with superior ball control and good play from midfielders Wayne Lobring and Brad Weiss. But they could not put the game away against a pesky Irish attack until junior Mike Clark scored off a Yeagley pass with 12:57 left to play in the contest to give the Hoosiers a 2-0 lead. Harry Weiss iced the game for the Hoosiers three minutes later off another Yeagley pass to give Indiana the 3-0 victory.

"You can't look at the score of the game," said Irish head coach Mike Berticelli. "You have to look at the performance, and I think we performed well. Indiana deserves a lot of credit."

The Blue Demons will take a 2-6-1 record into tonight's game. Their two wins came earlier this season against St. Xavier College and the University of Illinois-Chicago. The team is winless in its last five games, losing four straight before tying the University of Alabama-Birmingham last weekend. Despite their record, Berticelli knows DePaul will raise the bar.

"My stamina is not where it needs to be," said Peterson. Depth a linebacker is a concern. Bill Wynn, behind Justin Goheen, is the only player on the second team who is at full strength and game proven.

Tailback Lee Becton ran for part of practice with the offense but sat out the later half. Holtz was uncertain as to what role he would be able to play in Saturday's game, due to a nagging hamstring injury.

Volleyball hopes to avoid letdown

By TIMOTHY SEYMOUR
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame volleyball team looks to continue its winning ways, following its impressive win over No. 3 Nebraska at last weekend's Golden Dome Invitational, when it hosts DePaul tonight at 7:30 at the I.A.C.C.

DePaul has struggled thus far this season, coming in with a 6-8 record that includes poor performances against ranked teams. Currently, they are coming off a disappointing third place finish in their own Fall Classic, dropping matches to Loyola (Ill.) and Sam Houston State.

The Irish are coming off the program's biggest upset ever, and are playing some of their best volleyball of the season. Junior outside hitter Chrissy Peters has proven unstoppable in the last few Irish matches, capturing MVP honors in two consecutive tournaments while teammate Molly Stark has joined her on the all-tournament team both times.

One might think that the Irish, whose 10-3 record held them steady at No. 16 in the Volleyball Monthly polls, would be taking the Blue Demons lightly. However, head coach Debbie Brown noted that this was definitely not the case.

"The Santa Clara match (a 5-game loss) is still too fresh in our minds for a letdown," commented Brown. "The team will be prepared and ready to the occasion."

The Blue Demons as a team have struggled offensively, hitting only for a .170 percentage. Their leading attacker is...
