Jury acquits defendants of most counts in Denny trial

By LINDA DEUTSCH

LOS ANGELES

Two blacks were acquitted Monday of most of the felony charges in the beating of white trucker Reginald Denny and other motorists at the start of the Los Angeles riots, easing fears of renewed racial tensions.

The multiracial jury ended the day still deadlocked on the most serious count — attempted murder against defendant Damian "Football" Williams in the videotaped attack of Denny — and deadlocked on an assault count against Henry Watson.

Supporting Judge John Ouderkirk ordered the jury to resume deliberations Tuesday, saying he hoped that a "good night's rest" would be helpful.

The jury convicted the defendants of lesser counts. If first told Ouderkirk it was deadlocked on those three charges. He told jurors to continue deliberating and hours later, it found Williams innocent of a robbery charge.

Accepting the defense argument that Williams and Watson were caught up in mob violence after the state Rodney King beating trial, the jurors acquitted them of most charges that required specific intent.

Defense psychologists testified that Williams, 20, and his 29-year-old co-defendant acted in the heat of the moment and could not have planned their actions.

Their heads newly shaved, they claim they acted as the verdicts were read, except when the clerk announced "Not Guilty" on an aggravated mayhem charge against Williams, which could have put him life in prison.

Williams clapped his hands over his eyes, reared back in his seat and hugged his attorney.

"I am in total agreement (with the jurors)," Denny told the TV talismen "inside the jury room." "I think they should let the guy go. He spent a year-and-a-half in jail and has had time to think about what happened." He said he wouldn't comment on how the jury finished deliberating.

As the verdicts were read, the audience stood, the courtroom's front row, stifling sobs with a handkerchief. After Ouderkirk had warned the audience against outbursts, Watson's mother, Joyce, sat in the courtroom when he was personally arrested by former Police Chief Daryl Gates, was acquitted of eight counts.

Senate supports students' right for dorm initiations

By ANALISE TAYLOR

In an attempt to foster both dorm and school spirit and to avoid further deterioration of the level of social activity on campus, the Student Senate passed a resolution last night supporting the right of dorm and student groups to conduct initiation rites in accordance with University policy.

"The Student Senate's approval of this proposal is in a sense that the student body does not approve of the administration's high-handed tactics in this matter," said District 3 Senator Sean Lyons.

Supporters of the resolution said that the new policy against initiation is ambiguous and needs clarification: "I think it's a communication problem, not a total ban of initiation rites," said Joe Cassidy, director of the Student Activities Board. "The initiative can be done in an appropriate manner according to student groups."

Other concerns addressed included printing problems in computer clusters and security for the parking lots.

Sean Lyons, student representative for the computer systems on campus, told the Senate about problems in the computer clusters on campus.

"I think it would be more reasonable when they print," Lyons said.

If students continue to print numerous copies of papers and of dorm announcements, which are stored in the University, students may start charging them for these copies, he said.

The University spends a great amount on printing, they may not be able to purchase other computers and materials.

SMC celebrates history tradition on Founders' Day

By CHERYL GILLILAND
News Writer

Saint Mary's College students and faculty will be "Honoring Tradition" today, as they celebrate the 149th Founders' Day.

The Student Alumnae Association has prepared the festivities for the day with additional funds from Student Government.

The association is encouraging students to attend the celebration, entitled "Honoring Tradition," to honor the co-founders of Saint Mary's College, Mother Angela Clepp, a sister of the Holy Cross and Father Edward Sorin, a director of the establishment of Notre Dame du Lac in 1843.

Festivities will begin with a reception from noon until 1 p.m. in Stapleton Lounge in Maier Hall where there will be refreshments, a display of historical memorabilia, a chance to buy tickets for the Saint Mary's ring raffle and 1933 Saint Mary's student telephone directories.

From 2 to 5 p.m., an open house will be held in Wiedinger Alumnae House, and a special student dinner of prime ribs will be served in the dining hall from 4:30 to 6:15 p.m.

At 7 p.m. in The Clubhouse, the drawing for the college ring will be held, and Sister Miriam Gooney, a 1951 graduate of Saint Mary's College, will be speaking on the "Golden Era of Notre Dame's College."" The director of the Alumnae Association, Barb Henry and the Assistant Director Adeline Cashore, both Saint Mary's alumnae, feel that Founders' Day is a very important day for students and faculty to honor the history of Saint Mary's College.

"Founders' Day is a long standing observance of the college that dates back to the 1800s," commented Cashore.

"It was originally the feast day of Fr. Edward Sorin, and it's a celebration that has continued for more than 100 years."

Nellie Sanford and Ann Merideth, seniors at Saint Mary's and the student chairpersons of the Student Alumnae Association, have devoted a great deal of time and planning to today's activities.

"I think that the Student Alumnae House on Founders' Day would be most likely able to offer a benefit package that more favorably suits the needs of the University and its employees independently of the alliance, said Mullins.

According to the current draft of the plan, entities that employ more than 5,000 people will be exempt from entering the health alliances that the plan will use to pool together many small employers of a geographic area. The goal of the alliances is to give small employers the insurance purchasing power that large employers have had in generating cost favorable benefit rates.

But the number of hours an employee must work per week in order to count towards the plan has been a sticking point for the Student Senate. This qualification determines if the student employee fig-

HOURS, it is not known if the plan calls forliteral adherence to this rule, he said.

The question to be answered is whether the student employee figure will be included in the composite figure for coverage or if the figure will include only traditional, regular employees.

Notre Dame currently employs 3,250 regular full time workers, 400 more regular full time workers (adjunct and research professors), 173 regular part time workers, and more than 4,000 non-regular part time workers, according to Mullins. These figures come from the University to disseminate more than 9,000 W-2 forms last year, he said.

Funding for the benefit plan that Notre Dame is designing will be needed to work at least 29 hours a week. This qualification determines if the university will extend benefits to the 3,200 on Notre Dame's works 173 regular part time workers and 400 non-regular full time employees. Seniors are behind the eight ball

If you are a senior, if you will be a senior in one, two or three years' time, if you were once a senior, if you in any way have any association with that name, on this campus, you understand frustration.

Frustration is personified by the masses of seniors who pray, dream, aspire to be employed as something other than "ShineBum Engineer" at the local 7-11.

But the process of getting a job involves mass frustration. And so, to quell their frustration and answer their questions, seniors take the Career and Placement plunge.

Career and Placement, located at the end of a long hallway in the basement of Herbst Hall (for those of you still trying to find it), is a fantastic service. Fantastic if your years at Notre Dame have enabled you to figure out exactly how to spend the rest of your life.

Career and Placement is here for those focused seniors. But don't wait. Hand over the two dollars and proclaim, "Gimme a job!"

However, if you are an unsure senior trying to decide what you want to be when you grow up, come this way. There is an alternative.

Seasons of life are informative, reassuring, and frustrating as Career and Placement does exist. Eight Ball™

Yes, this mystical black toy-wonder manufactured by Tyco could easily replace the advisors, books, pamphlets, lists supplied by Career and Placement. The Eight Ball™ is ideal for seniors because they seek definite answers to their specific situations.

Before you ask the orb your deepest queries, there are a few rules. Do not attempt to drink the liquid contained inside of The Eight Ball™. Prolonged use of The Eight Ball™ may lead to mixed results. However, you do not want to ruin the Eight Ball™

Eight Ball™ should start with the biggie. "Will I get a job?" Shake the ball, stare into the circle window, wait for the blue bubbles to clear away and you will know.

You feel good. You love this hand-held advisory device. "Yes, you should try your luck in sales," it said.

"Next question," it called. "Will I get a job?"

"Shake it again, hold your breath and read, 'Don't count on it.'"

Shaken, not stirred, your grab your dinosaur ancestors and tell them you will make enough money to live on my own and not at my parent's home for the next seventeen years? This is it. "Don't count on it."

Okay. So maybe The Eight Ball™ is too honest. Or maybe you want a ball that's not going to coddle a senior and hold his/her hand. The Eight Ball™ just tells what it sees.

You may be frustrated with The Eight Ball™. You want it to tell you what to do. Well, sometimes you can do that with The Eight Ball™. You cannot do that with an advisor or prospective employer.

Go ahead and chuck it. But, that will be the end of The Eight Ball™ and you won't be able to ask your questions, there will be no more toys for you. You will have to act like an adult. You will probably have to do a report, present a resume, and interview.

I'm not bitter. I'm just a senior.

 Spike Lee objects to defense of Danson

 Spike Lee thinks Whoopi Goldberg is confused in defending boyfriend Ted Danson's blackface routine at a recent Friars Club charity roast. Danson caused an uproar earlier this year at the puppy farm. In the routine, Danson decried it as "way, way over the line."

But the actress, who was known for movies including "Sister Act" and with Danson, "Made in America," has argued that the humor was supposed to be vulgar. Besides, she said, she wrote much of the skit material, and found the makeup artist.

Most husbands, wives don't cheat

The vast majority of married Americans don't cheat on their spouses, a sex researcher says, disputing claims that the percentage of married or previously married Americans has cheated on a spouse or cheated on married or previously married Americans have cheated on a spouse, according to the National Opinion Research Center. The survey found that 9 out of 10 married Americans, or 94 percent, have not cheated on a spouse. The researchers say the survey's results are based on a random sample of 1,126 married Americans.

Turkey says embargo hasn't hurt Saddam

The U.N. embargo against Iraq has hurt the Turkish and Iraqi people but not Saddam Hussein, Turkey's prime minister said Monday. "I don't think the embargo has hurt Saddam Hussein as much as it has hurt us," said Tansu Ciller in remarks at the National Press Club. Ciller said Monday in a report at an American Enterprise Institute seminar.

Alumna encourages to have family, career

By JENNIFER LEWIS
News Writer

Gloria Ybarra came back to Saint Mary's yesterday after 18 years to encourage women that they can have both a family and a career.

In her lecture "One woman's path from Saint Mary's to student to lawyer, judge and Mother," Ybarra, a Saint Mary's graduate of 1975, described her plight from motherhood to judicial career.

Ybarra will be speaking again on Wed., Oct. 20 in Haggard College Center.

Ybarra went to a large urban high school in Arizona. She was the senior student body president and a honor roll student. For personal reasons, Ybarra said she was getting a degree in WASH., Notre Dame, and two smaller colleges in Arizona, she got accepted to all of them. Ybarra felt a great deal of loyalty to Notre Dame, however her choice was Harvard.

"I felt a really strong responsibility to lay the path, not only for Saint Mary's women, but for all religious women," Ybarra said. "What I gained there was access and lots of open doors.

After graduating from Harvard she also offered two jobs in Washington D.C., declining both of them. Ybarra returned home seeking a career in politics. Soon after her return, she got married, and decided to have children. She put politics off to the side and worked in a small firm in Arizona. Ybarra said she was getting impatient waiting for her chance in the courtroom, so she transferred to a U.S State Attorney. After a year of practicing law she switched to the drug enforcement department. At the time Ybarra was in her late twenties, married and a woman in a position not in her favor at a male dominated agency. She was on call for four years 24 hours a day.

In 1984, she began applying for a judicial position. It was necessary to have practiced law for five years and to be over the age of thirty. Ybarra barely made both of the requirements.

She applied six times and was asked to be interviewed three out of the six.

"I was too young, too brown, and too pregnant," said Ybarra in response to her first interview.

She was asked whether she was planning to have any more children and if she could handle being not only a judge but also a wife and mother. Her favorite question was "Who is going to take care of your husband?"

She said she could have easily accepted them of discrimination, considering they could not ask male applicants these question.

"I could not say how dare you ask those questions, even though I wanted to," said Ybarra on October 18, she was the youngest judge ever to be appointed. In addition, in a half in months pregnant. Three weeks later she was sworn in, she was not pregnant. She was chosen for Saint Mary's since last Thursday talk-gram.

Haitian military refuses to yield

Army rejects U.N. deadline; embargo begins

By DAVID BEARD
Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE
Haiti's military early Tuesday defied a midnight deadline to yield power and expelled a U.N. arms and oil embargo. Its right-wing supporters threatened that any American invaders will go "in bags."

Rightists mixed threats against the outside world with gifts of chrysanthemums to foreign reporters, while Lt. Gen. Flavio Cedras, the army strongman, suggested new talks on his departure.

"I think the solution is in dialogue. Dialogue must lead us to national reconciliation," Cedras told "McNeil-Lehrer NewsHour" on the Public Broadcasting System hours before the sanctions took effect.

The United States also backs a compromise but one within the existing U.N. plan. U.S. Ambassador William Swing said Monday night that the U.S. would urge the Haitian parliament to consider a general amnesty law for soldiers who committed crimes after the 1991 coup that ousted Haiti's president.

Ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide had made an amnesty decree but Cedras said such an order could be revoked at any time.

Cedras told TV reporters that the United States should not try to reinstall Aristide by force.

Chronology

President Clinton slapped new sanctions Monday on military and police leaders he said were blocking the return of democracy to Haiti. Clinton also vowed to "not rest until our efforts in Congress to restrict his aid send troops to the island nation."

Sanctions

Sanctions to be imposed at 11:59 p.m. EDT Monday if Haiti's leaders defy United Nations agreement:

■ Ban on supply of petroleum or petroleum products to Haiti, expediting small quantities for use in cooking or "essential humanitarian needs."
■ Ban on supply of weapons and ammunition.
■ Ban on supply of military vehicles and spare parts.
■ Ban on supply of police equipment and spare parts.

Peacemakers fire warning shots in four unrelated incidents

By MICHELLE PAUL
Associated Press

MOGADISHU
U.S. soldiers fired at an armed group that approached their base Monday, and U.N. troops fired warning shots in three other skirmishes as a nine-day lull in fighting appeared to fray.

There were no signs the incidents were related. Isolated grenade, mortar and gunfire attacks over the past week or so have been tied to clans fighting in Mogadishu and have not appeared aimed at the multinational peacekeeping force.

This port on the Indian Ocean had been at its quietest in four years since militiamen of warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid shot down two helicopters in a battle that killed 18 American soldiers Oct. 3. Aidid spokesmen said more than 300 Somalis died.

Outrage in the United States over the toll persuaded President Clinton to choose diplomacy over military force. Aidid called a cease-fire last week and released an American pilot and a Nigerian peacekeeper he was holding hostage.

A U.N. spokeswoman, Capt. Dawn Kilpatrick, said no one was injured when American troops opened fire as 10 armed Somalis approached their "Sword Base" in southwestern Mogadishu.

"They fired warning shots, and the Somalis . . . all fled," she said.

But journalists said up to four Somali men who appeared to have been wounded in the incident were being treated at Bnadir Hospital.

Kilpatrick said she had no reports of casualties.

Monday morning, Turkish soldiers guarding an entrance to the U.N. compound in southwestern Mogadishu fired into the air when people started throwing stones at them, she said. The crowd dispersed and there were no casualties.

Earlier in the day, a Somali tried to sneak into the U.N. compound through barbed wire. He fled when peacekeepers fired over his head, Kilpatrick said. Soon after, another Somali tried to sneak in at another part of the compound, with the same result.

Kilpatrick said she had no reports of casualties.

Military convoys in Aidid-controlled southern Mogadishu have been limited to essential missions since Oct. 3.

Instead, the United Nations has stepped up aerial surveillance by U.S. helicopters equipped with radar and night-vision devices.

WASHINGTON

After a painful summer, President Clinton’s sales pitch on the North American Free Trade Agreement is beginning to attract a few customers, lured in part by old-fashioned horse trading.

Deals are in the works aimed at satisfying the worries of farmers in Florida and elsewhere in the South who worry about the trade pact’s impact on the citrus industries. The same is true for upstate New York growers concerned about the effect on wheat farmers.

But the trading may not stop there. The White House appears ready to promise rewards such as higher tariffs to farmers and workers whose support is seen as crucial, one Democratic lawmaker said.

“The store is open as far as the White House is concerned,” an administration official familiar with the negotiations said. “It’s open to any member whose support is seen as necessary.”

But, “The White House is willing to discuss anything,” said a congressional official. “But the lack of a central focus has caused an enormous loss of circulation and a loss of advertising, according to Giccone.”

The increase in accessibility of electronic news to the general public will force newspapers to abandon their reliance on advertiser revenues as their main source of revenue in order to survive in the electronic age of media, Giccone said last night at a dinner sponsored by the Society of Professional Journalists.

Newspaper industry in danger of extinction

The only manner that advertisers can cut costs and reduce potential tax losses of many hedging transactions, used by businesses to protect themselves from fluctuations in interest rates, foreign currencies and commodity prices. They have been left with the hedges only as an offset to capital gains. If a business had not hedged at all, it could not deduct the losses on the hedges.

Many businesses use hedges, costs related to a recent settlement with the IRS. They are considering buying double coverage in order to hedge against swings in foreign currency exchange rates. A farmer can use a hedge to lock in the price of wheat three months in advance. The rate could actually hurt farmers if it prompts banks to lower the interest paid on deposits. Bob Head, publisher of the Bank Rate Monitor newsletter, said he expected rates on short-term deposits to drop by 15 to 20 percentage points in coming weeks.

Other while interest rates have fallen dramatically, banks have been hesitant to drop the prime. They reasoned that due to a record price on Wall Street and the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. lead, but analysts expected they would. However, banks were starting to question if the rate would continue to decline.

The prime rate is used to calculate the interest on loans to small- and medium-sized businesses. It also affects some consumer loans, especially home equity loans and credit cards. People have been interested in paying in short-term debt rather than increasing it, said Raphael Soifer, a banking analyst at Brown Brothers Harriman & Co.

Awareness Week more than ‘Puritan’

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to William McDonald’s letter, “Alcohol Awareness Week is purely a Puritan propaganda ploy,” the Observer, October 14.

While a few of McDonald’s points are sound, he takes others to an unfortunate extreme, and ends up laying too much blame in too many places where it simply does not belong.

His recurring emphasis is Puritan Fundamentalism, which he writes is lobbying not just against drinking irresponsibly, but drinking altogether. My question is, is this really a bad thing? Personally, I do not drink, which will probably discredit me in the eyes of some. I did not write this, however, to damn drinking.

The vast majority of the alcohol consumption I see on this campus is, in fact, responsible, and I have great deal of respect for those students like McDonald who know their limits. But abstinence from alcohol should not be played off as something bad. Both drinking intelligently and not drinking at all are sensible options, and there is nothing wrong with either.

The purpose of Alcohol Awareness Week is inherent in its name, and the very fact that the letter was written shows that it is serving that purpose — informing people of the dangers of excessive alcohol consumption. If these “Puritans” wish to condemn drinking altogether, that is their prerogative, and they should not be chastised for that decision, just as McDonald should not be chastised for choosing to drink responsibly.

To blame these Puritans for the problems of excessive drinking, however, is overstep ping the bounds.

His contention that they force underage drinkers to do so “in secret” is ludicrous at best. First of all, those who are underage are technically breaking the law by drinking at all. So if SUDS officers raid parties and issue tickets, then they are justified in doing so.

Underage drinkers take that risk by “hiding their mugs” in the first place. Secondly, if they reiterate, why is not drinking at all not an option? I’m sure there is a contingent of dry students like me who get along just fine without booze.

He also asserts that the government should lower the legal drinking age. This is a complex issue. Congress probably sees the huge problem that underage drinking is across the country, and not just the Notre Dame-Saint Mary’s community, where it might not be as severe. Consequently, Congress is reluctant to equip those who have already demonstrated irresponsibility with such a powerful implement of destruction.

McDonald’s views should be respected, and for many, his attitude toward drinking should be emulated. However, his universal damnation of alcohol abstinence may be disagreed with.

Drinking can cause alcoholism, violence, rape and death. That is the intended focus of this Week. We are all entitled to our opinions on the issue. But we all should be aware.

Does legislation affect our social values?

Dear Editor:

In an article headlined “Statement supports gays, lesbians and bisexuals,” (The Observer, Oct. 14) Father Richard Warner is quoted as saying that “legislation doesn’t change bias, and petitions don’t change harassment.”

If in fact he said this, it is quite discouraging. Has he not spoken with any African Americans about the legislation passed during the 50’s and 60’s that both proscribed statutory racism and emboldened American blacks to ask for their fair share of the American pie?

Has he not spoken with Father Ollie Williams about the economic embarrassments on South African racism?

Has he forgotten why the American Catholic bishops deep-sixed their attempt to articulate the place of women in the Catholic church?

Has he forgotten that his grandparent’s generation did not think that American women should be able to vote, and that legislation caused the change from their generation to ours?

KERN TREMBATH
Department of Theology

Another way to show the oddness of Warner’s reasoning is to turn it around. Is it true, for instance, that legislation designed to oppress American blacks would have no effect on racism? Is it true that legislation designed to promote abortion would have no effect on people’s biases toward the unborn?

Is it true that legislation designed to suppress Catholicism in the United States would have no effect on non-Catholics’ biases towards Catholics?

If Warner thinks that legislation has no effect on social attitudes, would he support these types of bills?

Isn’t the whole point of legislation to express our institutional and social values? If so, then how can it not have an effect on those values?

Dr. Ralph McInerny
Professor
Catholicism does not exhaust Christianity

Dear Editor:

Two mediocre pieces (The Observer, Oct. 14) drew my attention and deserve a close analysis. The first is a light-hearted tongue-in-cheek article which I contend supports gays, lesbians, and bisexuals. The second, a longer and more sincere, is Kirsten Dunne’s column on “National Coming Out Day.” The common theme running throughout the front page piece was “tolerance” and the “Notre Dame Family.” Bowers claimed that, “This makes no statement about morality.” This proposition is as ludicrous as it is false.

In today’s published statement—recognizes the need for openness and support for members of these campus minorities” (homo- sexuals?) what else is but a demand for moral legitimization? Abraham Lincoln found his speeches against slavery, understood, as apparently Bowers and the other New Testament writers. So the question is, if a wrong, he cannot say people are right about it or wrong. What the published statement asks us to do is support them in their judgment. Therefore, a “statement about morality” despite Rower’s protestations is offered.

I find it fascinating that President Clinton, with words gay and lesbian in the same breath as family, whatever it is.

Aristotle, the classical source for moral rectitude, taught his Politics that the most fundamental unit of nature is the human being, which consists of a man, woman, and eventually their children. A real family—a family consistent with nature—requires a male and female, which is the only one possible.

To be sure, by artificial means (i.e. adoption or artificial insemination) a “family” can be devised, but it does not alter the natural course of nature’s providence, but are “artifcats,” or “man-made.” The legitimization of homosexuality is an attack on the natural ground for the foundation of society.

Catholics receive communion at the Eucharist to rejoice in the purity of the Church’s sacrifice. I fully hope that our friends hear the Church’s teaching and obey the rules of the liturgy. The priest in the altar or presiding bishop has the right to recognize the other kind of eucharist that will not be done except by the Church.

Crypts, 14) concerning the centrality of moral matters. But priests on campus not only condone Protestants receiving communion, but actually ask hesitant ones to receive.

Unless you've been asleep or dead this week, you probably know that there is an office on campus concerned with educating us about alcohol and its effects on our lives. The Office of Alcohol and Drug Education, perched in the Mezzanine Level of the LaFortune Student Center, is charged with just this task.

A Shaky Beginning

The office evolved from the University Counseling Center's desire to better meet the needs of the student population. The department was designed to address the need for education and awareness about alcohol in the community, according to Sally Coleman, a psychologist at the University Counseling Center.

As a corollary to that mission, the Office also handles in the Student Counseling Center. Then died, and in the interim, the Office of Alcohol and Drug Education, established in the center. Today, the Office offers several programs for the students designed to emphasize the dangers of abusing alcohol. These are designed to engage the students in a dialogue and facilitate good decision making about alcohol use.

Finally, the third focus of the Office of Alcohol and Drug Education is the intake evaluation of students and the community, according to Jeanette Pasin Sloan, a part of the University's exciting collection.

Sloan, born in 1946, is a major artist of contemporary still-life painting. Although she received her Master in Fine Arts Degree from the University of Chicago, her current studio is her kitchen, where she depicts every object from the television to the air conditioner in minute detail.

'Spiritual Artist'

Her work is growing out of a jam, or keeping them out of a jam. "I learned that relationships are complicated and always changing—that a life must be recomposed continuously, day by day. My work has grown to express this," said Sloan.

Still-life painting lost its popularity in the beginning of the 1960's. But Sloan was involved in the 1960's and 70's with the creation of pop art and photo realism. Most artists have little in interest in the object at such but the presence of an object contains a social or political message. In photo realism the artist wants to achieve complete verisimilitude and the emphasis lies in the appearances of the objects.

Sloan's work parallels the aims of a photo realist as her distinctive subjects are mirrored or highly polished surfaces, such as those in "Mercato Stripes."

Her still-lives were more interesting by the introduction of striped fabrics placed beneath the objects. The reflective surfaces act as mirrors which make complex optical distortions of the fabrics. It is Sloan's first step in creating a temporary still-life painting.

"Challenging Students"

As any organization takes on the personal challenges of its leader, the Office of Alcohol and Drug Education revolves around Mark Pogue. In coming to Notre Dame, he brings the experience of directing the Alcohol-Drug Information Center at Indiana University, his alma mater. He entered this line of work because he "always wanted to be in a position to help people," and he likes "working with students and young people."

Pogue is optimistic about the response of the student body to the efforts of his office. He feels there is a "growing number of people who don't need alcohol to have a good time." But of course, there's still room for improvement.

"We need more things to do," Pogue said. "But we are starting to do things where alcohol isn't the focus."
Zahm, Cavanaugh, Fisher remain unbeaten in Blue League

What a difference a half makes. In Zahm's case this was especially true, as the Rabid Bats rebounded from a dismal first half to defeat Alumni 7-0.

By defeating Alumni, Zahm all but clinched one of the four playoff spots up for grabs in the blue league. They did this with a solid defensive effort in the first half and an aggressive offensive attack in the second.

Sophomore quarterback Randy Swatland came out throwing after halftime, setting up the lone touchdown and throwing for two more, only to have them nullified due to penalties.

"We turned up the intensity in the second half," said Zahm coach Dan Fitzpatrick. "Swatland did a great job for us today. He took his time and stood his ground in the pocket.

The only touchdown of the day was set up after a clipping penalty by the Dawgs, giving Zahm a first down. Following two first-down passes to junior Peter Couri, Swatland found junior Rick Box down the sideline for a big gain to the 7-yard line of Alumni. From there Swatland ran around end on the keeper for the score.

That penalty in the third quarter hurt us," commented Alumni coach Paul Zachlin. "When there are no turnovers, penalties make the difference."

Zachlin went on to credit his whole team for a good game. "The defense gave up no first downs in the opening half while the offense made strides only to be stopped by penalties or the Zahm defense, which pitched a shutout for the second week in a row.

Cavanaugh 13, Sorin 0

For the second week in a row, sophomore running back Mike Norbut captured all the attention as he lead Cavanaugh to their second win a row. Norbut finished a full day's work with both touchdowns and a drive-killing interception.

Cavanaugh's first scoring drive started at the Sorin 45-yard line after a bad snap on the punt gave them good field position. From there Norbut got the first down on an option play and combined with a Sorin penalty, Cavanaugh advanced to the 15-yard line. After a short pass, the man of the hour bowled over a defender for the score and an early 6-0 lead.

"Today our whole offense was like a V-8, Dodge Ram Charger firing on all cylinders," said an elated Norbut after the game.

The only touchdown of the third quarter as they had the ball at the Cavanaugh 13-yard line following yet another bad snap on the punt. However, two plays later, Norbut picked off Jeff Farragher's pass after it was tipped by the defensive line. "After the muffed punt our defense saved us and turned it around to set up the second score," said Cavanaugh coach Tony Nowak.

After Norbut ran the interception back to about the 50-yard line, he proceeded to chalk up runs of 20 and 30 yards up to the Sorin two. Norbut then capped off his career day by scoring on the handoff to close out the game.

Fisher 14, St. Ed's 0

In the final showdown of the day, the Green Wave of Fisher maintained their unblemished record as they dominated St. Ed's in a 14-0 win.

The offensive aerial assault was lead by sophomore quarterback Jeff Blever, who showed flashes of brilliance at times. On the first drive of the day for Fisher, Blever hit junior Dan McGinty for what would be the first of his four catches. After a 20-yard run by senior Rob Ganz, it was time for Blever to go to work. Rolling right and under heavy pressure, he found sophomore Mike Carroll deep in the end zone for a 30-yard TD pass.

"We played real well on both sides of the ball," said Blever. "For the most part, the offensive line gave me good protection."

A lack of protection was what hurt St. Ed's and freshman quarterback Paul Rogers. The Fisher defense allowed only two first downs on the day as they were led by freshman John Knetz, who had an interception and a sack.

"I was on my back most of the day," said Rogers. "However, thanks to the inspiration from Louie Gentine and some miraculous play-calling by Frank Solofra, I was able to maintain my composure throughout the game.

Cavanaugh running back Mike Norbut was the Observer Player-of-the-Week for his two-touchdown performance on Sunday.

Fisher coach Chuck Hurley was proud of his defense for the way they were able to get to Rogers all day.

"Our offense just took over from there due to the fact that we can score from anywhere on the field," said Hurley.

Top-ranked Morrissey finishes as lone 4-0 team in Gold League

By G.R. NELSON

Top-ranked Morrissey (4-0) trampled Keenan 20-3 to clinch first place in the Gold League and complete an undefeated regular season.

Quarterback Scott Taylor paced Morrissey's offense by passing for three touchdowns and 140 yards. Wide receiver Tom Fitzpatrick caught the first two touchdown passes on strikes of 25 and 30 yards, respectively. Justin Krueu con­ tinued his outstanding play, catching one touchdown pass and repeatedly rushing for long gains.

Morrissey's defense yielded its first points of the year on Josh Tullis' 30-yard field goal. Morrissey's dominating defense still has not allowed a touch­ down this year. "Once again, our defense played outstanding," said Morrissey captain George Reider. Keenan (2-1) had few high lights in their first loss. "We played with a lack of discipline," said Keenan's Matt Fisher left," said Reider. "We just didn't play well."

Morrissey is peaking at the right time and appears to be the team to beat this year. "I definitely feel we'll be the team to beat, but there are a lot of great teams like Keenan and Fisher left," said Borden.

With their season on the line, Stanford (2-1-1) put it all to­ gether and played its strongest game of the year to defeat Dillon 17-4 and clinch a playoff spot.

Stanford abandoned its high­ powered passing attack and went to the ground game. "We knew we could pass, and now we have proved we can run," said Stanford captain Chris Pollina.

Thanks to the strong running of tailback Lamar Guillory, Stanford had little need to throw. Guillory carried the ball 15 times for 120 yards, with many of those yards coming after initial contact.

When Dillon's defense keyed on Guillory, Stanford gave the ball to either Pollina or John Mele. Pollina scored Stanford's first touchdown, and Mele pro­ duced the clinching score.

Stanford received an emo­ tional lift from the right leg of lineman Roger O'Leary. Stanford had failed to convert on an ex­ tra point all year, but Smock kicked two extra points and a field goal.

The game was scoreless at the half, but Flanner took con­ trol of the game early in the third quarter. "We came out and executed real well in the second half," said Flanner capt­ ain Brian Parker.

Robert Phelps gave Flanner a 6-0 lead with his one-yard plunge in the third quarter. Off-Campus (1-3) scored a late touchdown on a 70-yard pass from quarterback Mike Myers to workhorse fullback Matt Carr, but came no closer.

the first thirteen minutes of the final period, the Irish finally took the lead at the 13:24 mark. Ling passed to a open Ben Nelson in front of Organ, and the freshman beat him for Notre Dame's fourth goal. "We wanted to win, so everyone was crashing the net," said Ling. "It was just a matter of Nelson being open and he knew how to finish."

A one-goal lead was all Loudon needed for the victory. The defense did allow some scoring chances for Waterloo, most notably a four on two break, but Loudon came up with the big stops.

Even with an extra skater for the final 1:18, the Warriors could not score the tying goal. Two consecutive saves by Loudon at the minute mark preserved the victory. The game ended with the puck in Waterloo's zone. This was quite appropriate, as that is where much of the action took place.

"The bottom line is we won," said Schafer, who was not com­ pletely satisfied with the play of his squad. "We started the sea­ son on a winning note. We found some weaknesses (line changes and intensity through­ out) to work on. We'll talk."

One thing that definitely did impress Schafer and his staff was the performance of the underclassmen. He specifically praised the play of sophomore defensemen Davide DaGrande and Nelson, who "looked like he had been out there before."

Schafer also mentioned the performance of the penalty- killing team, especially their hustle. The ability of the team to come back from a two-goal deficit is another positive that came from Saturday's game.

"We saw how far we came in two weeks (of practice)," said Ling, who showed glimpses of his playing ability. "Now we have another two weeks to pre­ pare for Western Michigan."

Graduating Seniors:
An Accelerated Path to A Nursing Career

G eorgetown University School of Nursing offers an accelerate­ d program leading to a BSN degree, designed for college graduates who wish to pursue a career in nursing. Upon completion of the 15-month program, graduates are prepared to take the state board examinations to become licensed registered nurses. Although we encourage students with science backgrounds to apply, all undergraduate degrees are acceptable.

Saint Mary's teams face Chicago as seasons wind down
Soccer travels to Chicago for last road game

By MARY GOOD
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

The University of Chicago is expected to give the Belles a difficult game, as they were ranked tenth in the Great Lakes Region last week. Following this game the Belles have two home contests to finish off the season.

"We have played a lot of common opponents this season," said Saint Mary's coach Tom Van Meter, whose team is 6-5-1 on the season. Earlier this year Saint Mary's defeated Wheaton 4-3. Last week the University of Chicago beat Wheaton 2-1.

"Our record does not reflect our game," said Van Meter. Although the Belles were defeated by St. Joseph's College last week, they have been improving in practice this week, according to Van Meter. Saint Mary's has beaten University of Chicago the past five years and looks to continue their winning trend.

"It is the last week of the season and I hope we can continue winning in these three final games," said Van Meter.

The Belles have on only one home match remaining after today's contest, on November 2 against Goshen College.

IRISH VOLLEYBALL LOOKS FOR EIGHTTH STRAIGHT WIN TONIGHT

By TIMOTHY SEYMOUR

Eight straight wins in any sport is improbable, yet this is the mark the No. 13 Notre Dame volleyball team will try to reach tonight at 7:30 p.m. as it hosts No. 18 Arizona State and No. 22 Arizona.

"Traditionally, we've had a good ace to error ratio in our service game, and we look to continue that," commented Brown.

Against the Golden Flashes, Notre Dame will try to pass well, allowing the team to run every option on its offense, and thereby improve on the fundamentals stressed by Brown.

Fundamentals should be all the Irish need to defeat the Golden Flashes, which enter with a mediocre 8-10 record against sub-par opposition. Notre Dame is particularly susceptible on offense, as the team owns a low 182 hitting percentage, which should be an advantage to the defensively-solid Irish.

Despite their lack of experience against ranked competition, the Golden Flashes do bring some talented players into their first-ever meeting with the Irish. Kent State relies on both experience and youth, as senior outside hitter Linda Morrison leads the squad with 170 kills, closely followed by freshman middle blocker Larisa Grinsbergs, who has 128.

"Against Kent State, we want to get back into the mode of playing the kind of ball we're capable of," stated Brown. "We hope to not only come away with a victory, but more importantly, to play well.

Looking ahead, this game becomes a key warm-up for the Irish, as it is their last contest before going on the road for their longest stretch of the season, a three match swing through the Southwest that includes matches against No. 18 Arizona State and No. 22 Arizona.

Taking advantage of a Waterloo line change, goalie Greg Louder hit an open Terry Lorenz with a perfect outlet pass. The freshman then beat goalie James Organ to put the Irish up 1-0. The key was Louder's pass. "That play was Greg Louder at his best," according to Schafer. Despite the fact that Notre Dame controlled the first period, there were plenty of first-game mistakes that Waterloo failed to convert on. In the second period, though, the mistakes turned into three Warrior goals in a five-minute span.

The first two goals, scored by Mike White and Steve Woods, came as a result of sloppy line changes on the part of the Irish. Less than a minute after the second goal, Louder dove to grab a loose puck. It was knocked away and ended up in the net, as Waterloo captain Jason Mervyn took advantage of the empty net to give his team a 3-1 lead.

Schafer quickly called a time-out to calm his shell-shocked group. "All he said was for us to settle down, keep our heads, and stay in control," said sophomore Jamie Ling. "He also reminded us that we were capable of coming back.

Apparently, the quick talk had a positive effect, as the Irish stepped up their level of play. After four minutes of solid skating, Notre Dame cut the lead to one on a goal by junior Carey Nemeth. He converted a loose rebound, allowing the Irish to jump right back into the game.

Excluding a first-game flurry, the Notre Dame defense has been the key to their success. With five straight wins, they have only allowed five goals in the last five matches.

Except for a Notre Dame flurry in the final 30 seconds of the period, play was relatively slow until the start of the third period.

The final stanza began with an Irish penalty. However, strong forechecking, especially by Jeff Hasseman, stalled Waterloo's scoring chances. A brief scrum followed, with four players on each side receiving penalties. The hitting intensity subsequently rose, and it was the Irish who capitalized.

On their sixth power play opportunity, Notre Dame finally converted. Lorenz scored his second goal on a wrap-around effort to tie the game at three. "Terry just found the net with his shot," said Schafer.

The Irish continued their pressure, forcing Waterloo to take penalties to prevent goals. Even though Notre Dame could not score, the defense greatly benefited. Waterloo could not mount a substantial attack, skating a man down, as they were for much of the first ten minutes of the period.
