The driver of the car, John Rita, a Notre Dame Law School Student, fled the scene.

Fox, 18, suffered massive internal head injuries and was pronounced dead on arrival to the St. Joseph's Medical Center emergency room about 1:22 a.m., according to a press release. According to the St. Joseph's County Sheriff's department.

She was accompanied by Lyons' freshmen Kathleen Policy, Jennifer Ramirez and Rebecca Hinck, and Dan Policy.

Police are still investigating the accident and leaving the scene of a death while driving intoxicated, according to authorities.

Rita was asleep when police arrived at his apartment and arrested him. He was taken to the St. Joseph County Jail early Saturday morning on $1,000 bond.

After fleeing the scene, Rita parked his car in the parking lot of Kids Bedz, on Grape Road, walked to his apartment and went to bed, according to the press release. Three of Rita's friends who were in the car called police to report the crash.

Rita was asleep when police arrived at his apartment and arrested him. He was taken to the police department and gave a statement admitting to his involvement in the crash, according to authorities. Tests indicated that Rita was still intoxicated three hours after the crash.

Army recaptures key base, ending biggest battle in 10-year war

PALAJI AIR BASE, Sri Lanka

Sri Lankan forces recaptured a key northern military base Sunday that had fallen to waves of Tamil separatist rebels four days earlier, ending the forceful battle of the 10-year civil war. Seaborne commandos and infantry fought through jungles and minefields to retake the Poonyray air base and navy commando, and rescued 900 soldiers who had been held out there since the camp was overrun Thursday. The army said 500 of its men were dead or missing, and claimed 700 Tamil Tiger rebels were killed. The rebels have been silent about their casualties since Friday, when they said they had lost 93 fighters. The rebels retreated in boats across a lagoon to the nearby Jaffna Peninsula after destroying the camp and stripping the armory of heavy weapons, including two tanks, mortars and high-speed motorboats. The base is a vital link in the blockade of Jaffna, the stronghold of the rebels who have been waging a war since 1983 for a separate nation in the north and east of Sri Lanka for the minority Tamils. Before this weekend, at least 18,000 people had been killed in the war. Though the army retained the base, the successful rebel assault proved the Tigers to be a disorganized conventional force. Their boldness and bugle battered them if peace talks ever get under way. Efforts to begin talks were put on hold after the assassination May 1 of President Rajasinghe Premadasa, who was blown up by a suicide bomber believed to be a Tamil Tiger. At the same time, the loss of hundreds of combatants will be a heavy blow to the guerrillas. The army said the Tigers lost 350 men in another battle three weeks ago. The Tigers are estimated to have a force of about 10,000, mostly in Jaffna, a peninsula that juts out of northern Sri Lanka. "I don't know how long they can go on like this, losing so many men in quick succession," said army Brig. Lal Weerarasylla. At the Palali air base in Jaffna, 22 miles north of the recaptured camp, hundreds of troops loaded down with weapons and equipment waited for deployment as helicopters ferried out the wounded from the weekend fighting. Stretchers bearing the seriously wounded were loaded onto planes for Colombo, 145 miles south of the battle zone. Hundreds of Tamil rebels waded through the lagoon's foot-deep mud and water to infiltrate the Poonyray base at dawn Thursday, Weerarasylla said. "The attack came in waves and waves from all directions," he said, quoting survivors. Breaking down the defense perimeter, the rebels overran artillery positions, the radar installation and finally the base headquarters. "The Tigers outflanked and outmaneuvered us," Weerarasylla told a group of reporters at Palali air base. The counteroffensive began Saturday, with 1,000 reinforcements landing by helicopter and the landing of 330 commandos on a beachhead five miles north of the camp.

Schwarzkopf competes in hunting contest

WASHINGTON — Retired Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf wins some and loses some, like a pheasant hunt contest in which he placed sixth out of eight competitors, Schwarzkopf competed with the Rolling Stones' Mick Jagger in a Nebraska One-Box Pheasant Hunt on Saturday. Other celebrities participating in the hunt were Dave Barry of Esquire magazine, Washington Redskins defensive tackle, and Gordon Johncock, Indianapolis 500 champion. The hunt gets its name from the one box of shells allowed for each team.

Spoiled food sends 20 particiers to hospital

A spoiled dish of chicken gizzards and bananas sent up to 20 people from an anniversary party to the hospital, authorities said Sunday. The dish was brought Saturday by a guest who drove from Camden, N.J., for the 25th wedding anniversary party, said authorities. They apparently spoiled en route. Nine children and three adults were taken by ambulances to hospitals and up to eight others sought treatment on their own, said Karen Toukanen, an emergency medical technician for the Webster Ambulance Squad. They had diarrea, nausea and severe abdominal cramps. "None of my children got sick. Thank God they didn't eat what I ate," said Dave Tanas, 37, of Webster, who was among those treated. Hernandez said the dish is a traditional Puerto Rican favorite.

Gregarious, bright and energetic, Mara Fox was respected and admired by those who knew her as someone in love with everything in life.

Fox, 18, a Lyons Hall freshman, was killed early Saturday morning when she was hit by a passing car while walking back to campus from dinner at Mazer's Deli.

"She was an outgoing and wonderful woman who will be missed by all of us," said Lyons rector Sister Kathleen Beatty.

"Mara was the type of person that no matter how bad a day she was having, she always had a smile on her face and was concerned about how you were doing," said Stephanie Gallo.

"I knew her as someone in love and admired by those who knew her," said James Malloy.

"Mara was one of the best people I ever knew," said Jennifer Ramirez, one of Fox's roommates.

"She had so many talents," said Kathleen Policy, also one of Fox's roommates. "Mara was so outgoing and just nice to everybody."

"Mara was a great friend — in two months time, I can honestly say she was one of my closest ever," said Rebecca Hink, also a Lyons freshman. "She just loved Notre Dame," she said.

Fox was accompanied by Policy, Ramirez, Hink, and Dan Polcy of Poland, Ohio, when she was fatally struck by the car. They had talked with the driver, along with Beauty and Gallo, and will attend Fox's funeral at St. John Neuman Church in Reston, Virginia this evening.

A memorial mass will also be said at Sacred Heart Church tomorrow evening at 5:15 p.m. University President Edward Malloy is to preside and Father Thomas McCreany will deliver the homily.

In response to Fox's death, Lyonn Hall is in the initial stages of planning a Fun Run that would take place on the first study day and raise money for a scholarship fund, according to Malloy, a Lyons freshman council representative.

Fox is survived by her parents and two older sisters.

Due to the unprecedented influx of fans for the Florida State game, Notre Dame Security had its busiest weekend ever, according to Director of Security, R. J. Rakow.

Security problems arose before, during, and after the game. "We had more problems than we've ever had at any one game, but that was to be expected because we had more people than we've ever had at any one game," Rakow said.

"We had quite a few problems with counterfeit tickets and false identifications for student tickets," he said. "We reported about 75-100 instances of counterfeit tickets and 125-150 problems with identification credentials. Two men were arrested for the sale of counterfeit tickets and were positively identified by six victims.

"We had all kinds of problems in the R.V. parking lots from fights to destruction of property," he reported.

Some Florida State fans reported that people jumped on their motor homes and destroyed their flags in the R.V. parking lot around 2:30 Saturday morning. "We're still looking into those reports," said Rakow.

"We had a pretty unusual case where a two-year-old girl was abducted during the game by a man from New York," said Rakow. "South Bend police reportedly chased and apprehended the man and the girl was returned to her mother."

"As far as crowd behavior after the game, we were pretty pleased," said Rakow. "Although fans did storm the field following the victory, the crowd seemed more calm than at last year's Penn State game, according to Rakow. No one attempted to climb the goal posts which was a primary concern in avoiding injury, he said.

In addition, the South Bend Police confirmed that several Notre Dame students were given citations for underage drinking on Saturday night.

Two bars, Bridge McCreary's Filling Station and The Commons, as well as a house party on Notre Dame Avenue were reportedly raided by the Stop Underage Drinking and Sales (S.U.D.S.) task force.

Further information was not available at press time.

Increased budget cuts could hinder recovery

As budget cuts make their way through the federal government, some experts are concerned that the economy could slip into recession. Secretary of the Treasury Lloyd Bentsen recently suggested that budget cuts could cause the economy to slip back into recession. Bentsen was responding to reports that President Clinton's economic advisers are urging that additional budget savings be used for health care and other priority programs.

The treasury secretary, appearing on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," said the administration does not favor any significant economic reductions beyond the roughly $500 billion over five years negotiated earlier this year.

The administration would prefer that Congress find further savings in specific programs and then invest that money in high-priority areas such as health care, Bentsen said.

There has been "nice, sustained growth" in each quarter this year, Bentsen said, "and we don't want to slip back into recession.

Clinton's economic advisers reportedly have been unanimous in opposing additional deficit reductions, fearing it could endanger the modest economic recovery.

Earlier this month, Alice Rivlin, deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, told a House Budget Committee hearing that "substantial additional deficit reduction at this time could slow the growth of the economy at a crucial point in the business and policy cycles."

Clinton promised last summer to find additional spending cuts as he searched for support for his deficit reduction plan in the House and Senate. Now the administration wants lawmakers to funnel any savings into programs such as health care, instead of toward deficit reduction.

War crimes to be examined

By GEORGE GEDDA

WASHINGTON

The formation of a tribunal to examine war crimes in the former Yugoslavia is giving the president reason to rejoice. The tribunal will hold a ceremonial opening Wednesday in The Hague, Netherlands, with an eye to bringing to justice some of the most brutal war criminals of the Balkan conflict.

"We expect the tribunal to function as the world's first global war crimes tribunal," the tribunal's chief prosecutor, Alex Dehnert, said at a news conference designed to counter NAFTA foe Ross Perot's "silent protest of the agreement."

The tribunal would be a "forceful" tool that will be decided during the next presidential election, Dehnert said. The tribunal's opponents, including the Clinton administration, agreed to support the tribunal.

The tribunal will have the power to try war crimes committed in the former Yugoslavia. The tribunal's jurisdiction is limited to war crimes committed in the former Yugoslavia.

Lawrence Eagleburger identified Serbia President Slobodan Milosevic's and Serb leader Radovan Karadzic as war criminals last December.

Asked whether the Clinton administration agrees, McCurly said those judgments will be made by the prosecutor and the judges who will review the evidence.

The U.N. Security Council decided to create the tribunal last February in response to worldwide horror over mass killings, torture, rapes, and the systematic uprooting of entire populations known as "ethnic cleansing." The tribunal was established to investigate and prosecute war criminals.

Tens of thousands have died in Bosnia and Herzegovina since the more than one million displaced people fled the conflict in the winter of 1995. The tribunal is the only international court for war crimes committed in the former Yugoslavia.

Clinton invited over 15 of the judges to attend the White House for dinner Sunday night, hoping to press his case. About 10 representative of the AFT-CIO, a staunch NAFTA opponent, stood outside a White House gate as the lawmakers arriving, holding candles in silent protest of the agreement.

"As representatives of the working people, we want the legislators sitting down to eat with the president to remember that this will cost jobs," said Mark Anderson, trade director for the labor federation.

Earlier, two legislators announced their intentions at a news conference designed to counter NAFTA foe Ross Perot's "silent protest of the agreement." The two legislators, John Tannen, D-Tenn., and Maria Cantwell, D-Wash., said the trade issue appeared on the agenda for the next presidential election.

"We are locking in the present system in Mexico," he said.

Biden and House Majority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., have spearheaded opposition to NAFTA, an issue that has split the Democratic Party. Biden and House Majority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., have spearheaded opposition to NAFTA, an issue that has split the Democratic Party.

Pope bestows blessing despite injury

By MATT FOLEY

The incident was "another chance to unde my life, with brothers and sisters who are suffering," the pontiff said in his first public appearance since leaving a Rome hospital Friday. The 73-year-old pope appeared in good health during the 15-minute address from his quarters overlooking the square.

"From my heart, I want to express my gratitude to all who immediately provided the necessary medical attention," he said.

He did not mention the sexual assault accusations against a prominent U.S. cardinal. But Vatican Radio — an official voice of the Holy See — has called the charges "filthy, worthy of only disdain."

The commentary, broadcast Saturday, described Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago as "well-balanced and a man of prayer."

It also claimed that charges of abuse are often made against "American priests in order to collect compensation money."

Steven Cook, 34, charged in a $10 million lawsuit filed in Cincinnati on Friday that he was sexually abused during high school by a nun, who is archbishop of Cincinnati from 1972 to 1982. Bernardin, who now heads the Chicago archdiocese, has denied the allegations.

"You have to gain their trust," said Ms. Gwynn. "We may not always agree with the people on the team, but we trust them to be objective in their judgments."
Princess Diana prays for peace in N. Ireland

Enniskillyen service featured an intercession for peace from the Roman Catholic church as well as the Protestant Church of Ireland and Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

Diana later joined Protestant and Catholic children in a symbolic "Cry for Peace" in the troubled British-ruled province. Within sight of the location where the bomb exploded, the young princess planted daffodil bulbs and paid tribute to the lives lost in the IRA bombing.

For the first time, the princess was accompanied by two young children, a boy and a girl, during a visit to the Connor Memorial, which serves as a war memorial for the 11 people who were killed in the Enniskillen explosion in 1987. Princess Diana laid a wreath of red poppies on behalf of the Royal Family and the Irish Senate whose daughter, Princess Diana of Wales, is a member of the royal family.

Accidents

Kennedy were in the car's back seat and were thrown through the rear window when the crash occurred, according to the press release. Kennedy was released from Memorial Hospital after treatment for lacerations and contusions.

Another passenger in the car, Dulcet, 42, was released from St. Joseph's Hospital after treatment for consumption of alcohol and retinal injuries in this crash, according to the release.

Roemer

Roemer stated that it would be a shame if the service program turned into handouts or a way to turn the service into a competitive basis. He also stated that the funding will go to the states, but that the funds will be distributed in thirds. One-third will be distributed to the states, one-third to the federal government, and one-third to the nation at the memorial, which will host a Remembrance Day service.

A time of silence and reflection on the biblical texts of the Advent Sundays for preparation for the celebration of Christmas.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico

Puerto Ricans turned out heavily Sunday to vote their preference for their political future — continued for Puerto Rico's commonwealth status, independence or an attempt to become the 51st state.

Political status has been debated here almost since the moment U.S. troops captured this Caribbean island in 1898, ending four centuries of Spanish colonialism.

About 70 percent of the 2.3 million registered voters in the biggest U.S. territory were expected to cast their ballots. Long lines of voters formed in San Juan and in mountain towns despite several brief, intense showers. Polls opened at 8 a.m. (7 a.m. EST) and closed seven hours later. First results were expected Sunday night.

"Participation has been substantial," said Juan Melecio, director of the election commission.

Pollsters predicted a neck-and-neck race between statehood and commonwealth, with independence gaining no more than six percent of the vote.

The non-binding plebiscite has stirred close attention by District of Columbia residents, also in line for statehood, and the 22 million Hispanics in the continental United States, including 2.6 million Puerto Ricans there.

"I'm voting for statehood," security guard Ismael Martinez said Sunday outside a grocery store in suburban Guaynabo, en route to the polls. He said statehood offers more security for Puerto Ricans to retain their U.S. citizenship and more benefits for island residents.

Former statehood leader Victorio Munoz expressed confidence in a commonwealth victory, which would thwart statehood's momentum and maintain the current status for years.

Commonwealth supporters argue the present status is "the best of two worlds," allowing Puerto Ricans to have U.S. citizenship while maintaining a degree of autonomy.

Roemer also stated that the service program, Roemer said, will help. The book, often used in the Arts and Letters competition, is actually hurt by the program.

"It is like reading a fictional novel," said Roemer. "This program is defining what is important in this country, things like teaching and trying to help the poverty-stricken. We must make our voices heard.

Roemer recommended the book There Are No Children Here by Alex Kotlowitz to anyone who wishes to know who the program will help. The book, often used in the Arts and Letters Core Course, describes the daily life of children in a Chicago housing project.

"It is like reading a fictional novel. It is just unbelievable to witness the amount of problems we face in this country due to violence, lawlessness, and educational shortcomings," said Roemer.

"I hope that in the long run the program will promote both volunteerism and service as a profession," said Roemer.

"Many of these children are not able to go to school," said Roemer. "Many of these children are not able to say not just those served as well as those the foundation. We are looking for bipartisanship; we want Democratic and Republican governors to come working toward a common goal with someone with a $3,000 income," Roemer said.

Georgetown sets example

Both the federal government and the District of Columbia threatened to withhold funding for several Catholic educational facilities at Georgetown University after the university's recognition was given to gay and lesbian organization. Not until 1993 did the extra battles in the courts, was an out of court settlement obtained in a landmark case before the U.S. Supreme Court. The settlement included the university's consent to fund the organization.

Five years later, the group is one of the highest funded organizations on campus.

"The Office of Student Programs allows Pride to exist as a sort of the gay and lesbian student voice," said Father O. Boca, assistant vice-president for student affairs. "In other words, we have a forum for discussion." The Office of Student Programs is one of the few groups that does not have a specific policy toward gay and lesbian students. The group has grown from a small group of four or five members to a larger group of about 50 official members and an additional 50 unofficial members.

Notre Dame/Saint Mary's

The Catholic Church's stance on gay and lesbian issues is a strong influence on administration policies. The Church acknowledges the existence of homosexuality, but does not accept gay and lesbian individuals who commit homosexual acts.

GLNDSMC, the gay, lesbian, and bisexual support group for the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's community since 1972, is thereby not outlawed, but it also cannot receive the status of an official student organization.
Conservative James Wilson's discussion of gender (The observers, 1993) deserves some thought. "Nature has played a cruel trick on human kind. It has made males essential for reproduction but next to use nurturance," he states (Wilson, 1993). This, according to Wilson, goes double for male pastoralists (OT prophets?) vulnerable in neighbors rearing their livestock.

In that ecological niche, human males "were more militaristic, ... more adaptable to changing social expressions of aggression, and more inclined to respect central authority." The women in Wilson's tribes find these "men never affectionate" and not involved in rearing children.

Contemporary American society, strongly echoes this pastoral situation. Boys are substantially more competitive, participating from an early age in dominance hierarchies ranked by "toughness" and competitive success. Young women organize peer groups that are substantially more competitive, participating from an early age in dominance hierarchies ranked by "toughness" and competitive success. No Doubt. . . No. 1

Notre Dame fullback Ray Zellars uses a Florida State facemask to break his fall in the first half of Saturday's 31-24 win over the Seminoles.

Irish run over, hold on against Seminoles

Call them lucky or skillful, tough or determined, because Notre Dame is all those things. Now you can also call them No. 1.

After a week of hype and eager anticipation, the "Game of the Century" may have been just that, as Notre Dame pulled off the upset against previously unbeaten and top-ranked Florida State 31-24 at Notre Dame Stadium.

Defensive back Shawn Wooden batted down a Charlie Ward pass in the end-zone on the game's final play, sealing the win for the Irish and their first No. 1 ranking since 1990.

"I've got no excuses," said Seminole coach Bobby Bowden. "Notre Dame won the game. They deserved to win, they did the things to us I was afraid they would do to us."

All week long the Seminoles talked and boasted. But they game up short on the field. Meanwhile, the Irish offense methodically ran Florida State into a hole in the first half and then watched their defense stall the most explosive offensive

Charlie Ward runs away from the Irish defense. His feared running skills weren't a factor Saturday.

The Seminoles scored the Notre Dame mystique and the luck of the Irish. Maybe they're believers now.
"Game of Century II" appears likely

By JASON KELLY

Speculation began long before Shawn Wooden's last-second pass deflection juggled the polls. It began before Notre Dame and Florida State even took the field for Saturday's titanic tussle.

Would Notre Dame-Florida State become college football's version of Ali-Frazier?

The Seminoles think it should.

"There's no doubt about it," said Florida State wide receiver Matt Frier. "We played in the hardest place ever and we were one play away from winning. If people want to see the best, give us a chance.

Most people thought Saturday's game was the chance for both teams to prove who belonged in the driver's seat for the national championship.

Notre Dame is definitely behind the wheel, but Florida State is doing a lot of backseat driving.

"I think (Saturday) is what the public wants to see," Seminole linebacker Derrick Brooks said. "They want to see a game like this at a neutral site to see who is really the best team.

That neutral site would be the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., where Notre Dame won its most recent national title in 1989.

The Irish don't seem to mind the idea of a rematch.

"It would be a great ball game," Irish offensive tackle Todd Norman said. "If we want a shot at the national championship, we will have to play whoever they want us to play."

Unbeaten Nebraska looms as the only bump on the road to a rematch. Ranked No. 2 and Nebraska at No. 3.

"It would be a great ball game," he said after Saturday's loss to the Irish. "There's no doubt about it," said Irish head coach Lou Holtz. "We played in the hardest place ever and we were one play away from winning. If people want to see the best, give us a chance."

Saturday, but the Irish and the Seminoles control the Cornhusker's destiny.

Nebraska will host the Orange Bowl on January 1, most likely against Miami unless there are some serious changes in the two next weeks.

That raises a question of fairness, something that has never been a big part of college football's bowl system.

Doesn't Nebraska—still unbeaten against a schedule only slightly less difficult than Notre Dame and Florida State—deserve the No. 2 spot until someone proves differently on the field?

The coaches said yes. The writers said no.

The Seminoles also said no.

Notre Dame, which controls its own destiny as the No. 1 team, appears to be content with the idea of a rematch.

Nebraska probably isn't.

The Observer/Scott Menderhall
Brian Hamilton chases Seminole quarterback Charlie Ward, who was pressured often during Saturday’s loss to the Irish.

Lee Becton runs toward another 100-yard game, his fifth in a row, which ties the all-time Notre Dame record.

With its debut release, I Mother Earth digs deep into the well of originality

Monday, November 15, 1993

By THOMAS KANE

You spend days, weeks, even months trying to create an entertaining, inspiring, important piece of work. You struggle over the choice of a word, or the inflection of a comma, wondering if, in the end, all of this hard work will even matter, because no one will ever read what you have written.

Then your work is chosen to be read in a creative writing contest, and all of that drudgery becomes a labor of love. This is the situation the ten winners of the second annual Student Fiction and Poetry Reading find themselves in, as their poems and short stories have been chosen from over 20 entries as examples of the best in undergraduate and graduate writing.

Tonight’s reading in the auditorium of the Hesburgh Library will be the culmination of this fall’s contest. Professor Valerie Sayeres of the Notre Dame creative writing program said she was pleased with the quality and diversity of the entries in this year’s contest, which is open to undergraduates for the first time in history.

"Many different voices were heard," from Sayeres.

Metz has future plans of publishing the manuscript, which has been compiled over a year and a half, when he raises enough money.

"Writing is a way to get rid of stress in life," said Metz.

Senior Elizabeth Lennon was also excited about the opportunity to read her work, which was written in a creative writing class, in front of an audience.

"Sewing Lessons" was inspired by her study abroad in England, and is about an old homebound lady she met in London.

"The various influences of I Mother Earth and their propensity to expand their boundaries even further make "Dig" one of the most original rock albums of 1993."

I Mother Earth recently released their debut album "Dig."

"We want people to listen a little closer, pay a little more attention, and dig a little deeper," said Christian of the CD’s title.

The various influences of I Mother Earth and their propensity to expand their boundaries even further make "Dig" one of the most original rock albums of 1993, according to Fiona Sigismondi.

"Wow, it definitely woke me up," said Freshman Anne Marie De Luca, when he learned that two of the four poems he had submitted had been chosen for reading.

"Writing is something that I really like to do," said Lennon. "The classes give me time to write."

"I’m mostly excited to see what others have written and get inspired," said De Luca. "I also hope to get more feedback."

"So Gently We Go" has a relentless funky jazzy tempo meshed with some acidic, slippery rhythm, it sounds like a combination between Sade’s "Smooth Operator" and Bob Marley’s "One Good Thing." Edwin’s vocals shine as his versatility is enhanced through an uncanny resemblance to those of early David Lee Roth. "Psychedramic means to uncertain end/I’ll scare you blind with my confidence/As cool as Jesus and his twelve best friends,” reads the lyrics to "So Gently We Go."

"Not Quite Sonic." A tale of complete self-satisfaction and haughty complacency, "So Gently We Go" is the most pleasing song on the disc, albeit not the most experimental.

"Phasing" puts the rhythm; it sounds like a mosh pit to a lambada contest. Melanie, which leads into the amazing, vast array of subtle drum exotics, the song gives a very moveable effect.

"Basketball contains music that sounds as if it belongs in a jungle hunt horror movie, single and slow guitar picks come together and then explode into a waterfall of melody which switches again and spurs out bits of fast and furious funk.

Miami beats Philly, Shula becomes NFL’s winningest coach

By BARRY WILNER
Associated Press

Give him great quarterbacks and he will win. Give him great defense and he will still win.

Don Shula became the winingest coach in the history of the National Football League Sunday, passing George Halas who had guided the Miami Dolphins over the Philadelphia Eagles 19-14. Shula’s 325th victory came on the strength of a big-play defense—Jeff Gross had three of four sacks—and Pete Sinayovich’s second-quarter goal. Of the goals, 46 and 45 yards. It also came with a backup at the quarterback spot after running back to quarterback with the Baltimore Colts for the past eight seasons, Gary Cuozzo was injured. Shula was the coach.

Pederson, a former practice squad player, replaced Scott Mitchell—who had taken over for injured Dan Marino—when Mitchell suffered an early injury in the second half. A former backup in the World League, Pederson had two families, one costing Miami an extra point. But, just like Mattseo and all the backup QBs for Shula, he didn’t hurt the job do.

"Doug did a job of a heck," Shula said. "He kept his cool and he had his plays. He didn’t play any real football to speak of, but he got the job done."

The Dolphins (7-2) carried Shula, 63, off on their shoulders, but let him stay dry this time. After he tied Halas two weeks ago, he received a dinkning. But he said that for No. 324, "At my age, I can’t take much more ice cold shoulders."

In other games Sunday, it was Buffalo 13, New York 10; Seattle 20, Cleveland 5; Kansas City 31, the Los Angeles Raiders 20; St. Louis 21, the Los Angeles Rams 0; Minnesota 26, Denver 23; 29-17, San Jose 29, New Jersey 31; 17, San Antonio 12; 17, Atlanta 11; 8, New England 7; 21, Arizona 14.

Hey folks, don’t forget about us. That must be how Nebraska, Auburn and West Virginia felt Sunday. Despite perfect records, all three need lots of help to have any shot at winning the national championship.

While talk centers around a possible New Year’s Day rematch between No. 1 Notre Dame and No. 2 Florida State—if both win the rest of their regular-season games—the Cornhuskers, Tigers and Mountaineers must be envious. All three could finish with spotless marks and not even get considered for the top spot.

Nebraska earned its third straight trip to the Orange Bowl with a 49-17 victory over Iowa State. The Big Eight champs moved from No. 4 to No. 3 in the poll, leapfrogging once-beaten Miami, which took Rutgers 31-17. But if the Cornhuskers (10-0, with No. 15 Oklahoma to go) don’t move up at least one more spot, they won’t be guaranteed a shot at the national title.

“I really have tried not to look too far down the way,” coach Tom Osborne said. “The polls, to me, have almost become a humorous thing.”

All No. 6 Auburn can do is defeat No. 11 Alabama next week, then go home and hope things fall its way. Auburn, which beat Georgia 42-28 on Saturday, moved to 10-0 for the first time since 1957, when the Tigers won the national title even though they were on probation. They’re on probation again this year.

“If we beat Alabama, we’re the best team in the SEC, and maybe the best team in the nation,” Tigers defensive end Randy Hart said. “I’m foaming at the mouth for ‘Bama.’

Ninth-ranked West Virginia won its ninth straight game, a 49-7 romp over Temple. The Mountaineers play Miami for the Big East lead on Saturday, then finish at Boston College.

“We’ve been focused and injury free all year,” receiver Ed Hill said. “And the guys are just real hungry right now.”

That hunger might not be satisfied if the Mountaineers—like the Cornhuskers and Tigers—don’t get some help.

Notre Dame’s 31-24 victory over Florida State, which caused the teams to flip-flop positions atop the poll, might have shut everyone else out from title consideration.

Elsewhere Saturday, it was No. 5 Ohio State over No. 21 Indiana 23-17; Florida over South Carolina 37-26; Arizona State over No. 16 UCLA 9-3; No. 10 Texas A&M over Louisville 42-7; No. 11 Texas A&M over Oklahoma State 33-0; No. 12 Virginia over No. 13 North Carolina 23-14; No. 20 Kansas State over No. 16 UCLA 9-3; No. 10 Penn State over Illinois 31-21; and No. 19 Arizona losing to California 24-14.

On most teams, the right mix of experience and talent leads to success. The Notre Dame hockey team is beginning to find that proper combination. They have begun to find success as well.

This weekend, the Irish traveled to Ohio for two CCHA games. On Friday night, Notre Dame defeated Ohio State in overtime by a 3-2 score. They then traveled to Cincinnati to face Miami (Oh). Although the Irish fell 3-1, the team turned in another solid performance. Their record now stands at 3-3-1 overall, 2-3-1 in conference.

"Our goal is to be in position to win games. We were both nights and we were able to capitalize on Friday. Overall, I'm pleased (with the weekend)," said coach Ric Schafer.

On Friday night, the Irish turned in another strong defensive performance and scored when they had to in the overtime victory.

It looked as if ND was going to drop the opening game of the weekend until sophomore Jamie Ling set up senior captain Matt Osiecki for the tying goal with two minutes remaining. The goal sparked the team in the overtime, as they carried their third one-goal win of the season.

On Saturday night, the Irish once again finished the game strong, as they scored late to lead the game. Miami goalie Richard Shulmistra stopped all 13 shots he faced in the first period. Ling and Osborne both had solid chances to tie the game, but an empty-net goal ended ND's hope of a second straight come-back win.

Like Friday's game, the Irish started strong, as they forced Miami into some early miscues, but could not jump into the lead. Miami goalie Bob Marshall made a tough save to deny Ling's attempt to tie the game with 10:10 remaining. Morshead scored, assisted by the duo of Ling and Osiecki, to cut the Redskin lead to one. But it wasn't enough.

Center Blasi tallied an empty-net goal with 10 seconds remaining to provide the final 3-1 margin. "The Bounces weren't there," according to Nelson. "It easily could have gone the other way."

Schafer was also not all that disappointed with his team's effort. "We played well, we just failed to score," said Schafer.

Underclassmen continued to lead the team in scoring. They have scored 25 of the team's 34 goals this season. Underclassmen continued to lead the team in scoring. They have scored 25 of the team's 34 goals this season.

"I'm pleased with what we are doing," Schafer said.

Swimmers struggle against Florida State

By KELLY CORNELIS

Unlike the Notre Dame football team this weekend, the Irish swim teams couldn't over power Florida State. However, despite the lack of experience, both teams showed improvement in their individual times.

Several Notre Dame women swam personal bests, including junior Amy Bethem, who placed third in the 200 breaststroke, and Michelle Lower, who finished third in the 500 free. Lower improved her time in that event by over four seconds, clocking in at 5:13.88. Junior Jeni Dahl placed first in the 200 free, with a time of 1:54.82, two seconds ahead of the rest of the pack. In addition, Dahl anchored the 400 freestyle relay which finished first. Freshman Erin Brooks continued to dominate in the 200 backstroke, winning that event in 2:06.29. Jesslyn Peterson also swam successfully, capturing both the 100 free and the 200 individual medley.

The Seminole women countered the Irish attack by winning the 400 medley relay, and conquering both diving events. They also finished first and second in several of the events, which helped them rack up points. The final score was close, 137-106 in favor of FSU. We underestimated their abilities coming in," stated junior Lorrei Horenkamp. "They had quite a few foreign girls who participate on our Olympic teams, so considering how much we get to practice, I thought we did a good job competing with them.

The men also lost a close meet, 132-98.5. The Irish swam well, but only placed first in two events, excluding diving. Those first-place finishers were Dave Natale in the 50 free and By Bevillie in the 200 fly. However, although the Notre Dame men improved their times considerably, they were not quite fast enough to catch the Seminoles. "When you look at the times from week to week, they get progressively faster," said coach Tim Welsh. "To Florida State's credit they improved a great deal from the week before, but that doesn't mean we did a bad job. Some of our lead swimmers did an outstanding job, and all I see is steady improvement. Hopefully both teams will continue moving in the right direction as the season continues."

Texas A&M football pleads innocent to NCAA sanctions

By DOUG TUCKER
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. Texas A&M officials spent Sunday morning with the NCAA, explaining what they knew about football players getting paid for work that wasn't done, and when they knew it.

The meeting with the committee on infractions lasted 4 1/2 hours, shorter than most enforcement proceedings.

"It was a very good, fair hearing," Texas A&M interim chancellor E. Dean Gage said. "Cash payoffs to athletes, even when disguised in phoniness employment scams, are considered major violations and could result in the fourth football penalty in the checkered NCAA history of the Aggies, ranked No. 10 in The Associated Press poll."

In a 1,277-page response filed prior to the meeting, however, Texas A&M said it was innocent of violations and should not be held accountable for the nine players involved.

"We are very appreciative that the NCAA committee worked with us to be able to be heard at this November hearing," said Gage. "We believe the committee was very fair and that they gave us an opportunity to present our case."

"At this point, it would be improper for us to make any further comment," All other A&M officials, including football coach R.C. Slocum, declined comment. NCAA officials never comment on pending cases. David Berst, assistant executive director for enforcement, said the infractions committee could issue its decision within four to five weeks. The main issue is institutional control. Texas A&M has argued it should not be held accountable for the violations of boosters and players who acted on their own while hiding their activities from school officials. "I think we presented what the issues were. We had common agreement on those," Gage said.

Included in the Texas A&M delegation were athletic director Wally Groff, former athletic director John David Crow, faculty representative Tom Aadnr, and Slocum. Enforcement hearings frequently take a full day or more. "There were essentially two allegations," said Michael Glazier, a former NCAA enforcement representative hired by Texas A&M. "We knew we would finish early."

In its official response, which was made available to reporters for $299.40, the school said it found that between January 1990 and August 1992, the nine athletes earned a total of $27,800. Of that, $17,853 was unearned, the report said. "Individual student-athletes learned through personal experience that they could abuse a job opportunity," the report said. "With few exceptions, the student-athletes kept the secret to themselves."
Irish volleyball cruises past LaSalle and Pittsburgh

The No. 18 Notre Dame volleyball team showed why it is the class of the Midwest region this weekend, completing its sweep of the Midwestern Collegiate Conference with a 15-6, 15-5, 15-4 victory over LaSalle, and then pounding Big East powerhouse Pittsburgh 15-2, 15-1, 15-9.

Since their difficult trip to Arizona three weeks ago, in which Notre Dame dropped two of three, the Irish have responded in dominating fashion, dropping only one game while winning their next six matches.

Having secured the number one seed for the MCC conference tournament, the Irish looked to perpetuate their unbeaten conference streak when travelling to LaSalle last Friday night and found little opposition from an Explorer squad that has yet to take a conference game all season.

Notre Dame was never challenged in the match, using various different player combinations leading to even distribution among the Irish attack.

Christy Peters led the offense with nine kills despite playing only two games in the match. Freshman middle blocker Jen Briggs also had her most productive match of the season, hitting for seven kills and a .417 percentage in relief of senior Molly Stark, who played sparingly because she is still recovering from an ankle injury.

The Irish finished their regular season conference record at 5-0, continuing Notre Dame's unbeaten streak against the MCC to 24 wins, spanning the entire three year period that Debbie Brown has been at the Irish helm.

Notre Dame continued its winning ways by blasting Pitt Sunday afternoon, cruising to an easy victory that saw the Irish hit for their best percent-age of the year at .447.

The Panthers, considered a strong challenge to Notre Dame's No. 1 regional ranking, proved to be no match for the overpowering Irish hitters, as the Notre Dame attack was again spread around to include every option.

Peters, as she has been all season, was the focus, leading the team with 15 kills on 29 attempts and only two errors. However, she had a strong supporting cast, as junior outside hitter Nicole Coates supplied eight kills, while Stark showed that she is recovering well from her injury by notching eight of her own.

What was perhaps most impressive about the Irish win was the quality depth the team showed, even under adverse circumstances. Notre Dame was dealt a severe blow as senior middle blocker Julie Harris was lost because of a broken finger, but freshman middle blocker Laura Beckmeyer stepped in without a pause and proceeded to hit for eight kills and no errors, career highs.

The Irish will have another week off to get healthy before the MCC tournament, beginning next Saturday. Notre Dame will open against the winner of the Xavier-Evansville match and are heavy favorites to capture their third straight title.

Senior Molly Stark recovered from an ankle injury to pace the Irish in their sweep of LaSalle and Pittsburgh this weekend.
Wisconsin came in third with 123 points. No. 3 Michigan capped off the district meet, led the Irish with 85 points on Saturday to reach their ultimate goal of clinching an automatic bid for the NCAA Cross Country Championships.

The young team overcame setbacks in the beginning of the year to reach their ultimate goal of clinching an automatic NCAA bid by finishing second in the Regional District IV Meet in Bloomsburg, in. Juniors Sarah Riley and Krisi Kramer, who were the only runners who had experience in the district meet, led the Irish in the muddy and slippery conditions.

The 17th-ranked Irish finished with 78 points on Saturday, with No. 3 Michigan capturing the title with 40 points. Wisconsin came in third with 123 points.

Riley came finished first for the Irish, coming in fourth overall with a time of 18:10.4. "I thought she ran super," said Irish coach Tim Connelly. "I knew for a long time she was a great athlete. The three kids that beat her all ran in the top 15 (at the NCAA's) and I think she can be right there with them."

"Her goal was to be in the top five so I was pretty happy with that," said Riley. Kramer placed eighth in 18:30.7 and freshman Emily Hood finished ninth in 18:32.1. Juniors Maureen Kelly finished 26th and sophomore Amy Siegel came in 40th. The Irish's finish is more amazing considering the fact that junior Emily Husted, who is one of the Irish's top runners, was forced to drop back in the pack as a result of an asthma attack.

"We were pretty relaxed going into the meet. We weren't feeling to be very focused," said Kramer. "We were pretty confident but we couldn't rest on anything we did in the past. We had no ambition."

The team waited anxiously at the finish line to see if they accomplished what no other women's cross country team had done at Notre Dame.

"When we finished no one really knew if we made it. Wisconsin was really close to us then," Kramer said. "We were ecstatic. It's something we worked really hard for all year and last year we just missed qualifying. We had a lot of setbacks all season because of everything we've been through."

The Notre Dame football team wasn't the only Irish team to lay stake to the No. 1 ranking this Saturday afternoon.

Like their gridiron counterparts, the Notre Dame men's cross country team came out on top this weekend, finishing first overall at the NCAA District IV Championships in Bloomington, in.

Despite these drawbacks, the team came together and accomplished what they set out to do at the start of the year, run at the NCAA's. "That's been our goal all year," said Connelly. "We had some problems in the beginning of the year with injuries and sickness. They kept their focus and knew they had to perform well." The NCAA's will be held next Monday at Lehigh University in Pennsylvania.

"We were ecstatic. It's something we worked really hard for all year and last year we just missed qualifying. We had a lot of setbacks all season because of everything we've been through."

The fact that the next four runners after McWilliams finished in the top 20 in two separate, extremely tight groupings exemplifies the team-oriented philosophy of the Irish, while at the same time showcasing their tremendous ability.

Coach Joe Plane, who often comes across like Lou Holtz in his understated evaluations, was pleased at the team's success this weekend.

"The guys went out and ran where they were supposed to be at," Plane said. "The last few races, they've won out a little pedestrian. We talked about getting out a little more aggressively and we did."

Miami may have run a terrific race, but the Irish clearly were the dominant team on Saturday, and Junior Nate Ruder thinks he knows why.

"The team seems really close all of the sudden," noted Ruder. "We all get along well, and this relaxed environment allows us all to contribute to the team."

The Irish will be looking to improve on last year's sixth-place finish at the NCAA's when they travel to Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, site of this year's Championships.

Irish women shocked by George Mason

Tears filled the eyes of Notre Dame's women soccer players after their magical season of unprecedented success came to an abrupt and stunning close.

The No. 3 Irish were defeated 2-1 Saturday afternoon by 10th-ranked George Mason in the first round of the NCAA tournament in what was perhaps the most monumental upset in women's collegiate soccer this year.

"I think 'shocked' is a good word," Irish head coach Chris Petrucelli said in describing his reaction to the loss. "It's the most disappointing loss I've been involved with in my entire career."

"I'm just kind of in shock right now," said Notre Dame tri-captain Stephanie Porter. "It's like a dream almost, like it didn't really happen. It's just so hard to believe that we lost, and that we lost to that team."

The heavily-favored Irish entered the tournament with a 19-2 record and a six-game winning streak. Although George Mason was very strong for a fourth-seeded team, it had struggled this season against teams which the Irish defeated handily.

Inexperience in tournament play proved to be a significant factor in the squad's performance early in the contest. Both Patriot goals came within the first 30 minutes of the match.

"We were tentative early in the game," Petrucelli said. "After the first 30 minutes we had the game under control and over the next 60 minutes dominated the game and didn't lose any of our goals."

Junior Tammy Pearman gave the Patriots a 1-0 advantage only five minutes into the contest when she knocked in the rebound of a header from teammate Jenn Gross who had originally been deflected by Irish goalkeeper Jen Renola.

Notre Dame junior Jodi Hartwig tied it up at 26:16 when she received a crossing pass from sophomore Rosella Guerrero and tapped it into an open net.

Patriot keeper Skye Eddy had lunged out of the goal in an attempt to intercept the pass.

Eddy, who is the leading goalkeeper in the Central Region, proved to be the difference in the game. Her aggressive style of play worked to George Mason's advantage by本土 scoring opportunities by batting away several Notre Dame crossing passes.

"She won the game for them," Renola said, "but she just as easily could have lost the game for them. She overcame a lot.

Hartwig's goal was the only time the Irish capitalized on Eddy's mistakes.

The Patriots tallied again just over five minutes after Hartwig evened the score. Guerrero, who was named the Colonial Athletic Association Rookie of the Year, headed the game-winning goal past Renola and into the corner of the net to give George Mason a 2-1 lead.

"Their attack was so hawkish that we didn't know how to defend it," said Porter.

The Irish dominated the end of the first half and the entire second half, but were unable to score.

"It was one of those days when the ball just wouldn't go in the net," said Porter.

"It's unfortunate that our season had to end this way," she added, "but it doesn't end it's not indicative of the season as a whole."

Despite an early goal and the motivation of entering a game against an evenly-matched team as an underdog, the No. 20 Notre Dame men's soccer team still fell to No. 13 Wisconsin by a 3-1 count in a NCAA first round match yesterday.

"I thought we played very well, one of our best games of the year," said Badger head coach Mike Berticelli following the game.

"We made our own luck. It puts you in a good position and we intend to keep doing that."

The loss ended not only the Irish's season but also their bid to reach a national championship. This was Notre Dame's first appearance in the tournament since 1988, when they lost to Southern Methodist in the first round.

The Irish were able to take an early lead over the Badgers at the 7:31 mark in the first half when sophomore Bill Lanza scored the Irish's lone goal in 1993 NCAA men's soccer tourney. The Irish controlled the majority of the second half, but could not match the game winner until the 61.00 mark.

Midfielder Shea Huston hit a cross into the penalty box at 51:37. Irish defender Matt Palmer, a South Bend native and three-year starter, played his final game in a Notre Dame uniform yesterday.

With the victory, the Badgers recorded nine-shots and six corner kicks to only six and three for Notre Dame. Badger head coach Mike Berticelli following the game.

"They did what they needed to do to exploit opportunities," said Notre Dame head coach Mike Petrucelli following the game.
