Deadline passes without airstrikes

By DAVE TYLER

The recent developments in the Bosnian fighting do not necessarily mean the end of the fighting that has seen that nation apart, but for the first time in months, there are reasons to be optimistic. As an analyzing element, they may be able to help the Serbian cause provide a superior education to their children, and look at a whole range of ways to do what we do best. A new player has been emerging in the Bosnian war, a new player that has been known as the West has been organizing itself to put pressure on the Serbs. Now they hate this war, and the Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serbs are becoming increasingly independent of their allies in the Serbs. The Bosnian Serb
Poll shows support for Church

A large majority of Roman Catholic priests and nuns in this country agree with the church's opposition to abortion and homosexual behavior and would renew their vows, according to a poll published Sunday.

But about half of those surveyed disapproved Vatican teachings on priest celibacy and its opposition to birth control and the ordination of women, the Los Angeles Times poll found.

Eighty-seven percent of priests and 88 percent of nuns surveyed said they would renew their vows. While 59 percent of priests said the church should ordain married priests, only 15 percent said they would marry if they could.

Forty-four percent of priests and 57 percent of nuns favor ordaining women, although 89 percent of priests said they wouldn't seek ordination themselves.

Pope John Paul II's performance garnered approval from 74 percent of priests and 70 percent of nuns in the poll.

Twenty-one percent of priests and 79 percent of nuns considered abortion always or often a sin, and 80 percent of priests and 72 percent of nuns said they would oppose church-sanctioned marriages between homosexuals.

Forty-four percent of priests and nuns said birth control is seldom or never a sin.

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Pavarotti gives recital at the Met

NEW YORK

Tenor Luciano Pavarotti returned to the Metropolitan Opera, where he has sung more often than on any other stage, for a beautiful recital on Sunday. With the excellent pianist and accompanist Leone Maggiera, Pavarotti went from old Italian art songs to arias to neoclassical songs for encores. Pavarotti is a superstar, but he is foremost an artist. His tones are beautiful, open and warm, the warmth seeming to radiate from inside the sound. He also shapes the music with artistry, conveying the emotion in the words. Some singers begin to lose top notes or the middle voice becomes scratchy, because a singer must move through the middle voice on the way to high and low notes. Pavarotti has neither of those problems. He was in excellent voice on Sunday, sounding rested and unabashed all through his range. For his second song, Pavarotti chose an aria from "Orfeo and Euridice." Several in the audience called out — often in Italian — for famous arias from "Turandot," an aria to which Pavarotti brings special vocal beauty.

Fumes from body fell doctor, nurse

RIVERSIDE, Calif.

Mysterious fumes apparently coming from a patient’s body knocked out a doctor and a nurse and forced a hospital to close its emergency room, authorities said Sunday. "It appears to be something coming from the body itself," Wensfeldt said. "We are trying to get back to the wall's thickness. That means the outer wall of the room was still hot for an hour.

Michael Jackson fans who paid up to $1,000 a ticket for five minutes when their hero appeared, but bowed when he refused to perform "I want you back" on their request," said a disappointed Carla Davenport of Pacifica, Calif., one of the 12,000 fans who attended Saturday night's "Jackson Family Night." "We still believe he's going to perform, but just disappointed he didn't perform," she said. Luckily, doctors were on hand when the 31-year-old female patient, whose name was not released, had been undergoing home chemotherapy treatment for cancer. The patient's condition was in cardiac arrest Saturday night at Riverside General Hospital, the doctor and nurse drew a blood sample, noticed white crystals in the blood and smelled an odor like ammonia. Then they passed out, said Dr. Humberto Ochoa, an attending physician.
By KATIE MURPHY
News Writer

Students began their campaign for student senate positions and class offices at 12:01 a.m. according to Ryan Roholt, election co-commissioner. Listed alphabetically in each district, the following students are running for student senate positions.

District one, or South Quad, candidates: Brian Foley of Fisher and junior Brian McCarty of Alumni.

District two, or God Quad. Amy Jagodziński, a freshman in WLSA and current member of District two, or God Quad.

In District three, or North Quad, the tickets are freshman Shannon Leonard of Farley and Zahm junior Sean Sullivan. Candidates for District four, or Med Quad, are Tom Mattzke, a freshman in Grace and Sara Skalicky, a Knot junior.

Seven tickets are running for off-campus co-presidents this year. The co-presidents sit on Hall Presidents’ Council and Student Senate. The candidates are Dana Anderson and Brian Dreszy, Chad Clay and Brian Harron, Molly Donius and Michael McVey, Brian Kilgore, Jordan Mappo and Jordan Mappo, John Nazar and Sean Sostak, and Timothy O’Driscoll and Patrick Parry.

For sophomore class office, Banika Aboja of Badin is running for president with Ted Mahan of Soin, vice-president, Jillian Pagliocca of Knot, secretary, and Mike Burgdorf of Staftford, treasurer.

Nicole Carlstrom of Walsh is campaigning for president with Lisa Limhardh of Walsh, vice-president, Ryan Furtimck of Grace, secretary, and Eric Strong of Grace, treasurer.

John Kenty of Fisher is running for president with Brian Klein of Fisher, vice-president, Andrea Smith of Siegfried, secretary, and Deborah Hellmuth of Posteria Fast, treasurer.

Matt Pollack of Cavanaugh is campaigning for president with Jeremy Murtough of Cavanaugh, vice-president, Jerry Sparul of Cavanaugh, secretary, and Marni Ryan of Panborn, treasurer.

Bob Ryan of Morrissey is running for president with Janine Van Lancker of Siegfried, vice-president, Katie Flynn of Farley, secretary, and Pat Abell of Morrissey, treasurer.

For junior class office, George Fisher of Fisher is running for president with Matt Schnitter of Morrissey, vice-president, Missy Deckard of Posteria Fast, secretary, and Dominic Amoruso of Zahm, treasurer.

John Giovacchino of Planner is campaigning for president with Jason Laurive of Cavanaugh, vice-president, Melanie Sioul of Pangborn, secretary, and Nicole Boho of Siegfried, treasurer.

Running unopposed for senior class office, Joe Bergan of Dillon is campaigning for the president with Colleen Campbell of Farley, vice-president, Pat Grone of Grace, secretary, and Jane Daly of Lyons, treasurer. Elections will be held this Monday, Feb. 28, in the dorms between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. and again between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. Off-campus students may vote at the LaFortune Information Desk at the same times. If necessary, runoff elections will be held on Wednesday, March 2.

---

LaFortune hours to extend until 3 a.m.

By KATIE MURPHY
News Writer

Student government has arranged to extend the hours of the first floor of LaFortune until 3 a.m. for the rest of the school year, according to Nikki Wellmann, student body vice-president.

"It's a lot of space and half of it can be used at night and half can be study-oriented," said Wellmann.

Students need late-night space to study together, according to Wellmann, and the extension of hours helps to satisfy this need. Last semester student government organized a trial period of extended hours in LaFortune, but it was not successful because students "didn't have much to do yet." With only two weeks left before spring midterms, student government anticipates a greater turnout.

Movies provided by Notre Dame Video will be shown on the TV in the Huddle each night at 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. During the first week of the extended hours, free popcorn will be served. The "Fast Break" food store will also remain open. A 24-hour space committee from student government and Student Union Board discussed the extension with Dave Poniatowski, director of food services. Mary Edginton, assistant director of facilities, and Father George Rozum, rector of Alumni

---

This week in The Observer...

Look for the Sesquicentennial series of articles examining issues facing the Saint Mary's community.

---

Huddle open until 3 a.m.

Beginning Monday, February 21, the first floor of LaFortune will be open until 3:00 a.m. Movies will be shown every night in the Huddle at 11:00 p.m. and 1:00 a.m. courtesy of ND Video, and The "Fast Break" food store will remain open until 3:00 a.m.

During the week of February 21, free popcorn will be distributed, and students who utilize the Huddle will have a chance to win tickets to see Gin Blossom.

This project is the first step in an effort to create more 24-hour space on campus. It is due to a joint effort by Student Government and University Food Services. Please take advantage of it!

---

AIDS quilt comes to ND

The AIDS Quilt will be on display in Stepan Center from Friday, February 25 until Sunday, February 27. The AIDS Quilt consists of hundreds of panels created by families and friends of AIDS victims. Each panel celebrates the life of a loved one by depicting the unique qualities and memories of an AIDS victim. Be sure to stop by and take a look; the Quilt is a special tribute to those who suffer from AIDS.

---

Christmas in April

Signups this week...

Signups for Christmas in April will be held this week. Christmas in April is a daylong service project in which hundreds of volunteers from Notre Dame and South Bend repair and refurbish houses in the community. Jobs range from painting to roofing to building porches, and professional builders join with volunteers to fix up houses in disrepair.

The event will take place on Saturday, April 16. Signups will be held on Tuesday, February 22 and Wednesday, February 23 from 11-2 and 4-8 in the Library Concour. Groups of up to eight people can sign up together and will be assigned to the same house. Spaces are limited, so sign up early. Improving the living conditions of a less fortunate neighbor brings a great sense of satisfaction!!!

---

LaFortune calendar

Wednesday, February 23:

11-2 and 4-8, Library Concour.

Friday, February 25 to Sunday, February 27:

AIDS Quilt display on Stepate Center

---

Looking ahead

Wednesday, Feb. 23:

Iceberg Debates Finals. 7:00 p.m. LaFortune Ballroom.

Friday, February 25 to Sunday, February 27:

Tuesday, February 22 and Wednesday, February 23: Signups for Christmas in April. 11-2 and 4-8. Library Concour.

---

Wednesday, February 28:

Class officer and senator elections.

---

Thursday, February 28:

Class officer and senator elections.

---

Friday, February 28:

Class officer and senator elections.
Yugo continued from page 1

all and we will live in a united Serb state," said Goran

Petkovic, a soldier from Serbia.

"So far, both sides have completed almost wholly with what we've asked them to do" despite problems with weather and breakdowns, he said.

He added he was "reasonably optimistic we will come to a peaceful end to this terrible war in Sarajevo.

As of 7 p.m. U.N. monitors had visited 32 of 41 Serb gun sites identified, said Brig. Gen.

Andre Souroubas, U.N. commander for Sarajevo. The Serbs had pulled out of 23, and U.N.

monitors had already taken control of five more and were in the process of taking control of another four.

The Serbs had regrouped 225

wepons at eight locations under U.N. control and the Bosnian army had turned over 43 wepons, said souroubas.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan

Karadzic had said the Serbs

would meet the NATO deadline.

More than half their weapons

have been withdrawn, he told

CNN Sunday, adding his forces

did not plan to use those guns

in other parts of Bosnia, where there is still fighting.

NATO and the United Nations faced the choice between accepting Bosnian Serb pledges not to use the remaining guns

or bombing them and risking

both an escalating war in the Balkans and frosty relations with Moscow and Turkey.

"A lasting peace, according to

McAdams, will only come when the big powers, the United States, England, France, Germany decide that a secure

Balkan region is in the best interest of the world. While the United States may be able to supply food to people under siege, only those countries can supply the necessary military and financial resources to bring the fighting to an end and help expenditure stability.

For now, though a glimmer of hope is all that the people of the former Yugoslavia and the world have to go on.

"The first step has been taken," said a senior official.

"The second step isn't going to be so easy. A semi-state of peace in Sarajevo can only be envisaged as a thaw in South Bend in February," he said.

However, there is only Sarajevo.

The artillery may be moved and put to use elsewhere. The coming days and weeks will reveal much, but for the first time in a long time, there's reason to hopeful.

The Clinton administration insisted all day that NATO would hold to the open-ended ultimatum, subjecting Serbs to air strikes after 7 p.m. EST if they did not withdraw their heavy weapons from around Sarajevo or put them under control of the United Nations.

"The deadline will stand," Clinton said after church.

But later Sunday, administration officials signaled that strikes were not likely, saying poor weather over Sarajevo made it difficult to determine

Serbian compliance.

Administration officials said it would be at least Monday before an assessment could be made and any bombing orders

could be given.

Clinton and Defense Secretary William Perry were quoted by Russian officials well before the deadline as saying no immediate air strikes were necessary. The White House denied that a decision had been made that soon — or that Clinton had given any such explicit assurances to Russian President Boris Yeltsin during a telephone call placed by Yeltsin.

A senior administration official, speaking to reporters at the White House, said the Serbs

produced "a dramatic increase" Sunday in the number of weapons turning in with the ultimatum. But the official said some sites — "less than 10" —

remained unsecured by the UN

for several reasons, including poor weather.

The weapons should be in control of the UN by the end of the day Monday, said the senior official.

Accused of making hollow threats against the Serbs before, Clinton stressed his willingness to carry out the NATO threat. "What happens after 7 o'clock tonight will be determined by the facts on the ground," he said early in the day.

Noting that NATO can carry out its threat any time after the deadline, the senior administration official said of the ultimatum, "This is not a one-time deal.

Officials expressed hope that the situation would be eased at least until Tuesday, when diplomats with the U.S., Russia, France, Britain and Germany will meet in Bonn to try to end the fighting through negotiations.

Clinton and Yeltsin talked by telephone for 20 minutes Sunday afternoon and Clinton expressed his gratitude for Yeltsin's efforts to get the Serbs to heed the ultimatum, the White House official said.

Clinton telephoned NATO secretary general Manfred Wo­

rner twice and French President Francois Mitterrand, official said.

Yeltsin's spokesman said the Russian leader was told by

Clinton that there was no immediate need for NATO air strikes. The White House said

Clinton never made that promise.

Clinton and Yeltsin talked by telephone after meeting NATO defense ministers at an Italian air base, said the Serb's were "seriously attempting to comply" with the deadline, although they still had a long way to go, defense officials said.

Clinton and Yeltsin's spokesmen said the U.N. troops had reportedly been able to travel throughout the 12.4-mile exclusion zone demanded by NATO around Sarajevo and thus might be able to put all the remaining guns under their control.

Farmers take precautions to avert rare hantavirus

Associated Press

CLAYTON, Ind. (AP) - Bob Sharer has spent 35 years farming just outside this Hendricks County town without thinking twice about mice.

"You'll go in there and there'll be lots of mouse droppings. I used to just brush 'em away," said Sharer, waving his arm at his large white farmhouse. "But now I'll disinfect first!"

Not anymore. Sharer started worrying about mice in January after his neighbor John Mitchell died of a rare viral disease. Now he even wears a respirator when cleaning.

Mice, in particular deer mice, carry a newly-discovered strain of hantavirus. They shed the virus in urine and saliva. When droppings, nests and other contaminated areas are disturbed, the virus can be inhaled.

The tiny organisms have sick­ened at least 59 people in the United States since last spring, when an outbreak of respirato­ry distress cases, many of them fatal, struck the Southwest.

Hantavirus pulmonary syn­drome begins much like the flu. But now I'll disinfect first!

Although deer mice are found in most of the country, until re­cently all confirmed cases of the disease had been west of the Mississippi River. Mitchell and a case in Florida were the first exceptions.

Publicity and rumors about the hantavirus case had died down some until about a week ago in Hendricks County. Then the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported the virus had been found in four of 26 rodents trapped near Mitchell's Clayton home.

Public officials warn that those tests demand precau­tions, not panic.

"It boils down to common sense. In the past we’ve been cavalier about rodents. We need to look at all rodents as infectious," said Mary Lou Fleischer, epidemiologist at the Indiana Department of Health.

No more rodent testing will be done, Fleischer said.

The CDC has been advised that if the virus has been found in one location in the state, it should be presumed present everywhere in Indiana, she said.

"There are reasons to take precautions, but that doesn't mean we need to hope up, re­treat and breathe nothing but filtered air," said Robert Waltz, state entomologist with the Indiana Department of Natural Resources.

"It's scary, but I don't know what you can do about it," said Charles Fisher, who works for Murrain Exterminating.

The hantavirus case had died down some until about a week ago in Hendricks County. Then the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported the virus had been found in four of 26 rodents trapped near Mitchell's Clayton home.

Public officials warn that those tests demand precautions, not panic.

"It boils down to common sense. In the past we’ve been cavalier about rodents. We need to look at all rodents as infectious," said Mary Lou Fleischer, epidemiologist at the Indiana Department of Health.

No more rodent testing will be done, Fleischer said.

The CDC has been advised that if the virus has been found in one location in the state, it should be presumed present everywhere in Indiana, she said.

"There are reasons to take precautions, but that doesn't mean we need to hope up, re­treat and breathe nothing but filtered air," said Robert Waltz, state entomologist with the Indiana Department of Natural Resources.

"It's scary, but I don't know what you can do about it," said Charles Fisher, who works for Murrain Exterminating.

THE LANGUAGE RESOURCE CENTER PRESENTS:

A Teleconference:

FROM THEORY TO PRACTICE: THE NATURAL APPROACH

February 23, 1994
3:00 PM - 5:00 PM
Room 116 DeBartolo Hall

Featuring panel discussion with Steven Krashon, Jeanne Esguie, Eren Tachner, Mary Rogers, Magdalena Andrade and Miguel Munoz. During questions and answers segment you will have an opportunity to participate by telephone.

Registration is free, but you must call (1-5881) or stop by (Room 201 O'Shaughnessy) to reserve your place.

South Bend's #1 Oil Change & Car Wash

THE OIL CHANGE-PROFESSIONALS

$10.00 Savings

FAST LUBE SYSTEMS

Monday thru Friday
Saturday
Closed Sunday

426 N. DixieWay, Roseland
(Across from Gippers Holiday Inn)
271-7767

Don't take a chance with your second BIGGEST INVESTMENT... USE YOUR HAND WASH ON YOUR CAR!

Our Famous Preferred Hand Wash
With Our #1 Oil Change
(offer good with coupon only • Expires 3-26-94)

Dining in style

Notre Dame juniors and their parents enjoy the "Directors Dinner" held at the Joyce Athletic Conven­tion Center on Saturday as part of the Junior Parents Weekend festivities.

Budget amendment has support for vote

WASHINGTON

Backers of a balanced budget constitutional amendment have enough support to assure a vote in the Senate but not necessarily the two-thirds majority to pass it, the measure's chief sponsor said Sunday.

"I don't think Robert Byrd has 34 votes to stop it," Simon said on NBC's "Meet the Press." An Associated Press survey of the Senate's 100 members last week showed 60 of them saying they support or would probably support the amendment. Twenty-seven said they would reject or were lean­ing against it. Twelve senators said they were undecided. Only Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, refused to answer the survey.

The amendment would require balanced federal bud­gets beginning in the year 2001 unless three-fifths of the House and Senate voted to allow a deficit. It fell one vote short of passage, 66-34, the last time the Senate debated it in 1986.

Even with Senate passage, the amendment would still require a two-thirds vote in the House and ratification by 38 of the 50 state legislatures before it would become part of the Constitution.

Because ratification could take up to seven years, Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., called the amendment a sham, saying it would do nothing to reduce the government's annual deficits.

"You're going to have to have enabling legislation and I guar­antee you the enabling legisla­tion's going to be full of hoop­holes," said Bradley.

The amendment would require balanced federal bud­gets beginning in the year 2001 unless three-fifths of the House and Senate voted to allow a deficit. It fell one vote short of passage, 66-34, the last time the Senate debated it in 1986.

Even with Senate passage, the amendment would still require a two-thirds vote in the House and ratification by 38 of the 50 state legislatures before it would become part of the Constitution.

Because ratification could take up to seven years, Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., called the amendment a sham, saying it would do nothing to reduce the government's annual deficits.

"You're going to have to have enabling legislation and I guar­antee you the enabling legisla­tion's going to be full of hoop­holes," said Bradley.

The amendment would require balanced federal bud­gets beginning in the year 2001 unless three-fifths of the House and Senate voted to allow a deficit. It fell one vote short of passage, 66-34, the last time the Senate debated it in 1986.

Even with Senate passage, the amendment would still require a two-thirds vote in the House and ratification by 38 of the 50 state legislatures before it would become part of the Constitution.

Because ratification could take up to seven years, Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., called the amendment a sham, saying it would do nothing to reduce the government's annual deficits.

"You're going to have to have enabling legislation and I guar­antee you the enabling legisla­tion's going to be full of hoop­holes," said Bradley.
The College is targeting to increase the number of women of color and women from different ethnic, religious, and socioeconomic backgrounds. According to Williams, the College has doubled the endowment since 1984, making a significant impact on its programming and resources. The College is actively working to address multiculturalism, creating a more diverse and inclusive educational environment. In addition, the College is engaged in continuous work on the assessment of its academic success and reputation, ensuring that the College is built upon a solid foundation. The College is committed to teaching and recognizing the different goals and values of Saint Mary's, working towards a common goal that is critical to its operation.

The College is also renewing its focus on athletics, with the addition of new facilities and equipment. The College is expanding its academic programs, including those funded through the Lilly Foundation, to improve the quality of education and the student experience. The College is targeting to become a residential classroom, with the potential to double the endowment. The College is also expanding its efforts in multiculturalism, with the aim of creating a more diverse and inclusive educational environment.

In conclusion, the College is committed to fulfilling its unique mission, engaging students in their learning, and providing them with an education that prepares them for a successful future. The College is working towards a common goal, with the aim of ensuring that students have the tools they need to succeed in their chosen fields. The College is committed to providing a high-quality education and preparing students for success in their future careers and lives.
Storm hits Southern California

By ANH BUI
Associated Press

MALIBU, Calif. - Rivers of mud cascaded down coastal canyons and closed the Pacific Coast Highway on Sunday as yet another storm swept heavy rain across fire-scorched Southern California.

Heavy snow clogged mountain highways.

Roads flooded by water as much as two feet deep made driving treacherous and at least three traffic deaths were blamed on rain-slick freeways.

Flowing mud briefly trapped a handful of Malibu residents inside their homes, and a motorist had to be rescued after his car became mired in mud in Las Flores Canyon.

Several homes were damaged by the mud, although a pre sinc count wasn’t immediately available. No evacuations were ordered and no injuries were reported.

On Feb. 9, rain-driven mudslides damaged 22 homes in areas stripped of vegetation by a Nov. 2 fire that charred 18,500 acres of the Santa Monica Mountains.

In all, more than 20 autumn fires burned across 200,000 acres from Ventura County to the Mexican border and officials have warned that Malibu and other fire-scarred areas face repeated flooding with each rainfall.

About two inches of rain overnight loosened soil around Malibu despite frantic resressing and sandbagging since the fire.

Northwestern Ventura County received three inches of rain and one inch fell in downtown Los Angeles.

Mudslides coated roads in several Malibu canyons, said Los Angeles County sheriff's Lt. Michael Moore. Plovs and bulldozers scraped muck from the closed Pacific Coast Highway.

A woman and two children were trapped in their Malibu home when a private bridge washed out, but they were rescued without injury, said sheriff's Deputy Kolly McMichael.

Tow trucks removed cars stuck in the mud and residents sandbagged their homes against flowing debris. Road covers slipped and fell into thick go as they tried to clear storm drains.

A thick wooden wall prevented a three-foot river of mud from entering the home of Lisa and Brian Anderson. But their garage was three feet deep in water, damaging two new cars inside. They had just finished clearing their house of mud from the Feb. 9 storm.

"I'm waiting for now is for the Maritains to come," Anderson said.

Between six and eight inches of snow fell above 3,000 feet, with eight to 12 inches above 6,000 feet, and more was expected during the night, the National Weather Service said. Elsewhere in California, snow also fell overnight in the Sierra Nevada, with 20 inches reported at Mammoth, the weather service said.

Road chains were required on most Southern California mountain roads Sunday, Interstate 5 was closed for more than seven hours over the Tehachapi Mountains north-west of Los Angeles, and the California Highway Patrol escorted Interstate 15 traffic through the Cajon Pass in the San Bernardino Mountains.

The Alameda fire area north-east of Los Angeles escaped flooding Sunday, while Laguna Canyon Road in Orange County had minor flooding.

Ventura County, parts of which also were hit by fire, had minor rockslides on local roads, the sheriff's department reported.

There were about 100 accidents between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. on Los Angeles County freeways Sunday, compared with the usual 20 to 30 accidents, said highway patrol officer Bill Grunau.

BRUNO'S PIZZA
Weekly Special:
Free 2-Liter Coke or Diet Coke w/any Pizza Order (good Monday-Friday)
BEST PIZZA DEAL IN TOWN!
CALL NOW!
273-3890

LAFAYETTE SQUARE TOWNHOMES
"Luxury Living You Can Enjoy & Afford"
"Where Tenants Are Of The Utmost Importance"
- 4 & 5 Bedroom Townhomes
- Near Cal State filled with Camarillo
- Security System & Security Guard
- Kitchen With Dishwasher, Garage, Disposal, Refrigerator & Range
- Washer & Dryer in Each Unit
- Gas Heat
- Central Air Conditioning
- Professional Management
- Management Maintenance
- Only 1 Mile From New Dam Camp
- Meet Our Friendly Staff And Let Them Show You Our Beautiful Townhomes
Now taking applications for '94-'95 School Year For more information call (805) 232-8256

Michigan residents aid quake apartment victims

By ANH BUI
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Huyn Sook Lee sat quietly, dressed in black, her fingers twirling the wedding ring on her hand, her downcast eyes brimming with tears.

Jim Enos sat alone across the church aisle, several rows back, his face shadowed by a baseball cap.

They and other residents of the Northridge Meadows apartments, where 16 people were killed by the Jan. 17 earthquake, gathered Saturday to accept financial help from residents of a Michigan apartment complex with a nearly identical name.

But when the money was offered, the earthquake victims proved that they could be just as generous.

Enos, whose wife, Dulra, was killed in the quake, took the $500 he received and slipped it in Lee's shaking hand. She responded with a hug.

Alan Bemsha, who was badly injured when the quake trapped him in his apartment, gave his $850 to Lee, as well.

Lee's husband, Pil Soon, and their 12-year-old son Jason were seriously injured when the quake, but was happy to have survived.

"I just touch my heart that the help we're providing them they're turning around and helping those who need it even more," said Eva Pieper, resident manager of the Northridge Meadows apartments in Northville, Mich.

The 6.7-magnitude earthquake caused 61 deaths and an estimated $20 billion in damages.

Pieper and the owner of the Michigan complex, Elizabeth Enos, were matched shot for shot by an eerie coincidence as they watched the earthquake devastation on television.

Northridge Meadows residents went through the same routine. Northridge Meadows residents went through hell.

"It was just too much of coincidence to pass up. Somebody was telling me something," Brooks said.

It was Brooks' idea to aid her building's unrelated namesake. Pieper devoted 14 to 15 hours a day to the cause, they hoped it raised $10,000 in three weeks. So far, they have raised $6,300, with the promise of an additional $2,000, Brooks said.

Later, Pieper and Brooks visited the devastated Northridge Meadows apartments.

The building, whose top two stories had collapsed onto the first story, is surrounded by a chain link fence and yellow caution tape.

Broken furniture and other debris are piled outside.

Along the street, a steady stream of gawkers, some with cameras and video equipment, peer and point.

"I don't know what to tell you," Pieper said. "This is horrifying.

There aren't words that I can describe this. People's lives are in rubble. Bits and pieces of their belongings, balconies damaged. I don't know what to say."
Rebels appear for negotiations

By JOHN RICE
Associated Press

SAN CRISTOBAL DE LAS CASAS, Mexico

Ski-masked Indian rebels came out of the jungle Sunday to the city where their uprising started on New Year's Day, this time to press their demands for social and political change at peace talks.

Hundreds of Red Cross workers, civilian peace workers and military police armed only with clubs surrounded the 16th century Roman Catholic cathedral, where the talks will be held Monday in this city of 72,000 people.

The government's peace negotiator, Manuel Camacho Solis, and Bishop Samuel Ruiz traveled to the rebels' Lacandon forest stronghold east of the city Sunday morning and escorted their representatives to the talks.

At least 18 rebel negotiators, all wearing ski masks or bandannas to disguise their faces, arrived at the main plaza on Sunday in three caravans of Red Cross vehicles. They sped into the plaza past a cordon of peace workers holding back tightly packed spectators, a few of whom cheered for the rebels.

Among the rebels was the group's spokesman, "Subcommandante Marcos," who appeared to have an automatic weapon strapped to him.

Marcos waved briefly to reporters standing at a nearby platform, but none of the rebels made statements.

The rebels, Camacho and the bishop buddled in the cathedral Sunday afternoon in preliminary discussions on technicalities of the talks.

Pre-Law Meeting
February 21 at 7:30 p.m.
Cushing Auditorium

Guest Speaker:
Dean Link
from the Notre Dame Law School

Topic:
"The Future of the Law Profession"

Freshman Class Mass!

Interested in singing or playing an instrument for the class mass on April 10?

For details, call Brian at 4-1799.

Rebels appear for negotiations

By JOHN RICE
Associated Press

SAN CRISTOBAL DE LAS CASAS, Mexico

Ski-masked Indian rebels came out of the jungle Sunday to the city where their uprising started on New Year's Day, this time to press their demands for social and political change at peace talks.

Hundreds of Red Cross workers, civilian peace workers and military police armed only with clubs surrounded the 16th century Roman Catholic cathedral, where the talks will be held Monday in this city of 72,000 people.

The government's peace negotiator, Manuel Camacho Solis, and Bishop Samuel Ruiz traveled to the rebels' Lacandon forest stronghold east of the city Sunday morning and escorted their representatives to the talks.

At least 18 rebel negotiators, all wearing ski masks or bandannas to disguise their faces, arrived at the main plaza on Sunday in three caravans of Red Cross vehicles. They sped into the plaza past a cordon of peace workers holding back tightly packed spectators, a few of whom cheered for the rebels.

Among the rebels was the group's spokesman, "Subcommandante Marcos," who appeared to have an automatic weapon strapped to him.

Marcos waved briefly to reporters standing at a nearby platform, but none of the rebels made statements.

The rebels, Camacho and the bishop buddled in the cathedral Sunday afternoon in preliminary discussions on technicalities of the talks.

Pre-Law Meeting
February 21 at 7:30 p.m.
Cushing Auditorium

Guest Speaker:
Dean Link
from the Notre Dame Law School

Topic:
"The Future of the Law Profession"

Freshman Class Mass!

Interested in singing or playing an instrument for the class mass on April 10?

For details, call Brian at 4-1799.
Resident Assistant duties include counseling, enforcing, and listening.

By JOHN LUCAS

American University

Beyond the benefits of free room and board, lunch, service, and parking, the biggest advantage of being a Resident Assistant is the chance to meet the people of the hall, according to Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s R.A.’s.

"Being an R.A. gives you a little bit of a different perspective," said Steve Senna, an Alumni Hall R.A., who knows many of the 280 men who live there. "It eliminates an awkward moment as an R.A. people don’t mind you asking them questions about where they’re from or how they’re doing in the classes.

Although the primary function of a resident assistant is to enforce the rules of DuLa, there is much more to the job that just looking for trouble, according to Pasqurella East R.A. Amy Stoeckl. "The job is really more than just walking around the halls when you’re on duty," she said. "You have to be there with an open door."

In women’s dorms, residents are much more likely to sit down and talk with their R.A.’s as friends than in men’s dorms. "Even if they don’t have a problem, people here will just stop in to talk about their day," she said. "There’s more of a stigma in guys dorms about going to an R.A. Here we’re thought of as a friend first.

Men usually go to their good friends to talk about a problem and see their R.A. when they are in some kind of trouble, Senna agreed.

There’s more of a hands off approach here," Senna said. "We usually intervene only when necessary. I don’t think I’ve ever had an upperclassman say, ‘Come on, you have to have them out.”

When enforcing the rules, it is important to be fair and impartial, agreed Stoeckl and Senna.

"People are never going to like the rules, but if you’reconscientious, students don’t dislike you for enforcing them," Senna said.

Sometimes, R.A.’s can look for violations too aggressively, and that causes problems, he said. "You’ve got to avoid the ‘gun-slinger’ mentality, where you’re always going out looking for trouble," he said. "It’s important to realize you are not Sherlock Holmes."

At Saint Mary’s, R.A.’s carry the same responsibilities for enforcing rules, but the focus lies more in trying to build relationships and community around the dorm, according to a student, LeMans Hall R.A. Kristin McAndrew.

At least four times a semester, McAndrew organizes her section for a special event or program. Whether they go as a group, or go to see "Schindler’s List" together, the section becomes much closer, she said.

As an added advantage of the SMC R.A. program is that McAndrew was able to become an R.A. as a junior. Sometimes, even sophomores are accepted as R.A.’s, she said. "Younger R.A.’s can be more in touch with the concerns of the students get cadavers by the slice

To aid students in often difficult task of dissecting cadavers in science classes, Orange County Community College has switched to using bodies that have been frozen and cut into slices to allow easier viewing of organs. Through the process of plastination, cadavers are dehydrated and injected with silicon, creating a specimen that can be handled without the use of gloves. Associate Professor John Klucar hopes that the new process will make the cadavers “more approachable” for students.

USC begins riot library

The University of Southern California, located at the site of the Los Angeles riots, has received donations of books and dealing with the Rodney King beatings and the events that followed, with the intention of beginning a comprehensive collection of works dealing with the riots. Hackers attack Rice computers

After hackers recently caused the week-long shut-down of the student computer network and cut off ties to the Internet system at Rice University, the FBI investigated the incident to see if there are any links to hacking that has occurred at other schools. In response, every computer code at the university has been changed to ensure the security of the system. Most material lost in the incident was restored from copies on disk and tape.

Anti-semitism increases on campuses

A study done by the Anti-Defamation League of B’nai Brith, an anti-semitic incidents on college campuses rose by seven percent. Out of 81 campuses studied, 122 incidents were reported, compared to 114 incidents at 60 schools in 1992. The league also noted the publication of “holocaust denial propaganda” in student newspapers and the speaking of controversial speakers, such as Louis Farrakhan and Khalid Abdul Muhammad of the Nation of Islam, as increasing anti-semitic sentiments.

Liberals, Conservatives choose sides at Stanford

With the statement of a political science professor claiming that while Christians are “unrepresented” in comparison to Jewish and Asian students, controversy has erupted at Stanford University with regard to its affirmative action program. Campus liberals cite Professor Steven Krassner’s statement as evidence of the college’s trend towards the more conservative right. A new conservative newspaper and a Democratic party club have recently been founded as the university struggles between liberal and conservative interests.

Information from the Chronicle of Higher Education
Modern conflicts: Tribalism vs. modern ethnicity

Last week, while watching the opening ceremonies of the Olympics, a friend made a very perceptive remark relative to me. A group of Sami, a minority group from Norway, whose cultural origins go back thousands of years, had just come out to sing a traditional Sami song. They were dressed up in full Sami costume. My friend turned to me and she said, "Tell me they aren't a tribe."

What she was referring to was the fact that we in the United States and elsewhere in the Western world make a distinction between groups depending on where they are and when they got there. Groups in Africa, and to a certain extent in North America, are tribes. Tribes are supposed to represent the primitive, the pre-modern. They supposedly embody the primal, instinctual, violent aspects of the human experience in the modern world has overcome. We in some way think of the Act and war in Africa, or, in the case of Somalia, clan warfare. Some in the West seem to think that since it is only primitive killing each other, which is what tribalism is all about, there is not much we can or should do about it. Perhaps, many say, we should just let the clans in Somalia go at it, since this is what they are.

People in Africa are represented differently in the media, too, as a result of their "tribal" heritage. A good example could be found recently in The New York Times. In an article by the renowned photojournalist Nelson Mandela campaigning for the South African elections of 1994, the writer of the article saw no referred awareness about wearing a business suit, which is what he wears most of the time. Rather, he was wearing traditional tribal clothes, although they were not even from his own tribe. Around the same time, F. W. de Klerk was also shown wearing traditional African dress as part of his campaign rather than his normal clothes (of course, there was no talk of the former "tribe" clothing, as the ancient连接 rather than portraying the way they usually look.

It is usually only Africans and Native Americans who are portrayed as "tribal." Other types of ethnic, religious, and other self-identified groups are portrayed as just that. Thus, in the United States for example, we have the Irish, the Protestants, the Catholics, the Mexicans, the Italians, etc. All of these groups are supposedly modern, yet little work has been done to appreciate the "tribal" connection in the past they have not been portrayed that way — and have "true" ethnic identities, whereas tribes are primitive, with identities which are not valuable or worthwhile. We never hear about the "tribal" conflict between Protestant and Catholic in Northern Ireland. We never heard about the "tribal" conflict between black and white in the United States, although in the past they have been different to the extent that they are all tribes, self-identified groups are portrayed as somehow different from the dominant ethnic groups in America were portrayed as "tribal," primitive, or less than human.

Most especially, we have not heard about the Serbian, Croatian, and Bosnian "tribes" fighting. They, after all, have ties to Europe and thus qualify as civilized groups, even when some of them are doing incredibly uncivilized things. In this instance, we have "ethnic" conflict, as if using this word makes certain identities more valid than others.

"Ethnicity" is simply the way in which one identifies oneself using such things as ancestry, an outmoded idea of "race," culture, language, and other identifying characteristics, in which many of which would be all but invisible to the "tribal" observer. Of course, there is a kind of exclusivity associated with our identities. Yet, identity is not immutable. We change identities in relation to the situation and people we are trying to identify with or against. For example, I am white (as opposed to black, brown, red, etc.), I can trace my ancestors back to Great Britain and Greece, which I also know that my ancestors also came from elsewhere before they were in Europe), I have no religious affiliation (and do not want to be associated with the religion I was brought up in, even though many people identify themselves that way, regardless of their real religious practices), I speak English (but American English, not British English), I am a graduate student, I come from New England (while at the same time I am also a citizen of the United States, a resident of North America, and a member of one of the affluent Western countries), and am a member of the human "race." All of these different identities make themselves out in different ways depending on the situation I am in.

Each and every one of us has many different identities. Yet, we seem to ascribe to certain types of people a monolithic, tribal, identity which seems to make certain identities more valid than others.

"Is the behavior I have witnessed by football fans here at the home of the Fighting Irish really any less "tribal" in terms of the way they conduct themselves in mass while their warriors are out on the field fighting another tribe? Or, from a different perspective, are the cultural customs, language, dress, etc. of "tribes" of a different type than those same attributes we ascribe to more respectable "ethnic" groups, such as the Sami?"

It seems to me that it is not where we live — say, Africa versus Europe — that determines how our identities play themselves out. Rather, it is the extent to which our identities are so exclusive that we feel justified engaging in extreme measures to preserve our prestige, power, dominance, etc. Thus, Los Angeles gangs, Sami clans, Jews in Israel, and Serbian militia are all tribal in the same way in which we are, yet somehow, we do not see ourselves as tribal. Perhaps because we see ourselves as somehow different from them — perhaps because their identities are so much more "proper" to the people they are fighting, and we are somehow superior to them.

Thus, Los Angeles gangs, Sami clans, Jews in Israel, and Serbian militia are all tribal in the same way in which we are, yet somehow, we do not see ourselves as tribal. Perhaps because we see ourselves as somehow different from them — perhaps because their identities are so much more "proper" to the people they are fighting, and we are somehow superior to them. Yet, there is a kind of exclusivity associated with our identities. Yet, identity is not immutable. We change identities in relation to the situation and people we are trying to identify with or against. For example, I am white (as opposed to black, brown, red, etc.), I can trace my ancestors back to Great Britain and Greece, which I also know that my ancestors also came from elsewhere before they were in Europe), I have no religious affiliation (and do not want to be associated with the religion I was brought up in, even though many people identify themselves that way, regardless of their real religious practices), I speak English (but American English, not British English), I am a graduate student, I come from New England (while at the same time I am also a citizen of the United States, a resident of North America, and a member of one of the affluent Western countries), and am a member of the human "race." All of these different identities make themselves out in different ways depending on the situation I am in.

Each and every one of us has many different identities. Yet, we seem to ascribe to certain types of people a monolithic, tribal, identity which seems to make certain identities more valid than others.

"Is the behavior I have witnessed by football fans here at the home of the Fighting Irish really any less "tribal" in terms of the way they conduct themselves in mass while their warriors are out on the field fighting another tribe? Or, from a different perspective, are the cultural customs, language, dress, etc. of "tribes" of a different type than those same attributes we ascribe to more respectable "ethnic" groups, such as the Sami?"

It seems to me that it is not where we live — say, Africa versus Europe — that determines how our identities play themselves out. Rather, it is the extent to which our identities are so exclusive that we feel justified engaging in extreme measures to preserve our prestige, power, dominance, etc. Thus, Los Angeles gangs, Sami clans, Jews in Israel, and Serbian militia are all tribal in the same way in which we are, yet somehow, we do not see ourselves as tribal. Perhaps because we see ourselves as somehow different from them — perhaps because their identities are so much more "proper" to the people they are fighting, and we are somehow superior to them. Yet, there is a kind of exclusivity associated with our identities. Yet, identity is not immutable. We change identities in relation to the situation and people we are trying to identify with or against. For example, I am white (as opposed to black, brown, red, etc.), I can trace my ancestors back to Great Britain and Greece, which I also know that my ancestors also came from elsewhere before they were in Europe), I have no religious affiliation (and do not want to be associated with the religion I was brought up in, even though many people identify themselves that way, regardless of their real religious practices), I speak English (but American English, not British English), I am a graduate student, I come from New England (while at the same time I am also a citizen of the United States, a resident of North America, and a member of one of the affluent Western countries), and am a member of the human "race." All of these different identities make themselves out in different ways depending on the situation I am in.

Each and every one of us has many different identities. Yet, we seem to ascribe to certain types of people a monolithic, tribal, identity which seems to make certain identities more valid than others.
A Rose Beneath the Snow
In remembrance of Clare Stewart

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in response to the recent letter that appeared in your newspaper, expressing the concerns and views of the Cuba solidarity movement.

I am troubled by the way in which the professor Alberto Rozos, from the University of Havana, has presented his views on the Cuban situation. In his letter, Rozos presents a misleading interpretation of Cuban crises and the Cuban situation. Being a professor at the University of Havana, he is expected to provide accurate and reliable information.

Before Fidel's rise to power on Jan. 1, 1959, Cuba ran ked as one of the poorest countries in the world. The country was controlled by a dictator, who had absolute power and had not considered the needs and rights of the people. Fidel has fostered in the island a culture of solidarity, where everyone is treated equally, and has worked to eradicate poverty and inequality.

Rozos's views are not based on facts and evidence, but rather on personal偏见. He fails to recognize the achievements of the Cuban Revolution and the progress made since then. Instead, he focuses on the negative aspects and ignores the positive changes that have taken place.

In conclusion, I urge Rozos to reconsider his views and focus on providing a more accurate and balanced perspective on the Cuban situation. It is important that we continue to support the Cuban Revolution and its achievements.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
won't be afraid of their lives, as well as patients, are often unprepared for the experience of AIDS.

By JENNIFER GUERIN

AIDS Ministries/ AIDS Assist struggles to increase AIDS education and awareness

In the director's report to a recent AIDS Ministries Committee/AIDS Assist newsletter, Michael Beatty states, "I've been watching about the AIDS experience of the people outside the hospitals and the real story of AIDS among them. Both the HIV and those who have died from AIDS." Beatty then goes on to say, "The message is blurring, perhaps too blurring for some, who have chosen not to accept the reality of AIDS among them."

So far, Beatty and Sister Elizabeth Kennedy, who have worked for AIDS Ministries/AIDS Assist of Northern Indiana since its founding in 1989, agree that the improved education is vital in combating AIDS and improving society's response to those living with the disease.

Located in South Bend, AIDS Ministries/AIDS Assist was started four years ago by the Northern Indiana Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Kennedy and Beatty have both left their jobs to work full-time with AIDS Ministries/AIDS Assist. They have been involved in creating a memorial quilt that will be displayed at a Stepman Center this weekend.

"We have a lot of hope in the experience of the quilt," said Kennedy. "Seeing the expression of the grieving, value and love [in the quilt] is key to understanding what is happening.

"Kennedy and Beatty have both left their jobs to work full-time with AIDS Ministries/AIDS Assist. They have been involved in creating a memorial quilt that will be displayed at a Stepman Center this weekend.

"I have put a lot of hope in the experience of the quilt," said Kennedy. "Seeing the expression of the grieving, value and love [in the quilt] is key to understanding what is happening.

"It's a real challenge to accept the fact that HIV and AIDS are real stories of our lives, the real story of AIDS among them," Beatty said.

"As long as we don't think about it, or talk about it, or make fun of it, then we can pretend it doesn't exist."
Professor Irwin Press believes there is more to good health care than a solid background in science. A good doctor also has a strong bedside manner, according to Press. "It is necessary to master the art of medicine in order to maximize the science of medicine," says Press, a teacher in Notre Dame's anthropology department.

In his lecture, entitled "Patients vs. Clinicians: How Culture Affects Health and Healing," Press will discuss his ideas about how doctors should interact with patients. The lecture is being delivered as part of the Center for Social Concerns' Health and Healing Week.

At the lecture, Press will discuss doctors and patients as two separate cultures which frequently clash when they meet, because each culture has assumptions and expectations of the other. "Patients define their sickness as cultural," said Press. He explained that when people feel sick, they often explain the symptoms away. For example, Press said that if someone blames soreness on playing basketball the day before, he does not feel it necessary to seek medical care because he or she has assessed a cause to the symptoms.

When a person does seek medical treatment, according to Press, it is often at the point where sickness and physical symptoms interefere with daily routines and responsibilities. This leads to the behavioral and emotional aspects of sickness, which make a patient feel like they are failing in their roles as worker, spouse, lover and other social contexts.

This threat is just as substantial as the threat of physical sickness. Physicians often fail to see this emotionalism as an additional symptom that contributes to the disease, said Press. "Doctors have certain expectations of patients," said Press.

"Patients are granted a certain amount of emotionalism, but if they talk too much about how their lives are affected by sickness, then suspicions arise that patients are 'acting out,'" said Press. "Doctors have certain assumptions about how patients should act," according to Press.

"Patients should not complain too much; they should be compliant; they should not upset anybody; and they should be grateful for the care they are receiving."

"The body and soul of disease are inseparable," says Press. He believes that medicine needs to be viewed as a social transaction.

Patients want interaction with their doctors, according to Press, who uses the process of blood tests as an example illustrating this fact.

"He said that there is a direct relation between how easily blood is taken and how friendly the lab technician is while taking the blood." Press also stated that he believes most malpractice suits are caused by poor interaction between doctor and patient.

Press' prescription for this division between the two cultures is to sensitize physicians to the effects of disease on the personhood of the patient.

He believes a focus on "bedside manner" will be more important as medical practices turn towards HMOs and other health plans.

Doctors with poor interaction skills will be fired from these programs due to patient drop-off.

Press originally began his research by studying aspects of folklore in medicine. In 1980-81, Press won a Lilly Fellowship and went to the University of Miami School of Medicine to observe doctor and patient interaction.

It was during this fellowship that Press developed many of the ideas he is presenting in his lecture.

Press has taught at Notre Dame for 29 years, and has offered a course entitled "Cultural Aspects of Clinical Medicine," wherein students can observe doctor-patient relationships in the same way he did during his own research.

Press will give his lecture this Thursday evening at 7:30 in the Dooley Room of Lafortune.
Early and often and the theme for Naticchia-Murphy

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sport Editor

Early and often. Those are magic words for any fight fan, particularly the blood hungry sort that congregates for the Bengal Bout quarterfinals.

"Early and Often" would also serve as the perfect title for Rob Naticchia's unanimous decision win over Todd Murphy in the second 175-pound bout Sunday.

Both fighters landed early and often. Blood splattered early and often, and the crowd was in a frenzy early and often.

It went by so swiftly of the imagination the best boxing of the day but certainly the most exciting fight.

Naticchia established the tone of the fight in the opening minutes of round one. He rushed Murphy and was able to slip past the Cavanaugh Hall sophomore's jab to land a series of punches.

It didn't help matters when Murphy and Naticchia locked arms, sending Naticchia to the canvas.

Murphy, a Dillon Hall junior, retaliated with a vene-

ger's jab to land a series of punches.

It was by no stretch of the imagination the best boxing of the day but certainly the most exciting fight.

Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's comeback to beat Naticchia.

the referee to deliver a standing eight count to Numerous shots to the head. A strong right prompted gance, landing repeatedly as the bell sounded to end the round.

Mr. Balboa would have envied the attempt by Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia. The start of round three was delayed five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's nose.

Thanks to Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches. Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia.

It didn't help matters when Murphy and Naticchia locked arms, sending Naticchia to the canvas.

Murphy, a Dillon Hall junior, retaliated with a vene-

ger's jab to land a series of punches.

It was by no stretch of the imagination the best boxing of the day but certainly the most exciting fight.

Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches. Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia. The start of round three was delayed five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's nose.

Thanks to Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia. The start of round three was delayed five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's nose.

Thanks to Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia. The start of round three was delayed five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's nose.

Thanks to Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Naticchia, a Dillon Hall junior, retaliated with a vene-

ger's jab to land a series of punches.

It was by no stretch of the imagination the best boxing of the day but certainly the most exciting fight.

Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia. The start of round three was delayed five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's nose.

Thanks to Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Naticchia, a Dillon Hall junior, retaliated with a vene-

ger's jab to land a series of punches.

It was by no stretch of the imagination the best boxing of the day but certainly the most exciting fight.

Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia. The start of round three was delayed five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's nose.

Thanks to Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Naticchia, a Dillon Hall junior, retaliated with a vene-

ger's jab to land a series of punches.

It was by no stretch of the imagination the best boxing of the day but certainly the most exciting fight.

Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia. The start of round three was delayed five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's nose.

Thanks to Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Naticchia, a Dillon Hall junior, retaliated with a vene-

ger's jab to land a series of punches.

It was by no stretch of the imagination the best boxing of the day but certainly the most exciting fight.

Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia. The start of round three was delayed five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's nose.

Thanks to Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Naticchia, a Dillon Hall junior, retaliated with a vene-

ger's jab to land a series of punches.

It was by no stretch of the imagination the best boxing of the day but certainly the most exciting fight.

Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.

Murphy, his steady stream of jabs finally took its toll on Naticchia. The start of round three was delayed five minutes to stop the bleeding from Naticchia's nose.

Thanks to Naticchia's nose, the final round was bloody, with both fighters, the referee's flag and the ring stained red. The ref gave Murphy another eight count at the midway point, and the pair kept throwing punches.
Bengals continued from page 20

in his favor. One of the few top fighters to step into the ring was 165-pound favorite and 1993 champion Jeff Goddard. The Dillon Hall sophomore rejected a bye so his parents, in favor Junior Parent’s Weekend, could see him fight.

His opponent, John Skinner, probably won’t be sending the Goddards a thank you card for showing up. Skinner lasted 39 seconds into the second round before a Goddard left hook dropped the fighter. Joe Zirnehelt topped Jake May in another 165-pound matchup which was referred to at ringside as, “the fight for the right to get pummeled by Goddard.”

The upper weight classes battled in the 175-pound class, thrilling the crowd with a bloody battle from start to finish (see related story). The heavyweights took the quarterfinals off but begin fighting Tuesday along with the six other fighters who sat out Sunday’s fights.

Anyone interested in reshaping Student Government next year:

Pick up application in 2nd floor LaFortune.

Applications available Monday, February 2–25.

Application deadline Monday, Feb 28.
continued from page 20

of a primadonna."  Kleinschmidt's version is quite different. "He was hailing me. He threw an elbow when I came out and I threw it back at him. We ain't getting punked by no one," said Kleinschmidt, who was held to 14 points, seven below his average. "I think he was frustrated that we were playing him so tough on defense, just as they were playing me tough.

"He was saying how he was going to make more money than me. He was talking about his financial situation, while I was just worried about winning the ballgame," added Kleinschmidt.

The situation may have evolved out of another outburst by Williams just before his three-pointer. After Irish guard Lamarr Justice was thrown to the court on a hard foul by DePaul center Bryant Bowden, Williams came to his aid by pushing Bowden in the chest. Bowden was called for an intentional foul while DePaul was playing him so tough on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field).

Patton also hit 9-for-10 from the line in the final six minutes to protect the Blue Demons' lead, built during the first few minutes of the second half. Leading just 31-26 at halftime, DePaul went on an 18-9 run to open a 14-point lead. Notre Dame's offense struggled early in both the first and second halves. The Irish were scoreless for the first five minutes of the game and managed just five points in the first eight minutes of the second half. Following a solid defensive effort, DePaul can also point to an 18-point performance by Bryant Bowden, who added 10 and 10. Bowden was called for a technical foul (Williams 7) in the final minutes of the game before, but I've never gotten four called before," he said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

"Monty will know next time to restrain himself when he has four fouls," Irish coach John MacLeod said. "He feels as bad about (fouling out) as anyone." While Williams and Kleinschmidt were discussing cash, the Blue Demons' Patton was taking charges.

Patton took four charges and scored 14 points to earn the Wendell Smith Award, given each year to the most valuable player in the DePaul-Notre Dame game. "I've taken four charges in a game before, but I've never gotten four called before," he said. "We still had a chance with about four minutes to go, but we took some ill-advised shots trying to get back into it faster than we needed to," MacLeod said. "That was about the end of it for us."

The Irish in the end.

The Observer • SPORTS
Monday, February 21, 1994

...continued from page 20

The Observer • SPORTS
Monday, February 21, 1994

Monty continued from page 20

Risky business with four fouls.

"Monty will know next time to restrain himself when he has four fouls," Irish coach John MacLeod said. "He feels as bad about (fouling out) as anyone." While Williams and Kleinschmidt were discussing cash, the Blue Demons' Patton was taking charges.

Patton took four charges and scored 14 points to earn the Wendell Smith Award, given each year to the most valuable player in the DePaul-Notre Dame game. "I've taken four charges in a game before, but I've never gotten four called before," he said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

"Monty showed leadership in helping Lamarr," said Irish guard Keith Kurowski, who sparked the Irish off the bench with 16 points. "I wouldn't have gone after him like that," Williams conceded. "But I can't have gone after him like that," MacLeod said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

Whether Williams was still intent on protecting his teammates and demonstrating leadership during the altercation with Kleinschmidt remains to be seen, but it obviously cost the Irish in the end. "It got heated, but I didn't think I should have drawn a technical. It's too bad the game ended this way," noted Williams, who finished the contest with 17 points.

Our Dame's Lamar Justice attempts one of his five shots over DePaul's Kris Hill. Justice came up empty on all five and failed to score.

The irish were scoreless for the first five minutes of the game and managed just five points in the first eight minutes of the second half. Following a solid defensive effort, DePaul can also point to an 18-point performance by Bryant Bowden, who added 10 and 10. Bowden was called for a technical foul (Williams 7) in the final minutes of the game before, but I've never gotten four called before," he said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

"Monty showed leadership in helping Lamarr," said Irish guard Keith Kurowski, who sparked the Irish off the bench with 16 points. "I wouldn't have gone after him like that," Williams conceded. "But I can't have gone after him like that," MacLeod said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

Whether Williams was still intent on protecting his teammates and demonstrating leadership during the altercation with Kleinschmidt remains to be seen, but it obviously cost the Irish in the end. "It got heated, but I didn't think I should have drawn a technical. It's too bad the game ended this way," noted Williams, who finished the contest with 17 points.

Our Dame's Lamar Justice attempts one of his five shots over DePaul's Kris Hill. Justice came up empty on all five and failed to score.

The irish were scoreless for the first five minutes of the game and managed just five points in the first eight minutes of the second half. Following a solid defensive effort, DePaul can also point to an 18-point performance by Bryant Bowden, who added 10 and 10. Bowden was called for a technical foul (Williams 7) in the final minutes of the game before, but I've never gotten four called before," he said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

"Monty showed leadership in helping Lamarr," said Irish guard Keith Kurowski, who sparked the Irish off the bench with 16 points. "I wouldn't have gone after him like that," Williams conceded. "But I can't have gone after him like that," MacLeod said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

Whether Williams was still intent on protecting his teammates and demonstrating leadership during the altercation with Kleinschmidt remains to be seen, but it obviously cost the Irish in the end. "It got heated, but I didn't think I should have drawn a technical. It's too bad the game ended this way," noted Williams, who finished the contest with 17 points.

Our Dame's Lamar Justice attempts one of his five shots over DePaul's Kris Hill. Justice came up empty on all five and failed to score.

The irish were scoreless for the first five minutes of the game and managed just five points in the first eight minutes of the second half. Following a solid defensive effort, DePaul can also point to an 18-point performance by Bryant Bowden, who added 10 and 10. Bowden was called for a technical foul (Williams 7) in the final minutes of the game before, but I've never gotten four called before," he said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

"Monty showed leadership in helping Lamarr," said Irish guard Keith Kurowski, who sparked the Irish off the bench with 16 points. "I wouldn't have gone after him like that," Williams conceded. "But I can't have gone after him like that," MacLeod said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

Whether Williams was still intent on protecting his teammates and demonstrating leadership during the altercation with Kleinschmidt remains to be seen, but it obviously cost the Irish in the end. "It got heated, but I didn't think I should have drawn a technical. It's too bad the game ended this way," noted Williams, who finished the contest with 17 points.

Our Dame's Lamar Justice attempts one of his five shots over DePaul's Kris Hill. Justice came up empty on all five and failed to score.

The irish were scoreless for the first five minutes of the game and managed just five points in the first eight minutes of the second half. Following a solid defensive effort, DePaul can also point to an 18-point performance by Bryant Bowden, who added 10 and 10. Bowden was called for a technical foul (Williams 7) in the final minutes of the game before, but I've never gotten four called before," he said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

"Monty showed leadership in helping Lamarr," said Irish guard Keith Kurowski, who sparked the Irish off the bench with 16 points. "I wouldn't have gone after him like that," Williams conceded. "But I can't have gone after him like that," MacLeod said. "My job is to get the ball to open guys and get some steals to get us going on defense. Today I was just able to hit some open shots (3-2 from the field)."

Whether Williams was still intent on protecting his teammates and demonstrating leadership during the altercation with Kleinschmidt remains to be seen, but it obviously cost the Irish in the end. "It got heated, but I didn't think I should have drawn a technical. It's too bad the game ended this way," noted Williams, who finished the contest with 17 points.

Our Dame's Lamar Justice attempts one of his five shots over DePaul's Kris Hill. Justice came up empty on all five and failed to score.
Slumping Irish icer fall behind early again, lose 8-2 to Falcons

By TIM SHERMAN

The Notre Dame hockey team has not gotten tough enough.

“Cliché says, ‘When the going gets tough, the tough get going.’”

“We’re struggling,” said Jamie Ling. “It just kept getting bigger.”

“All intents and purposes, that was lights out for the Irish.”

The team saw their five game streak snapped at home last Thursday night, when they fell to the LaSalle Explorers, 75-85.

The loss definitely took some of the wind out of the team’s then building sails, but a total collapse of the ship is not likely to follow.

“Anytime you’re struggling, it means you’re not doing the little things. That’s what has happened,” said Ling.

With just 19 seconds left BG’s Jay Matushak scored for the Irish.

The Cardinals have six players over six feet, while the Irish have averaging 19.2 points a game against the Louisville Cardinals tonight at 7:00 at Cardinal Arena.

Tonight the Irish will hope to begin another winning streak.

The team saw their five game streak snapped at home last Thursday night, when they fell to the LaSalle Explorers, 75-85.

The loss definitely took some of the wind out of the team’s then building sails, but a total collapse of the ship is not likely to follow.

Following Thursday’s loss, the Irish stand at 16-6, and remain atop the Midwestern Collegiate Conference with a 7-2 record in MCC play. Barring a collapse, the Irish will finish the season with 10-1 in the conference, before the start of the MCC tournament on March 5.

Tonight!!

The Computer Applications Honor Society Presents

Ernst & Young

Management Consulting

Monday February 21, 1994

7-8pm

Hesburgh Library Lounge

Representatives from Ernst & Young’s Management Consulting practice will discuss opportunities with their firm. They will be interviewing for summer positions in the near future.

This is a great opportunity to learn about their practice. Hope to see you there!!

All Are Welcome!!!

Happy 21st

On the 21st

You Are

“One in a Million.”

Sean Mee!

Love

Mom, Dad and family

Women on the road

By DYLAN BARMER

The Notre Dame women’s basketball team will hope that the road continues to be kind to them, as they embark on a three game jaunt over the next week.

The Irish will play three away games in the next seven days, beginning with a game against the Louisville Cardinals tonight at 7:00 at Cardinal Arena.

Tonight the Irish will hope to begin another winning streak.

The team saw their five game streak snapped at home last Thursday night, when they fell to the LaSalle Explorers, 75-85.

The loss definitely took some of the wind out of the team’s then building sails, but a total collapse of the ship is not likely to follow.

Following Thursday’s loss, the Irish stand at 16-6, and remain atop the Midwestern Collegiate Conference with a 7-2 record in MCC play. Barring a collapse, the Irish will finish the season with 10-1 in the conference, before the start of the MCC tournament on March 5.

Tonight!!

The Computer Applications Honor Society Presents

Ernst & Young

Management Consulting

Monday February 21, 1994

7-8pm

Hesburgh Library Lounge

Representatives from Ernst & Young’s Management Consulting practice will discuss opportunities with their firm. They will be interviewing for summer positions in the near future.

This is a great opportunity to learn about their practice. Hope to see you there!!

All Are Welcome!!!
Women have 2-1 weekend

By KATE CRISHAM
Sports Writer

The third time didn’t prove the charm.

The 18th-ranked Notre Dame women’s tennis team blemished their otherwise stellar weekend performance yesterday, losing 7-2 to regional foe Northwestern.

The Irish had defeated 16th-ranked Miami 5-2 on Friday, and Kentucky 5-4 on Saturday, before running out of gas against the Wildcats on Saturday.

Head coach Jay Louderback refused to blame the loss on the grueling weekend schedule against three highly competitive teams.

"We should be able to play three in a row," said Louderback. "Usually we compete best in a pressure situation."

"It’s especially disappointing because Northwestern is a regional team, and it’s important to do well against regional teams," he said.

"(The loss) is not good at all," Louderback did praise his team’s play against Miami and Kentucky.

"I thought we played best against Miami," Louderback said. "We also played well at times against Kentucky, especially at the end."

The Irish dropped only two matches against Miami, sophomore Holyn Lord’s 2-6, 3-6 loss to Caroline Hora at number-two singles and senior Lisa Tholen’s 6-7, 4-6 loss to Rachell Viollet. Sophomore Wendy Crabtree defeated Michelle Fry 6-3, 6-1 at number-one singles and sophomore Sherri Vitale defeated LeAnn Guikin 6-3, 6-2. Senior Christy Faustmann defeated Katy Fairweather 6-1, 6-0 and freshman Erin Gowen defeated Jana Lipkin 6-0, 6-0 to seal up the victory for the Irish.

In Saturday’s match against Kentucky, the Irish received double wins from Crabtree and Lord. Crabtree defeated Sue Bartl 6-3, 6-3 at number-one singles before teaming with Tholen to defeat Erica Gianci and Sheri Bash 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 at number-one doubles. Lord defeated Jana Lipkin 6-0, 6-0 to number-three doubles.

The luck of the Irish ran out in the match against Northwestern, however. Crabtree was the only winner in singles, defeating Elska Kim 6-3, 6-4 in number-one singles. In doubles, the 20th-ranked, number-one doubles duo of Crabtree and Tholen defeated Kim and Branauc Elsbury 6-4, 6-3 to provide the only win for the Irish.

Louderback hopes that the team’s disappointment over the loss to Northwestern will translate into increased motivation for the upcoming National Team Indors.

"We have two weeks before the National Indoors," said Louderback. "We have to work on our doubles, and keep competing against each other in practice."

"We’ve got to bounce back."

Men’s Tennis coasts to easy 7-0 victory

By PHIL LANGER
Sports Writer

The 14th-ranked Notre Dame men’s tennis team simply took care of business this weekend by shutting out a tough and talented Wisconsin squad 7-0. The Irish failed to lose a set in what many believe was their best showing of the year.

"It was our finest match of the season," commented Notre Dame head coach Bob Bulpin. "We controlled the play in both singles and doubles. The players were able to set a tone that Wisconsin couldn’t counter."

Fifth-year senior and emotional leader, both on and off the court, Andy Zurcher led the Irish head coach.

"It was our finest match of the season," commented Notre Dame head coach Bob Bulpin. "We controlled the play in both singles and doubles. The players were able to set a tone that Wisconsin couldn’t counter."

Fifth-year senior and emotional leader, both on and off the court, Andy Zurcher led the Irish.

In doubles, the 20th-ranked, number-one doubles duo of Crabtree and Tholen defeated Kim and Branauc Elsbury 6-4, 6-3 to provide the only win for the Irish.

Louderback hopes that the team’s disappointment over the loss to Northwestern will translate into increased motivation for the upcoming National Team Indoors.

"We have two weeks before the National Indoors," said Louderback. "We have to work on our doubles, and keep competing against each other in practice."

"We’ve got to bounce back."

The Observer • SPORTS
Monday, February 21, 1994

Women have 2-1 weekend

By KATE CRISHAM
Sports Writer

The third time didn’t prove the charm.

The 18th-ranked Notre Dame women’s tennis team blemished their otherwise stellar weekend performance yesterday, losing 7-2 to regional foe Northwestern.

The Irish had defeated 16th-ranked Miami 5-2 on Friday, and Kentucky 5-4 on Saturday, before running out of gas against the Wildcats on Saturday.

Head coach Jay Louderback refused to blame the loss on the grueling weekend schedule against three highly competitive teams.

"We should be able to play three in a row," said Louderback. "Usually we compete best in a pressure situation."

"It’s especially disappointing because Northwestern is a regional team, and it’s important to do well against regional teams," he said.

"(The loss) is not good at all," Louderback did praise his team’s play against Miami and Kentucky.

"I thought we played best against Miami," Louderback said. "We also played well at times against Kentucky, especially at the end."

The Irish dropped only two matches against Miami, sophomore Holyn Lord’s 2-6, 3-6 loss to Caroline Hora at number-two singles and senior Lisa Tholen’s 6-7, 4-6 loss to Rachell Viollet. Sophomore Wendy Crabtree defeated Michelle Fry 6-3, 6-1 at number-one singles and sophomore Sherri Vitale defeated LeAnn Guikin 6-3, 6-2. Senior Christy Faustmann defeated Katy Fairweather 6-1, 6-0 and freshman Erin Gowen defeated Jana Lipkin 6-0, 6-0 to seal up the victory for the Irish.

In Saturday’s match against Kentucky, the Irish received double wins from Crabtree and Lord. Crabtree defeated Sue Bartl 6-3, 6-3 at number-one singles before teaming with Tholen to defeat Erica Gianci and Sheri Bash 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 at number-one doubles. Lord defeated Jana Lipkin 6-0, 6-0 to number-three doubles.

The luck of the Irish ran out in the match against Northwestern, however. Crabtree was the only winner in singles, defeating Elska Kim 6-3, 6-4 in number-one singles. In doubles, the 20th-ranked, number-one doubles duo of Crabtree and Tholen defeated Kim and Branauc Elsbury 6-4, 6-3 to provide the only win for the Irish.

Louderback hopes that the team’s disappointment over the loss to Northwestern will translate into increased motivation for the upcoming National Team Indoors.

"We have two weeks before the National Indoors," said Louderback. "We have to work on our doubles, and keep competing against each other in practice."

"We’ve got to bounce back."

Men’s Tennis coasts to easy 7-0 victory

By PHIL LANGER
Sports Writer

The 14th-ranked Notre Dame men’s tennis team simply took care of business this weekend by shutting out a tough and talented Wisconsin squad 7-0. The Irish failed to lose a set in what many believe was their best showing of the year.

"It was our finest match of the season," commented Notre Dame head coach Bob Bulpin. "We controlled the play in both singles and doubles. The players were able to set a tone that Wisconsin couldn’t counter."

Fifth-year senior and emotional leader, both on and off the court, Andy Zurcher led the Irish.

In doubles, the 20th-ranked, number-one doubles duo of Crabtree and Tholen defeated Kim and Branauc Elsbury 6-4, 6-3 to provide the only win for the Irish.

Louderback hopes that the team’s disappointment over the loss to Northwestern will translate into increased motivation for the upcoming National Team Indoors.

"We have two weeks before the National Indoors," said Louderback. "We have to work on our doubles, and keep competing against each other in practice."

"We’ve got to bounce back."

The Observer • SPORTS
Monday, February 21, 1994
CALVIN AND HOBBES

BILL WATTERTON

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Like Job
6. Bob or beehive
14. Leisurely musical pieces
15. Decrees
17. Pentagon advocate?
19. Pastor piece
20. Ex-Knick coach
21. Author of "Life in London"
22. Heart of France
24. Part
25. West Robert Reich?
26. Medical apprentice
27. Ease
28. Blue "Yellow Submarine" characters

DOW N

1. Falsefire accounts
2. Chick ender
3. Whole House heavyweight
4. Beach Boys' "--- Around"
5. "--- kleine Nachtmusik"
6. Titan tip
7. Poetic monogram
8. Spa installation
9. Maestro Toscanini
10. Words often exchanged
11. Taste as unlikely
12. Down Under dog
13. "Love Story" star
14. January 1 song ending
15. Riding the waves
16. Builtlist pries
17. Walk with difficulty
18. Unwanted classification,
19. Printing style
20. Hawaiian state
21. Kingston and others
22. Fee schedule
23. Friend of Ernie
24. Bills solo
25. Caterpillar construction
26. Advantage
27. Ceiling company
28. Intersection maneuver
29. Asks for a loan
30. They trip up foreigners
31. Magician's sound effect
32. First or home
33. Didd's way
34. Oenologist's interest
35. Entry
36. Costume character
37. Prior to Prior
38. mongram
39. Accounts
40. Ancient beginning
41. Of course
42. Nato's collar
43. "Since -------
44. View Frees
45. Magician's sound effect
46. "--- Around"
47. Last of the Mohicans
48. Spanish struggle
49. "SInce -------
50. "--- kleine Nachtmusik"
51. Not for
52. Juan's uncle
53. Precedes neighbors
54. Ren's piano practice?
55. Tympanic membrane
56. Guides, in a way
57. Menu listings
58. Revised
59. "SInce -------
60. Have you?
61. Not for
62. Possession
63. Guides, in a way
64. Brews tea
65. Menu listings
66. Bandleader
67. "SInce -------
68. Have you?
69. Not for
70. Possession
71. Guides, in a way
72. Brews tea
73. Bandleader
74. "SInce -------
75. Have you?
76. Not for
77. Possession
78. Guides, in a way
79. Brews tea
80. Bandleader
81. "SInce -------
82. Have you?
83. Not for
84. Possession
85. Guides, in a way
86. Brews tea

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S H A R O N  C O S  A L
T U N D E R  E L L E R  G A L
S O R  B I G  T O M E R
A D D  R E B  O N

J O H N  T R I E T E R  L A P
D O N  A.  A B D I S  O L A N

W E S T  R I E T E R  L A P
L A R  R O B  A N
R A D I O  S A U V S
S E R E N  A S P A H
S I N  L O U E  S H A R R I E
R E E F  E D  G L O N
E N  D  O E S  N A T A N

Get answers to any three clues by touch-tone phone: 1-900-420-5566 (75¢ each minute).

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

CALVIN AND HOBBES

BIL MARRON

CALVIN AND HOBBES

BIL MARRON

Tuesday, February 21, 1994

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON

THE OBSERVER • TODAY

JAY HOSLER

T H E  F A R  S I D E

GARY LARSON
SPORTS

Bengal Bouts open quietly

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Editor

Thugs and the unskilled needn’t apply.
This is the Bengal Bouts—boxing for the sophisticated Notre Dame man—minus the blue blazer.

The quarterfinals of the annual Bengal Mission Bouts were surprisingly tame under the lights of Stepan Center Sunday. Just as Dulac would have scripted, there were skilled boxers between the ropes in nearly all 34 bouts, no controversial decisions, few low blows and only small puddles of blood.

“Most of the decisions were split and only two of the bouts didn’t go the distance. The first few weight classes started the Bouts on a thrilling note and the last divisions excited the crowd enough to assure filled seats for Tuesday’s semifinals. All the top seeds advanced but most with a little more difficulty than expected. With most of the premier fighters earning quarterfinal byes, it was a day for the unheralded to shine.

After competitive bouts in the 135 and 140-pound classes the bell rang on the 145-pound division which was tagged the bout’s most competitive after the pairings were released Thursday.
The favorite Michael Ahern advanced easily over senior Joe Hartzell, but then Dan Couri disqualified the fans with a beating of junior southpaw Sean Hamer.

Couri’s opponent in the semifinals will be impressive freshman Butch Cabreros who ended his fight with a stiff right at 1:28 in the third.

The 155-pound division also proved to be highly balanced. All the favorites advanced, but not without work. Freshman Todd Garlitz battled for a split decision over sophomore Rick Rodgers in the division’s closest fight. Rodgers forget a vital piece of protective equipment delaying the start of the fight, and also forget about Garlitz uppercut in the third which may have turned the decision.

see BENGALS / page 15

Demon cash in on Irish mistakes

By JASON KELLY
Associate Sports Editor

Monty Williams is Notre Dame’s money player.
But his finances may have gotten in the way during Sunday’s 73-63 loss to DePaul.

A verbal battle between Williams and DePaul’s Tom Kleinschmidt escalated into a full-blow economic discussion earning both players a technical foul.

It was Williams fifth foul, forcing him out of the game with four minutes remaining and Notre Dame trailing 57-46.

“I came into the game and he threw a little shove at me,” Kleinschmidt said. “Then he was saying how he was going to make more money than me. I don’t know if he was frustrated or what.”

Williams’ frustration was evident when he went after De-Paul’s Bryant Bowden after a hard foul on Lamarr Justice.
And when Kleinschmidt entered the lineup 20 seconds later Williams continued jaw-ning to protect his teammates from what he felt was unnecessary roughness.

see DEMONS / page 16

Monty Williams tangles with three DePaul Blue Demons in an incident which stiffled any Irish comeback attempt in the 76-63 loss.

see MONTY / page 16

Inside SPORTS

Men’s Tennis
Andy Zaccher led the Irish to an easy victory over the badgers of Wisconsin.
see page 18

Irish Hockey
Troy Casey tallied for the Irish but it was not enough as Notre Dame fell again
see page 17

Women’s Hoop
Kara Leary and Notre Dame’s women’s basketball team look to bounce back from loss at Louisville
see page 17

SPOCTS