Service held for crash victims

Notre Dame chairman escapes fatal flight 427

By DAVE TYLER
Associated Press

Despite the last second loss by his football team this weekend, Andrew McKenna, Chairman of Notre Dame's Board of Trustees, considered himself "very lucky." "I almost wasn't here," McKenna said in an interview this weekend.

Andrew McKenna was a passenger on US Air Flight 427 from Charlotte, N.C., to Chicago on Thursday afternoon. That plane then took off bound for Pittsburgh. Shortly after 7:00 p.m. CDT, the jet mysteriously plunged into a field six miles from its destination, killing all 332 passengers and crew aboard.

"I feel very fortunate to have made the last safe landing in that aircraft," he said. While he was lucky to leave, McKenna had a conversation with the pilot.

The third possibility is that air-brakes on the wings, which help control the plane's direction, may have deployed improperly.

Investigators believe something caused the plane's right wing to drop, which in turn caused the plane to drop to the left. Vogt said.

The crash of a Boeing 767 that plunged 24,000 feet into

Mishel touts change for economy

By ETHAN HAYWARD
News Writer

Change is necessary for progress to business and politics, according to Lawrence Mishel, Research Director of the Economic Policy Institute.

In his lecture, "The Polarization of America: Where Have the Good Jobs Gone?," Mishel said that the economic problem facing America is that the median wage keeps dropping and the wage gap is not significant.

According to Mishel, polarization is the continuing trend of economic growth benefiting only the majority privileged class and not the vast majority of citizens.

He presented statistics showing how average wages have been declining since 1979, only slightly less for women than men, while the upper one per cent of wage earners increased their income at a rate of sixty per cent in the same time period.

Mishel said that the nation's economic institutions are prone to reporting only good news rather than the objective story. Institutions sometimes present false reasons for the stagnation of wages, such as slow productivity growth, substandard education, and government-sponsored employee benefits, according to Mishel.

The conventional wisdom holds that new technology has created more demand for high-tech, skilled and educated workers, according to Mishel.

Mishel pointed out employers' efforts to cut costs and increase production, presenting practices such as overseas purchasing and employment of temporary workers as trends which would allow them to avoid out-paying well-paying, permanent jobs.

Mishel called himself a "doom and gloom" man, meaning he has no good news for the present or future economy unless radical change takes place soon.

Mishel discussed several possible solutions in the wage dilemma, and he said that "the ideology of business and politics requires severe changes if progress is to take place.

PITTSBURGH

Hymns echoed through a crowded downtown square Monday as 2,000 people gathered at lunchtime to mourn the victims of US Air Flight 427.

"May God give me some answers to what happened," said Pam Kastelmeyer, whose nephew's daughter was among 332 people killed when the jet crashed Thursday in a wooded ravine.

Some of the victims' loved ones were seen through several prayers, but they broke down and sobbed as they read the names of the dead. A wreath adorned with red carnations and tiny white flowers stood alone in front of a stage set up in a city square, the city's business district.

About 20 miles away at the crash site, investigators continued their search for clues.

Carl Hill, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, told reporters Monday night that investigators are using a computer model of the plane to test three possible scenarios they think may have caused the crash.

One scenario is that the right engine of the Boeing 737-3003 crashed near Pittsburgh International Airport. A flight crew reported problems with the engine's thrust reverser 3-1/2 months ago.

Another scenario is that the right engine came loose from its position near the wing. The right engine's thrust mount has not been found, although the forward mount has been located.

"It would definitely involve a big fight, so we're trying to determine the importance of a major concert in the spring," he said.

The organization of a massive underworld and clothing drive to benefit parishes in Puerto Rico and hopefully the realization of a big concert were new goals right now, he said.

"Changing policy isn't a huge goal of ours," he said. "We're basically trying to change the way students view life and view the school and provide more opportunities to have fun." According to Hungeling and Orsagh, changes in the organization and structure of student government have allowed things to run more efficiently.

"Things are running good, mainly because we have a lot of autonomy among the various commissioners," Hungeling said.

"We've also tried to have a smaller staff and to cut down on needless expenses and correspondence," Hungeling said. "We're also being more frugal with how we advertise."

"All in all everything is going well."
You're never going to beat us, so join us

I have seen the happiest places on earth, and I didn't have to give the Disney Corporation a couple of cents to get to.

Last year, I went along with my friend Reva Tweety to what has to be the most hallowed ground on the Stanford campus. Gate 10 of the Football Stadium. Never been there? Let me illuminate.

You see, I love smoking. No, I don't smoke because I think it looks cool (although it does—ever see Casablanca?). And I don't smoke to get back at my parents for never getting me that car at sixteen. I smoke because, like most smokers, I like the taste of cigarette smoke (for that matter, cigars). I also like smoking because it makes me feel a little indispensable after three quarters of a Papa John's roni and a six-pack of Natural Light. I like smoking because it passes time—time for the bank of walking distances in terms of: smoking; Stanford, my former home, is exactly one smoke away from New Haven.

But most of all, I like smoking because I like smokers and they like me. Smokers are looked down upon by every non-smoking soul on earth, and it brings us together. Even cough rudely as you please; you'll find there's no lineup of people on the steps of LaFortune just smoking and talking. Well, most of us don't know each other. We talk because we like talking in general, and it makes us unafraid. If you can't think of anything to say, you just take a drag and wait for something to come to mind. It's by far the easiest way to come up to people. You just say: "How do you smoke?"

You just say: "How do you smoke?"

Bush's son claims governor's nomination

Jeb Bush became the Republican nominee for governor of Florida on Monday in his closest contest, a runoff election. The 41-year-old son of former President Bush will face Democrat Lawton Chiles in November. Bush won 46 percent of the vote in Thursday's GOP primary, just short of the majority needed to win the nomination outright. That set him up for an Oct. 4 runoff against Secretary of State Jim Smith, the second-place finisher with 18 percent. Bush announced his withdrawal from the race Monday at a news conference attended by Bush. "Too much has come up. No way to do it," Smith said. "There would have to be a bloodletting." Smith gave his support to Bush. "Jeb is certainly a young man with a lot of energy," he said. His withdrawal was made before the primary results were officially certified, so the Bush-Smith race would be decided on the runoff ballot, state election officials said. "He's putting aside his ambitions for the primaries," C. Michael Armstrong, chairman and chief executive, said Monday.

Hughes to lay off 4,000 employees

GM Hughes Electronics will lay off 4,000 workers as part of a cost-cutting program prompted by shrinking defense spending. The layoffs, which will take place by the end of year, represent the largest yet of the aerospace company's worldwide work force. Hughes builds missiles and radar, air traffic control and large-scale air-defense systems, including the system NATO uses in Europe. "We must continue to maintain a competitive edge," he said. His withdrawal was made before the major results were officially certified, so the Bush-Smith race would be decided on the runoff ballot, state election officials said. "He's putting aside his ambitions for the primaries," C. Michael Armstrong, chairman and chief executive, said Monday.

In Iowa, Bush leads in Republican primary

Iowa's governor, Terry Branstad, a flamboyant politician who rose from a small-town farm to the top of the Republican party in the Hawkeye State, faces a serious challenge in his re-election bid. The contest is one of the closest in the country, with Branstad leading in early polls but trailing in the final days of the campaign. The race is a key test of the state's conservative political climate. The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.
Small plane crashes on White House lawn

By JOHN ROLL

A small plane crashed early this morning from an airfield near Aberdeen, according to relatives.

Frank Corder, 39, apparently stole a small plane early this morning from an airfield in Harford County north of Balti-

More, flew it to Washington and crashed on the White House lawn just short of the mansion. He died in the crash.

John Corder, 41, said he hadn't talked with his brother since he moved out of the Perry Point house he shared with his wife, Lydia, three weeks ago. The couple didn't have any children.

Neighbors said they were a quiet couple who had moved to Perry Point about six weeks ago.

Frank Corder, who grew up in Aberdeen, had never been in trouble with police and didn't hold strong political beliefs, John Corder said in a telephone interview from his Aberdeen home. A state police official confirmed that Corder didn't have a police record.

John Corder said he couldn't explain his brother's actions today.

"To tell you the truth, I can't explain it. I don't know. It came as a real surprise to me," he said.

Other relatives said Corder had a drug problem and grew despondent after his father died of cancer last year and may have been committing sui-dide when he crashed onto the White House grounds.

"I think he just went to pieces," said Edith Dishman, Corder's aunt. "He did this to destroy himself."

His first-cousin Dee George, of Havre de Grace, said Corder was also distraught over the separation from his wife.

"Frank has been down on drugs and alcohol before. He told me that sometimes ... he just wished he had a gun," she said.

But Ms. George said Corder seemed upbeat when she last saw him five days ago.

She described him as a "typical American Joe. He was a jeans and T-shirt type of guy. He was real friendly. He'd talk to anybody he'd help anybody," she said.

Another brother, William Corder, told CBS that Frank was not a violent man and never expressed any compliments about President Clinton.

Corder had undergone alcohol detoxification at the Perry Point Veterans Hospital.

"The IRA has not avenged the attack was the first in Ireland since the Irish Republican Army announced a cease-fire, Irish Prime Minister Albert Reynolds clasped hands in Dublin with Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams.

The attack was a warning to the Irish government "that Northern Ireland is still British and will not be coerced, forced or persuaded into a united Ireland," the outlawed Ulster Volunteer Force said.

The Combined Loyalist Militi-

ary Command, representing the Ulster Defence Association, said last week that it would not consider a cease-fire until it sees what plans Britain and Ireland have for Northern Ireland.

Just a week after the cease-

fire, Irish Prime Minister Albert Reynolds clasped hands in Dublin with Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams.

Beat the Clock Tuesday

The PAPA Zone

If you call during 5 p.m. -7:30 p.m the price of a large, one-topping pizza is the time you call plus tax!

It's Time to Call Your Papa! • 271-1177

The Opening Mass

of the

NDE 4th Day

Community

Will be

Wednesday, September 14th

at the Grotto 8:30 p.m.

Bring blankets if it's cold!

Protestants responsible for bomb

By TOM McPHAIL

Protestant militants claimed responsibility for a bomb that injured two train passengers Monday, and said the attack was a warning that Northern Ireland's Protestant majority would not be "coerced, forced or persuaded into a united Ireland."

The attack was the first in Ireland since the Irish Republican Army announced a cease-

fire Aug. 31 in its violent 25-

year campaign to drive the British from Northern Ireland.

Britain and Ireland appealed to the IRA not to retaliate. The IRA has not avenged three attacks by Protestant militants in Northern Ireland since the cease-fire was announced.

Protestant extremists fear the evolving peace process will pull Northern Ireland out of Britain and into a union with Ireland.

According to spokesman Cyril Ferris, it was too late to clear the train.

Minutes before the explosion, the outlawed Ulster Volunteeer Force sent a coded warning to Ulster Television, the airport, and the city hall.

In Belfast, the group said the attack was a warning to the Irish government "that Northern Ireland is still British and will not be coerced, forced or persuaded into a united Ireland."

The Combined Loyalist Militi-

ary Command, representing the Ulster Volunteer Force, announced a cease-

fire Aug. 31 in its violent 25-

year campaign to drive the British from Northern Ireland.

Just a week after the cease-

fire, Irish Prime Minister Albert

Reynolds clasped hands in Dublin with Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams.

The Observer is now accepting applications for the position. Please submit a letter of intent and resume by Thursday, Sept. 15 at 5 p.m. Questions? Call Michael Martin at 631-5323.
Despite illness, Mitterrand remains

By ELAINE GANLEY
Associated Press

PARIS - President Francois Mitterrand, looking pale but combative, said Monday he hadn't considered resigning but would work even more to stay to the end, "the way I fight," he said in a 90-minute television interview amid a growing scandal over ties to Nazi collaborators.

"And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win," he said.

Mitterrand conceded that his illness could "accelerate," but with that, so far, it has not interfered with his official functions.

It was Mitterrand's first television interview since undergoing a second operation in July. The interview was conducted by the head of the state-run France 2 network, Jean-Pierre Elkaïm.

Mitterrand said his cancer had "not been reduced" by treatment.

"I'm in a situation of combat," said the chief of state, whose pale face, sometimes quaking hands and raspy voice attested to his illness and treatment. "And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win."

Mitterrand said his cancer hadn'tconsidered resigning but sounded like he hadn't considered resigning but wouldn't quit over a scandal about his ties to Nazi collaborators.

If detractors tried to force him out, "I would work even more to stay to the end," the president said.

Mitterrand defended a relationship he maintained until the 1980s with Rene Bouquet, police chief in the collaborationist Vichy government. And he admitted that he intervened to slow legal proceedings in the interests of French "reconciliation."

Bouquet was murdered in 1993.

Mitterrand spoke in a 90-minute television interview amid a growing scandal over his ties to Nazi collaborators and questions about whether he remains physically fit enough to remain in office until the end of his term in May.

The 77-year-old president, the doyen of European leaders, has been in office since 1981.

Discovery's robot performs tasks

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. - Discovery's Mr. Romps, the first U.S. robot in space, zipped through its manufacturing work with semiconductors aboard the shuttle Monday and even completed extra chores.

The robot master was impressed.

"We're pleased, keeping our fingers crossed, knocking on wood," NASA project manager Lloyd Purves said from the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

Romps, short for Robot Operated Materials Processing System, heated 29 semiconductor crystals in furnaces as Discovery's six astronauts slept.

NASA spent $3 million on the experiment, most of that for the 1/2-foot, 250-pound robot itself operated Materials Processing at Greenbelt, Md.

Romps has a two-finger, viselike gripper with four sensors that tell the machine how much pressure it's exerting on objects.

Romps starts working in Discovery's cargo bay when the astronauts go to sleep, and quits when they wake up. The robot needs absolute calm to handle the crystals; any vibrations by the crew could ruin the samples.

"I'm in a situation of combat," said the chief of state, whose pale face, sometimes quaking hands and raspy voice attested to his illness and treatment. "And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win."

Mitterrand conceded that his illness could "accelerate," but with that, so far, it has not interfered with his official functions.

It was Mitterrand's first television interview since undergoing a second operation in July. The interview was conducted by the head of the state-run France 2 network, Jean-Pierre Elkaïm.

"I'm in a situation of combat," said the chief of state, whose pale face, sometimes quaking hands and raspy voice attested to his illness and treatment. "And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win."

Mitterrand said his cancer had "not been reduced" by treatment.

"I'm in a situation of combat," said the chief of state, whose pale face, sometimes quaking hands and raspy voice attested to his illness and treatment. "And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win."

Mitterrand conceded that his illness could "accelerate," but with that, so far, it has not interfered with his official functions.

It was Mitterrand's first television interview since undergoing a second operation in July. The interview was conducted by the head of the state-run France 2 network, Jean-Pierre Elkaïm.

"I'm in a situation of combat," said the chief of state, whose pale face, sometimes quaking hands and raspy voice attested to his illness and treatment. "And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win."

Mitterrand conceded that his illness could "accelerate," but with that, so far, it has not interfered with his official functions.

It was Mitterrand's first television interview since undergoing a second operation in July. The interview was conducted by the head of the state-run France 2 network, Jean-Pierre Elkaïm.

"I'm in a situation of combat," said the chief of state, whose pale face, sometimes quaking hands and raspy voice attested to his illness and treatment. "And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win."

Mitterrand conceded that his illness could "accelerate," but with that, so far, it has not interfered with his official functions.

It was Mitterrand's first television interview since undergoing a second operation in July. The interview was conducted by the head of the state-run France 2 network, Jean-Pierre Elkaïm.

"I'm in a situation of combat," said the chief of state, whose pale face, sometimes quaking hands and raspy voice attested to his illness and treatment. "And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win."

Mitterrand conceded that his illness could "accelerate," but with that, so far, it has not interfered with his official functions.

It was Mitterrand's first television interview since undergoing a second operation in July. The interview was conducted by the head of the state-run France 2 network, Jean-Pierre Elkaïm.

"I'm in a situation of combat," said the chief of state, whose pale face, sometimes quaking hands and raspy voice attested to his illness and treatment. "And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win."

Mitterrand conceded that his illness could "accelerate," but with that, so far, it has not interfered with his official functions.

It was Mitterrand's first television interview since undergoing a second operation in July. The interview was conducted by the head of the state-run France 2 network, Jean-Pierre Elkaïm.

"I'm in a situation of combat," said the chief of state, whose pale face, sometimes quaking hands and raspy voice attested to his illness and treatment. "And when I fight a battle, I do so as someone who will win."

Mitterrand conceded that his illness could "accelerate," but with that, so far, it has not interfered with his official functions.

It was Mitterrand's first television interview since undergoing a second operation in July. The interview was conducted by the head of the state-run France 2 network, Jean-Pierre Elkaïm.
Peacekeeping force lands at Puerto Rico base

By DAVID BEARD

PUERTO RICO

The first contingent of a multinational peacekeeping force for Haiti arrived Monday evening at a U.S. military base in Puerto Rico for at least two weeks of training.

About 150 soldiers and police from Antigua and Barbuda, Belize and Jamaica arrived at Roosevelt Roads Naval Station hours after 1,300 Marines wrapped up six days of military exercises at the vast base in eastern Puerto Rico.

They came aboard a jetliner that collected them from around the Caribbean.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher said 17 nations have agreed to send about 1,500 soldiers to assist American forces in the anticipated U.S.-led invasion of Haiti, aimed at ousting military rulers and restoring democracy.

The training of the multinational force, intended mainly for peacekeeping use after the invasion, would not affect the timing of any invasion, Christopher said from Washington.

Hundreds of U.S. Army Special Forces units and military police will help drill the Caribbean soldiers, Army Maj. Steve Paxton said.

Britain, one of the 17 nations providing troops, also will send a 12-member team to assist in the training, its defense ministry said Monday.

Jamaicans, who make up the bulk of the first unit sent to Puerto Rico, were given a send-off by their prime minister, P.J. Patterson, who urged them to help restore democracy to military-dominated Haiti.

Jamaica and Antigua and Barbuda were among Caribbean nations that committed troops to the U.S.-led invasion of Grenada in 1983, carrying out peacekeeping duties after American troops toppled leftists who had executed Prime Minister Maurice Bishop.

Belize and several other regional nations that had opposed the Grenada invasion, such as Guyana and Trinidad and Tobago, are supporting intervention to kick out military dictators and restore exiled civilian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

Training will begin Wednesday with the issuance of weapons and other equipment at Camp Santiago, a Puerto Rican National Guard base in southern Puerto Rico.

Liberia’s factions sign pact

By GILBERT AYTYTE

AKOSombo, Ghana

Liberia’s warring factions signed yet another peace pact on Monday, supposed to ensure that they keep to a previous accord to end the nation’s civil war.

The pact, officially an annex to the June 1993 agreement brokered by the United Nations, was signed late Monday on a yacht off Akosombo, a Ghanaian lakeside resort northeast of Accra.

It calls for an immediate cease-fire, elections next year and a five-member joint presidency of representatives of warring factions to govern in the meantime.

Those who signed were Gen. Hezekiah Bowen of the Liberian Armed Forces, Alhaji Kromah of the United Liberation Movement for Democracy in Liberia, and Charles Taylor, the main guerrilla chief whose leadership of the National Patriotic Front is in doubt.

Fighting broke out among Taylor’s fighters at his headquarters, the central Liberian town of Gbarnga, soon after he left for Ghana last week and spread to the weekend at the port town of Harper.

The U.N. military observer mission in Liberia announced on Saturday that a coalition of Taylor dissidents and fighters from a breakaway faction of Kromah’s movement appeared to have seized Gbarnga.

But fighting continued there on Monday, and Western aid officials said it was not clear who controlled the town.

Last week, leading defectors from Taylor’s movement announced they had ousted him from the leadership and replaced him with his former defense minister, Tom Woewiyu, who is one of the Taylor representatives in an interim government in Monrovia, the capital.

In a statement on Monday, Woewiyu said Taylor no longer had the power to represent the Patriotic Front at the talks in Ghana.

"Taylor has lost sight of the existing realities and remains the major obstacle to the restoration of lasting peace," Woewiyu said.

Woewiyu said his forces now controlled Gbarnga. But another statement from Monrovia later Monday, this one from Taylor loyalists, said they still held the town.

There have been no telephone communications in Liberia, outside of Monrovia, since 1990.

Taylor began the war in December 1989. What started as a popular rebellion to oust a tribalist dictatorship ballooned into a tribal war that the United Nations estimates has killed more than 150,000 people.

Two of every three of Liberia’s 2.3 million people are either displaced inside the country or refugees in other states.

The men who signed Monday’s accord all signed the June 1993 agreement that was supposed to have led to elections last week.

Instead, three more rebel groups have sprung up and the fighting has spread.

---

Fall Break Seminars

October 23-28, 1994  Experiential/Service Learning Center for Social Concerns

---

APPALACHIA SEMINAR
- Service learning at one of eleven sites in the Appalachian region
- One-credit Theology
- Information meeting (optional):
  Tuesday, Sept. 13, 6:30 - 7:00 PM

NEW WOMEN, NEW CHURCH
- Explore the changing role of women in the Church, and related issues of service
- Experiential learning at various sites, with women in social ministry
- One-credit Theology or Gender Studies

CULTURAL DIVERSITY SEMINAR
- Explore the cultural richness of Chicago
- Examines issues of diversity and related concerns
- One-credit Theology or Sociology
- Cosponsored with Multicultural Student Affairs

WASHINGTON SEMINAR

Theme: Our Violent Society
- Direct contact with political, agency, and Church leaders in Washington, D.C.
- Service and political awareness opportunities
- One-credit Theology or Government

Information meeting: Tuesday, Sept. 13: 6:15 - 6:45 PM

Applications Available Now at the Center for Social Concerns

Applications Due: Sept. 20, 1994

All Seminars Return Friday 10/28 for Parents’ Weekend
Cubans hopeful US restrictions will be lifted

By CHRIS TORCHIA
Associated Press

Havana

Encouraged by news that the United States will let more Cubans enter the country legally, hundreds of people milled around U.S. government offices in Havana on Monday, hoping for word on how to get a visa.

A spokesman for Cuba's Interior Ministry, however, said details of the new U.S.-Cuban immigration deal were still being worked out and would be announced in the state media.

"We've just got to be patient and wait," said Olga Rodriguez, sheltering herself from the sun with an umbrella. "If everything were all right in this country, we wouldn't have to go anywhere.

"In contrast to the busy scene at the U.S. offices, there were only a couple rafts on the shores of Cogimar. The Havana neighborhood has been a main departure point for thousands of Cuban boat people fleeing hunger and poverty in their Communist country this year.

Under a deal reached Friday, the U.S. administration agreed to allow at least 20,000 Cubans a year to immigrate legally. In return, Cuba promised to halt the flight of rafters and gave them until Tuesday to remove their crafts from the beach.

Crowds gathered in a park and on the street near the U.S. government offices. Some perched on stone walls, their bicycles propped up beside them.

"I have more faith," said Ricardo Lamonte, a 26-year-old accountant who wants to visit relatives in Texas and California. "But I realize that not everybody can get in." In the past, only a few thousand Cubans were allowed to immigrate each year, and most of the people who lined up outside the building seeking visas left empty-handed. The backlog is so great that visas granted now were applied for 10 years ago.

The United States closed its embassy after President Fidel Castro took power but maintains an interest section in the seafront building that used to house the embassy. The interest section is technically an arm of the Swiss Embassy.

Sonia Lobo, a 30-year-old school teacher, said she wasn't going to get her hopes up because her visa request had already been turned down twice. "We'll see how it goes," she said. "You can't lose hope but you get fed up sometimes." She said she hadn't wanted to flee in a homemade boat because the seas were too dangerous. Other people waiting said they were afraid of being taken to the U.S. Naval Base in Guantanamo Bay, at the far southern tip of Cuba, where the Coast Guard has been taking refugees picked up at sea since last month.

The U.S.-Cuban agreement says Cubans detained at Guantanamo may not enter the United States. They can stay at the base, return to Cuba or seek refuge in a third country. This weekend, frustrated Cubans at the base broke out of their camps, but U.S. Marines with fixed bayonets led most of them back to their tents. A 35-year-old Cuban suffered a bayonet wound Saturday and was hospitalized. U.S. officials said he was injured accidentally.

At the base Monday, a Cuban refugee jumped from a 40-foot cliff and died after landing on rocks, said U.S. Army Maj. Rick Thomas. He said the man was trying to reach a beach to go swimming after escaping from the refugee camp, which is surrounded by wheat fields outside Havana.

CUBANS hopful US restrictions will be lifted

North Korea offers soldier remains

By J.H. YUN
Associated Press

PANMUNJOM, Korea

North Korea, seeking improved ties with the United States, promised to hand over 14 coffins containing the remains of American soldiers killed in the 1950-53 Korean War, the first remains turned over this year.

The transfer Tuesday occurs at a time when the two long-time enemies are moving to improve ties in the midst of the longstanding dispute over the Communist North's nuclear program.

Last weekend, five U.S. diplomats visited the North's capital of Pyongyang for the first time and began talks on exchanging liaison offices, the first step toward normalizing relations. Simultaneous talks are under way in Berlin to replace the North's old-fashioned nuclear sites with technology less adaptable to weapons development.

The United States has said resolving nuclear tensions is essential to improving ties with the North, with which it has no formal relations. Another condition is the return of American war dead.

At the North-South border village of Panmunjom, 36 miles north of Seoul, North Korean soldiers are to hand over 14 coffins to U.N. honor guards.

U.S. officials say the remains will be sent to an army laboratory in Hawaii for evaluation and identification.

Catch the Action!

Round trip bus transportation to Michigan State

September 17th

The bus leaves the Alumni/Senior Club at 9:30 am

Tickets: $15

On sale now at the LaFortune information desk.

Student tickets to the game available through SUB lottery September 15th.

SOPHOMORES!!!!
Get Involved!

Apply for the position of IPW Sophomore Committee Chairperson!!

Applications available at LaFortune information desk September 12-16.

Application deadline September 16!!!

ART PRINT & POSTER SALE

Sponsored by LAFORTUNE STUDENT CENTER

FEATUREING:

• Prints of Master Artists
  (Including the works of Dalí, Gauguin, Kandinsky, Malevich, Miro, Monet, O'Keeffe, Picasso, Remington, Renoir, & Van Gogh, plus many others!)
• M. C. Escher Prints
• Personality Posters
• Rock Bands
• Black & White Photography
• Contemporary Posters
• Framed Prints

DATES: TODAY Thru FRIDAY
TIME: 9:30 A.M. - 6:00 P.M.
PLACE: NOTRE DAME ROOM (2ND FLOOR), LAFORTUNE STUDENT CENTER

3 PRINTS FOR ONLY $17!
Truce is evident, but future peace is uncertain

By MARK PORUBCANSKY
Associated Press

BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA
Change is striking in central Bosnia six months after Croat-Muslim fighting ended. Checkpoints replace front lines and Croatian trucks bring beer and bananas to Muslims once short of food.

But the anti-Serb alliance has yet to bridge differences on government structure, military strategy, the economy or refugees.

Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic and Croatian President Franjo Tudjman intend to meet Tuesday to try to smooth out the differences.

"If UNPROFOR were to leave for one reason or another, I think the federation would collapse pretty quickly," said J.F. Carter, U.N. civil affairs chief in Vitez. The U.N. force, UNPROFOR, continues to act as a go-between for the tenuous alliance.

The agreement called for establishment of eight districts, a federation government and constitution, a unified military command and eventually a condominium with Croatia.

But hopes that it could be used to draw Bosnian Serbs into an agreement that would end 2 1/2 years of war proved too ambitious.

Carter is pressing to reopen factories and start bringing small numbers of Muslim and Croat workers across the lines where they can get requalified.

Hundreds of thousands were left uprooted by the fighting. Officials say making the federation means sending refugees - like 67-year-old Muharem Smajic, back home.

Smajic's home was in the hamlet of Grbavica, overlooking the British U.N. base in Vitez. "It is completely destroyed," he said sadly. "The fruit trees are gone. It's a sin to cut down fruit trees."

Croatia fled the hamlet of Brakovic in Muslim-controlled territory about six miles to the north, leaving several dozen houses sprinkled on a hillside. Smajic and other Muslims moved in.

Smajic said the owner of the house where he lives now was killed on the back porch and pointed to a couple of bullet holes in the bricks.

People are waiting to see what their leaders will do. "They have stopped killing each other, and that's a lot," said Safet Drucic, mayor of the Muslim side of the divided town Mostar. "Everything else has to be directed from above."

The federation agreement meant the Bosnian army could concentrate on only one foe, the Bosnian Serbs, and at the same time secure lines for illicit supplies of weaponry that have helped it score limited gains.

All agree that Muslim and Croat military commanders have led the way into the federation, pioneering accords to separate forces and forming some joint patrols. They are negotiating a unified command to direct action against the Serbs, who still control 70 percent of Bosnia.

Bosnian army officers say they expect Croats to fight with them to regain Serb-held territory, but some Muslims fear Croats only will be interested in fighting for traditionally Croat territory.

The future of the U.N. force, essential to the federation's success, is in doubt. Britain, whose forces are posted in the Vitez area, says it will pull out if the United States lifts the arms embargo.

The Observer
the News Department is now accepting applications for

Copy Editors

Please submit a letter of intent and resume by Thursday, Sept. 15 at 5 p.m. Questions? Call Sarah Doran at 631-5323.

The Observer • NEWS page 7

Two of the most popular bundles on campus this year.

Notre Dame Computer Store
Room 112 CCMB • 631-7477
How to beat the system. How to beat the system.
Maximizing your metabolism

By Joanne Pavin

As summer comes to a close, the beers, brats and babies become more of the scene. Gone are the days of the baby blues, those beers and brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to...

By Joanne Pavin

As summer comes to a close, the beers, brats and babies become more of the scene. Gone are the days of the baby blues, those beers and brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to...

By Joanne Pavin

As summer comes to a close, the beers, brats and babies become more of the scene. Gone are the days of the baby blues, those beers and brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to...

By Joanne Pavin

As summer comes to a close, the beers, brats and babies become more of the scene. Gone are the days of the baby blues, those beers and brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to...

By Joanne Pavin

As summer comes to a close, the beers, brats and babies become more of the scene. Gone are the days of the baby blues, those beers and brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to brats still linger beneath the belt buckle on what used to be a waist line. Picnic potato salad and carnival caramel corn have wants to look fit these days. Health awareness is on the rise and into the munchies madness. Don't fear. It's never too late to...
Entrepreneur Club hosts Velazquez

By MICHAEL MARTIN
Business Editor

Arthur Velazquez of Arteca Foods Inc. will be the featured speaker at the inaugural meeting of the Entrepreneur Club of Notre Dame on Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the LaFortune Ballroom, according to club president Jeanne Parsons.

Velazquez received a degree in Electrical Engineering from Notre Dame in 1960 and plays an active role in Chicago's Hispanic-American community as well as taking care of Arteca Foods, according to Parsons: "His speech will probably be of a motivational type, focusing on life after college," said Parsons. She also predicted an emphasis on the varied skills of business and industry environments.

The Entrepreneur Club started in two years ago as a way to get students thinking entrepreneurially, according to Parsons. It has since grown to encompass a variety of activities both in the campus and outside the area.

One of the activities of the club is the formation of the Student Advisory Boards that work in depth with small businesses in the area. The student research department, which operates and gives suggestions productive to the entrepreneur's practices. This kind of consulting benefits both the student and the company involved in a number of ways, observed Parsons. The club will also send a group of students to an entrepreneurship conference in the Chicago area which will be competitive to similar clubs around the nation. Along with these will be a Business Plan Contest, with plans judged by a committee of professors and businesspeople.

The club funds all of its activities through various fund raising activities that go on throughout the year. One of these is the Entrepreneur Grant, Card, issued jointly by the club and Student Government. This card will be open and expected to be very successful, based on its performance last year.

On average, general meetings are held with a speaker pertaining to Parsons. Every other month speakers are invited to discuss a variety of issues in today's business world.

Venezuela to sell state companies

By ED MCCULLOUGH
Associated Press

CARACAS, Venezuela

In a wide-ranging plan to boost the economy, the government will try to sell money-losing state companies and balance the budget, Finance Minister Julio Sosa Rodriguez said today.

Speaking before several hundred industrial and business leaders, Sosa projected the fiscal deficit will shrink to 2.5 percent of gross domestic product this year, and be eliminated by 1999. The budget supposed would be halved to about 30 percent by then.

Privatization of state hotels, race tracks, electric utilities, a steel mill, an aluminum plant, mines and forest will not be driven through the council's number of programs, from teaching English and introducing a technical dimension of the student and the company.

Last summer the council sent 45 interns abroad to work in places as varied as Russia and Singapore along with a number of other locales. A majority of these internships were funded directly through the NDCIBD. Franks said, adding that a number of NDCIBD-funded programs were first-time internships and he stated diversity in the intern program. As for some of the internships available, judging from the council the has already made and experienced its newness.

In a related program, the NDCIBD will be sending "business delegations" comprised of two students to Dublin, Prague, and Frankfurt later this semester. These students will be prodding foreign language abilities and will build contacts for the council's internship program, as well as observing international enterprises.

"Along with providing their expertise in specific subject areas, our intern partnerships extremely valuable functions for their employers," said Franks.

An example of these unique function was encountered by a team in Eastern Europe. "As much as they need to develop their infrastructures, they first need to build their economies, then small businesses. Our help has placed them in direct contact with our traders who have taken account into the ethical dimension of their business," said Franks.

Wednesday's large general meeting of the NDCIBD will be followed by regular meetings of special interest groups such as the Democracy Corps, Business Women's Veterinary Operations Management, Finance, and Axis (the organizing students' newness).

A student does not have to join one division exclusively, emphasized Franks. Each specializes on the different night of the week to allow all interested council members to attend.

These divisions administer a number of programs, from developing and promoting entrepreneurship business concepts in developing countries like Honduras and Poland and assisting local companies to enter emerging overseas markets through the council's Business Services division.

"Students have a great opportunity to be a controlling factor in the organization, emphasized Franks. "We really encourage people to follow their interests. There is a lot of work that can be done."

All majors are welcome and encouraged to come. The special skills that each different major brings broaden both the council and ability to promote commerce and ethics abroad.

"We are not just a business major oriented group," said Franks. "We want to fill a void in students' understanding of interacting with people as well as being a result of interest in the international business world.

Dated Sept. 8, the report has been released in the Defense Week, a newspaper that carries defense issues, reported the GAO finding on Monday's issue.

"There is uncertainty about whether the Air Force will be able to complete B-2 acquisition within the cost limitation," the GAO concluded. "Significant development, test, and production production efforts are required before the Air Force can meet its final performance configuration."

The Defense Department's chief arms controller, Mr. George Scherzer, responded while there are "still a lot of significant work on the B-2 program, close oversight will "ensure that the B-2 program is completed within the congressionally mandated cost ceiling."

News of the report surfaced a day before the Senate is expected to pass and send to President Clinton a $1.3 trillion defense bill that includes $125 million to study the nation's future bomber needs within the current $30 billion limit, according to Defense News. Senator Bob Dole introduced a bill that would allow the Air Force to sell the B-2 to European countries.

Now the Air Force has accepted two production models of the B-2.

The exotic shape of the B-2 looks like a flying wing — and its skin of radar-evading material has combined with the development of this technology to the so-called "black" air force, a bomber, which is built in Southern California by Northrop Grumman.

A key area of concern is the so-called radar cross section, or RCS, of the B-2. The cross section figure that authorizes which the B-2 is at all and allows it to fly, is noted that relatively minor changes in the bomber's configuration, such as adding a little 3D target, can produce a consistent profit.

Other problems include glitches in the airplane's radar system that enables it to fly low, even in mountainous areas, and with the plane's electronic components.
Tuesday, September 13, 1994 The Observer

By BARRY WILNER
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA
It was vintage Randall at the Vet.
It was vintage Cunningham.
It was Eagles football.
It was fun.

Eagles, Cunningham hang on to bury the Bears, 30-22

Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski, who early in the third quarter had thrown a 10-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Charlie Joiner, said it was vintage Randall. "I think he did it, coach, and I do," Jaworski said.

Cunningham wasn't the only Eagle, as middle linebacker Bill Bergey also excelled. "I thought he did it in the first time he has done it in successive games, he had 344 yards in a loss to the New York Giants last season.

Cunningham wasn't the only one, since "Billy" Bergey also played outstandingly. "I think he did it in the first time he has done it in successive games, he had 344 yards in a loss to the New York Giants last season.

Eagles head coach Dick Vermeil said he was proud of his team's performance. "I think we did a good job of controlling the clock and keeping the Bears from scoring," he said.

The Eagles now have a 2-1 record, while the Bears are 0-3.

Associated Press

EAGLES, CUNNINGHAM HANG ON TO BURY THE BEARS, 30-22

Tuesday, September 13, 1994

The Observer

Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski, who early in the third quarter had thrown a 10-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Charlie Joiner, said it was vintage Randall. "I think he did it, coach, and I do," Jaworski said.

Cunningham wasn't the only one, since middle linebacker Bill Bergey also excelled. "I thought he did it, coach, and I do," Jaworski said.

Cunningham wasn't the only one, since middle linebacker Bill Bergey also excelled. "I thought he did it in the first time he has done it in successive games, he had 344 yards in a loss to the New York Giants last season.

Eagles head coach Dick Vermeil said he was proud of his team's performance. "I think we did a good job of controlling the clock and keeping the Bears from scoring," he said.

The Eagles now have a 2-1 record, while the Bears are 0-3.

Associated Press

EAGLES, CUNNINGHAM HANG ON TO BURY THE BEARS, 30-22

Tuesday, September 13, 1994

The Observer

Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski, who early in the third quarter had thrown a 10-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Charlie Joiner, said it was vintage Randall. "I think he did it, coach, and I do," Jaworski said.

Cunningham wasn't the only one, since middle linebacker Bill Bergey also excelled. "I thought he did it, coach, and I do," Jaworski said.

Cunningham wasn't the only one, since middle linebacker Bill Bergey also excelled. "I thought he did it in the first time he has done it in successive games, he had 344 yards in a loss to the New York Giants last season.

Eagles head coach Dick Vermeil said he was proud of his team's performance. "I think we did a good job of controlling the clock and keeping the Bears from scoring," he said.

The Eagles now have a 2-1 record, while the Bears are 0-3.
Dolphins’ defense decimated by injuries

By STEVEN WINE
Associated Press

DAVE, Fla.

Injuries in the secondary which decimated the Miami Dolphins at the end of last season, threaten to hinder this year’s playoff bid as well.

Free safety Gene Atkins and cornerback Frank Smith were hurt in the 24-14 victory at Green Bay, and they’ll likely miss Sunday’s game against the New York Jets.

Smith was filling in for Troy Vincent, sidelined by a sore knee that may bother him all year.

Injuries to defensive backs plagued the Dolphins late last season, when they allowed 125 points in the final three games, lost them all and missed the playoffs.

Now Miami is 2-0 and poised to battle the Jets (also 2-0) for the playoffs.

The Dolphins’ defense toed the line against the New York Jets.

The Jets’ game with a strained right knee that may bother him all season, when they allowed 125 points in the final three games, lost them all and missed the playoffs.

“Sometimes it’s like a domino effect,” cornerback J.B. Brown said of the injuries. “There’s no explanation for it. You’ve got to go with whomever you have.”

Vincent hopes to play against the Jets. The third-year pro is rebounding from reconstructive knee surgery last December, and he may be in and out of the lineup much of the season.

“He has come along faster than most guys would have, so having him is a bonus,” defensive coach Tom Olivadotti said. “I’d like to have him in there all the time, but it doesn’t seem it’s going to be that way.”

The replacement for Vincent and Smith would be Muhammad Oliver, Darrell Malone or Tyrone Braxton.

“Any time you get more than one player injured at a position, it gets into depth problems,” Shula said.

Atkins would be replaced by Braxton or Chris Green. Middle linebacker Dwight Hollier, who missed Miami’s first two games with a knee injury, is expected to return to practice this week. If he’s healthy, he’ll replace Smith.

Bryan Cox will remain at middle linebacker.

The Dolphins, as the score clearly indicates, were dominated by Florida in every phase of the game — first downs (29-11), rushing yards (314-68) and passing yards (278-136).

“We worked extremely hard last week, more than we normally would, because I felt it was a way to get our players’ heads out of the clouds,” he said.

“But I don’t think we succeeded in getting our heads out of the clouds. I think that was obvious. I think that we worked so hard and long that we were leg weary at the beginning of Saturday’s game.”

Curtis agreed that his team-mates wore down fast.

“I believe everyone’s legs got tired,” he said. “Going into the game, I think everybody was excited to play.”

And Florida didn’t help matters.

“We were up against a team that was great that day,” said Curry. “They made no mistakes. When Florida does not turn the ball over, they’re going to beat an awful lot of people.”

Curtis doesn’t want to lose sight of the victory over Louisville.

“We have a good football team,” he said. “We’ve already proven that this year and not some other time.”
Baseball season likely over

By RONALD BLUM
Associated Press

NEW YORK

Three days after the deadline passed to cancel what's left of the season, baseball players and owners weren't talking to each other.

Acting commissioner Bud Selig, who on Friday allowed his deadline to pass, said Sunday there was a possibility talks would restart.

"Let's hope so," the Brewers owner said in a telephone interview from his home in Milwaukee. "There isn't anything scheduled right now."

But nothing occurred by midafternoon. The players' executive board was scheduled to meet in the early evening. Owners on the executive counsel and the player relations committee spoke during a teleconference call and received an update of the weekend's events.

In Washington, the House Judiciary Committee announced that its economic and commercial law subcommittee will hold a hearing Sept. 22 on baseball's antitrust exemption.

Several bills have been introduced this year to strip the sport of its exemption but the only one that came to a vote was defeated in June by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Selig, who went to the Green Bay Packers' game on Sunday, said he will make an announcement about the season by Wednesday evening. Officials on both sides expect him to make the stunning announcement that the World Series won't be played for the first time since 1904.

"Tomorrow there will be a lot of internal meetings," he said.

Boston Red Sox chief executive officer John Harrington said when he left New York on Saturday that he intended to return at the start of the week. Harrington and Colorado Rockies chairman Jerry McMorris were involved in efforts to create a compromise last week, but Selig personally entered the talks for the first time Friday and rejected the players' new proposal.

"If there's any reason, I'll be back there fairly quickly," Selig said. "We'll continue to try if there is any vestige of hope left."

Union head Donald Fehr spent Sunday afternoon at his office, then returned home to suburban Westchester. Management negotiator Richard Bavitch, who attended the U.S. Open tennis tournament Saturday, spent Sunday at his home, also in Westchester.

"Nothing has happened as far as I know," Fehr said. "We haven't heard from anybody."

The strike entered its 32nd day today, matching the 1990 lockout as baseball's second-longest stoppage behind the 50-day strike of 1981.

Talks broke off Friday, with officials on both sides wondering why owners didn't take the framework the union proposed and counter with different numbers. Players proposed a 1 1/2 percent pay roll "tax" on the top 16 teams by revenue and a 1 1/2 percent payroll "tax" on the top 16 teams by payroll.
Belles soccer ready to take on Anderson

By TARA MOONEY
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary’s soccer team will face off against Anderson University at 4:00 p.m. this afternoon in their first home game. This will be the first time they have ever played Anderson University.

Still, the Belles are excited. “We are really confident about this game”, reported sophomore Shari Matelski.

Saint Mary’s College soccer team will have a very hectic week ahead. In fact, 1/3 of the Belles’ season will be played out this week, with the Saint Mary’s Classic occurring this weekend.

The Belles have five home games this week, including a game on Thursday at 4:00 p.m. and three games scheduled for this weekend against DePauw, Wisconsin Whitewater, and Illinois Wesleyan.

S.M.C. successfully opened the season at Lake Forest College on last Saturday, September 10 and currently have a record of 1-0. “We can play pretty well as long as we keep focused,” said junior Tiffany Raczynski.

This may be tough, considering a short pre-season camp. “Since pre-season time was limited, we focused on organizing the team for the upcoming season”, reported head soccer coach Larry Patterson.

Patterson as well as the players are looking forward to a great season. “I am very, very happy to be a part of the team”, expressed Shari Matelski.

Saint Mary’s College is in division III (enrollment under 5,000 students). Division III limits S.M.C. by forbidding recruiting and athletic scholarships. That means the players are just out there to play.

The Belles acquired some strong players this fall. The team is fairly young, including freshmen Sandra Gass, Eileen Newell, Sarah Dakel, Debra Diebler, Ann Fewell, Mary Clare Lucy, Lori Mrowka, and Keary Sullivan.

Photo Courtesy of Notre Dame Sports Information

Oriental Garden Restaurant

Located on the North Side of Sam’s Club in Wiltshire Plaza, Mishawaka

Full Chinese menu plus a selection of Japanese and Korean appetizers.

All food cooked in Heart Healthy Canola Oil
No MSG!

Dine-In or Carry Out

273-4290

[Promo]

15% OFF When you show your STUDENT ID or bring in this ad.

Belta Alpha Psi Presents:

ACCOUNTING CAREER NIGHT

WHO: Open to all. Seniors and juniors strongly encouraged to attend.

WHAT: 15 companies - both public and private firms - will be there to answer any and all questions.

WHEN: Wednesday, 9/14 from 6 - 9 pm.

WHERE: JACC Monogram Room.

kinko’s

the copy center

2202-C South Bend Ave.
Greenwood Plaza
271-0398

109 E. Jefferson
Jeffereson Centre
234-8709

Outperforming the competition.

Irish hoop schedule set

Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind.

Three trips to the West Coast and home again against perennial powers Duke, Indiana and Kentucky are included in a 27-game 1994-95 men’s basketball schedule announced by Notre Dame on Monday.

Coach John MacLeod’s team will face nine teams that were in last year’s NCAA tournament and three that played in the National Invitation Tournament. The Irish will play 16 home games at the Joyce Center, starting with a Nov. 27 visit by Valparaiso. Indiana visits the Irish Nov. 29.

Notre Dame then makes its first road trip to the West Coast, facing San Diego on Dec. 3 and Loyola Marymount on Dec. 5. Notre Dame returns to the West Coast to play Oregon State on Dec. 27 in the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore. Oregon and George Washington are also in the tournament with the third place and championship games scheduled Dec. 28.
An Appalachia Seminar Informational meeting

CROSSWORD

THE FREE

EXPRESSION

OK, FIRST LET ME EXPLAIN ABOUT OUR RESPONSIBILITY TO BE CULTURALLY EDUCATED AND ABLE TO MAKE INFORMED DECISIONS ABOUT

YOU'RE STALLING

DILBERT

BOB, I'LL YANK THE CAT OFF OF RATBERTS' HEAD AND YOU STOMP ON IT!

CROSSWORD

ACROSS

39 Passage
37 Can't's nephew
35 Behave
33 Clerm supper
31 Sacred song
29 Onetime medicinal herb
27 Champagne
25 Elian
23 Charitable foundations.
21 Chinese ideal
20 Part of a wagon train
19 Ment award
18 Use
16 Candy brand
15 Paint unskillfully
13 Medal of National Park
12 Harem chief
11 Battle site
10 Cloud in the sky
9 Edible feature
8 Soft leather
7 Farewell
6 Result of tumbling rubber?
5 Ore layer
4 Maria Rivas
3 Tito Ramirez
2 Jacks of all-trades
1 Wood trimmer
20 Weekly World News rival
19 Beaded shoe, for short
18 Chinese-Portuguese enclave
17 Coffee server
16 Ice cream mold

DOWN

1 Drouet locale
French call for help
2 — in the sky
3 Edible feature
4 Soft leather
5 Farewell
6 Result of tumbling rubber?

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

!Puzzle

The Observer

Published Monday through Friday, The Observer is a vital source of information on people and events in the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's Community.

Join the more than 13,000 readers who have found The Observer an indispensable link to the two campuses. Please complete the accompanying form and mail it today to receive The Observer in your home.

Make checks payable to and mail to:

The Observer
PO Box Q
Notre Dame, IN 46556

- Enclosed is $60 for one academic year.
- Enclosed is $35 for one semester.

Name
Address
City State Zip

Wanted: Reporters, Photographers, and Editors.

Join the Observer Staff!!
Women's golf team shows promise for the future during Redbird Classic

By JOE VILLINSKI

Freshmen King and Melby lead the way for Lady Linksters

By JOE VILLINSKI

Not only is the Notre Dame volleyball team off to its best start ever with a record of 9-0 going into its match tonight against the Boilermakers of Purdue University, but they are also in first place in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference, with individual leaders in the categories of kills average, digs average, and assists average.

As far as the team effort is concerned, the Irish lead the conference in hitting percentage and digs per game with 15.9. Senior co-captain Christie Peters leads the conference with 120 kills and 90 digs in 28 games, and junior Shannon Tuttle leads with her superior setting of 315 assists in 28 games, an average of 11.25 assists per game.

Tuttle's performance as setter has been a key in the Irish success this season. The position of setter is one of great importance and leadership on the court, but Tuttle remains humble about her contribution to the team, and her position as conference leader in assists.

"The team is passing very well," said Tuttle. "It is easy for me. All I have to do is get the ball in the air, and it's easy to decide who to set, "she added.

The Irish will look for a strong performance from Tuttle against the Boilermakers tonight, especially with Purdue's strength lying in its middle blocking.

The Boilermakers are 2-4 going into tonight's match, but lead the series with the Irish 10-3, even though it has been the Irish advantage the last two years. Purdue returns three starters and eight letterwinners to this year's roster.

Purdue has not looked especially threatening thus far this season, but the Irish look for a challenge from the Boilermakers.

"They haven't been playing well, but they usually do against us," said Tuttle.

The match versus Purdue tonight is of special importance to the Irish team, mostly because it is one step closer to the Indiana "state championship." The Irish have defeated Valparaiso and Indiana, and a victory over Purdue would mean that the only team in the way of the state crown would be conference rival, Butler University, who the Irish face at the end of next month.

One of the other goals for the Irish, in addition to ruling the state of Indiana, is to remain unbeaten. The team is currently 6-0 at home and 5-0 on the road. In fourteen years of volleyball at Notre Dame, the Irish record has been 114-48 at the Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center.

Under Coach Debbie Brown, who is in her fourth year as coach of Notre Dame, the Irish are an amazing 40-3 at the JACC. That adds up to an average of only one home loss in each of her four seasons with the Irish.

Coach Brown and the Irish team look to remain undefeated going into the Colorado Coors tournament in Boulder, Colorado, this weekend in which they will face Colorado, Michigan State, and Texas A&M.

Women's golf team shows promise for the future during Redbird Classic

By JOE VILLINSKI

Not only is the Irish Notre Dame volleyball team off to its best start ever with a record of 9-0 going into its match tonight against the Boilermakers of Purdue University, but they are also in first place in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference, with individual leaders in the categories of kills average, digs average, and assists average.

As far as the team effort is concerned, the Irish lead the conference in hitting percentage and digs per game with 15.9. Senior co-captain Christie Peters leads the conference with 120 kills and 90 digs in 28 games, and junior Shannon Tuttle leads with her superior setting of 315 assists in 28 games, an average of 11.25 assists per game.

Tuttle's performance as setter has been a key in the Irish success this season. The position of setter is one of great importance and leadership on the court, but Tuttle remains humble about her contribution to the team, and her position as conference leader in assists.

"The team is passing very well," said Tuttle. "It is easy for me. All I have to do is get the ball in the air, and it's easy to decide who to set, "she added.

The Irish will look for a strong performance from Tuttle against the Boilermakers tonight, especially with Purdue's strength lying in its middle blocking.

The Boilermakers are 2-4 going into tonight's match, but lead the series with the Irish 10-3, even though it has been the Irish advantage the last two years. Purdue returns three starters and eight letterwinners to this year's roster.

Purdue has not looked especially threatening thus far this season, but the Irish look for a challenge from the Boilermakers.

"They haven't been playing well, but they usually do against us," said Tuttle.

The match versus Purdue tonight is of special importance to the Irish team, mostly because it is one step closer to the Indiana "state championship." The Irish have defeated Valparaiso and Indiana, and a victory over Purdue would mean that the only team in the way of the state crown would be conference rival, Butler University, who the Irish face at the end of next month.

One of the other goals for the Irish, in addition to ruling the state of Indiana, is to remain unbeaten. The team is currently 6-0 at home and 5-0 on the road. In fourteen years of volleyball at Notre Dame, the Irish record has been 114-48 at the Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center.

Under Coach Debbie Brown, who is in her fourth year as coach of Notre Dame, the Irish are an amazing 40-3 at the JACC. That adds up to an average of only one home loss in each of her four seasons with the Irish.

Coach Brown and the Irish team look to remain undefeated going into the Colorado Coors tournament in Boulder, Colorado, this weekend in which they will face Colorado, Michigan State, and Texas A&M.