The Indy-style electrically powered race car at Notre Dame Irish Racing Team will clash with cars from four other schools this Sunday in Phoenix at Firebird International Raceway.

The 80-kilometer race will cap off a weekend of competition which begins today with the qualifying and continues into Sunday with the heat races. The main event will fire up Sunday at 1:45 p.m., when Notre Dame's car faces competitors from Arizona State and Bowling Green State Universities, the University of Arizona, and Carl Hayden High School of Phoenix.

The team hopes to continue its racing success, following what was a first-place finish over 11 opposing last July in the Cleveland Electric Formula Classic. They took second behind Ohio State University August in the Electrotec Formula Lightweight Indianapolis Raceway Park.

The Solar and Electric Racing Association of Phoenix, with the cooperation of Arizona Power Systems, developed an Indy-style race car in the summer of 1993 and began a program designed to further electric car technology while providing learning experiences to students.

The Observer/Dave Tyler

Faculty, students rally for GLND/SMC

By DAVE TYLER

Over three hundred members of the Notre Dame community turned out yesterday afternoon for a rally in support of Gays and Lesbians of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College (GLND/SMC).

Faculty, staff and students in the Fieldhouse Hall listening to speeches and readings from an assortment of speakers, and called on the administration to recognize GLND/SMC. The rally, which lasted about forty minutes, was sponsored by two students, senior Roberto Guerra, and junior Faye Kelly, leaders in the campus chapter of Amnesty International. The rally was given official approval by William Kirk, assistant vice-president for student affairs. Previous protests were not approved by Kirk's office.

Officials from Student Government brought a petition drive at the demonstration. Organizers announced that they hope to present the signed petitions for an advertisement in The Observer declaring support for the cause of GLND/SMC.

William Dole, co-chair of GLND/SMC, expressed disappointment at the administration's action in barring GLND/SMC from meeting in the University Counseling Center as a group. Hulingen noted that while the administration may not recognize GLND/SMC as an official organization, "we recognize you, accept you, and love you."

Mark Jordan, associate professor at the Medieval Institute, also spoke and pointed out Notre Dame traditions they would be subject to scrutiny if the administration used the same criteria it used to judge GLND/SMC.

"If the university cracked down on everything they found to be against Catholic Teaching, SYR's and a dozen other student activities would be shut down this afternoon," he said.

John Blandford, co-chair of GLND/SMC, addressed the assembly and thanked the Notre Dame community for its support during the past weeks. When I decided to...

The Observer/Dave Tyler

Senate kills budget amendment

Dole, Hatfield cast deciding votes

By DAVID ESPO

WASHINGTON

The Senate solemnly dealt defeat Thursday to the bal­anced-budget amendment to the Constitution, cornerstone of a broader Republican drive to cut spending and shrink govern­ment. Both sides sought political advantage in the residue of battle.

The 65-35 vote left the amendment just shy of the needed two-thirds majority, and followed Democratic acqui­sitions that the Republicans were threatening Social Secu­rity, a charge Majority Leader Bob Dole sharply denied.

At the White House, President Clinton challenged GOP leaders in Congress to detail "how they are going to keep the promises of their Contract [with Amer­ica] by reducing the budget and paying for their tax cuts."

Fifty-one Republicans and 14 Democrats voted for the amendment, while 33 Democrats and two Republicans—Mark Hatfield of Oregon and Dole—voted no.

Dole is a firm supporter. His vote—which left the amendment's supporters two votes short of victory—was cast solely to place him on the pre­vailing side, a parliamentary maneuver to keep the politica­tionally popular amendment alive for another possible vote during the 1996 election season.

"Let 'em try," Democrat leader Tom Daschle said defi­nitely a few hours before the vote. By opposing the amend­ment, he said, Democrats were saving Social Security trust funds from deficit cutters.

The amendment is designed to end the run-up in red ink that has the national debt ap­proaching $5 trillion. It calls for a balanced budget beginning in the year 2002, unless three­ fifths of both houses vote oth­erwise. Social Security aside, the amendment would simply badly written.
Barbie is not a realistic career goal

I had my first job interview ever the other day. It was hell. Pure hell. You know they were up late the night before, giggling, making sure at the curve balls they were going to throw me. "If I could be any type of cookie you wanted, what would it be and why?"

Uh, if I say Fig Newton, is that bad?

"You're on a plane that's hijacked over Siberia. What do you do?"

Uh, ask if they'd consider stopping for huggers.

"What's the square root of 576?"

Uh, can I come back to you on that one?

"Would you rather have one easy one. Then they throw me the clencher.

"Tell us about your direction in life."

Directly related? You want me to have one of those now, like today? Maybe I missed one.

"What do you want to be? No ifs, ands, or huts, that's what."

That he wanted to be. No ifs, ands, or huts, that's what.

I couldn't have predicted his future career choice. Minimal: At least it showed some direction in life.

At least it showed some direction in life.

"What are your future plans?"

"Stomp grapes. Wait year. Drink good wine in exotic foreign locales."

"2. Professional Godiva Chocolate taster"

"3. Bill Gates' or Michael Eisner's wife. 'Nuff said."

"7. Trashy romance novelist. Free royalties."

I couldn't have predicted his future career choice. Minimal: At least it showed some direction in life.

At least it showed some direction in life.

"What's the square root of 576?"

Uh, can I come back to you on that one?

"Would you rather have one easy one. Then they throw me the clencher.

"Tell us about your direction in life."

Directly related? You want me to have one of those now, like today? Maybe I missed one.

"What do you want to be? No ifs, ands, or huts, that's what.

That he wanted to be. No ifs, ands, or huts, that's what.

I couldn't have predicted his future career choice. Minimal: At least it showed some direction in life.
Sheehan to head education alliance

Sister Lourdes Sheehan R.S.M., U.S. Catholic Conference (USCC) secretary for education since 1990, will become director of the University of Notre Dame-sponsored Alliance for Catholic Education (ACE), effective July 1.

ACE, the brainchild of Father Timothy Scully, a vice president and associate provost at Notre Dame, was founded a year ago to provide committed Catholic teachers for understaffed parochial schools and to provide recent college graduates with intensive teacher training and opportunities for Christian community and personal growth.

The National Catholic Educational Association and the USCC Department of Education, heretofore under Sister Sheehan’s direction, are collaborators in ACE. Also a partner institution is the University of Portland, which operates the teacher training and master’s in education degree programs for ACE participants.

“In her role at the USCC, Sister Lourdes has been a part of ACE since its inception,” Father Scully said in announcing the appointment.

“It is a work of providence that she now has consented to step into the directorship of the program as we continue to set ambitious goals for its growth.”

Sheehan has been an educator and educational administrator for more than 35 years. Prior to joining the USCC, she served for five years with the National Catholic Education Association as executive director of its National Association of Boards of Education.

A native of Savannah, Ga., she was a teacher and principal in a number of schools in the Southeast from 1958-71, then served as superintendent of schools of the diocese of Richmond, Va., from 1972-82. She was provincial administration for her religious congregation, the Sisters of Mercy, Baltimore Regional Community, from 1984-85.

Sister Sheehan was graduated from Mount Saint Agnes College in Baltimore in 1958 with a bachelor’s degree in history and education.

She earned a master’s degree in colonial history from the University of Pennsylvania in 1963 and a doctoral degree in educational administration from Virginia Tech in 1981.

In its first year of operation, ACE has trained and placed 46 recent Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s graduates in 30 schools in dioceses across the country. "The ACE excites me and provides an opportunity to participate in a new and unique program to spur on Catholic schools," Sheehan said.

Happy 21st Birthday to Our Top "DAWG"

Sean Patrick Doughterty

Love,

Mom & Dad
Senate

continued from page 1

some opponents argued it would lead to devastating cuts and crippling efforts to deal with future economic emergencies and didn’t belong in the Constitu- tion.

A key element of “Contract With America,” it cleared the GOP-controlled House in Janu- ary on a vote of 300-132. Its rejection marked the sharpest setback to date for the conser- vative revolution that Republi- cans launched after gaining control of both houses.

The Senate vote also marked a remarkable triumph for 77-year-old West Virginia Demo- crat Robert Byrd, who led the opposition. He said afterward: “The issue has decided in favor of the sanctity of the Constitu- tion.

Republicans had looked to the measure to provide disci- pline for tough votes ahead. “It might make getting what we want to do harder,” Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Budget Com- mittee, said shortly after the vote. “For some senators, it might be easier to avoid the tough votes.”

Moments before the vote, Dole accused Democrats of playing blatant politics. “All of this talk about protecting Social Security is a cover for a tax increase,” he said. They voted two years ago, including higher levies on wealthy Social Security recipi- ents.

He said Republicans would soon propose a five-year plan to put the budget on a path toward balance by 2002. “Our plan will not raise taxes,” he said. “Our plan will not touch Social Security.”

Daschle said Democrats would gladly join in the deficit- cutting effort, but added, “It’s the Republicans who are in the leadership here.... We want to see what they’ve got.”

For the roll call finally oc- curred after a month of debate, it was dramatic, yet scripted, since every senator’s position was known in advance. They voted in alphabetical order, ris- ing at their desks by turn to answer the roll. Aides and House members lined the back of the chamber, and all eyes turned to Hatfield when he rose from his seat on the center aisle to utter the “no” that sealed the measure. Dole and other Republicans sharply attacked six Democrats for voting against the measure after supporting a virtually identical one last year.

In an indication of the mea- sure’s popularity, six other senators who face re-election next year — three Democrats and two Republicans — aban- doned past opposition to vote in favor.

No sooner had the measure died than Republicans an- nounced a news conference for Friday to discuss “plans to de-feat” Democratic-balanced- budget amendment opponents.

Presidential politics lurked in the background, as well, as did Dole. Daschle acknowledged that passage of the amendment under his leadership would have been a boon to his unan­ nounced bid for the White House.

Even so, said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, already in the race for the White House, “I don’t think anybody is going to fault Bob Dole.”

The vote capped a five-week debate that had been scheduled to end this week before Dole twice postponed the vote. That allowed for last-minute negotiations with Democrats, principally North Dakotans Kent Conrad and Byron Dorgan, over a compromise that would have gradually phased out use of the Social Security trust funds to balance the budget.

Five Democrats, more than enough to assure passage, later offered to support the measure if Republicans would pro- tect for the trust funds into the amendment.

Beyond the symbolic impor- tance of the issue, the impact would be enormous on deficit- cutting efforts.

The Observer • NEWS

Friday, March 3, 1995

The Observer

A springboard for the race?

March at Notre Dame

continued from page 1

The cars were to be built by students using the Formula Lightning chassis coupled to a motor and drive system of their own design. The program aimed to bring interested schools together in a race that would test the accomplish­ ments of the builders by pitting school against school.

Notre Dame’s car was con­ structed by undergraduates in the College of Engineering. The college entered the pro­ gram in September 1993, “with a loan from the University Re­ search Office, faith in our abili­ ties, and numerous visits to the Groto,” said J.D. Miles, an En­ gineering Assistant Dean and one of the members of the rac­ ing team.

The students and other mem­ bers of the team were able to prepare the car for the July 1994 race in Cleveland at a cost of about $120,000. This figure includes the car, transport, testing, and the many other costs associated with developing a race car.

The Formula Lightning is a single-seat, open-wheeled race car which is 30 inches high and 163 inches long. The Notre Dame vehicle uses 29 AC Delco 12-volt lead-acid batteries to power its 350-50 volt AC Delco electric motor. The car achieves 0-60 in 6.5 seconds, boasting a top speed of 140-145 mph.

Race Car

continued from page 1

At the wheel is racing veteran Mark Folkerts, whose driving brought victory in Cleveland and second in Indianapolis. Folkerts, who became involved in the project soon after its con­ ception, is the 1993 SCAA Cen­ tral Division National Champion in Formula Atlantic Cars.

“We were fortunate to have a professional driver volunteer to not only drive the car, but test it and work with our students during development,” Miles said. “Mark Folkerts did a truly superb job for our team.”

The work done by students in designing the car propulsion system attests to the intellectu­ al significance of the project.

“To build a car and prepare for races, team members must also master the skills they learn in the classroom to make deci­ sions on materials to be used, chemical safety, electrical interfaces, and pit stop strate­ gies,” explained William Berry, a professor and team member.

Smile Rob! You Made it! Happy 21! with love, From Chile, OH, IL & SC
Endeavor astronauts prepare for stargazing

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL
Eager to begin two weeks of stargazing, space shuttle Endeavour's astronauts focused and adjusted three ultraviolet telescopes in orbit Thursday before the flight ends on March 17.

The crew's four astrophysicists spent most of the day reading the telescopes for astronomical observations, expected to begin Friday.

During the 15 1/2-day flight—the longest in shuttle history—the telescopes will study ultraviolet light streaming from stars, galaxies, quasars, the moon and Jupiter. Astronomers want to understand how the universe began and how it might end.

Their No.1 quarry is elusive, if it exists at all. For years, astronomers have been trying to find gaseous helium believed to have been formed when the universe was created.

The astronauts will aim the telescopes at a quasar 10 billion light years away to see if ultraviolet light radiating from the quasar is absorbed by anything. If it is, the abundant material could be intergalactic helium.

"If we just succeed in getting good enough observations of that one object, I'll be satisfied with the mission," said Arthur Davidsen, an astrophysicist at Johns Hopkins University who is in charge of one of the telescopes.

Astronomers have more than 600 celestial targets from which to choose. Endeavour's astrophysicists will work around the clock in 12-hour shifts to squeeze in as many observations as possible before the flight ends on March 17.

Earth's atmosphere blocks out most ultraviolet radiation, so scientists have to study it from space. The observations by the $200 million set of telescopes known as Astro will complement—not duplicate—the work of the $1.6 billion Hubble Space Telescope.

The last session will be held in the Keenan-Stanford chapel from 7:830 p.m. on Sunday. This session will focus on the relationship between service and prayer.

Members of the panel represent different lifestyles and therefore will discuss many different spiritual experiences.

Gregg Behr and Katie Glynn, both Notre Dame students, Felicia Leon and Dan Driscoll, a married couple, and Joe Ross, rector of Moneys Hall will all share their experiences on relating service and strong prayer.

The whole point of this series of lectures is not to give students the type of information about religion that they can learn in a theology class.

"The series is designed to help people learn how they can use prayer in their lives and to feel more comfortable with their own spirituality," Kate Barrett, of the Campus Ministry office in Badin Hall, said.

Over 200 attend Campus Ministry faith seminar

By KELLY MOORE
News Writer

Campus Ministry is sponsoring a three-part series called "Keeping the Faith" which focuses on different ways people find God.

The lecture series began last Sunday night as more than 200 people joined in a meditative prayer called taze, which involves repetitive songs.

Following the prayer, John Dunn, a professor of theology, presented a lecture on finding God in the "center of stillness" by finding a center of stillness of one's own.

Each session includes an experience of prayer, a presentation by a speaker or panel, and a question and answer period.

The second session, held on Thursday, included a presentation by popular theology professor, Regina Coll. She discussed praying with the scripture and expanding images of God in prayer form.

The last session will be held in the Keenan-Stanford chapel from 7:830 p.m. on Sunday. This session will focus on the relationship between service and prayer.

In place of a speaker, a panel to discuss how prayer and service go hand in hand will be held.

The lecture series concluded this week with a final session on the "balance of life and faith" held on Friday night.

Students have attended the series in different ways—some have sung along during all of the sessions, while others have made periodic appearances.

Many have attended the series to visit with others, to experience prayer in a new way, or to discuss prayer in a meditative way.

Campus Ministry is in charge of one of the telescopes and therefore will discuss many different spiritual experiences.

Gregg Behr and Katie Glynn, both Notre Dame students, Felicia Leon and Dan Driscoll, a married couple, and Joe Ross, rector of Moneys Hall will all share their experiences on relating service and strong prayer.

The whole point of this series of lectures is not to give students the type of information about religion that they can learn in a theology class.

"The series is designed to help people learn how they can use prayer in their lives and to feel more comfortable with their own spirituality," Kate Barrett, of the Campus Ministry office in Badin Hall, said.
Senate strikes at heart of GOP revolution

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press

WASHINGTON

The Senate has often been a burial ground for grand plans. The balanced-budget amendment was the latest victim of the Republican legislative revolution to stall there, but it's not likely to be the last.

"We're not going to allow one or two senators to stand in our way," freshman Rep. Randy Tate, R-Wash., declared just before Thursday's Senate vote on the balanced-budget amendment.

But to the acute frustration of lawmakers over the centuries, that's exactly what the Senate has done. The amendment was the first piece of the contract to go down to defeat. In the Senate, the minority, the GOP is pushing through the balanced-budget amendment again in the House.

"It's not the Senate Republicans who underestimate the problems — and perhaps an invisible constitutional amendment. The Senate also will create clauses and procedures of the House battle later this year, which he helps each resident enter society as a valuable and integral member.

Join The Observer staff

WOLFF BEDS

Chicago Hair Cutting Co.
5004 Grape Pl., Midlothian
277-7946

Chicago Tans gives you the BEST TAN FOR YOUR MONEY

Dunez offers the chance to live in a community of students and former prisoners who together create as environment of fun, freedom and hope

Are you ready for a real-life education?

Are you ready for a real-life education? By JENNIFER DIXON

FREE! Law School Tours

To Northwestern

March 29

University of Michigan

April 7

Sign up in 101 O'Shay.

Deadline for sign up is March 10.

The Saint Mary's Department is looking for:

SMC Accent Editor
SMC News Editor
SMC Sports Editor
Asst. SMC Editor
SMC Photo Editor
SMC Day Editors

Are you an enthusiastic, committed woman, who is interested in any of these positions? Please submit a one page letter of intent to Patti Carson by Mon., March 6. Questions? Call Patti @284-4310 or 631-4540

Welfare plan to cut $35 billion

WASHINGTON

Republic legislation to dismantle the federal welfare system would cut spending on social programs by more than $35 billion over five years, congressional budget experts said Thursday.

The biggest savings in the GOP plan, according to an analysis by the Congressional Budget Office, come from deep cuts in public assistance payments to disabled, elderly and poor people.

The budget analysis was released as the House Ways and Means Committee continued its third day of debate on the GOP legislation, which would repeal dozens of welfare programs developed since the New Deal and return the money — and the responsibility for supporting the poor — to the states.

"We're breaking the entitlement mentality of the welfare state," declared Art Fincher, a spokesman for the Ways and Means Committee.

Democrats continued to attack. "Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala called the GOP efforts "cruel" on our youngest and most vulnerable citizens... House Republicans aren't offering tough love or positive alternatives — they're offering cold shoulders and cruel indifference.

Democrats also insist the GOP is cutting welfare to finance tax breaks for wealthy Americans. "They're whacking the living daylights out of the social safety net," said Rep. Jim McDermott, D-Wash.

Democrats on the committee continued to try to reshape the bill with changes that were largely rejected, mostly along party lines.

According to the estimates from Congress' official budget analysts, the GOP legislation before the Ways and Means Committee would cut welfare spending by $35 billion over five years.

Some $6.2 billion of that comes from repealing a child care program that is included in separate legislation that congress is likely to send to the president for signing.

The Senate legislation, which also includes changes in the food stamp program, has yet to be measured.

Nearly one-third of the savings from the Ways and Means bill — $10.2 billion — comes from cutting all health insurance and cash assistance to legal immigrants on the rolls of Supplemental Security Income, a program for the elderly and disabled. An additional $10.7 billion in savings comes from denying cash benefits to disabled children, drug addicts and alcoholics now on SSI.

D E S I G N E D  B Y  D A N  M O R R I S

C H I C A G O  T A N S  I S  O P E N  S A T  1 0 A M  -  1 0 P M

CHICAGO TANS gives you the BEST TAN FOR YOUR MONEY

COME CHECK IT OUT!
Catholics cheer papal visit

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press

NEW YORK
From a Nebraska family of 12 to a New Jersey souvenir maker who almost lost his shirt when the pope canceled last year's U.S. visit, American Catholics cheered the news Thursday that John Paul II will be coming in October.

The unlucky businessman, miraculously, again wants a piece of the action. "After last year," said Robbi Villani, "we sure in hell know what we're doing." After last year's trip was canceled at a time when the 74-year-old pontiff was looking particularly frail and tired. But the Vatican denied he was seriously ill, and the pope resumed foreign travel in January.

Villani is looking forward to the visit. The Newark souvenir man will sign the contract to make T-shirts, hats and other memorabilia to sell at the pope's scheduled Mass last year at Giants Stadium in northern New Jersey.

The archdiocese had cancelled insurance. Villani did not, and under his contract he was stuck with $500,000 in merchandise, much of it dated.

Despite his losses — Villani said he would offer nothing more specific than "we ate a lot of it" — he said he hoped to be selected as the souvenir vendor for the pope's New Jersey event.

It remained unclear exactly what the pope would be doing in addition to his Oct. 5 visit to the United Nations to celebrate its 50th anniversary.

Several church officials said they expect the pope's New York-area itinerary to be similar to last fall's, which would have included Masses at Shea Stadium and Yankees Raceway.

The Rev. Theodore E. McCarrick, the archbishop of Newark, believes the pope will celebrate Mass at Giants Stadium and visit Newark's Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, both of which were on the pope's 1994 schedule.

"I love the holy father to see our cathedral... The many faces of the church of Newark," McCarrick said. "I'd love to say 'Hey! That church in Newark, wow! They have a little of everybody.'"

The Baltimore archdiocese said the pope will celebrate Mass at the Camden Yards baseball park on the last day of his U.S. visit.

---

A Continuing Series for Graduate Students

Presenting
Dominic Vachon, Ph.D.

Discussing

CONFLICT:
"YOU'RE RIGHT -- I'M RIGHT! WHAT ARE WE GOING TO DO ABOUT IT NOW?"

This workshop focuses on techniques for recognizing and working through "conflicts" which occur between roommates and which arise in relationships and friendships.

Date: Sunday, March 5th
Time: 4:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.
At: Fischer/O'Hara Grace Community Center

Sponsored by:
The University Counseling Center
Fischer/O'Hara-Grace
Campus Ministry
University Village

---

Planned Parenthood may add primary care

By MICHAEL BLOOD
Associated Press

NEW YORK
Planned Parenthood, one of the most forceful advocates for abortion and birth control, is bitterly debating a revision that would turn in 900 clinics into health-care centers treating everything from flu shots to cuts and bruises.

The plan to add primary care to the group's roster of family planning services would be one of the most dramatic changes in the history of the 78-year-old non-profit organization.

The plan is being promoted by Planned Parenthood's national leadership, which wants to ensure the group's financial health in an increasingly competitive health-care market.

Mary Baus, a member of the Planned Parenthood Federation, the New York-based group that links the affiliates, said the group is approaching "the threshold of an era."

"The question is, will there be a place in the reformed health-care system for a niche provider, a reproductive health provider?" Baus said.

"It looks very risky to depend on that for our future... We might get frozen right out of the system."

But critics fear it would dilute the power of an organization that has led the fight on virtually every major reproductive issue of the past century.

"Never has a decision seemed so out of touch with our mission," said a confidential memo obtained by The Associated Press, and several Planned Parenthood officials described it in interviews.

Planned Parenthood was founded in 1917 by Margaret Sanger, a leading advocate of birth control who later was instrumental in the development of the pill.
It's a big decision, choosing where to begin your career. There are many reasons to join Deloitte & Touche — our clients, our dedication to quality, our professional development opportunities, our people. People who enjoy what they do. Our mission is simple: To be the professional services firm that consistently exceeds the expectations of our clients and our people.

With 15,800 people in more than 100 offices in the United States, and through our global organization, Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu International, we offer clients worldwide an outstanding and diverse portfolio of services. For you, this means unlimited opportunities to grow professionally and personally. So why not join a firm that will exceed your expectations?

Congratulations to the following individuals who will join Deloitte & Touche after graduation:

- Brian Baker
- Phyllis Barber
- Tom Blitz
- Christopher Boyle
- Peter Connolly
- Jane Daly
- David DiFranco
- Doug Duncan
- Mike Fox
- Molly Freeman
- Margaret Garrelloni
- Chris Gravas
- Rita Hajjar
- Mike Halloran
- Matthew Janzarek
- John Kilcoyne
- Andrew Kindred
- Mark Kost
- Stacey Krajewski
- Matthew Kramer
- Jon Lindberg
- Charles McEnery
- Kurt Merschman
- Mike Murray
- Shirley Nagy
- David Owings
- Christopher Parli
- Gary Rychlaneck
- Michael Schreck
- Vince Smith
- Patricia Sullivan
- Paul Weiss

These professionals will join our Audit, Tax and CAS practices in the following offices: Atlanta, Boston, Charlotte, Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus, Denver, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, New York, Omaha, Phoenix, Pittsburgh, Springfield and St. Louis.

Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu International

We Listen. We Deliver.

Deloitte Touche is an equal opportunity firm. We recruit, employ, train, compensate, and promote without regard to race, creed, color, national origin, age, sex, veteran status, or handicap.
Alcohol may lower diabetes risk

By RANDI BUTTER EPSTEIN

Associated Press

Friday, March 3, 1995

The Observer • NATIONAL NEWS

A study of more than 40,000 men...

WASHINGTON

Plans by an elderly couple in Maine to sell some oceanfront property went awry when part of it was declared endangered. A Texas woman claimed her 15 acres became almost worthless when developers lost interest after the discovery of the endangered golden-cheeked warbler.

A dozen or more similar stories were told Thursday on the House floor as lawmakers began a two-day debate over whether the government should compensate landowners for property losses stemming from federal regulations.

The legislation, expected to be voted on Friday, calls for government agencies to pay landowners for losses if a property's value declines by at least 10 percent because of a federal action involving wetlands, endangered species, or one of a number of public land regulations.

If the value is cut in half, the government would have to buy the property at market value.

The bill, which originally would have covered all federal actions, was narrowed Thursday in hopes of gaining support, but critics called it a Draconian and potentially a billion-dollar drain on the Treasury.

"We don't know how much it will cost," said Rep. Billy Tauzin, D-La., the bill sponsor, "but it's clear that the biggest taxpayer bailout ever." Other lawmakers said they were concerned that agencies would be unable to enforce wetlands and endangered species regulations, or restrict mining or logging on federal forests without being challenged under the property "taking" provision.

"Who will compensate the American people for the loss of wetlands and forests, the loss of diversity in species?" asked Rep. Gerry Brown, D-Mass. "Do we really know what we are doing?"

But Rep. Billy Tauzin, D-La., said the government for too long "has been cheap" on how people can use their property and landowners should not be "overburdened."

"There is a constitutional right to use and enjoy one's private property," added Rep. Jack Fields, R-Texas.

The principle for compensation would be "a stick" to guard against bureaucratic, frivolous decisions by regulators.

The property rights legislation is a part of the GOP's "Contract with America" that House Speaker Newt Gingrich said in approving to the first 100 days of several bills aimed at curtailing federal regulations.

Supporters argue that erosion of property values because of government restrictions such as a declaration of a wetland is a "taking" requirement - amounts to a "tax" on property that the owner should be compensated.

Critics have generally said, however, that compensation is not warranted unless all activities that might be taken - such as when land is taken for a highway - are subject to the same environmental enforcement.

The Clinton administration has voiced its strong opposition to the bill, arguing it could shatter agency budgets and would, in effect, pay people to comply with environmental laws.

"It may require us to close parks, wildlife refuges or other lands," said Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt, who warned about the "taking" provision.

"We don't know how much it will cost," said Rep. Billy Tauzin, D-La., the bill sponsor, "but it's clear that the biggest taxpayer bailout ever." Other lawmakers said they were concerned that agencies would be unable to enforce wetlands and endangered species regulations, or restrict mining or logging on federal forests without being challenged under the property "taking" provision.

"Who will compensate the American people for the loss of wetlands and forests, and the loss of diversity in species?" asked Rep. Gerry Brown, D-Mass. "Do we really know what we are doing?"

But Rep. Billy Tauzin, D-La., said the government for too long "has been cheap" on how people can use their property and landowners should not be "overburdened."

"There is a constitutional right to use and enjoy one's private property," added Rep. Jack Fields, R-Texas.

The principle for compensation would be "a stick" to guard against bureaucratic, frivolous decisions by regulators.

The property rights legislation is a part of the GOP's "Contract with America" that House Speaker Newt Gingrich said in approving to the first 100 days of several bills aimed at curtailing federal regulations.

Supporters argue that erosion of property values because of government restrictions such as a declaration of a wetland is a "taking" requirement - amounts to a "tax" on property that the owner should be compensated.

Critics have generally said, however, that compensation is not warranted unless all activities that might be taken - such as when land is taken for a highway - are subject to the same environmental enforcement.
German police detain trader

By NESHASTARCEVIC
Associated Press
FRANKFURT
The British trader whose gambles led to the collapse of Britain's oldest investment bank was several steps ahead of a Singapore arrest warrant and almost home when police cought up with him Thursday.

Nick Leeson was escorted off a flight from Malaysia and detained by German police while authorities waited for an extradition request and arrest warrant accusing him of mishanning money and other charges.

Leeson repeatedly told police
he wanted to return to Britain, where his employer, Baring Brothers & Co., was trying to figure out how one man could lose an estimated $1 billion and bring down the 232-year-old bank in a matter of weeks.

In its first comment on the case, Singapore's fraud squad said Thursday it was investigating a complaint by Baring Fu-thers that the 28-year-old Lee-son "committed offenses of

"Nikos and his wife fleed Feb. 23.
Kota Kinabalu, about 900 miles away on the island of Borneo.

Malaysia's Daily Express newspaper said Leeson went to Royal Brunei Airlines office in Kota Kinabalu on Tuesday,
asked for the next available flight to Europe and paid $1,500
cash for the tickets.

Zakri Abdul Rashid, director-general of Malaysia's Immigration Department, said Leeson's flight left Wednesday night before immigration authorities could act on a police request to detain him.

He blamed the delay on "timing," saying the department's computer system was not connected with all state immigration departments.

Daily Express assistant editor
James Sardra said he tried to have the plane stopped, but the airport duty manager told him on the phone, "Please don't ask me to go to the runway and try to stop the plane."

Police carrying pictures of the couple boarded the plane when it landed in Frankfurt early Thursday. Leeson was taken into custody, but Ms. Simms was released and flew to Britain.

The couple's newly hired lawyer, Eberhard Kempf, said Leeson would probably spend the night in a Frankfurt prison before he was taken before a judge Friday where he was expected to fight on extradition request.

The Leesons were taken into custody en route to Frankfurt.

The couple's "sister city." But the weight of history hangs heavy in Honolulu, too, site of Japan's 1941 surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

When he was Honolulu
mayor, Frank Fasi, a Marine veteran of the war against Japan, declined repeated official invitations to Hiroshima.
This year, Honolulu's light fi-cal situation rules out the new mayor's participation, "especially for anything like that," said a source close to Harris, speaking on condition of anonymity.

That would leave only U.S.
peace activists and other official Americans among the guests, expected to be led by Washington-based Boutron-Bouroz.
Charles Roth

know, they have the Church, but they don’t believe the Church on this one,
sir. I guess they think that the Church is wrong. They look at the scientific evidence, and they can’t justify what the Church says.

What’s that? You think they’re putting themselves in judgment over God? Well, no, sir. It’s not quite like that. Maybe they’re just judging the Church, but they don’t think they’re driving God. Maybe you’ll find it strange, but all of us (or almost all) say that they do believe in God, and even in the Catholic Church. They just don’t believe that a God of love, compassion, mercy and fairness would allow anybody to be born with a tendency toward something sinful (something that God hates). They just don’t believe that God hates homosexual acts when they’re performed within a loving, caring, monogamous, faithful relationship of shared love.

That’s why they don’t feel badly in claiming you as one of their company,
sir. They don’t think they’re accusing you of doing anything wrong. They think that your example proves that homosexuals are virtuous people, sometimes even heroic people. You say you’re ashamed of what you did?
They’d say that shame was only the result of social prejudices. You had no guilt to feel that shame, and they blame the Church for making people like you feel bad.

They say that there were saints and priests and martyrs throughout Church history who had homosexual tendencies. I know, sir, that you fought against it. Yes, the others did, they say. I understand that it was difficult. You relied on God and the blessed Virgin’s intercession. You confessed your sins and you were forgiven. That’s all great, sir. No, I really mean it. Your suffering in this regard was probably why you could be such a great doctor and a great Christian, in so many other ways. But they don’t believe that your struggle was necessary.

What would homosexuals do if they didn’t struggle with it? I guess homosexuals would marry, sir, and raise a family, by adoption or implantation or whatever. Yes, I know the Church teaches that those kinds of reproduction aren’t right, but we don’t believe that, either. To be honest, we don’t believe much of what the Church says about sexuality.

Actually, can I take that back, sir?
It’s probably truer to say that we don’t believe very strongly in what the Church says. We’re not totally sure that the Church is wrong. But something about it just feels strange.
And then we wonder, if we’re not so sure about it, how can we impose this on other people? How can we impose rules on other people when we’re not sure of them?

Of course we wouldn’t allow a racing group on campus. But we’re sure that racism is wrong, sir. No one argues about that one. We’re not sure that homosexuality is wrong. Who’s to say? We can’t prove that it’s wrong. Our point of view, they say, is based only on the Bible and the Catholic tradition, which everyone in the world doesn’t believe in. More-ever, the theologians and literary theorists have been deconstructing the Bible something fierce. Paul, they say, was a homosexual. Sodom and Gomorrha were about hospitality. The Old Testament stuff doesn’t apply because those books also include dietary prescriptions and rules on uncleanliness (besides, Christians rejected these other restrictions in the book of Acts). The end result, sir, is that we’re not sure. How can we condemn people based on evidence as uncertain as this?

No, I don’t agree with them sir, but you see my point. It’s true that many of us are taking sides against the Church, and against God’s will, but we’re really not doing it intentionally.
I guess we’re just a little minded right now. We’ll come around again; as a Church, we always do. I was just hoping that you could forgive us for dragging your name through the mud in the process.

You don’t mind that? No, I guess you wouldn’t. I guess you mind that we’re misleading the people who suffere from the temptations you suffered from. Yes sir, I can see why. Those people won’t have the chance to attain the level of perfection that they might have attained if they’d tried to resist their inclinations.

I hope, Tom Dooley, that God forgives homosexuals for their sins. I’m almost sure that he’s forgiven you for yours. I’m not sure that God will be so forgiving toward the rest of us. Please pray for us, Dr. Dooley, wherever you are. We could really use the help.

Charles Roth is a second year law student.
Ron Thorp, three and a half year Papa John's delivery veteran.

By PATTI CARSON
Assistant Accent Editor

We all know him. We all love him. He is every student's best friend and probably the most popular guy on campus. He'll be there rain or shine, afternoon or midnight, throughout your whole four year stay in South Bend. He's hot, he's fast, he's cheap. Who is he? He's the Papa John's man and he's got your dinner.

But it's not so easy to be in demand. Do you ever wonder what this guy goes through in one single night? Well, we here at The Observer did. Michael and Allison Paxton, owners of the store that services our campuses, were kind enough to let us spend the evening with everyone's favorite delivery guy. We rode for about four hours with Ron Thorp, a three and a half year Papa John's delivery veteran.

This is where it all begins—behind the counter at Papa John's. "Thank you for calling Papa John's. Will you please hold?" (Time lapses. Thanks for waiting. How can I help you? Yes, we have pizza. (Oh my gosh. It's going to be a long night.) Name, address, phone number, 40 minutes or so." The counter-guy takes the dough patty, slaps on the flour, kneads it, slaps it, flips it, spins it, then adds the fixings. Fun fact for today? A large pepperoni pizza at Papa John's gets twenty slices of pepperoni.

9:00 p.m. The Anatomy of An Order
This is where it all begins—behind the counter at Papa John's Pizza. "Thank you for calling Papa John's. Will you please hold?" (Time lapses. Thanks for waiting. How can I help you? Yes, we have pizza. (Oh my gosh. It's going to be a long night.) Name, address, phone number, 40 minutes or so." The counter-guy takes the dough patty, slaps on the flour, kneads it, slaps it, flips it, spins it, then adds the fixings. Fun fact for today? A large pepperoni pizza at Papa John's gets twenty slices of pepperoni.

9:15 p.m. And They're Off...
Ron and his Nissan leave the premises in the direction of Howard Hall at Notre Dame. Ron drives his own car to deliver, but he is reimbursed for gas and mileage. Ron was one of four delivery men working on Monday night. And Monday night is supposedly one of the slowest nights at Papa John's.

Ron's got a Papa John's emblem stuck to the back window. The guard at Stepuan watches to pull up. He waves Ron on and raises the gate. Is this every student's dream or what? A life. The guard sees you, you see the guard, he waves, you're on. It's that easy. Ron explained that Papa John's used to have lighted signs attached to the cars, but sadly enough, the students kept stealing them. "Now we're down to stickers on the windows," he said.

9:24 Howard Hall: Breadsticks to freshman Desiré Delea.

9:28 Morrisey Hall: Large pepperoni Pizza to sophomore Pete Robinas.

Walsh: Cheesesticks to sophomore Karen Daylor, breadsticks to freshman Christine Archibock.

9:45 p.m. Back to Papa's for more orders
On the way back to the store, Ron explained that the average tip per delivery is 75 cents, but it gets skimpier around spring break. It all works out, though. "One guy in Planter tipped me three dollars once," he said.

9:55 p.m. That's guy from Dillon again. It's about this time every night that one of the residents in Dillon Hall calls in for delivery. "He's a regular," Samantha Dube, a student worker from McCandless Hall said. "He calls regularly and I know what he'll want as soon as he says his name," she said.

10:10 p.m. Lewis: Jenny Manning gets her breadsticks.

10:14 p.m. Paugborn: Chrisey Giacinto gets her breadsticks. Bystanders look on in jealousy and frustration because they didn't order earlier. As we drive back to the store, Ron tells us of one of his funniest delivery memories. A guy in the marching band ordered a pizza to be delivered to the Snite Museum on a football Saturday at noon. As he marched by, he spotted the delivery man, jumped out of line, paid the man, grabbed his pizza and jumped back in line. What instrument did he play? The drums, of course.

10:30 p.m. Here we go again. McCandless Hall: Breadsticks to Kelly Falcuk.

After this, Ron told us a little about the history of Papa John's. Ten years ago in southern Indiana, there was this guy who owned a bar. His son, a Ball State graduate, worked there. The customers said they wanted something to eat with their beer (go figure) so they started serving pizza in the bar. Soon enough, they were delivering the pizza and before you know it, they had moved the corporate office to Louisville, Kentucky. It all started with one store. Now there are more than 600; some of them are even west of the Mississippi.

10:45 p.m. Residential delivery. Oh, you mean there are people besides college students who eat pizza around here? Good to know.

11:00 p.m. LeMans Dilemma
Ron tries to get through to one of the women who ordered a pizza, but her line is busy. And he can't call her neighbor after 10 p.m. because it's against security measures. So he waits and waits and waits. Well, it's hot. Wouldn't he be grand if Saint Mary's had call waiting? Just a thought. Finally, a desk worker runs up to get the girl and she makes it down to the lobby by 11:14 p.m.

11:04 p.m. "Well, I've already had lucky charms, rice cakes, an apple, crackers, and cookies today. But nothing seems to fill me up like Papa John's. He's accessible. It's good pizza. It's cheap," she says.

At this point Ron says a word or two about what he calls "Pizza Awareness." His theory is this: If you order a pizza, stay off the phone. Tell your roommates that you ordered it. Forbid them from using the phone or just make sure they answer it when it rings. Also, it helps if you have your money ready. If everyone played by these rules, you'd get your pizzas faster.

On the way to an off campus delivery, Ron tells us another funny story. "Last year, I had to deliver a pizza to Saint Louis Street the night of that big 500 person party. Believe it or not, the band stopped, they found the girl who ordered, and she got her pizza."

THIS IS WHERE IT GETS GOOD
11:45 p.m. We finally make it to the off campus delivery. Ron finds the house. He pounds on the doors, the windows, the house itself. We get blasted with a great beeline. We get blasted with a great

Ron and his Nissan leave the premises in the direction of Howard Hall at Notre Dame. Ron drives his own car to deliver, but he is reimbursed for gas and mileage. Ron was one of four delivery men working on Monday night. And Monday night is supposedly one of the slowest nights at Papa John's.

Ron's got a Papa John's emblem stuck to the back window. The guard at Stepuan watches to pull up. He waves Ron on and raises the gate. Is this every student's dream or what? What a life. The guard sees you, you see the guard, he waves, you're on. It's that easy. Ron explained that Papa John's used to have lighted signs attached to the cars, but sadly enough, the students kept stealing them. "Now we're down to stickers on the windows," he said.

9:24 Howard Hall: Breadsticks to freshman Desiré Delea.

9:28 Morrisey Hall: Large pepperoni Pizza to sophomore Pete Robinas.

Walsh: Cheesesticks to sophomore Karen Daylor, breadsticks to freshman Christine Archibock.

9:45 p.m. Back to Papa's for more orders.
On the way back to the store, Ron explained that the average tip per delivery is 75 cents, but it gets skimpier around spring break. It all works out, though. "One guy in Planter tipped me three dollars once," he said.

9:55 p.m. That's guy from Dillon again. It's about this time every night that one of the residents in Dillon Hall calls in for delivery. "He's a regular," Samantha Dube, a student worker from McCandless Hall said. "He calls regularly and I know what he'll want as soon as he says his name," she said.

10:10 p.m. Lewis: Jenny Manning gets her breadsticks.

10:14 p.m. Paugborn: Chrisey Giacinto gets her breadsticks. Bystanders look on in jealousy and frustration because they didn't order earlier. As we drive back to the store, Ron tells us of one of his funniest delivery memories. A guy in the marching band ordered a pizza to be delivered to the Snite Museum on a football Saturday at noon. As he marched by, he spotted the delivery man, jumped out of line, paid the man, grabbed his pizza and jumped back in line. What instrument did he play? The drums, of course.

10:30 p.m. Here we go again. McCandless Hall: Breadsticks to Kelly Falcuk.

After this, Ron told us a little about the history of Papa John's. Ten years ago in southern Indiana, there was this guy who owned a bar. His son, a Ball State graduate, worked there. The customers said they wanted something to eat with their beer (go figure) so they started serving pizza in the bar. Soon enough, they were delivering the pizza and before you know it, they had moved the corporate office to Louisville, Kentucky. It all started with one store. Now there are more than 600; some of them are even west of the Mississippi.

10:45 p.m. Residential delivery. Oh, you mean there are people besides college students who eat pizza around here? Good to know.

11:00 p.m. LeMans Dilemma
Ron tries to get through to one of the women who ordered a pizza, but her line is busy. And he can't call her neighbor after 10 p.m. because it's against security measures. So he waits and waits and waits. Well, it's hot. Wouldn't he be grand if Saint Mary's had call waiting? Just a thought. Finally, a desk worker runs up to get the girl and she makes it down to the lobby by 11:14 p.m.

11:04 p.m. "Well, I've already had lucky charms, rice cakes, an apple, crackers, and cookies today. But nothing seems to fill me up like Papa John's. He's accessible. It's good pizza. It's cheap," she says.

At this point Ron says a word or two about what he calls "Pizza Awareness." His theory is this: If you order a pizza, stay off the phone. Tell your roommates that you ordered it. Forbid them from using the phone or just make sure they answer it when it rings. Also, it helps if you have your money ready. If everyone played by these rules, you'd get your pizzas faster.

On the way to an off campus delivery, Ron tells us another funny story. "Last year, I had to deliver a pizza to Saint Louis Street the night of that big 500 person party. Believe it or not, the band stopped, they found the girl who ordered, and she got her pizza."

THIS IS WHERE IT GETS GOOD
11:45 p.m. We finally make it to the off campus delivery. Ron finds the house. He pounds on the doors, the windows, the house itself. We get blasted with a great beeline. We get blasted with a great
Jeff Goddard is defined by his passion for the Bouts

By GEORGE DOHRMANN, Sports Editor

When Jeff Goddard arrived on campus as a freshman three and a half years ago, he wanted only to find his place at Notre Dame.

He first tried baseball, but realized his bat speed wasn't what it needed in him and his fielding looked better to the fans back home in Urbana, Ohio then it did to the Notre Dame coaching staff.

Goddard stood in limbo, wondering where he would land. He was hoping not to be another star athlete in high school who faded on the college scene. His only glory came during pickup games at The Rock, that is, until the day he heard about the Bengal Bouts, and figured he could, possibly, be a boxer. He never envisioned himself surrounded by the glamour of the sport, but simply wrapped by a circle of friends with whom he could make his mark.

"Since that first day, I have loved boxing," Goddard said. "I was just so happy at first that I found my niche on campus."

As he prepares for his last bout Saturday in the 170-pound final against Todd Murphy, Goddard remembers. He stands on the verge of his third title, the memories of past victories and one bitter defeat flow through his thoughts and dominate his final days as a Bengal Bout competitor.

"I know I will remember so much about my time with the guys and fighting," Goddard said. "I think about the past now and I'm not even done yet. It's hard because this has played such a large part in my life the last four years."

There was a time when Goddard was nothing more than a name on the Bengal Bouts card. That first year he walked into the boxing room in the Joyce ACC curious and green. But he trained as hard as anyone and won his first two bouts with surprising ease, advancing to the finals. Then he stepped under the lights of the JACC Arena, staring across the ring at senior Shane Hitzman and seeing the two titles...
Unlike the 1994 field, few boxers have stepped forward this year and distinguished themselves as all-time great Bengal Bout competitors. With the exception of Jeff Goddard’s run for his third title, most of the finalists this year are either looking for the championship that has eluded them or on the verge of establishing themselves as top-flight performers. Dan Couri, Mike Mantey, Eric Garcia and Rob Naticchia are after their second title—looking to show they are anything but one hit wonders. Chris Rosen, Eric Hillegas, John Christoforetti, and Mike Thompson strive for wins after losing in the finals a year ago. Meanwhile, a host of eager challengers look to pull the upset. A look at each fight on the 1995 Bengal Bout card:

130 lb

Eric Garcia vs Todd Bello

Eric Garcia is looking strong in his return after falling in the 135-pound semifinals a year ago. He is a fundamentally sound boxer who has proven that he can beat the skilled fighter as well as the brawler. He may have problems with senior Todd Bello, a left-handed first-time fighter who has shown good form in his victories over Pete Bancroft and Dan Zepl, the second seed in the division.

Look for the two boxers to throw a lot of jabs with some controlled flurries from the favorite, Garcia. Because of it being his first year, Bello may come out a little fast in the first round, which could cause him to slow down in the latter part of the bout. It looks to be a very close bout that should be decided by a split decision. Because of the boxers’ styles, whoever is able to win the first round should be able to pull out the victory.

135 lb

Greg Marks vs Andy Dicello

One of the only weight divisions that went as planned, the first seed, Greg Marks, will take on No. 2 Andy Dicello in Saturday’s final. Marks moved into the finals with unanimous victories over Paul Villa and Ben Decio, while Dicello scored an unanimous decision over Toby Hinchcliff after recording a knockout over Dennis Joyce in his quarterfinal bout.

Both boxers are hard-punchers that like to throw combinations. Because of their parity in height, reach should not come into play in this bout, but look for Dicello to open it up with some early flurries. Countering will be the key for Marks, who sports better fundamentals along with a good parrying technique. This fight looks to be a very close matchup between two seasoned veterans. Dicello, a junior, is in his third year, while Marks, the senior, will fight his final bout in his four-year career with the Bengal Bouts organization.

145 lb

Butch Cabreros vs Eric Garcia

Butch Cabreros doesn’t really know many competitors in Bengal Bouts. But he’s heard of Eric Hillegas, his opponent in Saturday’s finals.

The sophomore was not even aware of who he was matched up against in the semifinals. It turned out to be Stefan Borso, who Cabreros defeated with a unanimous decision Wednesday night.

“I didn’t know much about anybody before I fought them, but I have heard the Hillegas’ name before,” Cabreros said.

Hillegas, a senior, is favored in the 157-pound division against the younger Cabreros, a former Golden Gloves boxer in his home of Corpus Christi, Texas.

“The fight with Butch will be a lot different than my bout Wednesday night,” Hillegas said. “The issue is that his training has been a lot different than what we have here.”

Cabreros, who has trained in South Bend for this year’s bouts, likes to throw more combinations and roundhouse punches than the average Bengal Bout student. His punches, however, are used with skilled precision. It’s easy to see that the sophomore knows
Chris Rosen vs John Kmetz

Will the real Chris Rosen please stand up. After bollerking to the boxing community that the undersized version of himself was gone, Rosen reverted to his old self, swinging like a spinning windmill in his narrow win over Brendan McGuire. Rosen, when he wants to be, is one of the most gifted fighters around but when he slips he is vulnerable, as McGuire showed.

Kmetz is no Brendan McGuire. He is much better. Rosen was upset by an aggressive fighter in 1994 when Bob Ganz charged and charged and ran away with the title.

Kmetz could do the same. He likes to throw, loves to dictate the fight, and will not be hindered by McGuire.

This is one of those fights you want say the favorite will win, but no way on the green earth would you lay money on it. Rosen has the talent and certainly the desire if he doesn't fight his game, Kmetz will win.

160 lb

Michael Thompson vs Dan Adams

This will be a very interesting bout between two boxers with only one fight of experience between them this year. John Christoforetti, a sophomore, received a bye in the quarterfinals and had a walkover in the semifinals due to an injury to challenger Rob Piecuch.

Freshman Pat Dolan recorded a knockout in his first bout over Dan Bergan, but, like his competitor Christoforetti, had a walkover when his semifinal opponent, Jack MacLeod, could not compete due to injury. Dolan looked impressive in his first bout on Sunday, but look for him to have problems with the quick and powerful Christoforetti. The sophomore carries with him years of kick-boxing experience along with one year in the Bengal Bouts, in which he went lost a split decision to two-time champion Jeff Goddard. Look for Dolan to come out fast, trying to throw the favorite off-balance.

Don't expect Christoforetti to lose his composure too easily, though.

175 lb

Bob Naticchia vs Chip Farrell

This bout between Bob Naticchia and Chip Farrell should be one of the bouts' finest shows. Farrell, a native of South Bend and son of Bengals trainer Pat, is a crowd favorite and a very skilled boxer for a freshman. He won both of his bouts Thus far by split decisions, Wednesday's win being an upset over second seed Bob Lator.

Naticchia, last year's champion at 175 pounds, received a bye in the quarterfinals and was able to defeat a taller Pat Keaney by a unanimous decision in the semifinals.

Naticchia carries the total package with him into his second consecutive final bout. He is a very aggressive fighter with quick, strong punches that can devastate.

One area the senior lacks in, however, is defense. A key for Farrell will be to keep his jab and ability to wrap the champion up when he makes a charge.

This will be a very tight matchup between a stiff, up-right fighter in Mike Manhey and a fluid, deceptive Chad Harrison. Manhey has boxed for only 16 so far this year after capturing the 180-pound title a year ago. His semifinal fight with junior Dave Harris was stopped due to a doctor's decision to take Harris out of the fight.

Harrison defeated a taller opponent in Matt Mulderigg on Wednesday, using his slip technique to get inside, enabling him to land some effective body shots before working his opponent's head. For his success to continue, he will need to use the same strategy against the taller Manhey.

Harrison surprised Mulderigg with his quickness in his semifinal bout, and he may be able to do the same against the sophomore Manhey, who holds the only chance in the next four years to become the eighth...

195 lb

Troy Phillips vs Dave Baker

This bout may come up well with heavyweight favorite Greg Stec during sparring sessions.

Few can ignore what Phillips did in his first fight. He may be a bit stronger than Baker and will be looking to move his opponent around the ring.

Baker, who is an excellent bassketball player, will need to keep moving and not get into a brawl with Phillips.

Heavyweight

Greg Stec vs Jason Svadeba

Everyone is buzzing about Greg Stec. The former foottball player dropped forty pounds to compete in the Bouts and has been impressive since the start. He is strong quick and will be rested come Saturday after not fighting in either the first or second rounds.

Svadeba is a South Bender with good hands and adequate strength. He opened some eyes with the way he manhandled Brady Curtis in the semifinals. Insiders are playing wait and see with Stec. He is a mystery to the fans but not to the boxers who know he can deliver the blows. But the competitors were elated when Svadeba advanced because if anyone can compete with Stec, Svadeba can, and in the Bouts' featured event anything can happen.
Happy Birthday Bouts

Orne Dame's Bengal Bouts turns 65 this year. It can now officially start collecting social security. But in no way does it need to. Because in an era of clocks, calendars and carbon dating, the Irish boxing club remains ageless. It doesn't need a facelift or Pearl Cream to retain its natural beauty.

The World Series.

But realistically, you don't have to look past the boxing realm to get a good dose of history. The Bengal Bouts tradition is thicker than the walls of Stonehenge. 65 years... of teaching and helping the students of Notre Dame. From the days of Dominic J. "Nappy" Napolitano to the coordinator and trainers of today, nothing has changed in terms of the message taught. Even the faces haven't changed much. Knute Rockne and Nappy were friends. It was the legendary football coach who started the program in 1924 in order to give the boys something to do during the winter. Napolitano took over in 1930 and ran the Bouts for 50 years before retiring in 1981. 65 years... of healthy competition. Now matter how much you may dislike the idea of boxing, you have to acknowledge the dedication and preparation that each athlete puts in just to get a chance to step in the ring. One chance. 4 1/2 minutes. Or, if you're lucky enough to make it, the finals, six minutes. Six weeks of sweat for one week of having the spotlight, which surrounds the champions.

Champions like The Five Fighting McGraths, Kerry Waite and Jeff Gerber. These are the names that people remember. Anyone who steps in the ring, though, is a true champion. It's those boxers that make up the heart of Bengal Bouts. Sure, the finals will showcase the best of the bunch, but they would not be seen as the best if they didn't have to get by two other fighters. The competition grows every year. There were 92 participants in this year's tournament, requiring a card of 13 weight divisions. 65 years... of helping the needy and underprivileged.

Since the days of Nappy, all of the proceeds earned by the Bouts goes to help the people of Bangladesh. So Sally Strubbers was telling the truth. But what she has been saying for five years the Holy Cross Mission. Nappy and the Bengal Bouts has known all along. It looks like Nappy's line still holds. "Strong bodies fight, that weak bodies may be nourished."

A perfect sentence to describe an perfect organization. Happy Birthday, Bengal Bouts. May you live to see 165.

Goddard

continued from page 1

Hitzman's third crown came at Goddard's expense. "I think about that fight all the time. When I am running or training, I think about it and wish I could have it back. But I know if I was a freshman again, and fought the same fight, I would lose. But I look at where I am now and just wish I could fight him now."

Goddard fought like a freshman against Hitzman, passive and unsure. It would be his only loss as a boxer. But Goddard doesn't dwell on the loss. He wishes dearly he could have joined the Bengal Bout elite, being the eighth man to win four Bengal Bout titles. But Hitzman won and if he didn't, Goddard may not be in the position he is now. "I've grown each year as a fighter. Just having one year under your belt makes all the difference in the ring. My second year, I was confident and knew that I could win the title."

He did by beating Kevin Mullany easily. "I sat and looked all year at my runner-up jacket all year. All it did was remind me that I had lost."

Goddard said after the fight when asked about his motivation. His motivation in 1994 was simple, repeat. Goddard was well on his way, breezing to the finals where he hit a tall speed bump in the form of freshman John Christoforetti (the favorite in the 165-pound division). Neither fighter may have seen it at the time, but each was looking in another. Christoforetti may look back at his narrow loss freshman year, as Goddard does with the Hitzman bout, and ponder the possibility. "I felt so much pressure last year because people were expecting me to repeat," Goddard said. "I knew what a good fighter John was and he showed it."

know it was a close fight and I feel lucky to have won."

Goddard has anxiously waited for 1995, his final run in the Bouts and year as president of the boxing club. What Goddard didn't expect was his picture on the cover of the Bengal Bout poster - shirtless in a gym, wrapping his hands.

"I get a lot of flack for that," Goddard said. "I'm a little embarrassed by it, but also happy that we have a current boxer not an old one on the poster and the program. It's been a joke for a lot of people. Girls come up and joke with me and say that all the posters in the halls have been ripped off and are now above girls' beds. It's funny but I look at it as an honor. I'm just happy that the other boxers thought I should be on the poster."

It isn't uncommon for children to approach Goddard before fights and ask for his autograph. He laughs when you call him famous, but then two more children show paper in his bag as he sits ringside. It will be one more fond memory for Goddard if he can top Murphy and capture his third title. He should win, is expected to, the role of the heavy favorite is now old hand.

"All I want to think about is Murphy. That's what is important. But it is hard to stay focused when I am busy running around helping organize things and also knowing that this is going to be my last fight."

Goddard insists this won't be his last Bouts. As a fighter, yes, but he can't help but return in the future. "I know I will be like (Bouts coordinator) Terry Johnson or (trainer) Pat Farrell-com ing back and helping out when I get older. I couldn't be a part of all of this. "The guys here are all my friends and I know that I will remember Saturday nights and every night I've had in the Bouts for the rest of my life."

"This is what college was all about for me."
Dinner's here! One more happy customer gets a Papa John's delivery from Ron Thorp. Ron's pick? Cheesesticks and Italian Sausage pizza.

Picking the Pizza...

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Pizza Hut</th>
<th>Bruno's</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Large, One Topping Pizza</td>
<td>$11.28</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>$10.50</td>
<td>15 Slices / 20&quot;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Delivery Time</td>
<td>Varies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Delivery Time</td>
<td>45 min. - 1 hr.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Domino's</th>
<th>Huddle</th>
<th>Papa John's</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Large, One Topping Pizza</td>
<td>$5.99 (Special)</td>
<td>$5.00 (Special)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>$9.20</td>
<td>8 Slices / 14&quot;</td>
<td>Delivery Time</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Delivery Time</td>
<td>About 20 min.</td>
<td>10-15 min.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Papa John's Mission Statement

To deliver the perfect pizza by exceeding the needs and expectations of our customers, franchise family, and employees.

---

Movies

- CALL 277-7336
- University Park East
  - Pulp Fiction 2, 5:15, 8:45
  - The Hunted 1:40, 4:40, 7:20, 9:40
- Legends of the Fall, 6:45
- Billy Madison, 1:45, 9:20
- University Park West (Mall)
  - Brady Bunch 2:15, 4:30, 6:45, 9
  - Boys on the Side 2:30, 4:50, 7, 9:40
  - Walking Dead 7:15, 9:20
Evander Holyfield, who retired last April after a heart attack, is seeking a license in New Jersey to return to the ring for a May 20 fight against Ray Mercer in Atlantic City, N.J. Mercèr's manager, Dan Lewis, called a Monday news conference to officially announce the bout.

Holyfield has been seeking a license for a fight in New Jersey, but the state's athletic commissioner said the former champion would have no difficulty obtaining one.

"Evander appears to be the most test­ ed athlete, maybe the most in the world," commissioner Larry Hazzard told The Associated Press. "So, for that reason, I don't think he'll have any problem."

Hazzard said his decision was "based on the documents that I have carefully reviewed, based on the discussion that I have had with his personal physician, based on the discussion I have had with his attorney, the Mayo Clinic."

And the tests from the Mayo Clinic "seem to imply" that Holyfield doesn't have a serious heart condition.

Holyfield is flying to New York on Friday to watch a fight card in Atlantic City and will apply for his license in the next couple of days, said Mike Rossman, a spokesman for Main Events.

"When the unforeseen world heavyweight champion, announced his retirement shortly after losing the WBA title to Gerry Cooney in Las Vegas.

Holyfield was hospitalized immediately after the fight and then flown to his hometown of Atlanta, where he was diagnosed with an enlarged heart and a venereal problem.

Last week, the Nevada State Athletic Commission lifted a suspension imposed after Holyfield was diagnosed with heart problems. However, commission mem­ bers stopped short of endorsing Holyfield's plan to fight again, saying there still were questions that needed to be answered before he could be licensed in the state.

"This is not to say we will issue Evander Holyfield a license," said Dr. James Fleckenstein, the commission chairman. "It is to say we will not sit up here being pompous and say some state can't."
Prejudice Reduction Workshop

If you are interested in learning how to confront oppression, then sign up now!

The Multicultural Executive Council is offering students, staff, and professors the opportunity to participate in this diversity sensitivity workshop.

Limited Enrollment—Call Immediately

Saturday, March 25
8:00 A.M. – 3:00 P.M.
Earth Science Building Room 101

Breakfast and Lunch Will Be Provided

This workshop is being presented by the Notre Dame Affiliate of the National Coalition Building Institute

Contact:
Mickey Franco • 631-4355
Adele Lanan • 631-7308
Cavaliers top Mavs in battle of wounded

Associated Press

DALLAS

Round up the injured players for the Dallas Mavericks and Cleveland Cavaliers and the result would be a team to challenge for the NBA title.

The Mavericks were able to cope without their top two scorers Thursday night, using Jason Kidd without their top two scorers Thursday night, using Jason Kidd's three-point play with 2:36 remaining to snap a tie and beat the Cavaliers 90-84.

Dallas was without Jim Jackson and Jamal Mashburn, who combine to average nearly 50 points per game. Jackson is sidelined indefinitely with a sprained left ankle and Mashburn has a sore right hip, stemming from an adverse reaction to an injection for strep throat.

The wounded for the Cavaliers included Mark Price, Tyrone Hill and Brad Daugherty.

"We said before the game that if you took the people that lie in, included Mark Price, Tyrone Hill and Brad Daugherty," Mavericks coach Dick Motta said. "There were a lot of guys sitting tonight but there were also a lot of guys playing."

Dallas made up for their two big guns, getting 16-point performances from Kidd, Ludicrous Harris and Roy Tarpley and 16 points from George McCloud.

Kidd rolled in a spectacular left-handed layup and added a free throw to give Dallas a 79-76 lead with 2:36 to play.

"I love to be in that situation, with the ball on the line and the ball in my hands," Kidd said. "We were missing 20 points in Jimmy and Jamaal, sure, but we've overcome obstacles before."

Kidd has stepped up his scoring in the three games since Jackson's injury, averaging 17.3 points and shooting 50 percent.

His two free throws with 3:26 left had pulled Dallas into a 76-76 tie. John Williams' layup had drawn the Cavaliers to 80-78 but Kidd fed McCloud for a layup as the Mavericks increased their advantage to 82-78 with 1:22 to play.

Chris Mills, who paced the Cavs with 16 points, missed two free throws with 40.3 seconds left, then Tarpley converted two foul shots with 38.8 seconds left to put Dallas lead to 84-78. Dallas converted eight free throws in the final 38 seconds to seal the victory.

Dallas seemed on the verge of pulling away, building a 71-62 lead with 7:10 to play on Tarpley's 15-footer.

But Cleveland, which had beaten Dallas in six of the previous seven meetings, responded with a 9-0 run capped by Ferry's 3-pointer with 5:37 remaining, tying it 71-71.

Turnovers were a theme for both teams but Kidd was能做到。
Buffalo stops Penguins behind red-hot Hasek

Derek Plante and Alexander Mogilny also scored for Buffalo. Chris Joseph, Jaromir Jagr and Joe Mullen scored for the Penguins, who suffered their second loss in three games after starting the season 12-0-1.

Dominik Hasek stopped 27 shots for the Sabres and held Pittsburgh scoreless during a five-minute penalty to Presley and a minor penalty to Alexei Zhitnik.

Buffalo led by two goals three times in the first two periods only to have Pittsburgh come back each time.

Mogilny had given Buffalo a 3-1 lead when his weak slap shot past Young, who replaced Ken Wregget to start the second period. Wregget had started 19 of the Penguins first 20 games.

Jagr scored his third short-handed goal and 16th of the season when took a pass from Larry Murphy at the blue line, fought off Buffalo's Doug Bodger and beat Hasek to the stick side 4:42 into the second period.

Ulf Samuelsson was thrown out of the game in the second period when he lost his temper and a major penalty to Alexei Zhitnik.

The Penguins away with 5:24 remaining in the first period and put the Sabres a 5-3 lead. He picked up goals, and the Buffalo Sabres Friday, March 3, 1995 The Observer •

Brady Skating

The following is a survey from an...uh...a consumer group.

Think you'll be inspired by our hockey team this weekend?

Want to see if you have what it takes to stay up on the ice?

Ever experienced the thrill of making the 3rd goal in a hat-trick?

If you answered yes to any of the above questions, then we need you to come to the JACC this Friday, March 3rd after the hockey game against Illinois-Chicago to go with Flip Side, the group that provides the ND/SMC community with great activities that do not involve alcohol. We will be holding an ice-skating extravaganza for all those who wish to see if they have the ability to skate with the best of them. But, first, you have to skate with us; so come down after the hockey game on March 3rd from 10 p.m.—12 a.m. and see if you can do it!

ICE SKATING

Cost is only $2.50 for all ND/SMC students!

If you want to help out in any way with the organization of this event, call Steve (4-1762) or Cristin (4-4206) for details. If you want to learn more about Flip Side, call either of our esteemed presidents, John (4-1410) or Mary (4-4904).
MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

Jordan leaves Sox camp

By RICK GANO

Associated Press

SARASOTA, Fla. - Baseball's most famous minor leaguer cleaned out his locker and left camp Thursday. When Michael Jordan might return wasn't clear, and neither was his playing status for the remainder of this confusing spring.

Jordan jumped into his black Range Rover and left, briefly telling a reporter he didn't know when he'd be back and that he would release a statement at a later date.

"I'd have to wait and see and address it. I don't know all the issues involved. I'm really not sure he's leaving town," said White Sox general manager Ron Schueler. He said he had no indication that Jordan had left for anything more than an afternoon round of golf.

"Let's wait until tomorrow morning and see if he shows up," Schueler said. "As far as I know, he's not missing unless he's not here tomorrow morning."

Jordan's departure came after a hectic and bizarre morning in which the White Sox divided their squad into players who were willing to participate in exhibition games and those who were not.

Those declining were told to move their belongings into the adjoining minor league club house, which is more Spartan and less spacious. They also were asked to leave the team hotel and had their meal money slashed. They were not, however, sent home as Schueler earlier said they might be.

Jordan's personal assistant and driver, George Koehler, said all Jordan told him was: "We're going."

"I walked in and he said, 'We're going.' We walked out to the truck and that was it. I don't know anything." Jordan had voiced a desire from the beginning of camp to not be caught in the middle of the struggle between the players union he supports and the owners. He still had not made his decision public on whether to compete in the exhibitions, which the union has labeled replacement games.

Jordan, who has shown marked improvement from a year ago when he first joined the Sox, needs to sharpen his skills by playing games. He'd also been sympathetic toward minor league players forced to make a decision about the games. The White Sox exhibition opener is Friday.

After the workout Thursday, many players were moving their belongings from the major league locker room to the minor league dressing quarters. Thirty-two players stayed and 31 went to the other side.

Jordan's locker was bare and his chair was folded up inside. A clubhouse assistant said Jordan was signing a lot of autographs before he left, and a quick inspection of the minor league clubhouse did not reveal a locker with Jordan's name.

NBA

Mason leads big comeback as Knicks top Bulls

By WENDY E. LANE

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Anthony Mason scored 15 of his season-high 26 points in the final period, including the go-ahead basket with 21.3 seconds left, as the New York Knicks held the Chicago Bulls to 12 points in the final period and won 93-89.

Mason's putback of a blocked shot by Scottie Pippen put the Knicks up 91-89, and Mason put a hand in Pippen's face as the Bulls forward missed a long jumper. Pippen fouled Charles Oakley going for the rebound, and Oakley sank both free throws with 6.1 seconds remaining. That sealed the victory, completing the Knicks' comeback from a 22-point second-half deficit.

The Bulls had one field goal, a breakaway layup by Pete Myers, in the first 9:51 of the final period.

Pippen had 21 points in the first half and finished with 26 and 14 rebounds to lead the Bulls.

Mason added 12 rebounds for the Knicks, who have won six of their last eight and made 11 of 13 shots. Patrick Ewing added 23 points and Hubert Davis 19.

The Knicks trimmed Chicago's big lead to 13 at the end of the quarter behind Ewing's 12 points and the team's 63 percent shooting. Pippen scored just two points in the period as the Bulls missed 19 shots.

New York started the fourth quarter with an 18-5 run, tying the game 62-62 on Mason's putback of Hubert Davis' miss with 5:39 to play. A 7-footer by Mason then gave the Knicks their first lead of the half.

A pair of free throws by Pippen tied it 89-89 with 35.8 seconds left after Davis hit a 3-pointer to put the Knicks ahead. It was a rough night for Ewing, who had scored more than 30 points in the last five games. In the last three minutes of the second half, Ewing missed three of four foul shots, gave up a dunk to Will Perdue, missed an 18-foot jumper and was called for traveling.

He finished the half with just nine points.

Indians top Reds in exhibition opener

By BEN WALKER

Associated Press

PLANT CITY, Fla. - No, Pedro Borbon did not pitch for the Cincinnati Reds. The plump, 48-year-old reliever plodded over backwards trying to make it through pregame drills, however.

That was the biggest pratfall Thursday as the Cleveland Indians beat the Reds 3-1 in their first crack at replacement baseball before an announced crowd of 1,260, seemingly double the actual attendance.

Instead, the smallest crowd ever for an exhibition opener in Plant City Stadium's eight years — the previous low was 4,464 in 1991 — saw a relatively clean game that had only one error and just a few other miscasts.

Rather, there were a couple of nifty plays, not bad for an early spring game in which losing pitcher Rick Reed had the most big-league experience.

"There was nothing wrong with what was out there," Reed said. "It was not major league, no it was not. But it was good baseball."

Maybe even a little better than that, actually.

"This has been portrayed by a lot of people as a bunch of guys out of the beer leagues," Indians manager Mike Hargrove said.

"The skill level obviously isn't the same as if we'd had Kenny Lofton or Albert Belle or Barry Larkin, but these weren't beer leaguers. These guys have played."

Still, the day had its strange moments.

Hours before the game began, the Reds and Indians announced baseball's first two trades of replacement players.

TAKE A WALK ON THE WILD SIDE.

GRAND OPENING FRIDAY, MARCH 3 IN THE REAR OF PARKMOOR PLAZA ELKHART JUST 30 MINUTES FROM THE N.B. CAMPUS • 68 20 E. TO 58 19 NORTH

Zoology 101 was never like this. The ZOO, Michiana's hottest new live rock club, opens its gates on Friday, March 3. See wildlife exhibits like Alternative Thursdays and the Midwest's best live rock bands. Visit the ZOO and take a walk on the wild side.
Associated Press

MILWAUKEE

Hoosier Glenn Robinson scored 28 points and keyed a fourth-quarter comeback Thursday night as the Milwaukee Bucks topped the Atlanta Hawks 103-93 to snap their three-game losing streak.

Robinson, who had nine points in the quarter, got it back for good when he dunked with 4:28 remaining for a 91-90 lead. He followed that with another basket and then hit one of two free throws and the Bucks hung on.

Smith, who had 14 points in the quarter, hit his second straight 3-pointer in the third period to give the Hawks a 79-77 lead. But the Bucks scored nine straight points to end the period, pulling to 79-76 on a basket by Johnny Newman with 20 seconds left.

The Hawks led 50-38 with 4:43 left in the second quarter after a basket by Augmon, who had 7-for-8 and had 18 points in the first half. But the Bucks offense finally came alive, scoring 12 unanswered points, with Day capping the surge with his second 3-pointer.

Atlanta led 56-52 at the half after Smith sank a pair of free throws with 22.2 seconds left.

The victory was the fifth straight for Indiana against the Illini in Assembly Hall and came in a game that is expected to be crucial to both teams as they try to get into the NCAA tournament.

Richard Keene's 3-pointer with 18.7 seconds to play tied the game 85-85. Illinois (17-10, 9-6 Big Ten) came down court and Miller took a pass from Andre Patterson underneath the Hoosiers' basket and hit the layup despite being fouled by Kevin Turner.

Illinois (17-10, 8-7) then turned the ball over when Keene attempted a three-quarter court pass to Kiwane Garris, but tossed the ball out of bounds. Michael Hermon was fouled with three seconds remaining and made one free shot to end the scoring.

Brian Evans was the only other Hoosier in double figures with 16 points, while Jerry Hester and Gary Williams scored 14 each.

Robinson hit the game-winning shot with 22.6 seconds left.

D A V I D  K N O K E

University of Minnesota

Speaks on

"Company Job Training and Employee Careers: Making the Connection"

Monday, March 6
4:15 p.m.
122 Hayes-Healy
Reception to Follow

If you see sports happening, call
The Observer
at 631-4543.
Irish begin title defense

By JOE VILLINSKI
Sports Writer

There's a motivational phrase teams like to use stating, "There's no I in team." But for the Notre Dame fencing team, there will have to be an I if they want to put a fence in front of their fall championships.

"There's no I in team," women's epee captain Claudette de Bruin said. "Otherwise they would not be able to go." As for this weekend, deBruin will lead the epee team into competition along with colegue Smerek and Anne Hoos. Women's foil will be represented by captain Maria Panyi, Mindi Kalogeris, and Monica Wagner.

On the men's side, foil captain Stan Brunner, Conor Power, and Jeremy Siek comprise a formidable foil squad. In epee, captain Rakesh Patel, Carl Jackson, and Brian Stone will travel to Appleton, while captain Chris Hajnik, Bill Lester, and Chris McQuaid round out the men's team in sabre.

Due to rule changes in the off season by the NCAA governing body, the qualifying tournament and the championships themselves will differ considerably from the team format that existed last year.

Now, the team championships will be based on the results of a few individuals.

The new rules are a result of women's epee being added to the competition for the first time ever. Rather than expanding the budget to include the additional fencers, the NCAA decided to limit the number of fencers who can compete.

"The fencing coaches have worked for over 40 years to get both a team and individual competition structured," men's head coach Mike DeCicco said. "We wanted it this way because the teams who won could honestly come back and say they were the best.

Instead of sending the whole team to Appleton, the Irish are forced to send only three fencers in each weapon this year. From those three, only two can qualify for the championships which will be hosted by Notre Dame.

"It's good the championships are here because people will be able to cheer," women's epee captain Claudette de Bruin said. "Otherwise they would not be able to go.

As for this weekend, deBruin will lead the epee team into competition along with colegue Smerek and Anne Hoos. Women's foil will be represented by captain Maria Panyi, Mindi Kalogeris, and Monica Wagner.

On the men's side, foil captain Stan Brunner, Conor Power, and Jeremy Siek comprise a formidable foil squad. In epee, captain Rakesh Patel, Carl Jackson, and Brian Stone will travel to Appleton, while captain Chris Hajnik, Bill Lester, and Chris McQuaid round out the men's team in sabre.

Because of these new rules, the question arises as to what the Irish need to do at Appleton to put themselves in good position in three weeks.

"For Notre Dame to have a chance to repeat, two fencers in each weapon must qualify," DeCicco said.

This is not out of the realm of possibility considering the Irish will be fencing the same people they encountered last weekend at the Midwest Fencing Team Championships.

"Last weekend was a good chance to look at all the people," de Bruin said. "We were also able to gain some confidence from it."

If the fencers do not qualify outright this weekend, there are still four at-large bids for each weapon that are available based on factors such as season mark and record against others who qualified.

"I think we have a good shot at putting two in from each weapon," Hajnik said. "We all saw how we could do against midwestern competition last weekend."

The only question that remains is if the Irish can adjust to the new format.

"Team unity has been building all year in the dual meets," assistant coach Ed Baguer said. "But then it all comes down to the individual. It really is a big mental change.

"If the team can carry over the momentum they gained last weekend to Appleton," DeCicco added, "we will be back on track to making a run at the NCAA championship."
The task is easier this time, Team Indoors only to come weekend," Irish coach Jay Wiscons for the National end — they aren’t up against any Wolverines today at 4 pm. and Center this weekend owning but not by much. home with losses to top-ranked top five teams.

Friday, March 3, 1995 The Observer • SPORTS

By TIM SHERMAN Assistant Sports Editor

The nationally ranked Notre Dame women’s tennis team gets a little breathing this weekend — they aren’t up against any top five teams.

Last weekend, the 5-5 Irish headed up to Madison, Wisconsin for the National Team Indoors only to come home with losses to top-ranked Georgia and no. 3 Stanford. The task is a easier this time, but not by much.

Both Michigan and Wake Forest visit the Eck Tennis Center this weekend owning national rankings. The Irish face their regional rival Wolverines today at 4 pm. and return on Sunday to face the red-hot Demon Deacons at 12 pm. “This will be another tough weekend,” Irish coach Jay Louderback. “It is definitely better than playing cupcakes though.” That is one problem Louderback and the Irish have not had to worry about this season. This is their seventh straight match up against top thirty opponents, and although the record doesn’t really indicate it, Louderback feels his squad is right where they should be. “We’re playing pretty good tennis right now. We’ve lost some tough matches but I’ve been pleased.”

Still, Notre Dame will need to step the play this weekend to get back on the winning track after two straight defeats.

Michigan is off to a somewhat disappointing start, but nonetheless is one of the top four clubs in the Midwest region.

“They haven’t played many matches, but they are definitely one of the better teams in our region,” Louderback noted.

Last season, the Big Blue slipped by the Irish in Ann Arbor 5-4. That match is still in the back of Irish minds. “We lost in a tough one last year and I’m sure everyone remembers it,” Louderback said. “Wendy (Grabriee, #1 singles) lost to a very, very talented freshman and she will be ready.”

Wake may present even more of a challenge, as they come to South Bend on an 8-0 roll. The one defeat the Deacons suffered was at the paws of the top-ranked Bulldogs of Georgia.

In addition, they soundly defeated a quality William & Mary team. The Tribe own a win over the Irish earlier this year. In the past, Notre Dame had some success against Wake Forest. Two of the past three matches have been decided by 5-4 counts.

By MEGAN GRAGHT Sports Writer

For perhaps the only time this season, the fabulous Notre Dame weather might give its baseball team an advantage.

This weekend the Irish travel to Seattle for the College Baseball Classic, to be held in the Seattle Kingdome.

“I think the location will definitely be to our advantage, since we’re used to turf, a roof, an indoor environment,” said coach Paul Mainieri. “It’s just like Loftus, except I think Loftus is nicer facility.”

Notre Dame opens the tournament tonight at seven o’clock against Nevada. Both are Pac-10 North schools, but neither are ranked.

Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.

“Both teams are off to a slow start,” Mainieri says, “but I’m sure they will be ready for us and tough to beat in their own backyard.”

Mainieri looks for Sunday’s morning game against Nevada to be the toughest match of the tournament. The Wolfpack is 1-2, and ranked as high as 17 in some national polls.
Irish must keep intensity

By MICHAEL DAY
Sports Writer

A tough act to follow.

After last Saturday’s historic 6-3 upset victory over Michigan, what could the Notre Dame hockey team possibly do for an encore?

“Beat Illinois-Chicago and Western Michigan and go into the playoffs on a high note,” said head coach Bob Schaefer following the game.

Heading into tonight’s contest versus Illinois-Chicago at the Joyce Center, the Irish have the opportunity to make the transition from league doormat to playoff contender. However, they will need to play with the same intensity for 60 minutes to pull off a pair of upsets over UIC and Western Michigan.

One advantage for the Irish tonight could be the weekend condition of Illinois-Chicago. The Flames are coming off a late game last night against Western Michigan, while Notre Dame has had the luxury of having a week off to rest and prepare for the nationally televised matchup.

Entering tonight’s game in sole possession of seventh place with an 18-18-4 record, Illinois-Chicago has been inconsistent all season long. The Flames have been torrid at times at the offensive end but have struggled defensively for much of the year.

Offensively, UIC forwards Rob Hutson (42 points) and Mark Zhao (34) lead a balanced scoring attack. At goaltender, Paul Spencer (4.50 Goals Against Average) and Adam Lord (4.70 GAA) have each seen extensive playing time, but neither is yet to establish himself as a CCHA starter.

With this in mind, the Irish could have a field day offensively against the Flames. Junior Jamison Ling (40 points), sophomore Tim Harberts (31), sophomore Jamie Morhead (25), and Terry Lorenz (24) are the major reason Notre Dame has gone from anemic to solid at the offensive end.

“We’ve become a lot more opportunistic offensively,” said senior Jeff Hassleman, “Fortunately, we’ve been converting more of our shots on goal, and six goals against Michigan is a pretty good feat.”

At one time, defeating Western Michigan on their home ice would have been out of the question. However, given the Irish’s improved play and attitude, anything is possible.

The Broncos entered last night’s game in eighth place in the CCHA with a 15-16-5 overall record. However, having already notched 4-4 and 4-3 victories over the Irish this season, WMU is confident they will be able to complete the season sweep on Saturday.

Goaltender Brian Renfrew is a team leader and one of the CCHA’s top goaltenders with a 3.05 GAA. Leading the way for the Bronco offense are junior centers Jamal Mayers (44 points) and Jeremy Brown (39) and junior left wing Chris Brooks.

Attempting to slow down the talented trio will be an improved Irish defense led by senior Jeff Hassleman.

Unfortunately, we’ve been converting more of our shots on goal, and six goals against Michigan is a pretty good feat.

Fortunately, we’ve been converting more of our shots on goal, and six goals against Michigan is a pretty good feat.

“We’ve become a lot more opportunistic offensively,” said senior Jeff Hassleman, “Fortunately, we’ve been converting more of our shots on goal, and six goals against Michigan is a pretty good feat.”

At one time, defeating Western Michigan on their home ice would have been out of the question. However, given the Irish’s improved play and attitude, anything is possible.

The Broncos entered last night’s game in eighth place in the CCHA with a 15-16-5 overall record. However, having already notched 4-4 and 4-3 victories over the Irish this season, WMU is confident they will be able to complete the season sweep on Saturday.

Goaltender Brian Renfrew is a team leader and one of the CCHA’s top goaltenders with a 3.05 GAA. Leading the way for the Bronco offense are junior centers Jamal Mayers (44 points) and Jeremy Brown (39) and junior left wing Chris Brooks.

Attempting to slow down the talented trio will be an improved Irish defense led by senior Jeff Hassleman.
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 One often called on for answers (5)
12 One for the road (5)
15 Pointedly punctuated (5)
16 Ally's assassin (5)
17 Monitor for 12 Across (5)
18 Throw (9)
19 Reddish-brown horses (7)
20 Ship's part (7)
23 Malta or Martinique (7)
29 Folded cooker (7)
32 Part of the plot (7)
35 Current status (7)
43 All dried up (7)

DOWN
1 Mud of a Red River (9)
3 Big showcase (9)
4 Maple genus (9)
6 Priest (9)
7 Charity's destination (9)
8 Skin softener (9)
9 Horn (shaker) (9)
10 Holy one (9)
11 Wedding item (9)
12 The British seized it in 1795 (9)
13 Oddly (9)
14 The brink (9)
15 Cotton machine (9)
16 Detonate (9)
21 On a hotel phone, e.g. (9)
22 Forest god (11)
23 Jazz guitarist (11)
24 1980's United Nations name (11)
25 Roman statesman (11)
26 Finnish city (11)
27 Sign up (11)
28 Jamie of "Ally's F*ck"
29 Holiday serving (11)
30 Union targets (11)
31 Long dress (11)
32 End of a 11 song (11)
33 Ghetalian city (11)
34 "Red River"
35 Union targets (11)
36 "Don't You Know" singer (7)
37 Unprestigious publication (7)
38 "I Love You" (7)
39 Leek indicator (7)
40 Western attire (7)
41 Thaisic (7)
42 Reach by ship (7)
43 Gay (7)
44 Leathery part (7)
45 Easy questions (7)
46 Shoe width (7)
47 "That's the beauty of it, Biff! I don't have to worry about my fat intake today. I'm having a quadruple bypass tomorrow!

Get answers to any three clues by touch-tone phone: 1-900-429-5695 (75¢ each minute).
Notre Dame looks to get back on track

By DAVID TREACY
Sports Writer

The best way to forget about a tough loss is to get a tough win. This Sunday, the lacrosse team has a chance to earn a victory which should definitely get them back on the fast track. The problem is, this Sunday’s opponent probably doesn’t want to help the Irish get themselves together.

The Tar Heels of North Carolina should prove to be a formidable and unforgiving opponent this weekend. This is the first meeting between the two schools and will take place at Chapel Hill. Notre Dame is trying to establish itself as an up-and-coming lacrosse program, while North Carolina is already one of the top lacrosse schools in the country. They go into their first game of the season ranked 7th in the country, while the Irish have dropped to 17th in the polls after the loss to Penn State last weekend.

North Carolina returns 24 lettermen, including 5 starters, from last year’s NCAA semi-final squad. Included in these returnees is keeper Rocco D’Andraia, a team co-captain and one of the ACC’s top returnees. His mainstay, needs to perform up to his form. “I believe that we can play with any team in the country, provided we play Notre Dame-caliber lacrosse. There isn’t a single team that should beat us.”

Notre Dame will need a productive game in the cage from keeper Ryan Jewell. In addition, the defense, the team’s mainstay, needs to perform up to par against the powerful Tarheel offense. Strong games would be especially well against the powerful Tarheels is the loss of two high-scoring attackers due to graduation.

Of course, the bigger they come, the harder they fall. Notre Dame will need a productive game in the cage from keeper Ryan Jewell. In addition, the defense, the team’s mainstay, needs to perform up to par against the powerful Tarheel offense. Strong games would be especially well coming from tri-captains Billy Gallagher and Mike Iorio. Iorio will most likely mark NC’s most talented attacker, while Gallagher will need to gobble up ground balls, a problem that the team had in last week’s performance, as well as play heads-up defense.

Coach Kevin Corrigan has no fear of the team, which was highly unexpected coming into the season. Tri-captain Randy Colley and midfielder Willie Sutton had big games last weekend, but will need help against the top-flight NC defense.

Coach Kevin Corrigan has no fear of the Tarheels, provided the Irish play up to form. “I believe that we can play with any team in the country, provided we play Notre Dame-caliber lacrosse. There isn’t a single team that should beat us.”

Busy weekend for Irish

By B. J. Hood
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men’s tennis team will try to build on Wednesday’s 7-0 victory over Wisconsin as they clash with two other Big Ten teams. The Irish will face Illinois on Saturday and Iowa on Sunday, with both matches starting at three in the afternoon. The schedule does not appear to be getting any easier for the Irish. Illinois defeated a ranked Arizona outdoors, Bayliss feels they are a better indoor team, boasting an aggressive hard hitting team.

Jeff Goddard takes aim at third title

Senior Willie Sutton and the Irish lacrosse team will have its hands full this Sunday as they face the Tarheels of North Carolina.

NOTRE DAME HOCKEY

The Irish hockey team closes out its 1994-95 regular season this weekend against Illinois-Chicago and Western Michigan

SEE PAGE 22

of note...