SMC group discusses GLND/SMC

By SHANNON CRUNK
News Writer

A group of Saint Mary's faculty and students met Friday afternoon to discuss how the Saint Mary's community can respond to the struggles of the GLND/SMC community in their efforts to gain recognition.

Dr. Max Westler of the English department opened the discussion. He expressed the sentiment that "homophobia is a disease of the soul and it is the right thing to stand up against it."

He emphasized the importance of doing "the right thing" and opened the floor for discussion and questions concerning GLND/SMC.

The discussion group, composed of students and faculty sympathetic to the struggles of GLND/SMC, focused on the best way Saint Mary's could help GLND/SMC as they struggle for recognition.

After some debate concerning Saint Mary's official position on the homosexual organization, the group decided to meet directly with members of GLND/SMC in another open discussion.

The group hopes that another meeting would enable GLND/SMC to voice its concerns in a sympathetic group setting.

Former talk show host enters GOP race

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO

Alan Keyes, a radio talk show host and foreign affairs aide to President Ronald Reagan, entered the race for the Republican nomination for president Sunday.

The 44-year-old host of "America's Wake-Up Call" on WCBM in Owings Mills, Md., announced his candidacy at the convention of the California Republican Assembly, a coalition of more than 100 grassroots conservative clubs in California.

Keyes, who was a State Department policy planner and ambassador to the U.N. Economic and Social Council for the Reagan administration, said he would make abortion the No. 1 issue of his campaign, and he accused two other GOP presidential hopefuls — Sen. Phil Gramm and commentator Pat Buchanan — of "putting it on the back burner."

Buchanan appeared before the same group Saturday and spoke against abortion. Gramm was to follow Keyes before the convention later Sunday.

"Abortion is morally wrong. It epitomizes the central issues of our time," Keyes said.

Pope likens abortion
to attack on democracy

By FRANCES D'EMILIO
Associated Press

VATICAN CITY

Previewing an encyclical on life to be made public next week, Pope John Paul II on Sunday portrayed the acceptance of abortion and euthanasia as "threats to democracy and peace."

The document, called "Evangelium vitae"—Latin for Gospel of Life—had been expected to be released late last year. But the pope apparently wanted more time to review it, and the Vatican said it will be released Thursday.

Encyclical are reserved for the most important papal declarations. Italian media reported Sunday that the pope had considered almost up to the last minute putting the papal stamp of infallibility on the document. That would have given even more weight to the church's condemnation of abortion and other issues of morality. But such a move would have likely failed alienating even further the liberal wing of the Roman Catholic Church in the West.

John Paul told a crowd in St. Peter's Square that the encycilical was written after wide consultations with bishops around the world. He called the document "a meditation on life, as grasped in the fullness of its natural and supernatural di-

The pope said he was worried about a growing "culture of death," despite some signs of hope, including opposition to war and public objections to human rights violations.

Panetta: Clinton will veto GOP welfare plan

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

President Clinton will reject any welfare bill coming out of Congress that removes the safety net for children, White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said Sunday.

Panetta said the presidential veto would also be wielded against Republican tax cut and crime bills. "There are places where we are going to draw lines," he said.

"Panetta, speaking on NBC's "Meet the Press," said the GOP welfare bill that emerged from the House last week was "weak on work requirements and very tough on children. We want to basically reverse those priorities."

The House legislation, which faces an uphill battle in the Senate, aims to slash $66 billion from the federal welfare budget over five years by turnning over to the states management of social programs.

"If they intend to block-grant the school lunch program, the school breakfast program, and the food stamp program and programs that we think are necessary in order to assist nutrition for children, then there is no question that the president would object to those proposals," Panetta said.

Keenan’s ‘Diversity Day’ challenges racism

By MATTHEW LOUGHRAN
News Writer

Race relations at Notre Dame have taken steps towards improvement but cannot be perfected, according to a panel of students gathered to discuss issues as the final event of Keenan Hall’s ‘Diversity Day’. The panel, composed of seven students of differing racial and ethnic backgrounds addressed a racially diverse, standing-room only crowd in the Keenan Commons. According to moderator Steven Berdenkircher, the purpose of the panel discussion, 'isn’t really to change minds, but more to open minds.' The discussion began with the panel introducing themselves and talking about their ethnic background. "The U.S. system is much more open to different cultures," she said. Some examples that she gave were multi-ethnic celebrations that occur on holidays in the California system that do not happen at Notre Dame. Rochelle Stewart, an African-American senior, indicated that racism is "not what you say, but how you say it." To illustrate this point, she cited an incidence of racism with a hall rector who told her something to the effect of "You people are always causing trouble." She brought forward the idea that the University is taking tiny steps towards alleviating racism, but it is not enough.

The discussion then turned to on-campus clubs and organizations. Reymundo Diaz, a freshman, indicated that most of the clubs provide support for those students who are alone in their experience at Notre Dame. He said that as a Native American, he found that he "has a common bond with the group members of NASAND." Other elements of racial relations at Notre Dame were addressed by Keith Mallett, an African-American senior, and Mai Ly, an Asian-American sophomore. Mai told the audience about the "minority visitation day" during which she was clumped together with all the other minority perspective students. Keith talked of a prejudicial statement that was made to him at a hall dance. A debate over the validity of interracial dating brought up the idea that one had to look past ethnicity to see the person inside. However, the question was worded incorrectly and led the room to erupt with comments from people in the audience denouncing the idea of "looking past their race." This led to a question as to whether one could eliminate racism altogether. This was answered by a majority of the five original panelists with a resounding, no. Rochelle said that, "you cannot eliminate racism because it is part of your background." Human Rights and Cultural Diversity Week is an annual Keenan Hall and Lewis Hall event that ends in a Mass and dinner in Keenan Hall on Sunday.

First Lady discusses gender discrimination

By NANCY BENAC

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (Associated Press) - First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton and Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto pledged a mutual determination Sunday to help women improve their lot in life.

One on one and in public, two of the world's best-known women displayed what appeared to be a genuine kinship as Mrs. Clinton began her 12-day tour of South Asia with a trip to the prime minister's sprawling white hillside residence. "I know that much remains to be done in every society, in both of our countries, to ensure that women assume their rightful place and are given the opportunities to exercise their rights, but I am very optimistic about the place of most women, especially women, in Pakistan," said Abida Hussain.

Bhutto said her government is making "a frontal assault on institutional discrimination against women in our society." Neither woman is without her share of critics, however, and Mrs. Bhutto wryly took note of that when she told Mrs. Clinton, "women who take on tough issues and stake out new territory are often on the receiving end of ignorance. I can personally attest to that."

She added: "You are both tough and a great leader." The openness of the prime minister's residence and the prominence of her women guests - businesswomen, politicians, judges and doctors among them - stood in stark contrast to the place of most impoverished Pakistani women.

Bhutto's critics say her government has failed to live up to her lofty words and that there has been no significant progress in improving the situation of women in this male-dominated society. Many Pakistanis also are disappointed in her failure to revive a stagnant economy and contain violence and corruption.

"Mrs. Bhutto has been an incompetent leader and her government is having a negative impact on most Pakistanis, especially women," said Abida Hussain.

The Harvard-educated Mrs. Clinton said at a five-course luncheon for prominent businesswomen, politicians, judges and doctors that women assume their rightful place and are given the opportunities to exercise their rights, but she is very optimistic about the place of most women, especially women, in Pakistan.

EU nations abolish border standards

By RAF CASERT
Associated Press

BRUSSELS

In a move lauded as a break­through in the European Union's drive for unity, border controls between seven EU na­tions are being abolished on Sunday.

Travelers will be able to keep their passports in their pockets when moving from any one of the seven — France, Germany, Spain, Portugal, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands — to another.

Greece, Italy and Austria are expected to join them in June.

The move comes five years after it was originally scheduled, and it's on a much smaller scale. Several EU members are unready or unwilling to join borderless Eu­rope.

Britain, ever the halfhearted EU member, has vowed to stay out, and because of its customs links with Dublin, is expected to keep Ireland effectively out as well.

The three other EU members, Denmark, Sweden and Finland, have yet to announce their intentions, but they are expected to abolish the controls, too.

The moveable impact Sunday day will be in the seven small airports.

You are invited to join us for the first of ongoing lunchon gatherings to discuss and learn about our faith.

Candyman II: Not so sweet

By LARRY WARD

T he onerous task of reviewing Candyman II started me wondering if this movie was to be considered as a direct sequel or which the filmmakers preferred to call it. As of now, the candy man has been joined by the Candybabies. Each Candyman is a demon from the underworld with a hook for a hand and a barbed wire, but they differ in their specialized role. Candyman is a demon that haunts the streets of Chicago, while Candybabies are demons that haunt the streets of Los Angeles. The film seems to be a continuation of Candyman's story, but it is not a direct sequel. Candyman II is a sequel to Candyman, which was released in 1992. Candyman II is a horror film that follows the story of Candyman, a hook-handed demon from the underworld. The film is a sequel to the 1992 film Candyman, which was directed by Todd Skinner and stars Ken Foree and Tony Todd. The film is about a hook-handed demon from the underworld who is summoned to Chicago to.u

NCAA Tournament: Final Four awaits OSU

The format of the tournament is very bad," says tiebreaker, and the director play bigger roles as opposed to technical fencing." However, Panyi could receive some solace in the fact that she was named outstanding woman in fencing at the championship banquet last night, while a tribute to her conditioning.

"It looked like the old Razorbacks of yesterday, we went on a roll and our defense showed," said Arkansas' head coach Nolan Richardson, watching the Razorbacks outscore the Cavaliers 42-25 in the second half.

"I'm very upset because the director made mistakes," said Brian Tierney, a four-year veteran of the team.

"We're not going to accept losing, but not when calls that are made," added Arkansas' star player, a senior forward. "It would not matter because of Kalinovskaya's dominating performance. Panyi also lost a ball on an ledge and late in the second half, and left the game injured.

"Twenty-three two overs a day is a lot of laps," said captain Tonya, who lead Arkansas to a 1-0 victory. "Even in the final round, your only fone is 10 of 11 balls."

Digger Phelps was put in the same position five years ago, as the once-proud Irish basketball program had fallen into disarray. The emergence of the power conferences such as the Big East and the subsequent ESPN phenomena all but delimited Notre Dame. Phelps had nothing to sell. Such was not the case with Schafer.

Whereas Phelps had no conference to work with, the 1994-95 season marked Notre Dame’s third season in, arguably, college hockey’s premier conference, the Central Collegiate Hockey Association (CCHA). Top to bottom, only Hockey East rivals the CCHA, but with teams like defending national champion Lake Superior State and Michigan State heading the list, the nod should be given to the CCHA.

Competing in such a league is a recruiter’s dream. College hockey may be about as popular as Seau in terms of television ratings, but a stud high school skater would still love to show his stuff on national TV, and playing in the CCHA provides such an opportunity. Granted, Prime Network isn’t exactly NBC, or even CNBC, but it is still something to sell.

In addition to this exposure, the aura of Notre Dame’s name gained the Irish invites to some of the nation’s top tournaments, playing along side powerhouses such as Maine and Boston University. Once again, just something more to offer.

Finally, as much as Notre Dame’s location may hinder the recruiting ability of teams like baseball and the tennis teams, it should be a key benefit for the Irish icer. With fertile hockey breeding grounds such as Minnesota and Michigan, not to mention Canada, relatively close by, Notre Dame should have no problem in recruiting.

But with Schafer leading the way, they have not done the job. One may argue that Schafer’s aloofness of scholarships (14) hurts and that may be of some merit. But the fact remains that he has failed to effectively utilize the 14. Notre Dame doesn’t have seven, let alone 14, players on the roster that compare with the likes of the Wolverines or Spartans.

Some disagree with that last claim, as one service rated the classes of 1996 and 1997 as the first and second-best CCHA classes, respectively. However, what those classes have shown on the ice sharply contrasts that opinion.

Notre Dame has a combined record of 22-47-6 the past two years. That indicates one of two things. Either Schafer and his assistants coaches were a poor judge of talent or he failed to coach the talent toward success.

Whatever the case may be, a change had to be made.

Schafer had lost the interest of the team. Much of that is the fault of the players, but in a situation like this, removing the coach is the only way to go.

Even if the winning percentage doesn’t dramatically jump next season, in all probability, the atmosphere surrounding the program will. Schafer was a loyal Domer, graduating in 1974 and coaching the Irish for fifteen years, and, for the most part, Schafer was cordial enough with the press but with his players, it was another story. On the infrequent occasions when the Irish were victorious, players often said that it was in spite of Schafer. Of course, the coach isn’t supposed to be a friend to all, but when the attitude of the team borders on animosity, you know the time has come for a new direction.

That direction can only be up.

headed,” said Schafer. “I came to the conclusion that it’s in my best interest and maybe the best interest of the program for me to step down at this point.”

Added then member of the team, “He sometimes had problems communicating with his players.”

Since reentering the CCHA in 1992, the Irish have posted a combined record of 29-74-8. Notre Dame was expected to have a breakthrough season this year after two straightbanner recruiting crops, but the squad finished just ninth.

Although Notre Dame is expected to conduct an extensive search, candidates to replace Schafer include longtime Irish assistants Tom Carroll, Lake Superior State’s Jeff Jackson, and Colorado College head coach Don Lucia.

To his credit, Schafer was instrumental in the team’s move back to the CCHA and in convincing the athletic department to award hockey scholarships for the first time.

Dean gives Kentucky lessons on shooting

By PAUL NEWBERRY
Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — It was supposed to be a change of the coaching guard.
North Carolina's Dean Smith, soon to be responsible for more wins than anyone in college basketball history, passing the baton to Kentucky's Rick Pitino, the best coach never to win a championship.

The Little Professor will have to return to the classroom, though. Dean the Dream isn't ready to give up his title.

"Nut many people figured us out, but coach Smith did. Our biggest weakness all year has been our perimeter shooting," said Pitino, acknowledging he was the second-best coach at the Birmingham-Jefferson Civic Center on Saturday.

The Tar Heels laid back in the lane, daring Kentucky to keep shooting from beyond the 3-point arc. The Wildcats obliged by throwing up one bomb after another, a season-high 36 in all.

"If you look at our success this year, we haven't been shooting 3-pointers as much as we used to. Why do we, I don't know," said Pitino, still stunned from a 74-61 setback that sent North Carolina to the Final Four for the third time in five years.

When the brick-a-thon was over, top-seeded Kentucky had made only seven of those 36 shots from long range, just 21- of-75 overall for a season-low 28 percent. Meanwhile, No. 2 seed North Carolina displayed the kind of balance and poise away from his game plan. "In the last five minutes," said Smith, "We just gambled. They didn't shoot better, they just didn't shoot well."

In fact, when the second of two straight exquisite passes from All-American Jerry Stackhouse to Rasheed Wallace set up a basket which pushed a four-point lead to 62-54 with 4:32 remaining, the Tar Heels had all the points they would need.

"We've won so many games in the last five minutes," said Smith, who has won 830 games in his career, second only to Adolph Rupp, and is making his 10th trip to the Final Four, eclipsed only by John Wooden's 12.

"At Wake, at Duke, just go on and on. We have been a poised team and I felt we were (Saturday)."

Kentucky, on the other hand, definitely lacked in that category. Pitino should have had an inkling when his center, Andre Riddick, exploded in anger after taking an elbow to the chin from Wallace. Riddick grabbed at Wallace's neck, shoved a Kentucky assistant who tried to restrain him and then kicked over a chair on the sideline.

"That broke a little momentum for us," Pitino said, "but it didn't lose the game."

In fact, Kentucky stretched its 8-2 advantage at the time of the scuffle into a 13-5 advantage, its biggest of the game, and didn't seem to lose any of its defensive swagger. Rodrick Rhodes knocked away an inlet pass, smiled and shook his head as if to say, "Don't come in my neighborhood."
The Wildcats also came up with a couple of steals and forced the Heels into a 35-second violation on another possession.

But something else was going on at the other end of the court. Kentucky kept firing up 3-pointers — and kept missing, squandering one chance after another to put the Tar Heels away. "We make one pass and shoot a 3," Pitino groaned. "I'm kind of stunned.

We've worked on being a team all season, and then we showed up as individuals. "I showed up instead of we.''

Pitino's team could have learned a few lessons from North Carolina, which put up 26 fewer shots than Kentucky but made three more (24-of-49 for 49 percent). Stackhouse was awesome, beating his man off the dribble, bulling his way inside to draw fouls, dominating the boards.

Stackhouse was mugged in the lane enough times to think 11 of 14 free throws, accounting for most of his 18 points. He knew when to pass, finishing with a game-high six assists. And with Wallace able to play only 23 minutes because of foul trouble, Stackhouse led everyone with 12 rebounds, stifling the Wildcats' inside game.

"Not only were they not shooting well, but we were contesting their shots," said Stackhouse.
Aggressive Belles sweep weekend twin bill

The Saint Mary's softball team returned from Chicago victorious Saturday evening, after defeating Concordia in both games of their double header. The Belles easily closed out both games by scores of 10-2 and 13-8. Saint Mary's closed out both games by scores of 10-2 and 13-8. The Saint Mary's winning pitcher in the game was Lori Langenderfer. "We played well," Langenderfer said. "We struggled in the second game because of mental errors, but we kept our head in the game and got back into it." Coach Maggie Killian feels that the Belles cannot continue to make the mental errors and allow teams to come back. "We cannot afford to make the errors against better teams," Killian stated. "The better teams will not allow us to get back into the game like we returned and the win gives them confidence going into the next season.

After beating Pacific in the first round of the tournament, the Irish lost their second round game to Northwestern State 103-93. "While the Irish offense shot over 58 percent and out-rebounded the Lady Demons 41-29, the Irish turned the ball over 27 times and lost a 13 point halftime lead.

"In the second half they were hitting everything," Bohman said. "They just could not miss. We kept control and came back. We got frustrated as a team."

While the Irish ended the season on the high note with a third place finish in the WNT, they mourn the graduation of one of their key players, Bowen. As the only senior on the team, much of the leadership responsibility fell on her.

For the Irish, this may have been the best game of the year. "That was the best we've played all year," Bohman said. "We just played really good and surprised them."

"We were really relaxed," Perick added. "We played our game and had fun."

Sophomore forward Beth Morgan continued her sixth woman role and led the Irish with seven rebounds in her final game, and the Irish offense shot over 53 percent in the game while sprinting to an early 44-25 halftime lead.

The game also has a profound effect on next year's team. With only one senior, the Irish have most of the team did Saturday.

"In the second game, we had one bad inning that gave Concordia the chance to come back. We gave ourselves trouble and didn't play our best until the last two innings. But the girls really showed determination and played well until the end of the game."

Coach Killian attributes the team's success to the Belles' aggressiveness while batting. Catcher Gretchen Moore had two hits in the second game and shortstop Shannon Heise hit a blast into the fence, just missing fair territory.

Saint Mary's intensity also helped them to come back against Concordia. Centerfielder Michelle Limb felt that this had a major role in what helped the Belles to overcome their struggles in the second game.

"As our lead started to diminish, our intensity became very high. Concordia tied it up but we kept control and came back to win it," she said. "We really played well as a team when we needed to, both at bat and in the field."

Saint Mary's plays at Bethel College at 3:00 on Tuesday.

Belles successful on individual and team level

By CAROLINE BLUM
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

Practice makes perfect. And Saturday, lots of practice meant exceptionally well in two indoor meets earlier in March, the Belles brought their successes outside Saturday with their 111 point finish. Out of the 19 Belles who competed in the invitational, 15 placed in their events.

"Because the Belles did well in the Chicago and Huntington indoor meets, I had great hopes against tough competition." said the track coach Larry Szczesnichowski. "The Belles did extremely well Saturday. They carried their accomplishments and improvements into the meet."

Although there were five women's teams at the meet, the competition was geared more towards the individual level. Paula Kivinen, a sophomore, placed first in the high jump against tough competition.

"I was very excited about the jump. The girls that I was up against were better than usual, and I had not expected to do so well," said Kivinen.

Kivinen jumped five feet Saturday. The jump is only three inches away from breaking the school's record, which Kivinen hopes to break by the end of the season. Kivinen was not alone in her accomplishments, however. Kristin Donahue, a sophomore sprinter, earned eleven points Saturday with her third place finish in the long jump, and finishes in the 100 and 200 meter races.

Michelle Wenner, a junior distance runner and also a team captain, placed third in the 3000 meter race with her timing of 11:30. Erin Meilfont, a sophomore distance runner ran an incredible race which earned her fourth place in the 800 meter.

"Mellifont ran against a lot of competition," said Coach Szczesnichowski. "She ran an incredible race which really rallied the team. We were really happy with her race."

The team's leading scorer on Saturday was junior Jill Jusick. Jusick placed in four of her five events including third in the 100 meter, second in the long jump, second in the 4 by 100 meter relay, and sixth in the triple jump.

"I was really happy with my performance on Saturday—especially in the 100 meter—" said Jusick. "I think that the whole team did exceptionally well. Since it was our first meet, we hope to carry our success throughout the rest of the season."

Kelly Medlin, a sophomore and the team's leading shot putter, broke the school record Saturday with her 33'10" cast. Medlin's rocket secured her a fourth place finish in the event.

"I was excited to have broken the record, but I was expecting it," said Medlin. "I normally throw around two feet further than I threw Saturday, so I expected to break it but by a lot more. I was pleased, but I knew that I could've done better."

The old shot put record was only 31'7" and was set back in 1982.

Other great performances included Julie Govorka's second place finish in the javelin throw and Joann Weed's third place finish in the triple jump.

Overall the meet was a great incentive for the Belles, providing great excitement and hopes for the rest of the season.

Sluggers streak to four games by dropping Canes

By MEGAN McGRATH

They extended their losing streak to four games by dropping two games 9-4 and 12-4 to the third-ranked Miami Hurricanes.

The good news came Sunday as Notre Dame rebounded to beat the Canes 5-2 in Miami. Senior righty Craig Allen earned the win by going six and two-thirds innings, surrendering seven runs in the game.

Third baseman Mike Amrhein sparked by lead-off hitter Rick Gama. The second baseman hit two home runs and a double as part of a 4-5, four RBI performance.

Scott Soliman went 2-4 and Randall Brooks 2-2 with a double for Notre Dame. Shortstop J.J. Brock had two RBI on his first homer of the season.

Saturday the Irish went up against season All-America pitcher Jason Adge. Adge lived up to the billing by no-hitting Notre Dame for five and two-thirds innings en route to his seventh win of the season.

The few offensive highlights for the Irish occurred with two outs in the sixth, when they finally got to Adge. Christian Parker and Ryan Topham drew walks, and captain Craig DeSensi drove them in with his first home run of the season.

Senior captain Craig DeSensi had a homer against Miami.

Long-ball of his collegiate career.

Even with the run production, the Irish still found themselves trailing by seven after three and a third innings having given up six earned runs and seven hits.

The bad news of the weekend for the Irish baseball team was Notre Dame's 9-9 record may be below .500 mark is exactly where he needed to start our home season. "This is the part of the season where we can get our heads above water and put together some winning streaks."

But before Notre Dame can get to Wednesday's home opener with Bowling Green, they had to play baseball powerhouse Miami.

In Friday night's first game, the Irish showed a bit of nerves, surrendering seven runs in the first six innings. Only four of those runs were earned, as Notre Dame committed three errors in the game.

Pitcher Darin Schmalz got his first loss in four starts. The sophomore went five and two-thirds innings, surrendering four earned runs and six hits. The Miami attack was sparked by lead-off hitter Rick Gama. The second baseman hit two home runs and a double as part of a 4-5, four RBI performance.

The Miami attack was sparked by lead-off hitter Rick Gama. The second baseman hit two home runs and a double as part of a 4-5, four RBI performance.

The good news cam e Sunday the Irish went up against season All-America pitcher Jason Adge. Adge lived up to the billing by no-hitting Notre Dame for five and two-thirds innings en route to his seventh win of the season.

The few offensive highlights for the Irish occurred with two outs in the sixth, when they finally got to Adge. Christian Parker and Ryan Topham drew walks, and captain Craig DeSensi drove them in with his first home run of the season.

Senior captain Craig DeSensi had a homer against Miami.

Long-ball of his collegiate career.

Even with the run production, the Irish still found themselves trailing by seven after three and a third innings having given up six earned runs and seven hits.

Moss charged following high school fight

By MIKE NORBUT

Notre Dame football recruit Randy Moss has been charged with malicious wounding following a racially motivated fight Thursday, according to the Kanawha County Sheriff's Department.

Moss, 18 of Belle, W.Va. and another black student, 17, fought with a white student, 18-year-old Roy Johnson of Parkersburg. Authorities refused to release the name of the third student because of his age.

No charges were filed initially, but after further investigation by both school officials and local authorities, a warrant was released for Moss' arrest.

The fight started when Johnson provoked the third student by writing a racial slur on a classroom desk.

"All we know is that there was the third student's name and some smears," DuPont High School Principal Patrick Law said. "Apparently there was something written there."

The fight erupted between Johnson and the third student in the hallway of the school, provoking Moss to jump in and leaving Johnson hospitalized.

The other two students left the fray unjured.

Johnson was admitted to the intensive care unit of the Charleston Area Medical Center with a concussion and internal injuries to the spleen, kidneys, and liver, according to hospital spokesperson Karen Frashier.

Johnson was moved into a regular room Sunday and is currently in stable condition.

Moss and the third student were suspended from school Friday. Their readmittance will depend on the outcome of the case, said Mike Bell, spokesman for Kanawha County schools.

A prison sentence could be grounds for expulsion, which would put Moss' graduation from high school in jeopardy. Without a high school diploma, Moss could also lose his scholarship to play football at Notre Dame.

A 6-5, 205-pound Parade All-American at wide receiver, Moss was the blue-chip athlete that gave the Irish the top recruiting class in the nation.

Notre Dame officials declined to comment on the situation.

Schafer resigns his position as Notre Dame football coach

In a move that came as little surprise to most fans and critics, Schafer, a 1974 Notre Dame graduate and co-captain, stepped down to explore other business opportunities both outside and within the University.

"Since our season ended two years ago, I've tried to look at our program, where we've come from and where we're going," Schafer said. "We're not beating the bush here, the hockey program at Notre Dame is an utter embarrassment to the athletic program. Fortunately the main reason for the ineptitude on ice is gone."

After eight years as hockey coach, Ric Schafer resigned on Friday.

"It was good to end the season with a win," Bowen said. "Not being invited to the NCAA was a big disappointment and we didn't win the WNYT," freshman guard Mollie Patrick said. "But we won our last game and not many teams can do that. So many teams end the season with a loss."

"The biggest thing was that we wanted to go out with a win," sophomore forward Rosanne Bohman explained.

Third place finish in WNIT

By THOMAS SCHLJIT

Is the glass half-empty or half-full? The Notre Dame women's basketball team failed to make the NCAA tournament, lost in the Midwestern Collegiate tournament and Letitia Bowen finalized her Irish career one rebound short of a thousand.

On the other hand, the Irish were one of only eight teams invited to the women's NIT, they were the MCC regular season champions, Bowen amazingly amassed 999 career rebounds and sophomore Katryna Gaither emerged as one of the dominant centers in the nation.

And last Saturday, when the Irish defeated Massachusetts 90-72 to clinch third place in the WNIT and become one of only a few teams in the nation to end their season with a victory, they finalized that their glass is definitely more full than it is empty.

"It was good to end the season on a high note with a win," Bowen said. "Not being invited to the NCAA was a big disappointment and we didn't win the WNIT," freshman guard Mollie Patrick said. "But we won our last game and not many teams can do that. So many teams end the season with a loss."

"The biggest thing was that we wanted to go out with a win," sophomore forward Rosanne Bohman explained.

Fencers stand in fourth

The Notre Dame fencing team is seeing double with the women's portion of the NCAA championships in the books.

With two days done and two days left, the Irish placed two fencers in the top three in the country over the weekend in their quest for two championship titles in a row.

Co-captain Maria Panji finally finished second in the nation to Penn State's Olga Kalinovskya, who captured her third straight women's foil title.

As expected, the title was settled between these two rivals. With a throng of people watching, Panji battled Kalinovskya to a 4-2 lead before the three-time champion
