Magazine poll lauds ND, SMC

US News names Saint Mary's 1st in Midwest

Top Ranking Colleges in the Nation

The top 20 colleges in the U.S. as ranked by U.S. News & World Report

1. Harvard University
2. Princeton University
3. Yale University
4. Stanford University
5. MIT
6. Duke University
7. California Institute of Technology
8. Dartmouth College
9. Brown University
10. Johns Hopkins University
11. University of Pennsylvania
12. University of Chicago
13. Cornell University
14. Northwestern University
15. Columbia University
16. Rice University
17. Emory University
18. University of Notre Dame
19. University of Virginia
20. Washington University

Midwest Liberal Arts Schools

1. St. Mary's College
2. St. Norbert College
3. Marietta College

Riding that train

There's no need to watch your speed when cruising the 1.5 mile Notre Dame & Western

By JOHN LUCAS

In some houses they were a Christmas-time tradition, set up in a circle around the family tree. The more devoted converted their basements into rugged landscapes featuring mountain ranges and lengthy tunnels. Whether it was a Lionel or H.O.-scale set, most American males will happily describe their first experience with toy trains.

For John DeLee and Francis Chrisovergis, the fascination never wore off. But instead of settling for merely collecting tiny locomotives and train cars, both found bigger and better trains to "play" with. DeLee and Chrisovergis are primarily responsible for the operation of the Notre Dame & Western Railroad, one of the shortest rail lines in the world and the only operated by a college or university.

The 1.5 mile spur, established in 1932, was once part of a larger route that transported football fans between campus and Chicago. Currently, the line is used primarily to ferry 30,000 tons of coal to campus from Ohio and West Virginia. Below: Midwright Lou Smith connects the locomotive to waiting Conrail coal cars.

Left: The 1942 Porter locomotive of the Notre Dame & Western Railroad pulls cars loaded with coal toward the Power Plant. Established in 1932, the line was once part of a larger route that transported football fans between campus and Chicago. Currently, the 1.5 mile spur is used primarily to ferry 30,000 tons of coal to campus from Ohio and West Virginia. Below: Midwright Lou Smith connects the locomotive to waiting Conrail coal cars.

The Observer/DeLee

The Observer/Rumah
You must also tell me what homework you are going so that you can graduate.

follow me around telling me where I have to do and why, along the lines of preparative politics class now, in room 328.

I don't understand how my life suddenly got so complicated and where this need for structure came from. A daily planner always worked in the past. Now, I'm juggling assignments and reading, papers and articles, credit card bills and laundry.

Laundry. That's something else my secretary should do. I should never again wake up in the morning and realize that I have no clean clothes. This happened recently and it was a traumatic experience.

Maybe I should get a maid. I'm sure my roommates will think it'd be that. They could make all our beds every day, fluff our pillows, and befriend the cleaner. Dust would become a thing of the past, and I wouldn't have to worry about treading on spider webs and making our dirty dishes. My room would be organized and neat, and free of lint and grime, but who would take care of my emotional health? I think I need a boyfriend, too.

Nothing serious, of course. I'm not asking for a future marriage proposal or a discussion about whether or not I'll hyphenate my last name. Just someone to rub my feet and play with my hair.

Our conversations would run something like this, and say "Oh, jeez, I am so stressed out. I feel like I'm trying to run a three-hour marathon through the freezing between over cookies. Life is pretty meaningless, so why am I doing all this?"

It's extremely hard, "Because you are an extremely talented, extremely beautiful woman and you have brought meaning to my existence. Let me rub your poor feet."

It's too nice. I don't know where I'd put all these poor feet. I'm not in bad shape that big. So I'll need a deluxe model maid/secretary/birthday/confidant/mother. That way, other people could take care of the details, and I would be left to study and think deep, meaningful thoughts. I could write my resume, or I could tell my secretary to write it. I'd need to have type another term paper, I'd dictate them. I'd have ice cream and kisses 24-7. Clean sheets and no clutter.

Do they sell them at Meijer?

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Today's Staff

The Observer (USPS 593 994) is published Monday through Friday except holidays. The Observer is a member of the Associated Press. All reprints are subject to a minimum charge of $20 per column inch. Rates available upon request. Circulation is over 6,000. Ownership, management and editorial control are held solely by the students of Ball State University. Copyright 1995 by Ball State University. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced without permission in writing from the publisher.

Food

Jennie Heiser

Production

David Diaz

Television

Judie Moore

Sports

Andy Cabanis

Trina Seymour

Jenny Shank

Lab Tech

Nicky Reul

Graphics

Cheri Mullins

Mercury

Peggy Lenczewski

St. Mary's News

H}

World at a Glance

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina

NATO jets streamed through the clouds and fog Thursday, stepping up raids on Bosnian Serb military targets and setting off thunderous blasts that rattled windows miles away in Sarajevo.

Yet rebel Serb leaders refused to accede to the Western alliance's main demand: the withdrawal of the heavy guns that have terrorized Sarajevo for more than three years. To do so, one Serb hardliner said, would be "repudiation.

The Serb position could sink peace talks Friday in Geneva that are to include the foreign ministers of Bosnia, Croatia and Serb-led Yugoslavia.

The UN-American proposal, empowered to negotiate for the Bosnian Serbs, urged an end to the aerial bombardment, which called a "direct attack on the current negotiations.

Since launching air attacks last week in retaliation for a Serb shelling of Sarajevo's main market, NATO has flown more than 2,100 sorties, targeting Serb military command centers, radar, communications and weapon and ammunition storage areas.

The Serbs, despite apparent concessions on other U.N. demands, have staunchly refused to pull their guns at least 12 1/2 miles away from Sarajevo as the United Nations and NATO demand.

They fear withdrawal would mean forced flight to any party in peace negotiations, where the biggest hurdle would be divided Bosnia between Serbs and Muslims-Croats.

Jackson headlines MTV awards

Michael Jackson — this time minuscule Lisa Marie — opened the 12th annual "MTV Video Music Awards with a bang, a boom and three costume changes Thursday night.

The King of Pop performed a 15-minute medley of his greatest hits, running from "Billie Jean" through the current single, "You Are Not Alone." He was joined onstage by a children's choir, a troupe of dancing mobsters, and a chili-mustard and guitar-shirt bash at different times during the opening number.

"Thank you," he told the crowd, which gave him a standing ovation.

Jackson presented the award for best show to the "MTV Video Music Awards Raggaeton Award" for the Latin group Descemer Bueno and Tony Dize and the best dance video award to the British dancer Madonna.

Jackson won a special award for his contribution to the shaping of music and video over the years.

Man wins obesity lawsuit

A jury awarded $1 million to a man who said he was fired by a car parts store because of his 400-pound body. The state jury agreed with John Rossi that his obesity is a physical disability rather than a matter of overindulgence and that he had been protected under a California law similar to the federal Americans with Disabilities Act.

The 35-year-old former high school football star had accused Krauss Auto Parts of concocting poor performance reviews to cover the real reason for his dismissal. The company maintained Rossi was fired for poor job performance. Rossi said last Friday's verdict, which left him in tears, should send a message. "I hope people are judged on their character and work ethic, not on their appearance," Rossi said Thursday. "I was a hard worker. I missed only three days in 10 years. And as a manager, I worked 50- and 60-hour weeks.

Rushdie returns to public eye

LONDON

Cracking wise and playing to the crowd, Salman Rushdie called it his "coming-out party." But the Iranian death sentence that sent him into hiding Thursday over his first announced public appearance in six years. He chose a panel discussion on "Writers Against the State" to make his debut. His appearance was advertised a week in advance and the venue, a Methodist church hall central London, was sold out. "Thank you for coming to this little coming-out party," Rushdie said. Then, puckily: "I was nervous before I was so rudely interrupted ..." His life was turned upside down when he incurred the wrath of the late Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Khomeini with his 1989 novel "The Satanic Verses." The Iranian leader issued the fatwa, or death order, and his government backed it up with the promise of $1 million to whomever carried out the deed.

JFK Jr.'s new magazine premiers

NEW YORK

John Kennedy Jr. introduced a new love Thursday to more than 100 invited reporters — a magazine named George. The magazine is a kind of rolling stone of politics, a smart-alecky take on the subject for the 18-to-45 set. Kennedy is a co-founder and the editor in chief. The first issue features Madonna in a regular celebrity feature, "If I Were President?" Julia Roberts talking about her trip to Haiti; Kennedy's interview with former Alabama Gov. George Wallace; and a piece on stumping in New Hampshire with GOP presidential candidate Richard Lugar. The launch was held at Federal Hall, where George Washington, the magazine's namesake, became president, though Washington might have been taken shock by the inaugural cover, which features Cindy Crawford in a bra, powdered wig and pants thong.

INDIANA WEATHER

Friday, Sept. 8

The AccuWeather Forecast for today is sunny with showers expected in the afternoon. Highs will be in the low 70's.

Inland high:

58°F

59°F

60°F

61°F

62°F

63°F

64°F

65°F

66°F

67°F

68°F

69°F

70°F

71°F

72°F

73°F

74°F

75°F

76°F

77°F

78°F

79°F

80°F

81°F

82°F

83°F

84°F

85°F

86°F

87°F

88°F

89°F

90°F

91°F

92°F

93°F

94°F

95°F

96°F

97°F

98°F

99°F

100°F

A bomb was also dropped in Sarajevo Thursday morning.
Godmilow to premiere new film at the Snite

By ETHAN HAYWARD
Associate News Editor

Internationally heralded film director and associate professor of Communication and Theatre Jill Godmilow will screen her new film "Roy Cohn/Jack Smith" tonight at 7 p.m. in the Annenberg Auditorium of the Snite Museum of Art. Dean Harold Arriage of the College of Arts and Letters will introduce Godmilow at the screening.

The premiere has been designed as a gala benefit for the University's Gender Studies Program and as a forum for the discussion of gay and lesbian issues on the Notre Dame campus. The screening will be followed by a question and answer session involving Godmilow and two other respondents: Eve Kosofsky Sedgwick, an endowed chair at Duke University and the University of Chicago's George Chauncey, author of the book Gay New York.

A roundtable discussion concerning the film will be held an hour and a half later in the Montgomery Theater in LaFortune Center. The discussion is entitled "Epistemology of a Campus Closet: Multiculturalism, Catholic Character," Politicalized Scholarship, and will feature Kosofsky and Chauncey as well as Notre Dame faculty members Gloria Jean Masicaro and Erskine Peters of the English department; Jean Porter of the theology department, and Ava Preacher, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Letters.

The film is set in the 1950's and 60's and centers on two prominent homosexualists: Roy Cohn, the infamous right wing lawyer, and Jack Smith, the openly gay underground filmmaker. Both men died of AIDS within three years of each other in the 1980's. The film explores the polarized manner in which each man dealt with his homosexuality and their responses to the dilemma of oppression against gays.

Cohn became a renowned gay-basher, leading his life as a performance of a straight man. According to Godmilow, Cohn lived his life "in a cage, which he seemed to enjoy." Conversely, Smith exploited his homosexuality, flaunting it in nearly all of his films and performance art.

The film stars Ron Vawter, who portrays both main characters and who has starred in films such as "sex, lies, and videotape," "Silence of the Lambs," and "Philadelphia." Vawter, who originally did a stage version of Godmilow's film, died of AIDS last year.

Godmilow says her film is neither pro-gay nor anti-gay. It explores the polarized manners in which each man dealt with his homosexuality and the dilemma of oppression produced.

Kathleen Biddick, director of the Gender Studies Program, says the screening and forum are two parts of a project to address the homosexual issue on campus.

The project poses the question, "What does it mean to mandate official closeting?" The administration's refusal to recognize GLNDSMC, even if the administration does not perce its refusal as such, does-not result in the administration's refusal to recognize GLNDSMC to GLNDSCMS,

The conference, which began
at 9 a.m., includes four panel discussions, each devoted to a topic of current interest in the human rights field.

Among the issues discussed are the abolition of rights, faults in the judicial system, and the role of American lawyers, law students, and human rights activists in advancing the cause of human rights in Ireland.

The discussions are at 9:45 a.m., 11:30 a.m., 1:45 p.m. and 3:20 p.m.

While the awareness group does not officially advocate any political position on the conflict in Northern Ireland, it favors keeping people aware of events in that country.

"The key is education. If we can get people in Congress to put a little pressure on the British, then maybe the situation will change for the better," Foley said. "America has a tendency to bow to the British on this issue because we conside them such an important ally.

"It's a shame that this doesn't get as much interest as it should." Today's conference, free of charge to students, also includes presentations from guest speakers, professors, and students.

The Lawyers Alliance for Rights in Ireland is also sponsoring the event.

Panel spotlights Northern Ireland

By BRAD PRENDERGAST
Associate News Editor

Interested in learning a little more about what is going on in Northern Ireland these days? Then check out "A Conference on the Issue of Human Rights Violations in the North of Ireland," running all day long today in the courtroom of the Law School.

"We want to bring to light the issues that people don't hear about that much," said Brian Foley, president of the Northern Ireland Awareness Group, which is one of the organizations sponsoring the event.

The conference, which began at 9 a.m., includes four panel discussions, each devoted to a topic of current interest in the human rights field.

Among the issues discussed are the abolition of rights, faults in the judicial system, and the role of American lawyers, law students, and human rights activists in advancing the cause of human rights in Ireland.

The discussions are at 9:45 a.m., 11:30 a.m., 1:45 p.m. and 3:20 p.m.

While the awareness group does not officially advocate any political position on the conflict in Northern Ireland, it favors keeping people aware of events in that country.

"The key is education. If we can get people in Congress to put a little pressure on the British, then maybe the situation will change for the better," Foley said. "America has a tendency to bow to the British on this issue because we conside them such an important ally.

"It's a shame that this doesn't get as much interest as it should." Today's conference, free of charge to students, also includes presentations from guest speakers, professors, and students.

The Lawyers Alliance for Rights in Ireland is also sponsoring the event.

■ Corrections

In an article in yesterday’s Observer on the American Sociological Association, a quotation was incorrectly attributed to Richard Williams, chairman of the Sociology Department. The statement, "The university wholeheartedly continues to try to find better ways to serve our gay and lesbian community. But recognition won't happen for historical reasons

Panel spotlights Northern Ireland

By BRAD PRENDERGAST
Associate News Editor

Interested in learning a little more about what is going on in Northern Ireland these days? Then check out "A Conference on the Issue of Human Rights Violations in the North of Ireland," running all day long today in the courtroom of the Law School.

"We want to bring to light the issues that people don't hear about that much," said Brian Foley, president of the Northern Ireland Awareness Group, which is one of the organizations sponsoring the event.

The conference, which began at 9 a.m., includes four panel discussions, each devoted to a topic of current interest in the human rights field.

Among the issues discussed are the abolition of rights, faults in the judicial system, and the role of American lawyers, law students, and human rights activists in advancing the cause of human rights in Ireland.

The discussions are at 9:45 a.m., 11:30 a.m., 1:45 p.m. and 3:20 p.m.

While the awareness group does not officially advocate any political position on the conflict in Northern Ireland, it favors keeping people aware of events in that country.

"The key is education. If we can get people in Congress to put a little pressure on the British, then maybe the situation will change for the better," Foley said. "America has a tendency to bow to the British on this issue because we conside them such an important ally.

"It's a shame that this doesn't get as much interest as it should." Today's conference, free of charge to students, also includes presentations from guest speakers, professors, and students.

The Lawyers Alliance for Rights in Ireland is also sponsoring the event.

■ Corrections

In an article in yesterday’s Observer on the American Sociological Association, a quotation was incorrectly attributed to Richard Williams, chairman of the Sociology Department. The statement, "The university wholeheartedly continues to try to find better ways to serve our gay and lesbian community. But recognition won't happen for historical reasons

Concerning that group," was made by Dennis Moore, Director of Public Relations and Information.

In an article in Wednesday’s Observer on the Graduate Student Union, a figure relating to graduate student health care was incorrect. Students currently pay $400 for general coverage.

The Observer regrets the errors.

Have something to say?
Use The Observer classifieds.
Poll
continued from page 1
statistics that measured student selectivity, faculty resources, financial resources, retention rates, and alumni satisfaction.

While the rankings were good news for both schools, officials at Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame took decidedly different views of the poll.

"(The ranking) says something for being in this game for over 150 years," said Dorothy Feigl, Saint Mary’s vice president and dean of faculty.

"It looks very simple, but it’s really a massive amount of metal moving down the track," he says. "One slip and you could come right through the Power Plant."

The Observer • NEWS
Friday, September 8, 1995

Train
continued from page 1
day and 52,000 tons of coal last year, 30,000 of which came by way of the Notre Dame & Western. New loads of 1,200 tons are brought in every eight to ten days.

While his official title is mechanic and fuel handler, Chrisovergis has the job many would love to try. He’s the man behind the wheel, or lever as it may be, when the World War II-era Porter heads down the track.

Believe it or not, operating the train is not as easy as it looks, says Chrisovergis. To combat this, sand is spread on the track, and suddenly the locomotive can “almost stop on a dime.”

DeLee and Chrisovergis have years of experience in operating the N.D. & W., but both cite the late Brother Borromeo Malley as the biggest “train hoo” over to grace the campus. Malley purchased the Porter locomotive and brought it to campus in 1952 for a mere $1,000. He helped run the line for over 40 years and loved the Porter locomotive. "He wouldn’t let anyone else drive it," says DeLee.

Malley’s engine has attracted a devoted following. Every year, several train enthusiasts and writers make the trek to South Bend for the sole reason of watching the N.D. & W. in action.

In addition, the university has frequently contributed antiquated railway equipment to the Hesston Steam Group, a society of train lovers.

---

The Observer • NEWS
Friday, September 8, 1995

Israel, PLO debate Hebron

By DAN PERRY
Associated Press

TABA, Egypt

Israel initially wanted to keep Hebron, the only Arab city in the West Bank that is home to a small Jewish settler community, out of the autonomy arrangement. The issue has become the major obstacle to a deal.

"It was the second day of what both sides called a major push to conclude the much-delayed West Bank deal by month’s end. Peres hoped to be able to meet again with Arafat in the Egyptian resort of Taba on Wednesday "to conclude."
Storm leaves 13 dead and 2000 homeless

By ANDREW SELSKY

SIMPSON BAY, St. Maarten  "Linger ing storms that kept the outside world from seeing what Hurricane Luis inflicted on this expensive Caribbean playground cleared up Thursday, revealing widespread destruction."

The island was virtually isolated from air and sea access until Thursday, two days after one of the century's most powerful hurricanes hit.

At least 13 people were killed as the 700-mile-wide storm swept through the region. Seven bodies had washed up in Simpson Bay. At least two others were reported killed and hundreds were missing on the island, which is split between the Dutch side and the larger French side known as St. Martin. The storm shredded the island, demolishing entire neighborhoods, yachts, restaurants and luxury hotels. Thousands of tourists were left stranded without electricity, running water or telephone service on St. Martin, which appeared to be the hardest hit of the Caribbean islands.

Looters attacked stores ripped apart by the weather.

"They're taking jewelry, electronics, everything," said police Lt. John Reeves, who arrived Thursday with a police contingent from Curacao to help restore order. Up to 2,000 people were homeless on St. Martin, according to French administrator Michel Dienbenbacher, who arrived Thursday from his base in Guadeloupe with 250 French soldiers on a Transall transport plane.

Hurricane Luis tore through the eastern Caribbean with 125-mph winds. The storm strengthened Thursday to 130 mph in the Atlantic as it moved northwest at about 13 mph. It was expected to turn further north Friday.

Luis was not expected to endanger the U.S. mainland, but Bermuda has issued a tropical storm watch. The storm was 640 miles south of Bermuda by Thursday evening. Heavy surf advisories were in effect Thursday along much of the U.S. East Coast from Florida to the mid-Atlantic states, the National Weather Service reported.

Radio Caribe Internationale, broadcasting from Martinique, aired interviews with witnesses who said Luis was so powerful that it ripped houses from their foundations, tore nine-ton boats from moorings and tossed them like toys to shore.

Luis uprooted telephone and electricity poles, ripped satellite dishes and trashed air ports and jetties. With phone lines down, it was difficult to determine how many people were dead.

A turn-up road in tiny St. Bartholomew was littered with the debris of interrupted lives: refrigerators, cooking caseroles and a family photo album amid fallen tree branches.

Thunderstorms-trailing in Luis' wake had blinded pilots and prevented French military helicopters from landing Wednesday.

French officials had to wait until Thursday to feed in food and medicine — along with volunteer doctors and soldiers.

Other nations also rallied Thursday to help ravaged islands. The British destroyer HMS Southampton was at Anguilla. Squads of Caribbean soldiers and police were being dispatched to Anguilla. Antigua, Barbuda and St. Kitts and Nevis.

Reeves, the police officer, with a stubby riot gun slung over his shoulder and a riot helmet dangling from his belt, stood at a main intersection in Philipsburg in St. Maarten. He let only residents drive up to a police post.

Hundreds of islanders swarmed Rams' Supermarket, which had its roof peeled off. They picked through upturned boxes thrown about as if by a giant mixer.

Reeves said police were not arresting looters who took food, since it would spoil in the rain, but would begin detaining those who took other goods.

"All the police officers on the island were busy helping those in need," Reeves said. "They were unable to enforce the law. We're beginning to enforce the law today."

Up the street, three men huddled over a small television set and a Canon electronic typewriter.

There was mile after mile of destruction, through many homes remained untouched or showed little damage.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis found or windows bathed in Millions of dollars worth of yachts were swept across piers and beach es including the Stars and Stripes, the boat that won the Americas Cup in 1987.

Yachts picked through wreckage and walked around the pier, stunned.

Several hotels charging up to $400 a night have become hulks with gaping holes in their roofs.

Marroquin-Nisch, 39, a surgeon from Lindau, Ger many, was one of the thousands of tourists, mostly Europeans, stranded on St. Martin.

Marroquin was on his honeymoon when Luis struck. He and the 80 other guests at the beachfront Golden Tulip Hotel were evacuated Monday before a new Haitian television Hotel on higher ground.

Fr. Tom Gaughan, CSC (1-6777) for more information, please call

Are you a gay or lesbian undergraduate? Are you uncertain about your sexual orientation?

You are welcome and you belong at Notre Dame.

Campus Ministry welcomes you and invites you to join with us and with each other... talk about... your questions and concerns... discussing your sexuality with family and friends... your faith... what's going right; what's going wrong... all conversations confidential for more information, please call

Kate Barrett (1-5242)
Fr. Bob Dowd, CSC (1-7800/1-5056)
Fr. Tom Geoghan, CSC (1-6777)
Packwood chooses to resign

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON
In the hushed Senate chamber, a tearful Bob Packwood bowed to extraordinary pressure Thursday and announced his resignation after 27 years in office. His poignant farewell headed off a vote to expel him for sexual and official misconduct.

"It is the honorable thing to do," the Oregon Republican said, quoting only after leaders of the Ethics Committee denounced his behavior in language as harsh as it was blunt. Later, relieved, Packwood told The Associated Press that "an immense weight has been lifted" from him.

Panel chairman Mitch McConnell, a fellow Republican, summarized the evidence against Packwood this way: "There was a habitual pattern of aggressive, blatantly sexual advances, mostly directed at members of his own staff or others whose livelihoods were connected in some way to his power and authority."

McConnell dismissed Packwood's complaint of unfairness, saying, "The victimizer is now claiming the mantle of the victim.

Packwood did not mention the allegations in his Senate farewell, recounting better times in his long career.

"I leave this institution not with malice but with love," he said, his voice periodically breaking. "Good luck. Godspeed."

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, close to tears himself, praised his longtime colleague and declared: "I believe Senator Packwood has made the right decision. It's not easy. It hasn't been easy."

Other male colleagues also praised Packwood for his Senate accomplishments.

And one female senator, Democrat Dianne Feinstein of California, said he shouldn't be remembered for the accusations that brought his departure.

She quoted her father as telling her: "Don't let a man be known for the last thing he does. Let him be known for the best thing he does."

The committee's resolution referred the diary alterations to the Justice Department. The sexual advances, McConnell said, "were not merely stolen kisses, as Sen. Packwood has claimed. This was a habitual pattern of aggressive, blatantly sexual advances, mostly directed at members of his own staff or others whose livelihoods were connected in some way to his power and authority.

The committee's report cited 159 cases of misconduct.

Arthur Andersen offers consulting careers in the following areas:

- Litigation Services
- Corporate Financial Consulting
- Government Contracts
- Consulting
- Computer Risk Management
- Environmental Services

Join us at the Alumni/Senior Club at 5:30pm on Monday, September 11 for a presentation to learn more about a career as a consultant. Dress is casual. Pizza will be served at the conclusion. We hope to see you there.
Rioters protest French nuclear tests

By SANDY MacINTYRE
Associated Press

At least 50 people were rampaging, setting fires, breaking windows and forcing the closing of the airport.

The rioting Wednesday night in Papeete, capital of French Polynesia, was the most violent of the demonstrations held worldwide to protest France's resumption of nuclear testing in the South Pacific on Tuesday.

At least 13 people were injured in Papeete, including two policemen who were in serious condition, French officials said. At least 50 people were arrested and damage was estimated in the millions of dollars. Firefighters doused the last of the blazes Thursday morning, although the airport remained closed. Many buildings had been firebombed, including Tahiti's Territorial Assembly and part of the airport terminal. Shops were looted or burned.

French paratroopers and Foreign Legionnaires from the Mururoa Atoll test site landed at the airport Wednesday night, freeing 80 riot police to patrol downtown with hundreds of other police.

On Thursday the French military said another 300 police would be sent to Papeete.

Defense Minister Charles Miller, interviewed on Radio Monte Carlo, called for "the respect of the law and public order," adding "I wish people didn't confuse the right to demonstrate with rioting."

Conservative President Jacques Chirac announced the resumption of testing shortly after he was elected in May.

"We can thank God that this attack did not cause total carnage, because it happened at exactly the moment school starts," Lyon's deputy mayor, Rabbi, Isaac Elhadad, said at the scene.

The blast came three days after a bomb was found in Paris and defused. Three bombings in Paris since July have left seven people dead and more than 100 injured and have prompted heavy security measures throughout the country.

"Police have mounted a nationwide effort to tighten security and search for suspects since the first bombing in a Paris subway train on July 25, which killed seven people and injured 84.

After police boosted patrols and searches and covered up trash cans in subway stations, another bomb exploded on a street near the Arc de Triomphe on Aug. 17, wounding 17 people, including 11 tourists.

On Aug. 26, authorities said a man planted on a high-speed train track north of Lyon. The bomb, which like the other two was made from a gas canister filled with an explosive and bolts, failed to detonate.

Lyon's head rabbi, Richard Wertenbck, criticized French authorities for not heeding his request for greater protection in the period leading up to Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur.

France's Jewish community remains shamed by the memories of terrorist attacks on Jewish targets in Paris in the 1980s.

Shortly after the explosion Thursday, the rest of the Paris Mosque and head of France's Muslim community, Dall Boubakor, sent a message of sympathy to Wertenbck, saying Muslims were "shattered by the ignoble attack."
The Observer • NEWS
Friday, September 8, 1995

Indiana revises driving point system

The state is taking a dimmer view of reckless drivers and is speeding ahead with changes that could strip more motorists of their licenses.

The law change, which went into effect November 1, affects all of the state's 4 million licensed drivers, the actual targets of the new system are motorists who pay little heed to auto safety rules, says Alvin Hayes, a spokesman for the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

"Most drivers won't be affected because most drivers, if they are cited for anything, are typically cited for speeding 20 miles above the speed limit," said Hayes.

"It's a very small proportion of the driving population that engages in seriously negligent behavior."

Under the new point system, several new violations will be added to the list of infractions that cost drivers points. Also, the number of points for existing infractions in the point system will be increased.

Reckless drivers will be more likely to exceed the maximum 16 points over two years and face the likelihood of suspension or probate unless they are expected to take effect November 1.

While affecting all of the state's 4 million licensed drivers, the actual targets of the new system are motorists who pay little heed to auto safety rules, says Alvin Hayes, a spokesman for the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

"Most drivers won't be affected because most drivers, if they are cited for anything, are typically cited for speeding 20 miles above the speed limit," said Hayes.

"It's a very small proportion of the driving population that engages in seriously negligent behavior."

Under the new point system, several new violations will be added to the list of infractions that cost drivers points. Also, the number of points for existing infractions in the point system will be increased.

Reckless drivers will be more likely to exceed the maximum 16 points over two years and face the likelihood of suspension or probate unless they are expected to take effect November 1.

While affecting all of the state's 4 million licensed drivers, the actual targets of the new system are motorists who pay little heed to auto safety rules, says Alvin Hayes, a spokesman for the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

"Most drivers won't be affected because most drivers, if they are cited for anything, are typically cited for speeding 20 miles above the speed limit," said Hayes.

"It's a very small proportion of the driving population that engages in seriously negligent behavior."
I am NOT a potted plant

Cancer takes the life of another Family member

I want to write today about a man I knew most of you did not have the privilege of knowing. His name was Edward Murphy, and he was a professor at Notre Dame Law School for 40 or 50 years. It’s strange for me to think it, but my class—graduating this year—will be the last class of Notre Dame Law School students ever to have had Professor Murphy for Contracts.

You can be thinking, sounds about as exciting as watching mustard dry. As taught by some professors, you might think right. But ask any law student Contracts, and he will tell you that you get a different answer. You see, Professor Murphy made Contracts more than just a good course. And it seems somehow important to me to try to explain why.

My first thought was Professor Murphy was a good teacher because he was a good class interesting.

Professor Murphy rarely lectured, and instead used a combination of the "Socratic method" (used by lesser men to torturing law students) and volunteer class participation.

Think we’ve all had class participation classes that, while sometimes interesting, didn’t teach us much of anything. Not with Professor Murphy. He knew the course so well that if you said something wrong, not only had he heard it 20 times before, but he saw where you had gone astray, and then he’d correct you back with a few questions onto some logical path. What a teacher he was!

But that Professor was second thought. I wondered if Professor Murphy's greatness lay in the way he treated his students with respect and kindness. At first, I thought it strange when I noticed five or six students standing down after class to talk to him (I must admit my first thoughts, as the graduate of a public high school, was that my class was full of "brown-nosers").

However, somehow Professor Murphy communicated to us that he wanted us to ask him questions. Not the "will this make class interesting?" types. And he asked questions, sometimes you would answer him (if you wanted an answer but more often, he’d start with, “so what you’re saying is,” and all of a sudden, you'd realize that you'd been advocating some philosophical position you'd hardly heard of. I think I can honestly say, I never saw him embarrass anyone.

When he was done with you, you couldn't know definitely whether you'd raised a good point, or he'd just made something interesting out of your dumb question.

I'm not sure when I realized that Professor Murphy's treatment of students was directly related to his love of teaching, but when I realized it, it became for me an indescribable point. Now, maybe I'm less patient than must, but it's got to be true in order today to answer student questions that you've heard every year for 40 years. He did, and I think he actually liked it.

And what impressed me — what seemed incredible to me - is that, while he was teaching us, Professor Murphy was dying of cancer.

I don't remember exactly when the rumors started going through the law school that Professor Murphy's cancer had returned. But the day after I heard it, I couldn't help noticing that all was not well with him. He was still smiling, but, if you watched closely, you could see grimaces appear on his face, and then disappear. He was in pain. He was living day in and out with pain, and I had never realized it.

In order to be a good teacher, you need to love teaching, and you need to treat your students well, and you need the ability to make class interesting. But to be a good teacher, I think there’s one more step. Great teachers not only know (and love) the material they teach, but they must understand how it relates to the rest of life. This, I am convinced, was Professor Murphy's secret.

Professor Rice wrote an Observer column in which he discussed the importance of a teacher's faith and politics. I don't know anything about Professor Murphy’s politics, and what I know of his faith was mostly that he started class by saying the Our Father. However, he did share with us enough of his view of life that we could understand why he thought that Contracts must matter to human beings.

A contract, he taught us, is just a promise which the law will enforce. To Professor Murphy, promises were especially important. He looked to his faith, and he saw God making promises to Israel, and, through Christ, a promise to all people—promises that can never be retracted.

Human promises are also important, because they embody something uniquely human, make us willing to do, or not to do, something. To "keep our word" in a contract is to be honest and upright, as a Christian should be.

I think that Professor Murphy's perception of the importance of Contracts to human life was what impelled him to put forth such an effort to teach untold generations of law school students. His enthusiasm, his teaching ability, his kind­ness, and his knowledge of the subject made what was good a good teacher.

But what made him great was that he was right about Contracts and right about its relation to our lives. He used Contracts to teach us something important about life, something especially important for lawyers. I think it can be summarized in one word: honesty.

His teaching was effective because his words corresponded to the way he lived his life.

Law School still mournining loss of Professor Edward Murphy

Charles Roth

BUT what made him great was that he was right about Contracts and right about its relation to our lives. He used Contracts to teach us something important about life, something especially important for lawyers. I think it can be summarized in one word: honesty.

His teaching was effective because his words corresponded to the way he lived his life.
Dear Editor:

For the last year and two summers I have been studying theology at Notre Dame. In addition to my classroom studies, there is much I have learned about Notre Dame simply through the process of osmosis, just talking with people and breathing the Catholic atmosphere of the place.

Being Anglican, I know how it might feel to be a minority here. Granted the Episcopal Church is like kissing cousins with the Catholic Church, but every Sunday when I go to Mass and must remain seated during communion, I am painfully aware of the fact that I am not a fully integrated member of the largely Catholic student body.

So I can identify with Cristiane Likely's tendency to describe her relationship with Notre Dame as one of love/hate, but "mostly hate" (Aug. 30). For a member of a minority group, one's relationship can be more like a roller coaster ride where one can only take so much, than that of the proverbial Stairway to Heaven.

As such, I am constantly concerned with my relationship with the University and the Catholic Church in general, gauging frequently my emotions and reactions to the phenomena that impinge upon me while on campus.

I have visited and interviewed at divinity schools and seminaries across the country, trying to find a place that best fulfilled my hunger for God. But nowhere have I found a school like Notre Dame. Whereas the University of Chicago is a large body, their divinity school is only one small building. I feel like the entire University of Notre Dame is the divinity school here.

With crucifixes in every classroom, chapels in every dorm, and the gilded Mary overlooking the entire campus, everyone at Notre Dame seems to permeate and respond to the Christian message. If you flip through the Harvard Divinity School's course catalogue, you will find that nearly all courses offered do not even pertain to the Christian faith, let alone the Catholic Church.

It might be that the lineage I peg of Notre Dame is slightly skewed, seeing that I circulate in the same social groups. But I do not see Notre Dame suffering from the same trend of secularization that has affected most of this country's Protestant colleges and universities. I still consider it an oxymoron to hear of a Notre Dame girl "on the pill."

Each summer the theology department here swells and fills with visiting scholars, priests, ministers, monks, nuns, parish workers, and other like-minded individuals interested in developing further their relationship with God.

On one occasion this summer, many of us gathered to watch the movie "Rudy." I actually longed for the days when the priests walked about campus dressed in their clericals. Perhaps it is the conservative element here, perhaps it is our desire to grasp more tangibly the visible presence of God amongst us.

Whatever the case, a few days later I was walking through the library, trying to find a place to study, when I crossed paths with one of the workers installing the overhead plumbing for the sprinkling system. On his black t-shirt was emblazoned a skeleton carrying a machine gun, the caption underneath reading "See you in hell."

Also, I thought, gone were the days of priests in black robes, in were the days of "See you in Hell" t-shirts. Lacking the nerve to tell him I found his shirt offensive, I gave myself over in thought to the issue. I asked myself, is this a sort of symbol, signifying the increasing the secularization of Notre Dame?

Yes and no. Notre Dame has always been Catholic, and always will be. But there is an increasing tolerance and openness to people of other denominations, other ethnic backgrounds, other faiths, and even those of no faith at all.

In the end, I feel so sorry for K ratovil. His hackneyed description of his classmates and their activities in the London Program was, I believe, an attempt to express his envy at the real freedom and latitude that he feels he has at his disposal here. His words are bitter, but I think even he was surprised at the extent of his hate.

That Notre Dame accepts and even welcomes minorities is an indication that the University does not desire a homogeneous student body. But neither should this action be interpreted as a desire to break free of its traditional Catholic moorings.

It is simply a result of the current theological climate that God's love extends to the whole human race and that all are called to God's love, regardless of race, religious or ethnic background, and nationality. It is for this reason and others, that my relationship with Notre Dame is increasingly becoming less one of hate and more one of love.

David Gordon
Graduate Student in Theology

London Program
Column an 'embarrassment'

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to Chris Krautovil's article "Labour the College of Arts and Letters" London Program, which appeared in The Observer on Monday, Sept. 4, 1995. As a Spring 1993 Graduate of the London Program, I feel compelled to comment on Krautovil's rather juvenile attack on the London Program, which was an embarrassment both to the faculty and staff of the London Program, and to the journalistic standards of The Observer.

Kratovil's article, which begins with the promise that London South Bend are indistinguishable because both have "wet weather, bad food, and warm beer," presents his rationale for attending the London Program and his impressions of the London Program itself. I will comment first on his rationale for attending the London Program because it provides a brilliant illustration of why one should not study abroad.

In his own words, Krautovil has gone to London for two reasons: "I won't be considered fully adult until I've had a European adventure, and I'm sick of South Bend." These motives are the product of an immature student unworried of the privilege of studying abroad.

Foreign study is intended to deepen and enrich the academic career of an already mature student. The London Program, in particular, seeks to familiarize students with the literature, history, and culture of the United Kingdom, and, to that end, it offers its students the rare privilege of studying, often first hand, British art, architecture, politics, and literature.

If you lack that maturity to appreciate the import of such a privilege before you arrive in London, you, like Krautovil, will leave London no more enriched for your experiences there than you were before you drew you there. London and its environs have drawn students from all over the world since the Middle Ages, and it endures as a student's city because on every London street and in all directions offers tangible examples of transcendent genius, wisdom, and beauty.

Krautovil's juvenile reflections about the London Program, in particular a second, and more serious charge that must be publicly repudiated.

His article depicts the London Program as an unacademic semester-long vacation. He may very well believe this to be true, but his colorful account has no basis in fact. The London Program at this moment, I would be outraged at his grossly pejorative description of his classmates and their activities.

In truth, the London Program offers its students students little rate facilities and access to renowned British faculty. During my semester in London, I studied the politics of Northern Ireland under Dr. Brendan O'Leary, a frequent television commentator on the Northern Ireland conflict and an advisor of the Labour Party's Shadow Cabinet. Dr. O'Leary's course culminated in a meeting and round-table discussion at Parliament with the Labour Party's Shadow Secretaries for Northern Ireland Affairs.

Certain classes provide students in the London Program with tickets to critically acclaimed operas at the Royal Opera House and theatrical and musical performances at the South Bank Complex and the Barbican Centre. Unlike Krautovil, I was never under the impression that I spent a semester "in some sub-basement in DeBartolo."

The living conditions for London Program students are spectacular, especially in light of the location. Students in the London Program live in flats, literally a stone's throw from Kensington Palace and Hyde Park.

Students usually walk across Hyde Park to the classroom building on Albermarle Street which is, itself, across from Green Park from Buckingham Palace. Even the mundane activity of walking to class, through the middle of London is infused with a magic that has endued in my heart and in the hearts of my London classmates.

Krautovil's hackneyed impressions of London and the London Program are typical of an American bore abroad. Please do not think that they are typical of the London Program and its students, past or present.

Mark Cawley
ND Class of 1994 & First-year law student
O'Hara Grace Graduate Residence

MARK CAWLEY
Pursuing Purdue

Top 10 things to roadtrip with from the home office in beautiful, but rainy, South Bend, IN...

1. Car. Probably a good idea. A/C and tape deck recommended. Wind shield wipers if you're going to Purdue.

2. Map. Always helpful. Don't lose it and don't let driving companions tell you, "Don't worry. I know how to get there."

3. Duct tape. Tape ducts, duct tapes. A myriad of uses, one more useful than the next. Tape beverage containers to hat, add crazy straw and drink.

4. Umbrella. Wet is not fun.

5. The Shirt. Annoy opposing team with obvious Irish unity.

6. Music. Nothing is more unexciting than a roadtrip with only one cassette (which is usually Nelson's greatest hits).

8. Crunch 'n Munch and licorice whips. Everybody loves 'em. Low fat and plentiful. (Also good to feed small animals when waiting for tow-truck because of flat tire.)

9. Beer and other beverages to add extra spice and variety to your trip. (Also good to feed small animals when waiting for tow-truck because of flat tire.)

10. Pillow. Don't leave home without it. And like our grandfathers used to tell us, never pass up the opportunity to pee or sleep.

How to roadtrip...

By Kristin Doyle
Access Woman

Saturday's tragic loss to Northwestern has undoubtedly dimmed the flames of spirit within the hearts of many, if not most, Fighting Irish fans. But, as Notre Dame students, we have a special responsibility to remain enthusiastic and loyal to our boys in blue and gold. In my experience, there is no better way to show support than to initiate yourself into one of Notre Dame's least known societies, The Roadtrippers.

It only takes one highway trek to an away game to become a member of the football team's personal entourage. While home games secure a place for the passive fan, true roadtrippers take on the responsibility to cheer their hearts out as members of the minority. Their ultimate goal is to make as much (or more) noise come from a single section as comes from the rest of the opposition's stadium.

In order for a vehicle to qualify as a roadtrip-mobile, it must contain more passengers than it can safely hold as well as all of the traditional tailgating supplies. Die-hard fans may crown it with a cheesy homemade golden dome and will proudly attach "Go Irish" and "Purdue or Bust" signs in the windows. Along the highway, other Irish fans, seized with a renewed sense of brotherhood, will honk their support and best wishes.

Pre-game festivities are always a highlight at away games. Roadtrippers can meet up with other roadtrippers and set up a gypsy camp surrounded by curious Purdue fans. Many ND alumni and parents will also attend the game since tickets were made widely available. This is a plus as these fans usually have lavish spreads of food. As usual, it will be easy to snag a few hot dogs off the hambach of a friendly parent or former Domer.

Although the devastation of last week's loss may shake the confidence of some roadtrippers, they can certainly stroll into the stadium with a fair degree of nonchalance as the Irish have decisively beaten the Boilermakers for the past decade. This will not, however, translate into a lack of enthusiasm, for it is at game time that the roadtrippers' excitement will reach a fever pitch as their job as the moral support system for the team begins. Cheering ferociously and unceasingly for the entire game, they will sing the fight song until they are hoarse and each Irish touchdown will incure a small riot in the visitor's section.

When the game is over and the Irish once again assert their domination, some fans will stay for post-game parties, but most will pack up and head back to school. The ride home will be a quieter one and an overwhelming sense of relief will accompany the first sighting of the Golden Dome. Roadtrippers often gain a newfound pride and appreciation for the physical campus upon their return. The institutional concrete edifices of Purdue offer a sharp contrast to the sprawling lawns and rich architecture of home. Unloading weary, our devoted travelers, armed with a new batch of stories and memories, will return satisfied at a job well done.
Friday

• 7:00 and 9:30 P.M. WHILE YOU WERE SLEEPING AT CARROLL AUDITORIUM
• 7:00 P.M. ROY CONN. JACK SMITH AT THE SNITE
• 7:30 P.M. COACHES AT WASHINGTON HALL
• 8:00 & 10:30 P.M. FRENCH KISS AT CUSHING

Saturday

• 2:30 NOTRE DAME vs PURDUE AT PURDUE
• 7:30 P.M. COACHES AT WASHINGTON HALL
• 8:00 & 10:30 P.M. FRENCH KISS AT CUSHING
• 10:00 P.M. STOMPER BOB AT JAZZMAN'S

Sunday

• 10:00 A.M. RECSPORTS BIKE RIDE
• 1:00 and 3:00 P.M. WHILE YOU WERE SLEEPING AT CARROLL AUDITORIUM
• 2:00 P.M. KATHERINE CIIESINSKI (MEZZO-SOPRANO) WITH GERALD STEICHEN (PIANO) AT ANNENBERG AUDITORIUM
• 2:00 P.M. FRENCH KISS AT CUSHING

If Your campus Band is Playing on the Weekend, Let the pholks at Accent Know. Call 631-4540

IF YOU CAN FIND THE CHANCEY HILL Mall (a strip mall) that's the place to go! It's in the village area. (Although the staff at Purdue's paper does warn us that there is not a lot to do in Lafayette.) Look for Utopia. It's a '50's diner with interesting omelets, burgers and shakes and a big juke box. Garcia's Pizza by the Pan is also in the mall and has great pizza and breadsticks. Sorrento's is another good choice. It's at 601 Sagamore Parkway. Try The Pub at 407 Union or Checkerboard at 1521 Kosuth. CW Dandy's is at 406 Sagamore Parkway South. Kazoo is at 304 West State Street.

WHERE TO SLEEP, WHERE TO EAT

Zzzz...

Purdue Area Hotels

Budget Inn of America. Interstate 65 and State Road 26 East, Lafayette, 317-447-7566
Days Inn of Lafayette. 400 Sagamore Parkway South, Lafayette, 317-447-4131
Devon Plaza. 2371 North 26th Street, Lafayette, 317-743-7394
Dollar Inn. 4301 State Rd. 26 East at Interstate 65, Lafayette, 317-447-5551
Family Inn: 1920 Northwestern Avenue, West Lafayette, 800-251-9752
Fairfield Inn. 4000 St. Rd 26 East, Lafayette, 317-449-0083
Holiday Inn. Interstate 65 North and State Road 43 Exit 178, West Lafayette, 317-567-2511.
Holiday Inn Express. 201 Frontage Road at I-55 and SR 26, Lafayette, 317-449-4808
Knights Inn. 4110 State Rd. 26 East at Interstate 65, Lafayette, 317-447-5811
Ramada Inn. 4221 State Road 26 East at Interstate 65, Lafayette, 800-228-2828
Radisson. 4343 State Rd. 26 East at Interstate 65, Lafayette, 800-333-3333
Red Roof Inn. 4201 State Rd. 26 East at Interstate 65, Lafayette, 317-448-4871
Sagamore Inn. 2200 Sagamore Parkway North, Lafayette, 317-447-3111
Travelodge. 200 Brown Street, West Lafayette, 317-743-8233
University Inn Conference Center. 3001 Northwestern Avenue, West Lafayette, 317-463-5511

Mmmm...
Claude Monet

1840-1926

The Art Institute of Chicago showcases the master's work in a collection of 159 paintings and drawings

By DAN CICHALSKI
Assistant Accent Editor

Walking through the Art Institute of Chicago's current exhibition, "Claude Monet, 1840-1926," is like taking a walk through time. All other plans, responsibilities, and chores are, for the moment, forgotten. For two hours, you find yourself in nineteenth- and early twentieth-century Europe, looking down from the hills of Bordighera, Italy, or across the English Channel from the shores of Normandy. There are no paved roads, no cars, and no elevated trains. For two hours, you see the world from the eyes of Claude Monet.

The month-old exhibition has garnered praise from the country and attracted viewers like a magnet. Perhaps because, with 159 works, this is the largest Monet exhibition ever assembled. Or maybe it's the fact that it's only around until November 26 and will not leave Chicago, except when the paintings are all returned to New York, Japan, Denmark, France, Canada, Germany, or various private collections. Whatever the attraction, aficionados are flocking to Michigan Avenue to see the life of Monet himself. Everything from early paper works and primary sketches through the famous "Water Lilies" is represented. Arranged chronologically, the exhibit is divided into the various periods of Monet's life. Each room has a biographical description of the point in his life that the viewers are about to see, hinting at what is to come. Such an arrangement allows you to follow the progression and changes in his technique—changes influenced by other art or brought on by Monet's deteriorating eyesight as he aged.

In the first three galleries contain paintings from the 1860s and 70s. Not a portrait artist, Monet instead saw the whole scene. Rather than strive for a perfect expression on the subject's face, he makes you look at the whole picture—the sun as it falls across the trees, the tall meadow grasses bending in the wind, or boats reflected in the shimmering water. It is in this way that Monet is a master. His ability to capture the feeling of the moment comes through in more than ever since he aged.

In viewing "The Beach at Sainte-Adresse," you can almost feel the coastal winds coming off the sea. "Looking at the train," the viewer can be there in the 1870s, and see the same scene seven or eight times but in different conditions. And somehow, he manages to make seven paintings of wheatstacks look different by painting them at sunrise, at sunset, in the snow, or in the afternoon sun.

But it doesn't end at the wheatstacks, as seen in the paintings of London's houses of Parliament and the sea from Normandy and Belle-Ile. He once said, "I know very well that really to paint the sea, one must observe it every day, at every hour, and from the same place." After fourteen rooms and roughly ninety minutes, you find yourself looking at the end of Monet's career—and at his most popular works. Sixteen of the dozens of paintings of water lilies are collected into one room toward the end of the exhibition. Everyone who enters the gallery lets out a gasp and opens their eyes a little wider as they look across the vast gallery. The "Water Lilies" are to Monet what the Sistine Chapel is to Michelangelo and the "Mona Lisa" is to da Vinci—a single exemplary work that will forever be associated with each artist.

The final room contains some of the larger water lily paintings, the murals, including three of the panels from the circular masterpiece normally displayed at New York's Museum of Modern Art. Just before World War I, Monet decided to decorate a circular room with paintings of the water lilies in his pond. The panels are 6 1/2 by 13 feet and a bench is placed in a convenient location, allowing you to sit for a moment and appreciate the view. However, attending the exhibitions is not exactly part of a relaxing Sunday outing. With the immense popularity of the show, the Art Institute regulates the entrance of visitors, admitting 400 each hour plus museum members. The first few rooms are highly congested and make it difficult to stand back and get a broad view of anything. But the crowd thins out as you move along, especially if you bypass the recorded tour and meander at your own pace. The $4 (or $3.50 for museum members) recording is worthwhile, but in no way necessary to enjoy the art. Because of the volume of art lovers and the extent of the show, two hours is about the time it will take to meander through the seventeen rooms. That description does not include, however, the thirty-minute wait to enter the galleries. Once inside, though, those thirty minutes are forgotten and two hours goes by almost too quickly. There is, of course, the opportunity to turn back and get a second look at the selections that make a greater impression. A less crowded time to go would be during the week, especially after the summer vacation season ends. If time permits, head to the second floor of the museum and view the impressionist collection. A few more Monet works are hidden there and allow you to compare his craft with that of some contemporaries like Van Gogh and Seurat.

The show sells out frequently, so advance purchase of tickets is suggested. Prices for the exhibition are the highest ever for an Art Institute show at $10 Monday through Thursday and $12.50 Friday through Sunday. A $2.50 service charge is added to each ticket ordered over the phone.

But don't let the price or the large crowds scare you away from what may prove to be one of the best exhibits of the decade. To do so would be allowing a rare opportunity to pass by you like a stranger in a crowd.

---

Monet's Life

- Nov. 14, 1840. Born in Paris.
- Late 1862. Begins studying art in Paris
- Feb. 1867. Paints snowscapes in Argenteuil.
- Autumn 1886. Paints the island of Belle-Ile.
- Mid 1891. Begins Poplars series.
- Feb. 1892. Begins work on his Rouen Cathedral series.
- Apr. 1914. Begins to work on larger works like Water Lillies.
- Autumn 1922. Monet falls into depression.
- Dec. 5, 1926. Dies at the age of 86.

---

Monet's "Waterlilies" are perhaps his best known series of works. He also did a series of haystacks and a series on the Rouen Cathedral.
NOTICES

Homicide Alert: Has he or she, or anyone with body parts in search of a home? Call 800-GAS.

S muddy waters for N.D. S.M.C. VISITORS. call 219-277-2388

C O M P L E T E BODY for the TRIP. WILL PAY TOP DOLLAR.

M ake $5000 for your TIX! Call 219-277-2388.

L O S T: MY DAILY (FRANKLIN) 9/1 in back of Apt. 1635 Turtle found, call MARI at X2969! :(.

I N F R I M M A R Y . Call Francie at X4205 to done part time from room or apartmen t.

L O S T: Top ten football team 3620.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.

S tudents wanted to promote the Notre Dame Football Fan Tours. For more information, call Dennis Coren 739-9466.
Tribe secures long-awaited playoff spot

Associated Press

The Cleveland Indians, symbols of baseball futility for four decades, clinched at least a tie for the AL Central title Thursday night, beating the Seattle Mariners 4-1.

The Indians need one more win, or one more Kansas City loss, to guarantee their first title since 1984. They have clinched a Wild-card berth, ensuring their first postseason appearance since they were swept by the New York Giants in the 1954 World Series.

Their 85 wins are their most in any season since 1966, when they won 86.

Charles Nagy won his third straight start, and Carlos Baerga homered for the Indians, winners of 11 straight home games and 13 of their last 15 overall.

Seattle dropped six games behind California in the AL West and one game behind Kansas City in the wild-card race. The Mariners and Royals meet in a three-game series beginning Friday night in Seattle.

Nagy (13-5) gave up one run and five hits in seven innings, including a homer by Baerga's career-high 28th home run. Nagy, who struck out seven and walked three, has struck out a total of 26 batters in his last three starts, covering 20 2-3 innings.

Alan Embree and Julian Tavarez combined to pitch a scoreless eighth — Tavarez getting Buhner on a groundout to strand runners at second and third — and Jose Mesa pitched the ninth for his 39th save in 41 chances.

Brares 6-1, Marlins 3-5

Pat Rapp pitched 6 1-3 no-hit innings and Gary Sheffield and Jeff Conine smashed home runs to lead the Florida Marlins to a 5-1 win over the Atlanta Braves Thursday night and salvage a split of a shortened doubleheader.

Fred McGriff broke up Rapp's no-hitter in the seventh with a towering home run to center field, his 24th. In the opener the Braves took 21 minutes to beat the Marlins 6-3 in a completion of a suspended game delayed four days, two months, and 54 minutes.

Rapp, (10-7) allowed one run on four hits with five strikeouts and two walks to win his fifth straight completion.

Sheffield's home run, his 10th, and the fourth in the five games since he's been back from a hand injury, came after Chuck Carr reached first on an infield single after a headfirst slide. In the first game the winning pitcher was in the minor leagues and a ninth-inning hero was in St. Louis as the Braves quickly completed the win.

Luiz Polonia who was with the New York Yankees when the first game started May 4, singled in the tie-breaking run in the top of the ninth.

"All kinds of goofy things happen," Marlins manager Rene Lachemann said. "We're playing decent at home now, but at that time it was very rough. It was my birthday, and we hadn't won a home game." The Braves and the Marlins played six outs Thursday to complete the game suspended by rain with the score tied 3-3, a runner on third and no outs in the top of the ninth.

Brad Woodall (1-0), who is now at Triple-A Richmond, earned his first major league victory — the Braves' fifth straight — with one shutout inning. Greg McMichael pitched a perfect ninth for his first save of the season.

Four months after the 3-3 tie was suspended due to a downpour, the game was delayed by rain for another 24 minutes before play resumed in the 10th.

The Braves rallied for three runs in the ninth inning of the May 4 game before it was suspended after a 1-hour, 17-minute delay.

Baseball rules allow for a suspension instead of a tie if the visiting team rallies to tie the score and the home team does not get its last at-bats. Avery and Rapp also started the May 4 game.

Rangers 2, White Sox 0

Roger Pavlik throws a three-hitter for his first career shutout as the Texas Rangers halted the Chicago White Sox, eight-game winning streak in a 2-0 victory Thursday night.

Pavlik (8-9) had lost three of his previous four decisions, but he was in command against a hot-hitting White Sox lineup that was batting 342 with a .258 slugging percentage over the eight-game streak, Chicago's longest since 1991.

The complete game was Pavlik's first of the season and fourth of his career.

Pavlik pitched out of a ninth-inning jam by making Robin Ventura ground out to short with runners on first and second.

Texas ended a four-game losing streak and moved within two games of idle Kansas City in the AL wild-card race.

Pavlik struck out five and walked four in outdueling Wilson Alvarez, 0-7 on the road this season.

Alvarez went 6 1-3 innings, allowing two runs and five hits, striking out two. Seven walks, two of which scored, proved his undoing.

Pavlik retired the first 12 hitters in order, walked Frank Thomas to open the fifth, then yielded a single to the No. 2 man in Robin Ventura's sharp-shit single to right. Pavlik threw a double-play ball to Lyle Mouton and got Ray Durham on a groundout to end the fifth.

Pavlik worked out of a seventh-inning jam after allowing leadoff singles to Tim Raines and Dave Martinez. Pavlik got a double-play ball from Thomas, the White Sox leader with 24 homers, intentionally walked Ventura with first base open, and retired Mouton on a groundout.

Cardinals 5, Padres 2

Ray Lankford drove in four runs with a double, triple and sacrifice fly and Allen Watson pitched six shutout innings as St. Louis snatched a home losing streak with a 5-2 victory over San Diego Tuesday night.

Lankford, who matched a career-high for RBIs in a game, also stretched a hitting streak to nine games. He's batting .369 (15-for-41) during that stretch.

Watson (6-7) allowed four hits, struck out two, walked two and hit a batter in 6 1-3 innings. He lost his shutout in the seventh when Matt Williams and Eddie Williams hit consecutive doubles with one out in the seventh.

Tom Henke pitched a scoreless ninth as St. Louis earned his 31st save in 32 opportunities.

Padres starter Glenn Dishman (4-7) continued a pitching slump, allowing a two-run homer in five innings. He has an 8.10 ERA over his last eight starts.
Courier upsets Chang to reach semifinals

By STEVE WILSTEIN
Associated Press

NEW YORK—Three straight sets Jim Courier trailed Michael Chang, three times Courier clawed back Thursday night to reach the U.S. Open semifinals in one of his gutsiest Grand Slam victories.

Courier, who will play Pete Sampras on Saturday, set the tone in the first set, fighting off four set-points in one game, and beat Chang 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (7-3), 7-5.

Chang, seeded No. 5, led 5-3 in each set but never could put a handle on Courier and beat Chang 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (7-3), 7-5.

Chang threw the match away by double-faulting on match point.

If recent history continues, Courier could be the champion this year. For the last four years, whoever has beaten Chang in the Open has gone on to win the title.

Chang lost this match as much as Courier won it. For all of Courier’s aggressive play and sizzling shots in the corners on the key points in the tiebreaks, Chang wasted chances and double-faulted at the wrong times.

“Normally I’m the one who’s ahead, and Michael’s the one coming from behind,” said Courier, who has won four Grand Slam titles but never the U.S. Open. “To let him serve for all three sets, and I broke each time. This is a good match to get through.”

Sampras also charged into the semifinals, closing out game after game with acies that served as exclamation points, from a 128 mph “Hello!” to a 128 mph “See ya later!”

Among his 27 aces through a whipping wind, seven flew past a dizzy Byron Black on the last point of Sampras’ service. Sampras’ serve was something to revere, with the memory of brute power that lingered in his mind when he stepped up to serve so much less emphatically.

“After I won the first two, there was no reason to fool around at this point in the tournament, leaving the Zimba- wean with an ace that was just as fast as his first serve, showing he was just as tense at the end of the 1 hour, 45 minute semifinal tuneup than he was at the start.”

The winner of the Open in 1990 and ‘93, Sampras had only a little trouble in the first set adjusting to Black’s mild-mannered game and two-fisted groundstrokes. In his previous match, Sampras had beaten a much different player in serve-and-volley specialist Todd Martin, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

Once Sampras got used to Black’s style and cut down on his own errors, there was nothing to impede his progress one step closer to another Grand Slam title.

“After I won the first two, there was no reason to fool around at this point in the tournament, leaving the Zimba- wean with an ace that was just as fast as his first serve, showing he was just as tense at the end of the 1 hour, 45 minute semifinal tuneup than he was at the start.”

The Observer is now accepting applications for the following paid position:

Associate Acces Editor

Those interested please submit two page personal statement and clips to Krista Nannya in 314 LaFortune by Sunday at 2PM.

Journalistic experience is required.
Boston College recovers from opening week loss
By DAVID REED
Associated Press

BLACKSBURG, Va. — Mark Herzsell threw three touchdown passes and Steve Everett caught 10 passes for 142 yards Thursday night, helping Boston College rebound from a first-game rout with a 20-14 victory over No. 20 Virginia Tech.

Hartwell completed 24 of 38 passes for 273 yards for the Eagles (1-1, 1-0 Big East). Jim Druckenmiller, starting his first game in Virginia Tech's nationally televised opener, completed 21 of 42 passes for 296 yards.

The Hokies drove to the Boston College 19 on the final drive, but stalled after Cortez White dropped a pass at the 6 with 11 seconds to play.

Boston College, held without a touchdown in the 39-6 loss to Ohio State in the Kickoff Classic, took just three minutes and 12 seconds to get into the end zone against Virginia Tech.

In the opening drive, Hartwell completed all five passes and found tight end Todd Pollack for an 11-yard touchdown pass. Virginia Tech struggled early, running out of easy passes, a running back fumbled and Aite Larson missed a 30-yard field goal.

On the first drive of the second quarter, the Hokies finally got their game together and drove from their own 16 to the Eagles 24. Then two defenders popped the ball out of fullback Brian Edmonds' hands and safety Terence Wiggins caught it in the air and ran it back 53 yards.

Six plays later, with 9:26 left in the first half, Hartwell put Boston College ahead 14-0 with a 4-yard touchdown pass to Dennis Harding.

On the first play from scrimmage in the second half, Druckenmiller threw an 80-yard touchdown pass to Bryan Still. The flanker faked out a waiting defender at the 30 and sprinted 70 yards down the sideline.

Hartwell then completed two clutch throws on third down, lobbing a ball to Steve Everett just inside the sideline at the 4-yard line and zipping a TD strike to Michael Hemmert.

Virginia Tech blocked the extra-point attempt, which seemed critical after the Hokies scored early in the fourth quarter on a 14-yard touchdown pass to Edmonds' 1-yard run and put Boston College ahead by just six, 20-14.

Boston College quarterback Mark Herzsell threw three touchdown passes in the Eagles' 20-14 triumph over Virginia Tech Thursday.
Candlestick latest to be renamed for corporation

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO Candlestick Park, home of baseball's Giants and football's 49ers, was officially renamed 3Com Park on Thursday.

3Com Corp., a Santa Clara data networking company, will pay the city $500,000 for the rights to the name through the end of 1995. The city's Recreation and Parks Commission unanimously approved the change.

The company is also paying an undisclosed amount to the San Francisco 49ers for promotional considerations. 3Com wants to extend the deal through 2000 for a total of $4 million, but that will have to go before the San Francisco board of supervisors.

Shauna Rose, secretary of the commission, said the city needs the money to refurbish the stadium, known by most as "The Stick.

"This money will be used to begin the design process for the improvements that will need to be made for the 1999 Super Bowl," she said. The city will need an additional $22 million to complete the reforms.

Supervisor Tom Ammiano said his office had already begun fielding calls from San Franciscans unhappy about the pending name change.

Candlestick Park, built for the San Francisco Giants when they moved from New York, held its first game in 1960. It was named after Candlestick Point, on which it was built, after a 1959 ballot by fans.
Men continued from page 24
Lanza looked anything but disabled last Sunday against DePaul, as he tallied 2 goals and 3 assists in just over 45 minutes of play. Lanza’s valiant performance in his return to the Irish lineup after missing all of last season with a bad knee earned him Big East offensive player of the week honors. The senior leads the team with 7 points, and his 67 career points puts him at 14th on the Irish all-time scoring list. Lanza will likely be joined up front by senior Josh Landman, who scored the first two goals of his career against DePaul. Freshman Benjamin Boklage, who played well in his collegiate debut against DePaul, may also see time at forward this weekend.

Women continued from page 24

"They are one of the best teams in the country," Petrucelli commented. "Their top three players are as good as our top three players." Past those three players, however, the Irish hope to capitalize with their depth. "We’re deeper than they are," Petrucelli said.

Last year the Badgers visited Alumni Field ranked No. 8 in the country only to be defeated 2-0. Besides that, playing the No. 2 team will also be a motivational factor. "This is they’re biggest game of the year," Petrucelli concluded.

JR. TOPS
AT L.S. AYRES
You know what you want...what you just gotta have. skinny ribbed tiny tees, big corduroy shirts, fun logo sweaters. You’ll find them all at Ayres.

AYRES FOR BACK TO SCHOOL

Please Recycle The Observer

L.S.Ayres
Now you can share the experience of the legendary Irish student section with a friend.

Student Ticket EXCHANGE

Remember all those friends from home, younger brothers and sisters, neighbors and long lost cousins you promised could come to just one Notre Dame football game with you?

Notre Dame and St. Mary's Students will now be able to trade their student football admission tickets for GENERAL ADMISSION tickets during the 1995 season.

Bring a friend to watch the Irish VICTORY over Vanderbilt, the Irish UPSET U.S.C. and the Irish NIX Texas Navy.

TO EXCHANGE A TICKET:

*The student exchanging a ticket must visit the Joyce Center Ticket Office at Gate One between 8:30 and 5:00 Tuesday through Thursday the week of the game for which the student requires a GENERAL ADMISSION ticket.

*The student must present their own PERSONAL student ticket signed in ink in the designated area and a corresponding Notre Dame or Saint Mary’s student identification card.

*The ticket for that week’s game will then be removed from the booklet and the student will be presented with a replacement GENERAL ADMISSION ticket for the same seat. The student will then be charged $15, the difference between the face values of the two tickets.

*Since there is a limit to the number of student tickets which can be exchanged for each game, the ticket office will exchange tickets on a first-come-first-served basis. Students are also limited to exchanging only two tickets per season.

*Restrictions regarding the resale of either student tickets or the exchanged tickets remain the same as in the past.

If you have absolutely any questions or comments about how this works or what you need to do, please call Student Government at 631-7668, or contact Student Government by e-mail at studegov.1@nd.edu.
Astroturf blamed for increasing injury list

By BARRY WILNER
Associated Press

Rod Woodson, gone for the season.
Kevin Smith, out for 1995.
Ki-Jana Carter, gone before he could get his pro career started. Ronnie Lott, sidelined and perhaps with his career at an end. Don McMorath, his vision severely impaired by a freak injury, also wondering about his future.

Lesser known such as Dave Alexander, Scott Davis and Vaughn Helbron won't be playing this year, either.

One work into the NFL season, a bunch of teams already are scrambling to fill voids created by injuries. Dallas and Pittsburgh, two strong Super Bowl contenders, have been hit hardest, losing their best cornerbacks.

Cincinnati seems jinxed after Carter, the top pick in the draft, tore up his knee and backup quarterback David Klinger broke his jaw in the same exhibition game. The Bengals also saw Steve Tovar, their best linebacker, break his hand in that game.

Lott, one of the game's greatest defensive players for more than a decade, might be headed for retirement after a fractured leg sidelined him for what would have been his 16th NFL season. The Chiefs put him on injured reserve during preseason.

Several of the sidelined players went down with what's becoming known as "turf injuries." They were hurt despite not being hit while playing on artificial turf.

Woodson said as much when he tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee.

"It was the turf. I couldn't get my leg up fast enough. I knew what I did right away," Woodson said. "It's what you get when you play on turf sometimes. I've played on turf for nine years, and sooner or later it's going to grab you." It also grabbed Davis and Alexander in the same game. The Giants guard and Jets center saw their seasons end on the Giants Stadium artificial surface when the teams met in an exhibition game.

Dallas' Smith also went down on that field where, in the past, Lawrence Taylor and Mike Sherrard of the Giants, Lance Mehl, Joe Klecko and Dennis Byrd of the Jets were hurt, although not all were a result of the carpet.

"The big why is why do we have Astroturf at Giants Stadium?" Giants quarterback Dave Brown asked when Davis was hurt. "I don't care if they say there are too many games there... If you ask both teams, they'd rather play on mud in December.

The New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, which runs the Meadowlands, has looked into putting grass down permanently. It had a temporary grass field for the World Series but probably isn't feasible for Giants Stadium, which held 53 events in 1994, from football to soccer to concerts.

"We will follow the teams' interest in determining the playing surface," said NJSEA spokesperson Helen Sirus. "Their choice is Astroturf because it is durable for the 50 or so events each year we hold, and for the climate during the football season.

Of course, artificial turf is merely a contributing factor in many injuries. But the NFL Players Association is concerned it is too much of a factor.

In a survey conducted by the NFLPA last year, 93 percent of those who responded believe injuries are more likely to occur on artificial turf, with only 1.5 percent blaming grass fields for more injuries. And 85 percent of the 965 players who responded said they prefer a grass surface. Seven percent preferred artificial turf and 8 percent had no preference.

Perhaps the most distressing injury happened to Carter on only the third carry of his first preseason appearance. The No. 1 choice out of Penn State and the keystone to Cincinnati's rebuilding project went down late in the first ever getting the NFL's Wooden Award.

"I don't know what you can blame it on," Carter said. "If you could see the way I cut, I should have leveraged out of the way, I guess it would probably be my own fault. It was just a little freak accident."

The saddest aspect of the wave of injuries is that it is so early in the schedule that so many stars are missing. With, in all likelihood, more to come.

SPORTS BRIEFS

MVC Club Volleyball - Tryouts will be held on Sept. 10-12 in the JACC Auxiliary Gym. For more information come to activities night or contact Josh at 4-3413 or Greg at 4-3650.

Bike Ride - RecSports will be sponsoring a bike ride from New Buffalo to the Dunes (approximately 25 miles round trip) on Sunday, Sept. 17. A picnic lunch at the Dunes is included along with transportation for you and your bike. The fee is $8 and space is limited. Helmets are required and you must register in advance at the RecSports office. The bus departs Library Plaza at 10 and returns at 5. For more information call RecSports at 4-3650.

Weight Room Demonstration - RecSports is sponsoring free demonstrations Sunday Sept. 10 at noon in the fieldhouse weight room, Monday, Sept. 14 at noon in the Rockne weight room, and Thursday, Sept. 14 at noon in the Rocke weight room. Sigh in when you get there.

Mandatory Track Meeting - The meeting will be held Wednesday, Sept. 13 at 4 pm in Loftus Auditorium. Questions? Call Ken at 239-7959.

Notre Dame Ski Club - All Students interested in any ski club activities or trying out for the ski team should attend an informational meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 12, at 8 p.m. in 118 Nieuwland. Anyone with questions can call Ryan at 237-2420.

CINEMARK THEATRES
MOVIES 10 MISHAWAKA
ALL FEATURES IN ULTRA STEREO
• Mulan: Emperor Shang (PG) • Mulan: Mushu's Adventure (PG) • Mulan: Shang's Story: An Odyssey of Courage (PG) • Mulan (PG) 1:30, 4:15, 7, 10, 12

• Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring (PG-13) 4:15, 7:30, 10:45, 1:45, 4:45, 7:45, 10, 1:30, 4:30, 7:30, 10:30

• Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers (PG-13) • Lord of the Rings: The Return of the King (PG-13) 7, 10, 12:30, 2:30, 5, 7:30, 9:30, 11:30

• Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers (PG-13) 4:15, 7:30, 10:45, 1:45, 4:45, 7:45, 10, 1:30, 4:30, 7:30, 10:30

• Lord of the Rings: The Return of the King (PG-13) 7, 10, 12:30, 2:30, 5, 7:30, 9:30, 11:30

• Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring (PG-13) 4:15, 7:30, 10:45, 1:45, 4:45, 7:45, 10, 1:30, 4:30, 7:30, 10:30
Belles defense falters in loss

By STEPHANIE BUEK

Last night, in their home opener, the Saint Mary’s volleyball team suffered a disappointing loss to Calvin College in three games, 9-15, 9-15, 6-15.

Head Coach Julie Schroeder-Biek attributed the loss to poor defense. According to Schroeder-Biek, the Belles were slow to identify defensive situations as well as ineffective in making the necessary transitions from offense to defense.

“We were not crisp in defensive position. We need to identify and go,” said Schroeder-Biek. “It’s a downhill situation, then we need to be in downhill defense. If it’s a free-ball, we need to get into free-ball transition. We just did not identify as quickly as we should have,” added Schroeder-Biek.

The Belles’ offense struggled with inaccurate passes to setter Kelly Meyer, which in turn caused problems in the hitters’ attacks. Sophomore outside hitter Meg Kelly led the Belles’ attack with four kills in 17 attempts. However, Meyer had particular trouble getting the ball to senior middle hitter Sara Strzezek, who led the Belles’ offensive effort against Manchester Tuesday night with 16 kills.

“It hurts us when we don’t get the ball to Sara. We have to pass; we have to establish a middle attack,” said Schroeder-Biek.

According to Assistant Coach Amber Warners, Calvin capitalized on the Belles’ weak defense.

“They have multiple numbers of good hitters,” said Warners of the Belles. “The times they actually got the ball to their hitters, they put it down, but on defense we picked up a lot and made good passes,” concluded Warners.

Not only did Calvin capitalize on the Belles’ freeballs, but the Calvin squad played with more emotion than the Belles. According to freshman middle attacker Laura Schreeg, such a lack of emotion was a key factor in the Belles’ loss.

“As a team, we need to be more intense,” said Schreeg. “Calvin played with more enthusiasm. We have talent, but we need emotion.”

While a deficiency in dedication handicapped the Belles against Calvin, the team did demonstrate formidable skill. Particularly, sophomore outside hitter Meg Kelly gave an impressive performance, serving nine points and two aces, leading the team with four kills, and picking up eight digs for the night. Despite the Belles’ poor passing as a team, Kelly had no service errors.

Birkner back to full strength for Irish

By MIKE DAY

The rich get richer.

Ranked No.9 in the country and fresh off an impressive four game victory over previous No. 9 USC, the Notre Dame volleyball team will get an additional boost this weekend when captain Jenny Birkner comes back to full strength for the first time this season.

Although the 5-11 junior started against Northwestern and USC last weekend, Birkner’s playing time was limited due to a foot injury she suffered in preseason workouts. However, she is expected to be at full strength this weekend as the team travels to Bloomington to face Indiana, Kentucky, and Louisville in the sixth annual Big Four Classic.

“She was very limited last weekend and wasn’t able to push off like she normally does,” said head coach Debbie Brown. “Her return helps a lot in terms of our depth at outside hitter.”

Junior Kristina Ervin, who filled in for Birkner last weekend, made sure the Irish didn’t miss a beat in the team’s first two matches of the season. Starting for the first time, Ervin recorded 21 kills and 14 digs against the Wildcats and Trojans at the Joyce Center.

“Kristina responded real well for us last weekend when we really needed her,” said Brown. “We will find ways to use her, and she will be a significant contributor for us this year.”

Teammate Jamie Lee added, “We weren’t losing anything when Jenny was hurting last weekend. They both do a great job, and they’re both fun to play with.”

With three matches in two days, the Irish will look to utilize the entire 10 player squad this weekend. Notre Dame will take on host Indiana tonight at 7:30 before facing Kentucky and Louisville on Saturday.

Led by senior Stacy Murr and sophomore Amber Prothro, the Hoosier’s easier tonight’s contest with a record of 3-1, Murr leads the team with 39 digs, while Prothro has posted 31 kills and 11 digs in four matches for the Hoosiers. Coming off a 29-5-1994 campaign and entering this weekend’s tournament at 3-0, Louisville should provide the toughest challenge for the Irish. Junior outside hitter Beth Kuhnlein is one of the top outside hitters in the country, having posted 70 kills in just three matches for the Cardinals.

“We will have to execute well to beat them on Saturday,” said junior middle blocker Jen Briggs. “You must not lose focus, and we will have to play with the same kind of intensity as against USC.”

Kentucky was a lackluster 13-21 last year, but they are the most experienced of the three Irish opponents. Seniors Molly Dreisbach, Mara Egilis, and Krista Robinson are three of the top players in the Southeast Conference.

After winning the Big Four Classic last year, Notre Dame will look to become the first repeat champion in the six year history of the tournament. As usual, the Irish will be led by Briggs, Lee, Birkner, setter Carey May, and Big East Player of the Week Angie Harris.

Harris became the first Notre Dame player to win the award after recording a team high 44 kills last weekend against Northwestern and USC. She also ranks second to May with 23 digs in eight games for the Irish.

“With three matches in 24 hours, we will have to play hard and keep the intensity level high,” said Brown. “We need to try to beat teams in three games, and we will have to make some improvements to be able to do that.”

Whether it takes three games or not, Notre Dame, operating at full strength for the first time this season, should return home 5-0 on Saturday evening.
FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1995

(CALVIN AND HOBBES) BILL WATTERSON

Friday, September 8, 1995 The Observer •

CROSSWORD

 HOMEWORK, WE GET TO

20 Last letters?

21 Europe’s kingdom until 1800

22 He or I may represent one

24 Fancy homes

36 Crystalline amino acids

39 Midest money

DOW N

1 Draws

2 Plunder

3 Purple flower

5 Aunt Bee’s change

6 Nice one

11 Rapid repeat, in music

30 Go back over

40 Certain celebration times

50 Alberta, Canada

55 Prefix with circle

56 Trigonometric ratio

61 Practical requirement

62 Wild West term.

Get answers to any three clues by touch-tone phone: 1-900-420-5656 (75¢ each minute).

YOUR HOROSCOPE

JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1995

For your personalized daily Jean Dixon horoscope, bound on your own date of birth, 900-488-7788. Your phone company will bill you 99 cents a minute.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stick to your script today. This is no time for taking chances in love or money. A playful mood vanishes when you start going off on tangents, through no instructions from those around you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your next task could range from going off on a diet. Exercise willpower. Getting in shape will boost your energy level: Changes are indicated when romance is concerned. Avoid passing yourself off as a guru.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Romance can easily fall into a rut if you let it. Do something different tonight — just for fun. Group entertainment is favored. Choose your companions carefully if hoping to stay within your budget.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep any secrets confided to you. Otherwise, there will be bad feelings between you and someone who feels betrayed. Concern over money would make you appear a little detached at work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Remain flexible. You cannot always have your own way in affairs of the heart. Be more considerate of loved one’s feelings. An overly critical attitude can ripple in the bath.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some is depth said-stalking is in order. Put a recent spat with a loved one behind you, relative to make amends. A young person needs nurturing guidance. Keep in touch with a family member.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You will find yourself in a tricky work situation. The best place to put your psychic talents to work is on your own home. Your creativity takes a lot of engagement to get you through the day.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Check the particulars of a job prospect before proceeding. Do the now if there are unanswered questions. You could find yourself in the spotlight later today. Be certain to make a good impression on influential people.

II MENU

Notre Dame North Purpleman Chicken South Cheddar Sticks
Seafood Pizza Italian Chicken Sandwich
BBQ Rib Sandwich Mississippi Fried Catfish

St. Mary’s

Vegetables and Tofu Baked Chicken Noodles
Baked Potatoes

French Kids

Hey Nort, How about a big French Kids on your birthday?

That’s what I thought. Just be in Cushing Tonite at 8 pm or 10 pm or Sunday at 2 pm. $2 admission (only 200 pennies if it’s your birthday!)

also: calling all reformed convicts and other lovers... be at the LaFortune Ballroom Thurs. Sept. 14 at 7 pm for SUB Recruitment Night

Have something to say? Use The Observer classifieds

Orangemen first conference test for Irish

Berticelli not looking past Friday contest with Valparaiso

By DYLAN BARMMER

The Notre Dame men's soccer team opens a two-game homestand this weekend, playing host to Valparaiso University tonight at 7:30 before taking part in their first ever Big East match against Syracuse University at 1:00 Sunday.

While much of the focus is on Notre Dame's matchup with the 3-0-0 Orangemen in their inaugural Big East contest, Irish head coach Mike Berticelli is not looking past the 0-2-0 Crusaders.

"While we have been working all week to prepare for both games, we are only looking towards Valparaiso between now and Friday," said Berticelli.

Can you ever look past an opponent in soccer? you just never know what can happen."

If the Irish were to look past anyone this season, Valpo would be a likely candidate. The Crusaders come into the game having given up nine goals in two games while tallying none themselves. Valparaiso is also 0-2-2 all-time against Notre Dame and was a woeful 2-13-1 last season. However, all this considered, Berticelli is still not taking anything for granted.

"Their program has really improved over the last few years," commented the Irish head coach. "You can never be certain of anything in this game."

Syracuse may pose more of a threat to the Irish this weekend, as they bring in a dangerous team that has scored four goals in Notre Dame's opening games.

"The game was a lot closer than the score would indicate," said Berticelli.

Push the ball over midfield and mount a scoring threat. "The game was a lot closer than the score would indicate," Berticelli noted. "If Indiana converts on their breakaway in the first half, it changes the complexion of the game."

Midfielder Holly Manthei assisted Gerardo's third goal on a corner kick. Forward Rosella Guerrero also regis-

---

Irish score another shutdown

Gerardo breaks scoring record in 7-0 win over Indiana

By JOE VILLINSKI

Before her first collegiate game last Saturday, Monica Gerardo claimed to be both nervous and excited.

After scoring four goals in the game, Gerardo shattered the Irish single game scoring record as she tallied four goals in Notre Dame's 7-0 shutout.

"I really didn't know I broke the record until after the game," Gerardo said.

"I didn't know if we played all the game," said Berticelli.

"I really didn't know I broke the record until after the game," Gerardo said.

Gerardo also acknowledged her teammates with a certain modesty that can only bring a smile to coach Chris Petrucci's face.

"My teammates did a great job of giving me the ball in good scoring position," Gerardo added.

The Irish outshot the Hoosiers 21-5, jumping out to a 5-0 lead at halftime. However, Indiana managed to accomplish something neither Big East opponent did in Notre Dame's opening games.

Push the ball over midfield and mount a scoring threat. "The game was a lot closer than the score would indicate," said Berticelli.

Holly Manthei (above) set up Monica Gerardo's record-tying goal with a corner kick in the Irish shutout of the Hoosiers Thursday.

---

SPOTS

SPORTS

Friday, September 8, 1995

Men's Soccer

- Football
  - at Purdue Saturday, 2:30 p.m.
- Volleyball
  - at Indiana Friday, 7:30 p.m.
- at Wisconsin Sunday, 1:30 p.m.
- Cross Country
  - at Ohio State September 15
- Saint Mary's Volleyball
  - at Hope Sunday
- Saint Mary's Soccer
  - vs. Ohio Wesleyan Saturday, 1:30 p.m.

Women's Soccer

- at Wisconsin Sunday, 2:30 p.m.

Cross Country

- at Ohio State September 15

Saint Mary's Volleyball

- at Hope Sunday

Saint Mary's Soccer

- vs. Ohio Wesleyan Saturday, 1:30 p.m.