First Wrigley Field, now Notre Dame Stadium...

NBC telecasts prompt lights at Stadium

By DEREK BETCHER
Assistant News Editor

Deviating from its original stadium expansion plan, the University announced in late-June that the renovated Notre Dame Stadium will now include permanent lighting.

The cause of this change — a University desire to accommodate NBC telecasts — is central to the contrast between administrative advocacy of the move and student cynicism.

In June, the University officials justified their addition of lights as means to avoid using temporary lighting at late-season home football games. They emphasized that all Notre Dame home football games will remain day games.

"One of the benefits of our contract with NBC is the assurance it provides that Notre Dame home football games will not be moved to prime time broadcast purposes... Late season (day) home games do, however, require lighting to produce a quality television picture," Father William Beauchamp, the University’s executive vice president, explained in a June announcement.

Underlining NBC’s role in the change is their agreement to pay for the lights. While in the past," Father William Beauchamp, the University's executive vice president, explained in a June announcement. Underlining NBC’s role in the change is their agreement to pay for the lights. While in the past, the network has paid to bring in large portable lights, its new $700,000 commitment for a "quality television picture" is significant.

Changes on the University's part to accommodate a large bank of lights atop the new press box and four smaller clusters on the stadium’s four corners are comparatively small, according to Director of Facilities Engineering Michael Smith.

Construction plans for Notre Dame Stadium now include permanent lighting, after the University decided in June to add the lights to increase the quality of NBC’s telecasts of home football games. NBC will pay for the lights.

Ohio school’s logo may be just the start

Where to next?

It was the Fall of 1993 when "The Shirt" proudly stated in white lettering, "Tradition Continues." Now it's the Fall of 1996 and if tradition continues to continue, it'll be hard to discern through the cloud of commotion on the Notre Dame campus.

Returning students cheered a little cheer as they caught their first unobstructed view of the Golden Dome reflecting the South Bend sun. Many mouthed a silent but moved question, "Can we cruise on past Notre Dame Avenue and toward a residence off the beaten paths of campus? And still others felt a tear forming for "The House That Rockne Built," already dressed for fall in an oversized cement jacket. The rest of campus took some style tips from Mother Nature, selecting a wardrobe of trees instead.

Cars now roll around the new-and-improved Main Circle clockwisely, and even Rollerbladers have the chance to change their skating scenery with the new sidewalks stretching across previously uncharted territory. Those sidewalks might be temporary, as only time and South Bend rain can tell if they can uphold the soggy South Quad tradition of the "lake effect."

"Save the Males" was a lost cause for the fall. But it's Grace, but the fresh men haven't lost their livelihood — Kougu and O'Neill are particularly busy. Right in the backyard of campus, complete with cyber effects, is the main location for the secret of the sainess. Record numbers of new freshmen have joined the Notre Dame family, and any upperclassmen can tell you that they look younger and younger every time around.

For those who have grown out of their baby-face stage, the collegiate changing program, where personal state actually match those on their licenses, a word of caution. The sporty crowd of Coaches has been stricken with a Saturday night fever for dancing. And Jaczynski's innovative Tuesday "Hook-up Night" is sure to be worth giving the old college try. And where will it be headed once the Alumni-Senior Club changes its name? The Most Likely Flow of Good Times to the Off-campus residents, however, may taste a little fear in their beer as the sober reality of SDS is unleashed on Turtle Creek and Campus View. Is CBLD the name we should have to count on anything more? So maybe the Girl Scouts had it exactly right — they're going to sing something about making new and keeping old — whether it's in the dorm or the Old College. It's time for some kids to get out there and do it all. Welcome to the Fall of 1996, where tradition is there for the re-making.

Sudanese airliner hijacked en route to Jordan

LABNACA, Cyprus

A Sudanese jetliner carrying 199 passengers and crew members was hijacked Monday evening on route to Jordan. A hijacker claiming to have grenades and T.N.T. hijacked asylum in Cyprus. After refusing in Cyprus, Flight 100 of state-run Sudan Airways took off again bound for Britain. One hijacker promised to free all 186 passengers and 13 crew members and the plane reached London, said Glafcos Xenos, a police spokesman at Euston tower at Cyprus Larnaca International Airport.

Even after the plane left Cyprus, police said they did not know how many hijackers were aboard the Airbus 310, or what their nationalities were. During the flight's two hours on the ground here, authorities won the release of at least the women and children on the plane, police spokesman Tasos Panayiotou said.

"But the hijackers threatened to use hand grenades and T.N.T.," he said. "We did our utmost, but were not able to win the release of any passengers."

Authorities allowed the plane to refuel and take off on the four-hour flight to London. The plane's pilot said there were several women on board, who told the pilot, although Cyprus civil aviation director Michael Herrodonito said he feared there to be only one. It was not clear whether Cyprus authorities had talked to or released any one man.

During its stay in Cyprus, the plane was parked away from the terminal building at Larnaca, on the southern edge of the Mediterranean island, and it was not certain if a hijacker, who went off for London just before 1 a.m. Tuesday, had been there.

The plane left the South African city of Chartum about 6:30 p.m. en route to Amman, Jordan, and was hijacked by a man claiming to have a bomb. He was identified as Mohamed Qassim, an aviation official in Jordan.

The pilot contacted the Cairo tower, told officials the plane had been hijacked and requested permission to fly through Egyptian airspace to Rome.

Gore lays base for run in 2000

With every handshake and visit at the Democratic convention, Al Gore has a game plan: to present himself as President Clinton and build a foundation for his own expected run in 2000. But to be sure, in first place is the Clinton-Gore ticket in 1996, "First things first," Gore responded, barely pleased by the outburst and smiling from ear-to-ear. Gore doesn’t have as ambitious a schedule for meeting with state delegations as House Democratic Leader Richard Gephardt, for example. With presidential aspirations of his own in 2000, Gephardt is expected to represent with representatives from all 50 states during the convention. But by the end of the week, Gore will have visited seven state delegations. He also will have met with caucus leaders, teachers, workers, blacks. On Monday, he sailed with Latinos, "Bob Dole and Newt Gingrich just don’t seem too hip to need our help in the difficult struggle to control the deviant behavior," Gore said.

Chemical castration bill approved

Child molesters could be given drugs to stifle their sex drives and repeat offenders would automatically face "chemical castration" under a bill Gov. Pete Wilson has vowed to sign into law. "Hopefully this treatment will help in the difficult struggle to control the deviant behavior of those who simply have to have sex," Wilson said. The New York Times on Monday. Legislation passed by the state Senate last week would allow courts in first-time child molesters to take hormone-suppressing drugs when parole from prison. The drug treatment would be mandatory for a second offense. Wilson also could not actually require emasculation, though a molester could choose physical castration in place of the drug treatment intended, of lower testosterone levels. "This is a treat that in Europe has produced a dramatic drop in recidivism," state Sen. Ross Johnson said. The issue has raised medical ethics questions, with legal experts predicting court challenges and local authorities to be only one. It was not clear whether Cyprus authorities had talked to or released any one man. It was not certain if a hijacker, who went off for London just before 1 a.m. Tuesday, had been there.

Robert Gordon
Robert Gordon, Notre Dame's vice president emeritus for advanced studies, died June 2 in LaGrange, Ga., where he resided.
Gordon, who joined the Notre Dame faculty in 1958, played a pivotal role in the development of postbaccalaureate instruction, research and sponsored programs at the University. He served for 18 years as Notre Dame's first vice president for advanced studies.
Born in New York City, Gordon grew up in Atlanta, and it was his southernness that became his trademark, said Robert McIntosh, a colleague.
He had a habit of engaging Southern gentleman airs," McIntosh said, "and he was a particularly good story and joke teller with an infinite memory for stories on virtually any sub­ject, always told with a lot of animation. He was sought after as a witty speaker."

The research interests of Gordon, a noted vertebrate zoologist and ecologist, includ­ed the behavior and taxonomy of reptiles and amphibians, as well as their life history and population dynamics.

After an ad for an ecologist in Science magazine by an unnamed "midwestern univer­sity" brought Gordon to Notre Dame, he eventually became a senior scientist in the University's Radiation Laboratory, served as chairman of the biology department from 1965-67, and was associate dean of the College of Science from 1967 until he was named vice president in 1971. He retired in 1989.

He is survived by his wife, Sarah Catherine Tigner ("Buddy") Gordon, two daughters; a brother; and a grand­daughter.

William Hamill
William Hamill, a professor of chemistry and a radiation research director at Notre Dame from 1938-81, died Aug 12 in South Bend. He was 88.

Born in Oswego, N.Y., and raised in Utica, N.Y., Hamill earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Notre Dame in 1930 and a master's degree in 1931. He completed his doctoral studies in chemistry in 1936.

In the early 1940s, Hamill served as liaison between researchers at Notre Dame and the University of Chicago work­ ing on the Manhattan Project to develop an atomic bomb.

In 1946-47, he joined with Nobel laureate William Libby on a project to detect carbon-14, a study that led to his important findings in measuring the age of antiquities.

Hamill, whose daughter Carol Rita has Down's Syndrome, was a charter member and a mem­ber of the board of directors of the St. Joseph County Council for Retarded Children, an organ­ization associated with the founding of South Bend's Logan Center.

Hamill is survived by his wife, Angela, of South Bend, five daughters; and five grandchil­dren.

A funeral Mass was held in the Basilica of the Sacred Heart at Notre Dame Aug. 16. Burial was in Notre Dame's Cedar Grove Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to Logan Center, P.O. Box 1049, South Bend, Ind.,46624.

Loret Miller
Loret Miller Loret Miller Ruppe, a Notre Dame trustee and former U.S.
ambassador to Norway, died Aug. 6 at her home in Bethesda, Md., of ovarian can­cer. She was 60.

Ruppe, who became a trustee in 1989, directed the Peace Corps from 1987-89, the longest tenure in that agency's history. She served as ambas­assador to Norway from 1989-93.

She is survived by her hus­band, Philip Ruppe, who represented Michigan's 11th U.S. congressional district from 1966-78, and by their five dughters.

Ruppe's Notre Dame connec­tions were extensive. Her grandfather, Byron Kanaley, was chairman of the University's Associate Board of Lay Trustees, and her father, Frederick Miller, was captain of Knute Rockne's 1928 football team.

She received an honorary doctorate of laws degree from the University and delivered the commencement address in 1984.

A funeral Mass was celebrat­ed Aug. 9 in Potomac, Md. Memorial contributions may be

WASHINGTON HALL--Bruce Auerbach,
Director of Theatre of Notre Dame Commu­ni- cation and Theatre, announced that the annual reception for students interested in theatre will be held Wednesday, August 28, at 6:00 P.M. in Washington Hall. Students interested in acting, directing, sets, costumes, lights, management, or theatre as a major are encouraged to attend.

Theatre at Notre Dame is open to all students--majors and non-majors--who wish to participate.

A wide variety of activities is available including: acting, scenic design and construction, costume design and construction, lighting design and execution, marketing, directing and stage manage­ment. There are theatre opportunities to fit every schedule and level of talent. If you have a willingness to learn, you are qualified.

Involvement in theatre is an excellent way to meet new people, make new friends, and have a great time while involving yourself in the creation of something special on campus.

This season, the Department of Communication and Theatre (COTH) will present a mainstage season consisting of four plays as well as many other acting and directing projects. Mainstage productions this season will be:

Barefoot in the Park

A Christmas Carol

The Great Gatsby

In addition, COTH will host a residency by DINAMO Theatre of Montreal, Canada, sponsored by the Paul M. and Barbara Henkels Visiting Scholars Series. Acting and directing projects are showcased at the end of each semester. All of these projects will need a great amount of student support. There are positions for all who wish to participate.

Auditions for the first two plays of the season will be held Wednesday, August 28, and Thurs­day, August 29, at 7:00 P.M. If you cannot attend the reception, but wish to be involved or have questions about the program, please call Bruce Auerbach at (219) 631-9597.
Welcome Students, Faculty, and the Central Catholic’s choice went unnoticed until the basketball prowess of one of their students attracted collegiate coaches from nationwide — including Notre Dame.

"I received a fax of their logo and it was indeed our leprechaun," explained Dick Conklin, associate vice-president of University Relations at Notre Dame.

Conklin contacted Catholic Central in the spring, publicly explaining the legal ramifications of using the registered Notre Dame design as its own.

"In any instance where the similarities are too great, we have to explain the legal problems with using our registered design."

That may create problems for other Catholic high schools — including one in southern Indiana — who have a similar, if slightly altered, version of the leprechaun as their mascot.

Though the resolution of the affair with Catholic Central was amicable, officials at Shaw Memorial, situated in Madison, Ind. were vague when describing their school’s logo.

"Ours is facing a different way and the colors are a little different," noted the school’s president, who asked not to be identified.

Though the logo is present on a T-shirt and work shirt on any clothing, the president maintained that students and community members have loved the symbol and would be unhappy with any changes.

"We’re a small Catholic school and we’re proud of the school spirit created by using the leprechaun," he said.

"Notre Dame should be flattened that we want to be associated with their school."

Shaw Memorial has not been contacted by Notre Dame officials regarding the school’s logo, the president said.

Conklin explained that Notre Dame must challenge any such use of the leprechaun in order to prevent it from becoming a generic symbol. "When people see it, they should automatically associate it with this university." In order to preserve that, Conklin added, the school must protect its exclusive ownership.

The University offered the services of their creative people in designing a school mascot for Catholic Central’s leprechaun, but the school chose to use local artists instead.

"We try to bend over backwards to help," Conklin said.

"We share an educational mission with all Catholic institutions, but we don’t want to create confusion as to which school our leprechaun design represents."

At Catholic Central, the athletic teams will replace their logo with a new leprechaun. Shaw Memorial is raising money, the school will replace its gymnasium floor and the new version will debut there as well.

Ann Colliflower, director of development at Catholic Central, said she knew the logo eventually would have to be changed.

"It is their logo. We knew this would come," Colliflower told the South Bend Tribune in July, "we were just biding our time."

The weight room is lacking in size. "I think the social space would be better located in individual rooms, not the middle of the hallway."

Other complaints include the absence of jacks for television antennas (which grace Dixie did have), the lack of kitchenettes and vending machines on each floor, and restrictions on forming unofficial quads and six-man rooms.

Said Daigualnt, "These could be great dorms in time. They’re really what the students make of them."

Ground was broken for the two dorms in 1995 to accommodate the former residents of Grace Hall, which has since been converted into an office building. Each new dorm houses about 270 students.

The first floor in each dorm features a large main lounge, two smaller lounges, a main study room, two smaller study rooms, a full kitchen, a food sales outlet, a weight room, and laundry facilities. The upper floors have small lounges and storage and study rooms for each section.

The basement contains only storage and mechanical rooms.

The increased study and social space were implemented in accordance with the Colloquy for the Year 2000.

Hurricane Edouard bypasses Caribbean

Edouard, the season’s strongest Atlantic hurricane to date, appeared Monday to be headed well north of the Leeward Islands on the eastern rim of the Caribbean.

Edouard’s sustained winds had slacked to about 130 mph before dawn Monday, but climbed by late afternoon to 140 mph, the same top speed as Sunday, the National Weather Service said.

At 11 pm EDT, Edouard’s center was about 400 miles east-northeast of the Leeward Islands — still about 1,600 miles from Florida — and heading west-northwest near 14 miles an hour. At that speed it travels 336 miles a day. Air Force aircraft flew into Edouard late Monday and found the classic spiral shape of a hurricane, with a wall of clouds defining the 25-mile-wide eye, the National Hurricane Center in Miami said.

“It’s a perfect conical type of shape,” hurricane specialist Max Mayfield said. “It’s like standing in a stadium."

Forecasters at the hurricane center are not predicting yet if Edouard will make landfall in the United States.

Further out in the Atlantic, a tropical depression with 35 mph winds formed. It could become a Tropical Storm Fran by Wednesday afternoon, the hurricane center said.

That storm’s center was about 1,200 miles east of the Lesser Antilles, moving west at 18 mph.

Hunt art on exhibit at Snite
Special to The Observer

Works by Chicago artist Richard Hunt will be on exhibition at the University of Notre Dame's Snite Museum of Art through Sept. 1. Entitled "Richard Hunt: Growing Forward," the exhibit opened with a reception in the museum on June 9, which Hunt attended.

The reception marked the 30th anniversary of Hunt's first exhibition at Notre Dame.

Since that first display at age 31, his status as an internationally prominent sculptor has been cemented by shows at both the Museum of Modern Art in New York and the Art Institute of Chicago. In addition, he has received more than 100 commissions for public artworks in American mns.

The "Growing Forward" exhibition, organized by the Snite Museum and the Studio Museum in Harlem, to which he will travel in December, includes sculpture, study models, maquettes, prints, and drawings representing Hunt's work for the last 10 years.

TURBIAK, MILLER READY FOR YEAR

By LORI ALLEN

Saint Mary's College President and Vice-President Jen Turbiak and Beth Ann Miller kicked off their campaign last semester "Running with a vision for the mission of Saint Mary's College." Turbiak and Miller aimed towards continuing the spirit and enthusiasm of the college while initiating new and better ways in which to promote it.

Previously involved with the Residence Hall Association and LoMans Hall Council, Turbiak stepped into the role of student body president with both experience and enthusiasm.

As student body president, Turbiak is responsible for the effective operation of the Student Government Association, and is the official representative of the student body.

The enthusiasm of the people involved makes this a wonderful experience. From the resident advisors to the student government to the orientation counselors and the welcoming committee, everyone deserves credit for working so hard to make things happen," said Turbiak.

It was the voice of the student body that also drew in Beth Ann Miller as Turbiak's running mate for student body vice president.

As vice president, Miller is responsible for all areas concerning student academic life and chairs the Student Academic Council. Miller's previous experience includes serving as executive secretary for the Board of Governance and working with campus ministry.

"I'm hoping that academics is put more into the spotlight. We really want to talk about what things are going on, and give more exposure to the various gifts that the students bring into the community," said Miller.

Together, Turbiak and Miller plan on sticking to their campaign promise and honoring the rich tradition of Saint Mary's College. Turbiak and Miller say they will try to improve campus communications, promote multicultural awareness through knowledge, build on the spirituality that already exists, and according to Miller, "continue to give the students input concerning academic issues on campus through the Student Academic Council."

"We want to try and create a community on campus that is multi-faceted to introduce the freshmen to the variety of opportunities that exist, so that they too can tap into the enthusiasm and build from the spirit of belonging," said Turbiak.
Lights
The pre-cast concrete beams supporting the four corners and press box are already reinforced because renovation planners had anticipated adding lights at some uncertain time in the future.
This summer's official decision to add the lights was reached with little debate, according to Smith.
"It came up mutually. They (NBC) just know from experience that late in the year it starts getting dark early in the day in northern Indiana," he explained.
To light the new stadium with its outer wall 30 feet higher and 65 feet more distant than the original stadium would have required portable lights far more powerful, expensive, and cumbersome than ones NBC had previously used.
"It's a clean solution, aesthetically. The appearance of the stadium will be kept intact," Smith stressed.
Initial student reactions to the University's decision to add lights were mixed. Some supported lights as a necessary measure while others were more critical, in part because of a perception of Notre Dame catering to television interests.
"Notre Dame has so much tradition that they shouldn't just do what NBC wants, they should just keep it the way it's been for decades," said Alumni freshman Dan Cooley.
"Lights will have to be fine. NBC gets the best of Notre Dame anyway. In a few years when people forget that they said there won't be night games, we'll see night football here," Dillon's Guerin Gray remarked.

Other students were less critical, however.
"It's got to be done. Notre Dame has got to keep up with the times and keep financing the things that they do," said Brendan Kenny, a Dillon freshman.
"Everyone here loves the publicity that TV brings to Notre Dame, so if NBC wants lights, you just have to take the good with the bad," said Kristine Oven, a first-year law student.
Regardless of student sentiment, the lights are expected to be in place for the final two home games of the 1996 season.

New lighting fires were sparked in the Cascade Range on Sunday as Army troops moved to help battle blazes that have burned more than 100,000 acres in Oregon alone.

In central California, about 37,000 acres were ablaze in a remote area of Yosemite National Park and Stanislaus National Forest. Steep terrain and inaccessibility were hampering the effort.

In Southern California, firefighters battled two blazes north of Los Angeles.

More than 3,500 acres of dry brush had burned 40 miles northwest of the city and heavily traveled Interstate 5 was blocked at times.

A 15-year-old boy was detained, suspected of starting the fire.

In steep terrain near Azusa, 25 miles northeast of Los Angeles, bees apparently drawn by the yellow hardhats and shirts worn by firefighters made life miserable at a blaze that has burned 4,000 acres.

In the north-central Washington, flames burned across 10,000 acres on the Colville Indian Reservation.

The fire was just 10 percent contained.

In central Idaho, high temperatures and low humidity gave fires there a chance to gain 7,700 acres in six days.

Chemical on TWA 800 not significant

Nitroglycerin may not be bomb-related

By PAT MILTON
Associated Press

A trace of nitroglycerin found in the wreckage of TWA Flight 800 probably played no role in the explosion and may simply have been in a passenger's heart medication, a source said Monday.

The source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the nitroglycerin was found on wreckage near the back of the plane and nowhere near another explosive chemical — identified by sources as PETN — was discovered.

The July 17 explosion that broke the plane apart, killing all 230 people aboard, is thought to have taken place near the center of the plane.

The source who spoke to The Associated Press on Monday speculated the nitroglycerin could have been brought aboard by a person with a heart condition.

In addition to its use as an explosive, nitroglycerin is used for heart conditions such as angina because it dilates blood vessels.

PETN, or pentaerythrite tetranitrate, also has been used as a heart medication but not in recent years.

On Friday, the FBI announced that it had found "microscopic explosive traces of unknown origin" on the wreckage. Sources identified the chemical as PETN, found in some plastic explosives.

That was the first concrete evidence pointing toward a bomb or a missile, rather than mechanical failure, as the cause of the blast.

But FBI Assistant Director James Kallstrom said that without some other evidence, such as certain damage to the Boeing 747, the trace of explosives is not enough to declare a criminal act.

Kallstrom said Monday that the airplane had been used to transport U.S. military personnel to the Middle East within the last few years.

He did not say whether investigators believe that's how the substance got aboard the plane.

"Certainly it's the type of thing we're interested in," Kallstrom said. "Obviously, ordnance is not authorized to go onto commercial aircraft transporting military personnel."

He said the FBI is working with TWA to figure out which flights had carried the military personnel.

Kallstrom also said the FBI has interviewed "a good portion" of the passengers aboard the Athens-to-New York leg of the plane's flight.

The plane exploded shortly after takeoff from New York, where it had had a three-hour layover after arriving from Athens.

At sea, the salvage effort was shifting to a 400-square-yard area where the back of the jet hit the water 10 miles off Long Island.

More than 160 divers have searched for the plane's missing black box.

"Pump the pum p s  from  the  c e n te r  fuel t a n k ," the source said.

"We need more of the floor, more seats and the rest of the center fuel tank," the source added.

Kallstrom refused to comment on that statement.

"We need more of the floor, more seats and the rest of the center fuel tank," the source added.

"Pump the pumps from the center fuel tank that would point toward a mechanical failure triggering the explosion."

"The pumps were sent to Huntsville, Ala., so they could be examined by the same NASA experts who studied the 1987 Challenger explosion still is missing, the AP's source said.

"We need more of the floor, more seats and the rest of the center fuel tank," the source added.

The credit histories of 35 credit cardholders were used without their knowledge in a government sting to nab a suspected renegade computer operator, the Los Angeles Times reported Monday.

"I'm upset, I'm real upset," said Joe Becker of Costa Mesa.

"I want to know how this happened. Financial information is private, and I have a right to privacy."

U.S. Secret Service agents supplied Ari Barton of Las Vegas with the customers' names, addresses, home phone numbers, Social Security numbers, credit card numbers, available credit lines and outstanding balances.

The computer operator went for the bait and has since pleaded guilty to charges of possession of stolen credit information.

The information did not stay concealed with the Secret Service. The detailed credit histories ended up with the defendant, his lawyers and anyone else who obtained a copy of the case file.

None of the cardholders gave permission for the files to be used.

A few of the cardholders would not part with their information was used in the sting when they learned a few weeks ago by the Los Angeles Times. The information on them was released three years ago.

CHICAGO

Gov. Evan Bayh, far from being a rival for the presidential nomination in 2000, will back Vice President Al Gore, Indiana delegates said Monday.

"He's said many times that he's very supportive of Gore," Indiana Democratic Chairman Joe Andrew said.

That surprised some party leaders in Kentucky, who had promoted their governor, Paul Patton, as keynote speaker for the Democratic National Convention. President Clinton instead gave the honor to the telegenic Bayh, who will make the address Tuesday night.

Bayh, upon arriving at the Democratic National Convention site Monday night, said he had not endorsed Gore, nor had he and the vice president specifically discussed his support for a Gore candidacy.

Bayh, noting he and Gore are close friends, said he would not run in 2000.

Kentucky Lt. Gov. Steve Henry said he had been led to believe Gore thought of Bayh as a potential rival in 2000, and that there was friction between them.

Andrew seemed surprised. "I think it unlikely the president and vice president would want to promote someone they viewed as not being supportive," he said.

As governor, Bayh has consistently supported the administration, Andrew said, and no deal was part of his selection as keynote speaker.

But Terry Mcbrayer, a Democratic National Committee member and former Kentucky Democratic chairman, also was surprised by such early expressions of Bayh's support of Gore.

Bayh's backing clearly makes Gore the front runner for the nomination, Mcbrayer said.

Bayh is expected to run against U.S. Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., in 1998 and has raised $1.3 million for a Senate campaign.

Andrew said Republicans want voters to believe that Bayh is too young, too ambitious, and only wants Coats' seat as a stepping stone.

Aboard train, Clinton targets family abusers

ARLINGTON, Ohio

Charging toward Chicago with a trainload of fresh proposals, President Clinton demanded Monday that family abusers forfeit their right to bear arms. In a challenge to gun-control foes, he said, "Those who threaten the safety of others do not deserve our trust."

Surrounded by uniformed police, with his 13-car train as a backdrop, the president poked fun at congressional Republicans who he said "scared a lot of people" by warning that Clinton's gun-control efforts threaten hunters.

"I've never seen a deer hunter with an Uzi," Clinton said before boarding the "21st Century Express" in Columbus, Ohio, to continue his journey to Century Express "in Columbus, Ohio, to continue his journey to

HELENA, Mont.
Montana Highway Patrol officer Mitch Tuttle said he had heard stories of Cheap Discoveries cruising through the Canadian border at 87 mph.

Montana's daytime speed limit specifies only a "reasonable and prudent" speed for conditions. But with a sharp crosswind whipping across the highway, Tuttle had his doubts that the Chrysler's velocity was reasonable or prudent.

And when the car finally was pulled to the interstate shoulder, Tuttle heard a story he had heard before, from other indignant motorists:

"Montana has no speed limit!" cried Bill Mouwen of Calgary.

Patrol officers are finding many people don't understand an important fact about Montana's speed law: It may be imprecise - but it definitely exists.

"A lot have read that Montana has no speed limit," Tuttle said. "People think every day's a good day to drive fast."

In fact, Tuttle said, some days are just bad days for speed; the weather is one factor he considers in deciding whether a speed is "reasonable and prudent." Traffic, highway design, the age and condition of the car, even tire wear - they all can play into the decision.

If the trooper decides it's a violation, the fine can run from $70 to $500, many times the $20,000 typically imposed when Montana had federally mandated limits of 65 mph on interstate highways and 55 on two-lane routes.

Those tickets didn't go on a driver's record, either. The new ones do. Tuttle got only a warning ticket and a friendly talk about the law in Montana.

Fifteen Mercedes-Benz test drivers were not so lucky. They were issued $70 tickets in late July for driving about 100 mph in a convoy on Interstate 90 near Billings.

The planned nature of the speeding didn't sit well with some officials.

"I think it shows a real lack of respect, not only for the law in Montana, but for the rights and safety of Montana drivers and tourists from other states and countries," said Attorney General Joe Mazurek. "Even if these were professional drivers, not everyone else on the road was.

Col. Craig Reap, commander of the Highway Patrol, has received calls from a Corvette club and other groups asking if they could visit to drive fast.

One French tire maker wanted to run tests at 140 mph. "I told him that's not the concept," Reap said.

The state is trying to let people know about Montana's law in a $20,000 campaign with the keystone message: "Whoa, Dude." Using billboards, posters, fliers, bumper stickers and ads on TV and radio, it is aimed mainly at out-of-staters.

"I think that from the beginning, the citizen of Montana had a fair understanding of what this law was about," Reap said.

The reports I get are that the highest-speed vehicles are out-of-staters.

The figures do suggest speeding is up. Between March 1995 and March 1996, the Highway Patrol issued 3,094 warnings and 3,622 tickets for violation of the "reasonable and prudent" standard. During the same period in 1995, 487 warnings and 1,823 citations were issued.

Most people do not appear to be lead-footed. Traffic Safety Administrator Al Geke said that for 85 percent of the drivers in Montana, average speeds are about 75 mph on interstates and 65 mph on two-lane highways. That's only about 2 mph faster than under the old speed limits.

But among many of the other 15 percent are really rippin', Tuttle said care topping 100 mph, once seen four or five times a year, are fairly common.

Accidents are up, but they were already rising in 1995, when crashes totaled 58,000 and slightly more than 10,000 people were injured, Geke said. Fatalities are down slightly from last year.

Montana still has posted limits in and near towns, along highway construction zones and in some other locations. There are set nighttime limits of 65 mph on interstate streams and 55 mph on two-lane highways. Trucks are limited to 65 and 55, day and night.

Reap wants Montana to have a specified daytime speed limit as well, but he won't recommend a number until he can review summer traffic data. The final decision will be up to the Legislature, which convenes in January.

There will be opposition. Rep. Sonny Hanson, R-Billings, is a leading supporter of the current law.

With a few exceptions, Montana highways are not crowded, he said, and he believes people should be able to cover the state's vast distances quickly, if they can do it safely.

"I think the basic rule (reasonable and prudent) works great," said the legislator, an engineer who said he drives his Buick Riviera between 85 and 90 mph on interstates.

For his part, Tuttle said he finds himself spending a lot more time in court. People are more inclined to challenge their tickets, he said, and that takes officers off the road so they can defend the citations before a judge.

"I think the operation should improve her appearance 300 percent," said Dr. Adrian Lo of St. Christopher's Hospital.

PHILADELPHIA
Children in her native Puerto Rico would run away screaming from 2-year-old Abys DeJesus. Adults would often stare and mutter at the toddler with the black of dense brown hair over her nose and half her face.

Abys faced a life of isolation, as well as the possibility of an early death. Her condition, known as congenital hairy nevus, is potentially fatal.

But a Philadelphia pediatric surgeon says a three-month procedure scheduled to begin today could leave the girl nearly unscarred, and virtually remove the risk that the furred patch may develop into a highly dangerous form of skin cancer.

"The operation should improve her appearance 300 percent," said Dr. Adrian Lo of St. Christopher's Hospital.

The surgeon plans to insert balloon-like implants into Abys' forehead, cheek, nape, and neck — five in all — and gradually expand them with saline solution. Lo has used the technique on other reconstructive surgeries, but nothing this extensive.
Mexico steps up opposition to U.S. blockade of Cuba

By NICK ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY

Days before a Clinton administration official's visit to defend the policy, President Ernesto Zedillo stepped up his attacks on a U.S. measure aimed at broadening its economic blockade of Cuba.

In a television interview Sunday, Zedillo made clear Mexico was unlikely to budge in its opposition to the Helms-Burton Act, saying the measure is "simply a violation of international law."

He cited a recently released legal opinion from the Organization of American States. The organization said that the measure "is not in conformity with international law."

Zedillo said the OAS decision was "a clear triumph" of Mexican diplomacy.

The law seeks to punish companies that do business in Cuba using property confiscated from Americans after Cuban leader Fidel Castro took power in 1959.

The United States and its trading partners, however, are divided on the issue. Canada, European nations and Mexico still have "unshakeable policy" of friendship and bilateral cooperation with Cuba when they meet Wednesday with Zedillo.

Aware of the growing opposition, Clinton assigned Commerce Undersecretary Stuart Eizenstat to lead a new effort to try to persuade countries critical of his Cuba policy to collaborate with U.S. efforts to promote democracy on the island.

Eizenstat is scheduled to arrive here Tuesday to promote the U.S. policy. In a statement Monday, the Mexican Foreign Ministry said officials would reiterate their "unshakeable policy," or friendship and bilateral cooperation with Cuba when they meet Wednesday with Zedillo.

Clinton signed Helms-Burton into law in March after the Cuban military shot down two civilian aircraft flown offshore by a group opposed to Communist President Fidel Castro.

The act allows lawsuits in U.S. courts against foreigners who use property seized by Castro's government from U.S. companies or citizens, including people who were Cuban citizens at the time of the confiscation.

It also bans executives of companies investing in such property from the United States.

The United States has warned Grupo Domus of Mexico that it faces sanctions for investments in the Cuban phone system seized from international Telephone and Telegraph.

Mexican companies are among the largest foreign investors in Cuba.

Mother Teresa spends 86th birthday in hospital

By ASHOK SHARMA
Associated Press Writer

CALCUTTA, India

Mother Teresa spent her 86th birthday today in a hospital bed, hooked up to machines and surrounded by doctors treating her for a lung infection and a failing heart.

Doctors have cut in half her dose of penicillin, which has caused her heart to fail three times since Thursday.

The Nobel Peace Prize laureate has been battling illnesses for years. She suffered a heart attack in 1983 during a meeting with Pope John Paul II in Rome. In 1989, a second, stronger heart attack left her with a pacemaker.

The Associated Press, who has inspired millions with her mix of piety, frugality and selfless service to the poor and the ailing, was 77.

Lanusse underwent surgery last week to remove a blood clot near his brain after suffering a fall at his home, doctors said. Lanusse called the law a violation of their sovereignty and say they may retaliate.

Lanusse, a tall, grey-haired man, became Argentina's third military president in five years when he seized power in a bloodless coup in March 1971 against another general, Roberto Levingston.

Lanusse altered the anti-communist stance of his military predecessors by re-establishing diplomatic ties with China and by meeting with Chile's Marxist President Salvador Allende in July 1971.

His liberal approach disturbed right-wing officers who mounted an armed challenge in October 1971. Lanusse secured the backing of the navy and the air force, and the challenge to his rule collapsed.

In recent years, Lanusse was an outspoken critic of the government of President Carlos Menem.

He was briefly placed under house arrest in 1993 after accusing Menem of being "frivolous" and a "womanizer" in a magazine interview.

He is survived by nine children and his wife, Hiana. There was no immediate word on services.

American financier sentenced to 13 years

By ANITA SNOW
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY
Fugitive financier Robert Vesco, who evaded American authorities during decades on the run, was sentenced to 13 years in prison Monday after a Cuban court convicted him of economic crimes against the state.

Vesco, a Detroit native who became one of America's most prominent fugitives from justice, was found guilty of producing and marketing a cancer and arthritis drug without the drug's approval in Cuba, "so our enemies wouldn't get it and register it first," his lawyer said.

Vesco's lawyer presented only a handful of witnesses during the trial during the first week of August. He argued that the evidence was weak, and said Vesco had always acted in good faith in hopes of aiding Cuba's ailing economy.

Prosecutors presented deposition from 31 foreign investors who said they gave Vesco money to invest in a corporation that would market the drug — on the understanding that Cuba had approved the project.

Among the 30-odd witnesses who testified for the prosecution was Jose Antonio Fraga Castro, a former Fidel Castro's nephew. Fraga Castro was director of the laboratory testing the drug.

Vesco was wanted in the United States on various charges, including making an illegal $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. A 1989 U.S. indictment accuses Vesco of using Cuba as a base for drug trafficking.

Vesco had faced up to 20 years in prison on the charges against him. He and his wife have 10 days to appeal to the Cuban Supreme Popular Tribunal.

Helsinki, Finland
Hundreds of online chess brains tried to unite, but Russian world champion Anatoly Karpov made mincemeat of them in the first open chess game on the Internet.

Monday's match went 65 moves and took 4 1/2 hours, with Karpov playing black and consistently playing white. White moves came from suggestions sent in over the Internet, with the most frequently proposed move chosen by a computer.

Internet users, who had seven minutes to propose an opening, chose the king's pawn (e2-e4). Karpov countered in two seconds with the Caro-Kann (c7-c5).

As many as 300 players submitted suggestions to the worldwide computer network for the moves. The game ended when white would have had to sacrifice its queen to avoid an immediate checkmate threat. "It was a good game," Karpov said. "They were serious players."

Karpov played his side of the game in a dimly lit hall at the Hotel Intercontinental in the Finnish capital. The game was reproduced on a large white screen, computer monitors and boards arranged on tables for chess buffs who paid $6.60 to sit in the same room as Karpov. Karpov's request, organizers said, was the game by cutting the time limit for each move from 10 minutes to seven minutes.

Last month, Karpov retained the title of world chess championship title by beating challenger Gata Kamsky.

"I'm looking forward to more games," he said. "For me, it was the best possible birthday gift."

"This is not the last game," Vesco's lawyer added. "We will take this to the courts in the United States, where I am alive because they gave me haven.

Vesco is wanted in the United States on various charges, including making an illegal $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. A 1989 U.S. indictment accuses Vesco of using Cuba as a base for drug trafficking.

Vesco had faced up to 20 years in prison on the charges against him. He and his wife have 10 days to appeal to the Cuban Supreme Popular Tribunal.

Police arrested a 10th suspect in a child pornography ring blamed for the disappearances and deaths of young girls. Pierre Rochow, the son of a successful Belgian lawyer, was arrested Monday for the theft of a child, a suspect who landed the main suspect Marc Dutroux into preventive custody in March.

Belgians were shocked to learn that Dutroux, a 28-year-old convicted pedophile, was arrested and released while he was holding two 8-year-old girls in a dungeon. The two girls subsequently died.

Starting fresh

Last year, there are those of you who might have known me as the Antagonist, the rabble-rouser, or even the "wierdo." Well, no more. Yes, I've journeyed to the Emerald Isle from the Graduate School; pay me a visit and enjoy the drive along Interstate 100. It'll be a lot like the UP Mall, only harder to find. For one thing, no one's put sidewalks over all these new sidewalks, we might be forced to look at the concrete and blacktop! Imagine, if it weren't for all these new sidewalks, we might be forced to look at the beautiful DeBartolo Hall! Now it looks just like the UP Mall! If only I could have come to campus on a bi-weekly basis. Receive more enlightenment at the Observer.

Dear Notre Dame Students:

I would like to extend to you a warm welcome on behalf of all of us who work in the Division of Student Affairs — the offices of Residence Life, Security, Student Residences, Alcohol and Drug Education, Student Activities, International Student Affairs, Multicultural Student Affairs, Counseling Center, Career and Placement Services, Health Services, Campus Ministry and the staffs of your residence halls. Although we provide a variety of services, we share a common desire to see what we can do to help facilitate your intellectual, spiritual and personal growth in your lives outside the classroom.

We welcome back the sophomores, juniors and seniors, as well as the returning graduate and professional students. We extend a special welcome to all the freshmen.

Come to our open house on Thursday, September 12th, from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. in DeBartolo Hall. It's a great way to start the year out right.

The Faces of Change

By ASHLEIGH THOMPSON

A beautiful thing that many of us have come to expect from Notre Dame is the fact that nothing really changes. In the same vein as our infamous tradition runs this consistency, and while some students find this life monotonous, its dependable, year after year, to look around campus and remember the atractive, remiiscentalumini, this constancy. And while our infamous tradition runs a changes. In the same vein as an eight month absence would be easy to handle, but after a challenging semester in Chile, my taxi ride on to campus could have easily been my first visit to Notre Dame. I quickly noticed the football stadium was a different shape and color. Just-finished roads that muck in the shadow of a hulking white mass that looks more like a modern Kmart blue-light special Stadium-in-A-Kit. Of course, the new stadium is not finished yet, and once the outside bricks are placed and the sidewalks and landscaping completed, it will once again fit in with the. But it will no longer be the House That Rockne Built. At least not on the outside.

In the past, students have been able to return to campus to find a new sidewalk or two across what was once the worn-down grass of North or West Quad. This year, there are no new pathways excusing, of course, the new system of sidewalks on West Quad but one parking lot and a poorly-constructed high-volume route to class have been improved for the year. The lot next to St. Michael's Laundry Distribution Center is a better stop. The sidewalks by O'Shaughnessy—which used to flood like the shores of the Mississippi during the spring thaw—have been repaved and should drain much better than ever before.

The physical changes to campus will affect the lives of those of us who will be spending the next year among the new surroundings and continuing construction. And down the road in the future, when we return for the games, the reunions, and the Parents' Weekends when we're the parents instead of the students, we'll finally be able to appreciate the new quads and buildings across Notre Dame's campus.

The Stadium, though, is the renovation that most people follow and make trips specifically to that corner of campus to check out the changes that have occurred. The familiar red-brick oval lies in the shadows of a hulking white mass that looks more like a modern Kmart blue-light special Stadium-in-A-Kit. Of course, the new stadium is not finished yet, and once the outside bricks are placed and the sidewalks and landscaping completed, it will once again fit in with the campus. Woods prepares to turn professional this week
By Ron Sirak

Tiger Woods has missed his last competitive round as an amateur golfer, an industry source told
The Associated Press.
Woods has decided to turn professional this week at the Greater Milwaukee Open, and several other sources said the 20-year-old Stanford student would remain amateur.
If Woods wants to play for money in this week's tournament, he must declare his intention when he registers or does not do so for the next season.
"It could be that in the next 48 hours he'll make a return to school," the industry source told the AP. "Right now, he has percent that that's what he will.

Indications from the United States Golf choose to maintain his amateur status, although the industry source said: "I think some of those people are in the dark.

Woods, who won an unprecedented third consecutive U.S. Amateur title Sunday, is the most heralded player to come out of the amateur ranks since Jack Nicklaus.

Chang struggles to defend lofty seeding

By STEVE WILSTEIN

NEW YORK

Michael Chang's dubious No. 2 seeding didn't make his first round any easier as the U.S. Open began Monday amid simmering anger over the draw, sweltering heat, and the strictest security in the tournament's 115-year history.

Chang, bumped up a spot ahead of No. 2-ranked Thomas Muster, struggled to a 3-6, 6-1, 6-0, 7-6 (8-6) victory over No. 186 Jaime Oncins in a match that made the seeding committee seem even sillier than it did during the unprecedented redraw last week.

Looking nothing like the second-best hardcourt player in the world, Chang very nearly faced a fifth-set showdown when Oncins won a disputed point to take a 6-4 lead in the tiebreaker. Chang lost the debate over the point, but it turned out not to matter much. Serving for the set, Oncins double-faulted, then dropped the next three points to lose the match.

Chang dodged that potential danger, and didn't avoid the controversy over his seeding. He said he had spoken with other players who objected to the departure from the ATP Tour rankings, even if it helped him in this tournament. Yevgeny Kafelnikov, seeded No. 4, replaced him in the draw.

"I do not feel they should have put me at No. 7," Chang said of the seeding. "I feel it's embarrassing what happened." Chang said. "I was about to fly home tomorrow. I was about to pull out yesterday and say, 'That's it.'"

Chang was upset at the seedings in general, and at the way officials first indicated he would replace Kafelnikov when he pulled out, then took that spot away and gave it to Felix Mantilla.

"They did it without notifying anybody," Stich said. "I felt it's so disrespectful to anybody playing in this tournament, that I felt I should have gone home. There are so many reasons for playing, especially spectators and the kids who come out here and want to enjoy watching tennis, that I decided to stay." Stich said he favored some change of heart, "maybe not show up today, start the tournament tomorrow to get a stronger message through."

Wimbledon finalist MalVai Washington, seeded No. 11, had just as much trouble as Chang and Stich before beating Moroccan Karim Alami 6-4, 2-6, 7-6 (7-5), 6-1. Washington then plays one of the hottest players on the tour, Alex O'Brien, who beat Nicolas Lapentti of Ecuador in four sets.

MacBride to defend

Jim Courier, runnerup in 1991 and a semifinalist in '92 and last year, was anxious because of a bruised left knee. He will be replaced in the draw by David Skoch of the Czech Republic.

The women's draw had none of the controversy the men had, but it lost three players on the first day.

No. 9 Mary Joe Fernandez withdrew because of tendinitis in her right wrist. She was replaced in the draw by Tina Kriyan of Slovakia.

No. 6 Anke Huber of Germany lost 6-1, 2-6, 6-2 to Amanda Coetzee of South Africa, and Bulgarian Magdalena Maleeva, No. 12, lost 6-4, 6-2 to Poland's Aleksandra Olba.

Ruslan Koutnikova, coach Nick Bollettieri's latest prodigy, won her first match in Grand Slam play. The 15-year-old beat Luthmila Richterova of the Czech Republic 7-6 (7-4), 6-3.

Three seeded women won in straight sets — No. 13 Brenda Schultz-McCarthy, No. 14 Barbara Paulus, and No. 15 Gabriela Sabatini, the 1990 champion who showed a bit of her old form in a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Patricia Hy-Boulais.

As court temperatures soared into the 90s, scoreboards flashed warnings to fans to stay in the shade and drink plenty of fluids to ward off heatstroke.

Several fans, who may not have heeded the warnings, fainted. Fans stood in long lines while guards inspected all bags — including the big tennis bags of the players — at entrances to the National Tennis Center.

HOUSTON

Willy McGee hit a two-run homer and the St. Louis Cardinals tightened the NL Central race Monday night with a 3-2 win over Houston in a game delayed 10 minutes when a fan fell onto the field.

McGee had just reached on an infield hit in the eighth inning when the fan appeared on the outfield on a stretcher.

The field condition was not known. The Astros remained one-half game ahead of St. Louis in the NL Central following a split of the four-game series 8-2, with three more games to be played in St. Louis next week.

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

Joe Carter homered, drove in two runs and scored twice as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Minnesota Twins 3-2 for their eighth win in nine games.

Juan Guzman (11-8), leading the AL with a 3.02 ERA, shut out the Twins on four hits until a seventh inning, when a couple of passed balls by catcher Julio Mosquera helped Minnesota score three runs.

Guzman struck out eight and walked none. Mike Timlin pitched the ninth for his 23rd save.

Carter ended a 21-game homerless drought with a two-run shot in the first. Shawn Green singled with one out and Carter hit his 72nd home run.

Carlos Delgado led off the second with his 21st home run, a drive into the second deck in left. Delgado went 3-for-4.

Carter and John Olerud hit consecutive doubles in the third for a 4-0 lead.

Ollie Nino's RBI single in the fourth chased Brad Radke (8-7) and gave the Blue Jays a 5-0 lead.

Marty Cordova opened the Twins seventh with a single, went to third on Greg Myers' double and scored on a passed ball.

Another passed ball made it 5-2, and Chuck Knoblauch added an RBI single.

Brewers 3, White Sox 2

CHICAGO

Marc Newfield, Jeff Cirillo and John Jaha each hit RBI doubles as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Chicago White Sox 3-2 Monday night.

Cal Eldred (2-2) gave up five hits, walked one and struck out three over 2 1-3 innings.

Eldred, who underwent elbow surgery in June 1995, threw 80 pitches in his 10th start since being activated from the disabled list July 14.

Doug Jones pitched the last 1 2-3 innings for his first save since joining the Brewers on July 29.

He gave up a double to Tony Phillips and walked Dave Martinez with two outs in the ninth, but retired pinch-hitter Lyle Munter on a liner to second for the final out.

The loss was the sixth in the last seven games for the White Sox, who started the day with a half-game lead over Baltimore in the wild-card race. The Brewers have won eight of their last 11 games. Wilson Alvarez (14-7) scattered nine hits over 7 1-3 innings.

The White Sox loaded the bases with none out in the eighth, and Tony Phillips scored from third on a wild pitch by Ron Villone. Villone then walked Robin Ventura and Harold Baines hit a sacrifice fly.

Jaha singled to lead off the Brewers' second and one out later Newfield hit a double to left. Acquired from San Diego for Greg Vaughan on July 31, Newfield also doubled leading off the fifth.

Fernando Vina singled in the eighth and scored on Cirillo's double into the left field corner. Jaha then doubled to make it 3-0.

Red Sox 4, Angels 1

ANAHEIM, Calif.

Tim Wakefield pitched a six-hitter and Mo Vaughn and Troy O'Leary homered as the Boston Red Sox beat the California Angels 4-1 Monday night for their 20th win in 26 games.

The Red Sox, who began the season 6-19, moved two games over .500 for the first time this year.

Wakefield (11-11) struck out five and walked one in his fifth complete game.

Andy Benes (14-9) overcame early wildness and pitched seven strong innings, striking out 10.

Dennis Eckersley worked the ninth for his 23rd save.

With the score 2-all, royce Clayton singled home Mike Gallo and then hit the game-winner when Jeff Bagwell, a double by Derek Bell and a walk to Derrick May. Benes escaped without allowing another run, getting Bill Spiers on a force play at the plate and retiring Orlando Miller on a liner that Clayton leaped to catch at shortstop.

Benes hit Bell with a pitch to start the third. Bell later scored on a single by Spiers. Benes allowed five hits and walked five.

Miller seeking more than just money

By HANK LOWENKRON
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS

NBA

The agent for free agent guard Reggie Miller says he and the Indiana Pacers are not significantly apart on the issue of salary for a new contract.

"The problem isn't money," agent Arn Tellem said Monday. "I'm sure we can come to an understanding on money."

Tellem and Miller both said the major stumbling block toward a settlement are the length of the contract and an "out option" the Pacers are seeking.

"We feel strongly that they don't need an out option," said Miller in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

"And Reggie definitely doesn't want to leave the Pacers. Money is not an issue. It's how it's paid."

"All Reggie wants to do is get this behind him and concentrate on beating the Chicago Bulls and winning a championship."

"I want to finish my career with the Pacers," said Miller, who has been with the NBA all nine of his NBA seasons.

"I want a five-year deal. The Pacers want to give me a two- or three-year deal. They want an out in the contract. I don't want an out."

"Donnie Walsh, the Pacers president who is negotiating the contract, said the Pacers were seeking to protect themselves against an injury to Miller by seeking the out clause."

"When you're talking about $9 to $10 million, the franchise has to have some protection," Walsh told The Indianapolis Star on Monday. "I have no feel for the negotiations. I really don't. I've dealt with Arnie a long time, but the process has not been clear to me."

"Walsh said he intended to talk with team owners Herb Simon and Mel Simon about a new contract offer."

"They don't need an out. Most athletes want to get paid while they're playing. We're not seeking the big money that some other players have gotten. Reggie has been there for the Pacers, he's been an active party in the community, a model citizen, an NBA All-Star, an Olympic gold medalist. He's been a key to the marketing of the franchise," Tellem said.

"I'm sure this will be resolved."

"I'm frequently talking with Donnie and with Herb Simon about a new contract."

"I believe Marvin's presence will help me, not hurt me," said Dawkins, who has had 103 receptions for 1,526 yards and eight touchdowns over the past two seasons. "He's certainly another deep threat. The defense has to be aware of him, and that means less concentration on me."

"Dawkins hasn't been a primary target during the preseason, making only four receptions for 10 yards in the team's five exhibition outings. However, two of his catches resulted in touchdowns."

"Dawkins' preseason statistics don't mean a thing," said receiver coach Jimmy Robinson. "In the preseason, you try to do a lot of things, look at different players and different offensive options."

"Soan just hasn't been a primary target but with the season starting, I'm sure he'll play his usual prominent role in our attack."

"Dawkins echoes his coach's opinion."

Money is not an issue. It's how it's paid."

"I'm going into the season confident in my role, and confident in our passing attack," he said.

"We have a talented group of wide receivers and a quarterback in Jimmy Harbaugh who has proven he can deliver the ball to us."

"It's our job to run the routes and catch the ball. I look for our offense to be dangerous this season because of myself, Marvin, Aaron Bailey and Brian Stalline."

Men's Soccer

Irish fall to Marquette, 3-1

Notre Dame counts on freshman class for help

By BRIAN REINTHALER

Sports Writer

According to men's soccer coach Mike Berticelli, Notre Dame's class of 2000 "will make an immediate contribution" in the 1996 season. In light of the play in last night's 3-1 loss to Marquette at Alumni Field, the coach's words seem almost prophetic.

Freshman forward Andrew Aris registered the only Irish goal of the evening when he directed an airborne rebound past a sprawling Kevin Coates with a header. The opportunity was created when first year defender Alan Woods headed a corner kick on goal in second of twelve players to choose from for seven spots.

"The coach indicated that those positions will be determined by which players are healthy come Saturday," Berticelli explained. "There are eleven or twelve players to choose from for seven spots."

From the coach's perspective, there seems to be plenty of loose ends to tie up before then. "Marquette is a big, strong, and talented team," Berticelli acknowledged, "that is comparable to the teams we will face in the (Big East) conference this season."

Coupled with the outcome of last night's contest, Berticelli's comment appears to imply that the Irish are headed for another disappointing season. However, the team was not completely outplayed in a game that saw the Golden Eagles tally once against each of the three Irish goalkeepers who saw action. The blue and gold outshot Marquette 13-6 and displayed solid ball control throughout. As long as they can recover sufficiently from the injuries that plagued them during the exhibition schedule, the Irish will be confident and ready to go when they arrive in Providence for Saturday's opener.

...son. At the close of the year, a series of cumulative events led to his departure.

"He had mentioned transfer from time to time during his freshman year so it wasn't a total surprise," MacLeod said. Still, the news caught MacLeod somewhat off guard.

"It was a bit of a surprise," MacLeod added. "It was not out of the blue though, because he had mentioned it before.

Gottlieb knows the consequences of his decision, but believes he was acting in the best interests of his athletic future. "I'm leaving a lot behind, but it's just the way things work sometimes," he said. "I'll miss student life and the camaraderie on the team, but sometimes you just have to move on."

The sophomore-to-be will be moving on for two major reasons. Gottlieb never quite made the transition to living so far away from California. In addition, Gottlieb thought some aspects of the Irish style did not mesh with his ability to pass and lead the fast break. "It wasn't really one big thing," he said. "I had some difficulty being away from home. There were also certain things about the way we played that were a factor."

"He expressed a concern to go back and be close to home," MacLeod said. Eventually, the feeling of being homesick might have won away, but the feeling that Gottlieb belonged in a Notre Dame uniform could not be reconciled.

"The things I do best are in the open court," he said. "I really want to play in an up-tempo program and play with some athletes. It's nothing against the guys there. They're going to have a good team this year. But I hope to be the focal point of the offense. Not that I have to go out and score 20 points a night to be happy, but somewhere I can make a lot of things happen."

With Gottlieb's transfer, incoming freshman David Lalazarian is now forced to play without his former high school teammate. "I don't really know why he did it," Lalazarian said. "He told me he was thinking about it for a while. He's got to do what's best for him and all I can do is wish him the best." As for this year, Gottlieb will practice with the junior college team while taking recruiting trips to various schools. As of Sunday, Gottlieb had lined up visits to UCLA, Cincinnati, Alabama, and South Florida. Gottlieb departs, hoping to make more of a contribution at a school than he has at Notre Dame. "How could you not feel good about having been at a place like Notre Dame," Gottlieb said. "Leaving it behind is tough, but I still feel like a part of it is still there."

Lalazarian and others still wish all of him was still here.

Bell, were part of a prized Irish recruiting class last year and Gottlieb proved to be at the head of that class.

At least last year he did.
One can only think he would have gotten better.
Unfortunately, that progress will now have to be monitored by the Irish fans who enjoy viewing the glass as half empty.

The others will just write it off as one that got away and moved on. That's what Gottlieb said he had to do. Still, it's necessary to give the student body who show up at the games the proper time to mourn.

So if you're walking down the quad on the eve of Midnight Madness and the Irish faithful are holding a candlelight vigil with the No. 44 in the middle, light one yourself and then promptly call security.

All right, Doug Gottlieb was not the person who was going to save Notre Dame basketball. You've got to shoot above 34 percent before being annointed savior. Gottlieb was also somewhat arrogant. Anyone who said the best part about Notre Dame joining the Big East was that all the girls on the east coast could see him play can be labeled as a little cocky.

Nothing, however, can compare to those California girls in Gottlieb's mind. Citing an affinity for being at home and a desire to play in a more west coast oriented offense, Gottlieb headed for what he thinks are greener pastures.

It doesn't matter if Gottlieb's father, who is rumored to have been a major influence in this decision, put this idea in his head or if it was truly Gottlieb's decision. The only thing that matters is that the basketball program has to now absorb another blow.

Listening to the obscure reasons the transfer occurred, you can only wonder if something could have prevented it. And wondering is all you can do. Doug Gottlieb can go to wherever school he wants to. You just have to wish him the best and hope he finds what he's looking for.

For reasons that aren't very clear, he wasn't able to locate it at Notre Dame.

He says he will miss the school a bit, but obviously the grief must be bearable.

One aspect Gottlieb brought to Notre Dame basketball was excitement.

During one home game last year, the JACC crowd looked off a defender for a second, probably 1096.

Problem is, that return will mean he's leading another team down the court on the break. Maybe his personality was a bit brash and maybe he had no touch from the free throw line, but the fact remains that Notre Dame was a better basketball team with Doug Gottlieb on it.

One aspect Gottlieb brought to Notre Dame basketball was excitement. During one home game last year, the JACC crowd was in its usual dormant state until Gottlieb went to work.

After receiving an outlet pass, Gottlieb took the ball down court, looked off a defender and proceeded to throw a perfect lob pass to Pat Garrity. The thunderous slam brought the crowd out of their seats and for a second, probably had Gottlieb believing he did belong here.

Guess there just weren't enough of those plays for him to stay.

Other Irish guards have the ability to step up and now must in Gottlieb's absence.

It's fairly certain Notre Dame will rebound without Gottlieb. Basketball life will go on in South Bend. Maybe with a little less flavor, but it will go on.

This too shall pass. Just without Doug Gottlieb doing the passing anymore.

Potentially potent offense ready for Notre Dame

By TIM SHERMAN
Sports Editor

Never has a word with an optimist as a denotation as the word "potential" carried such negative connotation in the world of sports. In fact, being labeled with the phrase of "having potential" can often be quite dangerous. The denotation expresses only possible outcomes which typically promise the ability to grow and improve. However, all too often, the word has been coupled with the "failure to live up to potential." The extremely lofty expectations that often accompany someone with "potential" frequently make it impossible to achieve all that is expected.

And in as high of a profile program as Notre Dame football, potential is even more charged, as intense media and fan interest is a combustible combination.

Quarterback Ron Powlus is the opiate of the dream and downfall of "potential." The senior is already second on the Irish all-time list for touchdown passes (112 in Rick Mirer's 411 and has finished both of his seasons as starting quarterback with a top 20 national passing efficiency rating. Yet from nearly all accounts, including his own, his career has not lived up to its immense billing.

Yet he is not the only member of the Irish roster on offense with such a dilemma, he is just the most celebrated.

From Randy Kinder and Robert Farmer to Mike Doughty and Autry Denson, the Class of 1997, though few in number (15 remaining scholarship players) has been burdened for three years with hopes of only a perennial championship. Time is running out. In fact, the time frame has now been reduced to 17 games.

But the fact remains, there is still a chance. If the Irish are to be considered a "potential" team, they will need to fulfill their promise. At the epitome of the danger and potential, the word has been coupled with the "failure to live up to potential." The extremely lofty expectations that often accompany someone with "potential" frequently make it impossible to achieve all that is expected.

"Football is a team game. It's not a one-man show," Powlus said. "I just want to do whatever makes us win."

"We have a good team. We have the ability to want to play and win," Holtz said.

"I think we can go out and play twenty games," Powlus said. "It's our year to go."

And while Powlus and his classmates comprise the most important segment of that group (at least 7 offensive starters), the variables in the run for a national title are the underclassmen.

In particular, the sophomores including his own, his career has not lived up to its immense billing.

Yet he is not the only member of the Irish roster on offense with such a dilemma, he is just the most celebrated.

From Randy Kinder and Robert Farmer to Mike Doughty and Autry Denson, the Class of 1997, though few in number (15 remaining scholarship players) has been burdened for three years with hopes of only a perennial championship. Time is running out. In fact, the time frame has now been reduced to 17 games.

in Ohio. During the two seasons, she compiled a 23-5 record and captured two straight North Coast Athletic Conference titles.

“She is the best person we could have here to come and start the program,” said Pierce. “She knows the game well and knows what it takes to win. That is the kind of attitude that we needed as a young team without a lot of experience.”

As a player, Coyne guided the Ohio squad to the 1982 Midwest Regional championship and an eighth-place finish at AIAW National Lacrosse Championships. She first broke into the coaching ranks in 1987 when she served as an assistant coach at William Smith College in New York.

“Notre Dame was by far the most professional of the schools I interviewed with,” said Coyne. “The stature of the university along with people I met there were really impressive. That is what probably interested me the most.”

Coyne will meet with the players for the first time on Sunday. She is looking forward to the opportunity to work with the group that fought hard to bring varsity status to the sport.

“I really want to get to know them since they had to really struggle to attain what they did,” said Coyne. “The kids who stuck by the sport should get the first chance to show what they can do.”

Added Pierce, “We’ve heard that she’s tough, and that’s what we need here. We need some work on our skills and our attacking. She’s upbeat about coming in here, so that should help us in those areas.”

With the proper leadership in place, the new era has begun.

Good-bye Gottlieb

Starting point guard decides to transfer
By JOE VILLINSKI

The Notre Dame men's basketball team suffered a setback this past summer when point guard Doug Gottlieb transferred from the university.

Gottlieb told head coach John MacLeod in June of his final decision to leave the university after his freshman year. Gottlieb will now attend Golden West Junior College near his home in Tustin, California.

"At the end of the year, I sat down with coach (MacLeod) to see if I was happy," Gottlieb said from his home on Sunday. "I came to the decision that it would be better for me not to come back this year."

Last year, Gottlieb played the second most number of minutes behind forward Pat Garrity. While not a veritable scoring threat, Gottlieb possessed superb court vision as he finished fourth in the Big East in assists with 5.7 per game.

Despite a solid first year, Gottlieb had entertained thoughts of a transfer last season. He came to the decision that it would be better for him not to come back this year.

"I cam e to the decision that it would be better for me not to come back this year," Gottlieb said from his home on Sunday.

This past summer, Doug Gottlieb decided to pass on his next three years at Notre Dame. Of all the ones he threw last season, it was the last pass Irish fans wanted to see him make. It still remains to be seen if the official scorer credits Gottlieb with a turnover.

This whole scenario is frustrating because of the promise this freshman displayed last season. Gottlieb's court vision was uncanny and his skill to dish it off on the fast break went a long way in showing that the Irish could compete on the Big East level.

Gottlieb, along with Gary Garrity, had the last season of the prom ise this freshman could have had. His unassuming personality and skill to dish it off on the fast break went a long way in showing that the Irish could compete on the Big East level.

The Notre Dame basketball team will sorely miss point guard Doug Gottlieb, who led the squad with 5.7 assists per game. He will attend Golden West Junior College in California before deciding where to transfer.
