The University of Notre Dame has taken steps to correct a violation of the Clean Air Act by modifying the flared burners in the Notre Dame Power Plant. In January 1996, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) formally informed the University of those boilers that failed a series of stack tests conducted between February 1991 and July 1995. In addition, sulfur dioxide emissions were deemed excessive.

“We tested the boilers about three weeks ago, and they passed successfully," said Dennis Brown, assistant director of public relations at Notre Dame. Director of Public Relations Dennis Moore concurred. "In terms of emissions, they are in compliance with the regulations.

Both Moore and Brown allowed that this is only the first step in resolving the situation. "We are in the process of writing to the EPA, telling them how we view the situation and informing them of the modifications we’ve made,” explains Brown.

Frequent correspondences are standard protocol, Moore notes, despite the fact that emissions are currently at safe levels. "We’ve found an immediate solution. Whether this will be sufficient in the long term, the EPA will ultimately decide. We may recommend further adjustments.

EPA officials calculated that the stack emissions could have passed the charge limit by 400 tons of particle matter per year, with the sulfur dioxide emissions exceeding the limit by 500 tons per year. Moore reaffirmed an earlier statement that such a scenario would only have occurred if all boilers had been running at full capacity for the course of a year. "That is extremely unlikely," he said.

Brown was optimistic about the short-term solution for Campus View. "These things do take time," he said, but in the communicative process with the EPA. "However, any additional modifications that may be required don’t change the fact that right now, all the boilers are operating safely.

Saint Mary’s battles dining hall crowds

In the middle of the day, hungry students at Saint Mary’s may need to wait to twenty minutes just to enter the dining hall, let alone select food. Sit down, take your trays, and push your way through to the dining hall food, let alone select anything for the dining hall, let alone select food, sit down and eat. "People are forgetting that the dining hall is a common break for all students.

Off-campus housing cracks down on drinking

By HEATHER COCKS

The Fall 1996 semester has barely commenced, and already a number of off-campus parties have drawn the attention of both security guards and the police, who have not hesitated to break up activities in the apartments.

The events have left tenants pondering the all-important question: Can residents have parties?

Of course they can. Included in the Party Guidelines for Turtle Creek Apartments is a provision that tenants may throw parties, as long as it is not a loud party. This question embodies one of the great dilemmas for students who are deciding whether or not to move off-campus.

On paper, it sounds ideal: No parties, no rectors, no cures, and surely no restrictions. Off-campus apartment complexes do, however, have rules governing the parties, and the premises, and they are not just for show; they are enforced.

"We provide guidelines to all our tenants," said Turtle Creek Apartments. "The company that owns the building is in the process of just trying to protect its investment.

Though Hoffman maintains that she does not expect the police to come on campus from partying, "we will be a bit tougher when it comes to the noise level.

A clause in the list of guidelines requests that the volume of the music be monitored; if you cannot hear the person who is standing next to you, they ask you to turn it down. "That decibel level is fine in a small apartment, but not in a residential community," according to Hoffman.

The proposed list given to Campus View residents requests that "no alcohol is to be brought on to your party or to the courtyard," according to the Apartment Manager Julie Rodriguez noted. "People are forgetting their regulations. They are aware of our regulations, but their memories are getting short.

This could have been the catalyst for a memo that will reportedly be delivered today to all Campus View residents. The memo states that if a party has more than 10 attendees, it is considered sufficient provocation for the police to put an end to the gathering.

"We received no party guide­ lines, even though we’ve lived here since June," Ramunno stated. "We had louder parties than that one, and we were never notified of any problems or objections... no warnings. Suddenly we’re threatened with eviction."

Three years after Hawaii's Supreme Court all but declared the state's ban on gay marriages unconstitutional, the debate over whether to recognize homosexual unions returned to the courtroom today.

"A child raised by his or her biological parents has a better opportunity for development," said Deputy Attorney General Nick Eichler in his opening statement in the civil rights suit. "This is not a case of gay-bashing."

Dan Foley, attorney for the three gay couples who sued the state for denying them marriage licenses, countered that there's no way to prove a "policy is raised by same-sex parents would be any worse."

Today in Hawaii a law-abiding, taxpaying couple of the same sex cannot marry," Foley said. "A convicted murderer serving a term in prison can get married."

Music company silences "Dole Man"

WASHINGTON

The music company that owns "Soul Man" doesn't want the rhythm and blues hit turned into "Dole Man" and may seek damages to the tune of $100,000 per play by Bob Dole's campaigns. Rondor Music International Inc. has written Dole, complaining the Republican's campaign theme song, "Dole Man," violated its copyright to the 1967 song written by David Porter and Isaac Hayes for the duo Sam and Dave. "Dole Man" mimics the "Soul Man" refrain: "I'm a Dole man... I'm a Dole man."

The opportunity was played "Dole Man" at rallies for months, including the Republican National Convention in San Diego. Parodies are protected from copyright lawsuits but Mark Lee Ryan, vice president of business affairs for Rondor, said, "I don't think he's making fun of himself and I don't think he's making fun of the song."

In an Aug. 29 letter, which claimed unauthorized use of the tune is "tantamount to theft," Rondor set a Friday deadline for the Dole campaign to respond before the Los Angeles-based company takes action.

Cedat eliminates "unclean" reminder

DALLAS

An Air Force Academy cadet reportedly told police he killed a 16-year-old girl because their one-time fling was an "unclean act" that enraged his fiancee and threatened the "purity" of their relationship. The cadet, David Graham, is charged along with his fiancee, Diane Zamora, an 18-year-old midshipman at the U.S. Naval Academy, in the slaying of Diane Jones. The 16-year-old was found beaten with weights and shot Dec. 4 in Grantsville, Md.

Graham's defense attorney, John Hancock, said his client was also a victim of abuse. His mother, Linda Mitchell, said that the girls made up the story and Graham's lawyer said police coerced him into making the statement.

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

見積 of the case's being closely watched around the country. Because the U.S. Constitution requires states to recognize each other's gay marriages performed in Hawaii might well be recognized in other states as well.

In fact, the trial opened just as the U.S. Supreme Court touched off a political, religious and social furor when it said the state's ban on gay marriages is unconstitutional unless the government can show a compelling interest in keeping it.

Whatever the outcome of the trial in Circuit Court, the fight will return to the Supreme Court on appeal.

Movable feast: hoppers invade West

CARSON, N.D.

Dan Stewart planted corn and wheat. What he's ended up with is 700 acres of grasshoppers. On his farm south of Carson, an insect infestation of horror-movie proportions has left almost nothing growing. Fields are as bare as in winter. The garden is destroyed. The grasshoppers have even nibbled holes in the tomato plants. They're stripping the trees of foliage in a part of the country where trees are a precious commodity, and have already killed the pines. Neighbors say they've seen the insects eating dead rodents and snakes. In neighbor Russell Woodbury's "hopper field," grasshoppers have eaten every bit of the corn in the neighbor's field. "When they get hungry, they'll eat anything," said Tim Becker, a North Dakota State University extension agent for Grant County. The grasshoppers have multiplied thanks to "great egg-laying weather" — hot and dry, said Keith Wink. "This is the worst year ever for grasshoppers," Wink said. The University of Notre Dame has formed a new Office of Finance and University Budgeting, according to Scott C. Malpass, associate vice president for finance and the University's chief investment officer. Malpass announced the appointment of John A. Sejdinaj, formerly director of fixed income and cash management in the University's Investment Office as the first director of the finance and budgeting office.

"The increasing complexity of the University's $400 million operating budget, combined with ambitious academic and student life initiatives, requires a professionally staffed budget office to coordinate the collection and dissemination of financial information to academic and administrative departmentsm," Malpass said. "The Office of Finance and University Budgeting will play a critical role in the reengineering of budget processes and systems to better support the development of operating and capital budgets throughout the University.

"John's work in the Investment Office has been superb, and I know that he will continue to develop innovative and creative financial solutions in assisting the trustees and officers of the University in meeting institutional priorities."

Prior to joining the University in August 1994, Sejdinaj was a vice president with First Chicago Capital Markets, Inc., the investment banking subsidiary of First Chicago Corporation. In this capacity, he marketed and structured financing for educational, cultural and health-care clients throughout the Midwest.

A certified cash manager, he earned a bachelor's degree from Notre Dame in 1981 and a master's of business administration (MBA) in finance from DePaul University in 1984.

In conjunction with Sejdinaj's promotion, Malpass has made four other promotions and appointments in the Investment Office.

Donald H. Fehrs, formerly senior investment analyst, will replace Sejdinaj as an investment director responsible for fixed income investments and investments for a variety of special situations such as energy and commodities. Before joining the Investment Office staff in May 1995, Fehrs was an assistant professor of finance and business economics in Notre Dame's College of Business Administration.

Michael R. Ridenour, formerly senior investment analyst, has been promoted to an investment director with responsibility for real estate investments, an increasingly prominent part of the University's endowment portfolio. Ridenour was a sales associate with Coldwell Banker Commercial in Washington prior to coming to Notre Dame in July 1991.

Other promotions include two associate vice presidents with responsibility for fixed income investments. Fehrs will become the chief operating officer and budgeting office.

Malpass also announced the appointment of Scott C. Malpass, formerly director of fixed income and cash management in the University's Investment Office as the first director of the finance and budgeting office.

"The increasing complexity of the University's $400 million operating budget, combined with ambitious academic and student life initiatives, requires a professionally staffed budget office to coordinate the collection and dissemination of financial information to academic and administrative departments," Malpass said. Hoffman expressed concern about crowed size at Turtle Creek parties, stating, "When it's really big, you never know who is there and what they're doing. You're bound to get damage, as well as people gen-...rally doing what they shouldn't."

Both Turtle Creek and Campus View require that tenants be responsible for all guests, whether they know them personally or not. For this reason, Hoffman feels that "it is to their benefit that they restrict the crowds."

Jim Bellford, a student at Holy Cross College and a Turtle Creek resident, expressed little concern for noise and crowded parties on weekends. "During the week, if it's 10 people or less, it's fine, but if it's out in the breezeway and there are massive amounts of people, then it would become a prob-...lem," he clarified.

Both factors contributed to the break-up of a Campus View party this past weekend. "They're definitely coming down on parties right now," said Buhrfield. "Last weekend, the guard called the police, who broke up the party and reported it." The tenants responsible were given a warn-...ing, and it is unclear whether the University will become involved.

Noteworthy in its omission, the guidelines for Turtle Creek do not include a specific ban on underage drinking on the premises. Campus View regulations directly prohibit minors from consuming alcohol on the premises.

Hoffman stresses that residents of Turtle Creek adhere to the regulations, but she says they are "being a bit too strict," she said. "You have to work with your clientele. Serbs refuse Muslim return

By MORT ROSENBLUM

VISEGRAD

From her no-name little grill, Dragica Popovic keeps watch on a faded 16th-century stone bridge over the Drina. One day a few years ago, Muslims might come home.

"I just don't understand why the West didn't let them finish it off," Popovic said, her warm smile dissipating to a scowl. "Now we Serbs have to suffer."

After Saturday's elections, which are expected to legitimize new Bosnian governments drawn in blood over 3 1/2 years, she is not likely to see Muslims any time soon.

Visegrad, a vital Muslim crossroad since the Middle Ages, was among the first cities Serbs emptied by gunfire and flame, before "ethnic cleansing" became a household term.

When it fell, in the spring of 1992, refugees say hundreds of Muslims were taken to the Turkish-built span that Nobel laureate Ivo Andric immortalized in his historical novel "The Bridge on the Drina," and cut down by machine-gun fire.

In town, survivors said, Serbs burned 100 women and children in one building. Counting the dead and those missing nearly four years later, Visegrad Muslims say they look 2,000 of their number.

Serbs maintain they were committing the slaughter. But until the Dayton peace accord opened the border for them, restricted access to Visegrad and surrounding areas. By now, facts are hard to verify.

Over time, Serb refugees with their own horror stories moved into empty homes. Visegrad returned to its prewar population of nearly 30,000. Instead of 30 percent Serb, it is closer to 100 percent.

Three old mosques were obliterated so thoroughly that after another year of vegetation, only archaeologically-minded will be able to find traces.

The story is similar to the south in Foca and up north in the wealthy city of Bijeljina, across much of the Drina riverland that separates Serbia from Bosnia.

Because of Dayton, the road is clear from Visegrad to Gorazde, and nowhere just down the Drina that the Muslims fought fiercely to defend. But their worlds are so disparate that, with different suppliers, the cafes play different versions of the Macarena.

Farther north, Dayton has hardly penetrated. Entrenched

Bosnia-Herzegovina, one of the six republics in the former Yugoslav, is made up of two parts under the Dayton peace agreement. A look at Saturday's election in Bosnian.

The national government will have a three-member presidency consisting of a Croat, a Muslim and a Serb, with the one who gets the most votes in chairmanship. There will be a two-chamber legislature as appointed 15-member upper house divided equally among Muslims, Croats and Serbs and a lower house with 28 members from the federation and 14 from the Serb region.

ON THE BALLOT

In the Muslim-Croat Federation:

• Two members, Muslim and Croat, of the national presidency, to be chosen from eight candidates.
• 28 members of the national House of Representatives.
• Members of lower-level provincial assemblies.

In the Serb region:

• One Serb member of the national presidency, to be chosen from eight candidates.
• 14 members of the national House of Representatives.
• Serb republic president.
• 140-seat Serb republic assembly.

Russian soldiers of the international peace force search all cars between Muslim-held Tuzla and Bijeljina, and carefully check the papers of anyone who wants to pass.

Among Serbs, the mood is clear from Popovic's grill. Refugees identify their status by landmarks where so many deals were negotiated.

She is in a "Dayton," meaning she fled lizda, near Sarajevo, this year after it passed to Muslim-Croat control. Her bearded friend, Bohan, is a "Dayton." He left Goražde in 1992 after talks ended the first day of the war.

There are also locals: Dusan Korac, 34, helped seize the area in 1992. In September of that year, he took a sniper bullet in the hip and fell on two mice, losing his left leg.

Clinton counterattacks

Dole on family leave law

By RON FOURSNER

KANSAS CITY

Trying to outflank Bob Dole in the family values issue, Senate President Clinton criticized his GOP rival Tuesday for voting against a heart-tugging TV ad portraying Dole's opposition as callous.

"I think the people who have opposed us have been proved wrong," Clinton declared.

In Tennessee, Dole reiterated that Clinton's idea of caring about families was to "have the long arm of the government reach out to touch everybody," as Clinton put it.

Clinton is eyeing the federal law, allowing people to take unpaid leave to care for a loved one or other relative.

"We care about kids. We care about families. We don't think government ought to be involved," said a House of Dole.

"Today he's off somewhere saying we're not sensitive about families and we don't care about families. His idea of caring about families is to 'have the long arm of the government reach out to touch everybody,'" Clinton declared.

Russia's soldiers of the international peace force check all cars between Muslim-held Tuzla and Bijeljina, and carefully check the papers of anyone who wants to pass.

The 1993 Family and Medical Leave Act allows people to take unpaid leave from work to care for an ill child or other relative. The law, one of the first acts of the Clinton presidency, is considered widely popular by White House pollsters -- particularly among women and young middle-class families.

Clinton's political team reacted quickly after Dole said last weekend that the act raised questions about government intrusion. A hastily produced Clinton ad, which began airing Tuesday, features a real-life mother and father from Texas who were able to spend extra time with their terminally ill daughter.

Dole, the ad says, "led a six-year fight" against the law that allowed the couple to be with their daughter until the end.

"Twelve million have used 'leave,' but Dole's still against it," the ad says.

Aides said the ad, running in battleground states, was being aired only in the daytime -- a tactic aimed at female voters. Dole is running far behind in the old casinos, where a trend he must change if he is to win.

"Look at the evidence," Clinton told reporters Tuesday.

"Twelve million people have taken a little time off while the father was sick and ... the American economy has been growing like crazy since we took over the family medical leave law.

Saddam offers amnesty to keep Kurds at home

By BRIAN MURPHY
Associated Press Writer

SULAYMANIYAH

Saddam Hussein wasted no time Tuesday in reassuring control of the north of his country after the collapse of a U.S.-declared "safe haven," lifting trade and travel barriers that had stod since the Gulf War.

Saddam's Kurdish allies flouted their new authority over this northeastern city, parading through the streets and housing the headquarters of their vanquished rivals for trophies — even toilet seats and light bulbs.

Tens of thousands of Kurds fled Sulaymaniyah for the rugged hills of nearby Iran after the Baghdad-backed Kurdistan Democratic Party rolled into the city on Monday night.

U.N. officials estimated up to 300,000 Kurds might have left, but many refugees started returning home Tuesday by truck and taxi and on foot, reassured by news that Saddam's troops had not entered the city

Saddam sought to discourage an exodus, declaring a general amnesty for all Kurds and lifting travel and trade restrictions between Iraq and the northern semi-autonomous Kurdish areas imposed at the end of the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

The full ramifications of the announcement were not immediately clear. But Saddam and his Kurdish allies clearly had effectively eliminated the Kurdish "safe haven" established by U.S.-led forces five years ago.

A State Department spokesman ridiculed Saddam's amnesty offer, saying past treachery made the gesture "laughable, almost comical."

"He gave a pardon to his son-in-law and then had him executed," Nicholas Burns said in Washington. "He tried to make up with the Iraqis Kurds five years ago and then tried to destroy them."

The latest fighting in northern Iraq began Aug. 31, when the Iraqi army and the Kurdish Democratic Party teamed up to capture Irbil, the de facto Kurdish capital in the north.

U.S. missile strikes against southern Iraq last week seemed to deter the Iraqi army from taking part in further fighting, although Burns said Iraqi intelligence, military and security advisers apparently continued to aid the KDP. With Iraqi forces marching behind the KDP, the faction has easily defeated its Kurdish rival, the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan.

In addition to launching missiles against Iraqi military installations, the U.S. and allied nations expanded the so-called "no-fly zone" in southern Iraq.

Saddam retorted not only by ordering his forces to shoot down aircraft but also by ordering his forces to shoot down aircraft but also by ordering his forces to shoot down aircraft at U.S. and allied aircraft. Iraq claimed Tuesday it fired three surface-to-air missiles at allied aircraft over the no-fly zone, but no hits were reported.

It was the fourth time in five days Iraq has reported shooting at warplanes over the zone.

In Sulaymaniyah, Iraqi troops were nowhere in sight Tuesday as the KDP celebrated its sweeping victory with an impromptu parade. Fighters carrying AK-47 rifles rode through the streets in pickup trucks decorated with yellow flags and streamers.

It's a thriving community with the social, cultural and recreational activities afforded by two universities.

You must be tired. Surely there is a football article for the horoscope somewhere, where you can immerse yourself in. Do you actually want to think? I didn't think so. Turn the pages now. Flip back to that comfy world of Dilbert or find out what you'll be whipping up over at your very old Dining Hall tonight. Sink back in your chair. Plug down in your couch. Relax—you're just a college kid.

Oh, the glory or ER, Sega and Papa John's

So you're still with me. You must want to know something. Perchance you're looking for a popular point of view or an original idea worth repeating. My advice is look somewhere else. But if you really have nothing else to do, perhaps I could share something ramble on about for another 967 words.

You may be curious which causes and the such. Well no time to waste your time worrying about what you might actually think. Why would I write a column without even a bit of mentioning the brilliant and beautiful world of Notre Dame's student community and to all readers. The free expression of varying opinions through letters is encouraged.

I'll embrace on this allotted page of time nor the energy to spend on your drink, must sleep, must study, must eat, must drink... where the hell was I? Oh ye-causes and the such. The well no time for that—have to study, sleep. You're safe in this column—no thinking here. Our closed minds and unyielding attitudes will go unmentioned as long as I'm at the keyboard. Read on, relax, save your brain for those text books. Concentrate on what all those wise men in those pages have to tell you. Don't waste your time worrying about what you might actually think. Why would I want to rock the boat? If you've got a problem with our little Notre Dame student, get your own column. I'm not going to be another Cassandra columnist, another whining voice of reason. This column is going to reach out to the real Notre Dame student because this column could care less. I don't have the conviction or concern for a fiery discourse on "intolerant" or "closed-minded" students. We've heard it all before. Remember that article last week about a gay student who felt that people at this school were, uh, something about intolerant and, um, un-Christian or something. Yes, I didn't finish either. No time for that. We've heard it all before. Haven't we?

And I am just sick of all this we drink too much/we have the right to drink maybe. My head hurts too much to give any temperature debate a second of time. I'll just sit here on my couch with a tall glass of water—God my head hurts. I can't believe I drank that much last night.

And I'm not going to berate you for your lame school spirit. You won't hear me whining that "there are more sports at Notre Dame than football." I say once those sports start winning moral championships, then I'll start cheering. Oh, women's soccer won one of those you say? I seem to vaguely recall a headline about that last year, next to the article about that football recruit with the 4.37 speed and a 42.92 vert (see—I pay attention to what's the real Notre Dame). Those other sports just don't count. You just don't get football.

You can get hammered for 48 hours straight because of a soccer game? I once drank 100 beers over the course of a Notre Dame football weekend—and they say we've got no school spirit.

And if I hear another thing about "gender relations at Notre Dame" my head might explode. Same sex housing, co-ed housing, desegregation, lack of sensitivity, random sexual encounters, bla, bla, and bla. Another issue to on. So what that parietals turn the opposite sex into forbidden fruit? So what that we don't have any means of interacting with women except getting completely inebriated and slobering all over them? So what that the dining hall looks like a "gender relations at Notre Dame" my head might explode. Same sex housing, co-ed housing, desegregation, lack of sensitivity, random sexual encounters, bla, bla, and bla. Another issue to on. So what that parietals turn the opposite sex into forbidden fruit? So what that we don't have any means of interacting with women except getting completely inebriated and slobering all over them? So what that the dining hall looks like a fourth grade lunch room, boys here, girls over there? So what that "Our Lady's" University, by keeping us sexually segregated, tries to legislate morality instead of fostering understanding and respect? None of this is going to get me off my couch. I'm quite comfortable right here. We're on and afterwards we're all going over to Bridget's to try and get some. And that Pandora's box known as "race relations" surely won't be opened in this column. White devils, Christopher Columbus, multiculturalism, interracial this and that and the other— if that stuff doesn't make you turn the page I don't know what will. We all get along fine here—what's the big worry?

So what that our student body is about as diverse as the Republican convention? So what that our college experience, a time that is supposed to open our eyes to different cultures and creeds, has been a time where most of us have been blinded by traditional, conservative white values? So what that my roommate was harassed incessantly for being a "black girlfriend"? So what that most white Notre Dame students can count their non-white friends on one hand? What are we supposed to do about it? Don't look at me—I just go right there.

Go ahead and call me apathetic. I'll tell you I don't care. I am Mr. Notre Dame student. I am Mr. grades, activities, internships—and my friends—Mr. too busy for anything I can't fit on my resume. Learn, don't think. Answer, don't question. Save yourself the headache and just sit yourself right down next to me on the couch here. Need a cold one? Let's sit here and marvel at the glory of Sega and Papa John's. Do something not prescribed in the syllabus of Notre Dame Student Life 101? I don't think so. We've got no class tomorrow—must sleep, must eat, must study...

R. Thomas Coyne is a senior arts and letters major.
Dear Editor,

Three weeks into the new academic year at Notre Dame, settling into habits of study and time management that are hard to break, I began to come to terms with the fact that I am on my way to becoming an ordinary person. That is, the kind who can return the book to the library; realize the coffee maker is broken; and settle into habits of study and the time management that are hard to break.

First year students still struggle with homesickness even as they are, in their own way, following in the footsteps of the Jesuits who can get over a real sense of loss and even grief because of the presence of a little brother or sister, or even their parents, in the midst of their formerly comfortable daily life and routine. But even then, it has told them that their classmates meet during their first weeks on the campus will be the people who will serve in their bridal parties, attend their wedding, live in the priesthood, and serve as godparents for their children. It seems likely that this will indeed be the case.

Of the many American cities that are known for their beauty, they pass on the sidewalks on the quads and greet the stars in the sky. It is a place quickly and nervously to see without your dog, so there is a hint of magnitude. It is a place whose street names like Harrison or DeBartolo are not a place to get lost, but instead, to find your way and feel that you have arrived in a city whose street names like Harrison or DeBartolo are a place to get lost, but instead, to find your way and feel that you have arrived for the first time in the full meaning of a great cheer that has deep roots and importance. The full meaning of a great cheer that has deep roots and importance.

Thousands of students recently attended Activities Night at the Joyce Center — hours before they camped out in front of the stadium for the home game. With tickets for securing great seats to stand in the stands, buying half of the six home football games and thousands of students making their way on the ways they would serve our community through volunteer services.

Many dozens of exciting volunteer possibilities have been reduced in size. New opportunities have arisen and accepted a commitment to service during undergraduate.

"This weekend — our first home football weekend — we will chant that "We are ND" in "the House that Rockne built" as the new stadium proclaims with such simple, understated class."

I have been unable to get anything for the first time in the full meaning of a great cheer that has deep roots and importance.

There is no doubt in my mind that this "discovery"—if ultimately validated—ranks among the most significant events in human history, though, of course, the discovery is a war, revolution or technological breakthrough that will affect our society more than the most profound scientific discovery of all time.

On a personal level, I felt that there was an opportunity to see the release of the first serious evidence for the existence of extraterrestrial life is a slowly emerging reality. It could truly be the greatest scientific discovery of all time.

Looking for life in all the right places

When I was nine years old I drew a crayon picture of a Time Magazine cover featuring a goat-eyed tentacle armed alien life form under the headline "Life on Uranus." I do not remember ever realizing that I was the first to imagine it. I also do not remember ever realizing that I was the first to imagine it.

Eighty years have passed since the discovery of life on Uranus. What has it taught us about the human condition? Could it be, then, that the full meaning of a great cheer that has deep roots and importance.

While it seems unlikely that any of us will be around to see mankind encounter another sentient species, the confirmation of the existence of non-terrrestrial life on other planets would be a landmark achievement. Our terrible collective burden of being the only ones with life in the vastness of the universe will be lifted and the brilliance of the underlying architecture of the cosmos again demonstrated.

It happens all the time. You’re just going to look, right? The temptation, however, is too great. One must sort through the plethora of choices to achieve monumental happiness at finding the exact “one” (for two or three, etc.). Compact Disc shopping has become a dangerous mission and the goal is...don't blow all of your life savings.

The entire process of CD buying is such an addiction. You hear a song and you must have it. Yet, you put it off, hoping your roommate will get it and your roommate doesn’t. So, your cravings to possess the CD for that one incredible song grow at you until you break down, go to Meijer’s at 2:00 a.m. and leave with two CD’s other than the one you went to get. (I’m not the only CD junkie out there, am I?) You thought you were getting a pretty good deal, considering that you were going to buy it anyway and you just couldn’t wait any longer.

Why settle, however, for just a “pretty good” deal, when the “best” deals are relatively easy to find? I mean, you went ahead and bought the “pretty good” deal, when you could have saved three or four dollars on the best deal, which couldn't have gotten you that much closer to your next CD? Right?

Okay, so, where does one even begin in attempting to discover the "best" buys? Well, recently, I set out on a CD Safari expedition, hot on the trail of some of the best deals, the coolest atmosphere, and the most helpful employees. Here is what I found.

Is the price

new album soon. You could be one of the first to hear it.

Blockbuster Music is also the home to the Ticketmaster outlet. It has an assortment of posters and magazines. Everything is organized in sections according to all the different types of music, so you won’t get lost. This was also a fun, laid-back atmosphere, so there is no rush. Overall, this was a hot spot for best buys and blockbuster bonuses.

MEDIA PLAY

My next stop was Media Play. It is conveniently located at 5514 Grape Road. I was extremely excited because not only does media play have music, but it also houses a wide variety of books, movies, software, magazines, T-shirts, and even food. The Cafe definitely gets two thumbs up. It has a relaxing atmosphere, tasty snacks, and even a cafe kids. You could be one of the first to hear it.

Blockbuster Music definitely has some of the better buys. Perhaps the best investments are the appropriately named Blockbuster Bargains for $11.99. The older stuff is always on sale for around $7.99.

Moreover, aside from the popular prices, Blockbuster offers a number of other unique services for its customers. For example, Mark Orlando, the assistant manager, told me about the sneak previews which are exclusive to the chain. In fact, it was just yesterday that the new much-anticipated R.E.M. album came out, so Monday night some lucky patrons got a "sneak peak" at this soon-to-be-top seller. A lot of new albums for preview will be coming in at random times, so watch the advertisements if you are expecting a favorite band to be coming out with a

When you want bl... where do you

The Observer/Rachel Sederburg

You walk in and know instantly that whatever CD you desire will be there. Everything is centered upon the main listening station, which, if you didn’t already know, is where you can listen to any CD in the store (the whole thing if you like) before you buy it. This is a definite plus in my book because, on rare occasions, you’ll only want a CD for that one song out of fifteen, and it’s better to listen to it, know if it’s sucks, and save your cash flow (remember Dead Eye Dick and “Now Age Girl?”)

The employees were extremely attentive and ready to help (they were all males when I went which was another bonus). If you’re looking for some really great deals, Blockbuster Music definitely has some of the better buys. Perhaps the best investments are the appropriately named Blockbuster Bargains for $11.99. BEST BUY

I was having so much fun at this point that I couldn’t wait to get to Best Buy, which, lucky for me, was the next destination on the journey.

When you walk in, it appears to be little more than a large warehouse, but looks can be deceiving. It has an incredible variety of appliances and electronics. It also has tons of movies, and, of course, a great selection of CD’s. Unfortunately, it was extremely busy, and no one came to my aid as I stood looking lost in front of the Rock and Pop section. This was not a good start, but when I asked the man at the door for help, he pointed me to the manager in hopes that he could answer my questions. However, the manager replied that he couldn’t speak to “the press.” Therefore I was left to investigate on my own.

The prices for CD’s fall into the same range as Blockbuster Music and Media Play: $12.99 for regular items, $11.99 for markowns. One redeeming employee, Les, dropped everything to help me find a couple of CDs that I couldn’t find my favorite Vani CD to save my life! All in all, the staff were great, and I left with a bag as promised.

At this point, I hadn’t splurged and bought any CDs, because I knew my final destination was being surrounded for hours by racks of great tunes.

In addition, the book, movie and software selections are amazing. There are new releases all over the store. Steve Determan, the general manager, was ready to help me and answer all of my questions and the staff was all smiles, which is a pleasant shopping experience. Media Play had it all!!

The majority of new-releases can be found in this price range, so if you want to be the first to learn the words, snatch it.

If you’re still asking yourself, “Where’s the best buy?” Well, I think I have the answer. The majority of new-releases can be found in this price range, so if you want to be the first to learn the words, snatch it.

TRacks

O.K. This is it. The final stop. Like Blockbuster, Best Buy and Media Play, Tracks is extremely easy to find. It’s on S.R. 23 (cost Grape!!), past Burger King on the right. I highly recommend this place because it has a completely original atmosphere, and both new and used CDs.

The new CDs are about $13.99 regular price and on sale they are $10.99 to $11.99. The used CD’s start at $5.00 and go up from there on their condition. For all you Phish fans, you should check out the stock. I was really impressed because they carried a lot of Phish albums that you wouldn’t be able to find anywhere else. Tracks is, by all definitions of the word, a “cool” place with posters plastered across every inch of the walls, tie-dye. Grateful Dead paraphernalia, and plenty of loud music. Plus, the employees are unique and personable, which make it all the more enjoyable.

Well that’s it. It’s up to you now to decide for yourselves, because the prices run about the same at all four stores. I had a fantastic adventure and ended up with two ancient Prince albums that I’d been dying for, Purple Rain and Diamonds and Pearls (both used and at rock bottom prices). I also made such a super impression at Media Play that I was actually offered a job. So, if you haven’t checked one or more of these places out yet, but think they sound “nifty,” go see for yourself what’s up.

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Reggie White, ashamed by Green Bay’s inability to create turnovers last season, vowed it wouldn’t take 10 weeks to get six quarters.

He was right. It took the Packers’ revamped defense all of six quarters.

“That’s all we’ve been talking about this year, getting turnovers,” said White, whose unit produced three interceptions and a fumble recovery in the Packers’ 39-13 throbbing of Philadelphia on Monday night.

The All-Pro defensive end was as perplexed as anybody game regular season in 1978. The defense was haunted all season, when MVP quarterback Brett Favre made amends by throwing an NFC-record 38 touchdowns.

The defense was haunted all offseason by the thought of just how good the Packers could’ve been with just a little more production.

“We were one game away from the Super Bowl last season and we let the offense down,” safety LeRoy Butler said. “We didn’t hold up our part of the deal.”

“Last year these guys were putting points on the board without us putting them in a position to score,” White said. “We knew coming into this year, if we could put them in a position to score, they could put a lot of points on the board. The last two games, that’s exactly what happened.”

The Packers offense has turned six of the 10 turnovers into 30 points, including three for 10 points against Philadelphia.

Coach Mike Holmgren and defensive coordinator Fritz Shurmur, who took much of the blame over the unit’s implausible lack of production last year, can joke about it now.

“I told Fritz I’m glad he’s finally coaching turnovers this year. He didn’t do that too well last year,” Holmgren said. “But actually, we’re not doing anything different, except maybe just talking more about turnovers.”

And they’ve left the rest of the league muddling over their newfound theivery, which included six takeaways in a 34-3 shellacking of Tampa Bay.

The addition of free agent tackle Santana Dotson and the emergence of fourth-year tackle Gilbert Brown, teamed with White and Sean Jones, makes the Packers’ front four the best in the business.

Shurmur said the Packers are much quicker with the acquisitions of Deion Sanders and safety Eugene Robinson, along with the new linebacker corps of George Koonce, Wayne Simmons and second-year sensation Brian Williams.

“I was on that defense back in 1989 at Florida State that was so fast, it was unbelievable,” Butler said. “This defense is far, far the fastest defense I’ve ever been on. I have to go back that far to find what happened.”

Butler went to eye doctor after dropping an interception in an exhibition game last month and was fitted with contact lenses, as was second-year cornerback Craig Newsome.

Both say it’s made a dramatic difference, and both proved that in the opener, when Butler picked off two passes and Newsome caused two interceptions with jarring hits on Alvin Harper.

Against the Eagles, cornerback Doug Evans stripped Chris T. Jones for an interception on the Eagles’ first play from scrimmage, and the rout was on.

“I can’t conceive of a better way to start the game than with a takeaway,” Shurmur said.

And what better way to start a season than with 10 of them?
Cubs sluggers lead the way to blowout of Expos

CHICAGO

Ozzie Timmons hit a two-run homer and Luis Gonzalez singled in two runs as the Chicago Cubs survived a poor outing by starter Frank Castillo to defeat the Montreal Expos 10-3 Tuesday night.

The Expos were one game behind Los Angeles and San Diego in the NL wild-card race.

White Sox slip in AL wildcard race

BALTIMORE

David Wells pitched a one-run ninth inning as Rafael Palmeiro hit his 35th home run in 12 straight games to lead the way to a 15-4 blowout of the Expos.

The Orioles began the day 2 1/2 games out of the first place spot for the first time since Aug. 29. Baltimore, 28-15 since the wild-card race.

The game was held in playtime after tiriing out of the White Sox in the wild-card race.

Montreal set an NL record and matched the major league mark by using nine pitchers. Starter Omar Daal lasted only two-thirds of an inning, and eight relievers followed the St. Louis Browns used nine pitchers in a game in 1949.

Paterno, Lions primed for battle with NIU

Associated Press

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. - Wondering why mighty Penn State is playing unknown and overmatched Northern Illinois on Saturday?

The obvious answer is an economic one. By adding a sixth home game to the schedule every year, the school is able to generate almost $1 million more in revenue to benefit the athletic program — including women's sports, according to head coach Joe Paterno.

But the nation's winningest active coach insists there's another reason.

"Northern Illinois has a good history. They're having some problems this year, but traditionally they've been a good, solid football team within their league," Paterno said Tuesday. "Sometimes you schedule people who look like they have the potential to be good."

Thus far this season, the Huskies (0-2) haven't reached that potential.

"I am not going to tell you they are a great football team, but our kids aren't stupid enough not to know anything can happen," Paterno said.

Paterno, of course, would say exactly the same thing if his No. 6 Nittany Lions (2-0) were playing Northern Illinois High School, but nevertheless, his players say they are not looking past the Huskies to Big Ten foes Ohio State, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Cornerback Mark Tate said he expects to have a grueling week of practice.

"I think the coaches want to guard against us taking these guys lightly, so they'll probably be tough on us," Tate said.

"Every single game is a big game for us this year, so we're just going to approach it as any other game — regardless of who we're playing."

The main focus of practice will be on improving the passing game, Paterno said. In Penn State's 24-7 defeat of Louisville on Saturday, Wally Richardson completed just 11 of 33 passes for 118 yards and two interceptions.

But Paterno said the blame should go to the pass protection and receivers running poor routes — not just to Richardson.

"I think we can rectify the problems, but we are not going to be a great passing team overnight," he said. "That one interception was on a deflected pass, and the other was a pass that should have been caught."

Don't expect Paterno to do what Florida did against the Huskies last year when it played its backup QB the entire game.

Freshman steps up for Buck's Joe Germaine.

COLUMBUS, Ohio - Freshmen aren't supposed to do what Michael Wiley did Saturday in eighth-ranked Ohio State's 70-7 blast-off against Rice.

For that matter, no one is supposed to do what Wiley did — score a touchdown each of the three times he touched the football in his first collegiate game.

"Some people are saying it might be a college record. They're not sure," Wiley said. "That's really unbelievable, and I'm really surprised and shocked I could do what I did."

What he did was take a reverse 49 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter, the first time he ever touched the ball at Ohio State. He followed that in the third quarter by catching touchdown passes covering 51 and 60 yards from Joe Germaine.

While the 6-foot, 180-pounder from Spring Valley, Calif., was shocked, many others were not.

Ohio State starting quarterback Stanley Jackson said, "We really weren't surprised, We had watched Mike for a few weeks now. We saw his high school film, and the coaches really talked high about him after the freshman camp. So we knew he had a lot of ability. He just had to go out there and prove it."

In the state quarterfinal playoffs last year, Wiley had a Rice-like performance. He rushed for a school-record 271 yards and two touchdowns, ran a punt back for a touchdown, intercepted a pass, had a sack, forced a fumble and recovered a fumble.

Mike Berticelli, "but you can't make excuses."
The Irish eventually got things going, though, and took a 1-0 lead before halftime.
On a rush up the left sideline, junior Bill Savarino fired a shot off the leg of the defending back, which deflected toward the goal at an awkward angle and fooled Valparaiso goalkeeper Aaron Rhame.
Assists were awarded to forwards Ryan Turner and Andrew Arts. Arts, a freshman, received the first start of his Notre Dame career and the assist was his second of the season.
In the second half, the Irish continued to play with the same intensity, but due to the strong hustling defense that has become a trademark of the Blue and Gold, they were not able to control the ball as they had in the first half.
Their frustration was evident and it was unfortunately displayed on a few occasions in the form of flagrant fouls and outbursts directed toward the referee.

When asked how he wants his players to deal with such situations, Berticelli explained, "You try to keep your composure. You can't give in to the frustration of not scoring or getting kicked. You have to be mature."
Notre Dame's effort to keep their own visible frustration to a minimum was satisfactory, considering the situation that was put in.
Using their swarming defense, the Irish were able to shut Valparaiso down and create more opportunities for themselves. In fact, if it hadn't been for the stellar performance turned in by the Crusaders' Rhame in goal, the Irish would have pulled away long before Capasso cashed in on a penalty kick with 1:26 remaining in the game.
"Our goal," stated Berticelli, "was to win it (the game) and not give up a goal, and we accomplished that."
Not only did the Irish accomplish that, but the Irish have now played 360 minutes of regulation play without giving up a goal and are 3-0-1 on the season.
Notre Dame will put its stifling defense to work again on Friday evening, as they host West Virginia in another Big East matchup.

Dr. Wieschaus, the Squibb professor of molecular biology at Princeton University, shared the 1995 Nobel prize in medicine for his research which uncovered the clues to how genes control development in embryos. This research helps explain congenital malformations in humans. Dr. Wieschaus will offer a popular account to his scientific flock from his days as an undergraduate at Notre Dame to the Nobel prize. His talk will be directed to physicians, scientists and lay people who have an interest in the genetic control of the body and in the process of winning the Nobel prize.

with a chance to return one kickoff the entire day," Holtz recalled. "That one was pretty well blocked with the exception of one individual (who) did not perform his task up to the caliber we needed."
Additionally, the Irish could not fully capitalize on eight Vanderbilt points, as only three were returned. Autry Denson took one for 18 yards, but the other two opportunities resulted in a measley two total yards.
With an offense that can move the ball on the ground or in the air, better field position can only improve scoring opportunities.
The Irish are expected to work on special teams heavily this week. Keeping the Purdue offense pinned in their own red zone would make an intimidating defense even harder to handle. Giving Ron Powlus and his charges some decent chances could help put up some more impressive numbers on the scoreboard. The coaching staff can only hope that what they emphasize in practice follows them out onto the field against the Boilermakers.

leader of the team. "She's loud," says captain Jen Birkner with a laugh, "and she's not afraid to say things that the others won't say."
"I think the whole team and myself needs to pick up the intensity at practice," asserts Leffers. "And we need to do that in order to win the matches. I need to be able to draw the hitters to me a bit more."
Also, Leffers has lacked time in the back row. "I'm very, very pleased with what Mary's been doing in the front row," lauded Coach Brown.
"She reads the setter so well in the front row, but needs more confidence in the defensive positions, particularly in terms of picking up balls."

Tuesday night in the opener of their best-of-3 World Cup championship series. Yzerman’s shot from 10 feet out the net. Theo Fleury’s goal but it went too far, dribbling into the loose puck under his goalie rebound bounce cleared. Curtis Joseph, but to Brian Leetch.

The United States trailed 1-0 after one period before Hatcher scored twice in the second. Lemieux’s goal with 39 seconds left in the second period made it 2-2 going into the third. Lemieux was credited with the tying goal on a play set up by Mark Messier. Messier side-stepped a check at the blue line and flipped a pass to the net. The puck bit either Lemieux or the U.S.’s Scott Young in front and dropped into the net. Both of Hatcher’s goals came when he moved in from his defenseman’s post. On the first, at 2:03, Joseph made a nice stop on LeClair’s shot, but the Canadians were unable to clear a loose puck from in front. Hatcher collected the loose puck and shoveled it over the fallen Joseph.

On the second, at 13:51, Joe Sakic’s weak clearing attempt was blocked at the point by Hatcher, who flopped a pass to Tony Amonte in the faceoff circle. Amonte faked a shot, then passed across to Hatcher coming in from the point.

Men's soccer ranked No. 24

BY BRIAN REINTHALER

Despite a slow first half in last night's men's soccer game, the Irish, who are now ranked No. 24 in the country, managed to defeat visiting Valparaiso 2-0.

The Crusaders began the game with a great deal of enthusiasm and energy and forced Notre Dame into a sloppy first half.

Twenty minutes into the game, neither team had registered a quality chance, with the possible exception of a strong shot taken by senior Tony Capasso from 20 yards out. The fears of a let down appeared at first to be well-founded.

After all, Notre Dame was coming off of a stirring overtime draw with heavily favored St. John's and were missing key starters in freshman Alan Woods and junior forward Scott Wells.

Wells suffered a head injury on a fall he took in the St. John's game and is expected to be out for up to a month.

"After a game like St. John's, it's tough to come back focused," said Irish coach John Wooden.

BY DAVE TREACY

Vanderbilt had a definite advantage over Notre Dame in last Thursday's game. This leverage was not a result of better talent, bigger players, or coaching. It had to do with execution. If a team does not execute, they put themselves at a major disadvantage. For the Irish, their disadvantage came on special teams.

The Commodores' average starting position on the playing field came at their own 41 yard line. On the other hand, Notre Dame found themselves with the ball only 21 yards away from their end zone.

The problems weren't with the kickers themselves. Sophomore Hunter Smith punt- ed the ball well in the opener, averaging 42.8 yards on four attempts, planting two at or behind the VU 20.

"I was pretty happy with the way I kicked and I think it can continue, but we do need to cover a bit better and I'll try to give them more of a chance," Smith evaluated.

"I am a little disappointed in our kicking game," Holtz offered. "I thought Hunter Smith punted the ball well. I didn't think we did a particularly good job covering (punts)."

The combination of Scott Cengia and Jim Sanson put two of four kickoffs into the end zone, both from the foot of Sanson. But despite the phy of the kickers, the coverage units allowed Vandy to open their drives with lots of breathing room. The Irish had little opportunity to take advantage of Vanderbilt kickoffs as the Commodores only sent two into the air. This first went out of bounds, and Emmett Mosley brought the second 21 yards to the Irish 25.

We didn't get a chance, real- ly, to evaluate our return game, a major disadvantage. For the Irish, their disadvantage came on special teams.
