Early grads seek recognition

As the end of the semester approaches, most students are consumed by finals, papers, and plans for Christmas break. To a select few, however, it marks the close of their college career.

Saint Mary's College will be graduating a few of their seniors this December. Among them are, Yolanda Ramirez and Leanne Jones. Ramirez will be graduating with a degree in sociology, and Jones will be graduating with a communication degree.

Currently, they are facing fears of what lies ahead, and they are coping with the emotions that go along with graduation.

When they have the added pressure, however, of doing this without the comfort of knowing their peers are experiencing the same feelings and without the distraction of ceremonies and parties.

The long-awaited vote by Faculty Senate regarding a disputed theology professor's hiring has transformed the campus. It's not all good news for University President Edward Malloy. Additionally, an October decision by the office of Residence Life to oppose a proposed demonstration by the College Democrats was denounced in a different resolution.

DART 101: 5 minutes of hell

It's that time of year again, kiddies! Women and men all across campus are just chomping on the joy and excitement in the air! Personally, I'm just thrilled it's back in my life again!

DART Yaaasssyyyy!!

For those of you like me, a mechanically challenged blonde-American, The Observer is guiding you on a step-by-step tour of your DART appointment — from the first number you dial on a touch tone phone to your eventual need for large, frequent doses of Prozac.

1. Get out your microscope and attempt to decipher the classes listed in your DVM book. Using your DART worksheet — yours for the low, low price of only $25,000 a year — create a non-conflicting, reasonably balanced schedule consisting of classes required by your major, minor, degree, and college.

2. Now wake up, because the schedule you'll actually get will resemble this in no way, shape or form.

3. Dial DART (1-800-YOU'RE-SCREWED). This class never actually existed in the FIRST place, you sucker!

4. Enter your student ID number followed by your PIN number, followed by Orel Hershey's ERA, followed by the semester code divided by the number of credits you need before you can effectively forget that the USC football team took place.

5. By this time you've reached your 7.5 minute time limit and DART rudely hangs up on you. Call DART back and repeat Step 4.

6. You may call course number of your most-needed class. Away the most annoying noise ever manufactured by mankind. Sorry! The room is still full, and your classmates are supposed to meet in it currently being rented out by another book to house the checks coming in from NBC.

7. This class never actually existed in the FIRST place, you sucker!

8. Repeat Step 6 until you have been closed out of every class you wish to take.

9. You may begin sobbing now.

There you go — the complete insider's guide to DARTing. Okay, class, are there any questions?

Q. What does DART stand for, anyway?
A. Doomed Attempts to Register by Telephone.

Q. Name the one class in the 1997 Spring Semester DART Book you just are dying to take.
A. "Understanding Museums", offered at 4:15 on Thursdays. Here's what I want to know: How can you not understand a Museum? What's there not to understand? You open the door, you wander around speaking in hushed tones, you "Do Not Touch" the displays. Who's having problems with this?

Q. Would you definitely get an A in this course, Mary Beth?
A. If I could.

PARIS
A bomb exploded on a commuter train in a station in the heart of Paris during the evening rush-hour today, killing at least two people and seriously injuring 35.

Police said there was no immediate claim of responsibility for the blast on the edge of the city's famed Latin Quarter. French television said the bomb was made from a gas canister similar to those used in the 1995 wave of bombings made by Algerian militants. Officials said the explosion occurred at 6:05 p.m. at the Port-Royal station, on the RER regional line used by thousands of commuters in and out of the French capital.

It detonated just as the train was pulling into the station, where the platform is partially above-ground. French radio said the two people were killed instantly, but that more might have died had the entire station been underground, concentrating the force of the blast. Besides those who were seriously hurt, police at the scene told The Associated Press that 50 others suffered minor injuries.

A witness told France Info radio she heard a large boom when the blast went off and smelled something like gun-smoke right away.

"There was a sort of detonation; it was a strong odor like on a firing range," she said.

A few minutes later, ambulances and trucks filled the area around the station between the Boulevard St. Michel and Boulevard Montparnasse.

There was an explosion in a service that was put in a subway car, "Prime Minister Alain Juppe told reporters.

He said officials put back into effect an emergency vigilance plan activated after France was hit last year by eight deadly subway bombings. Algerian Islamic extremists claimed responsibility for most of the bombings, which involved gas canisters packed with nails, nuts and bolts.

Interior Minister Jean-Louis Debré said France was tightening its borders as a precaution, and train stations and airports across France were on alert.

Fiber-rich food fends off heart disease

DALLAS
The more fiber people eat, the lower their risk of heart disease, a new study finds. The research, conducted on elderly men in Finland, found that those consuming a diet high in fiber are less likely to suffer from heart disease. People who consume 20 to 30 grams of fiber a day are 70 percent less likely to suffer from heart disease, according to the study.

Fiber-rich foods include fruits, vegetables, whole grains and beans. Eating fiber-rich foods can help lower blood pressure, improve blood lipids and reduce the risk of developing type 2 diabetes.

Playwrights’ work comes alive

By SARAH CORKREAN

Under the direction of Mike Morris, the plays of Corinne Hanrahan, Tiffany Bowman, and Katie Brown were performed by student actors with minimal rehearsal and little or no scenic elements. Hanrahan’s play “Beiter Late Than Never” focused on the issue of young love and sexual pressures. Bowman’s play “Once Upon a Street Corner” focused on young teens dealing with physical abuse and the courage to seek help. Brown’s play “An Elevated Affair” featured a corporate businesswoman confronted in an elevator by his wife about an affair he had with another woman.

"This provided a great opportunity for us playwrights to see our plays put on with real actors. By seeing my ideas come to life and viewing first-hand what works and doesn’t in action, I can revise and possibly enter the play in contests," said junior Katie Brown. The plays will be performed again tonight at 8 p.m. at Moreau Little Theatre. There will be a short discussion period following the performance to collect audience feedback.

SACC reconsiders teacher evaluations

By SASKIA SIDENFADEN

Members of the Student Academic Council Committee (SACC) are taking significant steps toward improving student-faculty relations and improving the accuracy of Teacher Course Evaluation (TCE) forms.

In an effort to establish “meaningful contact with our students,” Barbara Walvoord, director of the Kanel Center for Teaching and Learning, is attempting to gain direct student input and commentary via student organizations like SACC. Addressing a topic of concern to all students, the group, chaired by Brendan Kelly, had many suggestions and criticisms on current policies, including professor office hours, open-door policy, and direct links to friendly student-teacher interaction.

Walvoord addressed the problem of common abuses of professor office hours, claiming that "accessibility is really important" to student development. Unfortunately, according to Walvoord, professors are seldom held accountable for keeping their office hours. "In my opinion, they should be at your office hours. Otherwise, don’t even bother," Kelly further suggested that professors accommodate students in more casual situations, an effort to develop student-faculty relations on a more personal basis.

Similarly, an open-door policy was suggested to encourage student communication with professors. Member Theresa Sullivan admitted, “Decide Hall can be intimidating because the doors are always shut.” Other members agreed that “you only ever go when you have a crisis.” Walvoord went on to address the effectiveness of the TCEs, their uses, and their role in evaluating individual professor performance. Questions focus on subjects such as course content, teaching methods, and work load, including a space for general student comments.

“How should we slice the data so that it is most useful?” was the question posed by Walvoord to SACC members.

Kelly suggested including a male-female identifier on the bubble forms to distinguish student gender for more detailed evaluations. Walvoord agreed that gender could “factor into evaluating student responses.” Other members mentioned that issuing the TCEs at the end of the course is very ineffective. "By the end of the semester, the damage is done and students just want to get out of class early," Kelly said. Sullivan suggested administering the forms at a different time or having each teacher make up an individual TCE. “I had a teacher that handed out his own TCE,” Sullivan said. “He took the time to make his own and he asked some pretty tough questions asking us to scrutinize him really hard.” Tactics such as these, Walvoord agreed, would enhance the accuracy of the TCEs.

Professor G. Robert Blakey, the W. and D. O'Neil Chair at the Law School, voiced his sup­port of Malloy's decision and initiated debate over the word­ing of the resolution, which included a statement that read: "The further resolved that a president who makes such deci­sions does not deserve the con­fid­ence of his faculty."

"I struggle with the wording of the resolution," said market­ing Professor Joel Urbany. Blakey and Urbany both ques­tioned the strength and appro­priateness of the original word­ing.

The final version of that clause reads: "Be it further resolved that a president who makes such decisions seriously erodes the confidence that a faculty ought to have in a pres­i­dent."

The resolution states that Malloy's decision to hire the theology professor harms the University as a whole "by undermining the well-established and beneficial model of rational collaboration that exists between a departmental faculty and the University's administration with regard to hiring decisions."

Other concerns were raised by Blakey regarding the refer­ences to the decision by Malloy and its effect on the University as a whole. "This is a matter of internal politics and not a matter of the Senate," said Blakey. Blakey also questioned the openness of the theology department hiring committee. He said that the hiring by Malloy opened up the formerly closed character of the theology department's hiring.

In response, Porter pointed out that the hired professor's personal qual­ities and credentials were never called into question when the issue was raised with the Faculty Senate. "We haven't spoken to the qual­ifi­cations of the candidate [in the Senate]," said Porter, reiter­ating that the resolution targets the procedure Malloy followed. In stark contrast to the deliber­ations over the resolution dis­agreeing with Malloy's actions, the Senate passed a resolution denouncing the administration's denial of a peaceful demon­stration earlier this semester, quickly and without any debate.

Particularly, on Oct. 10 Assistant Vice-President for Residence Life William Kirk denied the application submit­ted by the College Democrats for a peaceful demonstration celebrating National Coming Out Day. Kirk opposed the demonstration because he felt it violated du Lac, the student handbook replete with rules and regulations on student life and behavior. The resolution passed by Faculty Senate fol­lows a similar resolution approved earlier in the semes­ter by Student Senate. University Provost Nathan Hatch will address the Faculty Senate on Jan. 11 in the Center for Continuing Education audi­torium. A full record of both resolutions passed by the Senate, in addition to the min­utes from last night's meeting, will be available within the next two weeks on the Faculty Senate internet home page.

Volunteers are needed year-round, not just during the holidays. The South Bend Center for the Homeless serves the community while working to provide services which assist homeless residents.

Sister Marilyn Zuglish, who is completing research at the center, and Chris Beckman, a Saint Mary’s junior who works at the center, discussed the concept of community while working to provide services to move toward self-sufficiency and into their own housing,” said Beckman.

Beckman discussed her concerns for the Homeless volunteers during the Homeless 2005 conference. “You can support the good guys or the bad guys,” Iona Carter said, referring to unfair employers as the “bad guys.” She and her husband travel to different schools and communities in the U.S. implementing their findings and suggesting possible ways to counter illegal labor practices.

The shelter started out as an overnight house and has grown to house 140 residents in 40 rooms. It is a night. Seventy percent of the residents are from St. Joseph’s County. The Saint Mary’s community is not the only one that comes together at the center throughout the school year. Other community groups that volunteer time and money include the South Bend School District, which offers tutoring services for children, and Marriott and Burger King, which offer job opportunities for residents of the shelter.

The shelter started out as an overnight house and has grown to house 140 residents in 40 rooms. The center now has rooms and facilities to house 140 residents a night. Seventy percent of the residents are from St. Joseph’s County.

The center’s mission is to bring together disparate groups in society so that each can discover the dignity, worth and God-given potential of the other. Beckman called attention to the need for more housing for families of single fathers with children.

"It breaks your heart to tell families we have no room. The children are starving for the attention and love that the center is able to provide. We offer so much support for kids by just hugging them while their parents seek the opportunities the center provides to move toward self-sufficiency and into their own housing," said Beckman.

Zuglish and Beckman both expressed their astonishment with the staff and in their abilities to make a difference every day. The shelter started out as an overnight house and has grown to house 140 residents in 40 rooms. It is a night. Seventy percent of the residents are from St. Joseph’s County.

SLF seeks donations for authors

The 30th annual Sophomore Literary Festival (SLF) needs financial resources, Stephanie Thomas, SLF’s financial chairperson, spoke before the Hall Presidents Council and asked each dorm to donate as much money as possible to support the festival. The festival features five authors, all of whose expenses must be paid by SLF. According to Thomas, one author can cost up to $30,000 a night — an amount of money well exceeding the entire SLF budget. The deadline for donations is Dec. 16. Dorms, clubs, or other parties interested in donating money to the festival must contact Thomas by this date. In other HPC news, the CPC’s financial budget for the year is in the red. A total of $22,000, has already been set aside for special projects and hall allocations. Such projects include the well-known Mr. Stanford contest and the Cavanaugh Karaoke. After reporting the council’s financial situation, Treasurer Lee Hambright advised the dorm presidents: “We’ll give you tons of money. Just organize stuff.”

A campus-wide clothing drive will be held on Dec. 12. Residents of each dorm will visit rooms asking for any unwanted clothing items for donation. On Dec. 13 in the LaFortune Ballroom, Student Activities is sponsoring a Christmas Movie Night, featuring holiday films that include “When the Grinch Stole Christmas.”

Tuesday. to gender discrimination marriage licenses to gay couples proposed constitutional state's marriage law is states to refuse to recognize Circuit Judge Kevin Chang saying the federal government will not recognize gay marriages and allowing states to refuse to recognize such marriages licensed in other states. An appeal of Chang's ruling would send the case back to the Hawaii Supreme Court, which ruled in 1993 that denial of marriage licenses to same-sex couples amounted to gender discrimination under the state constitution's Equal Rights Amendment. The state Supreme Court sent the case back to a lower court to give the state a chance to show a compelling public interest in allowing such discrimination. In a two-week trial in September, Deputy State Attorney General Rick Eichor argued that Hawaii's marriage law is intended to promote the best environment for the procreation and rearing of children. He said children thrive best when raised by biological parents.

HONOLULU A judge on Tuesday barred Hawaii from denying marriage licenses to gay couples in a case that has already led Congress to allow other states to refuse to recognize such unions.

The ruling is certain to be appealed.

Kirk Cashmere, an attorney for three homosexual couples who sued the state, said Circuit Judge Kevin Chang "in a nutshell ruled that the sex-based classification in the state's marriage law is unconstitutional.

Chang said the state failed to show any compelling state interest to deny gay and lesbian couples the right to marry, Cashmere said.

Copies of Chang's ruling were to be distributed later Tuesday. A spokeswoman for the conservative Family Research Council said the ruling defies the wishes of the majority. Polls say 70 percent of Hawaii's residents oppose same-sex marriages.

"This ruling is a slap in the face of the Hawaiian people who have made it clear that they don't want liberal judges tampering with this society's foundational institutions," Kristi Stone Hamrick said.

Two gay men and two lesbian couples sued in 1991 for the right to marry, to the dismay of some national gay rights organizations that felt the move was premature and would provoke a backlash.

It certainly prompted furious debate in the state Legislature, lawmakers failed to agree this year on either proposed constitutional amendment to ban them, or domestic partnership legislation giving gay and lesbian couples many of the legal and financial benefits of married couples.

Congress, meanwhile, approved a law President Clinton signed in September, saying the federal government will not recognize gay marriages and allowing states to refuse to recognize such marriages licensed in other states.

An appeal of Chang's ruling would send the case back to the Hawaii Supreme Court, which ruled in 1993 that denial of marriage licenses to same-sex couples amounted to gender discrimination under the state constitution's Equal Rights Amendment.

agents and boosters, the alarming number of incidents of petty theft and hostility involving off-campus students, and the isolation of athletes from the rest of the campus.

Others, such as Archie Manning, former Ole Miss quarterback and father of current Tennessee quarterback Peyton Manning, agree.

"I would love to see college athletes have a little spending money," Manning said. "I've been outside college dressing rooms before, ready to go to dinner with my family, and I see kids going back to the dorm who can't afford to do anything.

"Many student athletes at Notre Dame have voiced similar opinions. Several, including freshman tight end Mike Gandy, are dissatisfied with the fact that the NCAA, in addition to prohibiting payments to athletes, does not currently allow students on athletic scholarships to hold jobs during the school year.

"I'm in favor of stipend payments to athletes, but not in favor of letting athletes keep all the money in return," Manning said. "In fact, I would be in favor of a program that matches academic performance with an athlete's financial need."

"I don't want to say I oppose student stipends, but at the same time I don't really favor the idea that athletes should be paid," Manning said. "However, the NCAA might look into doing a study on athletes' family incomes to see if some students might need a little extra money to meet the lifestyle demands of certain campuses, like Notre Dame. I'd be in favor of a program that matches academic performance with an athlete's financial need."

"The problem comes in with the question of who gets the stipend," MacLeod said. "Do you pay it to all student athletes, or just football and basketball players? Do you pay it to just scholarship athletes? What happens to the football team if one of the athletes doesn't make the team?"

Wadsworth also pointed out that athletic departments at Notre Dame generate $10 million a year.

"You could pay the stipend to every student athlete, or just football and basketball players? Do you pay it to just scholarship athletes? What happens to the football team if one of the athletes doesn't make the team?"

Wadsworth was equally receptive to the idea of an alternative plan. "I think that there may be some way that we can try to evaluate the financial needs of student athletes without paying them," Wadsworth said. "There may be some other way that we can help students with financial need attend college without being part of the program."

"Not all Division I athletic programs are as financially secure as the athletic department at Notre Dame," Wadsworth said. "At other universities, paying students might cause athletic departments to have to drop some programs, creating fewer opportunities for student athletes instead of more opportunities."

"At Notre Dame, our athletic department has the financial resources to provide additional funds for their athletes."

Christmas quiz: put your Santa savvy to the test

By HUGH MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

Santas are once more abroad in the land, jingling their bells at every mall, sidewalk chimney and department store toy department.

On almost every downtown corner Salvation Army trombones pump out "Joy to the World," and towering fir trees, gaily bedecked, rise over New York's Rockefeller Plaza, the White House and virtually every village green, city hall and state capitol.

It's Christmas again, that "rolling time of the year," as Charles Dickens called it, a time to give and a time to get, and time to get rolling again on our third annual Christmas Quiz.

What do you really know about our most celebrated and venerable holiday? Here are 20 questions for you and your guests to mull over with the mulled ale before settling down to a long winter or, at least, an after-dinner nap.

As I sit here munching on cold turkey and the last slice of Mom's apple pie, I am reminded by the robust roundness of my post-Thanksgiving belly that the season of gluttony and cupidity is just beginning.

While I mourn the passing of Thursday's feast, I take solace in the knowledge that there's plenty more where that came from. So what if that last crumb of stuffing from your mouth and forget about that giving thanks stuff? It's time to open up those stockings and clean out that fireplace — it's time to get greedy — ready or not, here comes Christmas!

And what do we love as much as we love gaudy, we hate God. We don't like to be reminded that religion might be involved in our Christmas fun so we have conveniently taken God out of Christmas and replaced Him with such divine figures as Santa and a fat, bearded philanthropist. We've opted for "Grandma Got Run Over by a Reindeer" instead of "Silent Night," and the three wise men this Christmas are the Grinch, Heathcliff, and whoever found their kid a Nintendo 64. And if you don't like it, too bad. Go ahead, tell us Jesus is the reason for the season, and I'll tell you to explain that to the store owner at UP Mall with money under his pocket and the homeless guy getting kicked out of the mall because he offends the shoppers.

You may choose to lament this commercializing of Christmas spirit, but I choose to revel in it. What a glorious season!

Don't waste December in want of the old white Christmas with the carolers and the nativity set — go out to the mall and witness the magnificence of magic by hundreds of people pushing out of their pockets and spend their money on useless gifts for people they don't like; witness the laughable insincerity of Christmas cards sent by the bundle; experience hot, sweaty masses packed with people passing out and others wondering why they even bother coming once a year; hide as relatives invade your home to compete in a round of Christmas Family Feud while they Lombardi you with pinches and kisses and Christmas sweaters that are always too small. Joy on Earth! Christmas time is here again!

And we all know Christmas is more than a holiday — it's a game, a competition for victory in the Christmas category of "tis the season to be..." gifts (gifts gotten minus gifts given). Sure, giving is great and all that, but you have ever gotten as much satisfaction from buying someone else a new J Crew sweater as you have from getting one? Sing along! "Tis the season to be greedy, gimme, gimme, gimme, more, more, more! It's time to cash in for a you of good Scotch. 3) For S.E. Gross to come over and drink it with me. 4) For my roommates and I can move in and turn it into a house of debauch and I want: 1) The Main Building — so that my roommates and I can move in and turn it into a 24 hour house of debauch and 2) For S.E. Gross to spend the time, let's roast up a couple turtle doves and a few French hens and drink eggnog till it tastes like champagne. To the season for elves and reindeer and twinkling blue lights on plastic green trees and kids who can't sleep because visions of "Gimmie!" dance through their heads. The endless lines, the gaudy pipes, the Christmas whines, the "hands off, it's mine!" Sounds like a Savior is born to me.

HAPPY HANUKKAH

Merry Christmas

OH, HOW HAPPY HANUKKAH TOO!

Every year, Thanksgiving comes in pass with relative tranquillity. With all of this fuss and attention, it's easy to slip into the mindset that Christmas is a universal holiday. Yet, while many Notre Dame students are decking their dorm rooms with lights and wreaths, Jews around the world are putting on their yarmulkes and getting into the spirit of a holiday that is uniquely Jewish.

Florida bruised for title game

By DOUG FERGUSON
Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Donnie Young went hunting to get his mind off the loss and escape the telephone calls reminding him of Florida's doomed perfect season.

Kurt Brown was in the training room to treat his injured shoulder when the telephone rang. He hung up and took a walk. For 17-17 tie against Florida State.

He was joined there by Danny Wuerffel, who violated a rule about wearing shoes on the training table. How was he supposed to know? He hadn't been there all year.

As the fourth-ranked Gators try to recover from their devastating 24-21 loss at Florida State, there is much concern about their bruised bodies or their bruised egos.

"Something like that, I don't think we can get over it," Inbacker James Bates said Tuesday. "And you shouldn't. It's history. That's something that's going to fill our heads for the next few weeks, until our next game."

Five days after Steve Spurrier will be drilling into their heads all week leading to Saturday night's game against No. 15 Alabama for the Southeastern Conference championship,

This is the game that Spurrier emphasized South Carolina would have to navigate to win the biggest rivals in a game that most certainly took them out of the national championship.

"You get a ring for this game," Spurrier said. "You get your name in the record books forever. This is a game that goes down in the history books."

He might want to check the injury log first.

Wuerffel took the worst beating of his career, although he limped into the locker room after every play and kept the Gators in the game. He can only wonder how his body will respond in one week.

"If I'm healthy I've been this year," probably," Wuerffel said.

But Wuerffel, who has caught 44 passes for 826 yards and nine touchdowns, hobbling to the training room on crutches.

Defensive end Willie Rodgers hurt his shoulder and probably won't play Saturday.

But Spurrier believes the Gators will be able to bounce physically and emotion­ally.

"All you can do is put the best players you've got out there, coach them up the best you can and play the game," he said.

"You can't worry about anything except putting your best players out there and having the best plan. The conference championship is on the line. The one last week is history."

Still, the Gators have not been nearly as good as they were earlier this season, when they were able to dominate opponents left and right.

Then, center Jeff Mitchell injured an ankle against Georgia to end his sea­son, and left tackle Zach Piller went down the next week.

What ensued was a scare by Vanderbilt, a sloppy win over Georgia and the loss to Florida State.

The Gators will try to recover against Alabama (9-2), a team that has given them fits in recent SEC title games.

"They play the rules by the playbook, they play the game and they get after you," Spurrier said. "We've always had excellent competition."

Florida will be going for its fourth straight SEC title and making its fifth straight appearance in the conference championship game. And the Gators have a shot at a fifth straight appearance out of emotional games against Florida State, a game played under former SEC commissioner Bernie Busken.

12 years ago, Florida blew a 31-3 lead in the fourth quar­ter when the Seminoles scored four touchdowns for a 31-31 tie. The next week, the Gators rallied to beat undefeated Alabama, 24-23.

"The true test of a team is when they bounce back from adversity," said Young, who may move from guard to tackle to shore up a weak pass rush.

"Hopefully, we're able to come to some kind of understanding," he said. "As long as we can get one or two to get to the point where we're able to come to some kind of understanding, we'll be able to play the very best we can."

It doesn't take much for the Gators to change the SEC game no matter what the Gators' record or ranking might be. He never won an SEC title when he played quarter­back for Texas in 1960s.

A victory Saturday would be the first time since Bear Bryant's record of five straight championships that the Gators realize this is a big game and will determine what he might be. He said, "If we're successful in this game, we'll have a wonderful season no matter what happens afterward. If we're not successful, we've got a year left and we just be a good sort, year."

"It's very difficult for us to win all 13. Some day it's not impossible.

But they sacked Denver on three straight plays. "We might get in the shot­gun some plays, but if they play us man-to-man, we're going to have to hold Wane (Katzenmeyer) and Mike (Adams), and with receivers like that, it's not Texas that can't move the ball. The Longhorns lead the nation in third-down offense, averaging 456.5 yards per game, including 241.2 yards passing.

But Nebraska's defense has improved in recent games.

47 sacks for 304 yards in losses. The Huskers are only two sacks short of the school record (49 sacks for 383 yards in losses) set in 1985.

21 interceptions (second nationally), with 250 yards in returns and four touchdowns.

Nine nationally in turnover margin at plus 11."

"The first-team defense has improved for the season in the last 11 games, now on the ground.

The front seven is led by end Eric Martin, tackle Tomich, tackle Jason Peter and senior linebacker Jame Williams and Jon Hus.

When Texas coach John Mackovic was asked if he thought they were building for a blast against the Huskers on Monday, he replied, "We're going to have a very happy on the blitz Saturday, he said, "We need to blitz when the team gets into the red zone, and they're in the backfield all the time."

The Longhorns figure to use short drops and quick passes to get the ball out of the backfield before it gets running back Ricky Williams, whom Spurrier calls "the best running back in the country."

But the key may be Brown's ability to scramble away from pressure and get up field.

limited experience in the setter slot.

"We were a little bummed after Carey got hurt and the two losses over the weekend," Ervin noted. "But it was encouraging to see that Lauren stepped in and did a great job. So, it was good to see that we could play without Carey even though we really miss her being out."

In Monday's practice May was limited to setting but did very well according to Brown.

"We didn't want her to block or serve yet and she said that she felt some pain but it was something she could play through. We're hoping that she is going to be able to play."

Hofstra comes into the Joyce with a 19-16 mark and earned the last slot in the region with some thing she could play with the last slot in the region with something she could play with.

"As best we can figure we would equate them with several teams in the Big East," commented Brown whose squad is undefeated in two seasons of Big East play. "So, we kind of know what we're up against and if we play like we did in the conference we anticipate we should beat them."

"I think we got a great bid in the tournament after a somewhat disappointing season," Ervin said. "It's like a whole new season so everybody is really refreshed and excited for this."

Joining Ervin in Notre Dame's tournament run will be a host of players with experience. Senior captain Jenny Birkner has been a consistent force for the squad as she can usually be counted on for double digits in kills. Another senior Jen Briggs has filled in for the injured Angie Harris and has led the team in kills six times since being placed in the starting lineup.

When asked about Roberts' comments that Davie requires "a four year commitment," Davie was a little less complimentary.
"That's just not accurate."

The Joe Moore situation is a little more nebulous. The 64-year-old Moore, who recently completed his ninth season as the Irish offensive line coach, was unavailable for comment last night, and players and coaches alike declined comment on his status.
"I don't know about that," said Roberts of Moore's rumored departure. "You're going to have to talk to him."

Duncan leads Wake over Bulldogs

By RICK GANO

CHICAGO

He could be bumping Shaq or guarding Hakeem or trying to score on Patrick. Instead, Tim Duncan is glad he stayed in school.

So, obviously, is Wake Forest. Duncan scored 19 points, grabbed 17 rebounds and blocked four shots Tuesday night to pace the second-ranked Demon Deacons to a 74-43 rout of Mississippi State in the Great Eight tournament.

"I'm happy with what has happened so far. We're playing well, we're off to a good start and I believe I'm getting better," Duncan said. "I'm happy with where I am."

Duncan knows he'll eventually be a million-dollar NBA star.
But for now, he's enjoying his final year of college ball.

"I'm just concerned with what happens now, not later," Duncan said. "There are a lot of different reasons. I wanted to stay because I wanted to." The Demon Deacons (5-0) ran off 19 straight first-half points Tuesday night, withstood a mild rally by the overmatched Bulldogs and then took control early in the second half.

"We were efficient, methodi­cal and we ground them down on the inside and made the shots hard to take," said Wake Forest coach Dave Odum. Mississippi State (2-2) lost all five starters from last year's final Four team. The Bulldogs went nine minutes without a basket during the first-half Wake run.

"This is a learning experi­ence for our young players," said MSU coach Richard Williams. "Sometimes it's hard to get the attention of the new guys in practice until they go through something like this."

"Even when we executed, Tim blocked shots. There is nothing you can do about that. It's talent."

The 6-foot-10 Duncan reached double figures in scor­ing and rebounds for a 14th straight game dating back to last season, even when he didn't block shots, he altered their trajectory or angle.

When Duncan was double teamed on offense, he was able to get the ball to open shooters. Tim continues to fight against a lot of pressure with one, two and three men on him," Odum said.

I just take my time, attack, find the open shooter and try to turn them into the frustrated ones," Duncan said.

Jerry Braswell added 15 points for Wake. Mississippi State got 12 points from Tyrone Washington. Braswell and Steve Goodley scored five points each and Wake had a pair of 3-pointers in the 19-0 run that opened up a 28-9 lead with six minutes left in the half.

State kept its pulse and ran off the final nine points of the half to cut Wake's lead to 33- 21. But Wake took command early in the second half. Duncan scored seven points and Tony Rutland hit his sec­ond 3-pointer as the Demon Deacons moved ahead 49-29 with just over 13 minutes left.

"We gave up the points at the end of the first half and we had to re-establish ourselves and show that we weren't going to give up the game," said Duncan.

Wake shot 45 percent (28 of
62) from the field and held the Bulldogs to 38 percent (18 of 61).

Holy Cross College can now offer something we've never been able to before. A place to stay.

For the past 30 years, Holy Cross College has offered thousands of students the chance for a great education. But there's one thing we haven't been able to offer: a place to stay on campus.

Now we can. Starting with the 1997-98 academic-year, Holy Cross will have a limited amount of residence hall space available.

A two-year, transfer intent college with a strong liberal arts foundation, small classes and an intimate, personal setting, Holy Cross has helped put many students on the road to a successful college education. With our new resident facilities, we can serve our students even better.
Simon named to junior squad

Observer Staff Report

Notre Dame freshman forward Ben Simon (Shaker Heights, Ohio) has been named to the 1997 United States national junior hockey team, which will compete in the '97 World Junior Championship, to be held Dec. 26-Jan. 4 in Geneva and Morges, Switzerland.

Simon is one of just 15 current collegiate players named to the junior national team and is one of only three players from a Central Collegiate Hockey Association team to be named to the 22-player junior national squad, joining Lake Superior State forward Jason Sessa and Michigan State forward Mike Pearson, the current assistant coach at Lake Superior. "We look for strong leadership and hard work to provide our country with a good showing. Collectively, this team is very good."

In preparation for the world junior championships, the U.S. junior team will participate in an eight-day training and competition camp from Dec. 17-24, to be held in Fussen, Germany. Any York. Simon and York will face off on Friday night, when the Irish travel to East Lansing to take on the Spartans.

Jackson's assistant coaches include Greg Cronin, the interim head coach at the University of Maine, and Mel Pearson, the current assistant at the University of Michigan.

Notre Dame makes fifth straight NCAA appearance

By JOE CAVATO

For a team that has been hindered with numerous injuries, and has underachieved with just a 8-10 out of conference mark, a second season wips the record clean. For the Notre Dame volleyball squad, this second season comes in the form of the NCAA Tournament and it has already gotten off on the right foot as they received a favorable bid.

This past Sunday the Irish learned that they were given the fifth seed in their 12 team Central Region. A top-notch schedule aided the team's seeding as eleven schools on their schedule made the 48 team field. The bid marks the fifth straight appearance in the tournament for Debbie Brown's squad. (Notre Dame is only one of four schools which saw its team in women's soccer, men's soccer and volleyball all advance to the NCAA's this season with the others being George Mason, Maryland and Washington.)

The Irish will be entering the tournament with the others being George Mason, Maryland and Washington.) The five slot entails hosting a first round match against Hofstra tonight at 7 p.m. and the possibility of hosting a second round match. The winner of tonight's contest will host the fourth seed Ohio State on Sunday due to faculty conflicts in Buckye land.

"I don't think it could have been any better for us," commented Brown. "We did not anticipate that we would be able to play at home in the second round as well. At this time of the year the home court advantage is really important, we can get a lot more rest, and we don't have to worry about travel."

Senior hitter and backrow specialist Kristina Ervin echoed Brown's sentiments. "We were very excited when we found out we were hosting the first and second rounds. Also, the fact that we will play Hofstra is exciting because we know we can beat them."

The squad is coming off a tough weekend in which they failed to win a game as Washington State and Pacific swept the Irish setters. Adding to the dismay was a dislocated finger on the hand of setter Carey May who had to sit out this weekend but is hoping to be available for tonight's contest. Filling in nicely for May was freshman Lauren Stettin who has handled the setting duties when May was unavailable.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN FOR COACHES

Future uncertain for coaches

By DYLAN BARMER

Transition continues to look anything but season for the Notre Dame football program, as widespread speculation has it the both offensive coordinator Dave Roberts and offensive line coach Joe Moore will not be returning to the Irish coaching staff for the 1997 season.

Roberts has been considered a strong candidate for a head coaching job since Lou Holtz announced his retirement a few years ago, and much of the speculation has been围绕 his heading down South, where both his personal and coaching roots began.

Roberts, who turns 50 in February, grew up in Greenville, S.C., and joined the Irish staff seven years ago. Over 10 seasons as a collegiate head coach, including a successful five-year stint at Division I-AA power Northeastern Louisiana, Roberts guided his teams to a fourth place ranking in the final I-AA poll in 1992.

Many sources felt that Roberts would leave the Irish this season, citing his having taken a pay cut to remain on with the Irish and enjoy the tutelage of Holtz. Roberts, for his part, is not giving any answers.

"At least not yet," said Roberts when contacted last evening. "I'm looking at other opportunities right now, trying to see what will shake down."

With a bevy of college coaching changes this season, the opportunities are indeed plentiful. There have been 20 head coaching changes in the Division I-A college football

Gaither again named player of the week

Special to The Observer

Notre Dame senior center Katryna Gaither was named Big East Player of the Week for the second straight week Tuesday.

Gaither earned the honor after being named MVP of the past weekend's Comfort Inn Downtown Classic tournament, where the Irish claimed the championship. In wins over Ohio and Georgia Tech, she averaged 29 points and 13.5 rebounds, including single-game school records of 40 points and 14 rebounds against Ohio. She recorded a career-high seven steals in 38 minutes of play. In the championship game, Gaither scored 18 points and grabbed 11 rebounds en route to her 25th career double-double and fourth of the season.

OFFENSIVE COORDINATOR

Offensive Coordinator Dave Roberts is a prime candidate for numerous available head coaching positions. He is a strong candidate for the third spot in the coaching ranks this year, with 13 openings still remaining. But with a bevy of new head coaches being named, Roberts realizes he will have to decide quickly if he is to make the jump back into the head coaching circle.

"They're starting to fill up real quick, so if something comes up, I'm going to have to jump at it," commented Roberts of the remaining vacancies. Just yesterday, Illinois replaced the Brod Los Tepper with Chicago Bears offensive coordinator Ron Turner, and Fresno State hired Baltimore Ravens assistant Pat Hill to replace Sweeney, who retired after 19 seasons at the helm of the Bulldogs.

Roberts' departure would leave a gaping hole in the Irish staff, not only because of his abilities as an offensive coordinator, but due to his prowess as a recruiter as well.

In 1986, Sports Illustrated named Roberts one of the top five recruiters in the country, and his presence at Notre Dame has enabled the Irish to sign Southern talent such as tailback Auyry Derkson and linebacker L.amont Bryant.

"I think he's a good offensive mind, and he obviously knows how to call a game," said Irish receiver Malcolm Johnson of Roberts. "I don't know what his plans are, but he is a valuable coach to any program."

Current defensive coordinator and 1997 head football coach Bob Dees feels no differently. "I want what's best for Dave Roberts," said Dees when contacted by phone. "I think he's an excellent coach, and he deserves an opportunity to be a head coach. I'm just going to let Dave sort things over, and wait..."
