Faculty members question 'Spirit of Inclusion'

By MATTHEW LOUGHRAN
Associate News Editor

Some faculty members expressed disappointment about Notre Dame's new "Spirit of Inclusion," which University president Father Edward Malloy announced on Friday.

"A Spirit of Inclusion" is nice, but it doesn't give any legal protection," said Ava Preacher, associate dean of the College of Arts and Letters and Faculty Senate representative to the Campus Life Council. "I firmly believe that [homosexual students, faculty and staff] have to have legal protection. This new statement is one of those half-steps that [the officers of the University] take but just doesn't get the job done."

Father Malloy issued the statement, which will be included in all University publications, on Friday morning. It begins with a biblical quote from the book of Ephesians, equating homosexual students, faculty and staff with what the text calls, "strangers and sojourners no longer." He also wrote an open letter explaining the statement and the officers' reasons for issuing the statement.

"I think [the letter] is problematic and confusing," Preacher said. "Malloy makes a distinction that may exclude a section of the population. It is possible that someone necessarily admits to that conduct when openly stating that they are gay? Someone may lose their livelihood by openly admitting they are gay, and there is no protection.

"We don't want a church that is not in touch with the culture of its people."

Grant allows ND to add journalism concentration

By MICHELLE KRUPA
Associate News Editor

Notre Dame undergraduates now have the opportunity to formally study the field of journalism thanks to a $129,600 grant from the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation. Still in the planning stages, the interdisciplinary program will be somewhat like the Hesburgh Program in Public Service; students will add journalism as a concentration while pursuing a traditional major, according to American studies chair and program director, Robert Schmuhl.

"The grant allows existing faculty at Notre Dame to develop new courses in the realm of journalism," Schmuhl said, "and it will be interdisciplinary and will feature the involvement of professional journalists in a number of courses."

"Various journalism courses are available to students through different departments such as American studies, government, history and psychology. The new program will bring professional journalism into the classroom, which is something students demand."

Britons gather to mourn the loss of Princess Di

By MAURICE JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON
Prince Charles brought Princess Diana home for the last time Sunday, escorting the body of his "English rose" back to the land where their storybook romance ended in sorrow and scandal, a nation now plunged into grief and outrage over a stunning final tragedy.

A jet carrying the somber prince and the coffin bearing his ex-wife's remains landed outside London 16 hours after Diana died from injuries suffered when her automobile, chased by photographers, crashed in a Paris traffic tunnel.

At the Seine riverside tunnel, outside her London palace home, mourners heaped flowers in tribute to the much-admired Diana. But the sadness mixed with anger — outrage at a press that pursued the princess relentlessly in life, and may have contributed to her death.

"I always believed the press would kill her in the end," said her brother, Charles Spencer.

French police were investigating the role seven pursuing paparazzi photographers may have played in the early Sunday morning tragedy, which also took the lives of the 36-year-old Diana's new beau, the millionaire Dodi Fayed, and their chauffeur.

The red-tailed jet from Paris landed at the Northolt air base, where a grim array of dignitaries, led by Prime Minister Tony Blair, had gathered under leaden skies. A Royal Air Force honor guard solemnly bore the coffin from the aircraft to a waiting hearse.

"How difficult things were for her from time to time, I am sure we can only guess at," Blair said earlier in the day. "But people everywhere liked her. They loved her, they regarded her as one of the people."

Holding out for a hero

To the list of greatest union leaders who have worn another number was added yesterday. No. 23.

But before you think that Josh Jordan has retired for a second time, you should know that the owner of this No. 23 isn't the greatest baseball player of all time. In fact, this baseball player is not even close to being the greatest player ever on the New York Yankees.

But he is one of the greatest role models ever.

At Yankee Stadium yesterday afternoon, Don Mattingly, the greatest Yankee never to have hit the top of the popular charts, had added another chapter to his career. Mattingly won a batting title, an MVP award and the record for most grand slams in a season — was some of the best hitting of that decade.

But what separates him from other Yankee greats is something he never achieved in his appearance in the World Series. Mattingly joined the team in 1982, one season after the team last played in the World Series and retired in 1995, just before the team's title-winning season last year.

For the tradition-laden Yankees, who have reached the World Series 34 times since 1923, failing to win 14 years without a championship was unheard of. Such a distinction means many who see the division breaks into the major leagues, but it emphasizes the lengths to which Mattingly played his career, glory didn't seek Mattingly, but he didn't seek glory either.

In the self-promotion era of the 1980s and 1990s, fame is more than a title for the Yankees, is unheard of. Mattingly, like Jordan in Chicago, played in one of the top media markets. But his story was different.

Unlike Jordan, Mattingly didn't line his pocket with endorsement deals. Failing the game was enough.

Over the years, he was offered for a better contract, never punted over a decision made by his own career. Never turned down a four-year contract, and, most importantly, never left town in the era of unbridled free agency. In his entire career, the greatest flag he ever carried was over how long his hair had grown before he cut it.

In the Bronx Zoo directed by George Steinbrenner, where managers change more often than the Dow increases, that's incredible.

If any author could write Mattingly's biography, it would be Hemingway. A throwback to the time of the silent hero who was graced under pressure. Mattingly has been a cool breeze in the era of hot- air, superficial celebrities determined to see their name in the headlines as much as possible.

Mattingly never set out to be anything more than a great ballplayer. But in doing so, he accomplished something more.

He became a role model.

WASHINGTON

"The unfinished business of America's new prosperity" is to narrow the gap between rich and poor, said Secretary Alexis Herman said Sunday in a Labor Day message. The era is indeed prosperous times, but still a quiet unease lurks ... that our nation will declare success. Americans will have the chance to claim their fair share," she said.

But Herman said she found during the week's nationwide tour that "workers are in slavery than in many years." But she also sensed worry that America's rising tide may be casting out party toward two separate shores. On one side is a "new economy, full of opportunity and challenge," she said.

But on the other side, "the same tide may be stranding some Americans on the shoreline of an old economy that is quickly washing away beneath their feet," she said.

Herman's tour started in Seattle short­ly after she played a role in settling the 15-day strike against United Parcel Service. It will end in West Virginia, ending with the Labor secretary's traditional Labor Day address at West Virginia University. Herman will then return to Washington to address the Senate on the 7,000 people who traveled to Washington's National Mall last Labor Day, "the task before us as a nation — as a moral people ... as children of God is to make sure that the economy's new buoyancy lifts the lives of all Americans, that we do not declaring our work completed until America's new prosperity is shared by all," she said.

Cartoonist strives for educational strips

In producing episodes of the popular "Dogg" cartoon over the past few years, Jim Linkins has one central worry: Will children laugh? Now his scripts must pass muster with a team of Harvard educators who have another concern: Will children learn? New federal standards to effect today require television broadcasters to concentrate on educational programming for young minds. Several new features designed to fulfill the mandate debut this week, like the Norman Lear-produced cartoon "Umpire-3 TV" on the WB, "The Sports Illustrated for Kids Show" on CBS and an ABC cartoon about a 12-year-old named Pepper Ann. Yet many existing programs will simply return to the schedule, newly designed to fulfill educational. "For us, this was just business as usual," said Maureen Smith, in charge of children's programming at Fox. "We will try to pick shows that will not only educate but entertain."

Bachy uses Labor Day to court voters

While most Indiana residents are relaxing at backyard cookouts Sunday, some of the state's politicians will use Labor Day to court potential voters. Among them will be former Gov. Evan Bayh, who is expected to run for U.S. Senate next year. The Democrat will take part in a debate at Snouville and United Auto Workers' picnics in Anderson and Fort Wayne. He'll cap his day with another parade in Elkart. "I'll start at 7 a.m. and end about 7 p.m. it's a full day," Bayh said. Thirty years ago, Bayh noted, it would have been considered too early to start campaigning 15 months before the election. Not anymore. While Bayh is seeking the Democratic nomination for the Senate, the GOP has three candidates vying to succeed the retiring Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind. "I feel there's not enough time," said local attorney, accused of being single-minded in his campaign. Another hopeful, local attorney John Price, has scheduled 11 events for the holiday weekend — from Oktoberfest in Michigan City on Friday to Old Fashioned Days in North Salem on Monday.

San Francisco is offering organ transplants to people infected with HIV. But doctors said they would only offer organs to people whose infection with the virus was under control and who are not dying from other diseases. And HIV patients will only get organs that otherwise would have been turned down, so there is no asking of the kidneys or hearts they need, said Dr. Nancy Auer, a UCSF liver transplant surgeon. That would exclude body parts from donors who are HIV negative but considered high risk — such as people who are gay, have multiple sexual partners or auto-beaters. Most other transplant centers in the nation will not offer organs to people infected with the AIDS virus, say the shortage of donated organs demands that they be reserved for those with the greatest chance of a long and productive life. Dr. John Lake, medical director of UCSD's transplant program, says his department had to look at the long-term prospects of people with HIV in the same way it looks at people with any other disease such as can­ cer or heart problems. "We had to do what was right," he said. Monday's in Saint Louis, Missouri. But others consider it a highly questionable policy.

VMI woman complains of harassment

LEXINGTON, Va. — At least one of the women in Virginia Military Institute's first coed class has complained about being singled out for unfair treatment. Senior Class President Kevin Trujillo said Saturday the woman felt she was being picked on by the cadet, the upperclassmen who walk through the Institute's halls in uniform. The woman, who was not identified, plans to stay at VMI, Trujillo said. One other woman has been called before the Rat Disciplinary Committee. Trujillo said Angelica Garza of Fort Belvoir "popped off a little attitude with an upperclassman," and that English teacher has been asked by a few of the bellowing training cadre who are "totally hyped up yelling at the freshmen, the inappropriate behavior toward females has occurred, Trujillo said. The 158- strong Army cadet body cut down by three cadet candidates. Another hopeful, local attorney John Price, has scheduled 11 events for the holiday weekend — from Oktoberfest in Michigan City on Friday to Old Fashioned Days in North Salem on Monday.

Board names Williams chairman

Special to The Observer

Father Oliver F. Williams, associate professor of management in the College of Business Administration and co-director of the Notre Dame Center for Ethics and Religious Values in Business, has been elected chairman of the American Board of the United States-South Africa Development Program (USSALEP). Father Williams, who served as a member of the United Nations Observation Mission for South Africa's first post-apartheid national elections in April 1994, has studied the South African business and political landscape for many years.

He facilitated a landmark 1991 meeting at Notre Dame between U.S. corporate and government officials and representatives of the African National Congress, the Inkhata Freedom Party and the Pan-Africanist Congress, and has spent the last two years in South Africa, teaching business ethics at the University of Capetown and Stellenbosch University.

A 1961 Notre Dame graduate, Father Williams was ordained a Holy Cross priest in 1970. He earned a doctorate from the Vanderbilt University Divinity School in 1974. A member of the Notre Dame faculty since 1973, he served as associate provost of the University from 1978-94.

Since its establishment in 1958, USSALEP, a binational non-governmental organization, has administered exchange and training programs in the United States and South Africa.

these disciplines together and add to them new internship opportunities and more extensive, specific course options.

"We are talking to people at ABC's Nightline and NBC's Meet the Press about possible internships, and we will continue to conduct those that already exist locally," Schmuhl said.

Two factors will affect the augmentation of the program, which Schmuhl anticipates will draw 25-30 students by next fall; the development of additional courses by professors and the approval of these courses by University officials.

married 16 years ago, the vast nave was filled for a special evening service, attended mostly by people in casual weekend dress. Flags flew at half-staff across the kingdom. All soccer games — the national sport — were canceled. The airwaves were filled with "God Save the Queen," the national anthem.

Hundreds of ordinary Britons, many in tears, gathered outside Kensington Palace, Diana's home. "She was a sparkling gem, very warm, a genuine person," said Josephine Bong-Clarke, 65, her eyes red from crying.

"She was banished by the royal family, but she was the star member of the royal family," said royal biographer Anthony Holden. "It will be hard to see what they will be without her."

In Paris, the French, too, like many around the world, joined in lamenting the loss of a princess who had carried on with style and smiles through years of adversity in an ill-fitting marriage.

"She had everything," said Pascale Tremblay, a waitress in a Parisian bakery. "She was as good as she was beautiful."

Charles had flown in Paris on Sunday afternoon with Diana's two sisters, Lady Jane Fellowes and Lady Sarah McCorquodale, to retrieve the remains of the woman he divorced last year after 15 years of marriage.

French President Jacques Chirac and his wife, Bernadette, met the heir to the British throne at the hospital where Diana died three hours after the crash and where her body lay.

The crash occurred in a tunnel at a bridge, the Pont de l'Alma, just north of the Eiffel Tower. Fayed, 42-year-old son of the billionaire Egyptian owner of London's prestigious Harrods department store, was dead at the scene. It was the crash.

A fourth person in the sedan, a bodyguard, suffered serious injuries.

Seven photographers who were detained immediately after the crash were placed under formal custody Sunday afternoon. Police sources said the seven, questioned throughout the day, would spend Sunday night in custody. They can be held without charges for up to 48 hours.

French police said the investigation of the crash, which a bodyguard survived with serious injuries, would be handled by a special unit usually assigned to high-priority terrorism cases.

Diana often complained of being plagued by the paparazzi — the commercial photographers who trailed her since she entered the public eye as the princess of Wales.

Diana and Fayed had dined at the Ritz Hotel — owned by Fayed's family — and reportedly were on their way to a private villa in western Paris, also owned by Fayed.

Witnesses said the photographers, riding motorcycles, were swelling around the black Mercedes-Benz before it entered the tunnel shortly after midnight.

France's interior minister, Jean-Pierre Chevènement, said Diana's car was traveling at high speed through the tunnel, and the driver lost control. He didn't specify the speed, but a source close to the investigation, speaking on condition of anonymity, said it was well over 60 mph — perhaps almost twice that.

The speed limit was 30 mph. Diana and Fayed were not believed to be wearing seat belts, the source said.

The car hit a curb, crashed into a concrete post in the center divider, then bounced across the right lane and smashed roof-first into the tiled wall. The impact destroyed the car, turning it into a heap of crumpled metal and broken glass.

French info radio said at least some of the photographers took pictures before help arrived — and that one of the photographers was beaten at the scene by horrified witnesses. Six of the photographers were French and one was Macedonian.

"We want the entire truth," the Fayeds' family lawyer, Bernard Danteille, told French television. "It seems to me to be a case of involuntary homicide."

Italian photographer Mario Brenna, who himself has pursued Diana pictures, said he was told by a colleague at the scene that photographers were no longer chasing the car as it crashed.

"He and his colleagues had already broken away from the auto," Brenna told the Italian news agency ANSA.

"I was in a car that was speeding through the tunnel," a French photographer told a Paris newspaper. "We were in the tunnel when the crash occurred...""}

Countdown to Game Time: T Minus Six

We should have today off. Today is an Irish holiday (not that we get a day off for this holiday — in the God, Country, Notre Dame hierarchy, ND overrides national holidays, i.e. Labor Day). For this holiday, you will not see streamers, you will not hear ballad, and most of the beneficiaries do not even realize this holiday exists.

This is not a holiday for those of the crowd. It is a celebration for all of the Notre Dame "Irish" across the country. For the very Monday, outlined against a blue-gray September sky are the eulogy of the oldein famine — the final stage of our 12 step off-season program. Today begins the march to the national championship. No more stupid questions about Notre Dame football. No more speculations.

No more misguided fantasizing on the immeasurable impact the freshman class will have in determining the success or failure on the entire season. No more hanging on the every word of your buddy who has a friend whose roommate is dating the sister of the junior football manager who also happens to have an in with the head football manager who manager that might prove itself. "What does it take to receive a Rhodes Scholarship and where does Jimmy Friday go?"

Today is the beginning of a week that answers many questions, but also presents many more.

We all hope that the Generations campaign reaches its stated goals. None of us would do anything to make that task more difficult.

Assume Generations succeeds in raising $190 million for the endowment of undergraduate scholarships (merit and general). The genius(es) investing ND's endowment continue his/her/their brilliant work, but the market levels off. Maybe $190 million will only produce somewhere between $20 - $30 million per year.

What we don't know is the percentage of that income that will be plowed back into the endowment and what percentage will actual be used for scholarships. Some of us could experience a motivational surge for Generations if the high level bean counters and mowers in ND financial affairs shared more of their thinking about the reinvest-ment/putdown tradeoff.

How rich do we have to get before we quit reinventing, say, 95% of the endowment income? Is a need blind admissions policy our goal, or not? When? 2050?

Welcome...

I hope you enjoy reviewing the opportunities outlined in these pages. The experiential and service-learning involvements have been extremely valuable for students over many years. Alumni/ae in many different careers are continuing to integrate their ND and CSC experiences as they work for a more just and humane world.

Please explore the challenges open to you, and others. Stop in at the Center or give us a call!

EXPERIENTIAL SEMINARS & ACADEMIC COURSES

All courses and the experiential and service-learning seminars listed on this page are developed and coordinated by Center faculty/staff and the Experiential Learning Council. They are offered through these academic departments: Theology, American Studies, Gender Studies, Peace Studies, Government, Psychology and Sociology. Information meetings for the courses will be announced. Contact the Center for more details.

ONE CREDIT COURSES

APPALACHIA SEMINAR
Each Fall and Spring break approximately 120 students travel to the Appalachian region of Kentucky and West Virginia. Students spend the week working side by side with the people of the mountains. Through physical labor and person-to-person contacts, students experience the cultural richness of the area and begin to understand and analyze social forces there.

BORDER ISSUES SEMINAR
Active exploration of the border region between Mexico and the U.S., examining issues of poverty, international challenges and more.

CHURCH AND SOCIAL ACTION
This course includes a 48-hour immersion into the kind of life most Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students seldom see. Over 358 students made an Urban Plunge during early January 1996. The purpose of the course is to experience injustice, apathy and poverty; to increase awareness of people who are working to improve these situations; and to witness and reflect on ways to address Gospel concerns regarding the oppressed.

CENTRAL DIVERSITY
This seminar explores the rich cultural heritage of Chicago's ethnic neighborhoods and immigrant tradition. The corresponding problems of urban life and racism also are examined during the semester break experience.

ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES SEMINAR
Provides opportunities for students to challenge and deepen their understanding of environmental issues through direct experiential involvements.

HOLY CROSS MISSION SEMINARS: COACHELLA / PHOENIX
These seminars during the January Break build upon the efforts of Congregation of Holy Cross.

L'ARCHE COMMUNITY
This seminar centers participation over break in the L'Arche Community (founded by Jean Vanier). Students explore issues of disability through active involvement.

LEADERSHIP ISSUES SEMINAR
The Leadership Issues Seminar is designed for students working in a leadership capacity promoting community service or social action.

MEXICO SEMINAR
Provides an international service opportunity through a two week immersion (during the last two weeks of May) in Oaxaca, Mexico.

MIGRANT EXPERIENCES
Offers a unique immersion into the lives of migrant farm workers in Florida during the spring harvest. Students work in the fields, live with migrant families, and assist agencies that serve workers.

WASHINGTON SEMINAR
Theo 363 / Govt 496
Approximately 22 students travel each semester break to the nation’s capital to explore crucial issues of the day from a variety of perspectives. This year’s focus is environmental concerns. In Washington, students meet with the decision-makers, members of congress, non-governmental organizations and church leaders. On-campus preparation, on-site experience and follow-up reflection combine to create a unique learning opportunity.

THREE CREDIT COURSES

In addition to the many seminars graded (SU), there are multidisciplinary courses by Center faculty in various departments. Courses include reading and reflection on issues raised by service experiences and study and analysis of contemporary issues of justice and peace.

SUE CUNNINGHAAM, DON MCNEILL, C.S.C., & KATHLEEN MASS WEIGERT, Ph.D.
Reflections on Service (Summer Service Projects)

DON MCNEILL, C.S.C., Ph.D., AND ANDREA SMITH SHAPPLE
Theology and Community Service

JAY BRANDENBURGER, Ph.D.
Children and Poverty: Developmental Implications

KATHLEEN MASS WEIGERT, Ph.D.
Introduction to Peace Studies

PEACE AND JUSTICE PROGRAMMING
The Center sponsors or co-sponsors a variety of creative peace and justice programs throughout the year, including films, panels, invited speakers and performing arts. Each opportunity focuses on an important issue of social concern (e.g., racism, poverty, the environment).

ADDITIONAL EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES
... include, as resources allow, service-learning trips to the rural south, and to Holy Cross Mission sites in the U.S., Mexico, and Africa. Student leadership plays a key role in developing unique learning opportunities.

THE FACULTY AND CENTER ACTIVITIES

The special focus of our opportunities designed for faculty during the 1997-1998 academic year will be on "service learning" and the ways in which it can be incorporated into courses and research, through one-on-one consultations, a "Service Learning Fair," and visits to Summer Service Program sites in Chicago and South Bend. Faculty will also have the opportunity to participate with students in the Social Concerns Seminar: Appalachia over fall and spring breaks. And this year we begin a research-education relationship with the South Bend Heritage Foundation where the role of faculty will be key.

Faculty are a vital resource to the CSC as well. They serve as facilitators for the course The Church and Social Action ("Urban Plunge"), opening their homes for a one-evening gathering to provide students with an occasion to reflect on and extend their analysis of the city experience. They are speakers for our various cross-disciplinary learning courses, advisors to the service and social action groups, and offer directed readings on related social concerns topics.

Faculty interested in getting involved in any of these opportunities are encouraged to contact Dr. Kathleen Maas Weigert (phone: 631-5293 or e-mail: Kathleen.M.Weigert.26@nd.edu).

CSC, CAMPUIS MINISTRY, ALUMNI ASSOCIATION COLLABORATIONS

The desire for a deeper integration of faith and action in the lives of Notre Dame students and alumni/ae has led Campus Ministry, the Alumni Association and the Center for Social Concerns to work towards more creative and public collaborations. In moving towards this goal, Rev. Jim Lies, C.S.C., serves as Campus Ministry’s liaison with the Center and Jim Paladino as the Center’s liaison with Campus Ministry. Ed Trifone, Director of the Alumni Community Service Programs coordinates Alumni Association interaction with the Center’s Sue Cunningham.
From the beginning of the film, "Manhunter," with its ominous and remote atmosphere, the film's inevitable foil: Francis Dolarhyde, the inevitable moviegoer is bothered by one question: where has he seen this before? The answer, through the complex, may seem rather simple in nature. The movie, made in 1984 and directed by Michael Mann, was and remains somewhat unknown, though the premise is readily recognizable as an extension of the movie. The film is based on the book "The Red Dragon," written by Thomas Harris, which deals with the exploits of a maniacal serial killer named Hannibal Lecter and the man named Will Graham who frequently brings him to justice. Harris' sequel to "The Red Dragon," a film in the footsteps of the first book, was transformed into a bigger, bigger blockbuster which also followed the life of Lecter. This movie is entitled "The Silence of the Lambs." While "Manhunter" cannot justly be considered a prequel to the more recent film, the one thread that does connect them is the main character: the cannibalistic killer, Hannibal Lecter. Though readily available for rent and for sale, "Manhunter" is still for the most part unknown, and perhaps for good reason. The main attractions that so manipulate moviegoers is the initial representation of the film. The list of actors, though brimming with names, seems relatively subtle. The film stars William Petersen as the forensic expert who is forced out of retirement to help Graham, played by up-and-coming star Ted Levine, catch a serial killer known only as the "Tooth Fairy" because of the bite marks on the bodies of his victims. The film is unmissable, but even more so in terms of "The Silence of the Lambs," in which the main protagonist, the forensic expert Will Graham, who at first is reluctant to help search for the killer but then finds himself becoming more and more involved until he and the culprit are thinking along the same lines. The film is truly an insight into the capabilities and limitations of one man to determine a psychopath's psyche and use it to his advantage.

While the film may not seem as striking or terrifying as "The Silence of the Lambs," it certainly achieves its goal of shocking the viewer both literally by knocking him into the back of his seat as if with invisible hands. This is exhibited in a chilling scene shortly after the character begins haunting the back of his seat as if with invisible hands. Graham, played by brilliant Ted Levine, is sitting in his hotel room, going over evidence and "talking" to the Tooth Fairy so he can figure out why he does what he does. The surprising element of this film is that it is not so much about the life of Hannibal Lecter as it is about the transformation of the weary Graham, who at first is reluctant to help search for the killer but then finds himself becoming more and more involved until he and the culprit are thinking along the same lines. The film is truly an insight into the capabilities and limitations of one man to determine a psychopath's psyche and use it to his advantage.

Irish struggle to find net, settle for a tie at Pittsburgh
By KAREN SEYMOUR
Sports Writer

However, the 0-0 tie is a respectable beginning. Although they were outshot 6-7, the Irish played extremely tough in the backfield, led by goalstopper Velho. His past history of playing strong during Friday’s game as he saved two of the three consecutive shots on goal which occurred merely two minutes into overtime.

Since overtime is a sudden death position, because the game is over if someone scores, a lot of tension is still continued during Friday’s game as he saved two of the three consecutive shots on goal which occurred merely two minutes into overtime.

Stadium Rededication

Notre Dame, Saint Mary's, and Holy Cross students, faculty, and staff, your presence is requested at an OPEN HOUSE.

Notre Dame Stadium will be open to the campus community for tours during the hours of 11:00 am until 7:00 pm on Wednesday, September 3, 1997. Entrance for the tours will be through the Player Ticket Gate on the east side of the stadium, opposite the Joyce Center.
and Smiachenko, one of their star players, was out for the game."

By Saturday afternoon, the Irish were on the floor again, facing Oral Roberts, a team who had participated in last year's NCAA Tournament. In a seven-set victory decided by short rallies and many errors on both sides, Notre Dame took a five-set victory over the Eagles, 13-12, 13-15, 16-14, 9-15, 15-9. ORU held a 14-11 lead in the second game but needed 10 opportunities to even the match. The match took a pivotal turn in the third game when, down 12-14, Notre Dame won four straight points to take a 2-1 lead. In the fifth set, the team regained its concentration and the Irish held on to win the game and the match.

"It started early in the season," Brown remarked about the sloppiness of the gameplay, "and we have a long way to go before we find the right combination.

Only a few hours passed before the team competed yet again, this time against No. 18 Wisconsin. The Badgers had pulled off two wins earlier in the weekend, including a four-set victory over Louisville that morning. Despite a strong effort by the home team, the Badgers managed to defeat the Irish, 15-10, 11-15, 15-4, 15-11.

One of the biggest surprises of the match was the return of Jamie Lee, who had flown back from the World University Games hours beforehand. Lee entered the arena with Notre Dame trailing in the second game, 4-2, and took some time to go over plays with the coaches before entering the match. On the first play, she could not reach a set from Boylan but moments later got her first kill of the season in the middle of a 9-1 run that eventually evened the match at one-game apiece.

"Our plan before the game was not to let her play," Brown said. "But we didn't want to go down without giving it a chance. I pretty much left it up to her to choose.

However, the Badgers erased their thoughts on Lee's arrival and regained their composure, taking the third game convincingly and later pulling away from a 10-10 tie to win the fourth game and the match.

"Our attack is not quite as smooth as it should be," said Petrecelli. "I don't know if we finish enough of our chances. We're not always going to get 40 chances to score each game.

The Irish travel to Washington to face the Huskies on Friday, the first of four straight road games for the team, before their showdown with North Carolina in the Addidas/Lady Footlocker Classic at Alumni Field on Sept. 19.

Irish take second in Shamrock

By BILL HART
Sports Writer

Last season, the Notre Dame's volleyball team managed to win its second consecutive Big East title despite difficult opponents and key injuries. This year, all eyes are on the Irish to repeat their past success. With a little help from seasoned veterans and new faces, the team proved they are ready for the challenge as they took second place in the fourth annual Shamrock Invitational.

Notre Dame started its season off Friday against Louisville, a strong rival who advanced to the Sweet 16 last year. Through a strong team effort, the Irish decidedly crushed the Cardinals 15-3, 15-3, 10-15, 15-10.

Notre Dame took control of the match from the beginning, making an 8-1 run in the first game before the Cardinals were forced to call a timeout. After a marathon third game that went to Louisville, the Irish came back to win the fourth set and the match. Down 7-10, the momentum swiftly changed when freshman Denise Boylan served six straight points, assisted by four kills and a block from senior Angie Harris, to take the fourth game.

"I was really excited when I was picked to be a starter," Boylan said. "I was nervous all day on Friday, but once I got out on the court, I was ready to play."

Boylan, the first freshman since 1988 to start as the team's primary setter, had 31 assists in her college debut, along with three aces and four kills. Both teams played without one of their usual starters, with senior hitter Jamie Lee playing for the U.S. national team in the World University Games in Italy, while Louisville sophomore Marita Sinichosko was serving the first match of an NCAA suspension that will last until the midpoint of the season.

With the victory, the Irish avenged a five-game loss last year at the Joyce Center in the championship match of the Big Four Classic. "Louisville definitely did not look as strong as they did last year," head coach Debbie Brown said. "They had lost four starters to graduation."

Ofensive fireworks highlight successful weekend

Notre Dame's women's soccer team showed its depth and domination in two games this weekend, outscoring Big East rival St. John's 7-0 on Friday, and Big Ten foe Michigan State 4-0 Sunday afternoon.

The two-time defending Big East champions outshot the Red Storm 41-2, as seven different Irish players found the back of the net in the season-opener.

Junior Shannon Boxx opened the scoring for Notre Dame (2-0), heading in a loose ball from seven yards out, just 8:13 into the contest. Boxx and senior co-captain Kate Sobiero assisted on the game's second goal, the first career goal for freshman Monica Gonzalez.

Jenni Heft closed out the first half scoring with a header into the right corner from two yards out. Sobiero, a three-time All-American defender, recorded four assists in the two games, just one short of her 1996 season total of five.

"The balls I played were not that great," said Sobiero. "It's just that [my teammates] are amazing players.

In the second half, freshman Monita Eriksson slipped a feed from Sobiero past St. John's goalie Sherry Reill for her first career goal.

"We couldn't have won either game without the freshmen," said head coach Chris Petrucci. "But it's not just our freshmen. You could see the older players coming out and stepping it up. That's the strength of our team, our depth."

"For me, it's been pretty easy because of my experience," said freshman Anne Makinen. "And the team is great."

Jenny Streiffer knocked in a pass on the line from Gonzalez, increasing the Irish lead to 2-0. Makinen showed flashes of brilliance, as she drilled in her first career goal in a blue and gold jersey off a pass from Jen Grubb.

Notre Dame closed out the scoring at 89:04, on a Jean McGregor goal that found the right corner of the net off a feed from Iris Lancaster.

"[The freshmen] did awesome," said Sobiero. "You can't even tell they are freshmen. They had to step into huge roles, and they did."

The Irish outshot Michigan State 44-2 in Sunday's lopsided victory, marking the 28th straight win over Big Ten opponents for Notre Dame women's soccer teams, dating back to a 3-0 loss to the Spartans on Sept. 22, 1989.

Despite controlling the ball and taking nine shots in the first 18 minutes, Notre Dame did not record a goal until 18:59, when Streiffer volleyed a loose ball from five yards out. Makinen added her second goal of the weekend on a blast that ricocheted off the left post and found the back of the net, giving the Irish a 2-0 advantage.

Boxx's shot at 44:04 put the Irish up 3-0 at the half and gave senior co-captain Holly Manthei, the women's career and single-season assist leader, her first assist of the 1997 season.

Manthei, who recorded three assists on the day, picked up another in the second half on a cross to Heft, whose header at 47:06 made it 4-0. Heft chipped a Makinen feed over goalkeeper Sara Klomsten's outstretched arms from 10 yards out.

Boxx closed out the scoring, rifling a shot into the upper right corner from 35 yards out.
