25th annual March for Life creates national attention

By COLLEEN GAUGHEN
News Writer

Hundreds of thousands of people gathered in Washington, D.C., last Thursday to mourn the loss of over 37 million unborn children.

It was the 25th anniversary of the annual March for Life, a movement which began in immediate response to the Jan. 22, 1973, Supreme Court decision to legalize the clinical termination of pregnancies.

"The number of people there, from all over, was overwhelming," said Notre Dame freshman Sheila McCarthy.

Representing Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Right to Life, 138 students, including five from Holy Cross College, joined the masses last week in expressing their pro-life beliefs. No Notre Dame priests, faculty, or administrators attended the protest.

"Notre Dame is the crown jewel of Catholic education in this country," said sophomore Josh Guerra, one of the trip's organizers. "As a Catholic institution, it should give its full support to the pro-life movement, a major event of which is the March for Life. It is our character and our responsibility.

The Franciscan University of Steubenville and Christendom College are two of several institutions which completely shut down each year to participate in the march. The combined efforts of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish groups illustrated the range of religious diversity supporting the pro-life movement. Diversity was also seen in the wide variety of age groups represented.

"One of the things I'm most impressed about is the amount of young people involved," said sophomore Jamie Kuhn, another organizer. "These are people who will be leading our country someday, and it gives me hope for the future.

An array of religious leaders, congressmen and women spoke at a rally before the actual march. The March for Life began at the Ellipse, the area near the Washington Monument, and ended at the Supreme Court.
The real loser: The image of the U.S.

President Bill Clinton was criticized this past week. Literally. But whatever (or whenever) he may have done, there were no convictions or impeachment may be a little premature. First, however, Clinton will never resign. He is favorably political and prone to the program "Biography" on the Arts and Entertainment network, said this week, "He never thought he would make it past his bimonthly age. It is that his friends before, illegally taping her "friend," a man who in the past has been called by many legislators, students, faculty and friends the best president this country has ever had. The Thursday night rally organized by student government brought many to cheer and several to tears. It was more of a mood than that of last week when it became public that Lombardi had called new chancellor Herbert — the first black to hold the position in Florida — an "idiot." "It's like going to a football game," Rep. Bob Casey, D-Gainesville, said as he stood among students, community members, UF faculty and local and state politicians. But this time, the fans in their orange and blue gear were cheering on one man with white hair and thick black glasses who drives an old red pickup.

Chants of "Hell no, he won't go," were followed by screams of "We don't want Lombardi!" and "We want Lombardi."

"I hope this will give him a little personal resolve to work with some of the some of the more important issues."

The regents are not playing fully on the schools' blank to right him back in our court.

The common-sense political metaphors when asked what he thought of the recent comment made by regard Steve Ulfield, chairman of the 14-member panel that oversees Florida's public universities, that the "ball" of Lombardi's future is "back in his court." Lombardi said, "I'm just going to dribble it awhile."
Dillon turns up energy awareness

By TOM ENRIGH
News Writer

While students at Saint Mary's and Notre Dame opened their pockets for holiday charities, the residents of Dillon Hall cut back.

As the winner of the Dorm Energy Conservation Contest, Dillon had the smallest dorm energy consumption increase, 6.21 electric-kilowatt hours per person, over a one-month period.

"We were hoping to boost campus awareness of our individual roles in decreasing fuel consumption," said Karen Cardinal, a member of Students for Environmental Action and founder of the Notre Dame Environmental Coalition.

The contest, sponsored by the Notre Dame Environmental Coalition, ran from October to November of last year.

Despite the small increase in energy consumption by Dillon, other halls saw energy consumption increases as high as 37.8 kilowatt hours per person.

After Dillon, the top four energy-aware dorms were Alumni, Keenan, Stanford, and O'Neill halls. The halls with the greatest increase in energy consumption included Carroll, Pasquerilla East, Knott, Welsh, and McGlinn halls.

"We held a section meeting and discussed ways we could conserve energy in our halls. The competition was also announced during our hall Mass," said Dillon Hall resident Ryan Labonic.

Cardinal noted that differences in energy increases could be attributed to the different ages of dorms; in the newer dorms, residents have greater control over their thermostats.

A possible correlation between the gender of residents and the energy consumption per person was also noted, although not studied by the coalition.

"We held a section meeting and discussed ways we could conserve energy in our halls. The competition was also announced during our hall Mass," said Dillon Hall resident Ryan Labonic.

Cardinal noted that differences in energy increases could be attributed to the different ages of dorms; in the newer dorms, residents have greater control over their thermostats.

A possible correlation between the gender of residents and the energy consumption per person was also noted, although not studied by the coalition.

The coalition sponsored the competition this year in anticipation of the Global Climate Change Conference in Japan; the December event sought to decrease the use of fossil fuels worldwide. "It's a great opportunity for students to get involved," said Hupp.

Cardinal also suggested that students use computers with screens that automatically shut off after a specific time period.

Cardinal directed some energy conservation suggestions at the students themselves. "Keep your heat lower and wear sweaters instead of t-shirts when you are in your dorm. Also, students should turn off their dorm lights and computers when at class. They can be huge energy consumers," he said.

Cardinal also suggested that students use computers with screens that automatically shut off after a specific time period.

The coalition consists of Recycling Irish, the Terra Club, Irish Outdoors, the Environmental Law Society and Saint Mary's Students for Environmental Action group. The coalition also plans to sponsor an Earth Week festival this spring, which will include speakers and visiting representatives from environmental groups.

THE INCREDIBLE ART PRINT & POSTER SALE!!
OVER 2,000 IMAGES!!

HUNDREDS OF CLOSEOUT SPECIALS FROM THE 1997 STOCK!!

DISCOUNTED 20-50% OR MORE!!!

- LOOK FOR THE COLORED SALE LABELS -

MONDAY-FRIDAY, JANUARY 26-30
NOTRE DAME ROOM-2ND FLOOR
LAFORTUNE STUDENT CENTER
9:30AM-5:30PM

TRENT GRAPHICS
http://www.trentgrf.com
Young Notre Dame fans take to the courts during halftime of the women's basketball game against Providence on Saturday, Jan. 24. The fans were given the opportunity to shoot paper planes into buckets, showing their support for the Irish women.

March
continued from page 1
One of the guests was Norma McCorvey, the anonymous “Jane Roe” of the historic Roe v. Wade case, which legalized a woman’s right to have an abortion.

“I’m so sorry for what I’ve caused the last 25 years,” she said. McCorvey converted to Catholicism in 1995 and is now very active in the pro-life movement.

As reported in a recent New York Times poll, 50 percent of Americans believe that abortion is murder, an increase from 30 percent 10 years ago. According to one of the congressmen, 67 of the 100 United States senators are pro-life.

Twice, both houses passed a ban on partial-birth abortion, an operation which terminates the baby in the birth canal minutes before it is to be delivered. Twice, President Clinton has vetoed the ban. Congress will attempt to pass the ban a third time this year.

“I went without any expectations, except just to see people on the street,” said sophomore Kristy Kitzmann, “but I came home so inspired. It was so uplifting, so powerful, the way so many different people came together for one cause. I felt that we had really done something and that this kind of strength will change things.”

ND/SMC Right to Life saw an increase in the number of participants attending the march last year. 24 students traveled to D.C., yet this year 138 joined the protest. Notre Dame law professor Charles Rice, the faculty advisor for the club, is an active and prominent figure in the pro-life movement, Kuhn said.

The students stayed at the Catholic University of America, some in the gym and others in the Crypt of the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, located on the campus of CUA.

The march ended on the steps of the Supreme Court, where a line of police officers separated the marchers from a handful of people supporting the pro-choice position by carrying signs that read “Get Your Laws Off My Body.”

Pro-life signs were as diverse as the crowd which carried them, including the Notre Dame/Saint Mary’s banner reading “Irish Fighting For Life.” One particular pro-life sign had a plastic doll with a syringe penetrating its head, clearly demonstrating the abortion method of saline injection.

“We’re talking about saving lives,” said Guerra.

The theme for the march this year was “His Truth Keeps Marching On,” an epithet for the perseverance this event has displayed over the last 25 years. Nellie Gray, the president of National Right to Life, has organized and attended every march since its inception in 1973.

“It may seem like it’s never going to happen,” said senior Megan Monahan, “but we must remember that it will come in God’s time. We need to be vigilant and continue to evangelize in the spirit of prayer.”

Kuhn and Guerra both hope next year will have the same enthusiasm of student participation, and that the faculty and administration will get involved as well.

“Whether or not it’s effective immediately, Kuhn concluded, “we can do something. You have to start somewhere.”

March continued from page 1

One of the guests was Norma McCorvey, the anonymous "Jane Roe" of the historic Roe v. Wade case, which legalized a woman's right to have an abortion.

"I'm so sorry for what I've caused the last 25 years," she said. McCorvey converted to Catholicism in 1995 and is now very active in the pro-life movement.

As reported in a recent New York Times poll, 50 percent of Americans believe that abortion is murder, an increase from 30 percent 10 years ago. According to one of the congressmen, 67 of the 100 United States senators are pro-life.

Twice, both houses passed a ban on partial-birth abortion, an operation which terminates the baby in the birth canal minutes before it is to be delivered. Twice, President Clinton has vetoed the ban. Congress will attempt to pass the ban a third time this year.

"I went without any expectations, except just to see people on the street," said sophomore Kristy Kitzmann, "but I came home so inspired. It was so uplifting, so powerful, the way so many different people came together for one cause. I felt that we had really done something and that this kind of strength will change things."

ND/SMC Right to Life saw an increase in the number of participants attending the march. Last year 24 students traveled to D.C., yet this year 138 joined the protest. Notre Dame law professor Charles Rice, the faculty advisor for the club, is an active and prominent figure in the pro-life movement, Kuhn said.

The students stayed at the Catholic University of America, some in the gym and others in the Crypt of the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, located on the campus of CUA.

The march ended on the steps of the Supreme Court, where a line of police officers separated the marchers from a handful of people supporting the pro-choice position by carrying signs that read "Get Your Laws Off My Body."

Pro-life signs were as diverse as the crowd which carried them, including the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's banner reading "Irish Fighting For Life." One particular pro-life sign had a plastic doll with a syringe penetrating its head, clearly demonstrating the abortion method of saline injection.

"We're talking about saving lives," said Guerra.

The theme for the march this year was "His Truth Keeps Marching On," an epithet for the perseverance this event has displayed over the last 25 years. Nellie Gray, the president of National Right to Life, has organized and attended every march since its inception in 1973.

"It may seem like it's never going to happen," said senior Megan Monahan, "but we must remember that it will come in God's time. We need to be vigilant and continue to evangelize in the spirit of prayer."

Kuhn and Guerra both hope next year will have the same enthusiasm of student participation, and that the faculty and administration will get involved as well.

"Whether or not it's effective immediately, Kuhn concluded, "we can do something. You have to start somewhere."
WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Diana logo protects products

In a bid to protect people from profiting off Princess Diana's name, her memorial fund on Sunday unveiled a distinctive logo that will be attached to all official Diana merchandise. Diana's son William, 15, and Harry, 13, have approved the design, which is shown here in purple, one of her favorite colors, over the words "Princess of Wales Memorial Fund." "The trustees wanted a logo that would reflect the nature of the fund, which was set up as a spontaneous memorial," after Diana's death in a Paris car crash on Aug. 31, a fund spokesman said on condition of anonymity. Within days of the tragedy, a multimillion-dollar industry in unauthorized memorabilia sprung up, including T-shirts, prints, mugs and dolls. Many of the sellers have refused to give any of the proceeds to Diana's fund. Produced by London design consultants Spencer Linder, the logo will be used on all products authorized by the Princess of Wales Memorial Fund, which raises money for Diana's favorite causes.

Government establishes new standards for meat, poultry

WASHINGTON

The government's new system for preventing contamination in processing plants is known by the acronym HACCP. Some meat and poultry processors have by and large adopted it, but others have resisted. The new system is based on the idea that manufacturers should identify the points in their production processes where defects or bacterial contamination are most likely to occur and then set up controls to prevent it. The government has been gradually phasing in the new regulations, starting last year with the beef industry and this year with the poultry industry. New federal rules take effect today for the poultry industry.

---

Despite an ill-fitting suit...

NASA exchanges Mir astronauts

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON

Despite an ill-fitting spacesuit, Australian astronaut Andrew Thomas moved into Mir on Monday for a 4 1/2-month stay while NASA and the Russian Space Agency debated what to do about the problem.

At first, Mission Control forbid Thomas from spending Sunday night aboard the Russian space station as originally planned and ordered him to stay on the adjoining Endeavour. Then in a confusing twist, officials relented, they said the suit, once altered, should be good enough.

NASA's deputy director of the shuttle-Mir program, Jim Van Laak, said there was a "remote possibility" that the suit adjustments would not work and that Thomas would be unable to remain aboard Mir.

Thomas needs a properly fitting spacesuit to wear in the Russian Soyuz spacecraft. Even though he's not supposed to ride in the Soyuz, it's his only way back to Earth and he is the event of an emergency following Endeavour's departure.

Thomas' custom-made Russian suit for the Soyuz is so tight he can't get into it. And the only spare, the suit belonging to David Wolf, a Mir resident for the past four months, is too big.

"It's basically unusable," Thomas said, referring to Wolf's suit. "Mission Control, in turn, asked Thomas whether he'd feel safe using Wolf's oversize suit in an emergency. He said he'd get by and would feel comfortable about the situation, at least for a few hours. Mir's command, Anatoly Solovyov, favored Thomas moving into Mir.

After conferring with their counterparts in Moscow, however, NASA flight controllers opted to have Thomas sleep aboard space shuttle Endeavour on Sunday night.

And Wolf was instructed to sleep in Mir. That way, each crew could go in separate way if the shuttle had to depart suddenly.

An hour later, after further talks with Moscow, Mission Control announced that the two astronauts could, indeed, swap places. It was later declared to be an official crew exchange.

The problem with Wolf's suit is that the sleeves are 6 inches too long for Thomas. Thomas is 5-8 and weighs 160 pounds; Wolf is 5-10 and weighs 185 pounds.

Thomas said he believes his spine stretched and he became taller in space - a common occurrence in weightlessness. It could also be that his suit was not sized correctly before the flight, he said.

It is the first time an American has encountered such a problem in the two years that shuttles have been dropping off astronauts at Mir.

Thomas, a 46-year-old Australian-born engineer, is the seventh and final NASA astronaut to live on the Russian space station. If all goes well, a shuttle will swing by for him at the end of May.

"You know, you think you're psychologically prepared but things often turn around and surprise you," Thomas said Sunday amid all the trouble. "I think it's going to be tough."

Wolf said he plans to talk with Thomas about ways to cope with loneliness - provided the space suit problem is resolved - before Endeavour pulls away on Thursday.

"You have to keep a rational grip on your mind to hold those feelings at bay," Wolf said.

---

Groups pressure for safer ski helmets

Onnie Dunbar, U.S. space shuttle Endeavour mission specialist, navigates through the double doors yesterday aboard the shuttle carrying a camera for documentation. The Endeavour will remain docked at the Mir for five days.

MARKET WATCH: 1/23

MARKET WATCH: 1/23

DOW

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>AMEX</th>
<th>5,018</th>
<th>0.58</th>
<th>15,883</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>NYSE</td>
<td>500.68</td>
<td>0.58</td>
<td>14,991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NASDAQ Composite</td>
<td>1,499</td>
<td>0.58</td>
<td>5,570</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NASDAQ TOP 50

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Company</th>
<th>Volume</th>
<th>Close</th>
<th>Change</th>
<th>52 WEEK HIGH</th>
<th>52 WEEK LOW</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>7700.74</td>
<td>6,549,200</td>
<td>22.26</td>
<td>0.01</td>
<td>22.61</td>
<td>11.49</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

LONDON

Market Watch: 1/23

DOW

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>AMEX</th>
<th>5,018</th>
<th>0.58</th>
<th>15,883</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>NYSE</td>
<td>500.68</td>
<td>0.58</td>
<td>14,991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NASDAQ Composite</td>
<td>1,499</td>
<td>0.58</td>
<td>5,570</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NASDAQ TOP 50

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Company</th>
<th>Volume</th>
<th>Close</th>
<th>Change</th>
<th>52 WEEK HIGH</th>
<th>52 WEEK LOW</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>7700.74</td>
<td>6,549,200</td>
<td>22.26</td>
<td>0.01</td>
<td>22.61</td>
<td>11.49</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
OPEC reels from crisis in Asia

Associated Press

No one's happy," said Geof Pown, who follows oil for UBS Ltd. in London. "It's hard to see how they can do worse. I don't see that they can do a lot of damage unless they're silly enough to try to raise expectations of a production cut."

The Saudis have a good reason to stay away from any talk about cutbacks. "The damage is already done," said Geof Pown, who follows oil for UBS Ltd. in London. "It's hard to see how they can do worse. I don't see that they can do a lot of damage unless they're silly enough to try to raise expectations of a production cut."

The Saudis have a good reason to stay away from any talk about cutbacks. "The damage is already done," said Geof Pown, who follows oil for UBS Ltd. in London.

The biggest player, Saudi oil minister Ali Naimi, won't attend, so the handful of ministers who do show up will be stuck in a position where they can make recommendations but not do anything about a glut of oil on world markets.

OPEC decided in November, under severe pressure from the Saudis, to raise its stated output level by 10 percent, to 27.5 million barrels a day. But the group was already producing some 28 million barrels a day, and the economic crisis in Asia has destroyed all forecasts for a big growth in global demand for crude oil this year. As a result, prices are in retreat.

OPEC's secretary-general, Alwale Lukan of Nigeria, said, "If you are not happy, you are not alive." He added, "We are not in a position where we can make recommendations but not do anything about a glut of oil on world markets."

The price of oil has tumbled around $4 a barrel since then. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was getting more than $18 a barrel before — compared to its official target of $21 — but saw prices plunge to a little more than $14 last week.

This creates a dilemma that will tax the OPEC nations, missing national budget targets, and any kind of reversal in policy would mean a big loss of face for the Saudis, the world's top oil producers.

Unfortunately for oil consumers in developed western nations, retail fuel prices have not dropped so much because taxes make up a big part of the bill.

Analysts say the most likely solution for OPEC might be a quiet — maybe totally silent — unilateral decision by the Saudis to pump less.

"They'd be embarrassed to do something openly, as opposed to just cutting back in a quiet way," said Lee Brodell, chief economist at the Center for Global Energy Studies in London.

The Saudis produce about one-third of OPEC's oil and have the greatest ability to lower — or raise — output.

The ministers from Iran, Nigeria and Kuwait who have planned the emergency meeting one month ahead of schedule, make up a committee that monitors compliance, or really lack of compliance, with OPEC's assigned production levels.

Indonesia's oil minister, Ida Bagus Sudjana, who serves as the OPEC president, was also expected to attend.

Sharp divisions in the group of became apparent last week, when officials in Venezuela, the biggest quota-buster in OPEC, accused Saudi Arabia of pumping way too much.

Analysts don't buy it, and the Saudis privately denied it, but the unusually nasty exchanges show that OPEC will have a hard time if it actually tries to regain control of the market by restraining output.

OPEC members are Algeria, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Libya, Kuwait, Nigeria, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and Venezuela.

INS swells with new officers

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

Thanks to the growing national concern over immigration, the nation now has more immigration officials authorized to carry a gun and make arrests than it has FBI agents.

Led by a 31 percent increase at the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the number of armed federal agents with arrest power rose to 74,500 by mid-1996, the Justice Department reported Sunday.

That was about 6 percent higher than in 1993, the last time the Bureau of Justice Statistics conducted such a survey. Sixteen federal agencies each employ more than 500 armed agents with power to make arrests.

Concern over illegal immigration prompted the Clinton administration and Congress to increase the INS budget sharply. During the past three years, the agent force of the INS grew faster than any other federal agency except the Army and Fish and Wildlife Service, which had a 40 percent increase to 869 agents.

The INS is now the largest federal agent force, with more armed agents than either the Bureau of Prisons or the FBI.

Many of the 12,403 armed INS agents work for the Border Patrol, whose force is heavily concentrated along the Mexican border.
Associated Press

WASHINGTON

Anxious to cut a deal for immunity, the lawyer for Monica Lewinsky said Sunday her 24-year-old client "will tell all that she knows" to Whitewater prosecutors. "The chips will fall as they may," he said.

Attorney William Ginsburg said he has verbally indicated to investigators what Ms. Lewinsky will tell them in exchange for immunity from prosecution.

"I will remain in Washington as long as it takes to see that the truth in every detail, wherever it may fall, comes out," Ginsburg said.

Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr was in his Washington office Sunday night, said Deborah Gershman, a spokeswoman for the office.

Negotiations for a grant of absolute immunity for Ms. Lewinsky could be lengthy — but an alternative is available to Whitewater prosecutors. They could obtain a court order giving Ms. Lewinsky immunity — a more limited form that would compel Ms. Lewinsky's grand jury testimony as early as Tuesday when the Whitewater grand jury is scheduled to meet in Washington.

Under use immunity, Ms. Lewinsky's testimony could not be used against her. But she also would not have the blanket protection from prosecution that Ginsburg seeks.

President Clinton talked this weekend with heavyweight advisers brought back to Washington to help him through the crisis brought on by reports of a sexual relationship with Ms. Lewinsky and attempts at a cover-up. One of them, former Commerce Secretary Mickey Kantor, said his help was lawful in nature. "I have no qualms here, no political hat," he said.

In the first hint of an eyewitness, ABC reported Sunday night that the president and Ms. Lewinsky were caught in an intimate relationship with Clinton in an affidavit in the Paula Jones sexual harassment suit.

"We understand that both Mr. Panetta and Ms. Lieberman categorically deny that any sexual or intimate encounter," the White House said.

Lieberman, who is expected to be sub­poenaed to appear before the Whitewater special prosecutor, said he was shocked and depressed in the immediate aftermath.

"I don't approve of some of their tactics," said Panetta, who was still in New York. "But I have nothing but the highest praise for their professionalism and their attitude," Ginsburg said.

We are dying to tell the story, but we cannot. We are frozen in place," until his client gets total immunity, Ginsburg said. Ms. Lewinsky has denied an affair with Clinton in an affidavit in the Paula Jones sexual harassment suit.

Political consultant Paul Begala criticized Starr for having political motives. But presidents are human beings. And in (Clinton's) case, we knew this was an issue.

An ABC News poll released Sunday found that 54 percent of respondents believe Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath, and 50 percent believed he should step down if he asked Ms. Lewinsky to lie.

The ABC poll of 1,020 adults on Friday and Saturday found that 54 percent of respondents believe Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath, and 50 percent believed he should step down if he told Ms. Lewinsky to lie.

But the ABC poll, of 1,020 adults on Friday and Saturday, found that 54 percent believed he should resign if he perjured himself and 61 percent said asking Ms. Lewinsky to lie would be cause to force him out of the Oval Office.

An ABC News poll released Sunday found that 54 percent of respondents believe Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath, and 50 percent believed he should step down if he asked Ms. Lewinsky to lie.

Many Americans believe President Bill Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath about an affair with Monica Lewinsky or tried to obstruct justice by telling her to deny the affair, according to a Los Angeles Times poll released Sunday.

Of 1,191 adults surveyed Friday and Saturday, 51 per­cent said Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath and 61 percent said asking Ms. Lewinsky to lie would be cause to force him out of the Oval Office.

Ten percent felt he should resign if he lied under oath and 9 percent felt he should step down if he asked Ms. Lewinsky to lie.

About one-third of the respondents said the affair itself should prompt the president to resign.

Many Americans believe President Bill Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath, and 50 percent believed he should step down if he asked Ms. Lewinsky to lie.

A June Newsweek poll found that 64 percent of respondents believe Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath, and 61 percent said asking Ms. Lewinsky to lie would be cause to force him out of the Oval Office.

Among those who believe Clinton should be impeached, 54 percent believed he should resign if he perjured himself and 60 percent felt he should step down if he told her to lie.

Many Americans believe President Bill Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath about an affair with Monica Lewinsky or tried to obstruct justice by telling her to deny the affair, according to a Los Angeles Times poll released Sunday.

Of 1,191 adults surveyed Friday and Saturday, 51 per­cent said Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath and 61 percent said asking Ms. Lewinsky to lie would be cause to force him out of the Oval Office.

Ten percent felt he should resign if he lied under oath and 9 percent felt he should step down if he asked Ms. Lewinsky to lie.

About one-third of the respondents said the affair itself should prompt the president to resign.

Many Americans believe President Bill Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath, and 50 percent believed he should step down if he asked Ms. Lewinsky to lie.

A June Newsweek poll found that 64 percent of respondents believe Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath, and 61 percent said asking Ms. Lewinsky to lie would be cause to force him out of the Oval Office.

Among those who believe Clinton should be impeached, 54 percent believed he should resign if he perjured himself and 60 percent felt he should step down if he told her to lie.
Bronco fans get out of hand after win

Associated Press

DENVER

Denver Broncos' fans poured into the streets to celebrate their team's Super Bowl win Sunday night, and police in riot gear used tear gas to break up the rowdy crowds.

The trendy Lower Downtown district turned into a sea of orange and blue, homes and banners and signs as the clock ticked down to victory at Qualcomm Stadium.

Police Sgt. Dennis Cribari said several people had been arrested for lighting or creating a disturbance. He estimated about 10,000 people rallied downtown for about an hour before the game ended.

Rioters burned in Larimer Square, a center of downtown, and several young men hung from utility wires for several minutes before they were caught and dispersed. One person fell before landing in the crowd.

Police officers wearing masks threw tear gas as people hurled bottles at police horses in the Larimer Square area, where two cars were overturned by the crowd. One mounted police officer and his horse fell to the pavement while chasing a young reveler.

Airline pilots seek to limit U.S. flight zones

Associated Press

TOKYO

Airline pilot Mikio Hayashida was flying an Airbus 300 from Tokyo to Japan's northern airport of Aomori two years ago when two birds hit the jet's engines, and the plane collided with the ground. More than 100 people were injured in the accident.

The pilots were American F-16 jet fighters, and if they kept coming one would have to make a dire decision: descend or climb — a problem pilots say is getting some passengers in the process.

Fortunately, the planes veered off before that was necessary.

But commercial pilots like Hayashida are now sounding the alarm over what they consider a high frequency of dangerously low altitude missions, especially over populated areas and fly without following instructions.

They say their cows are producing less milk and their babies are more cranky. "Once I went up the hill to take pictures of the jet, and I was struck by its thundering noise," said Mamoru Kanda, an official of the Japanese Airline Pilots Association.

Later, police used tear gas and sprayed to clear the crowd, mostly people in their teens and 20s. Many revelers seemed dazed by the gas, and the smell permeated over several blocks.

Scott Rahnke said he was hit with a police spray.

"What are the cops going to do when this gets back to L.A.? This is Denver. This is minor," he said. "What are they going to do when they have an actual riot?"

After suffering through four Super Bowl losses, three during the John Elway era, fans were ready to celebrate.

Kevin Nicoletti, 21, wearing Elway's number 7 jersey, ran from the Sports Column bar and fell to the ground, screaming with joy and waving a team banner.

"Oh, when I was a kid, I tried every time they lost. I've been dreaming about this for 21 years," he said.

Minutes after the win, the Broncos announced plans for a victory parade Tuesday in downtown Denver.

Scott Harris and his friends arrived at their favorite sports bar seven hours before the Super Bowl kickoff and 1 1/2 hours before the bar even opened Sunday.

They got the last seats in the house.

"We're going to sit and eat and have a few drinks and get into the fever," Harris said as he bought a Super Bowl T-shirt at an outside kiosk near the Sports Column tavern.

City officials hoped for a controlled celebration. Shopkeepers took preventive measures, such as locking up movable trash cans and chairs.

They learned their lesson two years ago after the Colorado Avalanche won hockey's Stanley Cup. A disorderly crowd threw rocks and bottles, set small fires and caused some property damage after the Avalanche won.

Campus Ministry Events

Monday-Friday, January 26-20

Sign-up for NDE #50

Feb.27-March 1

Tuesday, January 27

Campus Bible Study

Of special interest:

EMMAUS

Are you interested in joining a scripture / faith sharing group in your residence hall? Discover a new way to be part of a community to enrich your faith.

Stop in to Campus Ministry or contact Jim Lyes, csc, John or Sylvia Dillon, Kate Barrett or Sarah Granger at 631-5242.

Contemporary Choir

Rehearsals on Wednesdays, 7:00-8:00 pm at Keenan-Stanford Chapel. For information, call Karen Schneider-Kirmer at 631-5242.
titled, “What I Saw at the Abortion” in Life. "I wanted to stay alive, and, for 25 years of saline, vacuums and needles our nation still has not followed suit. Thousands of unborn children have suffered and died. They are 36 million human-beings just like you and me. Who knows how many of them have been at Notre Dame right now, filled to the brim with dreams of their future or of a better world? Who knows how many of them might have changed this world? Thirty-six million children have been robbed of that chance in the last 25 years. History has a funny way of putting things into perspective. Recently, the pro-choice position seems to have shifted somewhat. Less people are making the moral argument that the unborn child is not a human life. More and more are simply using a sort of justifiable-homicide argument. The child’s death is somehow warranted because the child is being killed for an invaluable right to personal autonomy. I won’t get into the flawed philosophical underpinnings for such a position. Instead I will post the following question: what if, as every pro-life hopes, history comes out on the side of the unborn? What if history decides that the child’s right to life must be respected above all else, in the same way that those of us who are spared enjoy? How will history look at you? How will your descend­ants see their ancestry? Will you be one who fought your heart out for what you know was right? Or will you be one of those poor, timid souls who, faced with grave injustice, merely stared compla­cently, thereby incurring blame on yourself? Thirty-six million human being’s beings will never be sung, poetry will never be written, touchdowns will never be scored, victories will never be won, laughter will never be heard. What will histo­ry say you were doing when the children died?"

Brandon Williams is a junior history and philoso­phy major. His col­umn appears every other Monday. The views expressed in this column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Brandon Williams

A pro-abortionist, Selzer had arranged to witness an abortion as his latest foray into the abortion issue. I must confess, at first I wanted to write about something else. This is how Frederica Mathewes-Green describes her conversion from the pro-choice position in 1976, a short time after Roe v. Wade. Now, after 25 years of saline, vacuums and needles our nation still has not followed suit. Thousands of unborn children are still engaging in the futile struggle described above, faced with a civil code that declares them unworthy of life. That’s right. Roe v. Wade has now been around for 25 years. In light of this fact and the March for Life that took place the very next day, it is appropriate to write a column on the enduring issue. I must confess, at first I wanted to write about something else, but I thought, “There have already been so many columns on this issue. Hell, I’ve even written a few of them. Why add one more?” It’s true. The issue of abortion has been debated back and forth for 25 years! Only God knows how many words have been written and spoken on the subject. It’s almost starting to seem that people are tiring of the issue itself. The March for Life was barely covered by the media, especially considering the immense turnout. I can’t count how many times I have recently heard people proclaim, with a strong measure of frustration, “Let’s not talk about abortion! No one is going to change anyone’s mind any­way.” But minds must change. The issue must stay on the forefront. Pro­lifers must remember why they are fighting. That is what I want to show in this column. I want to remind you what we are fighting for.

What has happened in the 25 years since Roe v. Wade, besides people formulating various philosophical argu­ments and catchy slogans to try to convince each other, legislators and a schizophrenic American public that their side is right? Marlin Maddoux wrote an essay on this very subject... — I will only relate a few of the facts she brings to the forefront.

Since Roe v. Wade in 1973, 36 mil­lion unborn children have been abort­ed. To achieve the same mortality rate in the land of the born the entire popu­lations of Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Indiana, Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota would have to be methodically mur­dered over the next 25 years. Every day almost 6,400 children are aborted. That works out to nearly one child every 20 seconds. So, count to 20. Then count to 20 again. Each time you finish counting another child has lost their convulsing struggle to survive a doctor’s assault.

So what has happened in the last 25 years? Thirty-six million innocent children have suffered and died. They are 36 million human-beings just like you and me. Who knows how many of them would have been at Notre Dame right now, filled to the brim with dreams of their future or of a better world? Who knows how many of them might have changed this world? Thirty-six million children have been robbed of that chance in the last 25 years. History has a funny way of putting things into perspective.

Recently, the pro-choice position seems to have shifted somewhat. Less people are making the moral argument that the unborn child is not a human life. More and more are simply using a sort of justifiable-homicide argument. The child’s death is somehow warranted because the child is being killed for an invaluable right to personal autonomy. I won’t get into the flawed philosophical under­pinnings for such a position. Instead I will post the following question: what if, as every pro-life hopes, history comes out on the side of the unborn? What if history decides...
Dishonesty, Immorality
Associated with Clinton

If Bill Clinton had a soul, he'd be dangerous. He'd be lied to his wife, lied to his family, he's lied to the people of Arkansas, and he's lied to the American people. Why should we believe anything he or anyone in his administration have to say about his sexual morality or world's definition, not Clinton's affair with a then-21-year-old intern. He has a daughter who was born in '78.

As this "scoundrel" (another Clinton-speak lie) unemployment rate. However, with no clear definitions of the American people, the tide is turning.

The noise of Super Bowl style media coverage of a National Enquirer/Harry C. Dean

Kevin
Patrick
Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student at Fordham Law in "Preeminent Innocent" when speaking of a guilty defendant. You lie to your attorney, you lie to the cops, you lie to the judge, you lie to the jury, you lie to anyone.

"He's lying, that's enough doubt so they can't convict you." That is exactly what Clinton is doing and has done throughout his entire career — and it has worked. However, with the current jury of the American people, the tide is turning.

Kevin Patrick's name was Bob Packwood.

11 Joe Suzio Corneth

In the 1980s, the carmaker, Isuzu, ran an ad campaign with the tagline, "Isuzu. One car that makes the world a better place to live."

300 mph. Flashing the screen on in front of him would be a marquee in capital letters: "THE WHITE HOUSE HAS JUST MADE A STATEMENT" make a statement I keep waiting for: "Joe Suzio," marquee to start flashing on the screen. The marquee flashes: Clinton's distaste for the idea of forthright, honest and trust. Six years ago "50 Minutes" had a special after the Super Bowl where Clinton coyly relayed a 12-year affair with Flowers. What has he now admitted he was denying? That it was 12 years, not that he had an affair with her. This is a man who has exhibited time and again that he cannot be taken at his word. Which leaves us: "Those allegations are false" statement ringing hollow and not believable.

3) Patriotism — the last refuge of a scoundrel. When Clinton makes statements like: "I just want to get back to doing the basics of the American people." Or is "It's time to put this aside and let the White House get back to work." I find him pathetic. If Bill Clinton was doing the work of the American people, he would not be in this mess. And to the bizarre world of not-commonly-accepted definitions, if letting the White House get back to work means having sex with 21-year-old interns, maybe we should harass them with time consuming pretexts.

3) Morality? We don't need to study nothing modern for all his criminal and political maneuvering, a simple concept is being lost. Monica Lewinsky is a victim here. Every year thousands of kids flock to Washington, D.C. to work in politics and serve the public. The prestige of the position compensates for the subsstandard pay (or in Ms. Lewinsky's case prestige of the position compensates for the substandard pay (or in Ms. Lewinsky's case prestige of the position compensates for the substandard pay). The President of the United States abused his position and had sex with one of his interns. Bill Clinton is 51 years old and had a relationship with a then-21-year-old intern. I am 27 years old and would have some difficulty dating a 32-year-old. It is the reason I have no dates). Kind of man, husband, or father he is? Using the presidency to woo immature women. This president has no moral authority and from all indications has no morals either. That is a scary thought.

"OKAY, MISTAKES

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Kevin Patrick is a third year JD/MBA student. He can be found working on his website or e-mailing half the column. You can e-mail him at kevin.patro0@fordham.edu. His column appears every other Monday.

The views expressed in this column are those of the one and not necessarily those of The Observer.
What ever happened to seri­...
By BETSY BAKER

Sports

Dave's recruiting beginning to pay off

It is highly unlikely that it was an unusual recruiting stunt of part of Notre Dame head coach Bob Davie's to have 23 of his team's senior players sign with the Irish last season. It might have been the smartest recruiting move he has ever made.

Besides the fact that Davie is known in recruiting circles as the obviou...
The Observer • SPORTS

W. Ball
continued from page 20

Providence in almost every statistic. Offensively, all 12 players on the Irish roster scored, five of them in double figures. Green led the pack with a career-high 22 points, going 9-of-16 from beyond the arc. Ivey improved the season and 7-3 in conference play. The Irish won 109-60. The Observer/Rob Finch

Head for the Hills!
Appalachia Seminar

THE SEMINAR
• Offers service work through various sites in Appalachia
  March 7-14, 1998
• Is a one credit Theology course
• Involves orientation & follow-up classes
• Past participants in Appalachia Seminar are encouraged to apply as site coordinators
• Presents opportunity to work, laugh, & learn with others

INFORMATION SESSION
Monday January 26, 1998
7:30-8:00 PM
Center for Social Concerns

APPLICATIONS
Available at the Center for Social Concerns
Due date: Wednesday, January 28, 1998
$40 deposit with application (non-refundable if accepted)

FURTHER INFORMATION
Sean Frey, Student Co-chair, 4-4911
Ryan Murphy, Student Co-chair, 4-1980
Rachel Tomas Morgan, Seminar Coordinator, 1-9473
Jay Brandenberger, Faculty Advisor, 1-5293

continued from page 20

Notre Dame's 109-60 rout of Providence was the second-highest scoring effort of the McGraw era.

nificent Fighting Irish defense that did the Friars in. After shooting 53 percent in a 102-93 loss to West Virginia on Wednesday, Providence slumped to a dismal 32.2 percent from the field, including 7-of-32 sport in the first half. From beyond the arc, the visitors completed only one of nine shots in the first half, and 4-of-17 for the game. The visitors were led by sophomore Meghan Hinds, who had 12 points on 3-of-12 shooting. With the loss, the Friars fall to 8-10 on the season and 4-6 in the Big East.

"Our intensity just was not there consistently," Providence head coach Jim Jabir remarked on the game. "We were really up and down mentally. I like Notre Dame's team. They're well balanced, they're fantastic. We just could not play consistently for 40 minutes against them."

McGraw, however, felt that a great deal of credit had to go to the 5,056 fans that attended the contest, a season-high at the Joyce Center.

"It is so great to see that kind of atmosphere out here. The teams work so hard that it's great for the team to see that kind of support. We know people have been supporting us all along, but to have those kind of numbers ... that makes the game fun."

With the win, Notre Dame improves its record to 13-3 in the season and 7-3 in conference play. The Irish will now travel eastward to face Villanova on Wednesday, before heading home to close the weekend in a Saturday afternoon contest against Seton Hall at the Joyce Center.

Utah shocks Chicago, 101-94
Malone's 35 keep Jordan, Bulls in check

Associated Press

Karl Malone scored 35 points and the presence of Bulls had boy Dennis Rodman mattered little to the Utah Jazz, who did what they couldn't do in last year's NBA Finals - win at the United Center. Howard Eisley and Bryon Russell provided a big lift off the bench as the Jazz won 101-94 Sunday, handing the Bulls only their second home loss this season.

The Jazz reached the midpoint of the season at 28-13 — the same record they had last season when they won 64 games and earned their first berth in the finals. But Utah lost the series 4-2, dropping all three games at Chicago as the Bulls won their second consecutive title and fifth in seven years.

Michael Jordan scored 32 points for the Bulls (10-3), who didn't sustain their 13th loss last season until the final game in Chicago. Chicago had its 17-game winning streak snapped now is 21-2 at the United Center, matching its home winning total for each of the past two seasons.

The Bulls, who had been 36-0 at home against Western Conference teams since Jordan came out of retirement in March 1995, begin a six-game road trip Tuesday and don't play at home again until Feb. 10. The Jazz also cost Phil Jackson the opportunity to coach the Eastern Conference in next month's All-Star game. Although the Bulls are a half-game ahead of Indiana, the Pacers have a 700 winning percentage to Chicago's 698 so Larry Bird will have the honor. Bob Jackson and Bird have said they'd rather not be involved.

Rodman was back after being sent home before Friday's game at New Jersey for missing that morning's practice. He had been out until the early hours that morning and didn't go to the practice because "I didn't feel like it," Rodman didn't start but played 34 minutes, grabbing 14 rebounds.

With Malone and star John Stockton resting on the bench, the Jazz wrapped the fourth quarter with a 15-6 run to take a 92-79 lead with 5:55 to play. Russell had all seven of his points and Eisley six of his 11.

The Bulls rallied to 98-94 on Toni Kukoc's 3-pointer with 55.3 seconds left but the Jazz got a break when the 24-second clock was reset even though Stockton failed to go to the practice before. Utah kept the ball and clinched the game with a free throw by Stockton and two Malone free throws.

Pippen had six points and two assists during a 13-4 surge that gave the Bulls a 49-40 lead with 2 1/2 minutes left in the third quarter. But Malone scored seven points as the Jazz scored the final nine points of the half to tie.

Malone had five points during a 10-2 run that gave the Jazz a 73-67 lead with 1:44 left in the third quarter. Utah took a 77-73 lead into the fourth.

• NBA
• Utah shocks Chicago, 101-94
• Malone's 35 keep Jordan, Bulls in check

Head for the Hills!
Appalachia Seminar

The Seminar
• Offers service work through various sites in Appalachia
  March 7-14, 1998
• Is a one credit Theology course
• Involves orientation & follow-up classes
• Past participants in Appalachia Seminar are encouraged to apply as site coordinators
• Presents opportunity to work, laugh, & learn with others

Information Session
Monday January 26, 1998
7:30-8:00 PM
Center for Social Concerns

Applications
Available at the Center for Social Concerns
Due date: Wednesday, January 28, 1998
$40 deposit with application (non-refundable if accepted)

Further Information
Sean Frey, Student Co-Chair, 4-4911
Ryan Murphy, Student Co-Chair, 4-1980
Rachel Tomas Morgan, Seminar Coordinator, 1-9473
Jay Brandenberger, Faculty Advisor, 1-5293

Meeting for
Notre Dame Lesbian and Gay Students Group

NDB/LGS Group Advisors: Fr. Tom Gaughan, C.S.C.
St. Mary Lemon Gode, C.S.C.
All Meetings are private and confidential.

International Working Opportunity
OBC English
Conversation School
is seeking university graduates for a one month teaching position in Japan. Attractions:
Salary, benefits and travel opportunities. Japanese language skills are necessary.
RECRUITING DATES: February 2, 3, 4, 1998
at Career and Placement Services.
Open to all majors.
Broncos' Davis named Super Bowl XXXII MVP

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — This was the sweetest homecoming of all for Terrell Davis. First, his high school retired his number and then he retired Denver's four-game Super Bowl losing streak with an MVP performance in Sunday's 31-24 victory over Green Bay.

Davis became the catalyst for the first long, 13-game AFC losing streak by simply running over the Packers. He rushed for 157 yards and became the first player to rush for three touchdowns in a Super Bowl.

After Green Bay struck for the game's first touchdown, Davis brought the Broncos back. His 27-yard run punctuated Denver's first TD drive, and he finished it off with a 1-yarder. He ran 38 yards and caught a pass for 4 in the drive.

Moments later, he was back again, going 16 yards on first down and the quarter's next TD drive. The third-year running back from Georgia gained 64 yards in the first quarter alone and seemed to give the Broncos, beleaguered in this game, a major injection of confidence.

When he went out with a migraine headache, missing much of the second quarter, Denver struggled. When he came back in the second half, the Broncos flourished.

He fumbled on his first carry after returning, leading to the tying field goal, but then he was the old Davis, helping the Broncos drive back downfield. And when he barreled into the end zone for the go-ahead touchdown at the end of the third quarter, it was a statement TD. And when Denver went on its winning drive in the final three minutes, Davis' 17-yard run put the ball at the 1. When he ran into the end zone, it provided the exclamation point on a brilliant game.

It has been that way all season for Davis, whose flashy end zone sprints after scoring TDs became a rallying point for a team that so often seemed to lack one. His 1,750 yards rushing — best in the AFC — helped, too. Davis' fourth straight 100-yard playoff game and 10th this season pushed him into the record books, past Eric Dickerson with the most yards gained in a single season. He took Denver on his back at the start of the year and carried them to their ultimate goal at the end.

That's a long way from being a sixth round draft pick, largely ignored and passed over for bigger names like Ki-Jana Carter, Napoleon Kaufman, James Stewart and Rashaan Salaam.

It was the same way coming out of high school when he was a nose tackle and blocking back. He started out playing at Long Beach State for coach George Allen and after the program was dropped, he moved to Georgia.

"I was surprised to be drafted because in college, I didn't have the stars," he said. "I only had a little over 400 yards rushing my senior year.

"He became an instant force for the Broncos, giving John Elway the ground game he never really had for a balanced attack. Davis looks back with pride on what he's done after his rather humble beginnings.

"There's a lot of things I look back on and say, I'm proud of that," he said. "But ultimately, there's not one thing I can point to and say, This is my proudest moment."

Terrell Davis set a Super Bowl record with three rushing TDs in the Broncos' 31-24 victory over the Packers.
Kevin Turner scored 17 points and Illinois held No. 16 Michigan to its lowest point total of the season in a 64-53 victory Sunday.

Michigan finished 24 points below its season average and the total was one point below what the Wolverines scored in a one-point win over Detroit on Nov. 30.

Illinois (13-7, 5-2 Big Ten) took control of the game early in the second half as a 9-0 run gave it a 42-30 lead with 15:30 left. Turner started the spurt with a basket that was followed by a 3-pointer by Matt Heldman. Brian Johnson added a free throw and Turner completed the run with a 3-pointer.

Michigan (15-5, 5-2) didn't score its first basket of the second half until 6:51 left, but still cut Illinois' lead to 51-44 with a jumper with 15:07 left.

Johnson completed the run with a 3-pointer with a basket that was followed by a 3-pointer by Matt Heldman.

Brian Johnson made three free throws, and Illinois led 44-34 with 1:39 left. Michigan finished 24 points below its season average and the total was one point below what the Wolverines scored in a one-point win over Detroit on Nov. 30.

Illinois led 16-14 with 11 minutes left in the first half when Turner, who scored six quick points, sparked a 13-4 run to put the Illini up 29-18 with seven minutes remaining. Illinois led 33-22 with four minutes left when the Wolverines went on an 8-0 run to cut Illinois' halftime lead to 33-30.

No. 21 Cincinnati 88, No. 22 Rhode Island 81

Ruben Patterson scored 27 points, including two clenching free throws, and No. 21 Cincinnati held on to beat No. 22 Rhode Island 88-82 Sunday.

Rhode Island turned an 11-point deficit from an overtime loss to Marquette by finally getting a solid game out of Patterson. The forward was suspended for the first 14 games of the season because of NCAA rules violations and scored only 29 points in his first three games back.

Rhode Island (13-7, 5-2 Big Ten) couldn't stop Patterson's drives to the basket, which set up a 16-9 run to start the second half that put Cincinnati ahead to stay.

Rhode Island cut a 10-point deficit to 84-82 on Tyron Wheeler's three-pointer with 1:18 left and got the ball back by blocking Bobby Brannen's shot with 46 seconds to go. Wheeler missed a three-point shot from the right wing, Patterson got the rebound and made two free throws with 17 seconds left to clinch it.

Cuttino Mobley scored 26 points — nine in the closing sport — to lead Rhode Island.

Neither team could gain a total advantage, and Illinois wasn't a lot better, shooting 41 percent (23-of-56). The Illini were out of the way and did their best to dominate the rebounding by a 42-33 margin.

Most of Cincinnati's points came inside — the Bearcats dominated in offensive rebounds 13-2 — and Patterson got most of them. Patterson scored 16 points in the half on 5-of-12 shooting.

But there was nothing to it until the second Patterson. The Bearcats were 4-of-15 from 3-point range, the main reason they couldn't get momentum.

By contrast, Rhode Island developed an inside-outside attack, piling up five dunks and going 6-9 on three-pointers in the half. But when the Rams missed, they rarely got a second shot, preventing them from pulling back.

Overall, Cincinnati dominated the boards 42-18.

Patterson put Cincinnati in control at the start of the second half by taking the ball to the basket. He had two dunks, a steal and a three-point play as the Bearcats moved ahead 54-48.

Michael Horton's fastbreak layup pushed the lead to 74-64 with 6:58 left, and the Bearcats held on.

No. 9 UCLA 88, Louisville 82

R. Henderson scored a career-high 32 points as No. 9 UCLA blew most of a 24-point lead, but finished with 16 points before fouling out with 1:24 left.

That was the closest the Bearcats got, but they couldn't get a three-point play off. That's when Bailey took over, driving inside against the smaller Bearcats.

That's when Bailey took over, driving inside against the smaller Bearcats.

It took him until 1:12 to play, but Bailey finished with 19 points and Johnson had 13. Patterson put Cincinnati in control at the start of the second half by taking the ball to the basket. He had two dunks, a steal and a three-point play as the Bearcats moved ahead 54-48.

Michael Horton's fastbreak layup pushed the lead to 74-64 with 6:58 left, and the Bearcats held on.

R. Henderson scored a career-high 32 points as No. 9 UCLA blew most of a 24-point lead, but finished with 16 points before fouling out with 1:24 left.

That was the closest the Bearcats got, but they couldn't get a three-point play off. That's when Bailey took over, driving inside against the smaller Bearcats.

It took him until 1:12 to play, but Bailey finished with 19 points and Johnson had 13. Patterson put Cincinnati in control at the start of the second half by taking the ball to the basket. He had two dunks, a steal and a three-point play as the Bearcats moved ahead 54-48.

Michael Horton's fastbreak layup pushed the lead to 74-64 with 6:58 left, and the Bearcats held on.
No. 1 Tennessee rolls to victory over Commodores

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Chantelle'Holden scored 24 points and Semeka Randall and Tamika Catchings each added 22 Sunday as No. 1 Tennessee beat a ranked opponent for the ninth tim e
this season. routing Vanderbilt
86-54.
The Lady Vols (21-0, 7-0 Southeastern Conference) opened the second half with a opponent for the ninth tim e
and added 22 Sunday as No. 1
Holdsclaw each page 16 The Observer • which Hillmon fouled out and bucket and a pair of free throw s for a 61-33 lead with bask et with 13:35 left, but
24-2 run, harassing Vanderbilt
86-54.
Hillmon. The Lady Vols put 12:32 remaining,

The Blue Devils scored the game's first eight points and led 43-28 at halftime. Howard scored 10 points in a span of 3:20, putting Duke up 23-11
with her second 3-pointer.
Duke led by as many as 25 points in the second half after a 10-0 run that featured consecutive 3-pointers by Erickson and a 10-foot jumper
by VanGorp with 6:33 remainning.
Erickson was 7-for-10,
including 5-for-7 from 3-point range. Duke shot 31-for-61, while Clemson was 22-for-56.
Wisconsin closed the first half with an 18-2 run to erase a 21-14 deficit and build a 32-
23 halftime lead. Sims led the Badgers, who play five of their platforms.

The Lady Vols finished at 37.3 percent from the field, while the Gophers finished at 37.3 percent. Nikki Tcasley had two free throws and a 3-pointer in the next minute, starting a 15-4
Tar Heels run.
North Carolina led by as many as 15 points, 71-56,
after a steal and layup by Brice with 5:37 left.
The Demon Deacons made only 13 of 54 shots and com­ mitt ed 25 turnovers. They were outrebounded 42-36.
Hockey
Icers down conference rival
By CHARLEY GATES
Sports Writer
The Boys of Winter surged into seventh place in the competitive Central Collegiate Hockey Association polls with a gritty, 2-4 overtime defeat of Bowling Green Saturday night at Bowling Green. The Irish (13-10-3 overall, 8-7-3 CCHA) were propelled to victory by senior captain Steve Noble, who scored two goals and assisted on a third, and by junior right wing Brian Urick, who notched his fifth game-winning goal of the season four seconds into the overtime period.
Junior goaltender Forrest Karr improved to 6-1-1 on the season, making 30 saves. Three of Karr’s eight career victories have come at the expense of Bowling Green. Notre Dame now stands in seventh place ahead of Ferris State but remain one point behind Ohio State University. The top eight teams in the CCHA advance to the coveted CCHA playoffs.
The Irish struck early in the game on the power play. Noble led the charge, carrying the puck down the left side. Hedishied it to freshman left wing Dan Carlson, who one-timed it into the net for his eighth goal of the season. Bowling Green answered just 42 seconds later on a power-play goal of its own, sending the game into the locker room tied at 1 after one period.
The Boys of Winter stretched their lead to 3-1 with two goals in the first nine minutes of the second period. Noble notched his second point of the game at the 5:11 mark, bunging a slap shot that sneaked inside the left post. Freshman right wing Ryan Dolle followed Noble’s example four minutes later. He took a pass from Dhadphale — who got hit immediately after the play—and streaked down the left side, angling into the crease as he nudged toward the goal. Dolder was able to slap the puck into the right corner of the net for a 4-2 lead.
But the home team came roaring back, eventually tying the game and forcing overtime. But the day belonged to the Irish and Urick. He took a pass from sophomore defender Nathan Borges and let loose a low shot that went through the legs of goal tender Shawn Timm, giving the Irish their 5-4 win and seventh place in the CCHA.

The Jacques Maritain Center
presents
Jeffrey Satinover, M.D.

Dr. Satinover is a practicing psychiatrist and psychoanalyst and is the former president of the C. G. Jung Foundation of New York. He holds degrees from MIT, Harvard, and the University of Texas, and is a former Fellow in Psychiatry and Child Psychiatry at Yale and a former William James lecturer in Psychology and Religion at Harvard.
An Orthodox Jew living in Connecticut, Dr. Satinover is also the author of Homosexuality and the Politics of Truth, a widely applauded analysis of the current debate over homosexuality viewed from psychological, religious and scientific perspectives. Dr. Satinover will address the argument, advanced at Notre Dame as well as nationally, that the American Psychiatric Association’s 1973 vote not to treat homosexuality as a psychological disorder ought to end all discussion of the matter. He hopes that his talk will contribute a needed perspective to Notre Dame’s discussion of homosexuality.

Tuesday, January 27
Hesburgh Library Auditorium • 8:00 p.m.

Co-sponsored by the Jung Foundation

Homosexuality and the Politics of Science

"On the one hand we must decide how best to counter the tactics of intimidation and refute the false claims of a group that operates in the hostile mode of raw, power politics. On the other hand we must retain the profound compassion and fellow-feeling toward individual homosexuals that we ourselves need and yearn for from others."
—Homosexuality and the Politics of Truth

THE OBSERVER • page 17
Irish rewrite track record books

By KATHLEEN O'BRIEN
Sports Writer

Stellar performances by four members of the Notre Dame track and field team will long be remembered, as they etched their names into the record books in only the second meet of the season.

Mike Brown smashed the record in the pole vault by over nine inches, cross-country all-American Joanna Deeter dropped nine seconds off the school record set in 1982. Nadia Schmiedt broke the 600-meter run record set in 1993 by running a 1:32.76, and Errol Williams tied the 55-meter hurdles record. Many other runners also placed highly.

“Errol Williams improved upon his time that he ran last week that got him into the NCAAs with 7.29,” said head coach Joe Plano. “Mike Brown set a school record of 17'6" in the pole vault. That will get them into the NCAAs, we believe. We’ll just have to wait and see.”

“I think the team learned that they can compete very well within the Big East. I was real pleased with Nick Fehring, both distance runners.”

“Everyone’s so supportive and it can compete very well within the Big East. I was real pleased with Nick Fehring, both distance runners.”

“I think the team learned that they can compete very well within the Big East. I was real pleased with Nick Fehring, both distance runners.”

“Now we have to do something on the track as well and a good mental attitude, and a good race,” said Williams, a captain. “My goals are still to win the Big East again, qualify for nationals, and perform well at nationals.”

“I was really happy because it’s the first meet, and you just really want to get started off on the right foot. I felt really good yesterday, and I plan to run a lot faster,” said Deeter. “I definitely want to get into the indoor national meet, run my own race, and get back into running with the best people in the nation. It’s a good place for me to try to get my mind off the long jump. I’m real- ly aiming towards doing the pentathlon. She deserves a lot of credit for that,” Winter said.

“Engelhardt, a sophomore, said of the long jump, “It’s a fun event for me to try to get my mind off the long jump. I’m really aiming towards doing the pentathlon this year. I really want to do well in the Big East in the high jump and break the school record in the long jump if that’s possible.”"
MOTHER GOOSE & GRIMM

DILBERT

Mike Peters

I APOINTED MYSELF "DEPUTY OF COMMON SENSE."

MIKE PETERS

I WILL APPLY SWIFT JUSTICE TO THOSE WHO EXHIBIT A LACK OF COMMON SENSE.

SCOTT ADAMS

SO, IT'S SWIFT JUSTICE FOR PEOPLE WHO AREN'T TOO SWIFT?

AND I'M USING A CHOCOLATE GUN FOR IRONY.

The Observer

Published Monday through Friday, The Observer is a vital source of information on people and events in the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's Community.

Join the more than 13,000 readers who have found The Observer an indispensable link to the two campuses. Please complete the accompanying form and mail it today to receive The Observer in your home.

Make checks payable to:

and mail to:

The Observer
P.O. Box Q
Notre Dame, IN 46556

Enclosed is $85 for one academic year

Enclosed is $45 for one semester

Name
Address
City
State
Zip

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Aries: It's a fabulous time to get out and shake your thing. You're feeling extra bubbly today so get your gorgeous self out on the dance floor. You will notice a host of dazzling partners.

Taurus: What more could you ask in life but time to do what ever you please? Make that dream a reality today and please yourself. You'll be glad you did, and you might even meet a special someone.

Gemini: Indulge your airy nature today by pursuing foreign arts. Take your pick from belly dancing to expressionist paintings, a world of sheer delights awaits you. Be wary of conflict with family members this evening.

Cancer: Make way for Cancer, you are ready to roll with the punch. You will overcome adversaries and have a terrific time along the way.

Leo: What have you been up to lately? Leo? Looks like you've been sticking your fingers in the cookie jar again, fortunately for you it's nothing too serious. Just stop cheating at card games will you?

Virgo: Take a break from work today and think about the more fun side of your future. You've been neglecting your beloveds lately, so make time for some extra communication. All will work out well in the end.

Libra: Feeling a little weary Libra? You don't have to run around like a chicken without a head to get things done. You know. Take time to breathe, and smile, and others will respond much more positively to you.

Scorpio: There's nothing wrong with that an oversized hillbilly and some good times wouldn't fix. It's not the best time to go out, so make the most of your misery and stay home with videos.

Sagittarius: Get a case of the Monday blues Saggy? Try not to freak out remember that friends are there to lend a hand. Before it or not, you'll achieve more than you ever thought possible today.

Capricorn: Why not spill yourself today Capricorn? After all, it's been a long, hard haul lately. Take your sweeter out for a right on the town. Remember, a little romance can go a long, long way.

Aquarius: There's no one but you to hold you back today Aquarius. So take on the world, and the world will laugh with you. A great time for meeting cool friends and influencing famous people.

Pisces: After a hard day of work, sit yourself a martini and prepare for an adventurous evening. Be sure to dress up especially sharp an unexpected turn of events will take you on an exciting journey.

Menu

Notre Dame

South
Canadian Cheese Soup
Grilled Fresh Polish Sausage
Roast Turkey Breast
Manicotti
Chicken & Cheese
Chimichangas

North
Roast Turkey Breast
Santana Grilled Delight
Manicotti
Chicken Tenders
Canadian Cheese Soup

Wanted:

Reporters and editors.

Join The Observer staff.

Notre Dame, IN 46556
Irish cook Friars at ‘Jam the Joyce’

Green scores career high 22 points in rout

By BILL HART
Sports Writer

At any particular women’s basketball game, the cheerleaders will throw out a couple of shirts to the crowd after a spectacular basket made by a Notre Dame player. By the end of the first half in Saturday’s Notre Dame-Providence game, the leprechaun had to be wondering whether he would have enough to last the game.

In one of its most balanced and extensive scoring efforts of the season, Notre Dame’s women’s basketball team routed Providence 109-60 Saturday at the Joyce Center.

The game started off with a bang as senior Mollie Peirick converted a three-pointer in the first shot of the game. After a slow start, Providence was able to get on the board with a perimeter shot of its own by freshman Jen Gombotz. The Friars came storming back, using a layup by freshman Monika Roberts to tie the game at 12 points. With a little over 10 minutes to go in the half, the game was knotted at 16 apiece.

Then, the rout began.

Freshman Ruth Riley, a major inside force for the Irish, jumpedstarted the Notre Dame offense with a layup with 10:30 remaining in the first half. After a layup from sophomore Niele Ivey, a three-pointer from junior Sheila McClellan extended the Irish lead to 10 points. Finally, a breakaway layup by Roberts ended the 35-11 Irish run. By the end of the half, though, the Irish held a 51-27 advantage.

“In the past few games I think I struggled with my shooting,” McClellan said about her performance. “But today, I really wanted to get going and after I hit that first three, really helped me get focused.”

“In the second half, the Irish picked up right from where they left off,” peirick began the half with an easy jumper, while Ivey hit a three-pointer to push the lead over 30 points. It took almost three minutes for the Friars to get on the board through a layup by freshman Dana Trigpany. In the next possession, Peirick drained a three-pointer in response. For the first four minutes of the second half, the Irish went on a 15-2 run to quickly erase any chances of a Providence comeback.

However, the Irish victory was marred by an injury. While on defense, Peirick turned her right ankle, which was already frail from a previous injury. Despite walking off the court under her own power, she did not return for the rest of the game.

“Mollie turned it before when we were practicing for the Boston College game,” Mcgraw said about the injury. “The most disappointing thing is that I had just sent Niele to the scorer’s table to replace her on that play. She wasn’t practice for the Villanova game.

Despite the injury, the Irish still kept going strong. Senior Mary Leffers drained a three-pointer that pushed the Irish past the century mark. The lead was stretched to 50 points at some one point late in the contest before a Friar three-pointer gave the visitors their final points of the half.

“I thought we executed pretty well,” McGraw said about the team’s performance. “I felt we were playing very loose; we were getting the ball well, passing the ball around. It was just a great team effort.”

By the end of the game, Notre Dame had outscored Providence 65-33 in the second half.

Daniele Green fights for one of her seven rebounds against the Friars.

see M. TENNIS / page 18

Enloe works overtime in wins

By SHANNON RYAN
Sports Writer

Eric Enloe apparently either loves the attention or thinks he’s getting paid by the hour. Keeping true to his tradition Saturday, Enloe was the last Irish player on the Eck Pavilion courts in Notre Dame’s 5-1 wins over both DePaul and Miami of Ohio. Although the Irish had already secured wins that afternoon, Enloe played the matches to three long sets.

“Eric didn’t play his smartest matches,” head coach Bob Bayliss said. “But he had the guts, heart and character to come out on top.”

With all eyes on him, the senior defeated DePaul’s exhausted Dan Auger 6-0, 6-7, 6-2.

In the afternoon portion against Miami, Enloe stretched the match into the dinner hours. In front of an audience that more resembled a Wrestlemania crowd than tennis fans, Enloe finally overcame Yvon Edomano, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

The win, however, had a much easier and more concise time in front of a supportive crowd.

Ryan Sachire, playing at the No. 1 position, was able to pour on the pressure to defeat DePaul’s Greg Tranquada, 6-4, 6-2.

His biggest obstacle was accurately reading Canadian Tranquada’s serve. As the serves became more literate to Canadian’s character, eliminating early errors served as the key to winning.

Senior captain Danny Rothschild played true to character, eliminating early errors to subdue Conrad Nowak, 6-4, 6-3.

“I had a little trouble early but then focused on making him lose,” Rothschild commented.

Andy Warford, playing at No. 5, did not play his best match but touched it out against Iory McKinney. The North Dakota native gained the fourth Notre Dame win, 6-4, 6-3.

“Joe wasn’t as sharp as what we would have liked,” Bayliss said. “But he sucked it up down the stretch to win.”

Rothschild and Sachire again made monstrous strides for the Irish by defeating two of Miami’s best. Sachire breezed by Champy Hallm, 6-3, 6-2, and Rothschild stopped Davie’s Babies?

Recreational 38
The Observer looks at the recruits likely to sign with the Irish this February

Monday, January 26, 1998

see M. TENNIS / page 18