Autopsy: Brumbaugh died of enlarged heart

By COLLEEN McCARTHY
Newspaper Writer

Funeral arrangements have been made, it has been revealed about what caused the sudden death of Notre Dame senior Justin Brumbaugh on Sunday in the center of Business Administration.

The autopsy performed Monday indicated the cause of Brumbaugh’s death was an enlarged heart. Brumbaugh collapsed on Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in the ORA computer cluster and was taken to St. Joseph’s Medical Center where he was pronounced dead at 4:30 p.m.

Visitación, a prayer service for Justin Brumbaugh, will take place in Dayton, Ohio. The visitation will take place at the Westbrook Funeral Home today from 4 to 8 p.m. followed by a prayer service on Thursday at 9:30 a.m. at the funeral home and a procession to Emmanuel Catholic Church, where Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. For more information, the funeral home can be contacted at (937) 228-6161.

Sections of Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s communities will travel to Ohio for the funeral service.

"We were able to get a large box that would hold 57 people, but some people are still choosing to drive," David Stocker, Brumbaugh’s resident advisor, said. "There are mostly people from Knot going, but there are also people from other men and women’s dorms on campus and from Saint Mary’s going.

The bus will leave at 12 p.m. today from the Library Circle at Notre Dame.

Since Brumbaugh’s death on Sunday, the college community has been partaking in various activities to remember him.

"We had a memorial Mass with Justin’s parents last night in the dorm and that was hard," Stocker said. "Some people are dealing with it better than others, but we are taking it day by day. The dorm is still in somewhat of a shock."

Health services promotes week of random kindness

By MELANIE GARMAN
Saint Mary’s Student News Editor

As a women’s institution, Saint Mary’s College promotes the physical and emotional well-being of its students. As the campus celebrates Random Acts of Kindness Week, many organizations and departments have participated in events for the betterment of the students, faculty, and staff.

This year’s Random Acts of Kindness Week is being sponsored by the Saint Mary’s College Health Services, in conjunction with the Wellness Center. After being informed of the event through South Bend’s Memorial Hospital, Debbie Bauters, a Health Services registered nurse, decided to take the project on herself.

"Health Services is oftentimes viewed as the place to go when you are sick," said Bauters. "We thought that this event could inform and educate students, as well as create a positive bond between both students and the health services facility.

Some of the activities that have taken place on the campus include a giving tree displaying slips of paper with acts of kindness on them and bulletin boards located in each of the dorms with posters that read “It’s nice to be nice.” On each bulletin board, students have the opportunity to voice their own acts of kindness on a pledge card, stating what they have done to help a friend or classmate.

To incorporate faculty and staff into the Random Acts of Kindness Week, each department

Student Senate

Senate discusses Latino/Hispanic studies, service week

By MATTHEW LOUGHRAN
Associate News Editor

An initiative to establish a Latino/Hispanic studies department and the announcement of a “Mother Teresa Service Week” at the end of March highlighted the Student Senate meeting last night.

The meeting, held on Tuesday night because of the funeral tomorrow in Ohio for Justin Brumbaugh, which both student body president Matt Griffin and student senate vice president Matt Nuss will attend, was strictly informational since a quorum was not present.

The Latino/Hispanic studies initiative will feature a social and discussion with visiting scholars and Notre Dame faculty. It begins at 9:30 p.m. on Friday at the Center for Social Concerns. The event will last until 11:30 p.m. with a dance and music by Sabor Latino, a band made-up of Notre Dame faculty, staff and students.

“We have an African-American studies department, an Irish studies department and an Asian studies department,” Nass said. “The Hispanic population is the largest minority on campus, and we don’t have a department for Hispanic studies. Hopefully this is something that will help.

Jake Cooper, senator from Stanford Hall and Brandon Williams, senator of Zehnbauer Hall, presented the idea for a Mother Teresa Service Week. “The purpose of this is to show that there are opportunities for service in the South Bend community,” Cooper said.

The sign-ups for the week should circulate beginning on Feb. 25. All who are interested can also ask their hall senators and presidents for information.
Be true to your school

Notre Dame student body forms as much a part of the school as many other campus across the country. Many students come to school every time they pull on a sweater, tie on a shoe, and get dressed across the chest, or go home to questions of, "What do I wear to Notre Dame?"

Right now is no time when being a Dome makes me want to take off that sweat-shirt and just go with the Hard Rock Cafe t-shirt. And many of these times seem to come at sporting events -- football and basketball in particular.

Last Tuesday, The Observer ran a letter from a Notre Dame student that said: "We're so far above that. Let's show it."

Tonight and every game -- simply turn our backs and wait for the Irish names to be announced. Maybe we need to be more clever; we need to be more unique. Not everyone agrees with it, not every-thing we do. The University was able to do the right thing this year college student Leslie Ann Baltz. An intoxicated driver was killed when he was hit by a car he was driving.

The Observer staff would like to thank you for your support, and to say that we are going to continue to be true to our school and Notre Dame. Be true to your school.

Dan Cichalski
Assistant Managing Editor

University of Arizona promotes education with free tuition

TUCSON, Ariz. -- UA president Peter Likins Friday promised a free college education to 101 third-grade students who attend a southern Arizona elementary school -- but only if the students meet the UA's admission requirements when they are high school seniors.

"We announced his plan to the children and Tucson community members in the Memorial Student Union's Senior Ballroom, said it is not just about giving the children of C.E. Rose Elementary School a free ride to college.

"The tuition is the easy part," he said. "We have to give these kids sup-port for 10 years.

The University of Arizona partnered with the Southern Arizona Crime Prevention Partnership to provide the tuition waivers afterTUxon Union School District identified the children at C.E. Rose as at risk to drop out of school. The children, according to Tucson's "Southside Elementary School's Corridor Profile," live in high crime neighborhoods.

The Rotary Club of Tucson will establish a fund to provide the students with books and living expenses once they come to the UA. Rotary members have also promised to be role models and mentors for the children.

"The third graders are young enough where we can still do some prevention," said Regina Murphy-Darling, Rotary Club president. "It is our last chance to keep them away from drugs and crime before they get too far down the road."

Arizona Trujillo, C.E. Rose's principal, said she was overwhelmed when she learned about the project.

"This is fantastic. It is hard to say when good news come true for me," she said. "I grew up in this neighborhood just as they how now kids have to deal with. I feel like this is happening to me."

Likins, a third-grader at C.E. Rose, said he is ready for the challenge.

"I know it is going to be hard, but I'm excited to be a Wildcat," he said.

After C.E. Rose, the children will attend Wakefield Middle School, then Parish High School.

The UA hopes the free education pro-ject will encourage the children to stay in school.

University of Oregon aids student financnes

EUGENE, Ore. -- "Within 30 minutes of sending out the e-mail about the scholarships, we had someone asking to apply," said Tom Mills, University International Education and Exchange director.

"We didn't even have an application made yet." The Office of International Students and Scholars promised a free up $50,000 of the $250,000 principal it has set aside in the Kenneth Ghit International Scholarship Fund to aid international students hit by the Southest Asian economic crisis.

"The money will provide 50 $1,000 scholarships to the most needy students," said Mills.

"Any international student can apply for the scholarships, but preference will be given to students from Indonesia, South Korea, Malaysia and Thailand. The deadline to apply is March 2. The university established the fund 25 years ago with the donations of international alumni.

"Usually the exchange office uses the interest from the fund — between $12,000 and $15,000 annually — to provide scholar- ship for international students.

University of Virginia

New bills focus on alcohol and tuition

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. -- Students may start thinking twice before ordering that second round of drinks — their behavior could cost them a chance at in-state tuition or financial aid, or worse.

In a state-wide effort to curb alcohol abuse on college cam­puses, two bills now proposed in the General Assembly — one in the House and one in the Senate — propose revok­ing in-state tuition and suspending financial aid or enroll­ment for students convicted of alcohol or drug offenses.

Last semester, there were four alcohol-related deaths at the University of Virginia, including the death of fourth-year student Leslie Ann Baltz. An intoxicated driver was killed when he was hit by a car he was driving.

So it is up to us to grow up and abolish it. Again, not everyone stows to the level needed to scrawk "sucks" at each player. Some of us — you — are the last row of section 14 tonight and every game — simply turn our backs, and keep up with the Irish names to be announced.

As Notre Dame students, we want to be bet­ter than our counterparts at Duke, Georgia­town and Michigan. We’ll do so by separating our­selves from them, not by imitating them. We need to be more clever; we need to be more unique.

Tonight, if you’re going to the game, turn your back with the rest of us. Or pull out a book while Bob Knight’s coach is announced. Maybe bring The Observer, reading it in front of your face until the Eagles’ coach is announced. Just come up with something better than “sucks.” We’re far above that. Let’s show it.

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

The Observer • INSIDE

University of Oregon aids student financnes

EUGENE, Ore. -- "Within 30 minutes of sending out the e-mail about the scholarships, we had someone asking to apply," said Tom Mills, University International Education and Exchange director.

"We didn't even have an application made yet." The Office of International Students and Scholars promised a free up $50,000 of the $250,000 principal it has set aside in the Kenneth Ghit International Scholarship Fund to aid international students hit by the Southest Asian economic crisis.

"The money will provide 50 $1,000 scholarships to the most needy students," said Mills.

"Any international student can apply for the scholarships, but preference will be given to students from Indonesia, South Korea, Malaysia and Thailand. The deadline to apply is March 2. The university established the fund 25 years ago with the donations of international alumni.

"Usually the exchange office uses the interest from the fund — between $12,000 and $15,000 annually — to provide scholar- ship for international students.

Texas A&M

Computer companies to upgrade A&M

COLLEGE STATION, Texas — What used to take Texas A&M students several minutes to do will now take only a few seconds after Compaq, Intel and Microsoft announced plans last week to increase the speed of the Internet by 30 times. The three companies joined forces with GTE Corporation to make another step toward modem devices that plug into normal telephone lines without interrupting the voice line. Richard Spiller, supervisor of open access labs, said the reason there are so many delays in downloading information is because of data-beavy graphics. "Some pages have more images and graphics," he said. "Therefore, there is more information to download and it takes longer."

The traditional method, converting digital computer data into analog formats, reaches 53,000 bits per second. The new speed should reach 1.5 megabytes per second. Spiller said images that now would take a minute to download will now view in a few seconds.

Outsides the Wedne, February 19, 1998

University of Arizona promotes education with free tuition
What does feminism mean to you?

By ANNE SCHNEEZMAN

The world's first organized movement on the behalf of women began with a statement by Bethany Cady Stanton at a small church in Seneca Falls, N.Y. She asserted that by 1848, the time had come for "the question of women's rights to be laid before the public."

The movement started by Stanton and Susan B. Anthony peaked out in the early 1870s. Fragments were finally reunited, but over the next 40 years, the strength of the women's movement waned.

Even so, the victory saw a relative dormancy in feminism. It was by no means dead. Women writers like Virginia Woolf, Mary Beard and Simon Le Beau continued to assess the work women had accomplished in the world.

It was not until 1957, when Columbia University published the study "Gender and the American Mind" by the National Manpower Council," that women were being evaluated again on a political and national level.

The study focused on "women's experiences in the work force, their employment needs, and the implications of both for education, training, and public policy in general."

The council's suggestion that a committee be formed to evaluate women's roles was ignored by the Eisenhower administration. The feminist movement found a national rebirth in 1961, when President Kennedy established The Commission on the Status of Women. Eleanor Roosevelt, appointed Chair of the Commission, formed an important link between early suffragists and the revitalized feminist movement.

The disappearance of feminism from the forefront of history meant that the marginalization of women of the 1960s had to rediscover the basic truths about the oppression of women for themselves. Much of the early feminist literature was out of print or unavailable in libraries.

By 1965, six states had enacted minimum wage laws that applied to both women and men. Six states adopted equal pay laws. Women over time paid. Four states amended jury selection proceedings that discriminated against women. Several states eliminated the difference in the age at which women and men could marry. The 1960s saw a rebirth of successful, political career women. Women were protected by the law. But we also observed a separation of the sexes.

Women who were threatened by the discrimination in the professional world joined national organizations like the National Organization for Women. Women, other than veterans of the civil rights and anti-war activism, strayed from a formal structure and worked in loosely organized groups. The women's movement began the complex definitions of what the word feminism means.

Early feminism did not examine the psychological consequences of gender discrimination for women, but second-wave feminism insisted on the central importance of liberation of women's consciousness. They developed the innovative thinking of consciousness-raising, by means of which women could help one another overcome negative feelings about themselves and the world.

Even though feminism has been infused all throughout modern culture, in books and magazines, in art and the history of the classroom and the boardroom, defining feminism can be almost impossible because the response varies from person to person.

By the early 1980s a backlash to feminism formed, and repercussions for women were extensive. Public support for流产 centers, women's health facilities, abortion was battled. The feminist movement was threatened again.

The anti-feminism of the 1980s gave a promising hope to the perception of feminism in her book "Backlash." The Unemployed War Against American Women," Susan Faludi exposed instances of misinterpretation and outright deception that fed the anti-feminist reaction. But Faludi said, "women never really surrendered."

Martha Grimes testified that in 1970 at Virginia state schools, 21,000 women were rejected compared with zero men.

In 1980, new community property laws finally relieved husbands of their status as "head and master" of the household.

1992 became known as "The Year of the Woman" when the percentage of women in Congress doubled from 5 to 10 percent.

Gender programs recent to campuses

By LORI ALLEN

Sue Mary's Edens

Nobody would argue with the statement that gender relations on the Saint Mary's and Notre Dame campuses are less than ideal. With single-sex dorms and an apparent lack of healthy social interaction amongst the men and women of both campuses, the call for improvement seems likely in the 21st century rapidly approaches.

Universities and colleges such as Notre Dame and Saint Mary's have been preparing for the millennium with appropriate programs and have taken their communities in a number of ways, including the addition of gender studies to other social work departments, respectively.

The University of Notre Dame converted to co-educational status in 1972, it was the beginning of a new era in Notre Dame history as accommodations were made for the women. Yet it was not until 16 years later, in 1988, that a group of gender studies faculty obtained a Lilly Foundation Grant which funded the first three years of a gender studies program. The University would begin to honor its co-educational status.

The gender studies program will celebrate its 10th-anniversary this year, and over the past nine years, the number of undergraduate concentrators has increased by 431 percent from 12 students in 1988 to 46 in 1997.

Many students feel that at a school like Notre Dame where many of the students either went to same-sex high schools or come from very traditional families, that the gender studies program really helps, especially female students find their place at Notre Dame," said student gender studies concentrator Renee Rehmschlag.

According to the gender studies annual report from 1996-97, gender studies ranks first among the concentrations in the number of courses that faculty choose to cross-list. 77 courses in 1996-97, up from 19 in 1988-89, an increase of 405 percent. Originally funded by a three-year grant of $48,000, the Dean's office took over funding of the gender studies program in 1991-92, allotting an annual budget of $7,000.

An interest in the program grew and the number of concentrators increased. The proposal was drafted calling for the approval of gender studies as a second major. The proposal was endorsed by the gender studies executive committe, and the Dean's Undergraduate Advisory Committee began discussion.

see STUDIES / page 5

Feminism Through the Years

In the 1960s, 50 percent of female college graduates held jobs.

In 1971, Representative Martha Griffiths testified that in 1970 at Virginia state schools, 21,000 women were rejected compared with zero men.

In 1980, new community property laws finally relieved husbands of their status as "head and master" of the household.

1992 became known as "The Year of the Woman" when the percentage of women in Congress doubled from 5 to 10 percent.

see ROOTS / page 6
Kindness

continued from page 1

t received a letter with eight suggestions on how they could make the workplace a kinder place to be. Each letter contained a heart-shaped lollipop to be passed onto a peer during the day.

"I have put a great deal of time and effort into the different activities that are taking place this week," said Bauters. "The most rewarding experience of the week took place on Monday when the first student approached the table inside of the dining hall and said thank you for taking the time to put together this event."

The Wellness Center is currently in the process of extending its kindness to the community by coordinating lectures, speakers, and nutritionists on women’s health issues. The center is primarily used as an outlet for women concerning emotional health issues, as well as some aspects of physical health.

According to Judy Kenney, director of the Wellness Center, the center provides students with information on all types of physical and mental diseases and disorders, and it also offers counseling on any issue students feel they would like to discuss or take part in regarding women’s issues.

The center offers various types of relaxation tapes, videos, and 15-minute neck massages to relieve stress. On Feb. 22, nutritionist Becky Cook will give a lecture addressing what a woman’s daily diet should consist of, how to balance what one would like to eat with what one should eat, and will answer any questions students have on general nutrition.

"I have found many of the books and pamphlets very informational," said Christine Arz, who works for Health Services. "They contain articles on relationships, health, and nutrition, which are topics of every young woman’s concern."

Debbie Bauters, a registered nurse in Health Services, helps students choose a lollipop and a "random act of kindness."

The group hopes to explore the many program options available to the community by sending out a survey asking students what they would like to discuss or take part in regarding women’s issues. The center also offers counseling on any issue students feel they would like to discuss or take part in regarding women’s issues.

According to Judy Kenney, director of the Wellness Center, the center provides students with information on all types of physical and mental diseases and disorders, and it also offers counseling on any issue students feel they would like to discuss or take part in regarding women’s issues.

The group hopes to explore the many program options available to the community by sending out a survey asking students what they would like to discuss or take part in regarding women’s issues. The center offers various types of relaxation tapes, videos, and 15-minute neck massages to relieve stress. On Feb. 22, nutritionist Becky Cook will give a lecture addressing what a woman’s daily diet should consist of, how to balance what one would like to eat with what one should eat, and will answer any questions students have on general nutrition.

"I have found many of the books and pamphlets very informational," said Christine Arz, who works for Health Services. "They contain articles on relationships, health, and nutrition, which are topics of every young woman’s concern."

Debbie Bauters, a registered nurse in Health Services, helps students choose a lollipop and a "random act of kindness."

Vandals

continued from page 1

large gap of time, and on campus. Saint Mary’s Security has made no arrests but is working on some leads in this case. Similar behavior has plagued both Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame campuses this year.

"There is no way to determine if this incident is related to ear­ er vandalism,” Chlebek stated, but Security is trying to "tie it to earlier Notre Dame apprehensions.” So far no proof has linked the two occurrences together.

Chlebek recalled these most recent circumstances of vandalism and theft to be “the worst I’ve seen in 14 years” at the College, due to such a high number of vehicles disturbed in one night.

Alley urged for better protection from Security since this was not the first time the campus has been hit with problems. "We pay money for their protection," Alley said, referring to the annual $50 Saint Mary’s students pay to park in the student lot. "This shouldn’t happen to 15 cars in one night,” Alley added.

Chlebek reported that some measures have been taken since last Wednesday "to discourage further problems.” Security cars are already frequenting the McCandless parking lot, offering their nightly escort service for students returning to their dorms. In addition to the service, they have increased patrols to the lot and have a security officer alternating hourly within the lot.

It’s Not Too Late!

The George Warren Brown School of Social Work
at Washington University in St. Louis

is now accepting applications
for the Fall 1998 semester

GWB was ranked #1 of schools of social work by U.S. News & World Report.

In order to be eligible for over 100 merit-based 1998-1999 scholarships, all application materials are due by March 1, 1998.

Three specializations:

• family therapy
• management
• research

For more information call (314) 935-6676 or check out our web page at http://gwbweb.wustl.edu

Vandals

continued from page 1

large gap of time, and on campus. Saint Mary’s Security has made no arrests but is working on some leads in this case. Similar behavior has plagued both Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame campuses this year.

"There is no way to determine if this incident is related to ear­ er vandalism,” Chlebek stated, but Security is trying to "tie it to earlier Notre Dame apprehensions.” So far no proof has linked the two occurrences together.

Chlebek recalled these most recent circumstances of vandalism and theft to be “the worst I’ve seen in 14 years” at the College, due to such a high number of vehicles disturbed in one night.

Alley urged for better protection from Security since this was not the first time the campus has been hit with problems. "We pay money for their protection," Alley said, referring to the annual $50 Saint Mary’s students pay to park in the student lot. "This shouldn’t happen to 15 cars in one night,” Alley added.

Chlebek reported that some measures have been taken since last Wednesday "to discourage further problems.” Security cars are already frequenting the McCandless parking lot, offering their nightly escort service for students returning to their dorms. In addition to the service, they have increased patrols to the lot and have a security officer alternating hourly within the lot.

It’s Not Too Late!

The George Warren Brown School of Social Work
at Washington University in St. Louis

is now accepting applications
for the Fall 1998 semester

GWB was ranked #1 of schools of social work by U.S. News & World Report.

In order to be eligible for over 100 merit-based 1998-1999 scholarships, all application materials are due by March 1, 1998.

Three specializations:

• family therapy
• management
• research

For more information call (314) 935-6676 or check out our web page at http://gwbweb.wustl.edu

It’s Not Too Late!

The George Warren Brown School of Social Work
at Washington University in St. Louis

is now accepting applications
for the Fall 1998 semester

GWB was ranked #1 of schools of social work by U.S. News & World Report.

In order to be eligible for over 100 merit-based 1998-1999 scholarships, all application materials are due by March 1, 1998.

Three specializations:

• family therapy
• management
• research

For more information call (314) 935-6676 or check out our web page at http://gwbweb.wustl.edu

Campus Ministry Events

Wednesday, February 11, 7:00-8:00 pm
Keenan-Stanford Chapel
Contemporary Choir Rehearsal

All are welcome to join in this new choir!

Wednesday, February 11, 7:00-8:00 pm
Walsh Hall Chapel
EMMAUS: Mini-Rally
February 12 - February 24
Sign-up:
Freshmen Retreat #16 (Feb. 27-28)

Of special interest:

• Latino/Hispanic Studies Initiative
Social with visiting scholars and ND faculty, followed by a dance at the Center for Social Concerns, Friday, Feb. 13, 9:30-11:50 pm.

• Sophomore Class Retreat, Feb. 20-21

• NDE #51 (March 27-29) Sign-up, Feb. 23-27
 FEMAES NEWS BRIEFS

Assembly approves 35-hour week

WASHINGTON

The Environmental Protection Agency is set to unveil new requirements that for the first time will provide citizens with details on whether their drinking water is safe. The agency is expected to announce new regulations on water quality standards. In a statement, President Clinton said the new water quality standards were necessary to "ensure that Americans have the information they need about the safety of their drinking water." He noted that the rules would require citizens to also require "right-to-know" labeling on bottled water. The EPA is working with the food industry to adopt new guidelines on what information should be required in such labeling. The EPA proposal, which is expected to become final later this year after a 45-day comment period, requires that drinking water suppliers provide an annual assessment of water quality as part of water bills sent to customers. The first such reports likely would not be sent out until next year, although some communities might provide them earlier. EPA officials said Tuesday that the annual report will provide "a snapshot" of the condition of a municipality's drinking water supply, said an EPA official, speaking on the condition of not being identified further.

U.S. issues threat to Iraq

WASHINGTON

While delaying a decision on whether to bomb Iraq, the Clinton administration raised the stakes Tuesday by threatening a new U.N. resolution or an act of Congress if President Saddam Hussein continued to defy new U.N. inspectors. The administration clarified its position Tuesday by threatening to punish any country that failed to back force. And while Albright told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the administration "is not ready to say" what it will do if inspections pass as expected, all analysts said that the administration would require to implement the new work week by 2002. "We share the conviction that everything must be done to reduce the unemployment rate, and cutting the work week is a means of accomplishing that goal," said White House economic advisor Andrew Stern. The Associated Press.

New York

Dow Jones reaches all-time high

The Dow Jones industrial average set its first record high in six months Tuesday, surpassing a comeback from its worst one-day point loss in history. Wall Street's best-known indicator rose 115.09 to 8,299.61, topping the all-time best close of 8,229.31. That gain, which was set back on Aug. 6, one day before the stock market began a steep slide amid the first whiffs of Asia's mounting financial troubles. The Dow Jones industrial average, a weighted average of 30 major companies, closed at a record high for the sixth time in nine sessions. The bank that led the rally.

Dow Jones industrial average set its first record high in six months Tuesday, surpassing a comeback from its worst one-day point loss in history. Wall Street's best-known indicator rose 115.09 to 8,299.61, topping the all-time best close of 8,229.31. That gain, which was set back on Aug. 6, one day before the stock market began a steep slide amid the first whiffs of Asia's mounting financial troubles. Broad-market indicators also rose strongly Tuesday, with the Standard & Poor's 500 index, the mostly widely followed benchmark of mutual funds, closing at a record high for the sixth time in nine sessions. The bank that led the rally.

The Associated Press.

AP Photo
The Observer • NEWS
Wednesday, February 11, 1998

WANTED: MARKETING ASSISTANT MANAGER

"The Observer is looking for an Assistant Marketing Manager to help with coordinating the full color advertising spreads that appear regularly such as 'The Bar Page', 'The Map Page', etc. This is a PAID position and we are seeking Sophomore Business Majors. Contact Greg Szilier @ 4-1695 for more information."

Deadline: Saturday, February 21

MR. STANFORD 1998.
It's Like Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Meet Vladimir and Estragon.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 13.
STEPAN CENTER, 8:00 P.M.
$3.00 DONATION TO BENEFIT THE LOGAN CENTER

Basketball Today

vs. #11 Kentucky

@3:30 pm

Eck Tennis Pavilion

Most Affordable Student Housing

Campus View Apartments

Taking Applications for the 98-99 School Year and May-August Summer Rentals.

2 Bedroom from $499 1 Bedroom from $449
•Carpeted/Central air •24 hour laundry
•Furnished & Unfurnished •Flexible lease plans
•Indoor pool/Spa •2 blocks from campus
•Tennis, volleyball, & basketball courts

2nd Annual

Bench Press Competition

Saturday, February 14, 1998
10:00 AM

Joyce Center Fieldhouse

A Benefit for the South Bend Center for the Homeless

Men's: Individual - $6 Fee
(Weight classes: under 140, 141-150, 151-160, 161-170, 171-185, 186-200, 201-215, 216 & over)

Innerball Teams - $15 Fee

Women's: Innerball Teams - $30 Fee

*Fee includes t-shirt.

Weigh-ins are at the weight class between 10:00am-6:00pm on Friday, February 13, 1998, in the Rockne Memorial men's locker room.
IRA, INLA suspected in murders

Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland Police and politicians blamed the Irish Republican Army and a dissident gang Tuesday for gunning down a suspected drug dealer and slaying a Protestant militant.

The killings put pressure on the British and Irish governments to expel the IRA-allied Sinn Fein party from Northern Ireland's peace talks — and on the north's major pro-British Protestant gang, the Ulster Defense Association, to ratify by slaying Catholics.

On Tuesday afternoon, a lone gunman repeatedly shot Bobby Dougan as he waited in his car to pick up a friend in Twinbrook, in southwest Belfast. The 38-year-old reputed UDA member was wounded in an IRA attack in 1994.

Police later arrested three men in the nearby Catholic district of Twbrok and said at least two of them were IRA suspects.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

After which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-fire.

Any new UDA violence would ensure McMichael stays out.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

The attack closely mirrored the Jan. 19 killing in the same area of another UDA member, after which vengeful Protestants killed four Catholics.

"The perpetrators of this attack want to provoke a response, want to bring this society to its knees," McMichael said.

Two weeks ago, the British and Irish governments expelled McMichael's party from negotiations on Northern Ireland's future after the UDA admitted taking part in the Catholic killings in violation of its October 1994 cease-file
Cults Misdirect the Truth

Those of us who have spent any time in airports over the past two decades have probably seen a Hare Krishna or two dancing and chanting. And those of us who follow the news over a regular basis have heard about the Branch Davidian tragedy a few years ago. There have been movies, documentaries, and college courses about cults. Public awareness, however, does not stop the growth of these organizations.

Less than a week before the highly-publicized " Heaven's Gate" suicides in April 1997, six members of a doomsday cult died in a house fire in the presence of law enforcement officers. Three teenagers — children of cult members — protested against the suicide pact. Dozens more — children of cult members — were spared.

The reason for this concern is due in part to the fact that "brain-washing" to compel new members to adopt a certain set of beliefs and behavior in a specific way. These methods include limiting sleep, starvation or unbalanced diets, and excessively strict discipline. None of this is healthy for mind, body or soul.

A mind can only be healthy when it is able to process reliable information. Hearing only one side of the story stunts the brain's growth, and to adopt a new belief or change. Freedom of expression or "freedom of religion" are used as excuses when hearing only one side of the story.

The wisdom found in the Bible teaches us how to care for ourselves, our neighbors, and this world which God created. It opens a wide spectrum of possibilities to all people, excluding none. It shows us how to love, how to live, and to find the Truth, something lacking in cult practices.

News articles recounting cult suicides should be read with sadness, and a prayer offered for those misguided souls. The next time you see Hare Krishnas at the airport, say a prayer for them, too. Hopefully, one day they'll dance for joy at finding the Truth.

Julie Ferraro is a local administrative assistant. Her column appears every other Wednesday. The views expressed in this column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.
Margaret Shaheen

Sean O'Connor

The Trail Not Taken

"Hey, Margaret!"

"Oh, hey, Father Serin! I didn't hear you coming."

"What have you got so far, Margaret?"

"Well, this sounds good, so far, Margaret."
Year after year, students give new life to the stereotypes that supposedly characterize Notre Dame. Whether you live in a particular dorm, have a specific major, or participate in a certain activity or sport, chances are you have been branded by labels that existed before many students began here.

These stereotypes, as illustrated by the annual Keenan Revue, have become accepted and perpetuated throughout the years. The various performances at the Revue have immortalized many students who hold of their peers. While some people agree with the stereotypes and eagerly justify them, many people certainly criticize them. Apparently many more find them humorous.

Perhaps the fraternity/sorority atmosphere found at Notre Dame makes it easy to pigeonhole and mock certain dorms. Men's dorms, in particular, criticize each other and generate new stereotypes. Griffin's dorm spirit makes it an easy target for labeling. This year's Keenan Revue mocked Zahn's masculine qualities, or more aptly, the lack thereof. Scantily-clad, make-up wearing men pranced across the stage, supposedly imitating the feminine attributes of many Zahn residents.

Female dorms also fall victim to exaggerated stereotypes. The infamous smokers of Farley Hall are a fixture in the Keenan Revue. This Griffin finds a girl working in the kitchen. Griffin smoking, if they know it is a Griffin. This claim may have some basis of truth, but for the most part it is largely exaggerated. Sophomore Charlotte Kelly believes the smoking habits of Farley girls is not any worse than those of other dorms.

A few girls who smoke give the impression that a lot of people in Farley do, so she said. "It's just more prevalent because we're next to the dining hall, where everyone walks by."

The supposed difficulty that the women of Breen-Phillips have with weight gain earned them the reputation as some of the heavier people on campus. This characterization, like many others, is met with criticism by those whom it involves. Gentry Easley, a B.P. sophomore, says the label "is blown out of proportion." This stereotype, of course, is not confined to any of the current students began at Notre Dame. This one, however, has an interesting explanation.

A few years ago, Ronnie Donn's held a contest to see which dorm ate the most ice cream. Whenever a student bought ice cream, they were asked what dorm they were from, and a tally was kept. Allegedly, the men of Keenan, Stanford and Zahn told the people at Ronnie Donn's they were from Breen-Phillips each time they made a purchase. This gave B.P. an overwhelming victory, much to the chagrin of the dorm. In an ironic twist, Easley adds that although Breen Phillips is viewed as a dorm housing people with an alleged fondness for food, it is the only dorm that does not have a food sales.

In addition to a particular residence hall, a person's academic interests also contribute to generalizing. According to one stereotype, business majors have the least demanding academic schedule and the most demanding social agenda. Groups perceive reaching graduation as their only obligation, which contributes to a relaxed atmosphere and frequent time to frequent the area bars.

In contrast, engineers spend most of their day hidden away in the engineering building working behind a computer. As a result, their social skills suffer. Those in Arts and Letters, like students in the business school, supposedly have a less than challenging workload and often join the ranks of the unemployed after graduation.

The Program of Liberal Studies majors are perhaps the group most readily criticized, as their distinctive attributes contrast the traditional Notre Dame student. They are a free-thinking type whose grungy-like attire and hairstyle makes them distinct from the usual conserva­tive preppie student. Even more stereotypes exist outside of dorm and academic life. Varsity sports, for example, are easy targets. The distinguishing aspects of a typical male lacrosse player include his relentless all-out aver­sion to showering. The self-proclaimed "quad-urchins" spend hours outdoors, simply playing Frisbee.

Senior Ultimate player Pascale believes this stereotype has some truth to it, as "people do go out and don't at all." But this label, like so many others, is only a label and nothing more. Varsity sports have also been stereotyped. Lacrosse players in particular stand out as a midlife clique. Many describe them as skinny guys whose East Coast attitude sets them apart from other groups. In year's past, the Keenan Revue depicted them as a Neanderthal-type with a permanent attachment to a lacrosse stick. Apparently, the players believe this derogatory characterization to the sport results in a lack of normal social skills. They communicate with teammates only. Members of the team, however, disagree.

For the most part, these stereotypes are largely exaggerated or at least partly untrue. When asked if they know how these labels originated, or why they continue, the individual usually says, "I don't know." Griffin says it is their humor that makes them popular.

Tim Rosa and Rich Lanor, the coordinators of this year's Keenan Revue, believe most people don't know where the stereotypes come from. "There aren't any benefits for them," Rosa admits. "Farley girls don't smoke more than anywhere else. B.P. girls aren't overweight . . . these [labels] were here before we got here," Lanor agrees. "Jen does agree that the stereotypes are perpetuated by some. They aren't fact, and the reason the stereotypes carry over year after year is because people enjoy them.

As a result, students continue traditional stereotypes. With the advent of new dorms, student groups, and sports teams, we are likely to continue the stereotype. These, like those of the past, will be accepted, criticized and perpetuated by some.

But laughed at many.
Imagine if you will, it is late August. The sun is actually shining in South Bend. The air is filled with electricity and ethanol. The temperature, although warm, is not pulsing the swarms of new students piling onto the Notre Dame campus for orientation. Many can't get to their parent's, rearrange their room, go to their first football game. They have a lot of work out why their orientation counselor told them to bring a white t-shirt. Life is good.

One of those students, Suzy Smith, we'll call her for the rest of the story, isn't there. She worked hard in high school to get into Notre Dame. She's smart.

"I was really surprised when I first heard about Saint Mary's women and Notre Dame women having a sort of feud, a sort of animosity. I really was in a bathroom at ND when I overheard one woman tell another to "watch out for those SMG Chicks, they'll steal our guys,"" recalled sophomore Kim Langlois. "There was nothing I could really do about it, except know that I'm not going to let it happen and make sure that my friends at both schools know."

In the beginning of co-education at Notre Dame in the early '70s were two of the events that triggered animosity.

Where the stereotypes originated from is always a great debate. Many dime-store philosophers feel that the stereotypes are perpetuated by the two schools and the beginning of co-education at Notre Dame in the early '70s were two of the events that triggered animosity. Since then, the stereotypes have manifested in many forms, from simple rumors to elaborate characterizations in the Keenan Revue.

Many students are advised by orientation counselors to ignore it. "Nobody really thinks that way about us," we're told. This is a sort of "hear no evil" kind of approach since just about everyone can recall an incident of SMG bashing. "Nobody really thinks that way about us," we're told. "But that's not true,"vals.

Kelly goes to the clinic next, having been beaten in a fight. Steve gets up when the nurse asks him to leave. A former inmate named Andy shows up at the clinic next, having been beaten while he was in jail for murder. Kelly goes to the Beverly Beat to write a story on Andy, who can't get a second chance in the real world.

"I was really surprised when I first heard about Saint Mary's women and Notre Dame women having a sort of feud between them," said freshman Nikki Gonzales. "I was really upsetting to hear that just because I go to Saint Mary's, I supposedly don't work as hard. It just isn't true."

The stereotypes originated from is always a great debate. Many dime-store philosophers feel that the stereotypes are perpetuated by the two schools and the beginning of co-education at Notre Dame in the early '70s were two of the events that triggered animosity. Since then, the stereotypes have manifested in many forms, from simple rumors to elaborate characterizations in the Keenan Revue.

Many students are advised by orientation counselors to ignore it. "Nobody really thinks that way about us," we're told. This is a sort of "hear no evil" kind of approach since just about everyone can recall an incident of SMG bashing. "Nobody really thinks that way about us," we're told. "But that's not true,"vals.

Suzy knows, she's lazy.

"I was really surprised when I first heard about Saint Mary's women and Notre Dame women having a sort of feud, a sort of animosity. I really was in a bathroom at ND when I overheard one woman tell another to "watch out for those SMG Chicks, they'll steal our guys,"" recalled sophomore Kim Langlois. "There was nothing I could really do about it, except know that I'm not going to let it happen and make sure that my friends at both schools know."

In the beginning of co-education at Notre Dame in the early '70s were two of the events that triggered animosity.

Where the stereotypes originated from is always a great debate. Many dime-store philosophers feel that the stereotypes are perpetuated by the two schools and the beginning of co-education at Notre Dame in the early '70s were two of the events that triggered animosity. Since then, the stereotypes have manifested in many forms, from simple rumors to elaborate characterizations in the Keenan Revue.

Many students are advised by orientation counselors to ignore it. "Nobody really thinks that way about us," we're told. This is a sort of "hear no evil" kind of approach since just about everyone can recall an incident of SMG bashing. "Nobody really thinks that way about us," we're told. "But that's not true,"vals.
NBA

Win heat fourth straight with victory over Cavaliers

Associated Press

CLEVELAND

Jamal Mashburn had 22 points and the Miami Heat shut down rookie star Zydrunas Ilgauskas to beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 91-81 Tuesday night.

Ilgauskas led in scoring with 21 points and the Miami Heat shut down rookie star Zydrunas Ilgauskas to beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 91-81 Tuesday night.

[...]

---

SPORTS

The Observer • SPORTS

February 11, 1998

Page 12

College Basketball

Syracuse atop Big East 7

Associated Press

Syracuse was again at its best on the road Tuesday night, beating the Miami Hurricanes 72-63 to take over first place in the conference.

The 23rd-ranked Orange (15-8) improved to 7-1 in the league, while Miami (13-10) fell into second place at 8-5.

Syracuse bounced back from an 85-61 home loss to Seton Hall and improved to 6-4 in the Big East.

Miami lost at home for the first time in 21 games.

Jason Hart scored 19 points and Ryan Blackwell had 17 for Syracuse, while Todd Burgan added 13. The Orange shot 47 percent, including 6-for-12 from beyond the arc.

Jim Taylor had Miami with 24 points and 12 rebounds. Mario Elie had 19 points and 11 rebounds, and Steve Frazier added 13 points.

Syracuse inaugurated former starter Johnny Hemley's missed his fourth consecutive game because of an ankle team. The Hurricanes were also without starter Lucas Barbas, who has dropped out of school for getting out three games because of a suspension.

Blackwell had 11 and put in three consecutive 3-pointers and Hart added a three-point play to help the Orange build a 52-42 lead.

Burgan swished four free throws and a field goal to give Syracuse its biggest lead, 60-45.

Syracuse scored seven free throws over the final three minutes.

---

Syracuse at St. John’s

No team has had as much success against St. John’s in recent years as Syracuse. Now no coach has ever had as many victories against the Red Storm as Gene Keeny.

Chad Austin and Brad Miller each scored 23 points Tuesday night as the eighth-ranked Orangemen overcame a 13-point deficit in the first half and held off a late rally to beat Ireland 84-70.

It was Syracuse’s fifth victory in the past six games against the Hoosiers and a 15th victory in 28 tries against Keeny.

That made it four in a row in a game in one of the most storied rivalries.

Jason Hart poured in 19 for the Orangemen on the Hurricanes, which beat Purdue 94-88 in Bloomington last month, trailed 81-80 after two free throws by Patterson with 3:33 to go.

But Austin hit a 3-pointer and Miller added two free throws for a six-point lead. The Hoosiers came within 9-89 on a 3-pointer by Guyton with 13 sec.

The Hurricanes were also without starter Johnny Hemley’s missed his fourth consecutive game because of an ankle team. The Hurricanes were also without starter Lucas Barbas, who has dropped out of school for getting out three games because of a suspension.

Blackwell had 11 and put in three consecutive 3-pointers and Hart added a three-point play to help the Orange build a 52-42 lead.

Burgan swished four free throws and a field goal to give Syracuse its biggest lead, 60-45.

Syracuse scored seven free throws over the final three minutes.

---

Miami (15-6) fell into second place at 8-5 after sitting out three games.

The Hurricanes will be without starting center Leon Long, who has missed two straight games with a broken hand.

Syracuse will be without forward Kyle Rowland, who has missed two straight games with a sprained ankle.

[...]

---

Syracuse, which shot 52 percent from the floor, led 41-37 at halftime.

It was Purdue’s fifth victory in the past six games against the Hoosiers and a 15th victory in 28 tries against Keeny.

That made it four in a row in a game in one of the most storied rivalries.

Jason Hart poured in 19 for the Orangemen on the Hurricanes, which beat Purdue 94-88 in Bloomington last month, trailed 81-80 after two free throws by Patterson with 3:33 to go.

But Austin hit a 3-pointer and Miller added two free throws for a six-point lead. The Hoosiers came within 9-89 on a 3-pointer by Guyton with 13 sec.

The Hurricanes were also without starter Johnny Hemley’s missed his fourth consecutive game because of an ankle team. The Hurricanes were also without starter Lucas Barbas, who has dropped out of school for getting out three games because of a suspension.

Blackwell had 11 and put in three consecutive 3-pointers and Hart added a three-point play to help the Orange build a 52-42 lead.

Burgan swished four free throws and a field goal to give Syracuse its biggest lead, 60-45.

Syracuse scored seven free throws over the final three minutes.

---

Miami (15-6) fell into second place at 8-5 after sitting out three games.

The Hurricanes will be without starting center Leon Long, who has missed two straight games with a broken hand.

Syracuse will be without forward Kyle Rowland, who has missed two straight games with a sprained ankle.

[...]

---

Syracuse, which shot 52 percent from the floor, led 41-37 at halftime.

It was Purdue’s fifth victory in the past six games against the Hoosiers and a 15th victory in 28 tries against Keeny.

That made it four in a row in a game in one of the most storied rivalries.

Jason Hart poured in 19 for the Orangemen on the Hurricanes, which beat Purdue 94-88 in Bloomington last month, trailed 81-80 after two free throws by Patterson with 3:33 to go.

But Austin hit a 3-pointer and Miller added two free throws for a six-point lead. The Hoosiers came within 9-89 on a 3-pointer by Guyton with 13 sec.
RecSports "Champion Student Award" recipients are selected by the Office of Recreational Sports. Honorees are chosen for their involvement in RecSports, including excellence in sportsmanship, leadership and participation.

Bob Steinmetz, a junior living in Zahm Hall, hails from Oak Lawn, IL. Bob has been an active participant in RecSports events since his arrival on campus. For two years he has served as Captain for both Zahm’s IH Baseball and Softball teams, not to mention playing on Zahm’s IH Football and Basketball teams. When Bob is not serving as a team member, he is busy organizing all of Zahm’s teams while serving as its Athletic Commissioner. This past January, Bob also served as his hall’s Late Night Olympic Hall Representative. Upon finishing his degree in Biological Sciences, Bob plans on attending Medical School.

Recipients receive Champion merchandise from the

“Specializing in Authentic Notre Dame Sportswear”
(Joyce Center)

Look for this award to appear in the Observer every other Wednesday. Students selected receive Champion merchandise courtesy of Champion and the located on the second floor of the Joyce Center. The is open Monday-Saturday 11:00am to 5:00pm and Sunday 1:00pm to 4:00pm. (Phone: 631-8560).

Gailey could be darkhorse pick to take over Cowboys

Associated Press

IRVING, Texas

Pittsburgh offensive coordinator Chan Gailey set a new record for interview time with Jerry Jones Tuesday, underscoring how impressed the Dallas Cowboys owner has been with this longshot candidate to succeed Barry Switzer.

"He's not a household name but he's shown how to move the football," said Jones, who not only needs a head coach but an offensive coordinator to replace Ernie Zampese.

Negotiations with former UCLA coach Terry Donahue broke down over money and control and Gailey emerged at the NFL combine in Indianapolis as Jones' "mystery" candidate.

After an overnight stay at the Jones mansion, Gailey got a fourth interview on Tuesday, one more than Donahue and Green Bay Packer offensive coordinator Sherman Lewis, and two more than former San Francisco coach George Seifert. Jones wouldn't set a timetable on his wandering search for a coach but hinted something could happen this week.

The last time he set a deadline for a hire, Donahue abruptly went back to California.

Pittsburgh was sixth in the NFL in offense last year while the Cowboys were 27th. The Steelers were No. 23 in pass offense but tops in rushing and time of possession.

While Lewis was the coordinator at Green Bay, he didn't call plays. Donahue has spent the last two years in a CBS television booth. Seifert has been out of the NFL a year and was a defensive coordinator before becoming a head coach.

Gailey flew back with Jones from the NFL scouting combine in Indianapolis Monday night in the Cowboys' private jet.

A Cowboys source said Tuesday Gailey has impressed Jones in the short time he has been with him. The source said Gailey was a "hot" candidate, the kind who could be heavily courted as a head coach by other teams in several more years.

Pittsburgh coach Bill Cowher said of Gailey: "I think he is a very good candidate."

Gailey, who called the plays last year under Cowher, has experience serving as a head coach for Birmingham in the World League and Troy State at the collegiate level.

African American & Hispanic Students

Summer Leadership Internships available:

Stop by the Office for Multicultural Student Affairs or the Center for Social Concerns for an application.

Application Deadline: February 13th (Friday)

Opportunities available in:

- South Bend (both)
- Chicago (both)
- Detroit (African American)
- San Diego (Hispanic)
- Lexington (Hispanic)

- Ten weeks of leadership and service work sponsored by the Black Alumni and Hispanic Alumni of Notre Dame.
- Academic work and experience earning 3 elective credits in Theology.
- $2300.00 Tuition Scholarship

Over 72 People are Killed or Injured Everyday...

* 120 Countries Have Signed the Ban on Landmines, but the campaign cannot end:

* There are still 100 million landmines in over 70 countries.

* At the current rate, it would take 1,100 years to clear the world of landmines and that is only if no more mines are planted.

* At least every 20 minutes someone somewhere around the world is killed or maimed by a landmine.

* 284 international peace keepers were killed or wounded by landmines in Bosnia.

* The United States still refuses to ban landmines

Do you find such suffering incomprehensible? Do you wish to provide aid and assistance to landmine victims? The Notre Dame Campaign to Ban Landmines may be for you. Please join us for an organizational meeting on Sunday February 15 at 7:30 at the Center for Social Concerns Coffee House. Refreshments will be served!
M. Hoops continued from page 20

Unfortunately for the Irish with their top two leading scorers in Big East games either on the bench or not on top of his game, no one has been able to step up on a consistent basis.

Center Phil Mickey notched a career high in the loss to Rutgers but was held in check Saturday. Guards Antonio Wyche and Ingelsby have not been able to catch fire from the outside.

"Now some of the pressure has been put on us (Ingelsby and Wyche) and we have to step up," Ingelsby said. "We really didn't do that this weekend and Coach has emphasized that we need to take more shots.

Tonight, the Irish will need to perform on the perimeter as they expect to see zone defense from the Eagles. MacLeod will have a bigger bench tonight as freshman Leviticus Williamson, who did not dress against Georgetown, practiced yesterday and is listed as probable.

"They are going to come out and play a lot of zone against us," Ingelsby said. "We haven't been really effective against the zone this year."

The greater concern for the Irish will again be their problem with consistency.

"We've been up and down all year," Ingelsby said. "One day we'll come out and look like one of the best teams in the country and the next we'll look like one of the worst. We just have to improve our consistency and not fall behind early."

After the 1-2 road trip the team also looks forward to playing back at the Joyce Center. "It will be good to get back home in our own gym," Ingelsby said. "Hopefully, we'll get a big crowd and a good win."

The Observer/John Daily

Coach John MacLeod is looking for Antonio Wyche and the healthy Irish players to provide the scoring during Keith Friel's absence.

VOTE IN THURSDAY'S RUN-OFF ELECTION

& ENTER A RAFFLE TO WIN ANY OF THESE GREAT PRIZES!

- B-Ball Tix to the Hoyas Game (lower level arena)
- Outback Steakhouse
- Football Autographed by ND Coaches
- Spageddie's Restaurant
- Fun Tan
- Movie Passes
- Papa John's Pizza
- Wolfie's Restaurant
- T.G.I. Friday's
- Garfield's

grand prize: SONY PLAYSTATION

where to vote:

ON-CAMPUS STUDENTS:
- In your residence halls 11am-1pm & 5-7pm

OFF-CAMPUS STUDENTS:
- 11am-1pm in the Huddle
- 1:30pm-5pm in C1

(Train location-gate 10 of the JACC)

Brought to you by:

Student Government & the judicial council department of elections

Notice the Double Slice Pizza below?
If so, you've got an overly active imagination.

In other words, you're destined for a great advertising career.

While you're still a student, come try our Pizza or Pasta for under $4.
Class dismissed.
any kind of adversity we’ve faced, we’ve dealt with in the past,” Jill said. “I just stayed supportive. He’s very supportive of me, and it’s so worth it now with him running well. It’s so fulfilling to see him performing well again.”

Born and raised in Cadillac, Mich., McMullen was not always a track runner. He initially dreamed of becoming a professional football player. He never got tired during conditioning for football, and his coach suggested he go out for track. His first season was as a junior in high school. He did not put track ahead of football in his mind until his senior year, when he won the state meet in the mile and placed fourth in the 1500-meter run.

Eastern Michigan was the only school to recruit him to run track, where he received only about $600 in scholarship money for his freshman year. From the beginning, he hit it off with the coach, Bob Parks, and still trains under Parks today.

“My most memorable place to run is Notre Dame. I’m a practicing Catholic, and I have an attachment to this place,” McMullen said. “My coach made a big risk when I was a freshman and put me in the fast heat with the fast guys in the Central Collegiate Championships at Notre Dame. I won with a personal best.”

After that meet, he set new personal records in meets at Notre Dame in each of the next three years as well as this past Saturday. By the end of his collegiate career, coaches around the country wished they had discovered McMullen.

He was an eighth-time All-American while at Eastern Michigan and his highest finishes at nationals were a 4x800-meter relay victory in 1993, second place in the 1500-meter run outdoors in 1995, and third place in the indoor mile in the same year.

His dreams of Olympic glory began when he was watching the Super Bowl in 1992. A commercial for the Olympics came on, and he decided he wanted to go. Needing to share it with someone, he called his grandfather, who was his sole confidant about his Olympic dreams and source of support for the next three years.

However, his grandfather never saw McMullen achieve his dreams because he passed away before McMullen qualified for the Olympics.

“My grandfather related with me on a more spiritual level when I decided this was what I wanted to do in life,” McMullen said.

“My wife has been incredibly supportive. She is the person who goes through the nervousness with me and travels with me. My parents are my peripheral support, and as an athlete, it means a lot to me when they are at a meet.

Two weeks after graduating from college with an accounting degree, he became the 1992 U.S. champion in the 1500-meter run, a feat he repeated the next year, when he qualified for the U.S. Olympic team.

“Making the Olympic team in 1996 was probably the second-best running experience of my life,” McMullen said.

“The best was running for the American team in the preliminaries in the Olympics in Atlanta. That will probably always be, until the year 2000, my best race. There was an amazing crowd. It was like the wave was following me around the track.”

McMullen will compete in the U.S. indoor track and field championships later this month in Atlanta.

“I’d like to re-establish some respect internationally to my event,” McMullen said. “I’d really like to raise its level this year. This is kind of a building year to begin to build for the 2000 Olympic Games. My ultimate goal is to get myself in position to run for a medal for the United States in 2000.”

Wednesday, February 11, 1998

Career bests - Paul McMullen

• 1995, 1996 USATF 1,500-meter champion
• 10th in 1995 World Championships
• Semifinalist in 1996 Olympics
• 1,500-meter best time - 3:34.45
  - run in Cologne, Germany, in August 1995
• Mile best time - 3:56.63
  - run February 7, 1998, in adidas / Meyo Invitational at Notre Dame
• 800-meter best time - 1:45.90
  - run in Norway, 1995

Saint Mary’s Student Activities Board presents

Johnny Lawrence
Guitarist and Artist

at Haaggar Parlor
7:00pm
Wednesday, February 11
Admission is Free

IT’S THAT TIME OF YEAR AGAIN!

THE NOTRE DAME ALUMNI ASSOCIATION IS LOOKING FOR STUDENTS WHO WANT TO MAKE SOME $$$$ DURING THE ALUMNI REUNION JUNE 4 - 7 1998 OR ALUMNI FAMILY HALL JUNE 4 - AUGUST 2 1998

INTERESTED?
APPLY AT STUDENT EMPLOYMENT 336 GRACE HALL OR AT THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION 202 BROWNSON HALL
Moseley wins gold, claims first U.S. medal
Associated Press
IZUNA KOGEN, Japan
Wednesday, February 11, 1998

The United States won its first medal of the Nagano Olympics when Jonny Moseley bumped and jumped his way to gold in the men’s moguls.

Moseley, 22, of Tiberon, Calif., was the last of the 16 competitors to drop down the mogul field. He breezed through the bumps like a pinball and performed his signature “air” — a 360 Mute Grab Jump in which he did a full “helicopter” rotation and grabbed his inside ski.

The run earned him 26.93 points. The silver medal went to Finland’s Janne Lahtela with 26.00 points and the bronze to another Finn, Sanni Manustonen, with 25.76.

“I got No. 1!” Moseley shouted when he saw his winning score go up. “I can’t believe it. Oh my God!”

The mogul event is scored by judges, who count 50 percent for turns and 25 percent each for speed and jumps.

The event was held under sunny skies, with thousands of flag-waving and horn-blowing fans gathered along the sides and at the bottom of the hill.

Weinbrecht gets a second chance in final
Associated Press
IZUNA KOGEN, Japan

Much has changed for Donna Weinbrecht since she won the first Olympic gold medal in freestyle skiing in 1992.

In trying to defend her moguls crown in Lillehammer four years ago, the 32-year-old from West Milford, N.J., had problems physically and mentally, and finished seventh.

“That hurt a lot,” she said. “After Lillehammer, it got to the point I was afraid to ski in front of people. It took me a year to overcome that.”

“It’s becoming a love-hate relationship for me, I believe I can do it. It’s just a matter of letting go of those fears.”

Weinbrecht gets another chance Wednesday (Tuesday night EST) when she leads a strong American team into the Olympic final.

The race is just one run down a course of bumps, with two mini-jumps for acrobatic layout for the 16 who qualified. Weinbrecht, Liz McIntyre and Ann Ballestre are capable of overthrowing the women’s medals. Men’s qualification leader Jonny Moseley tops the men’s field.

Canada’s Anne-Marie Pelchat was the women’s qualifying leader, but that has been the high point of her season.

Shimizu establishes mark for Japan
Associated Press
NAGANO, Japan

Wednesday, February 11

It wasn’t enough that Dimitriev of the Soviet Union was in the emperor was in the M-Wave. Hiyoriyo Shimizu felt as if all of Japan had crammed into the cavernous speedskating hall, eager to see whether one of its smallest athletes could fulfill the hopes of an entire nation.

“About a week ago, I started to feel an uneasiness,” said Shimizu, a 5-foot-4 sprinter who holds the world record in the 500 meters. “I started to worry. What if I don’t achieve what everyone expects? Sometimes I felt like I wanted to run away and be left.”

On Tuesday, he ran straight into the hearts of the Japanese. Transforming the throat-gripping pressure into power, Shimizu burst to an Olympic record in the 500 to give his country its first gold medal of the Nagano Games.

In his victory laps around the oval, he shed tears every time he passed to salute. He bowed before Crown Prince Naruhito and his wife, Princess Masako, and was flung into the air six times by his teammates.

The prime minister called with his congratulations, and within hours a banner headline in an extra edition of the Shimano Mainichi in Nagano proclaimed, “Shimizu Gold.”

At a news conference Wednesday (Tuesday night EST), Shimizu said that whatever adulation or endorsements come his way, he will retain the humility and folklore that has endeared him to crowds in Japan and elsewhere.

“Inside, I have to be able to tell myself I am not Hiyoriyo Shimizu the gold medalist, but the Hiyoriyo Shimizu that made this possible,” he said.

Shimizu finished the race in 35.39 seconds, beating the Olympic record he had set the day before. For the first time in Olympic history, the 500 was decided by the combined time of two races.

With so many favorable stride, chipping stride, Shimizu moved closer to raising the pain of past Japanese failures in the Winter Games.

There was Masahiko Harada, who blew his ski-jumping team’s virtually unbeatable lead on the last jump in Lillehammer four years ago. And Midori Ito, who botched her short program in figure skating in 1992.

As much as the Japanese speedskating team tried to deflect the pressure from Shimizu — officials asked local reporters to keep their questions to a minimum in the days leading up to the games — he could not escape it.

He said he was nervous at the opening ceremony, where he was Japan’s flag-bearer, and nervous after his first race, a 35.76 that set an Olympic record and raised Japanese hopes even higher.

Pairs Skating
Dmitriev earns spot in history
Associated Press
NAGANO, Japan

Wednesday, February 11

The fire that always rages in Artur Dmitriev burned equally bright in partner Oksana Kazakova. She matched his passion in every intricate spin, every precise step, every difficult jump.

And because she did, Dmitriev now has a special spot in Olympic history — the first man to win pairs figure skating gold with two different partners.

Dmitriev and Kazakova, the first Soviet couple to win a pairs gold medal, put on a show that brought down the crowd.

When introduced as the winners, he said, “I am happy we could concentrate, we had to concentrate because we skated last.”

By the time Kazakova-Dmitriev took the ice, Americans Kristi Niles and Jason Dungjen knew they wouldn’t end a U.S. drought in Olympic pairs that goes back to 1988, when Jill Watson and Peter Oppegard won bronze. They were destined to finish fourth.

“We needed to be perfect and have a lot of mistakes on the other end,” Niles said. “But we are fourth at the Olympic Games and that’s fine with us.”

Dmitriev thought the event went superbly, of course — he also coaches silver medalists Yelena Berezhnaya and Anton Sikharulidze.

So did Kazakova, who at first was fearful of joining with Dmitriev.

“I am so happy, it felt so good,” said Kazakova, who held the pairing back when they first teamed up. “I felt the pressure was coming, and I didn’t want to be part of it.”

At 10th straight games a Russian or Soviet couple has won a pairs gold medal.

“I tried to skate emotionally and I talked with Oksans and told her to be emotional for the public,” Dmitriev said. “I am happy we could concentrate, we had to concentrate because we skated last.”

By the time Kazakova-Dmitriev took the ice, Americans Kristi Niles and Jason Dungjen knew they wouldn’t end a U.S. drought in Olympic pairs that goes back to 1988, when Jill Watson and Peter Oppegard won bronze. They were destined to finish fourth.

“We needed to be perfect and have a lot of mistakes on the other end.” Niles said. “But we are fourth at the Olympic Games and that’s fine with us.”

Mandy Woetzel and Ingo Steuer were third, the first Olympic pairs medal for Germany since 1980.

Ian and Dungjen, two-time American champions, remained fourth — where they were after the short program, when their coach, Peter Burrows, claimed they were under-marked.

But they didn’t skate nearly as well as the medal-winners in the free skate, which is worth two-thirds of the total score.

Dmitriev, perhaps the most majestic of all skaters, and Kazakova received a perfect 6.0 for artistry from the Czech judge. Their precision was evident from the opening step, and they skated their routine, where they nailed side-by-side triple toe loops and followed quickly with double axels.

When introduced as the winners, he pointed his heart while waving to the crowd.
Belles ready for points

By SHANNON RYAN
Sports Writer

Saint Mary's track is up and running, but not toward winning yet. The Belles have only raced in non-scoring meets so far, but will begin racing for points Saturday in Chicago.

At Division II Lewis University on Saturday, Saint Mary's competed against 14 schools. The team of seven indoor racers gained valuable experience for their upcoming indoor season which begins this Saturday at the University of Chicago.

"I was pleased with our performance," 12-year head coach Larry Szczechowski said. "It was nice to get out and compete. It was a good starting point for us."

Saint Mary's will lean heavily upon junior co-captain and last year's all-American Stacy Davis, who vaulted the school into 26th place nationally. The two-time MVP who holds four Belles track records proved at Lewis that she is in top form again this year.

Davis, healing from a leg injury, sped to a 7.42 finish in the 55-meter dash, second only to a runner from Valparaiso. Had it been a regular scoring meet, the time would have been provisionally qualifying for the Indoor Championship, which Davis raced in last year.

"I look for her to improve," Szczechowski said. "But I was pleased with her performance."

The coach will also be looking to co-captain Carrie Kate Briscoe to shine in indoor distance races. Briscoe, a junior, is a two-year letter winner, featured in the 3,000-meter indoor and 5,000-meter outdoor. Sophomore Sharis Long is also showing promise as she leaped to a 33.83 finish in the 200-meter hurdles at the Lewis meet.

On the fast track in Chicago, Saint Mary's will be part of a small, five-team meet. The meet will include top competitors such as North Central and Ohio Northern.

"There will be good competition and good sprinters," Szczechowski said of the weekend meet. "It's early, but I think we're doing well."

Shorin-Ryu Karate — This semester-long course meets in Rockne Room 219 on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6 to 7:30 p.m. You must register in advance at RecSports and the fee is $18. Call 1-8237.

Jazz Dance — A Jazz Dance class will be offered Saturdays and Tuesdays from 12 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. (Sat.) and 8 to 9 p.m. (Tues.) in Rockne Rm. 301.

Aikido — Classes on Monday from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in Room 301, and Friday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 219 in Rockne. Bring comfortable clothes.

Tonight:
- $2 All You Can Eat Wings
- Drink League Starts @ 10 PM

LETS CELEBRATE THE BIG ONE
Finnegan’s Mardi Gras Week

Beginning February 16th
Enter to win your chance to be crowned KING or QUEEN of Finnegan’s own Mardi Gras Celebration.

The winner will receive a trip for two to New Orleans. Drawing will be held on February 20th. Different events, games, prizes and drink specials daily.

Watch for more details in the Observer or call 283-0452

Finnegan’s Irish Pub
113 E. Wayne
Downtown South Bend

COME JOIN THE TRADITION.
Applications are now being accepted for manager positions at the Alumni-Senior Club for the 1998-99 academic school year. You may pick up applications at the Office of Student Activities, 315 LaFortune.

ALUMNI SENIOR

THE CLUB

ALUMNI SENIOR

THE CLUB
SPORTS

Wednesday, February 11, 1998

Track and Field

Olympian McMullen runs personal best at Notre Dame

By KATHLEEN O'BRIEN
Sports Writer

In the past eight months, Paul McMullen has staged one of the greatest athletic comebacks ever. McMullen, a 1996 Olympian in the 1500-meter run and two-time U.S. champion, nearly faced the end of his running career last summer. He has recovered from losing two toes in a lawnmower accident, and ran his personal record time as an unattached runner in the mile this past Saturday at the adidas/Meyo Invitational here at Notre Dame.

After mowing a neighbor's lawn early last June, he was walking the lawnmower, which was new and on a high setting, down a steep bank and left down his guard for an instant. Afterwards, he has been mowing lawns since he was eight, including as a summer job, he slipped on the wet grass. His right foot was caught under the blade of the mower.

"At that moment," McMullen said, "I was thinking it might be time to charge careers because I thought I might have just ended my track career."

The scariest moment for McMullen came at the hospital when they took off his shoe.

"I thought my big toe was going to fall off and then I would have been done running," McMullen said. "When I realized I wasn't going to bleed to death, I started to tell people that I was an Olympian in the 1500-meter run, and then the concern kind of entered everyone's face that the guy they were working on really needed his toes and needed expert care."

Notre Dame graduate and former football player for the Fighting Irish Michael Manis performed the surgery, saving the big toe and parts of the second and third toes.

McMullen, 25, was unable to run for three months after his accident. Since then he has had some of the best running performances of his career. In mid-January, he won the University of Michigan Open indoor 800-meters in 1:50.12, his best time ever on an indoor 200-meter track. On Saturday, he ran the mile in a career-best 3:56.61, placing second to his long-time compatriot, Kevin Sullivan of the University of Michigan.

"I got home on Saturday night and called Mr. Masini to say, 'We're back,'" McMullen said. "No one ever does anything great alone. I believe that you need people to help you along the way and you need to go back and thank them.

This race is about being watched over by a God because God has been watching over me. I just never quit. I'm not a quitter. I have a faith in God that he put me on this earth to run, and that's my job. I believe in it passionately. If I don't use this gift, I'm settling for mediocrity.

In the past year, McMullen began to place his wife and his faith in God higher than his running. He is also a world-class runner, with her main event being the 800-meter run. She represented the U.S. last year in Athens in the World Championships. The couple met in December of 1993 at a cross country meet, with Paul running for Eastern Michigan and Jill for Western Michigan. I liked their relationship to that of the couple in the Titanic, with the same, "You jump, I jump" mentality. He described their first meeting as being hit by a bolt of lightning. During college, he would hitchhike and stow away on Amtrak to visit her because he did not have any money. The two were married in the Catholic Church in Sept. 1995.

"The accident was a test for us, but I believe the accident was a test for me." McMullen has staged one of the greatest athletic comebacks ever.

---

Men's Basketball

Irish battle for balance against BC

By JOE CAVATO
Assistant Sports Editor

After a three-game losing streak that saw one of head coach John MacLeod's top players fall into a shooting slump and his offensive spark from the bench fall to injury, a home game with Boston College could be just what the doctor ordered.

The Irish will try to stay ahead of the Eagles in the standings and away from the dubious honor of sitting at the bottom of the Big East 6 division.

Boston College, 12-12 overall and 4-9 in the Big East, will enter tonight's contest after losing three of its last four. The 1995-96 in the Big East Irish squad is looking to break out of a two-game funk in which their offense has become stagnant.

Guard Duane Woodward and Antonio Granger lead the Boston College attack. Granger will give the Irish all they can handle in the post as he averages 17.1 points per game and 6.5 rebounds per game. The senior has been on a roll as of late, averaging 20.1 points and 7.3 rebounds per game in his last nine outings.

Woodward has made it a habit of saving the best for last. The senior captain averages 15.1 points and 5.1 assists per game and has ignited Eagle second-half rallies in a loss to St. John's and a win over Georgetown.

"Granger and Woodward are two of the better players in the Big East," Irish point guard Martin Ingelsby said.

Sophomore spark plug Keith Friel, who has been sidelined after injuring his thigh against St. John's, will return for tonight's contest.

"Keith has been playing really well," Ingelsby said. "He's been our second leading scorer in Big East games. When he went out it affected our offense."

Superstar Pat Garrity's current mini-slump has also affected the Irish defense. In three of the last four games, Garrity has been held under 20 points and is coming off an uncharacteristic 5-15 shooting performance against Georgetown.

"I guess I'm in a little slump," Garrity said after the Georgetown game that his team has not making the shots right now that I'm suppose to make.

"I guess it's been like that since the Villanova game," he continued. "It's a little frustrating, but sometimes I guess these things happen."

---

Track and Field

at Butler Invitational

February 12, 7 p.m.

Men's Tennis

vs. Kentucky

February 12, 7 p.m.

Women's Tennis

at Butler Invitational

February 11, 7:30 p.m.

---

SMC track prepares for score meets

---

Olympic coverage

See page 17

---

Page 20 Wednesday, February 11, 1998