Bradley ends lecture term with tax policy talk

A worldwide consensus favoring American-style macroeconomic and tax policies should not dull our nation's commitment to a stable, equitable economy, buoyed by a dedication to education, according to former U.S. Senator Bill Bradley.

Bradley concluded his semester-long visiting professorship at Notre Dame with a lecture on economic and tax policy last night in the College of Business Administration's Jordan Auditorium. Following the lecture, Bradley conducted the last session of his class "Public Policy and Leadership," concluding his tenure as visiting professor of public affairs.

"I want to express my appreciation to Notre Dame for allowing me to be here. This is an extraordinary institution," Bradley said.

Fiscal prudence, open markets, free flow of capital, low taxes, an investment in education and an investment in basic research are the steps America must take to ensure a strong economy, Bradley told his audience. These goals are widely agreed upon in the current alternativeless global economy dominated by the paradigm of capitalism.

Of these varied policy targets, education was the one Bradley most emphasized as a viable solution to economic troubles.

"America has to look at education as an economic and development issue. Talent will determine the success of our future," Bradley said. "Elementary and secondary education deserves our attention," he said. "We can't rest on who we were. We have to have an idea of where we want to be, and we have to have an education system that responds to that idea."

Bradley explained that a commitment to all levels of education in America will pay the long-term economic result of pushing the U.S. to global competitiveness, technological growth and continued economic prosperity. This desire for a long-term commitment coexists with a set of more immediate and agreed-upon policy steps for modern economies.

"By and large, there is a consensus that education deserves our attention," Bradley said. "We can't rest on who we were. We have to have an idea of where we want to be, and we have to have an education system that responds to that idea."

The two viruses are still wreaking havoc on campus, said Moser, but their incidences are diminishing.

The CHI virus, said Moser, is a "particularly nasty virus" because it overrides the computer's hard drive, causing everything on the computer -- saved and not saved -- to be lost.

The virus, and is operated on the 26th, two weeks, according to Moser.

"[The viruses] are nothing to get panicked over," said Katie Christman, a Resident Computer Consultant [RCC] in McGlinn Hall.

The Laroux virus has been exceptionally hazardous for business majors because it damages computers that use the Excel program for Windows. The virus does not cause data loss or damage, said Moser, but rather will prevent anyone from opening spreadsheets while using the Excel program.

The OIT has received nearly 170 virus-related phone calls in the past two weeks, according to Moser.

Pilgrims vs. Pay-Per-View

Thanksgiving — a time for giving thanks for all the blessings which we have received during the year by sharing a large meal with our loved ones and spending time with those we love. Right? Not in my house.

In my house, Thanksgiving is a non-stop sports fest that pauses only at halftime of an NFL game to scarf down turkey and dressing before returning to the couch for more football.

Some may consider this a sacrilege and some may find the spirit of Thanksgiving symbolized by the Pilgrims at that first Thanksgiving more than 300 years ago. Why do we honor the Pilgrims? These were people that spent their entire lives trying to escape the religious intolerance in England. They advanced a political agenda of banning burning of other religious activities, and then wondered why nobody liked them.

So may say that they were the victims of religious intolerance by the people of England and were forced to flee their homeland to a dangerous new world across the ocean.

Upon reaching this land and surviving the dangerous winter, they finally created a settlement with the help of the Native Americans. Following their first harvest, they gave thanks to God and the Native Americans by holding a feast of thanks giving. From this feast, our tradition of Thanksgiving developed.

But then, how did the Pilgrims repay the kindness of the Native Americans? By making their lands and burning their villages. Aren't these same poor Pilgrims that suffered from religious intolerance in England guilty of the same religious intolerance once they reached America?

So go ahead, honor the witch-burning, Native American-killing, intolerant Pilgrims. I'll bet that will be a great party for the Pilgrim Boys.

True, Barry Sanders has fatheted illegitimacy by turning their heads into a that, but at least no one pretends that they are angels. So, I will eat my turkey with my family and stuff myself with stuffing, but then I will spend the rest of the weekend in a sports-lover's paradise.

Thanksgiving weekend means the best college football rivalry comes out. It means Mississippi-Mississippi St., Georgia-Georgia Tech, Arizona-Arizona St.

The Tuesday night song means Ricky Williams breaking the all-time NCAA rushing record during yet another classic Texas-Texas Tech game.

And, of course, the most highly anticipated game of the weekend saw our Knights' Irish fall short against the Men of Troy.

Still you may be saying that I am too hard on the Irish. My teammates are Irish, after all. I have no intention of telling them they are ignorant killers, they still suffered during that first Thanksgiving.

But I also suffered this Thanksgiving during my sports-fest. I suffered through Oka's inability to miss from any where on the floor during the Irish loss to the Blue Devils. I suffered through Bob Bri's "I do hate Notre Dame and I am not afraid to show it" Griese and Keith Funston's "I would prefer not to start listing the things that would alter the University's current nondiscrimination policy, which is printed in various University materials such as the Application for Admission and the College Handbook, does not allow for discrimination based on disability, gender, race, religion, age, creed or national origin. A proposal is currently moving through Student govern­ment that would alter the University's current non-discrimination policy and possibly affect campus attitudes towards regarding lesbian, gay and bisexual. The current wording of the University's non-discrimination policy, which is printed in various University materials such as the Application for Admission and the College Handbook, does not allow for discrimination based on disability, gender, race, religion, age, creed or national origin. Furthermore, Atkinson stressed that it was the university's position that all UC employee unions collectively could "disrupt the collegial relationship between students and faculty that are so critical in gradu­ate work."

"The SAGE organizers have kept the start date of the strike somewhat secret until now, largely because they feared that university administrators would hire replacement workers to keep the place running," said Chancellor Albert Carnesale.

University officials have said that switching to multiple-choice final exams is being considered as an option to alleviate extra work on pro­fessors as a result of the strike.

Confirming weeks of rumors and speculations, the graduate student union at UCLA announced an agreement that a strike would indeed begin on Tuesday of this week.

The Student Association of Graduate Employees (SAGE), in conjunction with similar unions at seven other UC campuses, is hoping that this year's strike, the first since 1996, will be more disruptive than past strikes.

And it just may be. Through their affiliation with the United Auto Workers (UAW), SAGE has secured strike benefits — payments to strik­ers working to help them financially survive. But that this strike could last a very long time.

"The duration of the strike will certainly be longer than the strikes we've tried before," said Connie Rizza, an organizer for SAGE.

Meanwhile, UC administrators have reiterated their position that teaching assistants (TAs) should not be considered employees because serving as a teaching assistant is integral to their educational experi­ence.

"We believe that TAs are principally students rather than employees, and thus are not eligible for collective bargaining," said UC president Richard Atkinson in a letter circulat­ed last Monday.

Furthermore, Atkinson stressed that it was the university's position that all UC employee unions collectively could "disrupt the collegial relationship between students and faculty that are so critical in gradu­ate work."

Moriarty portrays human rights plight in exhibit

A new campus photo exhibit captures the magnitude of human rights violations in El Salvador both during and since its civil war.

Steve Moriarty, curator of photography at the Snite Museum, spoke last Monday at the opening reception for his black and white photography exhibit "Women in El Salvador: Landscape of Peace." The Museum, according to Moriarty, was "Unequal in El Salvador since its civil war. Alone in a foreign country at Christmas, I found that I had a lot to learn," he said.

Respect for the subjects he photographed also aided his work, Moriarty told the audience. "The rate of violent death in El Salvador is higher than it was at the worst point of the civil war," he said. "[But], the violence is all crime-related, not political."

Gangs, many with members deported back to El Salvador from California, have taken over the country, and existing authorities cannot cope with the situation. Fueled by readily available weapons — many that the U.S. paid for during the war — the gangs now run rampant, stealing paychecks on payday and committing highway robbery.

"It's a messy situation, but feeding it all at the bottom is poverty, and there's not a lot of easy solutions for this," Moriarty said.

Feeling guilty about being white and American, Moriarty once asked an old Salvadoran if he should have stayed home and sent money instead. "Sometimes worse than poverty is thinking that nobody cares. The fact that you come all the way down here tells us that someone thinks about us," the Salvadoran responded, he said.

The exhibit will be in LeMans Hall at Saint Mary's until Dec. 11, and is sponsored by the Justice Education Program, the Moreau Galleries, Campus Ministry, the Multicultural Affairs Office, Religious Studies Department and SURV.

NEW YORK

Chief U.N. weapons inspector Richard Butler noted "with satisfaction" in a letter released Tuesday that Iraq was ready to cooperate in resolving several outstanding issues. He said the U.N. Special Commission, or UNSCOM, will deploy teams to help clear up questions about Iraq's chemical weapons and missile programs. Butler must inform the Security Council whether Iraq has resumed full cooperation with UNSCOM before the council can launch a comprehensive review of Baghdad's compliance with council resolutions. The Iraqi government is hoping the review will lead to a quick lifting of sanctions, but the United States insists there is no link. "I expect to be in a position to formulate a report in two or three weeks time on whether or not Iraq has returned to full cooperation," Butler said in the letter.

India's BJP gains support

NEW DELHI

Despite a rebuke at polling booths, India's governing party won a vote of renewed support from coalition allies Monday. Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee won the boost he sought at a meeting of the 19 parties in his coalition, which affirmed their "unequivocal commitment" to his government. In the voting, the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party, or BJP, lost power to the main opposition Congress party in a couple of key states. The results, announced over the weekend, do not directly affect Vajpayee's coalition. But the vote was seen as a rebuff for the Hindu nationalist party that came to power eight years ago.

Vandy receives $340M gift

Vanderbilt University was promised at least $340 million of Ingram Micro Inc. stock on Monday — one of the largest gifts ever given to a college. Ingram Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Tom Ingram, donat­ed 8 million shares — nearly 6 percent of the computer distributor — to be used for a wide range of university programs. "This gift is of inculcable importance to Vanderbilt," Chancellor Joe B. Wyatt said. "It is unprecedented in size and stands alongside Cornelius Vanderbilt's founding gift 125 years ago as a singular landmark in the history of this university."

U.S., others pledge aid to Palestine

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Yasser Arafat and President Clinton seal an agreement for Palestinian aid at a State Department conference. The U.S. and 42 other countries promise financial aid to combat Palestinian poverty.

The United States and 42 other nations pledged more than $3 billion Monday to help alleviate Palestinian poverty. Yasser Arafat declared himself satisfied, and stepped up his ran­daneous exchanges with Israel by declaring Jerusalem "occupied terri­ty" that should be turned over to the Arabs.

The outsourcing was a one-day conference at the State Department. "There are those who have said this is a stalling technique," Rep. Lindsey Graham of South Carolina said. "But the money underlines just how serious we are about the peace process." Clinton is said to have committed $2.3 billion pledged five years ago.

Clinton not privy with Arafat at the White House, hearing his complaint that Israel had not released enough political prisoners under the Wye agreement that helped in the peace process. "I am satisfied," Arafat said in response to the announcement. "The United States and the Arab countries want this peace to be fair. If it is fair, we can make peace with Jordan." The president helped in the negotiations.

DeLay predicts Clinton impeachment

WASHINGTON

The chief Republican vote counter in the House accused President Clinton on Sunday of trying to evade perjury charges "on a technicality," and became the first member of the Republican leadership to predict that the House would impeach the president.

Rep. Tom DeLay of Texas, the Republican whip, criticized Clinton's formal responses on Friday to 81 questions submitted by the House Judiciary Committee. "Once again, the president is try­ing to redefine what sexual relations are, he's trying to use legalese and lawyerese to do two-steps around the questions and try to get off on a technicality," DeLay said on the CNN program "Late Edition." DeLay, whose ability to keep tabs on Republican votes in the House is widely respected by both parties, cautioned that he had not taken a formal head count on impeachment. But he indicated that his experience told him that the House would follow the recommendations of the Judiciary Committee, which is expected to approve, along party lines, at least one charge of perjury.

The majority of the House will uphold the rule of law and impeach the president and send the case to the Senate," said DeLay, who is in the third-ranking Republican in the House. DeLay's unusual forecast came as an outspoken Republican on the Judiciary Committee, one who has im­ploded the White House for a way to avoid impeachment, also voiced anger over Clinton's answers.

"He's still dancing on the head of a pin," Rep. Lindsey Graham of South Carolina said. "Right now, to me, he is an unpardonable perjurer who should lose his job unless he changes his tone with the American people and reconciles himself with the law." Clinton's tersely worded replies repeated earlier denials that he had lied under oath or had urged others to do so, seem to have hardened the partisan views of Republican and Democratic commit­tee members, and given no new information to other lawmakers who are anxious to hear the presi­dent's side of the story before mak­ing up their minds on how to vote on impeachment.
Background check irritates prospective gun buyers

Associated Press

WAUSAU, Wis.

Told he would have to wait at least a half-hour to buy a 12-gauge shotgun for goose hunting, Eric Thompson rolled his eyes Monday and leaned on the store counter.

The hot line to the federal computer system was busy, he was informed by a salesman at Gander Mountain, a sporting goods store in Wausau, Wis.

"I'm cutting into my daylight driving time," grumbled Thompson, 34, who was on his way back home to Illinois after spending the weekend in Wisconsin. He said if he hits a deer while driving home, the government is going to hear about it.

A new federal background checking system for all prospective gun buyers kicked in Monday and was met with technical delays and impatient customers and store owners.

The new instant-check system is required under the Brady Law, which it calls "an illegal nation­al registration of gun owners."

Everyone who wants to buy a handgun or long gun, at least a half-hour to buy a 12-gauge shotgun for grouse hunting, would be verified by FBI computer records.

The new system, which has been in operation for the past few years to help them computerize their records, has been working smoothly, approvals should take just three minutes.

Activists on both sides of the gun control debate have serious problems with the new background checks.

The Justice Department has given $200 million to states in the past few years to help them computerize their records. The FBI says that once the system is working smoothly, approvals should take just three minutes.

Justice Department officials have to research a mentally ill and people convicted of domestic violence.

The new system, and many were annoyed that their phones literally wouldn't answer," said Barry Perry of Perry's Gun Shop in Wendell, N.C. "I don't know if it was a computer overload or too many incoming calls."

The FBI did not respond to requests for an interview.

Many gun dealers said Monday they and their customers were confused by the new system, and many were having trouble getting through to the FBI's approval hot line.

Others were annoyed that their employees had to sit on hold or install new phone lines.

"Somewhere late morning or early afternoon, the complete system went down. The phones were literally wouldn't answer," said Barry Perry of Perry's Gun Shop in Wendell, N.C. "I don't know if it was a computer overload or too many incoming calls." Later, Perry said, the system went back up.

The FBI did not respond to requests for an interview.

At Gary's Gun Shop in Sioux Falls, S.D., one buyer had gone through the check by midmorning. It took a half-dozen times to get through to the hot line, then about 10 minutes to wait for approval, said owner Gary Salone.

"From our standpoint, it's going to add a fair amount of expense for us. We're going to end up with one person at least part time spending all their time on the phone. We are putting in a third phone line," he said.

Other places said even if the system eventually works smoothly, they find it oppressive.

Abortion, euthanasia and capital punishment demean the lives of countless individuals in our society.

Gather with us in Eucharistic Adoration to pray for an end to the culture of death.

Jesus is here with us in the Eucharist to give us answers—answers that will lead us to truth, happiness and peace. In this culture of death, it is easy for people to become weary and indifferent to God and His gift of life. People often fall short of their obligation to care for and nurture the spiritual and physical lives of themselves and others. Eucharistic Adoration gives a person the opportunity to nurture his own spiritual life, as well as the spiritual lives of others (through prayer for them.) Prayer also protects the physical lives of those endangered by abortion, euthanasia and other forms of violence. It is only through the grace which comes from prayer that others’ hearts can be changed from seeking death to loving life. Christ gives us the strength to press on in our battle for life. In order to be Christ-like in our service to preserve life, we must be filled with His life through prayer.

We ask you to join us in prayer for life at Eucharistic Adoration.

What is Eucharistic Adoration?

God is present to us in many ways in our world, but He is especially present to us in the Eucharist. As Roman Catholics, we believe that Jesus Christ, who lived 2000 years ago, is truly present in the Eucharist. In Eucharistic Adoration, the Host is placed in a monstrance, in order for us to be able to come and pray. Jesus is always hidden in the tabernacle, but in adoration He is exposed so that we can come and kneel before Him, face to face, and speak with God. When Jesus is exposed like this, He can never be left alone. Thus, people sign up to be responsible to come and pray with Him for a certain amount of time (usually 1/2-1 hour) every week.

Why should I go?

If Jesus were to come to the JACC, wouldn’t you come and stand in line for hours just to talk to Him for a minute? Even if you weren’t Christian, wouldn’t you be at least interested in this God so many people talk about? Well, Jesus is truly present here on campus—in the Eucharist. IN ADORATION YOU HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO GO AND SPEAK WITH GOD FACE TO FACE. You can confide in Him, plead with Him, question Him. And if you sit quietly enough, He will inspire you with answers.

What do I do when I am there?

When you enter the chapel, you should genuflect as a sign of reverence to Jesus. It is common practice during Adoration to genuflect on two knees, instead of just one (like you do whenever you enter a chapel.) You can stand, sit, or kneel—whatever helps you pray. And then you pray. There are many ways to pray: you can do spiritual reading; you can pray a rosary; you can sit in silence; you can even just talk to Jesus—like you would to a friend. The most important thing is that you love Him and allow Him to love and strengthen you.

What does the Church think?

"Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament, whether in a pyx or a monstrance, is a recognition of the wondrous Presence of Christ in the sacrament and stimulates us to unite ourselves to Him in a spiritual communion. It is, accordingly, eminently in harmony with the worship which we owe Him in spirit and truth."

Eucharistic Adoration on Campus:

FRIDAY: Blessed Mother Chapel in the Basilica: 12:00pm (following 11:30am Mass) - 5:00pm with a Rosary beginning at 4:15pm. (Ends with Benediction at 4:45pm)

MONDAY beginning at 11:30pm (following 11:00pm Mass) through TUESDAY at 10:00pm

"[Ending with Benediction at 9:45-10:00pm] In Fisher Hall Chapel.

"I make a holy hour each day in the presence of Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament. All my sisters of the Missionaries of Charity make a daily holy hour as well, because we find that through our daily holy hour our love for Jesus becomes more intimate, our love for each other more understanding, and our love for the poor more compassionate..."

Demand for a Sweatshop-Free Campus:
Is ND’s Bottom Line the Dollar or Justice

Although we should be proud that Notre Dame was the first university to adopt a listing of Code of Conduct, we must recognize the need for improvement. The sad truth is that all of these standards and principles asserted in the current Code of Conduct are commendable - prohibition of forced labor, excessive overtime and harassment. But what do these standards mean if we do not even know where the ND logo is manufactured and under what conditions? SWEATSHIRTS THRIVE IN SECRECY. As the findings of UNITED reveal to us, in a report which alleged the manufacturing of ND hats in a sweatshop where working conditions violated numerous standards of the Code, adherence to this code means very little unless we have the Right-to-Know. Haven’t we learned the lesson that this terrible incident taught us? We cannot assume that because we support the Right-to-know exactly where items bearing the ND logo are made. So long as the locations of these manufacturers remain secret, sweatshops will proliferate. If information became open to the public, corporations might feel pressured to start paying a little more to insure that their products be manufactured under decent conditions.

As students should be allowed to take part in improving this Code of Conduct. We can play an important role in ensuring justice in our Code of Conduct. If Notre Dame’s primary interests are not financial, then why wasn’t student input invited when the Code was first adopted?

We demand that the ND logo stand as a symbol of the academic, athletic, religious tradition we believe this University to embody, not a symbol of greed, poverty and human exploitation. As Catholics, we “are called to work for economic justice in the face of persistent poverty, growing income gaps and increasing discussion of economic issues in the United States and around the World” (U.S. Catholic Bishops, Economic Justice For All).

As a University, we must prove to ourselves and the rest of the academic world that the bottom line at Notre Dame is not the dollar, but is justice.

I would like to respond to Rhonda Moore’s letter in your newspaper of November 29. It is not so much to defend Sean Vinck (who seems capable of doing that himself) as to make some points which might be of value in the campus discussion regarding the Women’s Resource Center (WRC), which discussion has continued to date because the WRC’s proposal to provide abortion and contraception counseling on this campus has been rejected. This is a matter of principle, not of cowardice, and it is a matter of principle that is compelling me to write. I feel that if the WRC were to distribute information about abortion and contraception, it would be one of the first to point out to you, Mr. Telford, the extreme irony of your letter. You write complaining about the amount of space the Observer devotes to “gay issues,” but your publication is only perpetrating the so-called “gay issue” problem.

First, there is no need for the WRC to distribute information about abortion and contraception. To understand why this is so, one must understand the Catholic view of the nature of the person and the nature of sin. A person is created good to enjoy eternal life with God. A mortal sin is an act by which a person turns away from God and rejects his offer of eternal life. Since eternal life with God is the greatest good that one can achieve, it does not make sense to commit mortal sins and risk losing it.

Thanks to Mary Beth Ellis for her funny satire of the Jerry Springer Show (The Observer, Nov. 24). However, I am concerned about her inclusion of the question, “In what type of trailer home do you live?” on the survey of those accepting an invitation to appear on the show. I write as someone who, as a legal aid attorney in rural Pennsylvania, represented many poor people who lived in trailer parks, and, as a graduate student at Notre Dame, who can (by choice), by at least some measure, be counted among those “low-income persons” in our country. Most people know that in common usage, “low-income” means “lived in trailer parks,” and “trailer home” has become the latest slur in a long line of expressions, such as “trash talk,” “to connect poor people and moral depravity. Most people of faith, including, for instance, those of us in the Roman Catholic community, have rejected that linkage entirely. By placing her trailer home question along side questions concerning “illegiti­

Sweet dreams and nightmares ... where do they come from? Does what we see in our dreams have any meaning? While researchers try to learn more about what our minds do while we sleep, it is still fun to think of what the images might mean.

Have you ever saved the world from an alien invasion? Been chased down your street by a band of cowboys? Or maybe you've gained the ability to fly? What's that? Only in your dreams? Good enough.

Although some have trouble remembering their dreams, research shows that everyone dreams. The most vivid of our dreams occur while in Rapid Eye Movement (REM) sleep. This type of sleep occurs about every 90-100 minutes, three to four times a night. Each segment of REM sleep may last up to 45 minutes. Although many aren't aware of it because color is such a normal part of our visual experience, research suggests that most dreams are in color.

What is this altered world in which we spend so much of our lives? While we analyze, plan and strategize our waking hours, once we drift off to sleep we have lost the tight reign of control we are used to. There are, however, factors from our waking lives which are thought to shape and alter our dreaming hours.

Nightmares, which are common among children and adults are thought to be caused by stress, traumatic experiences, emotional problems, drugs or illness. If you are an adult, you may be especially prone to night terrors.

Do you ever remember a dream and realize that its subject is something you were thinking about right before you fell asleep? This happens because giving yourself pre-sleep suggestions can cause you to dream about those suggestions. So as you lay in bed at night, it might be worthwhile to take a moment and think of a pleasant thought which might be nice to dream about. Would you like to do well on your finals? Although reality may not be as forgiving, some pre-sleep suggestions and a bit of dreaming may give you momentarily, maybe false, satisfaction.

People often comment that they can guide their dreams and cause things to happen in them, somewhat like in a video game. This might actually be true. A type of dreaming called "lucid dreaming" consists of the sleeper being aware that he is dreaming. Many people experience this and realize that they can control the course of events in their dream.

Sensual "input," often things you hear around you as you sleep, are incorporated into your dream. You may dream that you are doing karaoke with friends and awake to realize you were singing along with your alarm clock radio.

While one cannot assume that dreams are a result of unconscious wishes, or that they have any special meaning, there are many suggested symbolic meanings for images that occur in dreams. For those who are wondering what the fact that you are flying like a bird or falling through the air might mean, here are some suggested interpretations from Russell Grant's "The Illustrated Dream Dictionary."

Alien:
Meeting aliens in your dreams predicts important changes. If you see yourself as an alien, valuable new friends are about to enter your life.

Babies:
Often symbolize success. If you are a single girl, it could mean someone is trying to seduce you. A newborn baby implies you have a child-like dependence on someone you are close to. A crying baby could be a sign to take heart. If a baby in your dream starts to walk, independence will be yours.

Blindfold:
If you see a blindfold, there is something bothering your conscience. When you are wearing it, you should review your plans for suspicious motives.

Cage:
Bird cages symbolize happy marriage. If the cage is empty with the door open, look for betrayal.

Cell:
If you dream you are in a cell or in prison, be careful not to be careless. Keep promises or you could lose a friend.

Dagger:
Be ready for a surprise. Be more tactful to avoid a difficult situation. If others in your dream have daggers, it could mean you will win against tough opposition.

Divorce:
If you are married, this dream is contrary and means you can rely on your mate. If you are single, it is a warning that you are misplacing your affections.

Escalator:
Going up an escalator signifies success. Going down signifies that you can succeed in the end if you are extremely determined.

Falling:
These common dreams can be a symbol of fear in real life, often of something in work or love. A dream that you are falling suggests a need to allow yourself to release and enjoy more. These dreams can stem from feelings of isolation or a need for support or acceptance.

Flowers:
Fresh, bright flowers suggest you will soon be the happiest ever. Dead, wilted flowers are a warning that you are being overconfident. Wild flowers imply there is adventure ahead.

Roses:
If you give roses to someone it is a sign that someone loves you. If you receive them you will be a social success.

Flying:
If you fly successfully, you might achieve your ambitions without trouble. If you have trouble flying, you may be attempting too lofty of a goal.
Trojans fight Battle, win war

Freshman Arnaz Battle fights his way through a wall of Trojan defenders on a 14-yard run before fumbling the ball at the two-yard line on a play that USC returned to their 29-yard line.

For an Irish team that has relied on different players to spark the victories years streak as they held the Irish Trojans held on to win with 10 total points. First-year USC head coach Paul Hackett's defense broke a 36-year streak as they held the Irish scoreless in the game.

Chappell added just two more passing attempts after the interception. The first was thrown low to Johnson at the end of the first quarter and his next - and last - was taken for his second interception. This time, the pass landed to Claiborne on the opening drive of the second quarter. Despite him being the leader rusher in the game at that point - with seven carries for 33 yards - Bob Davie pulled Chappell in favor of the freshman Battle.

With a line that held Autry Denson to just 21 yards on 10 attempts in the half, the Irish were unable to move the ball in the air, not having completed a pass in the first half. "One thing we had to do when they have nine guys up front was we had to execute and go out to our receivers," said Chappell.

Denson finished with his lowest rush yardage (46 yards) since he gained an equal total on the ground in 1996 against Air Force. With USC stacking the line, the Irish had no where to go on the rush. "Defensively, they had their safeties up tight which we expected," said Dave. "It took us out of our 1 formation running game. We got to the point where we were pretty much exclusively option football."

Chappell's defense broke a 36-year streak as they held the Irish scoreless in the game.

Battle's first drive when he stepped in to replace Chappell was the best chance Notre Dame had to score. After Kory Minor intercepted a Palmer pass and returned it to the Trojan 14, Davie played his second option on the field. Battle carried the ball on third down to the two-yard line when a controversial call ruled that he was not down before fumbling the ball. Ken Hadip got the turnover and returned it for 27 yards to keep Battle from his first scoring play.

With both teams being tripped by their defenses in the first half, it proved only a matter of time before one of the teams scored. USC did just that in the third quarter, scoring their 10 points on back-to-back possessions.

After gaining just 28 yards in the first half, Chad Morton rushed for 100 in the second as the Trojans expanded their attack behind their unproven offensive line. "We have a lot of heart on this team," said Morton, who finished the season with 967 yards even after sitting out two games with injury. "Despite what everyone's said about us, about our offensive line not being

Freshmen QBs brighten dull offensive day

Playing in the Notre Dame–Southern California game, it finally turns out to be the biggest moment for players on both teams. It was the closest intersectional rivalry game to ever be played. The Trojans scored first on a 23-yard field goal, but the Irish followed with a 29-yard field goal to open their season game for graduating seniors.

But the 70th installment of the rivalry was a much bigger game for two players who are a long way off from playing in their last collegiate contest. Two freshmen LED both teams in what was clearly the most defining moments of their lives.

One was a perfect match at quarterback to the Irish option offense. The other was a back passer who was supposed to be the Trojans' replacement for Ron Powlus, but wound up in Southern California.

On Saturday's game with just six minutes of experience under his belt, Palmers other player joined the battle to bring up his SAT scores, after which point he asked him to bring up his SAT scores. He showed up in the national spotlight as a drop-back passer who was supposed to be the Trojans' replacement for Ron Powlus, but wound up in Southern California.

Notre Dame's summer camp his junior year. If they were tight, but with the quarterback role, so far as a drop-back passer who was supposed to be the Trojans' replacement for Ron Powlus, but wound up in Southern California. They seem to be a much-desired victory.

Ultimately, the season and Saturday's game unfolded in many different ways, much different for the biggest, broadest, future-star signal-caller.

Palmer's association with Nick and USC? He talked with many youngsters dreaming to play college. "It just didn't turn out the way I thought it would," said Palmer. "I played in a few games this year, but they didn't get much time on the field. The way this year's season unfolded in many different ways, much different for the biggest, broadest, future-star signal-caller."

Carson's first carry on his first drive of the game, the clear-and-plain-colored number one. As the 10-0 game dragged on for the final minutes, Battle gained his most significant play-against time under Notre Dame's offense. He finished the day seven for 19 in passing for 94 yards while gaining another 27 yards on seven attempts. In the end, Battle may prove to be the winner of the matchup of two freshman quarterbacks.

"I just went out there and did the best I could," said Battle. "A lot of things didn't work out, but that's just a lack of experience and that's going to be experi-ence for the future. I have a great future and I can't let this get me down."

experienced and being too young and being too green to link to our team, I can't ask for anything more.

After Palmer came with R. Jay Soward for a 25-yard field goal in the second quarter. The Irish scored after that, but Battle did a convincing deer-hunting touchdown. That proved to be the winning play as USC held the Irish scoreless.

Bob Davie on the outcome of the game:
"We have no excuses. I thought Southern Cal played extremely well. I think they deserved to win the football game."

Jarious Jackson on not being able to play:
"It's very hard. I want to be there in so bad but it can't happen.

Carson Palmer on playing rival Notre Dame:
"It's tremendous coming in here and playing that well against Notre Dame. The good thing is I have three more chances left to play in both (the UCLA and Notre Dame rivalries)."

R. Jay Soward on the play of the seniors:
"Our seniors won this game. Our seniors made big plays.

Chris Claiborne on the defensive line:
"I think the d-line played really good. I definitely give them all the credit tonight. They made my job a lot easier."

Notre Dame decided not to pursue Palmer, which led him to remain in southern California and commit to the Trojans. The fit has been perfect for both the passer and head coach Paul Hackett's offense. Having seen Chappell in the sec-

three games this sea-

season, he has passed for 1,472 yards, including 183 yards against the team he always wanted to play for: the Irish.

"He's a heck of a football player," said Irish head coach Bob Davie. "They've done a great job with him. He's in a place that brings out the best in a quarterback as a drop-back passer who was supposed to be the Trojans' replacement for Ron Powlus, but wound up in Southern California.

Yet he could not have put a deeper dagger into the Irish than by running in for the only score in the first quarter. An untouched Palmer strode into the left corner of the end zone in the third quarter, waving his first finger for the Trojans.

From the Trojan's number one to the Irish's backup, Battle pro-

IRISH INSIDER
Freshman quarterback Carson Palmer, in only his third start, slices into the end-zone untouched to give USC the first points of the game.

GRADING THE IRISH
Quartbackers: C+
Eric Chappell played with reckless abandon, and Arnaz Battle did a convincing deer-hunting touchdown. But even if you're not rose to the occasion in the absence of Jarious Jackson, the Trojans still did their best to nullify what they could, but not much came their way. The routes were right, but with the quarterbacks having difficulty reading the defense, this group wasn't really a factor.

Running Backs: C-
Denson's 46 yards rushing brought back memories of his productive days with USC, but this time the opposition knew exactly what was coming. The weight of the entire offensive line was a heavy load to shoulder, but the backs didn't ignite any sparks.

Receivers: C-
Against the Trojan's fifth-rated passing defense, this unit did their best to haul in what they could but not much came their way. The routes were right, but with the quarterbacks having difficulty reading the defense, this group wasn't really a factor.

Offensive Line: B-
All things considered, the Wildcats were unable to block as many as nine times. Despite the boxes in the trenches allowed too many tackles for losses, too many holes for the backs and were penalized too many times.

Defensive Line: C-
R. Jay Soward and Weave gave solid efforts, but with the Trojans having difficulty reading the offense, this unit was a major reason the Trojans tallied only 10 points.

Special Teams: B-
Hunter Smith and the punt team limited Sowd to one-yard return — no small feat since the Irish punter was seven times. The Trojans never gave the struggling offense good enough field position to ever drive.

Coaching: F
While one week is hardly adequate preparation, the two young quarterbacks seemed unprepared and lacked composure. No matter what the opposition expects the run and then defended it, it's time to pull out all the stops.

Overall: 6.2
So much for rallying around the injured Jackson. An un-inspired performance that everything that could go wrong did. As Davie said, "there are no excuses, USC just did not do what they needed to do."
Irish unable to replace Jackson's heart

LOS ANGELES

Often times you don’t realize how important someone is to a team until you have to play without them.

The Irish found out the hard way just how valuable a component Jarious Jackson is to the Blue and Gold machine.

Arnaz Battle and Eric Chappell began Saturday’s contest with good intentions, but the LSU defense virtually ate them alive.

Bob Davie tried to convince his team that one player can not completely change the outcome of a game, but in this case, he was sadly mistaken.

The ever-present threat of a run or a pass kept opposing defenses on their toes for nine games this season.

While Jackson was not always perfect, the interceptions made the quarterback in the mold of Tony Rice dominate the MSU contest.

Tony Driver’s interceptions of the signal caller within easy reach of the hungry Tigers. It wasn’t a cheap shot that knocked the Irish hero to the ground, but a last ditch effort by the Tiger defense bearing down, and seconds left on the game clock.

That was until 10 days ago, when Jackson stepped back into the end zone with the LSU defense bearing down, and seconds left on the game clock.

Jackson went down, the luck of the entire team.

The pain in Jackson’s knee was actually a shot to the heart that had carried the Irish to an improbable 9-1 mark ran out.

At first glance, the quarter-back in the mold of Tony Rice did not warrant comparisons to the former Notre Dame star.

But the lack of execution that dominates the LSU contest gave way to confidence, calm and strength.

Jackson became the go-to guy, the one who didn’t buckle under pressure, the one who stepped up to make the big third-down conversion happen.

Last season was another year muddied in the drop-back passing scheme befitting Ron Powlus.

Jackson, who logged two Drew Brees offerings, the former Notre Dame star, did not warrant comparisons to Jackson’s style be effective for the Irish.

Sometimes you don’t realize how important someone is to a team until you have to play without them.

At first glance, the quarter-back in the mold of Tony Rice did not warrant comparisons to the former Notre Dame star.

The 22-point Michigan State disaster raised even more doubts about Jackson’s ability.

But this run of destiny didn’t prove strong enough.

Battle’s touchdown drive highlighted Jackson’s inability to make the big plays when the team was down.

Jackson’s two interceptions made the quarter-back look vulnerable.

And behind all nine Irish wins are interchangeable. If one part of the machine fails, it can be fixed without affecting the output.

Jackson was not always perfect, but that reasoning was faulty this time. A machine doesn’t have a heart, but this Notre Dame team does.

The Irish found out the hard way just how valuable a component Jarious Jackson is to the Blue and Gold machine.

After leading the Irish to a 9-1 start, Jarious Jackson (left) spent the season finale on the sideline, talking freshman Arnaz Battle through his first major college appearance as the Notre Dame quarterback.

Injured Irish fall to Ferris State

TED BASSANI

Last Tuesday night in Grand Rapids, the upset Ferris State Bulldogs avenged their earlier loss to the Irish by up-ending the Irish 4-2 at Van Andel Arena.

Similar to their previous game on Oct. 16, the two teams played an even game which was eventually decided on a late period goal. After the loss, Notre Dame now sits in second place in the CCHA along with Michigan. Ferris State now leads the conference with a 5-0 record.

The Irish entered last Tuesday's game banged up and shorthanded. They were coming off of two weekend CCHA games, of which two more players (Dushabek, Clark) suffer injuries, in addition to senior Aniket Dhadhphale, who suffered an upper body injury during the game against Bowling Green. The game against the Bulldogs was the team's game six in five days, and all three starters remained out with injuries.

"We're a bit undermanned right now with three guys out of the line up," coach Dave Punin said of his team's physical status. "With three games in five nights, a lot of players are playing a lot of time because those guys are out.

Even with their physical disadvantages, the Irish were able to get the better of the offensive game in the early going, ouetting Ferris State 9-4 in the first period. In the second period, in the lead, the Irish got on the board first as coach Forrest Karr, but Kowalski jammed the puck loose and got it back on top of the crease, giving Ferris State seven power plays.

Later, Notre Dame's penalty kill has been inconsistent, and that trend would continue as the Bulldogs managed two power-goals on the night, including the game winner. The penalty kill was a big part of the game. Ferris State had the edge in kill percentage for this weekend, with three goals allowed on six opportunities.

Despite the amount of penalties, the team's loss, coach Punin did not believe his team played as well as they could have. "The Bulldogs had more opportunities against us, and we addressed it."

On the game, the Irish never got into their flow offensively due to the number of chances occurring. "There were a lot of whirls... so neither team was able to get a lot of momentum," said captain Brian Urick. "With all the penalties, the Irish didn't have a lot of flow to it."

By the end of the night, the Irish had outshot the Bulldogs 23-22, but sophomore Vince O'wens 30 saves proved to be the difference in the game. All in all, the Irish regained their game, spectacular, but each one did his job. Three goals were scored on power plays, and none of the goals in the game came on rebounds.

"Both goalies were steady," Urick said. "Most of the goals came on rebounds, or a case of clearings out of front of the net. Goalkeeping wasn't a problem on either side.

In the third period, all the breaks seemed to go the Irish's way.

Senior Ed Kowalski notched the game-winning goal on the power play with eleven minutes left in the game, giving the Irish a 2-1 lead.

Just as the calls seemed to go our way in the third period, thus negating a potential goal by Ferris State. For the second consecutive game, an Irish forward hit the post in the third period, thus loosing a potential goal for Notre Dame.

This time the shot came from junior Ben Simon, who beat O’wens with a shot from outside the left shoulder, only to have the goalie knock him out to preserve the lead with three minutes to play.

After losing consecutive games for the first time all season, the team will need to regroup for this weekend's showdown in Columbus against fourth place Ohio State. Currently, the Buckeyes are ranked 11th in the nation, so neither team will want to lose.

The Irish will look to improve their season record on Toledo at home tomorrow night.

Their advantage in most categories buried the visitors.

Amy Durham kicked off a 9-0 run with a 3-pointer at the 18:52 mark. Freshman Swin Cash had four points in the opening run.

The Huskies hit 13 of 15 point-shooters to build a 29-24 lead at the 11:48 mark.

This time the shot came from junior Ben Simon, who beat O’wens with a shot from outside the left shoulder, only to have the goalie knock him out to preserve the lead with three minutes to play.

After losing consecutive games for the first time all season, the team will need to regroup for this weekend's showdown in Columbus against fourth place Ohio State. Currently, the Buckeyes are ranked 11th in the nation, so neither team will want to lose.

The Irish will look to improve their season record on Toledo at home tomorrow night.

ND looks to rebound after two losses

The Notre Dame Men's Basketball team had a forgettable weekend at the Great Alaskan Shoot-out.

Now starting with a 2-4 record and starting highly ranked Indiana in the face, it looks to be a long season for head coach John MacLeod and his over-matched team.

The first team Notre Dame had to face in the Thanksgiving weekend tournament was No. 1-ranked Duke. The Blue Devils were using the Shoot-out as a homecoming trip for player-of-the-year candidate Trajan Langdon who hails from Alaska.

Notre Dame was hoping that a tradition of knocking off number one teams could propel their freshman-laden squad to a stirring performance. In the end, Duke would point out just how far off the college basketball map the Irish program has fallen.

Freshman Troy Murphy, who leads the triumvirate of fellow freshmen, David Graves and Harold Swanagan, gave Notre Dame some hope to start the game with two dunks in the early moments. It would be the beginning of Notre Dame's only spark in the game. Murphy lead the Fighting Irish with 21 points and 17 rebounds and senior Antimi Wyche also matched 21 points.

in the bowl game. And it looks positive."

According to Davie, the prospects of these two 9-2 football teams squaring off in the post-season makes the game the most attractive bowl matchup of the year.

"Notre Dame is Notre Dame," said Yellow Jacket coach George O'Leary.

"We're looking forward to the excitement of playing an insta­ tion like Notre Dame. Their key is their quarterback. Jarious Jackson has had a tremendous season, and we hope they're at full strength when we play them.

But no matter what the circumstances, the Gator Bowl affords this year's senior class one final opportunity to achieve a goal that has eluded the group for three years — a 10-win season.

Netters defeat GT, earn tourney bid

The Notre Dame women's volleyball team will face Eastern Washington in the first round of the NCAA tournament Friday at 5:30 p.m. PST in Stanford, Calif., in an attempt to extend its season.

The Irish earned their seventh-straight trip to the NCAA tournament under head coach Debbie Brown by winning the Big East tournament, which secured them an automatic tourney bid. The Irish took first place with a 3-0 defeat of No. 1-seeded Georgetown Nov. 22.

"We just have to take one match at a time, and that's all we can do," said Brown. "As soon as you start looking ahead to what comes next, you stumble and end up on the wrong end."

Notre Dame (17-12) learned its opponent Sunday in the NCAA Mountain Sub-Regional when the brackets for the expanded 64-team NCAA tournament were announced. This will be the first-ever meeting between the Irish and the Eastern Washington Eagles.

The Eagles, coached by Pamela Parks in her 17th season, used a 24-5 overall record to claim an at-large bid in the tournament. Senior and conference MVP Kim Exner leads the Big Sky Conference team with 5.35 kills per game and a .385 hitting percentage. The winner of the match between the Irish and the Eagles will take on the victor of the Stanford-Southeast Missouri State match on Saturday at 7 p.m. The Stanford Cardinal is seeded second in the mountain region, and is the defending NCAA champion.

"I really don't know a lot about their individual players. I do know that they have a very strong program and a good record," said Brown. "Hopefully we can neutralize their hitting a little bit with our blocking."

The Irish are hoping for the return to action of sophomore setter Denise Boylan who has been out with torn ligaments in her right elbow for over one month. She has been practicing some, and may be able to play in the back row this weekend, but will likely be unable to block.

DEATH OF AN INNOCENT

I went to a party, Mom, I remembered what you said.
You told me not to drink, Mom, so I drank soda instead.
I really felt proud inside, Mom, the way you said I would.
I didn’t drink and drive, Mom, even though the others said I should.

I know I did the right thing, Mom, I know you are always right.
Now the party is finally ending, Mom, as everyone is driving out of sight.
As I got into my car, Mom, I knew I’d get home in one piece.
Because of the way you raised me, so responsible and sweet.

I started to drive away, Mom, but as I pulled out into the road,
the other car didn’t see me, Mom, and hit me like a load.
As I lay there on the pavement, Mom, I heard the policeman say, the other guy is drunk, Mom, and now I’m the one to pay.

I’m lying here dying, Mom. I wish you’d get here soon.
How could this happen to me, Mom? My life just burst like a balloon.
There is all this blood around me, Mom, and most of it is mine.
I hear the medic say, Mom, I’ll die in a short time.

I just wanted to tell you, Mom, I swear I didn’t drink.
It was the others, Mom. The others didn’t think.

He was probably at the same party as I.
The only difference is, he drank and I will die.

Why do people drink, Mom? It can ruin your whole life.
I’m feeling sharp pains now. Pains just like a knife.
The guy who hit me is walking, Mom, and I don’t think it’s fair.
I’m lying here dying and all he can do is stare.

Tell my brother not to cry, Mom. Tell Daddy to be brave.
And when I go to heaven, Mom, put “Daddy’s Girl” on my grave.
Someone should have told him, Mom, not to drink and drive.
If only they had told him, Mom, I would still be alive.

My breath is getting shorter, Mom. I’m becoming very scared.
Please don’t cry for me, Mom. When I needed you, you were always there.
I have one last question, Mom, before I say good bye.
I didn’t drink and drive, so why am I the one to die?

 Tigers post strong win over Highlanders

Associated Press

CLEMSON, S.C. No. 24 Clemson scored the first 17 points and held Radford to 23 percent shooting from the field to rout the Highlanders 70-37 Monday night.

All 12 players on the Clemson roster scored, led by Harold Jamison with 13. The 37 points were the fewest ever allowed by Radford. It was the seventh straight game Clemson (11-1) has held its opponent to 60 points or fewer, the school's longest such streak since the 1946-47 season.

The Highlanders (3-2) missed their first nine shots as Clemson opened the game with a 17-0 run, led by Jamison's eight points. It took Radford more than seven minutes to score its first point.

The Tigers, who finished fifth in last week's Maui Classic in Hawaii, built a 36-13 lead and Radford never got closer than 19 of the rest of the way.

Leslie Ballard hit a 3-pointer for Radford with 6:30 left to make it 56-37, but Clemson finished the game with a 14-0 run. Freshman guards Will Solomon and Dusim Bradrick each scored five points in the closing spurt.

Clemson's Terrell McIntyre scored 10 of his 12 points in the first half, and Tom

Owens leads 49ers to win

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO

Jerry Rice complained about the San Francisco 49ers' erratic play, and offered to jump start the offense. Instead, it was Terrell Owens who provided the spark.

Owens caught a 79-yard touchdown pass from Steve Young and Garrison Hearst ran for 166 yards in 20 carries to go over 1,000 yards rushing for the second straight season as San Francisco beat the New York Giants 31-7 Monday night for their 15th straight regular-season home win.

But the win was costly. The 49ers lost star defensive tackle Bryant Young midway through the fourth quarter to a right leg injury. Replays showed the leg bent backwards as he collided with linebacker Ken Norton Jr. as they closed in for a tackle.

The Giants (4-8) started fast but then faded, much like they have this season after winning the NFC East last year.

Kent Graham had a 48-yard completion to Ike Hilliard on their first play and three plays later, Gary Brown bolted 11 yards up the middle for a touchdown.

New York, with the second-worst offensive ranking in the league, couldn't sustain its advantage against a 49ers team that fell behind for the seventh time in nine games.

Owens, who finished with five catches for 140 yards, turned a short flat pass from Young into a score to pull into a 7-all tie with 2:39 left in the first period.

The fleet Owens, now perhaps the 49ers' most dangerous receiver, blew past Conrad Hamilton near the line of scrimmage and pulled free of Sam Gaines' grasp at the 30. Suddenly, he was running free down the left sideline and into the end zone.

After being held to three catches for 27 yards in last week's 31-20 win against New Orleans, an exasperated Rice said he felt left out of the offense and implied San Francisco could reverse its sluggish starts by throwing more passes his way. He finished Monday night's game with three catches for 25 yards.

The 49ers opened the game with a no-huddle for the first time this season and Young went to Rice several times early. Near the end of San Francisco's third series, Young tried to force the

Portland spoils Irish bid for championship title

By BRIAN KESSLER

"There was a lot going on there," Talbot said. "TK [Tara Koleski] slotted the ball to me and I was open in front of the goal."

Beene stopped five shots on the afternoon, but couldn't turn away Talbot, who scored her 12th goal of the season.

"This time it was our turn," Portland head coach Clive Charles said. "In the past few years, Notre Dame got the breaks. We have lost in nearly every conceivable way to them. Today, we got our foot on the ball at the right time and they didn't."

Portland got on the board first when freshman Brooke Niele Ivey won a ball and scored from 18 yards out into the right corner of the net at 27:44.

"I know LaKeysia is stronger on high balls than she is on low balls," O'Hanley said. "I just put it on the ground near the post and it went in."

Jenny Heft had the lone goal for the Irish. Sophomore Anne Makinen beaded Jen Grubb's free kick into the back of the net for the Irish. Sophomore Angela Harrison had four saves and senior Monica Gerardo dodges a Michigan defender in an earlier NCAA tournament victory. Notre Dame was unable to keep its 45-game home win streak alive, however, as the Irish lost to Portland in the quarterfinals.

Irish climb to seventh in AP poll

By BRIAN KESSLER
Assistant Sports Editor

The seventh-ranked Notre Dame women's basketball team (5-0) has matched its best start in school-history with recent wins over Illinois and San Francisco.

Senior captain Sheila McMillen turned in a 20-point performance at the Joyce Center in last Tuesday's game against Illinois to become the 14th Irish player to reach the 1,000-point plateau. The Irish went on to defeat No. 24 Illinois 101-92, thanks to the clutch free throw shooting of McMillen, who went 4-for-4 from the charity stripe, with less than a minute to play.

Guard Niele Ivey led the Irish with 22 points on 8-of-16 shooting and Ruth Riley had yet another double-double with 21 points and 12 rebounds. The sophomore center was limited to just 23 minutes of play due to foul trouble.

Danniele Green was the other Irish player to reach double digits, as she poured in 15 points.

Illini forward Susan Blauser also scored 26 points and helped pull Illinois within three points late in the game.

Notre Dame accepts Gator Bowl invitation

By ALISON KRILLA
Assistant Sports Editor

It's official. The Irish will be ringing in the New Year in Jacksonville, Fla., site of the Toyota Gator Bowl.

Notre Dame athletic director Michael Wadsworth accepted the Jan. 1 Bowl invitation just hours after a conference call with the conference commissioners and bowl representatives released Notre Dame from its BCS at-large bid.

The No. 16 Irish will take on a Georgia Tech team ranked as high as 12th, if the first team Bob Davie faced as Notre Dame head coach, in a 12:30 p.m. contest on NBC.

"I'm very proud to accept the invitation, especially to play against a fine opponent like Georgia Tech," said Wadsworth.

The seeds for the invitation were actually sewn months ago, when Big East commissioner Mike Tranghese and Wadsworth agreed to give Notre Dame access to the Gator or Insight.com Bowls following the Big East's No. 2 team. In a four-year period, the Irish, if selected, can attend the Gator Bowl twice and Insight.com Bowl once. Without such an agreement where would the 9-2 Irish have wound up this year?

"At the bus stop," joked Wadsworth, before adding, "I don't know where," on a more serious note.

On the heels of Saturday's 10-point loss to USC, the Gator Bowl invite may have seemed like a formality, while a more serious question lingered: will Jarious Jackson be healthy by New Year's Day? "Everyone responds differently to rehab," said Davie. "But Betsy Guilbeaux had the same injury versus Michigan State, and he bounced back. We' re expecting Jarious to play. He suffered the same type of injury to the other knee in high school. So we're hoping to have Jarious Jackson
