Yaffa Eliach spoke about her experiences as part of President Carter's committee to memorialize the Holocaust.

In addition to creating the Tower of Life, Eliach also wrote the book "There Once Was a World: a 900-year Chronicle of Jewish Life at the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, which contains approximate 1,500 photos of Jews in Eishyshok before the Germans came. Eliach said the tower, which is designed to give the sense of standing in the middle of the town, has helped visitors to realize the creativity of Jewish life in Eastern Europe before the Holocaust.

"It became the forum of the family of mankind," said Eliach of the Tower.

Many of the pictures were taken before the people photographed emigrated from the shetel. Eliach's paternal grandparents took many of the photos in their studio. Eliach also spoke of the impetus the people from Eishyshok have had throughout the world. People from the town immigrated to all parts of the globe. Barbara Walters' mother was one such immigrant.

The search continues
Officials are combing through the wreckage of Tuesday's commuter train crash in London.

News ➤ page 8

Library to undergo renovations

By LINDSAY FRANK
News Writer

Plans to renovate the Hesburgh Library are close to being finalized. "The renovation could start as early as summer of 2000," said Jennifer Younger, director of University Libraries.

According to Younger, a master planning study document should be ready for the University's approval either late this week or early next week. The stages of the renovation, which will focus solely on the interior of Hesburgh, will be determined and floor plans will be drawn up.

Initially, the plan will concentrate on the basement, first floor and second floor. "We want to change the amounts of space allocated for collections and people," said Younger.

There has also been a push to make the library more open and inviting to visitors.

"We want it so that when you come in you really get a sense of what is there," she said.

In addition to rearranging the collections, there has been talk of moving the computer lab from second floor to first floor, as well as putting in a cafe on first floor.

Discussions regarding the renovation have been going on for about a year since focus groups began meeting last fall.

Comprised of faculty and students, these groups talked about how the renovation could benefit the needs of student body vice president O'Donoghue explained that the report was provided, he said, so that the comments brought forth by the senators at the meeting could be integrated into the presentation of the report to the trustees next Thursday.

The motion to close the meeting immediately preceded adjournment of the Senate. Among the three members of the public removed was Dan Peate, who co-authored the report.

On condition of anonymity, one senator confirmed that following the closure of the meeting, senators continued to discuss the Board of Trustees report, though no legislation was passed concerning the report.

see LIBRARY/page 4

Controversy surrounds report to Board of Trustees

By FINN PRESSLY
Assistant News Editor

The Senate, the representative body of the Student Union, voted unanimously to expel members of the public, including representatives from campus media, from a portion of its meeting last night to discuss the Board of Trustees report.

The motion to close the meeting was brought forward by McMillin senator Meredith Sumpjal.

The topic of the report, presented to the senate by Dan Peate and Brian Smith, address the Catholic character of the University, and whether or not Notre Dame's mission statement is adequately implemented on all levels of student life.

"It doesn't reflect my views at all," said Fisher senator Phil Dittmar.

Many of the senators had points of contention regarding the report, including the College of Science's commitment to religion.

"The report was simply to examine how the University mission statement affects daily student experience," said Krongauz senator Brian O'Donoghue.

"We approved the topic last spring and basically said, 'OK, kids, run with it,'" said O'Donoghue.

This has been the first year that senators have received a copy of the report at all, according to student body vice president Michael Palumbo. The report was provided, he said, so that the comments brought forth by the senators at the meeting could be integrated into the presentation of the report to the trustees next Thursday.

The motion to close the meeting immediately preceded adjournment of the Senate. Among the three members of the public removed was Dan Peate, who co-authored the report.

On condition of anonymity, one senator confirmed that following the closure of the meeting, senators continued to discuss the Board of Trustees report, though no legislation was passed concerning the report.

see SENATE/page 6

Goin' for gold
Ice Cube and George Clooney attempt to benefit from the spoils of the Gulf War in "Three Kings."

Scene ➤ page 14

Student Senate

Controversy surrounds report to Board of Trustees

By FINN PRESSLY
Assistant News Editor

The Senate, the representative body of the Student Union, voted unanimously to expel members of the public, including representatives from campus media, from a portion of its meeting last night to discuss the Board of Trustees report.

The motion to close the meeting was brought forward by McMillin senator Meredith Sumpjal.

The topic of the report, presented to the senate by Dan Peate and Brian Smith, address the Catholic character of the University, and whether or not Notre Dame's mission statement is adequately implemented on all levels of student life.

"It doesn't reflect my views at all," said Fisher senator Phil Dittmar.

Many of the senators had points of contention regarding the report, including the College of Science's commitment to religion.

"The report was simply to examine how the University mission statement affects daily student experience," said Krongauz senator Brian O'Donoghue.

"We approved the topic last spring and basically said, 'OK, kids, run with it,'" said O'Donoghue.

This has been the first year that senators have received a copy of the report at all, according to student body vice president Michael Palumbo. The report was provided, he said, so that the comments brought forth by the senators at the meeting could be integrated into the presentation of the report to the trustees next Thursday.

The motion to close the meeting immediately preceded adjournment of the Senate. Among the three members of the public removed was Dan Peate, who co-authored the report.

On condition of anonymity, one senator confirmed that following the closure of the meeting, senators continued to discuss the Board of Trustees report, though no legislation was passed concerning the report.

see SENATE/page 6

Library to undergo renovations

By LINDSAY FRANK
News Writer

Plans to renovate the Hesburgh Library are close to being finalized. "The renovation could start as early as summer of 2000," said Jennifer Younger, director of University Libraries.

According to Younger, a master planning study document should be ready for the University's approval either late this week or early next week. The stages of the renovation, which will focus solely on the interior of Hesburgh, will be determined and floor plans will be drawn up.

Initially, the plan will concentrate on the basement, first floor and second floor. "We want to change the amounts of space allocated for collections and people," said Younger.

There has also been a push to make the library more open and inviting to visitors.

"We want it so that when you come in you really get a sense of what is there," she said.

In addition to rearranging the collections, there has been talk of moving the computer lab from second floor to first floor, as well as putting in a cafe on first floor.

Discussions regarding the renovation have been going on for about a year since focus groups began meeting last fall.

Comprised of faculty and students, these groups talked about how the renovation could benefit the needs of
The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Today's Staff

News

The Observer

Mauve Smith

Erica Thesing

Sports

Molly McVey

Viewpoint

A.J. Boyd

MIchigan State workers may strike

EAST LANSING, Mich.

By Saturday, Michigan State University could find itself without custodians, plumbers, animal-care workers and food-service workers if two MSU unions vote to strike. Union contracts expired June 31 and July 31 and negotiations between the MSU unions and the administration have not reached an agreement.

The workers are asking for an extension on the union contracts and for a promise of a future bargaining period, said Local 999 President Dennis Lantzy.

Lantzy said, "We don't think we're that far from a settlement," Local 999 President Dennis Lantzy. "We know they were willing to go over the goal when I made my last major gift," said Sidney Knafel, who has given about $27 million to Harvard over the course of the campaign. "They've wanted to keep the announcement of going over the goal quiet so it will be a joint release," he added.

Harvard donors reach $2.1 billion goal

"I knew they were well over the goal when I made my last major gift." - Sidney Knafel

Harvard fund raiser

The Observer (USPS 599 2-4000) is published Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during exam and vacation periods. The Observer is a member of the Associated Press. All republication rights reserved.

Thursday, October 7, 1999

Inside Column

Too Quiet

Things are just too quiet here at Notre Dame. Not because we live in God's country. Not because it's the most beautiful campus I've ever seen. It's too quiet because the students like it that way. Once upon a time, maybe when your parents were in college, students were noisy. They fought over draft cards and buildings to protest the Vietnam War. They chained themselves to trees or bars and riddled the entrance to administration offices. In the South, they screamed until they were hoarse for equal rights.

But today's students are quiet, much quieter than middle-of-the-road. Don't think this is lost an Abercrombie shirt get wet. Don't ask a student to protest U.S. bombings in Iraq during "Party of Five." And please don't expect demonstrations on the non-discrimination clause when Notre Dame is suffering.

Student activism has been an important part of American history, but the voice is dying. Notre Dame is home to thousands of intelligent, idealistic and energetic people. These people can resurrect the voice. The injustice exists. The power is here. Student activism is time to move.

Be informed. Technology brings newspapers and magazines and television stations from around the world into your room. Read about Columbia or Turkey or the slums of New York. Know what your elected officials are doing and where they could improve. And please, remember to vote. Care about your freedom enough to practice it.

Be opinionated. Controversial topics abound — choose a favorite and take a side. Some quiet reflection and intellectual discussion with other young, idealistic and energetic people will help.

Be passionate. Merely taking a side is never enough. Really care about the issue, especially if you're involved. Care about the sweatshop laborers, the children dying on the world into your room. The world is waiting.

Erica Thesing

Associate News Editor

Outside the Dome

Harvard donors reach $2.1 billion goal

"I knew they were well over the goal when I made my last major gift." - Sidney Knafel

Harvard fund raiser

The Observer (USPS 599 2-4000) is published Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during exam and vacation periods. The Observer is a member of the Associated Press. All republication rights reserved.

Thursday, October 7, 1999

Today's Staff

News

The Observer

Mauve Smith

Erica Thesing

Sports

Molly McVey

Viewpoint

A.J. Boyd

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

The Observer

The Observer is a member of the Associated Press. All republication rights reserved.

Today's Staff

News

The Observer

Mauve Smith

Erica Thesing

Sports

Molly McVey

Viewpoint

A.J. Boyd

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Today's Staff

News

The Observer

Mauve Smith

Erica Thesing

Sports

Molly McVey

Viewpoint

A.J. Boyd

Today's Staff

News

The Observer

Mauve Smith

Erica Thesing

Sports

Molly McVey

Viewpoint

A.J. Boyd

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Today's Staff

News

The Observer

Mauve Smith

Erica Thesing

Sports

Molly McVey

Viewpoint

A.J. Boyd

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Today's Staff

News

The Observer

Mauve Smith

Erica Thesing

Sports

Molly McVey

Viewpoint

A.J. Boyd

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.
MEMBERS DISCUSS RECOMMENDATIONS ON KEY ISSUES

Resolution requests 150 more professors

By JOSH BOURJEOS
Assistant News Editor

The Faculty Senate requested an additional 150 faculty be hired over the next 10 years, at Wednesday night's meeting.

The senate's resolution stated, "the Faculty Senate requests that the President, Academic Council and the Board of Trustees set a target of 150 additional faculty over and above those called for in the Colloquy report during the next 10 years."

This resolution came one day after University president Father Edward Malloy, in his annual address to the faculty, discussed the growth of Notre Dame's teaching body. He said the University has added an average of 10 full-time faculty positions per year since 1987. The Senate's proposal would increase that average by five.

The committee on Academic Affairs proposed this resolution because of the importance of low student to faculty ratio and class size to the quality of undergraduate and graduate education at Notre Dame and to the U.S. News and World Report College Rankings.

Tom Cosimano, chair of the committee on Academic Affairs, said that the idea to improve the rankings by acquiring more faculty occurred after examining the U.S. News and World Report College Rankings.

"We [the committee on Academic Affairs] systematically looked at the report and saw what could be done to match similar numbers to those universities in the top 10 in the rankings," Cosimano said. "If you look at the top 10 universities, there is an average student to faculty ratio of nine to one. To make that ratio possible, the university would need to hire 150 new professors," he said.

After debate over the language and order of the resolution, the Faculty Senate passed the resolution in an unanimous vote.

Faculty Senate also passed two memorial resolutions in the memorials of Professor John Malone, who taught in the marketing department for over 40 years, and Professor David Appel, who taught in the marketing department for 20 years. Faculty Senate observed a moment of silence in memory of the professors.

Advertising ban attracts continued attention

By JOSH BOURJEOS
Assistant News Editor

The administration's ban of ads submitted to The Observer by Gay and Lesbian Alumni of Notre Dame/Saint Mary's College (GALA-ND/SMC) was discussed by a Faculty Senate subcommittee Wednesday.

A v a Preacher, chair of the committee on Student Affairs, announced that the committee met with the Observer editors-in-chief Michelle Krupa and other representatives of the independent student newspaper to acquire information about the ad ban.

"They [the Observer representatives] gave us background to what they understood the relationship between the Notre Dame administration and the Observer was," Preacher said. "They have documentation saying that they are editorially independent to the administration, and based on that documentation, they should be independent.

The committee also discussed the request for more student representatives by the Campus Life Council on a committee that will examine Notre Dame's academic and student life.

The committee on Benefits informed the Faculty Senate that one of their goals is to get more comparative information provided to faculty in regards to different health plans.

Professor Ikaro Bigi reported that the committee on Administration discussed the faculty and staff drug testing policy and the new alcohol policy regarding student and faculty events.

Don't Miss It!

October 14, 1999
11 a.m. - 3 p.m.
1999 Midwest Association of Pre-Law Advisors (MAPLA) Caravan at the University of Notre Dame
JACC-Concourse

Senior awarded business scholarship

Special to The Observer

Jeffrey Gorris, a senior from San Gabriel, Calif., has received a 1999 Beta Gamma Sigma scholarship for the study of business.

Gorris, an accounting and finance major, earned one of only 65 scholarships granted this year.

Its mission is to encourage and honor academic achievement in the study of business, as well as personal and professional excellence in an accredited undergraduate or master's program.

Bet Gamma Sigma membership is the highest recognition a business student anywhere in the world can receive.

Selection into Beta Gamma Sigma is highly competitive, with eligibility limited to students in the upper seven percent of the junior class, upper 10 percent of the senior class, or upper 20 percent of the graduating master's class. Of approximately 300,000 students receiving bachelor's or master's degrees in business each year, only about 17,000 areBeta Gamma Sigma members.

Singing, Dancing, and Bonfire Celebrate Women

Special to The Observer

The celebration of the women's movement will be held this October at 8 p.m. on the front of Lemans.

Take Back the Woods!!

on Sunday, October 10 at 5PM
in front of Lemans

Sponsored by CARE and Feminist Collective Eliach
continued from page 1
said she had to revisit Eishyshok.
"The pain was unbelievable," she said of her visit. The hardest part of the visit was the fact that all remnants of Jewish life in the town had been destroyed.
However, Eliach said she is not sure Eishyshok would have survived even without the war. She said that life was changing and many people had already begun to emigrate elsewhere.
As a new project, Eliach is working to build a full-scale model in Israel of pre-war Eishyshok.
"I feel my generation ... is the last link with the Holocaust," she said, adding that it is their responsibility to document the tragedy in terms of "not death, not destruction, but life."
"We will survive," she said. "We will be creative."
Eliach is a professor at Brooklyn College. She is the founder of the first Centers for Holocaust Documentation and Research in the United States. She was the subject of a PBS documentary, and has written many books.
Eliach also lectured at Notre Dame on Monday night about the importance of education in fostering tolerance. During her visit, she spoke to history and theology classes and met with graduate students.
"She really has been interacting with students," said Betty Singer, director of the Notre Dame Holocaust Project. "It is indeed a big pleasure and privilege for me to be here," Eliach said.

Library
continued from page 1
the allocation of 24-hour space was a major issue according to Kelly Gritten, who served both groups.
As of now, the projected 24-hour space would include portions of the first floor and the basement, although issues of zoning and security still need to be reviewed.
Special reading rooms for the medieval institute and theology department, along with more quiet study areas are also being considered for future renovation stages.

SMC FOUNDERS DAY
SMC students and Holy Cross Sisters celebrated SMC Pride Week with a Founders Day Dinner yesterday. The week's activities include a pep rally and an Octoberfest run/walk today.

Embracing the season,
while indulging in the festivities of the harvest.
Sorins introduces dining in the true spirit of Notre Dame.
Preventing menus that compliment the fall season with the finest foods it has to offer. Be our guest at Sorins and celebrate a change in dining.
Visit us within The Morris Inn.

Where it matters most.
As one of the world's leading diversified technology companies, we're breaking new ground in everything from defense and commercial electronics to aviation, to engineering and construction. As a Raytheon employee, you'll contribute to the development of exciting, innovative technology designed to be more, better and safer throughout the world. Such as our STARs air traffic control system. And our award-winning NightSight™ technology.
But it all starts with you. Your creativity. Your knowledge. And enthusiasm about the future. It's your ideas, your exceptional training and professional development opportunities. A supportive, down-to-earth work environment. And incredible benefits including flexible schedules designed to respect your quality of life.
So you can still show off all those great qualities of yours outside of work, too.
We'll be wising your campus soon — contact your career placement office to schedule an interview. If you'd like to meet us, please email your resume to resume@rayjobs.com (ASCII text only, no attachments), or mail to Raytheon Company, Attn: National Staffing Data Center, P.O. Box 660246, MS-201, Dallas, TX 75266. U.S. citizenship may be required. We are an equal opportunity employer.

Opportunities are available for exceptional students with the following majors:
• Aeronautical Engineering
• Chemical Engineering
• Civil Engineering and Construction Management
• Computer Engineering
• Computer Science
• Electrical Engineering
• Finance/Accounting
• Human Resources
• Industrial and Labor Relations
• Management
• Marketing/Communications
• Math
• Mechanical Engineering
• Physics

Bring it.
Check out our Website at www.rayjobs.com/campus for further information including a calendar of recruiting events. At Raytheon, we strive to be the employer of choice for a diverse workforce by attracting, retaining, and recognizing the most talented, resourceful and creative people.

Bringing technology to the edge
Raytheon
Clinton blasts rejection of judge

WASHINGTON

President Clinton today angrily criticized Senate Republicans for killing the nomination of a Missouri judge who is black, saying the party-line vote strengthens the impression "that the minority and women's rights nominees unfairly and unequally." Senators defeated the nomination of Ronnie White, the first black jurist on the Missouri Supreme Court, on a 54-45 vote after complaining of a handful of votes to reverse the death penalty. It was the first time the full Senate has voted down a judge nominated by Clinton. Clinton issued a strongly worded statement on the vote Tuesday and then repeated his criticism before cameras today in the Rose Garden. In both instances, he called the vote "a disgraceful act of partisan politics" by Republicans. "Once again," Clinton said, "this creates a real doubt about the Senate's ability to fairly perform its constitutional duty to advise and consent."

Nuke safety put in question

WASHINGTON

Two nuclear accidents in less than a week highlight around the world came as America's nuclear industry has been largely free of major accidents and, in fact, has successfully pushed for less federal regulation. The question looming among industry executives and federal regulators is whether the incidents in Japan and South Korea will have an impact on a U.S. industry that many believe already is in its twilight years. "They shouldn't have any impact," insists Steve Kerekcs, a spokesman for the Nuclear Energy Institute, the nuclear power industry trade group. "For more than a decade now we have been achieving steady, consistent gains with respect to safety."

Berlin palace may be rebuilt

BERLIN

A German political party is proposing the rebuilding of the immense palace that once stood in the center of Berlin but was destroyed by the former East German regime. The business-oriented Free Democrats entered a motion Wednesday in the lower house of parliament, the Bundestag, proposing to use private funds to erect the massive structure whose foundations date back to 1451. The Berlin Palace suffered severe damage during World War II and was used as a museum immediately after the war. In 1950, the East German leadership declared the building unfit for reconstruction and demolished it against protests from around the world.

Airstrikes continue against Chechnya

RUSSIA

Russian forces mounted new offensives toward Grozny, the capital, and other towns. Russia has given few indications of its strategy, forcing the Chechens to spread out their forces. "Everything will depend on the situation," Sergeyev said.

He maintained the Russians were encountering only "pockets of resistance." But Chechen leaders said there was heavy fighting in the face of the Russian advance.

Chechnya's Muslim clerics were expected to call for a "holy war" against Russia. Chechen Deputy Prime Minister Kazbek Makhachov told the Interfax news agency: "Chechen President Aslan Maskhadov declared Wednesday that he was taking direct command of the armed forces. Several powerful Islamic warlords oppose Maskhadov's government." Maskhadov also has declared martial law, and his government says the economy will be placed on war footing.

Russia stepped up its economic campaign against Chechnya, saying it would cut off electricity and withhold food shipments.

Last week, Russia sent ground forces into Chechnya following weeks of heavy air attacks. Russian officials say their forces have seized a third of Chechnya -- the plains north of the Terek River. The Russians may halt on the Terek's north banks, where troops have been fortifying their positions. Moving across the river would bring the Russians into hilly territory and subject them to Chechen guerrilla attacks.

Ecuador

One dies in rain of volcanic ash

QUITO

After menacing Quito for more than a year, Ecuador's volcanic crater Wednesday dumped 5,000 tons of ash on the city, killing one elderly man.

Authorities said the 15,840-foot Picchicha has dumped 5,000 tons of ash on this city of 1.4 million people in the last 24 hours. The volcano, located 8.5 miles west of Quito, began spewing ash again Wednesday morning after raining down volcanic dust for five hours.

Officials have said the volcano may rain ash for months.

On Wednesday, people hurried along Quito's streets covering their mouths and noses with white cloth masks to protect against the dust-like ash that swirled through the air.

"This is horrible. The ash burns your eyes and your throat. How are we going to live like this for months?" complained Gillie Valdez, an elderly woman who was in the streets running an errand for her boss.

An 89-year-old man died early Wednesday "because the ash that has fallen on Quito caused a respiratory crisis," said Red Cross spokesman Cristian Rivera. "The death was confirmed from chronic pulmonary disease."

Red Cross paramedics provided emergency treatment for dozens of people with respiratory problems. Rivera said officials have recommended that elderly people and persons suffering from asthma move out of Quito until the volcano halts its eruptions of ash.

Scientists have discounted any threat to Quito from lava flows because the mouth of the crater faces away from the capital and another peak stands as a barrier between the active peak and Quito.

Authorities warned the city's inhabitants not to wash off the ash that had accumulated on sidewalks because the mix of water and ash produces a cement-like substance that could clog the city's drains. Heavy rain Wednesday afternoon, however, frustrated officials in their efforts to keep drains from clogging.

Quito's airport shut down Tuesday night and remained closed on Wednesday. All flights, both domestic and foreign, were canceled.

Some 200 workers using heavy sweepers were working Wednesday to clear the runways. Airport officials said planes could not take off until the ash stopped falling and the runways were clean because ash could clog aircraft engines.

The government closed all schools on Tuesday and the schools remain closed until the ash threat passes.

Workers sweeping ashes from a rooftop look out on Quito. A nearby volcano dumped 5,000 tons of ash on the city Wednesday, killing one elderly man.

MARKET WATCH: 10/7

STOCK MARKET:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TICKER</th>
<th>PRICE</th>
<th>CHANGE</th>
<th>% CHANGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>AMZN</td>
<td>82.44</td>
<td>+5.10</td>
<td>+6.60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>WCOM</td>
<td>70.88</td>
<td>+4.33</td>
<td>+6.60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MSFT</td>
<td>93.69</td>
<td>+2.04</td>
<td>+2.20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>AOI</td>
<td>119.00</td>
<td>+4.85</td>
<td>+4.25</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

S&Ps:

S&P 500: 1325.40

NYSE:

609.90 +24.05 +4.16

AMAZON.COM INC AMZN +5.10 +4.00 25 82.44
MCI WORLDCOM IN W COM +4.33 +2.94 25 70.88
NIK ROSOI I i ORP MSFT +2.04 + 1.87 75 93.69

COMPANY TICKER % CHANGES GAIN PRICE

AMZN 82.44 +5.10 25
WCOM 70.88 +4.33 25
MSFT 93.69 +2.04 75
AOI 119.00 +4.85 00

Associated Press

JULIAN BISHOP
Frank: Jefferson influences UVA campus

By HELENA RAYAM

Thomas Jefferson’s 19th century layout of the University of Virginia was studied by Monte Frank, an architectural historian, during a lecture in Bond Hall designed by Jefferson in the early 1820s. The building is considered a masterpiece of American architecture,” said Frank. The buildings that Frank examined more closely were the hotels, a type of dining hall in the academic village of the University of Virginia. Jefferson preferred that students ate in smaller dining areas as opposed to what Frank said Jefferson called “a common den of noise and filth.”

"If need be, they’ll start pressuring the Huddle, which is not why SafeRide originated," she said, adding concerns that it would act as a bar tobar shuttle, which is not why SafeRide originated.

Szentak expressed optimism that the new SafeRide would be in place next semester.

Pulliam Journalism Fellowships

Graduating college seniors are invited to apply for the 27th annual Pulliam Journalism Fellowships. We will grant 10-week summer internships to 20 journalism or liberal arts majors in the August 1999-June 2000 graduating classes.

Previous internship or part-time experience at a newspaper is desired, or other demonstration of writing and reporting ability. Those who go through the Fellowships often find new professional opportunities opening up at other newspapers during and after the program. Winners will receive a $5,500 stipend and will work at either The Indianapolis Star or The Arizona Republic.

Opportunities for online training are available, along with reporting experience at our major metropolitan daily newspapers.

Early-admissions application postmark deadline is Nov. 15, 1999. By Dec. 15, 1999, up to five early-admissions winners will be notified. All other entries must be postmarked by March 1, 2000, and will be considered with remaining early-admissions applicants. Successful applicants will be notified on or before April 1, 2000, and will be asked to respond immediately with a letter of intent, at which time one-third of the cash grant will be mailed to the Fellow.

To request an application packet, visit our Web site, e-mail us or write:

Russell B. Pulliam
Pulliam Fellowships Director
Indianapolis Newspapers
P.O. Box 145
Indianapolis, IN 46206-0145

LINCOLNWAY LAUNDRY & TANNING

2822 LINCOLNWAY E, MISHAWAKA
256-2070

SAVE...SAVE...SAVE...SAVE...SAVE...SAVE
CHOOSE YOUR FAVORITE TANNING DEAL!

$20 FOR 20 VISITS FOR 30 DAYS
$2 TANNING EVER DAY
WOLFE SYSTEM BULBS

MANY MORE PACKAGES TO CHOOSE FROM.
CALL STORE FOR DETAILS

WE HONOR OUR COMPETITOR'S ADVERTISED PRICES
FREE WASH CARD!
• 10% STUDENT DISCOUNT
• 10% SENIOR DISCOUNT
FULL DROP-OFF SERVICE
FREE PICK-UP FOR ORDERS OF 75# OR MORE

Greater Cincinnati

www.superjobs.com
Find a great job in a place that stands out.
Author captures plight of Irish

By ELLEN FITZGERALD
News Writer

Chronling stories of Irish who were sent to Australia in famine times, Australian novelist Thomas Keneally decided to write his new book, "The Great Shame," which is based on actual Holocausl events. Keneally began to think about his own Irish ancestors and decided to write their story. This resulted in "The Great Shame.") "The book deals with the hope of peace in Ireland and a hope of an end to the shame and end to the great division," said Keneally, who explained he felt the duty to tell the story of the anonymous and degraded Irish.

The great shame of the Irish by the British began in the 19th century. "Ireland continued to hemorrhage from the treatment it received from Westminster," said Keneally.

During this era, Young Ireland, a nationalist group that he said identified with the underclass, emerged. Many of these nationalists were sent as prisoners to Australia or fled to the United States. "The Great Shame" follows such men and women and chronicles their experiences in Australia and the USA.

The book begins with the story of Hugh Larking, an ancestor of Keneally's wife. Larking, like many of the underclass Irish, turned to crime because of the potato blight and the treatment by the British. He, in fact, was only condemned for acting out against his British landlord.

This is representative of the rest of Keneally's tales, many of which tell of Irish women who beg to be sent to Australia to join their convict husbands and of Irish who escaped exile by fleeing to the United States. There was more than crime that drove the Irish from Ireland, however.

"The potato blight was the trigger which sent many people to the Americas," he said. The Irish who immigrated to the U.S. were almost immediately taken in to the American culture, according to Keneally.

They became very involved with politics, especially the Democratic political machine because they looked at it as "a platform of intervention to Ireland." After the Civil War in the United States, the Finnegans, an Irish republican brotherhood that embodied such ideas, emerged. The group felt that American power was a means to help the suffering Irish. They unsuccessfully attempted to campaign in Ireland and to capture Canada and trade it to the British for Ireland, he said.

John Keneally, the author's great uncle, was a member of this group and a devout Democrat who bought a ship to rescue Irish convicts who remained in Australia.

Keneally believes crimes of the Irish are small compared to those of the British Government, he said. "The Irish sent to Australia were not criminals at all," he said. "But the mothers of the nation."
ENGLAND

Search continues for survivors of London train crash

Associated Press

LONDON — Searchers working their way through the carriage that was transformed into an inferno in a rush-hour collision reached a grim conclusion Wednesday: The death toll may exceed 70.

Twelve-eight people are known to have died when the two commuter trains collided at their height of rush hour Tuesday morning near London's Paddington Station. They are likely to be some of the missing 70, but police have not yet identified the bodies recovered.

Authorities also have received reports from friends and relatives about another 100 people who may have boarded the trains.

Metropolitan Police Deputy Assistant Commissioner Andy Trotter was asked at a news conference if the final death toll would be as high as 170.

"I don't think it is going to be as high as that. What I can say at the moment is that it is 70-plus," he replied.

"Yesterday's train crash was a terrible tragedy, the scale of which is only just becoming apparent," he added.

The blaze reached temperatures estimated as high as 1,800 degrees, burning a first-class carriage so badly that emergency services have not yet finished examining it.

At least 14 of the 150 people taken to local hospitals were seriously hurt.

Deputy Prime Minister John Prescott announced an urgent independent inquiry into train protection systems designed to prevent trains passing through faulted signals when they are red.

The assessment of the available systems will be carried out independently of the public inquiry Prescott announced Tuesday.

Survivors have been speaking of the horrors they witnessed.

Among them was Brendon Bentley, who described from his hospital bed the terrifying moments after the crash, when dazed and frightened passengers scrambled to escape from the burning train.

"I could see the flames and there were some people trapped under the seats," he said.

"We had to try to get over them and try to give them a hand, but we couldn't, so the first priority was just to get off the carriage."

An emergency doctor at St. Mary's Hospital, where many of the injured were taken, said the injuries were among the worst he'd ever seen.

"You had people coming in with their faces bandaged and just their two eyes looking out and the smell of burnt flesh," said Robin Touquet.

Police and firefighters continued Wednesday to search through the widespread, mangled and burnt wreckage of Britain's worst rail disaster in a decade.

"We are sure that no other survivors will be found," Trotter said. "It is increasingly clear that there is very little else to recover from the scene."

One passenger who escaped, 38-year-old Steve Jones, said he got out when another man in the carriage used a table to break a hole in the window.

"It was pretty horrific. I feel incredibly lucky," said Jones, who was hospitalized with burns.

Meanwhile, the train companies said their investigation would focus on the outbound Thames Trains service, which has gone through a red light.

Andy Trotter

Deputy Assistant Commissioner

The London-bound Great Western train had a green light to proceed, according to a statement Wednesday by Great Western, Thames Trains and Railtrack, the company which operates the rail infrastructure.

"Yesterday's train crash was a terrible tragedy, the scale of which is only just becoming apparent," the statement said.

One of two data recorders from the Thames train was reported found, but it was believed no data recorders were on the Great Western train.

Thames Trains earlier said its driver had been working for two months after completing 11 months of instruction. The train companies said they were studying a specific signal that the train drivers' union had complained was visible at some points to drivers leaving Paddington. There had been at least eight incidents of trains going through red lights at that signal since 1993, the union said.

Tuesday's collision occurred on the same stretch of track where a 1997 crash killed seven people and injured 150. Great Western had been fined £2.47 million for "dereliction of duty" in connection with the earlier crash.

The Great Western train originated in Cheltenham, western England. The Thames train, westbound for nearby Bedwyn, had just pulled out of the station when the two collided.

Reports indicated both trains were traveling about 60 mph when the Thames train crashed in front of the larger train.

Tuesday's accident was Britain's worst rail crash since December 1988, when three trains collided outside London's Clapham Junction, killing 35 people.

Irish Country Bed & Breakfast Registry

"Where you'll always have a place to stay."

16901 Jackson Road

South Bend

Call: (219) 255-1516

Fax: (219) 257-4193

Web: www.irishcountry.com

The University of Notre Dame Department of Multi-Cultural Student Affairs presents

"The Roles of Latino Students, Administrators, Faculty, and Staff" presented by

Professor Juan Rivera

Assistant Director of the Office of Multicultural Student Affairs

Latin American Round Table Discussion

Featuring:

Georqine Resick soprano

with Maria Stoblein, piano

Sunday, October 10, 1999

2 pm, Auditorium

Available at the LaFortune Box Office, or charge by phone, 1-812-898-1178

Tickets:

$3 Students, $6 Seniors, $8 ND/SMC Community, $10 General

For more information: www.nd.edu/~music or 1-6201

Correction

An article in Thursday's Observer said student mother Lynette Vargas lives in University Village with her son and her boyfriend. They do not live together. He has a separate apartment.

The Observer regrets the error.
VERSITY.COM

Would Like to Thank our Campus Operations Manager and the team of Notetakers and Marketing Reps
who Bring the Internet’s Premier Academic Resource
to Notre Dame Students!

Find out more about what they do
And how you can join their team at
WWW.VERSITY.COM

Study Smarter

Bradley, Gore trade accusations

Associated Press

MANCHESTER, N.H.
Bill Bradley on Wednesday accused Democratic presidential rival Al Gore of using “dartboard politics” to distract voters from the issues. Bradley refused to answer questions about statements the vice president has made implying that Bradley is quitter or less of a true Democrat because of the way he resigned from the Senate in 1996.

“I understand what happens in a campaign — someone makes a charge and then you’re asked to make a charge,” he said. “I don’t think the American people want the politics of the dartboard. I think they’re tired of that.”

Bradley’s remarks came during a campaign trip to New Hampshire, where he will face Gore in a forum later this month. Gore has criticized Bradley for not accepting his challenge to debate earlier than that.

Asked to respond to Bradley’s characterization of Gore’s “dartboard politics,” the vice president’s spokesman, Chris Lehane, said, “Bill Bradley says he’s a different kind of politician and wants a different kind of politics, yet it’s Bill Bradley who’s acting like a classic politician and ducking the debates.”

He added, “In truth, it’s Al Gore who’s looking to break out of the old politics and raise the discourse and dialogue to a whole new level.”

During his visit to the Manchester Community Health Center, Bradley also criticized Gore’s plan to expand federal efforts to insure all children and incrementally extend coverage to uninsured adults. Bradley said his $65 billion plan to dramatically expand the federal health care system would get the job done sooner.

“Big problems need big solutions,” he said. “I think his approach is much more incremental. It’s a much slower path to get to the destination.”

As you see it, is our two-party political system working?
Want Reform? Work for Reform: Then vote for Reform:
Reform Party seeking college volunteers, concerned voters, contributions, candidates, and the creation of an ND on-campus organization.
Your participation & support is vital for Reform to occur.

For details contact: N.W. Indiana Coordinator, 219-926-7576
State Party Chairman, 219-267-3434 or email: verp@waveone.net

Real Jobs
SUCK!

get paid to surf the web
www.AllAdvantage.com

Got news? Call The Observer at 1-5323
The free expression of all opinions through letters is [Editorial] and department editors. Viewpoint space is available to all readers. Commentaries, letters and columns present the views of the [Observer], which means state programs aided by the education of the masses. Of course, these can be forces for good because responsible parenting is a duty for the family and families can be helped by society in this endeavor (cf. Catechism of the Catholic Church, 2372). But in the hands of misanthropes, these programs become coercion and brain washing. Witness China's population policies and the forced sterilizations in Peru. Witness your friends and relatives, who have been lied into believing (implcitly) that people are evil, insatiable and unproductive. The less of them, the better.

Widespread contraception is clearly bad from a practical point of view. A contraceptive society (like Sweden, Spain or Italy) is a society dominated by retirees who live off of a declining workforce. It is an old society, where the young are the minority and innovation and creativity suffer. A contraceptive society is one that despises its ultimate resource—people.

Misanthropes will probably reject being called this. "I love people, so I don't think a child should grow up in a slum." But misanthropes are bent to see every child as a burden, every man as a liability and every pregnant woman as a danger. Moreover, they are blind to the endless creativity of the human person and to our yet unexplored capacity to solve our problems — in a just society. People lovers, like me, don't think, "Let's fill every square inch of the Earth." Yet we see visceral fear of population growth — truly homophobia — as either useless or destructive. People lovers hold that every person has dignity and to a new person is an invaluable gift.

Moreover, we recognize that people have a beneficial economic effect. Because of this (not in spite of it) we also hold that begetting must be responsible and undertaken with generosity and prudence.

Misanthropes frequently say that people lovers advocate having children without any thought for tomorrow. This reduces women to child-makers, enslaves men to overworking or makes them careless and impoverishes the children. My guess is that irresponsible parenting does have these effects. But this is not what we advocate.

What we advocate is generosity and prudence. A new person is always a gift to be celebrated and desired. Because parents and society must be able to provide these gifts and allow them to reach their full potential, there is a just space for the regulation of births. Parents that are powerless, psychological, social or economic limitations are justified in spacing births, if they have a spirit free of selfishness and full of generosity.

To do this, they must use the right means, means that respect the dignity of the human person. Moreover, the state and society, using the right means, are allowed to establish a demographic policy (cf. CCC 2368-72). Human beings are very good. Don't be afraid, don't have children with fear. Bring more life into the world with responsibility and openness.

Gabriel Martinez is a graduate student in the economics department. His column runs every other Thursday. The views expressed in this column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.
Celebrate Saint Mary's Pride

Nakasha Ahmad

So, What’s My Point?

Last week, we saw a flier advertising a lecture by renowned Latino film director Gregory Nava concerning the Latin American experience in America. We were excited. “Hey! We’re interested in Latin American culture! We should go!” We were not aware that this was to be a chance to be oppressed! That’s right, we were oppressed. In his attempt to motivate Latino students and encourage them to celebrate their culture and love themselves, he felt it necessary to make very negative, sweeping generalizations about Caucasian people, who he dubbed “garabacho” and “gringo.” For those of you not familiar with these terms, they are derogatory words used to refer to Caucasians, especially from the United States. Just for a bit of clarification here, we are two women, one Caucasian and one Caribbean-American of Haitian descent. We have experienced a sense of alienation when hearing such comments, especially when repeated pleas for the deconstruction of cultural stereotypes and barriers (“because we are all brothers and sisters in the end,” says Nava) were framed with stereotypes and barriers (“because we are all brothers and sisters in the end,” says Nava) were framed with derogatory comments about “other” people, that is, Caucasians, we were upset. Then he said, “Now you know what we (Latino) go through. How does it feel?” And many of the Latino students of Notre Dame attending the lecture proceeded to APPLAUD this man. We left. We freely admitted that this was an extremely close-minded action on our part. Mr. Nava was given a fair chance to defend himself. Instead of indignantly walking out during the middle of the lecture, we waited until the end to see if he could perhaps clarify his position. After hearing his defense, we decided that it would be best to leave.

Iris Outlaw followed our departure to explain that Mr. Nava was brought to Notre Dame in an attempt to give all sides a chance to speak. She indicated that this was meant to be an educational experience for everyone involved. We asked, “What are we supposed to learn here, how to be oppressed?” And she answered, “Yes.” We would like to extend a hearty Thank You to Notre Dame for this excellent Oppression Workshop. Our conclusion, if you are oppressed, get into a position of power so that you can oppress others.

Lindsay E. Van Loon
Sophomore
Farley Hall
October 5, 1999

How we learned to be oppressed

Letters to the Editor

We need patriotism consistent with Christianity

Nakasha Ahmad

I can understand how some may feel hurt by Father Cordaro’s dissent against the military. A verbal attack on the military is an attack on our very reality. We live in a country which has one of the largest military forces in the world. Here at Notre Dame, we have a history of military involvement dating back to the Civil War. We claim a larger percentage of undergraduates enrolled in ROTC (10 percent) than any other voluntary ROTC program. We must never forget the sacrifices of the countless soldiers who gave their lives for the good of their fellow citizens; they indeed “died it all for us.” How can we not be humbled by their self-sacrifice and commitment to a higher cause?

A much as I resonate with Sarah and Katie’s testimonies, I embrace Father Cordaro’s radical challenge to live for a higher cause. The cause of Christ. As Christians, we are called not to a patriotism rooted in protectionism and aggrandizement, but to a patriotism which holds our God’s actions to the Light of Christ. Does our nation heed Jesus’ message? “But now I tell you: Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you” (Matthew 5:44)? When Jesus hung dying on the Cross — God as a human, dying for us — He asked for the forgiveness of his killers. If even God’s human suffering and death do not transcend forgiveness or warrant violent defense (“Put your sword back in its place”; John 18:13), how can our own deaths and sufferings? As followers of Christ, we are called to lives of undiscriminating forgiveness and unconditional love. Yes, our world frequently strays from these axioms, but we are urged: “Do not contaminate the standards of the world, but let God transform you inwardly…” (Romans 12:2).

How practical is all this idealism? Jesus was not a killer, nor was he a masochist. Only when we stop fearing our “enemies” do we begin to trust in the Prince of Peace. This peace of nonviolence — true self-defense — is the challenge of Christianity. “The peace that Christ gives is to guide you in the decisions you make; for it is to this peace that God has called you…” (Colossians 3:15).

We should not be shaken by Father Cordaro’s message. We read it every Sunday at Mass.

Rachel Sobis
Sophomore
Pasquaillini East
October 6, 1999

The views expressed in this column are those of the author and not necessarily those of the Observer.
Scene Movie Critic

This month sees the beginning of fall at the movies. The action blockbusters are long gone, the studios have passed off their busts at the end of the summer and now they begin bringing out their Oscar hopefuls, which thankfully means more creative fare and an end to "Blue Streak's" and "Double Jeopardy's" run at the top of the box office. Dreamworks' first offering for the fall is the new comedy-drama, "American Beauty," a biting look at modern suburbia. For the last half-century, the suburbs have been the setting where the American dream is lived out. And now, during the record prosperity of the Clinton administration, that "dream" has become more accessible to more and more people who live in more expensive homes with a S.U.V. in every driveway, and dual-income families with their 1.3 kids. But recently, films ranging from Ang Lee's "理智风暴" to Todd Solondz's "Happiness" have instead chosen to depict the "burbs as a place of ever-increasing despair. In "American Beauty," this angst is very much a part of the Burnham family. And the Burnham (Kevin Spacey) has been working for an advertising magazine for having every day of it and preparing for the day when he will be squeezed out of the company's move towards greater efficiency. He comes home to his wife Carolyn (Annette Bening), a real-estate agent who clings to a chance to deal a secure life for herself from her parents. Lester begins working out, drinking beer and smoking pot, aided by his new neighbor Ricky Fitts (Wes Bentley), who is in spite of being a cut- off dealer, is perhaps the most likable character in the film. Som to a marine colonel and a mother who hovers around catatonic, Ricky soon becomes romantically involved with Jane, who, disguised by Lester's lustful obsession for her friend and her mother's own local real-estate king, Buddy Kane (Peter Gallagher), further isolates himself from his parents. The film continues along the path of the disintegration of their family life, until it shifts course slightly, ending in an almost anticlimax. Lester also lets viewers know his brashness, and at times it is extreme. But it is also a daring look at what the American dream has become for all too many people. Lester, who by the end of the film has found both a beauty and contempt in the everyday life of suburbia, warns viewers that if they haven't yet found either of those, not too worry, because "we will soon."

Kevin Spacey and Annette Bening star in "American Beauty" in Dreamworks' new film that explores American suburbia.

"American Beauty" out of five shamrocks

Director: Sam Mendes
Starring: Kevin Spacey, Annette Bening, Thora Birch and Wes Bentley

Oscar season begins with a 'Beauty'

By JASON HAMMONTREE

Acme Movie Critic

Ladies, grab a notebook and pencil during these social gatherings, for it is here where the male discourse is in full-effect. Everything you ever wanted to know about mates is on display: how they approach a girl, where in the room they stand, and how to dress, act and talk "masculine." The life this nouveau rat-pack lives would make Frankie and Sammy proud, and they do it with swingin' perfection. Vince Vaughn delivers the knockout performance in this flick, offering Mike's smooth looks like, "What a girl respects is honesty — you see the way they dress when they go out, they want you to notice. You're just letting her know that you think she's money." This first effort from then unknown director Doug Liman borrows mis-en-scene from everyone from Scorsese to Tarantino, but the striped-down filming techniques in his own signature. The dialogue, written by Favreau, is dynamic, witty and almost requires its own dictionary to translate all of the slang (there's a surprise for what "business class" stands for). Ladies, this is the best movie you have never seen, so pop it in, open your eyes and ears and prepare to be taught. And after this seminar, you will never look at boys the same again.

"Swingers" offers ladies a lesson in manhood

By JOEY LENISKI

Scene Movie Critic

Ladies, do guys ever do anything that makes sense? Do you sit home watching "Party of Five," shake your head and ask yourself, "Why doesn't my guy act like that?" Easy answer: These adolescent, angst-filled, teency-trauma pop dramas are fluff and puff about male schemata. They show you what you want to believe. Ladies, here's a chance to really find out what makes guys tick.

"Swingers"

Director: Doug Liman
Starring: Jon Favreau and Vince Vaughn

"But what is this Holy Grail of masculine revelation," you ask? Quite simply, it is a small independent film occupying a small space on the local video-rental store shell called "Swingers." For those unenlightened ones who haven't seen the film, it is the story of Mike (Jon Favreau) and Trent (Vince Vaughn), two cats living at the L.A. nightlife looking for the next best thing they can find, which usually turns out to be a girl as shallow as the local bar. These guys have one mission in life: to be cool no matter what they are doing. Picking up girls: cool. Walking down the road: cool. Playing Nintendo at home on a Friday night: cool. Do you see the trend? These guys are high profile and they know of course, "babies" (k.a. chicks, foxes or as they say on "Party of Five," girls).

Now ladies, grab a notebook and pencil during these social gatherings, for it is here where the male discourse is in full-effect. Everything you ever wanted to know about mates is on display: how they approach a girl, where in the room they stand, and how to dress, act and talk "masculine." The life this nouveau rat-pack lives would make Frankie and Sammy proud, and they do it with swingin' perfection. Vince Vaughn delivers the knockout performance in this flick, offering Mike's smooth looks like, "What a girl respects is honesty — you see the way they dress when they go out, they want you to notice. You're just letting her know that you think she's money." This first effort from then unknown director Doug Liman borrows mis-en-scene from everyone from Scorsese to Tarantino, but the striped-down filming techniques in his own signature. The dialogue, written by Favreau, is dynamic, witty and almost requires its own dictionary to translate all of the slang (there's a surprise for what "business class" stands for). Ladies, this is the best movie you have never seen, so pop it in, open your eyes and ears and prepare to be taught. And after this seminar, you will never look at boys the same again.

"Swingers" offers ladies a lesson in manhood

"Swingers" offers ladies a lesson in manhood

By JOEY LENISKI

Scene Movie Critic

Ladies, do guys ever do anything that makes sense? Do you sit home watching "Party of Five," shake your head and ask yourself, "Why doesn't my guy act like that?" Easy answer: These adolescent, angst-filled, teency-trauma pop dramas are fluff and puff about male schemata. They show you what you want to believe. Ladies, here's a chance to really find out what makes guys tick.

"Swingers"

Director: Doug Liman
Starring: Jon Favreau and Vince Vaughn

"But what is this Holy Grail of masculine revelation," you ask? Quite simply, it is a small independent film occupying a small space on the local video-rental store shell called "Swingers." For those unenlightened ones who haven't seen the film, it is the story of Mike (Jon Favreau) and Trent (Vince Vaughn), two cats living at the L.A. nightlife looking for the next best thing they can find, which usually turns out to be a girl as shallow as the local bar. These guys have one mission in life: to be cool no matter what they are doing. Picking up girls: cool. Walking down the road: cool. Playing Nintendo at home on a Friday night: cool. Do you see the trend? These guys are high profile and they know of course, "babies" (k.a. chicks, foxes or as they say on "Party of Five," girls).

Now ladies, grab a notebook and pencil during these social gatherings, for it is here where the male discourse is in full-effect. Everything you ever wanted to know about mates is on display: how they approach a girl, where in the room they stand, and how to dress, act and talk "masculine." The life this nouveau rat-pack lives would make Frankie and Sammy proud, and they do it with swingin' perfection. Vince Vaughn delivers the knockout performance in this flick, offering Mike's smooth looks like, "What a girl respects is honesty — you see the way they dress when they go out, they want you to notice. You're just letting her know that you think she's money." This first effort from then unknown director Doug Liman borrows mis-en-scene from everyone from Scorsese to Tarantino, but the striped-down filming techniques in his own signature. The dialogue, written by Favreau, is dynamic, witty and almost requires its own dictionary to translate all of the slang (there's a surprise for what "business class" stands for). Ladies, this is the best movie you have never seen, so pop it in, open your eyes and ears and prepare to be taught. And after this seminar, you will never look at boys the same again.

"Swingers" offers ladies a lesson in manhood

"Swingers" offers ladies a lesson in manhood

By JOEY LENISKI

Scene Movie Critic

Ladies, do guys ever do anything that makes sense? Do you sit home watching "Party of Five," shake your head and ask yourself, "Why doesn't my guy act like that?" Easy answer: These adolescent, angst-filled, teency-trauma pop dramas are fluff and puff about male schemata. They show you what you want to believe. Ladies, here's a chance to really find out what makes guys tick.

"Swingers"

Director: Doug Liman
Starring: Jon Favreau and Vince Vaughn

"But what is this Holy Grail of masculine revelation," you ask? Quite simply, it is a small independent film occupying a small space on the local video-rental store shell called "Swingers." For those unenlightened ones who haven't seen the film, it is the story of Mike (Jon Favreau) and Trent (Vince Vaughn), two cats living at the L.A. nightlife looking for the next best thing they can find, which usually turns out to be a girl as shallow as the local bar. These guys have one mission in life: to be cool no matter what they are doing. Picking up girls: cool. Walking down the road: cool. Playing Nintendo at home on a Friday night: cool. Do you see the trend? These guys are high profile and they know of course, "babies" (k.a. chicks, foxes or as they say on "Party of Five," girls).

Now ladies, grab a notebook and pencil during these social gatherings, for it is here where the male discourse is in full-effect. Everything you ever wanted to know about mates is on display: how they approach a girl, where in the room they stand, and how to dress, act and talk "masculine." The life this nouveau rat-pack lives would make Frankie and Sammy proud, and they do it with swingin' perfection. Vince Vaughn delivers the knockout performance in this flick, offering Mike's smooth looks like, "What a girl respects is honesty — you see the way they dress when they go out, they want you to notice. You're just letting her know that you think she's money." This first effort from then unknown director Doug Liman borrows mis-en-scene from everyone from Scorsese to Tarantino, but the striped-down filming techniques in his own signature. The dialogue, written by Favreau, is dynamic, witty and almost requires its own dictionary to translate all of the slang (there's a surprise for what "business class" stands for). Ladies, this is the best movie you have never seen, so pop it in, open your eyes and ears and prepare to be taught. And after this seminar, you will never look at boys the same again.
Theater Preview

'Hedda Gabler' plays at Washington Hall

By AMBER AGUIAR
Scene Writer

Hedda Gabler spins a web of manipulation and deceit, trapping those around her like helpless flies. Drawn by her good looks and manipulative ways, the cast of characters surrounding Hedda quickly fall victim to her dangerous games.

Hedda Gabler Notre Dame's Mainstage season gets underway this weekend.

- Where: Washington Hall
- When: Tonight, Fri. and Sat., 7:30 p.m.; Sun. 2:30 p.m.
- Tickets: Reserved Seats $9
  Seniors $8
  All Students $6

Her life would seem to be passing out perfectly. Hedda resides in her dream home with her maid and husband, as he waits to receive a prestigious university appointment that will allow the couple to live very comfortably. Yet Hedda's unbridled nature keeps her from enjoying this quiet life. She is a fiery redhead with a passion for pistols, who finds amusement only in mischievously playing with those around her.

As the play begins, the couple receives a series of visitors to its new home who soon become Hedda's unsuspecting playthings. Throughout the production, she continues to weave that web of deceit until she and all of the characters are trapped.

"We tried to capture the web-like aspect of Hedda's world," said director Síri Scott of the set. "The interior of her home is made of bars, not real, solid walls. We wanted to show that if she had to, she could break through, but she doesn't think she can."

While this is the fourth student production Scott has directed, it is the first time she has strayed from the independent and unpredictable young woman from the turn of the century. Hedda is a surprisingly strong woman for her time. She has a passion for life and regrettfully confines of her recent marriage to Jacques Tersman, a meek academic played by senior Sean Dwyer, who is no match for Hedda's biting wit.

"The play is very verbal, so we tried to give it additional aspects of beauty," she said. The set is decorated with an eclectic collection of art borrowed from the Snite Museum, and there is careful consideration given to the well-crafted music of the play's intermissions. Scott sought to personalize the production through its costumes as well.

"Hedda's costumes are always such a contrast because we want her to stand out in every scene," said Scott. "She is the spider of her web, and she has to attract people." In the play's opening scene, Hedda wears an emerald green, Oriental silk robe over white silk pajamas. It is a sharp, vibrant contrast to the more muted, everyday turns of the century garb worn by the other characters. This was a deliberate contrast developed by Rick Donnelly, the costume designer for "Hedda Gabler."

"We knew the play to be set in the late 1900s. But we altered it to be set in 1912, right before World War I, because it was a time when fashion was becoming more casual," said Donnelly. "We wanted Hedda to be able to lounge rather than be confined by fashion that would be more strict. It was more fitting with her character."

The play's actors wear fashions from collections of 20th Century Fox and Warner Brothers Studios. "Seventy-five percent of the costumes are authentic vintage garments used in the film 'Titanic.' The costumes capture the essence of the time period, chosen from the fashions of 1912 to fit each individual character," said Donnelly.

The cast of Hedda Gabler is "a diverse group of kids, who are not necessarily theatre majors," said Scott. "It is a wonderful cast, all very serious about their parts," said actress Lisa Fabrega, a Notre Dame junior. "Everyone really cares about their characters, and they try to take those characters further and further."

Students like senior John Sample, a science, physics and math major, plays Eilert Lovborg, a recovering alcoholic whom Hedda entices into drinking again. He and other members of the cast bring unique perspectives to the characters they portray.

"They accuse me of trying to make it 'The Eilert Lovborg Show.' But it's just that I love my character," said Sample. "I think he's a passionate, screwed up character who lives life on the brink. And looking at him we can see that maybe living on the brink is not the best way. He's got something to teach someone like me, or anyone at Notre Dame who's ever lost control with alcohol."

"Double Jeopardy" once again topped the box office, taking in $17 million in its second week. The weekends new films scattered throughout the top 10, with "Three Kings" debuting at No. 2. "American Beauty" moved up to No. 3 from No. 5 last week, after opening nationwide.

"Double Jeopardy" now ranks No. 33 overall with $30.2 million in sales, while "American Beauty" has made $23.9 million so far. "Three Kings" is No. 16 with $18 million.

By JOHN CRAWFORD
Scene Movie Critic

Russell Crowe (center) stars in the hockey film, “Mystery, Alaska.”

Scene Movie Critic

What is wrong with sports movies nowadays? Recently, Kevin Costner left behind postmen and $175 million water bucks and returned to what he does best: baseball movies. Unfortunately, “For the Love of Game” found Costner still in full romantic, “Message in a Bottle” mode. Instead of baseball, viewers get baseball and two hours of mushy, but romance fitting for a Jackie Collins novel.

Now there is “Mystery, Alaska,” a movie about hockey, two rocky marriages, a strained father-son relationship, several melodramatic courtroom scenes, an old flame returning to his old high school sweetheart, a shooting and a commentary against corporate America. What’s going on here? Can’t a sports movie just be about, well, sports?

Perhaps Jerry Maguire is to blame for this mess. The Tom Cruise hit had something for everyone—wrenchingly blending romance and sports into one movie. Guys could dig the football scenes. Women could get teary-eyed about a situation with his estranged son (Scott Grimes). A corporate giant also threatens to come to town, but its representative (Michael McKean) probably best known for playing Lenny on “Laverne & Shirley” is shot by the proprietor of the hockey team’s general store in a plot line that is introduced and quickly forgotten.

“Mystery, Alaska”

out of five shamrocks

Director: Jay Roach
Starring: Russell Crowe, Burt Reynolds, Hank Azaria and Mary McCormack

Hockey League. It’s a classic Davis versus Goliath showdown. So far so good, right? But then everything disintegrates into a number of unnecessary and badly-scripted subplots. The team’s captain (played by Crowe), in the clichéd role of the aging athlete, is jealous of his wife (Mary McCormack), who seems infatuated with a former high school boyfriend ( Hank Azaria). And his return to the town where he grew up has to do with the proprietor of the hockey team’s general store. The film gets started when a magazine wants to come to town, but its representative (Michael McKean) probably best known for playing Lenny on “Laverne & Shirley” is shot by the proprietor of the hockey team’s general store in a plot line that is introduced and quickly forgotten.

Perhaps this hodgepodge of a movie is the result of the weird contrast of talents behind the lens. Jay Roach, who directed both “Austin Powers” movies, serves as director. Meanwhile, it’s producer and co-writer is David Kelley, the force behind a number of current popular television dramas, including “Ally McBeal,” “Chicago Hope” and “The Practice.” It is perhaps Kelley’s infatuation with the law, so evident in his television shows, that results in “Mystery” having several unrelenting and melodramatic courtroom scenes that turn this hockey movie, for a brief time, into an episode of “erry Mason.”

The film is not without some bright spots. One highlight is a cameo by Mike Myers, playing a TV commentator, in a Goliath showdown. But the human drama and comedy shine periodically tending towards preachiness and annoying than not, yet can occasionally attract the film’s original style, “Three Kings” is well.

“Three Kings”

out of five shamrocks

Director: Jay Roach
Starring: George Clooney, Ice Cube and Mark Wahlberg

Republican Guard while the peace accords mandate U.S. troops to stand by. All is not well as the Americans succeed in landing the humvee with more than $23 million in gold with the help of Iraqi troops and private mercenaries. As they leave however, they witness the brutal execution of a woman in front of her daughter and husband, and the plan changes irrevocably, inviting one of the most intense firefight in any movie history. While few shots are fired, each one is important and every bullet counts.

For the aftermath of the illicit shooting of Iraqi troops, Gates decides that there is no alternative but to take as many rebels as possible and escape into the desert with the gold. The Republican Guard takes issue with the theft of Sadaam’s gold however, and the escape is botched with the nerve gas and mines block the route and allow for the capture of Troy Barlow.

As the film progresses, Gates, Chief and Vig try to find a way to rescue Barlow, keep the gold and help the former get safe passage across the border. All the while, Adriana Cruz is hot on the trail of her big scoop as the Americans find themselves face-to-face with the ethical complexities of a situation that was supposed to have “a clear moral imperative.” Stuck between Iraq and a hard place, the would-be thieves find it increasingly difficult to obey their orders to remain aloof from Iraq’s domestic conflict.

George Clooney finally comes into his own playing the complex Archie Gates. Moved first by necessity and then trying to disguise his humanitarian motives as expedient for getting the gold, he agrees to go in with a mercenary, Adria Cruz is hot on the trail of her big scoop as the Americans find themselves face-to-face with the ethical complexities of a situation that was supposed to have “a clear moral imperative.” Stuck between Iraq and a hard place, the would-be thieves find it increasingly difficult to obey their orders to remain aloof from Iraq’s domestic conflict.

“Three Kings” is not without faults, periodically tending towards preachiness in its effort to critical of the U.S. war policy. But the human drama and comedy shine through, thanks in part to its incredibly original style. “Three Kings” well deserves its “best so far” description, but not quite a masterpiece distinction.
The Indians’ Game 1 postseason jinx ended as soon as Pedro Martinez left the game.

Travis Fryman’s RBI single with one-out in the opening of the ninth inning gave Cleveland a 3-2 win over the Boston Red Sox, who may have lost their new Martinez for the remainder of the AL playoffs.

The Indians had lost eight straight series opening games, dating back to the division series against Boston in 1995 before Fryman’s clutch bases-loaded base hit.

Morten Anderson’s dominant pitcher this season, pulled a back muscle and had to leave the game after the fourth inning. He is listed as day-to-day and Boston manager Jimmy Fund said the right-hander would be re-examined by doctors on Thursday.

“We got a break with Pedro getting hurt,” said Fryman, who spent most of the season on the disabled list with a serious knee injury.

“Anytime you face Pedro, he’s tough. It’s the best pitcher I ever faced. You look back in the sixth inning and you don’t see him out there, it gives you a little pick-me-up.”

The Red Sox, who had counted on Martinez giving them the lead in the series, fell behind in Game 2 Thursday against Cleveland’s Champions Night.

Indian starter Bartolo Colon struck out a season-high 11 in eight innings, and Paul Shuey picked up the win with a perfect ninth.

Jim Thome hit a game-tying two-run homer off Derek Lowe in the sixth for the Indians, who also got spectacular defensive plays from David Justice, Roberto Alomar and Omar Vizquel.

Nomar Garciaparra homered for the Red Sox, but despite dominating the regular-season series against Cleveland have now lost four straight playoff games to the Indians.

Diamondbacks 7, Mets 1

Steve Finley knocked in five runs tying the National League Division Series record for RBI in a game — and Todd Stottlemyre allowed one run in 6 2/3 innings, as the Arizona Diamondbacks defeated the New York Mets, 7-1, in game two of their best-of-five series at Bank One Ballpark.

With the win, Arizona even the series at a game apiece, with game three scheduled for Friday in New York.

Stottlemyre (1-0) allowed one run and four hits in 6 2/3 innings. He also struck out six and walked five. It was the third career postseason win for the right-hander, who is now 6-1 lifetime against the Mets.

New York opened the scoring in the third inning. Hickey Henderoner scored on a groundout off the bat of John Olerud.

Arizona answered with a three-spot in the bottom of the third.

New York had a chance to inch closer in the top of the fourth. Robin Ventura walked and Darryl Hamilton reached base as Bell committed a fielding error to put runners on first and second.

However, Ventura turned too far off second base and was picked off by catcher Kelly Stinnett, and Roger Cedeno grounded into a double play to end the inning.

Arizona padded its lead in the fifth, scoring Bell and Williams to put the Diamondbacks up 5-1.

Arizona put two more runs on the scoreboard in the seventh.

Boston second baseman Jose Offerman bobbles the baseball as Cleveland’s Harold Baines’ bunt goes into second base. The Indians won 3-2 in the first game of the American League Division Series.

CLASSIFIEDS

LOST & FOUND

FOUND—
CHANGE PURSE ON PMC CAMPUS ON MONDAY, 10/4.
Call 631-5815 to IDENTIFY

Silver and Gold Crucifix found between Flinner and Fire Station.
Call 1-5115 to claim.

WANTED

STUDENT OPENINGS—5:30-10:30 p.m. Week. Flex around classes.
Scholarships allowed.
www.worldforstudents.com/IN 282-2357

DON’T WORK THIS SCHOOL YEAR?
$1000 TO $3000 THIS MONTH. Part time 4 to 6 hours per week at 24/39 217-6709

SPORTS CLUBS & STUDENT GROUPS—
Forum 2000-2001 with easy CIS Fund event No sales required Fund Raiser days are Monday and Tuesday. Contact Joe 8-488-522-4350

Love ND-SCM couple wishes to adopt. Will provide a lifetime of love, compassion and opportunities.
Call (605) 520-0019 TO OUR 4 IM INQUIRY ALL INFO IN PRIVATE. CONFIDENTIAL CONFERENCE. PLEASE CALL BACK ANYTIME. OUR PRAYERS CAN’T BE STOPPED...

FREE TRIPS AND CASH
SPRING BREAK 2000

StudentCity.com is looking for Highly Motivated Students to promote Spring Break 2000. Organize a small group and make Nude Male modeled needs for student Art Film. Meet today.

October 1st

Free One Bedroom Apartment in Hattery Home. 1 1/2 miles from Campus. A family with three children seeks fun, energetic, outstanding student or graduate to live in charming apartment for FREE in exchange for mutually agreed upon babysitting responsibilities that include some evening/weekend, as well as travel. Send cover letter, resume and references to Nancy Seaborn, P.O. Box 675, Notre Dame, IN 46554.

TUTORS needed for college & high school students in Algebra & Intermediate Algebra. Also need tutors for general refreshers in Eng., Sociology, Psychology. Call Linda at 279-8209 or email: leeschee1@email.com

FOR RENT

ROOMS FOR RENT IN PRIVATE VATE HOME. FOR ND-SCM EVENTS. VERY CLOSE TO CAMPUS. 243-0658.

HOMES CLOSE TO CAMPUS

http://mmmensfarms homepage.c om/ 232-2959

THAT PRETTY PLACE, Bed and Breakfast Inn has space available for professional/want ad people. 5 Rooms with private baths, $80-$115, Middlely, 30 miles from campus. Toll Free Exit 10, 1-800-491-9487

LOADED & 6 Bed 00-11 yr. 273-0482/234-3831

Beautiful Home. 5 bedrooms, 2 bathrooms. Brand new stove, refrigerator, dishwasher, washer and dryer. Almond finished garage. Fenced yard. Immaculate condition. 675.0776

6 bedroom house. 2 baths. Completely remodeled ND Ave. 675.0776

56 BDRM HOME’S 00-STYR
272-0651
6BDRM100 person. 272-0606
Sublet. Roomy one bedroom. Campus View apartment. $385.00 monthly. Call Stacy at Campus View or John Hill at 683-6699 days, 616-782-3314.

3 BD 8RM REMODEL ERED 501 EDDY ST.
1 M. FROM CAMPUS APPLIANCES, W/D 273-8352
ENTIRE HOME FOR FOOTBALL WEEKENDS 2773097

NICE FURNISHED HOMES FOR NOW OR NEXT SCHOOL YEAR, 2773097

FOR SALE

Spring Break Special’s Bahamas Party 5 Days 8/27-8/31 Includes Meal!

S ELL & BUY GA FOO T B E ELS TICKETS 277-0619 FOR SALE ASU tx. FACE VALUE
AM - 223-2378 PM - 288-2726

FOR SALE N.D FOOTBALL TIX CALL 271-9412

FOR SALE N.D. FOOTBALL TIX CALL 271-9412

Phone Cards, 699/mn $200 243-8261 or 258-4605

Beautiful brass bed with wooden orthopedic mattress and deluxe frame. Never used, still in plastic. $235 219-582-8202

MAC 520 Powerbook—Y2K compliant—$350. Stylewriter printer $75. Both sold used. 287-7928

35" Sega TV w/300 games—$250 220-7633 220-7734.

FOOTBALL TIX FOR SALE.
N.D FOOTBALL TIX FOR SALE
1-800-678-6386

FOR SALE: ASU TIX. N.D FOOTBALL TIX.
FOR SALE: USC TIX.
FOR SALE: ASU TIX.

N.D FOOTBALL TICKETS
CALL 271-9412

SPRING BREAK 2000
"THE MILLENIUM" A NEW DECIDE, N.D. IN TRAVEL, FREE TRIPS FREE MEALS/JAMAICA/CANCUN/LORDA BARBADOS/HATAHAN AS SIGN UP BY NOV. 5 FOR 2 FREE TRIPS AND FREE MEALS.
1-800-425-7710 www.SUNPSLASHTOURS.COM

BUYING AND SELLING N.D FOOTBALL TICKETS. GREAT PRICES. CALL 289-8048

FOR SALE N.D. FOOTBALL TICKETS CALL 271-9412

CENTRAL AMERICA TRAVEL
Breaking the Spell..., $1299 1-800-827-7420

FOR SALE ASU FOOTBALL TICKETS.
FOR SALE ASU football tickets.

S E LL A N D S A L E N D FOOTBALL TIX.
FOR SALE ND FOOTBALL TIX: $47 50 ea. CALL 289-6845

SELLING 2 G.A.TOS TO AZ & FLorea $1299 1-800-827-7420

PERSONAL

Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual students of ND/SCM meeting each Thursday. For info call (877)831-6245

High-Speed Computers, Color Copies, Binding, Fax Service, Photocopy, Bank Cards, Laminating, & a whole lot more at THE COPY SHOP LaFortuna Student Center Phone 631-COPY Free Pick-Up & Delivery!

It’s live! It’s rock & roll! Come see

Art

& the Artichokes

This Friday, 10pm at Heartland

CHILD CARE OPENINGS IN MY HOME. NEAR ND. 233-2704

To the woman who returned my lost purse Tuesday in Oshkosh THANK YOU for being so kind and honest! AJH

Congratulations, Diana!

The Observer accepts classifieds every business day from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Notre Dame office, 204 South Dining Hall. Deadline for next-day classifieds is 3 p.m. All classifieds must be prepaid. The Observer reserves the right to edit all classifieds for content without incurring refunds.

The Observer accepts classifieds every business day from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Notre Dame office, 204 South Dining Hall. Deadline for next-day classifieds is 3 p.m. All classifieds must be prepaid. The Observer reserves the right to edit all classifieds for content without incurring refunds.
Millwood pitches one-hitter in Braves win over Astros

Associated Press

ATLANTA

Kevin Millwood is no longer an afterthought to Greg Maddux, Tom Glavine and John Smoltz. After Wednesday, he deserves to be mentioned right along with them.

Pitching one of the greatest postseason games in baseball history, Millwood threw a one-hitter — facing only two batters above the minimum — to give the Atlanta Braves a critical 3-1 victory over the Houston Astros, evening the first-round series at one game apiece.

Millwood, pitching in the postseason for the first time, allowed a second-inning homer to Ken Caminiti but that was all. It was the first complete-game one-hitter in the postseason in 32 years.

"We needed a big win today," the 24-year-old Millwood said. "It was probably the biggest ever."

"No kidding."

"Everything was working," he said. "My fastball was good. My curveball was good. My slider was good."

Millwood, 18-7 during the regular season, didn't pitch at all the last two postseaons while the Braves were knocked out in the NL championship series — even though he won 17 games in 1998.

The Braves couldn't pass him by this year. Millwood stepped up to become the Braves most consistent starter while Maddux, Glavine and Smoltz — with seven Cy Youngs among them — went through assorted struggles.

"I slept pretty good last night," Millwood said. "I thought it was going to be kind of tough to get to sleep, but I think some of the nervous energy I worked up during the day kind of wore me out. I slept good."

And pitched even better, throwing the first complete game one-hitter in the postseason since Game 2 of the 1967 World Series. Boston's Jim Lonborg beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-0, allowing a double to Julian Javier with two outs in the eighth.

Tom Glavine and Mark Wohlers combined on a one-hitter in Game 2, but Glavine allowed three runs in the bottom half on Brian Jordan's sacrifice fly and run-scoring singles by Ryan Klesko and Androw Jones.

The best-5 series shifts to the Astrodome, where the next two games will be played Friday and Saturday. If a fifth game is needed, it would be at Turner Field on Sunday.

"It gives us confidence going into Houston," Jordan said. "I mean, momentum has switched."

Jordan and Klesko flip-flopped in the batting order, a move that paid off with two RBIs from Jordan, hitting fourth instead of fifth.

Klesko, dropped from the cleanup spot, had three hits, scored twice and drove in a run. But everyone was overshadowed by Millwood, who fanned with a no-hitter several times during the regular season, allowing only two hits in four separate starts.

He went at least six innings in every start after June 28. Overall, Millwood finished second in the NL to Arizona's Randy Johnson with a 2.68 ERA and led the majors by allowing a .202 average to hitters.

"He is a dominant pitcher," Jordan said. "We needed a big game from our pitcher and he came up with a big game for us."

The Braves got to Houston starter Jose Lima in the first inning, with Gerald Williams scoring on Jordan's two-out, broken-bat single. Lima might have been flustered by a visit from third-base umpire Bruce Froemming before the very first pitch.

Froemming noticed a stain on the right hip of Lima's uniform and walked over to check it out. The umpire appeared to touch the spot with a finger before allowing Lima to proceed.

"They have been checking the side of my pants all year," said Lima, who said the stain was simply dirt. "I don't have to cheat to win half games."

Lima, 21-10 during the regular season but 0-2 against the Braves, went 6-2-3 innings, allowing four runs and nine hits.

Caminiti, who hit a three-run homer in the ninth inning Tuesday to seal Houston's victory, buried the Braves again in the second inning. On a 1-2 pitch, Millwood tried to sneak a fastball over the inside corner, and it wound up in the right-field seats.

That would be his only mistake. Eddie Perez's sacrifice fly in the sixth broke a 1-1 tie. Androw Jones had the key hit in the inning, a double that broke his 0-for-20 slump in division series play. It was Atlanta's first extra-base hit of this series.
coaches, standing with their helmets on, were looking for a tackle. As soon as the first whistle blew, the Keenan fans started to ridicule O'Neill in an effort to distract this superpower and win the mental battle. But the O'Neill players would answer back.

After a quick Keenan touchdown, O'Neill unveiled its nearly unstoppable offense, highlighted by its secret play. On the first play, O'Neill attempted to unveil this secret play, but unfortunately fumbled the snap. In fact, every time O'Neill tried to unveil its secret play, the snap was fumbled. The half soon ended with Keenan up by a mere 13 points. One could sense that O'Neill would come out fighting.

Instead though, it was the Keenan fans who appeared to come out fighting. They were ruthless, relentless and occasionally downright rude. What's more, it appeared that their trash talking had begun to get to the O'Neill offensive machine and stalled it. screams of, "You're so bad!" were met with retorts of, "Tell us something we don't know." When one especially irritating fan shouted out, "Did your dorm even have tryouts?" He was startled to hear the response, "No, and we haven't had practice either!"

The O'Neill players knew this to be the unfortunate truth. The game proceeded unremittingly until around midway through the second half when O'Neill engineered a 62-yard drive (highlighted by four 15-yard penalties) to the Keenan 15-yard line. O'Neill, sensing pay dirt for the first time in two years, was forced with a difficult decision. Half of the team, still clinging to the hope of scoring a touchdown wanted to throw the ball. The other half, clinging to reality wanted to settle and attempt a field goal on first down to ensure points. They went for six, choosing to try their trick play again, and subsequently fumbling. The clock eventually expired and Keenan ended the game with thirteen more points than O'Neill. It could be argued, however, that O'Neill won the game.

They left the field with smiles on their faces. They had held the mighty Knights to 13 points including shutting them out in the second half. They had made improvements, not throwing any interceptions (OK, so they only got four passes off). They had left the field with only one significant injury. But the primary reason that one could consider O'Neill the victor was that its players and fans, or rather fan, understood the meaning of inter-hall sports. They understood that they were no longer playing high school football and had given up their dreams to play major college football and had fun. Only after considerable abuse did they stoop to the level of the Keenan fans. They hadn't practiced and thus hadn't invested any more time than the fun time spent with their friends at the games. Their coach never yelled at them, scowled at them, or benched them. O'Neill will be extremely lucky to win a game this year. In fact, they'll be lucky to score. Keenan, on the other hand, is well on its way to winning another championship.

However, this inter-hall player is proud to be part of the O'Neill team. Because sometimes, when you lose, you still can win.
Hockey

continued from page 24

With the intensity of last sea­son's games, Poulin believes this match-up is fast becoming Notre Dame's greatest rivalry. "With the proximity of the two schools and the fact that we compete in so many different sports, I think it is the rivalry for us. Both teams play very aggres­sively offensively, and with both teams built for speed, it's going to be very exciting hockey."

Head to head

Michigan starts the season the odds-on favorite for the CCHA title, holding first place in the conference coaches' preseason poll. The team returns many vet­erans from last season, including last year's leading scorer and conference rookie of the year, Mike Comrie. "They're very skilled up front," Poulin said about the Wolverines. "There's no question. They've had a little bit of adjustment on defense, though, since they've lost a couple of players. But up front, they have as much firepower as anyone in the country does."

Still, the loss of four players to graduation, including starting goalie Forrest Karr, leave some holes to be replaced. Three of those players — Brian Urick, Benoit Cotnoir and Dhadphale — scored more than 40 percent of Notre Dame's goals last season. "They're four very key play­ers," Poulin remarked. "They meant a lot to this program, and did a lot for the elevation of it. You don't replace a player such as Brian Urick; other players have to pick up the pieces, and I'm encouraged by our depth."

That depth will prove fairly important this season, as the Irish return eight players with more than 10 points each last season. One of the current Irish forwards this season have NHL draft status or experience with national programs. Defensively, the trio of Nathan Borega, Fraser and Sean Molina lead a veteran contingent that includes at least five seniors that have played a combined 401 career games.

Rookies

In addition to the current line­up, the Irish have gained one of the top freshman classes in the nation, including four former members of the USA Developmental Program and the top goaltender of the United States Hockey League last sea­son.

Two new members of the coaching staff also enter the irish roster this season. John Michelli, who spent three sea­son as top assistant coach at Union College, will share prima­ry assistant coaching duties with seven-year-­assistant Andy Slaggert. Irish fans may remem­ber the other new face, volunteer coach Greg Louder. A goaltender for the Irish from 1990-94, Louder currently is enrolled in the Notre Dame MBA program and is working the Irish goalies.

"He's been a great addition since he joined us in July," Poulin said. "Greg's one of the top goalies to go through a Notre Dame program. It's a perfect fit, having him on board."

More competition

In addition to the new faces on the coaching staff, a new team has joined up in the CCHA.

Nebraska Omaha has entered as a 12th team, prompting a change in conference alignment. The CCHA now consists of three "clusters," each consisting of four teams. This season, the Irish will compete with UNO, Alaska-Fairbanks and Michigan State. While the addition of a new team may change future Irish schedules, it won't affect the goals the team has set for itself. "We want to take the next step," Poulin said. "And the next step for us is the CCHA Tournament in Joe Louis Arena. From there, history says you have a terrific chance of the NCAA bid."

For Fraser, however, the stakes are set even higher. "We have a pyramid of goals posted on our locker room wall," he said. "Ultimately, our goal is to win a national championship, but it's the little things, the foun­dation, that have to get done first. Every single game, even the practice games, it all adds up to achieving those goals."
Hey, You Seniors: It’s Not Over Yet!

Jim Lies, C.S.C.  [Lies.4@nd.edu]

This missive, though quite obviously directed to our seniors, welcomes the interest of all who have read thus far. It is intended to appeal primarily, however, to those whose days among us are numbered, but, please God, has something to say to us all. During each mid-semester break, we tend to take stock and marvel at how quickly the semester has gone. I have little doubt that most of you seniors are gasping in horror at the speed with which these days, not only this semester but throughout your years here, have passed. My intention is to assure you, as the title of this article portends, that it’s not over yet!

I’ve rarely been as moved by an Observer article as I was by the one by Jeff Bean in yesterday’s “Inside Column.” He speaks far better than I will here about the importance of making the most of the time we have and our relationships, and of reordering our priorities if necessary. As for you seniors, there is more time remaining than you think as long as you choose to use it well. The danger in these days is that you might think that it’s too late or you’re too busy to try something new; or, especially for you off-campus folks, too late to get involved in something on campus that you haven’t up to now. The great danger for all of you is that you might deny yourself an opportunity to enter into some of the experiences that make this place unique in all the world. Oh, I know, you’ve heard it all before, but the fact of the matter is there’s a difference between hearing and listening, between knowing and experiencing.

Some of the most important experiences with which Notre Dame graduates walk away from this place happen in the waning days of their senior year. Some of them happen in the classroom, in moments of discovery and of deep reflection on just what matters most. We are who we are, however, in large part, because of the choices we make: for classes; for friends; for service; for worship and prayer; for employment; and, ultimately, for vocation.

It’s not too late to begin asking questions and considering options. It’s not too late to get involved in experiences through Campus Ministry and the Center for Social Concerns which could ultimately affect the direction of your life, and certainly your character. It would be a great shame if we walked away from this place without getting at the most important questions of life. The opportunities are all around us: the choice is ours. Not only because such a choice would most assuredly enhance your days here, but because of its potential to greatly transform the life that you will live beyond this place.

Please God, that which you have the opportunity to engage in here, will inform the deepest questions of faith and of justice and of social responsibility. Please God, the opportunities that you have and will yet experience here will enlighten your discernment over some of the most important decisions of your young lives. I only encourage you to do two things: first, join us in the respective missions of a “Campus Ministry and of the Center for Social Concerns. There are ample opportunities to get involved even now, whether it be in areas of local service, or the urban plunge, or the Appalachian, Washington or migrant worker seminars through the Center for Social Concerns; or through Campus Ministry and the areas of faith and community through half Masses, bible studies, Emmaus small faith sharing groups, retreats such as the NDE, the Senior Service Retreat, or the Senior retreats which are coming up later this semester and next year through the new Senior Retreat Program through Campus Ministry. It’s not over yet.

The second thing that I would encourage you to do is to throw wide the possibilities for your future. As you discern the next year or two of your life, you have the luxury of considering opportunities that will, later, probably not be available to you. The opportunities for a year or two of service are many. You will find many valuable resources on this campus: the Center for Social Concerns, the Alliance for Catholic Education (ACE), Holy Cross Associates, and even Campus Ministry which will again offer a year-long internship for two recent Notre Dame graduates. Even beyond a year or two of service, this is the time for those of you who have long considered, if only casually, religious life or priesthood to consider a year to try it out and to enter into structured discernment about one of the most important decisions of your life.

For all of you, whether you choose to step outside of the normal course or not, it is the time to engage in conversation with trusted friends and mentors, to pray, and to revel in the opportunities that this place and these days afford you. So that when you are long beyond these days you can be confident that you took full advantage of all the opportunities that Our Lady’s University had to offer.
STUDENT UNION BOARD

Movie: Notting Hill
10/7 Thursday
10/8 Friday
10/9 Saturday

Acousticafe
10/7 Thursday

Reckers Acousticafe
10/12 Tuesday

Cushing Auditorium

10:30PM
Tickets: $2

North Dining Hall
8:00PM & 10:30PM

---

CLASS OF 2000

Class Dinner
10/7 Thursday

BW3's
6:30PM-8:30PM
$2

---

CLASS OF 2001

Grab 'N' Give
10/8 Friday

North Dining Hall
8:00PM-9:00PM

---

CLASS OF 2002

Concession Stand
10/9 Saturday

Before the Game
New class t-shirts: $12

---

SAINT MARY'S

It's Pride Week:

Field Day
10/7 Thursday

ASU Pep Rally and Prayer Service
10/8 Friday

3:00PM-5:00PM

LeMans Hall

---

MISCELLANEOUS/CAMPUS-WIDE

Respect Life Week:

Tour of St. Joseph County Hospice
10/7 Thursday

Meet @ Library Circle
3:45PM

Cemetery of the Innocents and Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament
10/8 Friday

the Basilica
12:00PM-5:00PM

---

Don't miss Reckers' Acousticafe coming this Tuesday @ 8:00
Women's Soccer

Belles settle for 1-1 tie in overtime

By SARAH RYKOWSKI
Sports Writer

Saint Mary's soccer team tied Albion College in double overtime on Wednesday with a final score of 1-1.

"The girls gave a solid effort all around," Coach Jason Milligan said. "It was not the result we would like." The first half was scoreless, although Saint Mary's had four goal attempts and Albion countered with 10.

"They had faster forwards than the teams we've played in the past," Brie Gershick, goalie for Saint Mary's, said.

Gershick had 15 saves for the night.

Nearly 20 minutes into the second half of the game, sophomore Mary Campe scored for the Belles. She was assisted by freshman midfielder Lynn Taylor helped Saint Mary's with an assist from her teammate Wendy Boynton in the game.

The game ended, according to league rules, after two sudden death overtimes of 15 minutes each.

"There's no use dwelling on it," said Milligan. "We'll keep our good attitudes going.

Taylor helped Saint Mary's to a 1.1 tie in double overtime against Albion College.

The game seemed to go well for the Belles in the second half, as they were able to contain the Albion offense and pass the ball well. They had a total of twelve shots on goal in the second half.

"In our second halves, we've always come out more solid and finished real well," Milligan said. "I attribute it to their hard work and conditioning."

Near the end of the second half, the intensity picked up, as the Albion team tried to score and force an overtime and the Belles fought to hold their lead.

"They were definitely a more physical team than we've played," Gershirk said. Forty-four minutes into the second half, Albion's Betsy Hubert scored with an assist from her teammate Wendy Boynton to tie the game.

"They had faster forwards than the teams we've played against Albion College," Milligan said. "It was not the result we would like."

"The girls gave a solid effort all around," Coach Jason Milligan said. "I am not worried about that. I think I am still the guy for this team. I feel I am the better kicker." Sanson has had many chances before to prove he is a good kicker and has responded strongly. With every strong response, however, a poor performance has also followed a few weeks later.

Sanson knows that he might not get another chance if he slips again.

"In this situation I realize that if I get yanked it will be the last time I kick here at Notre Dame," he said. "Because I just can't see a coach going back and forth. It's not his style. It's not my style.

With his job on the line and his family filling the stands, some observers might feel that the pressure will be too much for Sanson. The four-year starter, however, says he is not worried about the pressure.

"It's a do-or-die situation," he said. "People can say that I am going to have pressure on me and it will cause problems. But it's not going to cause problems. Hopefully it will make me a better kicker and a better person."

In what might be his last week as a starter, Sanson is taking a relaxed attitude into the game.

"I am going to go out there this weekend and I am going to have fun," he said. "I am going to show off to people what I can do and if it's not good enough fine, they can get someone else who can do the job."
Cross Country

Klemmer aims for nationals

By KATHLEEN O'BRIEN
Assistant Sports Editor

Senior Alison Klemmer has had endurance throughout her cross country career, the leg speed and finishing kick were the areas where she needed work.

She's finally put it all together, making her a top-notch runner with a shot at being a cross country All-American and at qualifying for the Olympic trials in 2000.

"For a long time, she was a very strong runner with a lot of endurance, but there were a lot of gaps," said head women's cross country coach Tim Connelly. "What she's done is go out and work on filling in those gaps. She's done a lot of work to make herself a competitive runner."

Klemmer was injured and did not compete her entire freshman year, and is thus only a junior in terms of eligibility. Last year she was also bothered by nagging injuries during the cross country season.

"Her freshman year taught her to be more patient," said Connelly. "She's learned to read her body. She doesn't push when it's time to back down."

Because of those injuries, Klemmer has shined the most in outdoor track, with her best in the 10,000-meter run. She was an All-American in outdoor track in 1998 and 1999.

Klemmer finished third for the women at the Big East Invitational in cross country last season, but hopes to really excel this season. She hopes to help the team finish among the top 10 at the NCAA Championships and contend for the Big East title.

"I think it's a matter of hard work and mental attitude," said Klemmer. "I hope to be All-American at the national meet. That's my big goal."

More long-term goals Klemmer has set for herself are becoming a three-time All-American in outdoor track and for the U.S. Olympic trials next summer.

"She's very precise in the way she approaches her running," said Connelly. "She's a science major, a biology major, and that scientific approach really carries over into her running."

"If you look at her running logs, they're very well-documented," he added. "She has a certain routine. She develops a race plan and really tries to stick to it. It's what's worked for her." Klemmer is an excellent student with a grade point average close to 3.9. After graduation, she plans to go on to get her master's in ecology and hopefully will use her final year of running eligibility.

She finishes her final year of eligibility, Klemmer would like to lengthen her race distance to half-marathons and marathons, hopefully with some sort of sponsorship.

She started running competitively early in her life. After being the second girl to finish the mile in middle school, Klemmer decided to go out for the track team. The high school track coach saw her run, and asked her to go out for the track and cross country teams in high school.

Since her sophomore year, Klemmer has known she wanted to run competitively in college.

"My high school coach always told me I was going to be a great 10,000-meter runner," said Klemmer.

A native of Troy, Mich., Klemmer decided to come to Notre Dame over Wake Forest. A big factor in that decision was Connelly, who said she is a great coach.

"I just really love running, even if I'm by myself," Klemmer said. "You finish up a really hard workout, and there's nothing like the feeling you're like, wow, I did it."
FOURTH AND INCHES

TOM KEELEY

JUST WHERE DO YOU THINK YOU'RE GONNA GET THAT ALUMINUM CAN?!

TO THE REACTOR, SIR, I DON'T THINK SO. I SUPPOSE YOU WANT EVERYONE TO REGULATE, WELL, THINK ABOUT THIS, ALUMINUM. IF IT WENT ALL REGGC. THEY DON'T HAVE ALUMINUM. WEEDS OF ALUMINUM. HUMANS WILL GO UP IN FLAMES. THEN IT MIGHT BE TIME TO REGULATE.

DAN'T EVER THINK ABOUT IT.

FANTO TROT

NOW, NOW, IF YOU'RE GOING TO PLAY DEFENSE, YOU'RE GOING TO WANT TO WORK ON YOUR INTERCEPTION SKILLS.

GET DOWN IN A THREE-POINT STANCE. PRETEND I'M THE QUARTERBACK.

NOW SAY A FEW POINTS OR TWO. PUT THE FEAR OF GOD IN YOUR HEART. THERE'S DARK STARS ON YOUR ARM. LOOK LIKE SKIN CANCER.

MAYBE I SHOULD EXPLAIN WHAT I MEAN. SAY, ISN'T THAT A SWEET AMERICAN FIT VIPER?

BILL AMEND

The Observer • TODAY

FOURTH AND INCHES

TOM KEELEY

JUST WHERE DO YOU THINK YOU'RE GONNA GET THAT ALUMINUM CAN?!

TO THE REACTOR, SIR, I DON'T THINK SO. I SUPPOSE YOU WANT EVERYONE TO REGULATE, WELL, THINK ABOUT THIS, ALUMINUM. IF IT WENT ALL REGGC. THEY DON'T HAVE ALUMINUM. WEEDS OF ALUMINUM. HUMANS WILL GO UP IN FLAMES. THEN IT MIGHT BE TIME TO REGULATE.

DAN'T EVER THINK ABOUT IT.

FANTO TROT

NOW, NOW, IF YOU'RE GOING TO PLAY DEFENSE, YOU'RE GOING TO WANT TO WORK ON YOUR INTERCEPTION SKILLS.

GET DOWN IN A THREE-POINT STANCE. PRETEND I'M THE QUARTERBACK.

NOW SAY A FEW POINTS OR TWO. PUT THE FEAR OF GOD IN YOUR HEART. THERE'S DARK STARS ON YOUR ARM. LOOK LIKE SKIN CANCER.

MAYBE I SHOULD EXPLAIN WHAT I MEAN. SAY, ISN'T THAT A SWEET AMERICAN FIT VIPER?

BILL AMEND

Visit The Observer on the web at http://observer.nd.edu/

THE OBSERVER

Published Monday through Friday, The Observer is a vital source of information on people and events in the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's Community.

Join the more than 13,000 readers who have found The Observer an indispensable link to the two campuses. Please complete the accompanying form and mail it today to receive The Observer in your home.

Make checks payable to: and mail to:

The Observer
P.O. Box Q
Notre Dame, IN 46556

Enclosed is $85 for one academic year

Enclosed is $45 for one semester

Name
Address
City
State
Zip

Horoscope

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY:
John Mellencamp, Oliver North, Charlie Tuna, Yvonne De Carlo, Louise Jones, Judy Landers, Junior Alphonse, Tom Bosley.

Happy Birthday: Face yourself squarely this week, and you won't lose. You are creative, articulate and ready to take a run, whatever your way. Your sound judgment and common sense will help you make the right decisions. You can trust your inner voice to lead you in the right direction. Your number is 3, 14, 22, 31, 41.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can pick up a lot of information if you keep an open mind and design your plan with established individuals. Travel should be considered. Get ready to make changes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): More health problems will develop if you take on too much. Avoid complications with loved ones. Do not begin new projects until you have time to work on your present ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your reviews will be volatile, and a new commitment will be questioned. You must be careful not to overextend yourself. This is a good time for job changes or to make important personal decisions. You can avoid a major problem at your workplace.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Spend some time with family. The work you do around the house will be appreciated. Entertainment will help you expand your circle of friends. Your door is open and your heart is warm.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can pick up obligations that will open your eyes to a multitude of opportunities. You should attend seminars that focus on investment opportunities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may not want to put in overtime, but if you do, your ability to work hard will enable you to pay off any debts you have. Your number is 3, 14, 22, 31, 41.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Individually you will influence your way of thinking. Business or pleasure trips will bring you cultural knowledge that can integrate into your lifestyle. You will enjoy the changes you make.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Feelings or gifts for your past-good friends will bring you great satisfaction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Past accomplishments will be coming back into your life. You will develop new partnerships that could lead to interesting proposals. You have to make decisions that could lead to your present situation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your newnness will be sorely tested, and you must be careful not to overextend yourself. This is a good time to question your plans or make unpleasant personal or business decisions. You must be careful not to overextend yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Overcommitting to plans or projects that may not work for you will result in your making the right decisions. You can trust your in-nery voice to lead you in the right direction.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spend more time focusing on matters pertaining to your future. Your number is 3, 14, 22, 31, 41. You can pick up obligations that will open your eyes to a multitude of opportunities. You should attend seminars that focus on investment opportunities.

BETWEEEN THE SHEETS (1924):

1939 Boggart title

WE RECYCLE.

Visit The Observer on the web at http://observer.nd.edu/
Interhall spirit matters

The steely gray, drizzling sky provided an appropriate backdrop for the epic battle that was to take place.

The two teams, legendary for their own reasons, formed on opposite sides of the field. Both wearing blue, the gladiators from both teams went through their typical pre-game drills.

On one side were the men of Keenan Hall. Their 17-game winning streak and 2-0 record already had people whispering, "dynasty." From a distance, one could see that they were seats. Their intensity was easily apparent; their swagger was unavoidably noticeable. They crisply ran through their plays as their coach, fully clad in suit and tie, barked orders. Their exceptional organization and timing were fruits of weeks of hard laborious practice and intense training.

On the other side were the men of O'Neill Hall. They had no winning streak. In fact, they had never won. They had yet this season to add to their all-time scoring total of 13 points. But it was this lack of winning, this lack of scoring that made them dangerous. They were due.

One could see that they were confident, laid back even. Most of the players had yet to put on all of their pads. Some were just arriving. Clearly the Mob was depending on the element of surprise. Instead of practicing any of the four set plays in their extensive playbook, they were adding new plays, trick plays.

Their coach by committee, consisting of whoever was in the bubble at that time, could be heard arguing over which new plays they would install. After deciding on scrambling any notion of adding new plays, they began to set their lineup for this war.

As the whistle indicating the end of the first games of the day blew, the two teams were headed to the field. Keenan had a look of static intensity. The Keenan coach stood under his umbrella held by what appeared to be an assistant reviewing his game plan. O'Neill, conversely, was full of chatter. Their

By MIKE CONNOLLY
Associate Sports Editor

Four years ago, Jim Sanson's friends and family from Arizona circulated this week's game against Arizona State on their calendars. It was supposed to be a celebration of Sanson's career at Notre Dame and a reunion with childhood teammates and Arizona State quarterback Ryan Kealy. But all that has changed in the four years since Sanson signed his letter of intent to attend Notre Dame. Missed field goals and extra points have turned what was supposed to be a celebration into a do-or-die game for Sanson's career.

"My sister called me last night and asked if we were going to have fun this weekend," Sanson said. "I told her we were definitely going to have fun this weekend."

For Sanson to have fun this weekend, he will have to have better results against the Sun Devils than he did against the Sooners when he missed two short field goals. The highlight of Sanson's effort last weekend was when he made a tackle on a long kick return by Brandon Daniels.

Sanson had difficulty enjoying the celebration over the first Irish victory in a month because of these struggles. "Saturday night I had mixed emotion," he said. "I was so happy for my teammates because they played a great game but I wasn't happy with myself or the way I contributed."

Sanson's desire to improve and put the Oklahoma game behind him has weighed heavily on him entering the Arizona State game.

"The past three nights I have gotten six or seven hours of sleep because of the frustration with myself and my situation," he said. "I've been hard on myself about it and focused on what I have to do — what I can do here, what I should have done there. That's how hard I am on myself. That's much how I wanted to improve."

This season has been especially tough for his sister Katie who transferred to Notre Dame this year from the University of Arizona. Sanson tried to prepare her and his family for the criticism that he has faced his entire career and criticism they will surely hear this weekend.

"I tried warning her," he said. "It doesn't matter — good or bad — you have to be prepared for everything you have to take out there."

No one, however, prepared Sanson for the rollercoaster career he suffered under the Dome.

"It wasn't in the media guide," he said jokingly. "They didn't tell me anything about it on my visit either. I really didn't expect things to go in this way."

He's had game-winning kicks against Texas as a freshman and Army as a junior and 0-2 performances like last week against Oklahoma. Sanson has gone from hero to goat in seconds.

As it turns out, those fans will not have to wait long. Sanson to have fun this weekend and put the Oklahoma game behind him.

Sanson's effort last weekend was the celebration over the first Irish victory in a month because of these struggles. "Saturday night I had mixed emotion," he said. "I was so happy for my teammates because they played a great game but I wasn't happy with myself or the way I contributed."

Sanson's desire to improve and put the Oklahoma game behind him has weighed heavily on him entering the Arizona State game.

"The past three nights I have gotten six or seven hours of sleep because of the frustration with myself and my situation," he said. "I've been hard on myself about it and focused on what I have to do — what I can do here, what I should have done there. That's how hard I am on myself. That's much how I wanted to improve."

This season has been especially tough for his sister Katie who transferred to Notre Dame this year from the University of Arizona. Sanson tried to prepare her and his family for the criticism that he has faced his entire career and criticism they will surely hear this weekend.

"I tried warning her," he said. "It doesn't matter — good or bad — you have to be prepared for everything you have to take out there."

No one, however, prepared Sanson for the rollercoaster career he suffered under the Dome.

"It wasn't in the media guide," he said jokingly. "They didn't tell me anything about it on my visit either. I really didn't expect things to go in this way."

He's had game-winning kicks against Texas as a freshman and Army as a junior and 0-2 performances like last week against Oklahoma. Sanson has gone from hero to goat in seconds.

As it turns out, those fans will not have to wait long. Sanson to have fun this weekend and put the Oklahoma game behind him.

Hockey rivalry with No. 5 Michigan is fierce

By BILL HART
Associate Sports Editor

After one of the most exciting seasons in recent memory, many Notre Dame hockey fans hoped this year's team would provide the same thrill. As it turns out, those fans will not have to wait long.

The Irish hockey team starts their regular season tonight at 7:05 p.m. against one of their fiercest rivals, the fifth-ranked Michigan Wolverines.

"It's a great way to start," said Irish head coach Dave Poulin. "There's no question, it's nice that it's the first CCHA game of the year, so all the focus is right here tonight."

While the many battles between the Irish and Wolverines dates back to 1921, last season's three-game series proved to be one of the most exciting in recent history. The series was split 1-1-1 during the season, with a margin of victory never greater than one goal.

The last time the two teams met, left wing Aniket Dhadphale scored the deciding goal with less than five minutes remaining in the game, off a rebound shot by Dan Carlson.

"This will be great start for us," senior defenseman Tyson Fraser said. "We've got a big history with Michigan over my last three years. We've been really close and they've always seemed to get a bounce or a break. We're just going to go out there, lay everything we have on the ice and play as hard as we can."