The April 3 ruling by a federal judge that computer giant Microsoft violated U.S. antitrust laws does not mean that the case is over.

In fact, appeals by Microsoft to the intermediate court of appeals in Washington, D.C. and then possibly to the U.S. Supreme Court could extend a final decision regarding Microsoft's fate as late as the spring of 2002, said Joseph Bauer, professor of law at Notre Dame.

The case began in May 1998 when 19 states, the District of Columbia and the U.S. Justice Department filed suit against Microsoft, claiming that the company was "unlawfully tying its Web browser" to its Windows products.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson found Microsoft in violation of the anti-monopoly Sherman Act. "Microsoft placed an oppressive thumb on the scale of competitive fortune, thereby effectively guaranteeing its dominance," Jackson wrote in his ruling.

"Up to now, the ruling (which has happened in two stages so far) has been absolutely what I expected," Bauer said. The third ruling, which Bauer expects could come this summer, would deal with remedies to the situation, since Jackson declared Microsoft in violation of antitrust laws.

"The range of remedies extends to the breakup of Microsoft to ending different kinds of conduct to changing contracts it has with competitors and customers," Bauer said. "The ruling could also deal with Microsoft's licensing codes regarding placement of their Web browser."

"I wouldn't speculate, though, what the ruling will be, but my guess is that the court would not order the company broken up, but I wouldn't bet my rent on it.

But if Microsoft appeals the ruling, as company founder Bill Gates said it would, the process could be extended indefinitely.

If the ruling on remedies for the violations comes in the summer, the case could be appealed to the intermediate court of appeals in Washington, D.C.

Following a ruling by that court, the case could go to the U.S. Supreme Court because this particular one would likely warrant the attention of the nation's highest court. In that case, hearings on the case before the Supreme Court could come in the fall of 2001 with a final decision by the spring.

Theologians discuss justification

By ERIN PIROUTEK

For centuries the disagreement between Catholics and Lutherans has hinged on the Doctrine of Justification. Traditionally Lutherans have emphasized that salvation is by faith alone, while Catholics maintained that good works are necessary for salvation. On Oct. 31, 1999, representatives of the Roman Catholic Church and the Lutheran World Federation signed their first ever joint doctrinal statement, "The Joint Declaration on the Doctrine of Justification." The statement acknowledged a basic doctrinal agreement on the theological issue of how God justifies, or saves, people.

Two principle architects of the document, Cardinal Edward Cassidy, president of the Pontifical Council for Promoting Christian Unity, and George Lindbeck, a Lutheran professor of historical theology at Yale, presented "The Joint Declaration: A Significant Ecumenical Achievement," at Notre Dame Tuesday night.

Cassidy explained the history of the document, his views on the ecumenical success of the document and his hopes.

TheCLC members were able to discuss their recent 24-hour parking space resolution that was introduced earlier this month. The gender relations committee of the CLC met to discuss certain necessary changes, according to Cavanaugh senator Bridget Tomes.

We reviewed it and made it stronger," said Tomes.

Among other tasks, the committee made a list of dorms still in need of 24-hour space. The committee also addressed the issue of making security monitors aware of the rules concerning the space.

Although the committee did not reach a conclusion in the case of security monitors, Tomes said it is essential to keep them informed so that it could at least address the fact that some dorms lack adequate 24-hour space.

By PHIL DITTMAR

"The idea behind the resolution is to address the lack of 24-hour space rather than what rules would be governing it," said Tomes. "It's a little of different scope so we're going to draft a letter."

Phil Johnson, assistant director of Security spoke in the CLC about its recent parking resolution that called for action to be made concerning vehicles on the basketball courts. Johnson shared information about current policies and Security's responsibilities. The debate over parking spaces continues between students, who want the basketball courts to remain recreational space throughout the day and administrators, who say that some courts are necessary for parking.

Hey, baby

As a 21-year-old senior getting ready to enter the big bad world of the 21st century, I must acknowledge my acceptance of one of God's dearest gifts—baby-making.

Now, this has nothing to do with anything relevant to contemporary issues on campus. Instead, it has to do with the fact that I am close to receiving a college degree, and I am on the brink of becoming a full-fledged adult. Thus, it's time to have a baby.

Two weeks ago, I was forced to wake up at 8 a.m. because a plumber was coming to my house to fix a leaky faucet. So I did what any good-hearted American woman would do—I turned on the TV set.

Having left the station on Fox the previous night, I was greeted with a wild, young 14-year-old telling the world how she doesn't care what people think about how she's had sex with so many men, and so many women, because all she cares about is getting pregnant. I think she was Sally Jesse, or Jenny Jones. It doesn't really matter; actually, I usually do my classwork. I've devoted many a Saturday night to being a responsible student. So now it's time to be a responsible adult, and it is my duty to enter my child-bearing years.

The man to whom many of us devote 30 minutes every week to witness the hijinks of being single in contemporary America, had not only turned me off from being with a furnished joint, but has now also turned me off from being with a baby. It is my duty to enter my child-bearing years, and I am close to receiving a college degree, and I am on the brink of becoming a full-fledged adult. Thus, it's time to have a baby.

Tear gas ends rowdy block party at Ohio State

COLUMBUS, Ohio—Hundreds of Ohio State University students covered their noses and ran as Columbus police officers used tear gas to disperse an unruly crowd at a black party early Saturday morning.

Columbus police Sgt. Earl Smith said that less than a dozen people were arrested for offenses ranging from disorderly conduct to vandalism in connection with the incident. Two officers suffered minor injuries.

The disturbance started at 1 a.m. when police responded to a caller reporting a rape.

"Initially, I think there were two cruisers," Smith said. "Obviously, that's kind of a priority call." The officers arrived at the address, and found a party, either at the address or near to it, Smith said.

"They were not able to locate the caller or the alleged victim, but whoever called our radio room indicated that it happened at a party," he said. Smith said that some people in the crowd became aggressive toward the officers, throwing objects at the officers and their cruisers. The crowd was made of up of 500 to 600 people.

"The first officers there got hit with bottles and rocks," he said. "They called for additional officers."

Jury requests U of Minn. evidence

MINNEAPOLIS—Last week the University of Minnesota got a dose of the federal grand jury's strength as it was asked to turn over all evidence gathered from its men's basketball scandal investigation.

The FBI and the U.S. Postal Service served the University with two federal subpoenas Tuesday, and ordered a turnover of every file concerning academic fraud from 1990 until the present— including evidence withheld from the public.

The subpoenas also commanded the University to provide any and all information regarding former Gophers basketball player Bobby Jackson's academic eligibility.

"We're of the view that this is an unusual step. The University has publicly stated before that academic misconduct is an academic matter," said University General Counsel Mark Choi. However, Choi, who was named in both subpoenas, said he will comply with the request by the government's Tuesday deadline.

The federal criminal case, which University officials said does not target current University staff, faculty or students, might involve mail fraud, said Tonya Moten Brown, the University's vice president who oversees athletics.

When the crowd got completely out of hand and they didn't disperse, that's when they used tear gas. At that point, the majority of the partygoers left the area."

Brend Hal, a student from the University of Kentucky, said that the tear gas made everyone in the crowd run uncontrolled.

"It burns you," he said. "It burns your mouth, burns your eyes. My face is on fire now. I can't even see." Smith said that no officers or students were seriously hurt in the incident. "Just cuts and bruises," he said.

The scene turned hectic a few minutes after the tear gas was released. The sound of bottles shattering on the pavement and rocks being thrown off police cruisers punctuated "O-H-I-O" chants. A stickers raced through the street, to the delight of gathered motorists.

Notre Dame announces recipients of honorary degrees

University to bestow nine degrees at graduation

By HELENA RAYAM
News Writer

The University will award honorary doctorate degrees to nine recipients from various fields, along with United Nations secretary-general Kofi Annan, at Notre Dame’s 155th Commencement May 21.

“The University looks to honor people who distinguish themselves in their personal lives and in any number of fields,” said Dennis Brown, director of Public Relations and Information.

All doctorate recipients are nominated by members of the Notre Dame community and the final selection process is conducted by the officers of the University. Annan and five of the other degree recipients will get honorary doctor of law degrees.

Robert Walsh, a ’56 Notre Dame graduate and donor for Welsh Family Hall, is currently serving his 18th year on the University’s Board of Trustees. Welch, who also serves as a University Fellow, is chair and chief executive of Welch, Inc., which maintains several convenience stores with automobile services and restaurants. He has also been declared a "Sagamore of the Wabash," an honor given for distinguished service to Indiana by the governor.

Connie Binsfeld, former lieutenant governor of Michigan, is the first woman in Michigan history to hold leadership positions in the state’s House, Senate and executive offices. Archbishop Agostino Cacciavilcan will get an honorary doctorate of law degree. Binsfeld is the first woman in Michigan history to hold leadership positions in the state’s House. Senate and executive offices.

Archbishop Agostino Cacciavillan will get an honorary doctorate of law degree for six years of leadership in the Catholic Church. Cacciavillan has been the Vatican’s ambassador to the United States for eight years and the president of the Administration of the Patrimony of the Apostolic See since 1998.

Former Nicaraguan president Violeta Barrios de Chamorro has worked toward preserving peace and democracy in Nicaragua beginning with the end of the Somoza regime. She will receive a doctorate in law. During her presidency, Chamorro has assisted in ending Nicaragua’s Contra war, reforming the military system and improving the economy.

Robert Goodwin, another honorary doctorate of law degree recipient, is the president of the Points of Light Foundation, which promotes volunteerism. Goodwin was also the executive director of the U.S. Department of Education’s White House Initiative on Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

As co-founder and executive director of Focus:HOPE, which maintains programs for food, job training and child care, E. I. e. a n ror J osa l t i s has fought to end discrimination and injustice. She will be awarded a doctorate of law.

Receiving an honorary doctorate of science degree is James Bjorken, physicist and Stanford University professor emeritus. Bjorken co-authored two books that have been standard quantum physics texts for more than 20 years. He has spent most of his career working at the Stanford Linear accelerator Center.

Another Notre Dame graduate, William Maxzy will be awarded an honorary doctorate of engineering. Maxzy’s research and work on advanced high-temperature materials and other processing technology has received international attention. Currently, Maxzy is a consultant for the Department of Energy’s Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

George Rickey will get an honorary doctorate of fine arts. Using stainless steel forms and engineered counterweights, Rickey creates art that has gained international notice. His works are on display in museums nationwide and in other countries, including the White House and Washington D.C.’s National Gallery of Art Sculpture Garden.

Commencement is scheduled for May 21 at 2 p.m.
LaFortune revisions, new center unlikely

By JASON McFARLEY
News Writer

While the results of last fall’s Student Senate survey on the LaFortune Student Center may not be followed to the letter, according to Father Remy Rentner, assistant vice president of Student Affairs, “Student Affairs is always evaluating how things are working, seeing what needs to be changed or fixed,” Rentner said. “The survey results won’t dictate [University] policy but should give us an idea of how LaFortune is used by students.” Rentner said his office can not and will not act on the issue until he receives an official report from the student senate. Currently the senate remains the only body to be officially presented with the survey results.

The student senate has been in the process of evaluating the results of the survey in order to prepare a recommendation to the Office of Student Affairs regarding student opinion of LaFortune and other social spaces on campus,” said 1999-2000 Student Union secretary Luciana Reali, who chaired the senate subcommittee on centralized social space.

Although no official report has been drafted yet, initial survey results indicate that students are displaced with university social space facilities for a number of reasons. The online survey generated 1,136 responses from Notre Dame undergraduate graduates last fall. Of those respondents, 1,018 said they would not consider LaFortune to be an adequate entertainment venue. It would be beneficial to have 24-hour student center access, according to 1,058 students. LaFortune is most commonly used by students for eating, computing, studying and socializing with friends, according to Roali.

“One matter I hope that the survey addresses is what kinds of things students want. What specific things are they looking for?” Rentner said. According to Roali, students rated LaFortune very poorly on entertainment and recreation. Suggested remedies included a movie theater, bowling alley or nightclub.

Rentner said he understands students’ concerns. “Personally, I would like to see more venues on campus for socializing. I don’t want students to have to go off campus to have a good time,” he said. Although Rentner recognizes a need for social facilities, he doesn’t foresee renovations to LaFortune or the construction of a new student center in the near future.

“Renovations and [constructing] new buildings takes a long time to bring about,” Rentner said. “Even if [constructing a new building] was something Student Affairs wanted to pursue, we would be just one office standing in line for a building request.” Rentner said, “And there are a lot ahead of us.”

Dittmar questioned whether Student Affairs does with rector evaluations. Comparing them to teacher course evaluations, Dittmar wanted to know how important and influential the evaluations were to rectors. Assistant vice president of Student Affairs Bill Kirk informed Dittmar that the evaluations are considered, but the office tries to examine other factors that determine the rector’s effectiveness as a University employee as well.

Heavy rains cause deadly landslides, evacuations

Landslides caused by six days of nearly nonstop rain have killed 15 people, wrecked homes and forced the evacuation of dozens of residents in this Andean capital, authorities said Monday. "We have a total of 15 people dead as a direct result of rain and landslides close to 25 people injured to varying degrees and nearly 200 villagers flee their homes to escape clashes between a second Muslim rebel group and government forces," said a Red Cross representative Rody Camino told The Associated Press. The rains, coming near the end of the region's September-May rainy season, started Wednesday and continued nearly nonstop through the weekend, causing about 150 landslides and prompting the evacuation of some 100 people. "We have had rain before, but not like this, with landslides inside the city," said Quito Mayor Alfonso Lasso.

A former rebel leader whose forces stopped the 1994 genocide was chosen on Monday as president of Rwanda, the nation's first Tutsi leader since independence in 1992. Paul Kagame, 43, who previously had rejected the top post out of fear of antagonizing the Hutu majority, was chosen president by the Parliament and the Cabinet in an 81-5 secret ballot. Kagame, who had been acting president since last month, won over Charles Murungi, also a leader in the Rwandan Patriotic Front, the country's major political force.

Kagame provisionally replaced the president, Pasteur Bizimungu, in March when Bizimungu, a 49-year-old Hutu, stepped down amid accusations of incompetence and rumors of conflict with the Patriotic Front. Kagame was slated to be sworn in Saturday by the Supreme Court as Rwanda's fifth president since independence. The RPF is made up of Tutsi exiles who won power in 1994 after stopping the then-extremist Hutu government's slaughter of more than 500,000 minority Tutsis and politically moderate Hutus.

Since 1994, the RPF and seven other political parties made up of both Hutus and Tutsis have ruled Rwanda in a transitional government, appointing the Cabinet and the 70-seat National Assembly under a power-sharing formula. Last year, the government put off elections and extended the transition period to 2003, arguing that ethnic tensions stemming from the mass killings are too high for a free ballad. Senior RPF officials said they would meet soon to make the decision on a vice president. Officials said one of Kagame's aides would likely get the job of defense minister.

The Joint Declaration is a significant achievement, both Lutherans and Catholics must continue their efforts to reach the goal of full communion.

"We have not reached the end of the road by any means," said Cassidy. "The withdrawal of condemnation in the Joint Declaration is only a first step," said Lindbeck. The document, in addition to clarifying the Doctrine of the Holy Spirit, brings up new issues.

"The Joint Declaration itself sets before us a number of questions that await our joint attention," said Cassidy, specifically mentioning the sacraments, ecclesiology and the ethics of the Joint Declaration. He noted that the realization that Catholics and Lutherans can overcome a major difference is a particularly positive step toward future communion.

There is one saving action of Jesus Christ," said Cassidy, noting that the emphasis in the Joint Declaration should be the cause of continual celebration for members of both faiths.

SMC professor awarded grant

By COLLEEN MCCARTHY
Assistant News Editor

Nancy D'Antuono, professor of Italian at Saint Mary's, is among a select group of the nation's college educators who received a grant from the National Endowment for Humanities for interdisciplinary study of Italian ruins from Greek and Roman civilizations.

The grant will allow D'Antuono to study the Greek and Roman ruins outside Naples, Italy. The National Endowment for Humanities sends out information to academic institutions throughout the country regarding grant availability. A committee reads through all the applicants and selects between 10 to 15 individuals to receive a grant. The goal of the selection committee is to choose a group of individuals from various disciplines who will be able to benefit from each other's expertise.

"The title of my project is 'Campagnia Felix: Nature, Mythology and the Works of Man,'" said D'Antuono. "I hope to bring back to the classroom what she learns this summer to the students and others in the same field in Italy, she will write a paper and article for scholarly publication."
The snow on the ground and the 15 degree windchill just added to the irony of the Christmas in April run Saturday, April 8. As the participants gathered in Siepmann before the race, I heard one guy say to his running partner, "They've fooled the weather into thinking it's really is Christmas, and it's rearing accordingly." I blame the weather for the small size of the running pack. The weather, and the large number of dorms having dances the night before, which would have made more than half the campus too tired to get up the next morning and go running. The weather, dances and the early hour of the race. I mean, who really wants to get up on a particular day.

For me, two or three miles is enough to calm my mind after I started running. I was reintroduced to Eric Zorn's For Once in Our Lives Society (FOOLS). Eric is a columnist for the Chicago Tribune who in 1998 decided to run the Chicago Marathon in October of that year. Hundreds of readers decided to join him in his training. They started a club -- FOOLS. That's all they were trying to do: get out there and attempt something new, change their lives for the better, do something unusual for once in their lives. They had a challenge, they had a goal, they had the solidarity to make it.

They also had really good lung capacity, stamina and inspiration. I thought they were nuts, I still do. A marathon is 26.2 miles; a 5K is 3.1 miles. You can do a 5K without anyone knowing, but there's no surreptitious way to run a marathon. Tell your roommate: "I'm going out for four hours. I'll come back sweaty, barely able to walk and then proceed to do nothing but drink water and gasp for the next three days."

If marathoning is your thing, go for it. For me, two or three miles is enough to accomplish what I want to. I get 20 or 30 minutes alone with whatever is most pressing on my mind. I started running because of a desire to be a stronger person after I was the victim of an assault last year. It is the best therapy I could have found. Running, even at my pace, makes me feel better about myself.

Five days after my stunning finish at the Christmas in April run, I entered the Miles for Medicine 5K. I started the race pumped, psyched, ready to do better. About a half-mile in, all the other runners were out of sight ahead of me. I heard the unmistakable blaring of the first aid golf cart behind me. Two and a half miles later, I jogged into the finish line, last again. But I look at it like this: I got my tee-shirt, someone has to finish last. May as well be me.

But next time you're at a race, don't count on me being the one to finish last. I may be gaining on you. In the first aid golf cart, of course.

Absence of meat in dining hall is not representative

Friday, April 7, Joanna Mikuksi said that with meatless Fridays, "The decision to consume or not to consume meat is taken from me." Non-Catholics and non-practicing Catholics want to choose meat on Fridays but they cannot. It is, quite clearly, a very reasonable claim. I want something else bad in myself and I'm denied having it.

However, this is true of many other things at the dining hall. People who are accustomed to eating caviar and champagne for breakfast cannot do it at the dining hall. If you came from India or Ecuador to the U.S. you cannot eat the food you are used to eating every day. If you are from practically anywhere but the United States you are probably used to having some alcohol with your meals.

Notre Dame is a Catholic institution, that's true, and that is why it uses Catholic rules to decide on the menus. One of those rules is respect for the laws of the United States: therefore, lest a few have alcohol, the rest of us are denied a beer with lunch.

Two other rules are moderation and solidarity: caviar and exotic dishes are outlawed because they are immediately — more, those dishes would make eating at the dining hall so expensive that most couldn't afford it. And another rule is that meat (and expensive seafood) cannot be eaten during the Fridays of Lent.

While I'm not suggesting anarchy, I am advocating a release of inhibitions and orthodoxy to the point where we no longer ride the fence but take life to our own destinations.

Why must it take cliche mid-life crises for people to start questioning what they really want out of life? Look around you. Is it what you want? If yes, then I challenge you to continuously re-assess your answer to that question. If not, change it.

That's the beauty of all of this — it's elastic. Passion is a virtue that should not be missed. I guarantee you will get more out of your experiences if you put a little passion into them. It adds another dimension to life. And yeah, you'll get burned sometimes, but you'll get more out of your experiences, too.

Pick your vice: today's society offers us a multitude of personal flaws to which we can choose to succumb. You name it — addictions, hatred, envy, vanity — the list goes on. Licentiousness is as universal as are the complaints about partisanship here at Notre Dame. Just don't let your choice be indifference. It is by far the weakest form of living.

I would venture to say that most of the Notre Dame student population finds life worth living and takes action to perpetuate it. Nonetheless, the nagging surounding us is like a colorless, odorless and poisonous gas. Though you can't see or smell it, it will eventually kill you.

What I can see is that people have great ideas here, as should be expected in the thinktank that is this University. But there is altogether too much conformity to the norm — too much acceptance of policy without questioning its validity. Sure, there is a common breeds strength throughout the demographics and background of the vast majority of Donors that preserves the groupthink that has emerged. Still, there isn't a reason why people have to adhere to imposed values or standards. What may have once been appealing in the homogenus conditions that exist here, is now appalling. Too often lately I've felt like I'm walking around an Orwellian novel of preprogramming.

CONCERT REVIEW

Oakenfeld leaves crowd wanting more

By TONY COK

Oakenfeld

Paul Oakenfeld. You may be wondering who he is. For those of you who do not know, he is one of the top DJ/Producers in the world. His name is synonymous with the guise of the Perfecto label, and he is played throughout the world. He draws large crowds to his DJ sets and wherever he DJs, especially at his own club. Home, in London.

His show on March 31 was no exception. The night saw the Perfecto tour make its stop in Chicago at the Riviera, and saw them play live to get in wrist around the corner for nearly two blocks. This event was going to be huge, and it certainly was.

After suffering through the huge line fans were finally able to make it into the theater and were quickly drawn to the dance floor by Dave Ralph, Oakenfeld's opening DJ. Ralph quickly worked the crowd into a frenzy with his driving style of trance and techno music. One of the most notable — and bizarre — portions of his set was when the show's promoter walked out on stage and threw out placards with the word "Studly" on them — showing the sponsors quantity of dance music — which is largely about celebrating the moment.

Around 11:30 p.m., Oakenfeld strolled onto stage to cheers of the crowd, the crowd had built up all night in celebration of Dave Ralph's amazing set. Oakenfeld worked only to start his first record before the crowd went crazy. This energy continued throughout his two-hour set, as Oakenfeld worked the crowd into a frenzy with his ambient interludes, followed by enormous builds of smoke and music, causing the crowd to go wild once the driving beat kicked in. These builds of sound, leading to pounding trance melodies, continued throughout the night and combined with the lights, fog and abstract images on two large screens behind the stage to provide an amazing release for dancing and celebration.

A particularly enjoyable moment during Oakenfeld's set was an unbelievable rendition of a trance remix of Radiohead's "Street Spirit." It was amazing to hear such an emotional song in such a different context.

The fans left the theater, an older security attendant commented, "Now I know how you young kids stay in shape." This comment perhaps best sums up the evening, it was about the celebration of great music and the release of energy through dance and sound.

If given the opportunity to hear Paul Oakenfeld spin anywhere in the world, it is an experience that comes highly recommended. Perfecto events offer great music and an amazing atmosphere. And though you may be left very tired, you'll also be left very happy.

Chili Peppers, Foo Fighters perform solid show

By DAVE FULTON

The band's performance was nothing less than flawless, despite the fact that the band has not toured in four years and has had plagued by more problems than a decrepit go-year-old man with erectile dysfunction. While many great players try to mimic the sound and brilliance of albums recorded with Frusciante, few can really come close to the level of fresh air. The joint was buzzing with excitement.

Every once in a while an album comes around that may not get continuous play in every music fan’s discman, but definitely has the potential to be a trendsetter and hold a spot in the ‘what album most motivated your music?’ space in future music magazine interviews. So, Here’s Your Girl by Handsome Boy Modeling School, the collaborative effort of Dan “the Automator” Nakamura and production genius Prince Paul, is one of those albums.

Over the last year it has turned up on the CMJ album charts and became a permanent fixture on the hip-hop top 25 countdown.

Combining great sampling, blues and rock instrumentals, techno beats and diverse vocals, the album cannot be simply limited to the genre of rap music; however, that would not do justice to the hypnotic music of this album.

In his own right, Dan “the Automator” Nakamura has lent his production talents to names like Cibo Matto, Dr. Octagon, DJ Shadow and John Spencer’s Blas Explosion. Together these two men are Handsome Boy Modeling School, a duo that has created something truly unique.

The album starts with the song ‘Rock ‘n’ Roll I could never hip hop like this’ which sets the stage for the album and is oddly reminiscent of some of the Beastie Boys instrumentals from ‘Ill Communications.’

The second track, “Waterworld,” answers the high rap standards set by the Beastie Boys with inventive tempo changes and the smooth vocal stylings of Del the Funky Homosapien serves as the band’s hip-hop manifesto. Track 5, “Worldwater,” gains HHM’s attention — and justifiably so. A song with inventive tempo changes and the smooth vocal stylings of Del the Funky Homosapien serves as the band’s hip-hop manifesto.

The album gets most creative on the track because of its harmonica instrumentals and rhymes from Bass of De La Soul. Jazz pours out of the song ‘The Track,’ which features Eryka Badu. A first-hand account of how one can’t hide from the truth, this song will make people wonder what exactly the song is all about and wear out the repeat button on their stereo.

Prince Paul has produced in his illustrious career, Sean Lennon. Then it is made by the creative vocals of Grand Puba and the sampling in the chorus from the Three Dog Night hit ‘Old Fashioned Love Song.’

‘The Projects’ is another great track because of its harmonica instrumentals and rhymes from Bass of De La Soul. Jazz pours out of the song ‘The Track,’ which features Eryka Badu. A first-hand account of how one can’t hide from the truth, this song will make people wonder what exactly the song is all about and wear out the repeat button on their stereo.

This mood continues into the song, ‘Once Again,’ which shows the electronic music background of Dan, the Automator. This song will remind you of the Gravediggaz, and it is made by the creative vocals of Grand Puba and the sampling in the chorus from the Three Dog Night hit ‘Old Fashioned Love Song.’

This album is not without flaw, however. The songs “Metaphorical,” “Look at this Face” and “Modeling Stacks” are — at best — forgettable. “The Running Song,” featuring rising techno star Kid Koala, is downright horrible. This may not necessarily be a great closing, but the album is something that you should consider buying.

So, Here’s Your Girl has been around for about nine months now, so it is not new, but it has been unappreciated in the music world. If you like creativity in music, you should consider getting this album. It is sure to be remembered by music junkies for a long time.

Erdos then got Scott Sheldon in ground out to end the game and earn his first career save.

The Yankees, who swept a two-game series against the Rangers last week, have won 34 of the last 45 games against the Rangers since the opening game of their 1996 playoff series.

The Yankees also swept the Rangers out of the AL playoffs the last two seasons, allowing only two runs in the six games.

Mariner’s right to left field with one out in the 11th scored Derek Jeter, who led off with a single off Tim Crabtree (0-1).

Mariners had tied the game in the ninth off John Wetteland, who blew his second straight save after allowing 18 straight.

Posada led off the 10th inning for the Yankees with a solo home run off Crabtree.

Texas got the run back in the bottom half against Mariano Rivera (1-0). Royce Clayton led off with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice bunt and scored on a single by Ivan Rodriguez.

Rangers starter Oliver pitched 6 1-3 no-hit innings before Paul O’Neill’s blooper dropped in left was walked in the seventh. Bernie Williams followed with his third home run to tie the game at 2.

Oliver struck out and walked one in eight innings, but ended with his third straight no-decision.

Rafael Palmeiro’s two-out home off Mike Stanton broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning.

Yankees starter David Cone got his second straight no decision against the Rangers, leaving after allowing two runs and five hits in seven innings.

Blue Jays 7, Angels 3

Kelvim Escobar pitched eight strong innings as Toronto recovered from its worst pitching weekend ever to beat the Anaheim Angels.

Brad阜miller hit a grand slam and Raul Mondesi hit a solo home for the Blue Jays, who snapped a three-game skid.

Toronto allowed 47 runs in three games sweep by the Seattle Mariners over the weekend — the most runs allowed in any six-game stretch in team history.

Manager Bob Boone fielded a "heated" pitchers only meeting before the game and Escobar (1-2) got the message.

The 24-year-old southpaw after swallowing a first-inning based jam on Garret Anderson’s double play grounder. He allowed eight hits and two walks.

Mondesi, who went 2-for-4 with two runs scored, homered off Mark Peikiewicz in the eighth inning to give Toronto a 3-1 lead. After Peikiewicz loaded the bases, Lou Pote relieved and gave up Fuller’s second career grand slam.

Anaheim starter Ramon Ortiz (1-1) balked in a run with the bases loaded in the fifth inning.

A base running mistake cost Anaheim a chance to take the lead in the sixth inning.

After Mo Vaughn led off with a double, Anderson hit what looked to be an HBI single, but Vaughn missed the bag at third. After the ball was thrown back into the infield, Escobar threw to third baseman Tony Batista for the out.

Anaheim manager Mike Scioscia ran from the dugout to argue with third base umpire Rick Reed, but fled pointed to the dirt where Vaughn’s foot prints were. Scioscia immediately jogged back to his seat.

Toronto took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the sixth on consecutive doubles by Mondesi and Carlos Delgado.

Ortiz, pitching with a slight tear in his pitching shoulder, allowed two runs and five hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Owners approve sale of Royals to Glass for $96 million

Baseball owners voted unanimously Monday to approve the $96 million sale of the Kansas City Royals to team chairman David Glass.

Glass took over as Royals chairman in September 1993, shortly after the death of founding owner Ewing Kauffman. "It's been a long time coming," Glass said.

Under Kauffman's succession plan, the team was offered for sale to Kansas City-area individuals and companies, with the money earmarked for charity.

"Hopefully, somewhere, David, Ewing Kauffman is as happy as we are with David Glass getting control of the Royals," commissioner Bud Selig told Glass at a post-meeting news conference. "I really feel on behalf of baseball today a sense of fulfillment. It's a very happy day for me personally, for major league baseball, for people in Kansas City."

Last September, baseball owners refused to approve a proposed $75 million purchase by New York lawyer Miles Preston. Glass, the former chief executive officer of Wal-Mart Stores Inc., then re-entered the bidding. He said the Royals will be run a little differently once he's the owner, not just the chairman.

"We probably have fewer dollars committed beyond this year than any other team in baseball," he said. "That was sort of deluding for the person who owns the team so they can make that decision."

Before discussing realignment and the Royals, owners had a bigger concern Monday. "What's the market doing?" more than one asked in the hallway.

It immediately became clear there would be no vote on realignment until June at the earliest.

Selig has floated a plan that would shift Arizona from the NL West to the AL West and move Tampa Bay from the AL East to the National League. In addition, it's possible the AL could have four teams in the West and East, but six in the Central. And, the NL could junk the wild card and go to four four-team divisions.

Prospects of a six-team AL Central has caused most of the controversy. "It makes no sense," said Herman, whose team would be in that division. "If everybody else has four, why shouldn't I have four? Just use your common sense. That doesn't always work in baseball."

Some owners don't want to get rid of the wild card in the NL because it keeps more teams in contention until late in the season.
Men's Varsity 4 takes gold medal

Special to The Observer

Competing in the Southern Intercollegiate Rowing Association Championships at Oak Ridge, Tenn., the men's rowing club distinguished itself in all events. The Varsity 4 defeated 23 other teams to capture the gold medal with a time of 6:57. Georgia Tech, UTC, Virginia, Marquette and Texas followed in that order. The Irish women advanced in the semifinals where they won a lane to compete in the Petite finals.

In the finals, the Irish placed fourth with a time of 6:40. less than three seconds behind champion Emory's 6:37.2. The V 4 boat advanced to the final heat, where they won the bronze medal, finishing behind Virginia and UTC, and ahead of Purdue and Clemson.

This weekend, the Irish will compete in the Midwest Championships at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

The men's and women's teams both advanced to the Midwest Regionals when the men captured the Sectional Championships and the women placed second. The men swept the field, defeating U. Chicago, 13-0; Russ Holtman, 13-1; Northwestern, 13-8; and Ball State, 13-9 to advance to the quarterfinals. In the quarterfinals, Brian Richardson's 70 yard scoring back to Frank Helgesen highlighted a 13-8 victory over Northern Illinois. Chris Fuch and Mike Shiel performed notably throughout the tournament, including the repeat 13-8 win over Northwestern in the semifinals. In the finals, the Irish jumped out of Illinois, 13-6, behind the standout play of David Pickett.

The women opened with their first shutout of the season, 13-0 over Bradley, as Rachel Kelly and Angela Bauer set the tone for the weekend with great play. After dropping the second game to Northwestern 12-8, the Irish rebounded with a 9-4 win over rival Purdue, as Lois Donovan, Ali Hedrick and Monira Kershner starred in the win.

After defeating Chicago 13-4, the club fell to eventual champion Illinois. Needing a win in its final contest, the Irish rode the zone defense of Laura Banasyuk, Mia Steffen and Jenny Zollmann to defeat Indiana 10-9.

Women's Water Polo

Stepping up in play against Big 10 competition, including some varsity programs, the club not only distinguished itself with competitive play throughout the weekend, but scored upset victories over both Northwestern and Illinois in the Midwest Regionals. The Irish lost the opening two rounds to eventual champion Indiana, 19-7, and third place finisher Michigan State, 7-2.

Undaunted, the Irish bounced back with a dramatic 11-8 overtime win over Illinois, and edged Northwestern, 5-4 to place fifth in the tournament, ahead of Ohio State and Wisconsin. Val Simone garnered honorable mention honors in the all-tournament team.

Cycling

Pat Coad and Jeff Smith of the Cycling Club distinguished themselves at the time trials held in Indianapolis at DePauw University. The two Irish racers finished among the top 40 in 11th and 16th respectively. This weekend, Indiana will host the Regional Road Race Championships.

Kenyan Lagat, Ndereba race to victory in Boston

The Boston Marathon

Associated Press

First, it was the Kenyan men. Now, the women are winning the Boston Marathon.

Kenya’s dominance in Boston extended to a record 10 consecutive victories Monday, as Elijah Lagat outkicked Ethiopia’s Gezahenge Abera and Kenya’s Moses Tanui in the closest finish in the race’s 104-year history.

Lagat and Abers were both timed in 2 hours, 9 minutes, 47 seconds, with Tanui three seconds back.

The women’s racing wasn’t as close but it was still the same: A Kenyan wearing the laurel wreath.

Catherine Ndereba, competing in only her third marathon, pulled away in the final mile and became the first Kenyan woman, at 2:26:11. Ndereba, a 27-year-old mother of a 2-year-old girl, was not among the leaders early but began reeling them in after the halfway point en route to her first marathon victory.

“I had confidence that I was going to do the last half in less than 73 minutes,” she said. “I have a best time of 69 minutes for the half-marathon. I had confidence I could do it in 1:10.”

Nevertheless, Ndereba, who was sixth in her Boston debut last year and second at New York in November, appeared Tanui would go on to his third victory.

But Lagat was not to be denied, and his final surge enabled him to edge the charging Abera as Tanui faded.

Abera, running on his 22nd birthday, contested the Kenyans were kicking and pushing him.

“I can’t say it was intentional,” he said, “but it was a strain on my muscles.”

Tanui, the most experienced runner in the men’s elite field, admitted he made his move too early.

“Everybody gets to make a mistake, and that was my mistake,” the 34-year-old Kenyan said. “I felt strong at the end, but I was too nervous.”

The victory was the third of Lagat’s career. He won the 2001 Berlin Marathon in a career-best 2:07:41 and the 1998 Prague Marathon at 2:08:52. In his previous marathon, he finished sixth at New York in November.

Overall, Kenyans took seven of the top 10 places. Their winning streak began in 1991 with Ibrahim Hussein. The last non-Kenyan winner was Seoul Olympic champion Gerdino Bordin of Italy in 1990.

Jamie Hibell, of Bethlehem, Pa., was the top American finisher, arriving 24th with a time of 2:32:09.

Make that sensational. Staying with the lead pack throughout the race that was slowed by headwinds and cold, the persistent Lagat came into the final stretch locked in a dramatic duel with Abera and Tanui, the 1996 and 1998 winners.

The three exchanged the lead a couple of times, and with less than a half-mile remaining, it appeared Tanui would go on to his third victory.

But Lagat was not to be denied, and his final surge enabled him to edge the charging Abera as Tanui faded.

The Irish sent a small squad to the meet. Tim Kehler finished third in the 3,000 meter steeplechase, posting a time of 8:51.54. Watson is now the eighth-ranked runner in that event. Matt Thompson threw 171 feet 6 inches in the discus and for the women, freshman Tameisha King notched a second place finish in the long jump with a mark of 19-9.

Besides Mt. SAC, some Irish athletes took part in the Pomona-Pitzer Invite at Pomona College on Friday. In that meet Liz Grow turned in an excellent performance in the 400 meters, setting a personal best with her NCAA provisional qualifying time of 53.35 seconds. The time was also the second fastest in school history. Freshman Jamie Volkmer earned a pair of fourth place finishes in the women’s pole vault (10-11 3/4) and women’s triple jump (37-6 3/4). Thompson also competed in Pomona, placing fourth in the hammer with a throw of 173-7.

"Some of [the times and distances] were very good," Plane said. "Liz Grow qualified, I’m very pleased with Matt Thompson in the discus and the hammer. Luke Watson ran an 8:51 [in the 3,000 meter steeplechase], he’s pretty solid."

"Our women are pretty solid, and for us the goal now is to be Big East [Championships]. Our men traditionally have been in the top three, so we’d surely like to replicate that."

Honoring Women of Notre Dame

The Women’s Resource Center is pleased to honor

Alyssa Hellrung for her outstanding contribution to the community and the inspiration with which she enhances so many lives.

Here is her story:

Alyssa was born in 1972 in Chicago, Illinois, one of the oldest of five children. Alyssa grew up in a very liberal atmosphere for gay, lesbian, and bisexual students. By committing herself to honesty from the moment she came here as a first-year student, she has been a role model for gay and lesbian and bisexual students, a leader in gaining resources and support form the administration, and a leader among the gay and lesbian student community. She has given interviews and talks to students and colleagues in the hope that others may also come forward to fight homophobia. She has made it her responsibility to fight against homophobia wherever and whenever it is encountered.

I was a senior English and folder English major from Illinois. When I lived on campus in my first year, I did not know one person with whom I could be honest or in my interactions with people. I chose Notre Dame because of that encounter and because I wanted to study as a junior where I would see a fantastic education and where I would be involved in a spectacular band program. The fact that I was raised in a very liberally-atmosphere and was not the only person to share that atmosphere during my junior and senior years, made the decision to attend Notre Dame a no-brainer during the first few weeks of my first year that this school was more open than they had ever been imagined.

As my freshman year wore on, I made many friends. I took many classes and I became a member of the Notre Dame Band, Concert and Oratory Society. I was honored. However, the homophobic atmosphere and by the fact that there seemed to be only a few other homosexuals present on campus, I found myself to be isolated and was torn between my desire to be part of the Notre Dame community and the wish to make that part of myself. While I was growing up, I could not be open in the same society. During my freshman year, I made many friends and I became a member of the Notre Dame Band, Concert and Oratory Society. I was honored. However, the homophobic atmosphere and by the fact that there seemed to be only a few other homosexuals present on campus, I found myself to be isolated and was torn between my desire to be part of the Notre Dame community and the wish to make that part of myself. While I was growing up, I could not be open in the language that I grew up with.

Thanks for your help in making me realize that I could never be open in the language that I grew up with. During my junior year, I met Alyssa and I decided to make Notre Dame a more open, a welcoming place. She has always been a leader in gaining resources and support from the administration, and a leader among the gay and lesbian community. She has given interviews and talks to students and colleagues in the hope that others may also come forward to fight homophobia wherever and whenever it is encountered.

When I heard the earlist asking for nominations for Women of Notre Dame, my first thought was: Alyssa Hellrung. Over the past four years, Alyssa has single handedly moved mountains at this school, making it safer and more welcoming community for gay, lesbian, bisexual and questioning student. She provided a supportive atmosphere for so many young and troubled gay students, always with a comforting shoulder and a listening ear, and section talks, using her story as a jumping off point for discussion and questions. She is always honest, always open, always kind... Alyssa came to her role as an activist by accident of coming to ND, and has blossomed, always balancing the need for political change with the greater need for change of the mind and heart. She has not only supported and guided many young gay students, but also educated and been an upstanding representative of our community to the straight student: living honestly and with dignity and courage. She is truly a Great Woman of Notre Dame." - Sheila Provencer

No. 10 Hit Squad advances with 21-15 victory

By KATHLEEN O'BRIEN
Assoc. Sports Editor

The "X-factor" helped No. 10 Hit Squad perform a number on its opponent Amazing Grace and Chuck to earn a spot in the round of 12 in Bookstore Basketball, putting it away 21-15 Monday.

Hit Squad benefits from the athleticism of three former varsity football players in Joe Ferrer, Raki Nelson and Eric Chappell, round out by the basketball skills of Trevor Morris and Chris Kitalong.

The team's height and physical fitness held off Pat Mitchell, Chuck Kavanagh, Luke Schloegel, Mike Romero and John Lenocker of Amazing Grace and Chuck.

"Our diet of beer and cigarettes did not prepare us for their athleticism," Schloegel said.

"I don't get scored on. I told my players before the game that I don't get scored on, and I didn't," Ferrer said. "I want to guard the best man. I'm starting down that track right now."

Sullivan, Brian Ostick, Andy Bozelli, Pat O'Brien and Evan Mahler — defended their No. 26 ranking. All five guys played in high school, and most played together in inter-hall basketball.

"We've been training and working hard for this tournament," Sullivan said.

Down the stretch, Smell the Glove, which consists of Jeff Busick, Matt Theilen, Tim Wagstaff, Eric Anderson and Mike Cretella, only managed to score three points.

The Sorin Hall residents got buckets from Wagstaff, Anderson and Busick in the second half, but they were unable to match the shooting ability of Please Call Me Bosephus.

"We just work it around and try to shoot a lot," Sullivan said. "We try to get it into our 25-year-old center. He's a freshman though."

Please Call Me Bosephus moved on to the round of 64 with the victory.

Jackson drafted by Broncos in seventh round

+ Four Notre Dame players sign free agent contracts

By BRIAN KESSLER
Assistant Sports Editor

If seven wasn't Jarious Jackson's favorite number, it probably is now.

Jackson was the only Irish player drafted this weekend, but other Irish players are looking to pick up free agent contracts.

"I thought he knows it's a great situation for him," Rogers said. "He's excited to go to Denver where they have had good success over the past few years. He'll be working with a quality coaching staff, winning coordinator Kevin Rogers will be pleased with how quickly he picks things up, his arm strength and what a quality guy he is."

Jackson threw for more than 4,800 yards and 34 touchdowns as a two-year starter for the Irish. Last season, he completed 184 of 316 passes for a school-record 2,753 yards.

Jackson was the only Irish player drafted this weekend, but other Irish players are looking to pick up free agent contracts. "I'm excited for him," offensive coordinator Kevin Rogers said. "He's going to a great organization and it's a situation where he can legitimately go in and compete for a job."

Jackson, a native of Tupelo, Miss., was the 11th quarterback taken in the draft and the 214th overall selection. Georgia Tech's Joe Hamilton was the only quarterback selected after Jackson.

After the season, the Broncos released Bubby Brister and lost Chris Miller to retirement. Former Michigan quarterback Brian Griese is expected to start for Denver and recent acquisition Gus Frerotte will most likely be penciled in as the backup, but the third string job is wide open.

"They are a little unsettled at the third quarterback spot, so it's a great opportunity for him," Rogers said. "I think they'll be impressed with him too. They will be pleased with how quickly he picks things up, his arm strength and what a quality guy he is."

Jackson's favorite number, 6, probably is now.

Junior Ryan Shay was the top collegiate and American finisher in the 10,000 meter race at this weekend's Mt. SAC Relays. Shay is now ranked 10th in the world in the 10,000.

"There's really not much pressure," Shay said of his high ranking. "On the collegiate scene I'm still making a name for myself. I guess every race there's a little pressure, but I'd like to think the pressure's on the other runner.

Ryan Shay was planning on running the 5,000 meters at the Mt. SAC Relays in Walnut, Calif. this weekend, but after talking with head coach Joe Plano, decided to enter the 10,000 meter race instead. "Good thing he changed his mind."

Shay set a personal best, broke Ron Markezich's 1990 school record of 28.44.91, finished as the top collegiate and American runner and qualified provisionally for the Olympic trials.

"The highlight of Mt. SAC I would have to be Ryan Shay," Plano said. "He's a pretty dedicated character. I'm not surprised he qualified because nobody works harder than him."

"Conditions were really good in Mt. SAC, basically no wind at all, 40 degrees, perfect for a 10,000," Shay said. "I had a feeling I was going to run well based on workouts during the week. Qualifying for the Olympic Trials was one of my goals for the season."

Shay is now ranked second among collegiate runners in the 10,000.

"There's really not much pressure," Shay said of his high ranking. "On the collegiate scene I'm still making a name for myself. I guess every race there's a little pressure, but I'd like to think the pressure's on the other runner.
