St. Edward’s Day.

The festival of St. Edward, the patronal feast of our Very Rev. Superior General, Father Sorin, was celebrated this year with that sincere pleasure which has for many years characterized St. Edward’s Day at Notre Dame.

The universal reverence and esteem entertained at Notre Dame for its venerable founder is a sufficient guarantee that each one concerned in the entertainment did his utmost to render it pleasing and successful. Hence we need not stop to describe the earnestness with which all set themselves to the work of preparation, but come at once to the entertainment itself.

Promptly at seven o’clock on the evening of the 12th, all the young gentlemen destined to execute the programme published in The Scholastic last week were in their proper places. The audience, composed of the Students, the Faculty, the Community, and a large number of friends who had come to add by their presence to the pleasures of the evening, were comfortably seated, when the Very Rev. Father General, the guest of the evening, entered, accompanied by the Very Rev. Father Provincial and the Rev. President of the University.

Their entrance was the signal for the opening march by the Band, which astonished all present by the correctness and beauty of their playing, notwithstanding the short time which they had had for preparation. The Orchestra followed, as announced in the programme, and, while giving pleasure to all, fully justified their reputation for musical ability.

Then followed the addresses, some of which we give below, regretting that the size of our little paper will not justify us in reproducing all:

Latin Address.

I.

Christiadum totus in orbe coetns
Landibus condamat; hie est triumphus
Regis hujus nobilis, omnis in quo
Anglia gaudet.

II.

Multa pro regno populoque gealt
At decus tanta vacuum repelleas,
Et fidem extendens ubique, advolavit
Limina cell.

III.

Hae die lati, neque Regis, ista
In domo, festum celebrant, amat
Sed patris ducent pueri, atque corde
Carmina singunt.

IV.

Quid prius dicam, memorum parentis
Tacita quae solvit regionis has in
Parte, nil majus potest applicari
Nobilus nil.

V.

Concinnam quid gloria semper adstat,
Fonsque laudum juxta tibi tributus,
Hae ! parent sunt gaudia nostra magna
Magnaque dona.

VI.

Adspice, sedes, opus hoc tum fuit
Tempora haec felices nos habere
Comitumur, nos tibi gratiasoque
Reditimus inas.

VII.

Nes Deus corde etque animo rogamus
Festa patris nostri iterare cari
Dicere et die cum veneracione
Nomen Edvardi.

Address from the Senior Department.

Very Rev. Father General: T, E, H.

One thing, since time began,
One thing alone is sought by man:
’Tis, to be happy if he can.

But this, in grief or health,
But this, in poverty or wealth,
But this he seeks, in work or stealth.

In bondage or in power,
When fortunes smile, or when they lower,
This craving fills up every hour.

Alike in peace or war,
By sea or land, by flood or fire,
We still pursue our grand desire.

And so, in wealth, power, fame,
Or sought of high or lowly name,
’Tis happiness is still our aim;

Our object ever this:
By paths where good or evil is,
To reach the topmost height of bliss.

Right well, then, may we ask,
How we shall compass our high task,
And in this calm, bright sunshine bask!

A thousand answers rise,
Each glistening before our eyes
With promises of what we prize.
That Heaven will spare those locks now gray,
Who said: Behold, this one thing do.
And fame that to all time endures.

"The meed for which the worldling lives.
Which life nor death can e'er destroy?
A Voice, and nothing to proclaim?

At-which all sordid natures stare,
For which all men have ever striven.
To give our hearts that steadfast joy
That Heaven's more perfect joy begun,
To full perfection shall be brought.

And power that all you've done secures.
With that for which the saintly strives.
And your life prolong to the utmost day.

Made bright by Heaven's eternal Sun.
Be Heaven's more perfect joy begun,
To full perfection shall be brought.

"Where are you going so fast, Mr. Smith?" "Home, sir, home. Don't detain me. I've just bought my wife a new bonnet, and I want to get it home before the fashion changes."

"M."
The Bridge of Sighs.

The Bridge of Sighs connects the palace with the public prison. The latter was erected in 1589, and the bridge in 1591. A single arch supports the structure, which connects the second story of the palace with the second story of the prison. It is simply a corridor divided by a partition into two narrow halls, through one of which political prisoners were conducted to imprisonment, while the common criminals passed through the other. Externally the Bridge of Sighs has no particular architectural merit. It has acquired a gloomy notoriety from its name, and from the prevailing impression that the man who traversed it from the palace to the dungeon never returned. This is in part romance, but for the significant reason that this palace, unrivalled in its elegance, contained gloomier dungeons within its glittering walls than the other prison could parallel. The dungeons for political and criminal prisoners awaiting execution—for this distinction is represented in the very architecture of the palace—were quite near the entrance to the Bridge of Sighs. There are two tiers of these dungeons, one above the other, consisting of ten each, with a floor between, constructed of heavy stone masonry. Those for criminals were above, and those for political offenders were below. They are arranged in blocks, being end to end. A narrow, unlighted hall passes around three sides, the dungeons being entered through a low arched opening from the two halls opposite each other. After passing through this opening with a torch to light the chamber, the visitor finds himself in a room enclosed by massive stone walls, twelve feet long, eight feet wide, and eight or nine feet high, with an arched ceiling. The floors are of cement, hardened into stone, and bare of all furniture save a stone pillow set in the floor. Every dungeon repeats the cool, inhuman mockery of a pretended regard for the necessities of the prisoners. A common paving-stone, two feet long, fifteen inches above the floor, was the pillow offered by the State, in the dark days of the Venetian aristocracy, to political as well as criminal offenders. Two Dogs, at least—Marino Faliero, in his eightyeth year, and Antonio Foscarini—were brought to the bitter experience both of the dungeon and of the stone pillow. At the side of the door there is a small round opening through the wall for the introduction of food. The only light was through this opening, and from a small exterior window at the end of the chamber, a narrow hall, which intersected the dungeons at one angle. The darkness was substantially total. In this short hall the prisoners were executed at midnight—the political by beheading, and the criminal by strangulation. On the left, and in front of the Bridge of Sighs, is the water portal of the palace. A double doorway, each barred with bronze doors, gives admission to a broad hall which passes through to the palace court. It was at this gate that the Doge embarked in the Bucentaur, when he went forth in state to the annual ceremony of wedding, with a ring, the Adriatic—Catholic Reflector.

A SHABBILY dressed genius being treated disrespectfully by strangers, was asked why he didn't resent it. "It was my rusty old hat and coat that were slighted, and not myself," he replied. "If they choose to take it up and make a fuss about it they may, but I shall have nothing to do with it."

The American people are, indeed, a reading people, otherwise the thousands of papers and periodicals issued from the American press would soon die for want of support. Reading has become a passion with us (I mean us Americans) and like all other passions over-indulged it naturally diminishes that delicacy of taste which would otherwise prompt us to be choice in our selection of reading-matter.

In fact the reading passion has obtained such control over us that we no longer stop to inquire whether the book or paper which we are perusing does or does not contain proper food for the mind; all we seem to crave for is "something to read."

In this state of affairs we eagerly grasp at anything in print, as an old toper who may once have been very particular about the quality of his liquor, but who now, from force of habit and a growing desire for stimulants, swallows the vilest stuff that may be offered him. And as the manufacturers of stimulating drinks take advantage of the general carelessness about quality, to palm off their adulterated and poisonous liquors, for good wine, brandy, etc., so also the manufacturers of popular literature take advantage of the cravings of the people for reading-matter, to furnish them a cheap, useless, and often corrupting supply of trash with the high-sounding title of "Literature for the million," "Reading-matter for the people," and other such.

This is true especially of a certain class of papers, whose object it would seem to be to enervate the mind to such a degree that it will crave for food, and at the same time be incapable of feeding on anything more solid or wholesome than this sickly and even poisonous stuff. We refer, of course, to that class of papers whose principal matter consists of nonsensical love stories, rendered still more sickening by a profusion of overdrawn illustrations, which only serve to fill the mind with unreal fancies, and render it useless.

Young men, beware of such reading! shun it as you would a deadly enemy! It can, at best, only please the imagination for a time, while it withdrawing the higher faculties of the mind from serious thought, thus debilitating the mind itself. It wastes your precious time and prevents you from fitting yourselves as you should for a life of usefulness.

Spondoolics.

A young hopeful at one of our leading Colleges wrote a letter home, requesting his father to send him some "stamps;" the kind father responded at once, and enclosed a good supply of postage stamps. Hopeful wrote a second letter, stating that he did not want postage stamps—what he wanted was "spondoolics." The father, fearing to make another mistake, wrote to the President of the College thus: "My son wishes me to send him some spondoolics; I do not find any for sale in this place, and charge to my account." The President sent the boy an order on the treasurer for some pocket money.

"CHEEK" is not a mark of gentlemanliness.

Notes by the Way.

PROF. MACAFFERTY's method of teaching is meeting with great success.

Drawing will soon be taught to all the students of the Junior Department. It is justly regarded as an essential branch of education.

Dr. Lundy has a small glass tube, about two inches long, and he declares that he can put sixty minims into it. What say the Minims?

Prof. Von Wellner is now comfortably located in Room No. 12, with his Class of Painting. We saw the outline sketches of some fine pictures last Wednesday, and certainly anticipate success for some, if not all, of the young artists.

The carriage-drive which was to be made along the shore of St. Joseph's Lake is indefinitely postponed. A road will be made for the use of promenaders where the intended drive was to be. Thus the seclusion of our lakes will not be disturbed.

The new Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, in course of erection here, will be two hundred and forty-five feet long when completed. The masons are busy at work on the massive tower, which is to receive the large bell and chimes.

It is intended to bring out the opera of La Dame Blanche some time during April or May next. The opera has been so arranged that it can be partly sung and partly acted by male characters. Its new name is "The White Knight." Vocalists and such as have good voices are in demand.

Personal.

Mr. James E. McBride, of '68, is now practicing law at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Mr. E. B. Brown, of '65, is on the ticket for Presidential Elector for the Northern District of Ohio.

Mr. J. J. Wilson, one of our Commercial graduates in '69, is now in business in Trenton, New Jersey.

Rev. J. R. Dinnen, of Oxford, Indiana, paid us a flying visit this week. We were delighted to see him.

Rev. P. P. Cooney has returned from a short visit to Watertown. He is preparing for an extensive tour in Europe.

Mr. Francis Jennings, an old student of Notre Dame, was elected Assessor for Clay township at the late elections.

Rev. D. J. Spillard, of South Bend, cheered us by his genial presence one day during this week. We are always glad to see him.

We were rejoiced by the receipt of a letter from Rev. Father Colovin, now residing in Watertown. He reports all well and prosperous.

Mr. J. A. O'Reilly, LL.B., of '68, is practicing law in Reading, Pennsylvania, and has been actively engaged in the late political campaign.

We receive frequent calls from Rev. Father Vagner, chaplain at St. Mary's. The only fault we find with them is that they are always too short.

Mr. Philip Miller, County Treasurer of St. Joseph County, accompanied by his lady, paid us a short visit on the 12th. His many friends at Notre Dame were glad to see him, and doubly rejoiced to find him in good health and spirits.

Roll of Honor.

[Under this head are given each week the names of those students whose conduct was in every respect satisfactory during the week preceding the given date.]

ST. CECILIA PHILOMATHEAN ASSOCIATION.

The 3rd regular meeting took place Sept. 26. At this meeting Meeuw, Whitaker and Graves presented themselves for membership, and after reading their compositions they were unanimously elected members. This over, Rev. Father Lennomer, Rev. M. Tooby, Prof. McAffiti, and Brothers Celestine, Camillus, Paul, Mr. T. O'Mahony, Mr. J. Edwards, and the Dramatic Association of the Senior department entered, and when they had taken their seats Master C. Berdel arose and delivered a declamation in his usual happy manner; he was followed by Masters C. and W. Dodge. After this, Rev. Father Lennomer introduced Prof. McAfftrey, who gave a very interesting and instructive reading.

In the report of the 1st regular meeting we forgot to mention the following officers:

Dramatical Instructor—Prof. A. J. Stage.
Judge of Moot Court—Prof. L. G. Tong.
Manager—Mr. James Edwards.
Clerk of Moot Court—J. Langenderfer.

J. Quill, Cor. Sec.

At Valley Stream, Long Island, a man fell between two trains of cars, in attempting to jump from one to the other. With the exception of a slight contusion he was unharmed. When some of the railroad employes stooped to pick him up, he waved them off, saying, "I can pick up my own corpse."
Please Pay Attention.

All mail matter intended for persons residing at Notre Dame should be addressed simply to Notre Dame, Ind. Many mistakes have occurred and daily do occur, in consequence of addressing the letters, etc., to "Notre Dame University," or to "South Bend," or "Notre Dame, near South Bend." Remember, then, the proper address is simply "Notre Dame, Ind.," as it is by that name our post-office is known.

A doctor was asked to dance the "Lancers," he declined, but expressed his willingness to lance the dancers.
"Would you take the last cent a feller has for a glass of soda water?" asked a rugged newsboy of the keeper of a street fountain. "Yes, I would," said the hard-hearted and unthinking vender of the cooling beverage; whereupon the newsboy pulled out the cent, and got the soda.

GARDENING FOR LADIES.—Make your bed in the morning; sew buttons on your husband's shirt; do not rake any grievances; protect the young and tender branches of your family; plant a smile of good-temper on your face, and carefully root out all angry feelings, and expect a good crop of happiness.

In Memoriam.

The sudden death of Mother Mary of St. Eusebia, second assistant superior of the Sisters of the Holy Cross, and Prefect of Studies, has created deep feelings of profound sorrow. She was, indeed, taken from us in the midst of her usefulness, for she fulfilled her ordinary duties to within thirty-six hours of her death with her characteristic energy and fidelity.

The faithful, conscientious, efficient manner in which she discharged the responsible duties of Prefect of Religion and Studies had won for her the confidence, esteem and affection of all those over whom she was placed.

Her funeral, on the 10th, at 9 a. m. was attended by all the pupils; the Children of Mary and the members of the Rosary Society had also assisted at the Community Mass at six o'clock and approached the Holy Communion, thus giving the most edifying proof of their loving, grateful remembrance.

Her former pupils now love to recall the lessons of piety and wisdom she has often given them and affectionately linger over the beautiful memories that cluster around their association with the dear departed one.

The few last days previous to her illness were devoted to the religious duties belonging to her office as the Festival of the "Holy Rosary" the first Sunday in October, was to be prepared for and celebrated by the members of that Confraternity. Thus she unknowingly made a most fervent, special preparation for death. She was heard to remark that she was thankful for having such an opportunity for spending several hours before the Blessed Sacrament as it gave her time to make the special preparation for death that (according to the rule) is to be made on the first Sunday of every month. These are, indeed, precious memories for those who love her. May her soul rest in peace.

A tender-hearted omnibus driver on the Fifth Avenue line says he hates to run over a person; he thinks it hurts the springs.

A parsonous merchant, at a fashionable dinner the other day, astonished the company, on the appearance of the fifth course, laying down his knife and fork and exclaiming, "See here, I'll take the rest of this dinner out in money!"

"Now, John, suppose there's a load of hay one side of a river and a jackass on the other side, and no bridge, and the river's too wide to swim, how can the jackass get to the hay?" "I give it up." "Well, that's just what the other jackass did."

Advertise in The Scholastic.

We have concluded to take a limited number of choice advertisements this year, should our business friends conclude to patronize us in this department.

This arrangement, however, will not interfere with the reading matter, as we propose printing the advertisements on a separate sheet, to serve as a cover to the present Scholasticae. This will be done as soon as a sufficient number of advertisements are secured.

ADVERTISING RATES. 1 page 60 cents; 11 column 30 first month. 1 column 90 cents; 11 column 45 first month.

Advertisements for a shorter time than one year, at proportionate rates. Address Rev. A. LEMONNIER, C.S.C., President.
