Smile Whenever You Can.

When things don't go to suit you,
And the world seems upside down,
Don't waste your time in fretting,
But drive away that frown.
Since life is oft perplexing,
'Tis much the wisest plan
To bear all trials bravely,
And smile whene'er you can.

Why should you dread to-morrow,
And thus despoil to-day?
For when you borrow trouble
You always have to pay.

It is a good old maxim,
"Which should be often preached:
"Don't cross the bridge before you
Until the bridge is reached."

You might be spared much sighing,
If you would keep in mind
The thought that good and evil
Are always here combined.

And though you roll in wealth
You may miss from your casket
That precious jewel—health.

And though you're strong and sturdy,
You may have an empty purse;
(And earth has many trials
Which I consider worse!)

But whether joy or sorrow
Fill up your mortal span,
'Twill make your pathway brighter
To smile whene'er you can.

Notre Dame Geographic Expedition.

Their Arrival at Halifax, N. S.—Interesting Account of their Travels.—Scenes along the Route.

HALIFAX, N. S., October 6, 1872.

EDITOR SCHOLASTIC: When leaving the quiet retreats of Notre Dame on an extended tour of the world, we promised to keep you well posted, and hence our numerous friends, as to our progress and success.

This is our earliest opportunity of fulfilling that promise and we therefore eagerly take advantage of it. But time and space will not permit us to lay an extended account of our first voyage before your readers. So we will proceed rapidly on.

Leaving Notre Dame on the 8th of September, a joyous, happy company of forty, we directed our course to Chicago, to meet there our steamer, chartered for us through the kindness of Prof. L—. Arriving in that recently scorched city, we dispatched Messrs. Keenan and Karst to ascertain if all things were ready for our embarkation.

They soon returned, reporting in the affirmative, and before an hour and a half had elapsed we were aboard the Hiawatha, bound for Halifax.

The weather was in every respect propitious, giving us every assurance of a prosperous voyage and a pleasant time generally.

Gleaming gaily over the smooth waters of Lake Michigan, we steamed through the Straits of Mackinaw into Lake Huron, taking only a passing glance at Bois Blanc Island, in the distance.

About this time a gentle gale was blowing from the northwest, causing Huron's waters to be somewhat agitated, much to the alarm of certain members of the company, who declared they would "leave off" at the next stopping place. We kept steadily on however, and passing into St. Clair River, through the lake of the same name, were not long in reaching Detroit. Here we laid in a supply of wood and provisions and spent sometime in viewing the city, but more especially the work of the tunnel under the river, which is now being hastened forward. Time prevents us from doing justice to this city.

We are aboard again, and on the waters of Lake Erie, heading for Buffalo.

History pictured to our imagination the signal victory of Commodore Perry, achieved on the 10th of September, 1813, which so much paralyzed the power of Great Britain upon our lakes.

On the morning of the 21st we arrived at Buffalo. Many being anxious to witness the most magnificent cataract in the world, took the cars on the Western Central Railroad, and after a ride of twenty-two miles came in view of the falls, crossing the suspension bridge, two miles further down.

After partaking of a bountiful repast at the Spencer, and then spending sometime admiring this display of the grandeur of nature, all returned on the evening train; and then partaking of a splendid supper served up by "mine host" of the mansion, proceeded to our boat and were soon moving through the Welland Canal. A day and a half riding over Ontario brought us to the St. Lawrence. On the evening of the 24th the glistening lights of Montreal were discernible in the distance. At dusk the following day we passed Quebec, not, however, without a view of its strong fortress—the Gibraltar of America.

After a part of three days had elapsed, Messrs. Gillen and Wallace discovered that our latitude and longitude placed us in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Their calculations
Self-Esteem

Self-esteem is a general term expressing the value which a man sets upon himself. This value may be just or it may be unjust; that is, it may be in accordance with the real worth of the individual, or it may be either greater or less than his real worth.

When one's self-esteem is just, it adds dignity to the man, and places him in a position, so far as individual disposition is concerned, to do the greatest amount of good which he is capable. By this we mean that he is neither so diffident as to fear undertaking anything which he is qualified by nature or training to perform successfully, nor so presumptuous as to undertake that which exceeds his natural or acquired ability.

On the other hand when one's self-esteem is unjust, it renders the man either cowardly or rash and presumptuous. In the first case, the man with too little self-esteem allows those talents and powers with which nature has endowed him, to waste away in inaction because he fears to bring them into use, and thus he fails to accomplish the good which he was destined to do. In the second case he overtasks his natural powers, by undertaking things above his strength, and thus not only neglects that work for which he is by nature qualified, but also exposes himself to certain failure by undertaking that which he is unable to accomplish. This of course is the case only when the man with too great self-esteem actually undertakes something above his strength.

In the great majority of cases, however, the man who esteems himself above that which is in him, will rather waste his time telling what he can do, or what he is going to do, and criticizing others who are quietly doing that which he himself would be utterly incapable of doing even should he undertake it.

It is evident that such persons not only waste the talent or ability which they do possess, but render themselves supremely ridiculous in the eyes of all who know that their ability does not at all tally with their boastings, and that their criticism of others is nothing more nor less than arrogant presumption on their part, based upon vanity, not upon sound judgment.

True merit and real ability will make themselves felt rather than heard. If a man possesses ability and uses it judiciously he will be appreciated, even though he should fail to win that public applause which the world calls fame. He will be loved and respected by those whom he has benefited, and will be happy in the consciousness that he has done well the work which the Creator intended him to do; and any man who seeks more than this is a vain, proud man, and deserves to be disappointed.

But even should a man, for a time, gain applause greater than he really merits, what does it amount to? Does it make him a better or more useful man? No; it only flatters his vanity, and renders him more vain. Will that unmerited applause continue? No; the moment that man has passed away—yes, often before he has passed away—his lack of solid worth will be discovered and he will be despised by the very ones who helped to sound his praises, just in proportion to the extent to which he imposed upon them by his boastful and arrogant assumption of a merit which he did not possess.

The true man, therefore, should endeavor to know exactly his own ability, and then use that ability to do something worthy of commendation. This will secure for him all the applause to which he has any right, and such applause alone is lasting. Any applause beyond that which is really merited, is sickle, vain and perdurable, often turning into bitterness to punish the pride of the foolish individual who accepted it as due.

Notes by the Way

The Prefect of Discipline is but seldom called upon to exercise his authority in an unpleasant manner. We hope his office will yet be a sinecure.

The St. Cecilians have had their room fitted up in grand style, under the direction of Prof. Lyons, and with the aid of Mr. Pine's artistic skill. Why cannot other societies do likewise?

A professional gardener has been engaged to remodel the grounds in front and around the College buildings in accordance with the plan mentioned last week.

We received some copy this week with so many notices to "turn over," that we concluded the writer must have been under the impression that we formerly belonged to a circus—we didn't, however.

The great majority of our students show a determination to justify the expectations of their parents and friends by earnest attention to their studies and a strict observance of the regulations of the Institution. This is the best assurance they can give of an ability to fit themselves for honorable and useful positions in life. May they be successful.

One day last week the Thespians, accompanied by the Rev. Prefect of Discipline and a member of the Faculty, went on an excursion to Mr. Chirhart's, where they were most hospitably received, and spent the afternoon very pleasantly. After partaking of an excellent repast, at which each one did justice to himself, they returned well pleased and ready for work on the morrow.

Prof. von Weller has commenced his lessons in the general principles of design. One lesson of one hour is given every Friday to all in the Junior Department, and one lesson on every Tuesday to all in the Senior Department who desire to take instructions in the delightful art, and are not otherwise engaged at the time of the lesson. These lessons are given gratis.

The President, Rev. Father Lomnonier, visited some of the classes in company with the Director of Studies during
Mr. T. EWING of '68 has been with us since Wednesday. He is looking well and speaks hopefully of his prospects in Chicago.

Mr. A. W. Arrington of '69 spent a few days with us this week. His many friends at Notre Dame were delighted to see him and enjoyed his visit exceedingly. Mr. Arrington has been in the Government service at Washington since he left Notre Dame.

N. D. U. CORNET BAND.

Mr. Editor: In view of the fact that the Band has ever been an object of interest at Notre Dame, we feel confident that a brief account of its present status will be acceptable to your readers—quorum magna numerum lites, as Caesar would say. Be it known, therefore, to all whom it may concern, that our musical—not noisy—fraternity has been reorganized this year under very favorable auspices. Although anything akin to boasting is repugnant to our principles, we feel justified in saying that in numerical strength and musical ability we will compare favorably with our predecessors, who have in years gone by animated the "quiet halls of our Alma Mater" with the soul of harmony.

At our first meeting, which was held September 11th, the following officers were elected for the current session:

- Director—Rev. E. Lilly
- President—Rev. J. A. O'Connell
- Treasurer—Mr. John H. Gillespie
- Vice-President—I. L. Noonan
- Secretary—R. W. Staley
- Transfer—C. J. Dodge
- First Censor—W. Wallace
- Second Censor—C. Hodgson

We number also twelve members, exclusive of officers. Promising to make an effort, at least, to meet the expectations of our numerous friends, we bid you au revoir.

R. W. SLATERY, Secretary.

SALMAGUNDI.

MORE six-footers.

The well is finished at last.

New seats in the Seniors' play-hall.

The college halls look quite artistic.

The health at Notre Dame is excellent.

"All men are liable to make mistakes.

The new drop-curtains have been finished.

The weather deserves "One" for conduct.

The swings have been undergoing repairs.

Fine weather makes everyone feel likewise.

Fishermen have poor luck lately in our lakes.

Some want to make "hash" out of Salmagundi.

Some of the trees have lost their foliage entirely.

Christmas will come soon enough—don't worry.

Don't trouble yourself about the business of others.

Some fine new desks have been placed in the study-halls.

ALLEY-BALL and quoting take the lead of the other games.

The Muims have a walk from their study-hall to their new play-hall.

Touche in the "bars" are in constant use we have no tumblers as yet.

The two large trees which stood in the centre of the garden have been removed.

The well which is being sunk in the Juniors' yard is to be finished, so we can afford to wait a few weeks longer for a draught of the water.

The "pup" visited the study-hall one day last week, but was rather embarrassed at the reception he received.

The frost has destroyed much of the beauty of the Botanical Garden and withered the leaves on many of the forest trees.

The Band is the only society that is making any noise at present, and the sounds it gives forth are too harmonious to be called noise.

The students are much pleased with the kindness shown them by the officers of the College, and try to reciprocate it by their exemplary conduct.

Afternoon walks on recreation days are becoming popular again; the students continue to visit the farmers he cabins, and generally have a good time.

NEVER set yourself up for a Musician just because you have got a drum in your ear, nor believe you are cut out for a School-teacher merely because you have a pupil in your eye.

METEOROLOGICAL.—Though we have had some pretty rough weather this month, it has cleared away, and it would seem that an "Indian Summer" is before us. Overcoats have been laid aside and everyone feels rejuvenated; consequently no one can complain of the clerk of the weather now.

Seeing the Point.

A boy returned from school one day with a report that his school-days had fallen below the usual average, "Well," said his father, "you've fallen behind this month, have you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How did that happen?"

"Don't know, sir."

The laborer, it his son did not. He had observed a number of cheap novels scattered about the house; but he had not thought it worth his while to say anything until a fixing opportunity should offer itself. A basket of apples stood upon the floor, and he said:

"Empty those apples and take the basket and bring it to me half full of chips."

Suspecting nothing, the son obeyed.

"And now," he continued, "put those apples back into the basket."

When half the apples were replaced, the son said:

"Father, they roll off. I can't put in any more."

"Put them in; I tell you."

"But, father, I can't put them in."

"Put them in! No, of course you can't put them in.
Do you expect to fill a basket half full of chips and then fill it with apples? You said you didn't know why you fell behind at school, and I will tell you. Your mind is like that basket. It will not hold more than so much. And here you've been, the past month, filling it up with CHEAP DIET—cheap novels!"

The boy turned on his heel, and whistled, and said,

"Whew! I see the point."

Not a cheap novel has been seen in the house from that day to this.

INNOCENCE at HOME.—The Minims at play.

Long walks form a part of the daily programme.
The Academy now presents a front of two hundred and fifty.

The Circulating Libraries afford the very best sort of intellectual food during free hours.

One wing of the old Convent has been removed to the orchard north of the Academy and stands as a mem-entum of the past.
The general Drawing and Singing Classes are in full operation. Instructions given daily in the first principles of these arts to all the pupils.

The scene in the sewing circles on Thursday, recalls the following lines:

"The bright little needle, the swift little needle
The needle directed by beauty and art."

What is the difference between the death of a barber and a sculptor?
One curls and dies; the other makes faces and busts.

AN OPTICAL CURiosITY.—Here is a simple little experiment by which we can prove the existence of a blind spot in our eyes. Shut your left eye, and with the right one look steadily at the cross just below, holding the paper ten or twelve inches from the eye.

Now move the paper slowly toward the eye, which must be kept fixed on the cross. At a certain distance the other figure, the letter O will suddenly disappear; but if you bring the paper nearer, it will come again into view. You may not succeed in the experiment on the first trial, but with a little patience you can hardly fail, and the suddenness with which the black spot vanishes and reappears, is very striking. Now, examination has shown that when it disappears, its image falls exactly on the spot where the optic nerve enters the eye, thus proving that spot to be blind.
