THE SCHOLASTIC.

Devoted to the Interests of the Students.

Discere quasem semper victuras; vive quasem cras moriturus.

Volume VIII. NOTRE DAME, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 27, 1875. Number 23.

JNO. HAGERTY, L. G. TONG,

HAGERTY & TONG,
ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
REAL ESTATE and INSURANCE AGENTS,
Agents for Steamship Lines,
COLLECTIONS SOLICITED.
Odd Fellows' Block, South Bend, Indiana.

Before going elsewhere, go to

E. S. PECKS,
Dealer in
HATS, CAPS, TRUNKS,
Boys' Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods.
Cor. Michigan and Washington Sts., South Bend, Indiana.

D. J. HOLLAND, & Co.,
Wholesale Manufacturers of Havana and Domestic Cigars,
WHOLESALE JOBBERS and GENERAL DEALERS IN SMOKERS' ARTICLES.
100 Michigan St., South Bend Ind., 2314.

D. E. CUMMINS,
DENTIST,
No. 96 Michigan Street, South Bend, Indiana.
Over Wyman's.

Do you want a drive? Go to

BEN COQUILLARD'S
LIVERY STABLES
Corner of Michigan and Jefferson Streets,
South Bend, Indiana.

THE BOND HOUSE
Niles, Michigan.
A. McKay, Proprietor.
Free Hack to and from all trains, for guests of the house.

E. NICAR & Co.,
HARDWARE MERCHANTS,
118 Michigan St., South Bend, Indiana.
HEADQUARTERS FOR
Cutlery, Skates, Cartridges, Fishing-Tackle, Etc.,
Desk-locks, Padlocks, Japanned Boxes, Etc.,

V. NICAR,
DEALER IN HARDWARE,
91 Michigan St., South Bend, Indiana.
ALL SORTS OF
Cutlery, Yale Desk-Locks, Fishing-Tackle, Etc.
Also
Skates, Cartridges, Tin Trunks, Etc.

A. J. STACE,
COUNTY SURVEYOR,
Is now prepared to execute work in the Departments of Land Surveying, Grading, Hydraulics, etc.
Orders expeditiously attended to.
Office with M. Stover, Room 22, over Wills & Sterns
Washington St., South Bend, Indiana.

NATIONAL HOTEL,
South Bend, Indiana
At the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway Depot, opposite Studebaker's Wagon Works.
THOSE who patronize the National Hotel will find during their stay at South Bend all the comforts of home. Conveyances to and from the College and St. Mary's can be procured at the Hotel.
AUGUSTUS P. BAKER, Proprietor.

GEORGE HEHR,
FASHIONABLE TAILOR,
AND GENERAL DEALER IN
Cloths, Cassimers and Vestings.
No. 111 Michigan Street, South Bend, Ind.
(Up Stairs.) 34.

M. A. SMITH.
SMITH & HOLLOWAY,
Dealers in
BOOKS, STATIONERY, FANCY GOODS, Chromos, Pictures, Notions, Toys and Musical Instruments.
No. 77, Washington St., South Bend, Ind.

Palmier & Vanwinkle,
Dealers in
Confectioneries,
Musical Instruments, Gold Pens, School and Miscellaneous
Books, Stationery, Slates, Inks,
Newspapers, Periodicals, Magazines, etc.

Special attention paid to filling orders for Students.

P. Dubail,
Barber and Hairdresser,
71 Washington St., South Bend, Ind.

Mr. Dubail spares no pains to make his work satisfactory.
He will be in attendance every Wednesday at the College, at 9 o'clock A. M., to attend to all students desiring his services.

Dr. C. H. Middleton,
Dentist,
109 Michigan Street, South Bend, Indiana.

Edward Buysee,
Dealer in
Watches, Clocks, Jewelry, etc.,
76 Michigan Street,
South Bend, Indiana.

Repairing promptly done, and all work warranted.

A. Hanauer,
Nos. 33 & 34 Michigan Street,
South Bend, Indiana.

Dealer in
Ready-Made Clothing,
Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.

All goods sold are guaranteed.

Burke's
European Hotel.

M. Burke, Proprietor.

140 and 142 Madison Street.
(Between Clark and LaSalle.)

Chicago, Ill.

L. E. Mayr,
Engraver, Watchmaker, and Jeweller,
105 Michigan St., South Bend, Ind.

Special attention given to Fine Engravings, in Script and Old English, on Watches, Rings, and Badges.

Ireland & Son,
Proprietors of
Livery and Feed Stable,
No. 54 Michigan St., South Bend, Ind.
(Opposite the Dwight House).

Hack Line
To and from all trains to the Dwight House or any part of the City, and to the College and St. Mary's.

"The Nine Cent Store!"

See the Curiosities.
No. 114 Michigan Street, South Bend, Indiana.

The Old "Reliable"
Dwight House,
South Bend, Indiana.

Messrs. Knight and Mills having become managers of the above popular and reliable House, renovated, repaired and furnished it with new, first-class furniture. The travelling public may rely on finding the best accommodation.

Ladies and gentlemen visiting Notre Dame and St. Mary's will find here all the comforts of home during their stay.

Jerry Knight, Proprietor.

Popular Clothing House!

M. Livingston & Co.,
94 Michigan St., South Bend, Ind.,
We invite the attention of the public to our large stock of Fall and Winter Clothing

- AND -

Furnishing Goods,

Our stock is always large and carefully selected, and everything you want in our Line will always be found on our shelves.
Our Fall DRESS SUITS show an amount of pains-taking scarcely ever seen in Ready-Made or Custom Work. The Prices are MUCH LESS than the same material would cost if made to measure.
Money is scarce but Clothing is Cheap. If you don't believe it, drop in and see our Goods and Prices.

Our Merchant Tailoring Department is in full blast. We have a full Stock of Cloths, Cassimeres and Vestings, and we turn out the best Fits.
We sell for Cash, and our Prices are about One-Third Lower than any other house in the business.

Ice Cream! Soda Water! Oysters!

For the Best Confectionery, go to

Ed. Gillen's Restaurant,
99 Main Street, South Bend, Indiana.

Meals at All Hours!

Fruits, Nuts, Confectionery, and Choice Cigars, Always on Hand!

Fresh Candies Made Daily.

Removals

3rd and Market Streets,

South Bend, Ind.

$0.04 per word.
Facts Versus Fancy.

BY J. M. J. G.

IV.
While Peter's strong hand held the cimeter hark,
Which, like a dread comet, rushed mad on its track,
And blazed, horrid portent of Fate, through the skies,
Gleaming down upon nations untold destinies.
The empire of Charlemagne grew in its might,
Great Rome's ancient power wedded to Christian light;
The crown of the Cesars encreased the brow
Of a genius whose splendor disdained not to bow
To the Fisherman's mandate, whose heavenly claim
A king may obey without peril or shame.
In honoring Peter, great Cesar grew strong,
And neither inflicted nor suffered a wrong.
The king was the body, the Pope was the soul,
When you sang every song that a sycophant sings,
When you and your fautors were crawling on face
Of donkeys kicking dust up to dim the sun's light,
The devils themselves laugh with glee at the sight.
Bah! the creatures are at their vile lying again;
Human malice compels them to admire, till, at last
They carve out their chronicle, modern and new,
Who accused Truth Incarnate for Pharisee gold,
Where facts are made lie, like the witness of old.
So pigmies, ambitious of suffrage and fame,
Kill their souls with a lie for the sake of a name.
And if History rebuke them, both Gentle and Jew,
They care not for this chronicle, modern and new.
Where facts are made lie, like the witness of old,
Who accused Truth Incarnate for Pharisee gold;
Refute them completely; remove their false stain,—
Bab! the creatures are at their vile lying again;
The devils themselves laugh with glee at the sight,
Of donkeys kicking dust up to dim the sun's light,
The devils themselves laugh with glee at the sight.

William Collins.

William Collins, a lyric poet of the first rank, was born at Chichester, on Christmas Day, 1720. He was educated at Winchester School, and Queen's College and Magdalen's College, Oxford. His first production, "Persian Eclogues," published in 1742, were written by him at Winchester. He then set out for London, where he arrived in 1744, "a literary adventurer, with many projects in his head, and very little money in his pocket." He now published proposals for a History of the Revival of Literature, planned several tragedies, and sketched many works that never saw the light. Collins' greatest fault was irresolution; and the urgent and frequent call of necessity destroyed his schemes, and allowed him to follow no settled purpose. In 1747 he brought out his Odes, and though they were excellent productions, they were entirely neglected, and Millar, the publisher, lost much by them. Collins sank under this disappointment, and became indolent and dissipated. "The fair pointment, and became indolent and dissipated. "William Collins, a lyric poet of the first rank, was born at Chichester, on Christmas Day, 1720. He was educated at Winchester School, and Queen's College and Magdalen's College, Oxford. His first production, "Persian Eclogues," published in 1742, were written by him at Winchester. He then set out for London, where he arrived in 1744, "a literary adventurer, with many projects in his head, and very little money in his pocket." He now published proposals for a History of the Revival of Literature, planned several tragedies, and sketched many works that never saw the light. Collins' greatest fault was irresolution; and the urgent and frequent call of necessity destroyed his schemes, and allowed him to follow no settled purpose. In 1747 he brought out his Odes, and though they were excellent productions, they were entirely neglected, and Millar, the publisher, lost much by them. Collins sank under this disappointment, and became indolent and dissipated. "The fair pointment, and became indolent and dissipated. "William Collins, a lyric poet of the first rank, was born at Chichester, on Christmas Day, 1720. He was educated at Winchester School, and Queen's College and Magdalen's College, Oxford. His first production, "Persian Eclogues," published in 1742, were written by him at Winchester. He then set out for London, where he arrived in 1744, "a literary adventurer, with many projects in his head, and very little money in his pocket." He now published proposals for a History of the Revival of Literature, planned several tragedies, and sketched many works that never saw the light. Collins' greatest fault was irresolution; and the urgent and frequent call of necessity destroyed his schemes, and allowed him to follow no settled purpose. In 1747 he brought out his Odes, and though they were excellent productions, they were entirely neglected, and Millar, the publisher, lost much by them. Collins sank under this disappointment, and became indolent and dissipated. "The fair pointment, and became indolent and dissipated. "William Collins, a lyric poet of the first rank, was born at Chichester, on Christmas Day, 1720. He was educated at Winchester School, and Queen's College and Magdalen's College, Oxford. His first production, "Persian Eclogues," published in 1742, were written by him at Winchester. He then set out for London, where he arrived in 1744, "a literary adventurer, with many projects in his head, and very little money in his pocket." He now published proposals for a History of the Revival of Literature, planned several tragedies, and sketched many works that never saw the light. Collins' greatest fault was irresolution; and the urgent and frequent call of necessity destroyed his schemes, and allowed him to follow no settled purpose. In 1747 he brought out his Odes, and though they were excellent productions, they were entirely neglected, and Millar, the publisher, lost much by them. Collins sank under this disappointment, and became indolent and dissipated. "The fair pointment, and became indolent and dissipated.
to dwell on such dim and visionary objects, and his compliments to Tasso might well be applied to himself:

"Prevailing poet, whose undoubting mind
Believed the magic wonders which he sang."

In 1749, Collins received a legacy of £3,000 from his uncle, Colonel Martin, who had before befriended him. He now paid Millar the money that he lost by the Odes, and flung the remaining copies into the fire. His irregular life, combining with mortification and disappointment, had, by this time, unsettled his mind; and to avert the calamity he felt was impending, he travelled for some time in France, hoping to receive benefit from the change of scene. But he returned only to enter that sad mansion, a lunatic asylum; from which he retired to the home of his sister at Chichester. He died at Chichester, in the year 1737, at the age of thirty-six. "His troubled and melancholy career affords one of the most touching examples of accomplished youth and genius linked to personal humiliation and calamity" that throws its lights and shadows on our literary annals. All Collins' works are imbued with a fine ethereal fancy and purity of taste; and though they are small in number and amount, they are rich in vivid imagery and beautiful description. The Odes On the Passions, To Evening, To the Brave, To Mercy, and On the Death of Thomson, will never be forgotten. Collins himself thought but little of his Persian Eclogues, as he thought they were not expressive enough of Asiatic manners and customs. Langhorn considers them to be the best of English pastoral poetry. He says that in simplicity of description and expression, in delicacy and softness of numbers, and in natural and unaffected tenderness, they have no equal in anything of the pastoral kind in the language. They have not the occasional obscurity and remoteness of expression that in part pervade the Odes; and they charm one by their figurative language and descriptions, the simplicity and beauty of their dialogues and sentiments, and their musical versification. His Odes, although at their first appearance they were utterly neglected, have in the course of a single generation been acknowledged to be among the best productions of the kind in the language. "Silently and imperceptibly they are risen by their own buoyancy; and their power was felt by every reader who had any true poetic feeling." The popularity of the Odes seems to be on the increase, but the want of human interest and action in Collins' poems prevent their being generally read. The Ode on the Passions, and the Ode to Evening, are the finest of his lyric works. The former is but a gallery of fine allegorical paintings, and the poetical diction is as audible throughout. As Indians, their ingenuity surpasses that of the Indians themselves,—but this is not what I was going to say. At the first sight of them, a new gleam of hope was enkindled in my gentle bosom. They all had little hatches. Would they not now do something or say something worthy of G. W.? Would not the elder Washington himself come in and bless them! Alas! disappointment's vampire wing again flapped rudely against the sweet delusion, blotting it from the convolutions of my surging brain. One more chance! "Cherry Bounce!

Surely that is the same kind of tree, and there must be something in it. Vain—worse than vain—stale and unprofitable the thought! It was in fact the final expression of their evident resolutions to bounce the cherry-tree story altogether. But can we stand this? Can we sleep after it? Can we suffer so venerable, so pathetic, so instructive anecdote to sink into oblivion? Methinks I see the majestic cherry-tree, with its trunk of three-foot diameter, lying on the ground, severed by a single blow of the little hatchet, while the youthful hero stands proudly by, surveying the work that his athletic early training and innate robustness have enabled him successfully to accomplish. Then comes in the astonished and delighted father, to whose query as to how so large a tree could have been laid low without any appearance of chips whatever, George makes his celebrated answer: "Father, I cannot tell a lie, I did it with my little hatchet." To whom again the parent: "Son, if thou hast not kindly informed me that thou couldst not tell a lie, I should never have believed this; but seeing it is as it is, why, go on, young man, in thy noble course, and thou wilt assuredly become one of the greatest rail-splitters of the age." And there was joy that evening in the Washington plantation, and jorumns of rum were served out to the negroes, for neither Abolition nor Baxter's Law then prevailed, and everybody was happy, and the little hatchet was placed in the family archives at Mount Vernon, and the stump of the cherry-tree still remains, a warning to all, to no one a pattern.
Such is the beautiful anecdote, to omit which was the hellish design of the Thesopian Society on the late occasion. But I have unmasked their villainy, and if I have convinced one faithful heart that the hammer of Thor is not dearer to the Scandinavian than is the little hatchet of Washington to the true American, whether naturalized or unnaturalized, my labor has not been in vain.

Slider Dam.

A Bad Habit.

There is a habit very common even among men who pretend to good breeding, which is deserving of the keenest rebuke,—I mean the habit of saying unnecessary and disagreeable things. Were your enemy or mine to tell us we are idiots or fools, our first impulse would be—and not without reason—to knock him down. Then why do we suffer a similar insult from the lips of one whom we regard as a friend? The only possible answer, in keeping with our reputation as men, is, that he did not mean it. It was only his careless way of speaking,—a facetious remark, which means just the reverse. Facetious, indeed! that is all very well, but what right has any man in keeping with our reputation as men, is, that he did not mean it. It was only his careless way of speaking,—a facetious remark, which means just the reverse. Facetious, indeed! that is all very well, but what right has any man to call you a fool when he means to praise you? Is our language so barren that it necessitates the employment of the same word for two contradictory terms? If so, let us multiply our vocabulary, and the sooner the better. There is not where the trouble rests: it is in ourselves, who suffer either friend or foe to address us in the language of opprobrium; and it is in those whose defective breeding permits them to make use of such epithets. In view of this, I cannot help admiring the Western code, which makes it a capital offence for one man to call his brother a thief or a pirate, or a fool, or any other derogatory title, and the sentence is instantly carried into effect by means of a revolver, or long knife, in the hands of the injured man. Let us fancy that rule introduced into the University regulations, and contemplate the awful result of its salutary operations. For the first few days there would be an average, at the very least, of one funeral an hour. The undertaker would be the busiest man in the country. But those who remained would have advanced one step nearer the high level of the true gentleman, and have learned upon compulsion what the ordinary experience of a whole lifetime would have failed to inculcate. And let me assure you, candid reader, that there are multitudes of great, ignorant, important, overbearing, self-made fellows—who are not gentlemen, and never will be unless treated to some such sanguinary discipline as that which I suggested. Obtnness of sensibility and an inflexible self-will are the prominent features of their characters. Whatever they have to say is said without any regard for the delicacy of their auditors—constrained witnesses of their vulgarity; whatever they have to do is done in the same autocratic, offensive manner; and yet such men will wonder,—and depurate the fact that they are not popular. Popular! they ought to be horsewhipped every day.

What a contrast is the true gentleman! No danger of mistaking the one for the other. The lion is seldom confounded with the bear. The real gentleman is always courteous, always kind, even though he suffer for it, always attentive, always considerate. He never takes advantage of your personal frailties to say disagreeable things,—to pierce every delicate fibre of your being with the barbed shafts of a malignant wit. He never hastens to acquaint you with an unpleasant truth, the hearing of which you would wish to defer, and which you would hear, least of all from him you value as a friend. He never adopts the facetious pleasantry of calling you an ignoramus, an impostor, a fool, emphasizing each pet name with an oath—which is the common practice of the present day. He never presumes upon friendship to degrade you in your own estimation, to such an extent as to cause you, afterwards to wonder how you forebore kicking him into the middle of the street. He remembers that you are endowed, like the rest of the human family, with a certain amount of pride—call it vanity if you will—and it is from that delicate, subtle instinct which teaches him caution in the use of language that we derive the definition of the term—gentleman. But there are unpleasant truths which we must hear, and who so fit to break them to us as a friend who loves us. When necessity commands, when duty renders it imperative, the true gentleman hesitates not, but with all the skill of the experienced surgeon, tenderly binds up the wound which he was compelled to make in order to save life. Such cases seldom happen; for our enemies, and not less vigilant imprecident friends, are always alert to hasten with the first tiling of misfortune—to be in at the death”—as the English say. It is perhaps, as well for us that our enemies should be the first to tell us of our failings, for it is an unpleasant duty to impose upon a friend, the old adage: “We seldom forgive those who destroy our air-castles,” is not altogether devoid of truth. It is adage which grows out of our intense love of self, and unless that be totally eradicated, we cannot seriously take the proverb to task.

The Vatican.

It has been asked us Why St. Peter’s at Rome called the Vatican? In answer to the question, we give the following reply: First, as to the etymology of the word Vatican: Vaticanus comes from vaticinare, to prophesy, to make divinations, from voles a seer, a prophet, a soothsayer; second, as to the application of the word Vatican, a certain class, or order of pagan priests, among the old Romans, under the name of aurispices, or auguries, had established themselves, and erected an “oraculum” or temple, in the early days of the Roman Republic, on the then western outskirts of the city, and at the foot of one of the primitive seven mountains or hills of Rome, the “Julicium.” Then those priests delivered their oracula, or divinations, from the inspection of the entrails of animals killed in sacrifice, or from the flight of birds. However, the little mound or hillock where they dwelt took the name of “edes,” or “Mons Vaticanus,” which constituted under Aurelian, and afterward, the twelfth mountain of Rome. How providentially fit it was that the infallible voice of Christ’s Vicar on earth should be heard in a place built on the very ruins of a pagan temple, served by most fallible priests, who uttered naught but false oracles,—the devil’s answers to foolish inquiries of a benighted and heathenish people.

Third. As to the origin of the Christian Vatican.

When, in Rome, the Church emerged from the Catacomb the faithful, under the lead of the noble Emperor Constantine, and the great Pope St. Sylvester, began
The ambitious man what the tendency of his works upon majorities are actuated by the latter. Yet why should man by the former motive, we need not hesitate to say that the eyes of others? Though some, perhaps, many are actuated the good name and happy tranquility of mind enjoyed by designs: or is it rather the vanity of appearing great in the estimation of their faculties in the accomplishment of some great purpose of bettering the condition of mankind is truly If he can only enjoy an extraordinary popularity. This passion is indeed sometimes so great as to deaden every sense of right or justice; it often seems to matter little to the ambitious man what the tendency of his works upon his fellow-beings may be, either at present or in the future, if he can only enjoy an extraordinary popularity. This passion is so highly developed in some keen, restless individuals that they would much rather enjoy the triumph of a notorious burglar or confidence man, than the good name and happy tranquility of mind enjoyed by an honest peasant.

The disposition to employ our talents and abilities for the purpose of bettering the condition of mankind is truly a praiseworthy motive, but is it this magnanimous spirit which prompts the majority of men to so arduously engage their faculties in the accomplishment of some great designs? Or is it rather the vanity of appearing great in the eyes of others? Though some, perhaps, many are actuated by the former motive, we need not hesitate to say that the majority are actuated by the latter. Yet why should man thus seek for renown? No man who seeks for popularity ever enjoys anything like the degree sought for—"With fame in just proportion envy grows, The man that makes himself a name, makes foes,"

Of those who have accomplished anything worthy the gratitude of their fellow-men, how few were recognized as great during the time of their existence? They have lived as great men only in the minds and estimation of future generations, whose dark path through life has been made more luminous by the light, emitted from the intellects of their illustrious predecessors.

The true glory of great men is like the light emitted by the more remote fixed stars, which shine for ages before their light is perceptible to us; and whose light, were they, like man, to pass away, we should enjoy for centuries after they were destroyed.

T. H. G.

Reading.

At the present time, when nearly everybody reads, and there is a such a large number of books, we should try to bear in mind that the object of reading is to form a taste for reading. Reading, though generally very profitable, has, like everything else, its dark side; for it is sometimes very injurious, and a great many weak people have been ruined on account of reading bad books.

Reading is injurious when we read for mere pastime, and have no particular object in view,—either to increase our knowledge, or further any other end that would be of benefit to ourselves; and it is also injurious when we read good books without paying heed to what they are or what they contain.

We should, therefore, be careful in selecting reading matter, and always choose books containing the most knowledge,—such as books of travel, biographies, select poetical works, and all such works as are at the same time interesting and instructive. We should also read books on science, because they tend to increase our practical information, and are generally entertaining; and because from perusing them we learn a great many things that will be useful to us hereafter.

Another thing about reading is the manner in which we read. We should pay great attention to what is contained in the book; and if it be well written, we should also pay particular attention to the style, and thereby cultivate a good style for ourselves. If there is any passage in the work which strikes our attention as being particularly good, we should make note of it immediately, and have it for future reference. After we have read a book, we should endeavor to recollect the substance of what is contained in it, and see whether or not we have derived any benefit from its perusal. It is well for several persons to read a book together, and afterwards converse about the subject matter, as in this way they will derive more benefit than otherwise.

It would be a good thing if all, especially young persons, were more careful in their selection of reading matter, and would read only such books as contain knowledge, teach virtue, and are well written, because there are a great many books which, under a fine form, contain a great deal of wickedness. We should, therefore, be very careful to read only such books as will increase our wisdom and our worth, and make us learned and honorable men. If we do this we shall never repent of it hereafter.

Mack.
Society Notes.

—The 45th regular meeting of the Columbian Literary and Debating Club was held Feb. 7th. At this meeting, Messrs. Ratigan, Sindle and McNulty were unanimously elected members. The semi-annual election then took place, which resulted as follows: Director, Rev. P. J. Colvin; President, Prof. T. F. O'Mahony; Vice-President, N. J. Mooney; Recorder, Secretary, J. Campbell; Cor. Secretary, E. L. Ratigan; Treasurer, H. H. Hunt; Censor, J. E. Marks; Sergeant-at-arms, T. C. Logan.

—At the 40th regular meeting of the Columbian Literary and Debating Society the following subject was debated: "Which is the More Important Source of National Prosperity, Agriculture or Commerce?" The following were the debaters: affirmative, H. H. Hunt and J. E. Marks; negative, G. Crumney and W. S. Meyer. The President, after hearing the arguments, decided in favor of the affirmative. The meeting then adjourned.

Musical Notes.

—The Orchestra is composed of the following pieces: 4 first violins, 4 second violins, 1 viola, 1 violincello, 1 contrabass, 1 flute, 1 clarionette, 1 cornet, 2 French horns, and 1 trombone,—making 17 in all. We understand that four or five more pieces will be added in a short while.

—Father Frère will soon commence practicing his singers for Holy Week.

—Prof. Paul deserves great praise for the interest which he takes in the Vocal Class.

—The "Unknown," the singing-club of which we did not know the name, is progressing nicely.

—The Overture of "A Day in Vienna" and a pot pourri, both by Suppé, were played by the Orchestra on Tuesday night. We learn that everybody is delighted with the Orchestra this year.

—The air of the German song played by the Band at the Exhibition was well rendered.

—"Remember Deeds of Kindness" is the title of a simple little song, with a chorus, just published by F. W. Helmick, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Scientific Notes.

—Two French savans have presented to the French Academy the result of their experiments upon a flame produced by the mixture of sulphur of carbon and binoxide of nitrogen. The light produced by it is so bright as to quite eclipse the sun. By the help of it, photographers will be able to do their work at any hour of the day or night, and in any condition of the atmosphere.

—Prof. Purser believes that the moon in revolving around the earth, and drawing the tides behind her, causes the latter to act as a break on the revolution of the globe, and he considers that it may be mathematically shown that this action is slowly but surely checking the earth's speed of rotation, so that the days and nights are gradually lengthening. In a thousand million years or so they may become each a month long.

—The work on the St. Gothard Tunnel is advancing slowly. At the beginning of November over ten thousand feet had been completed, and there yet remained over fifty thousand feet to be opened.

—The uses of the pine leaf or needle are most varied and ingenious. This vegetable product is now woven into a coarse flannel, said to possess curative properties. It is also used instead of hair in upholstery. A medicinal oil is extracted from it, and from the refuse a lighting-gas may be made, or it may be pressed into bricks for fuel.

—The delicate chemical balance has lately been added to the list of surveyors' instruments, and by its means the number of acres in an irregularly-shaped surface may be computed in an extremely simple and yet minutely correct manner. Its mode of application is as follows: The plan of the desired territory having been first measured and reduced by scale to paper, is then cut out and carefully weighed. A portion of the same paper—that is, paper of the same weight and thickness, is then cut to a size that will represent one acre, and its weight recorded. It is evident, therefore, that by dividing the weight of the paper that represents, in outline, the whole section surveyed, by the weight of that which represents one acre, we will have, as a quotient, the number of acres and fraction of an acre in the whole. It is said that this way of measuring surfaces gives less trouble, less calculation, and less liability to error, than any other easy method.

—The King of Siam has written a most cordial letter to the President of the English Royal Astronomical Society, inviting the astronomers of England to his realm to observe the total eclipse of the sun on the 5th of April next.

—Quito, as computed from various observations taken between the years 1715 and 1870, is approaching sea-level at the rate of 240 feet in 123 years.

—The whistle blown from Cape Foucher, during foggy weather, is distinctly heard at the distance of seventeen miles in calm weather; six to ten in stormy weather; twenty-nine with a favorable wind; six to ten with contrary winds. In the history of the range of sound, it is a well-known fact that the cannonade of Waterloo was heard at Creil, a distance of one hundred and twenty-one miles from the field of battle.

—An accurate analysis of certain Chinese and Japanese bronzes, disclosing the presence of lead, in some cases as high as twenty per cent., has enabled M. Moore to produce a bronze resembling the finest productions of China and Japan.

—The following quaint astronomical communication is taken from a series of old English letters published in the Academy:

"17th Oct., 1723.

"This morning Dr. Halley, King's Professor of Astronomy, gave ye Lord Chancellor an account of ye Blazing Star y' hath appeard sev' evenings past. It rises at 7, & is discernible in some measure by ye naked eye, but by ye help of Telescopes, they can Discern ye Star in ye Middle of what appears like a Blaze."

—The tomb of Augustus at Rome is to be used for a theatre. The ex-Emperor retains his private box.

—A chap from the western part of the State went to bed at one of the hotels the other night, and blew out his gas instead of turning it off. The gas rushed out, the room was close, and in about half an hour the smell became so strong the stranger got out of bed, opened the door, and shouted for the clerk. The clerk came up and demanded to know what was up. "I never stopped in Detroit over night before," replied the stranger, "and I don't know but this smell is all right, but it 'pears to me as if something had busted somewhere."
The Scholastic.
Published every Week during Term Time at NOTRE DAME UNIVERSITY.

All communications should be sent to Editor Scholastic
Notre Dame, Indiana.

TERMS:
One year ...................................................... $1.00
Single copies (5 cts.) can be obtained at the Students' Office.

The Scholastic for the 2nd Session.
The subscription price of the Scholastic for the second session of six months is fifty cents; besides which all new subscribers are requested to send ten cents for postage, making in all sixty cents.

Address: Editor of the Scholastic, Notre Dame P. O., Ind.

-In our last number, we took occasion to say a word or two in reference to the disgusting picture of Père Hyacinthe in the Illustrated Annual of Phrenology and Physiology; this week we wish to speak of another article in the Annual, which attacks the confessional.

It is hard nowadays to argue any question with our dissenting brethren. Take, for instance, the confessional as a subject. You prove the doctrine by the Fathers of the Church, and they tell you that they do not believe in tradition; you show it by the Scriptures, and they tell you that this is where they differ from the Scriptures. You are forced to prove, to the generality of Protestants, that the Bible is inspired before you can hold any argument with them; for as soon as they are beaten with the Scriptures they tell you that they do not believe in tradition.

It is true they profess great love for the book, they take it as their rule of faith, it must be read by their children and all that, but the generality of non-Catholics do not have that deep veneration for the Bible that Catholics have. This is the truth, no matter how many times it may be denied.

Hence we scarcely know how to make a reply to the slurs of the Annual upon the confessional. If we mistake not, most of the readers of the publications of Mr. Wells, the Editor, belong to that large class of people who take the Bible to be a very good book, but by no means an inspired one. The only thing that we can do, then, is to show that there is nothing in the confession of sins which is degrading to man, as a writer in the Annual asserts, but that it is eminently adapted to meet a great want in man's nature.

We are not surprised when we hear that persons who have committed great crimes make public confession of them. Why? Because it is natural for the mind of man to seek for relief by manifesting its guilt to others. Often when persons are condemned to death for murder they will seek some one to whom to confess their crime. The novelists make use of the remorse which goes to desperation the unhappy perpetrators of crimes; and the relief which they seek for, they endeavor to obtain through a confession of their sins to another. Now if persons desire so ardently to confess heinous crimes to persons who have no power to do them good, simply because their nature demands it of them, in what is the confessional degrading to man if it affords him an opportunity to make this confession? And we should recollect that when he makes this confession in the Sacrament, he knows that some good can be done him; that the most heinous of crimes can be forgiven, and that his conscience, eased of the load which bore so heavily upon it, may be completely calmed, and encouraged to a better life.

Besides, the Sacrament though it does not debase man renders him humble. Sin, no matter of what kind, is human pride rising up against God. Man knows the consequence of his sin, yet he commits it against God. What leads him to act in this manner but pride? And what is there more in accordance with justice than that the sinner should confess in humility, to another, the fact that he has outraged and insulted God on His Eternal Throne? When any person here is insulted publicly, he is not content to receive a secret satisfaction: it also must be public. So long, then, as you believe that there is a God, you must admit the justice of confession of sins. As you sinned against God in the presence of man, you must confess your sin to God in the presence of man.

-The obligation of Catholic parents subscribing for good Catholic papers becomes apparent when we pick up such papers as the Illustrated Annual of Phrenology and Physiology, and other journals of the kind. It might happen that, in months, eleven of the numbers have nothing injurious to morals or contrary to faiths, and the twelfth one has; of weekly papers, three each month may be entirely unobjectionable, and the fourth contain poison enough to destroy the souls of all who read it. Just precisely what month in the year, or week in the month, the numbers will be printed, no one knows—it comes in time into the Catholic family, and it works its influence for evil upon the minds of the children. Papers in which there are false statements and insinuations against the Church and her teachings are sent broadcast over the land. Papers of which the morals are of a doubtful character are displayed for sale in every newsdealer's window. Many persons innocently enough subscribe for them, and take them home for their families to read. The parents see nothing harmful in them at first, and afterwards when attacks are made on their religion they think it enough to tell their children not to believe what has been asserted. But the paper does its work, and the child's mind is ruined. When the child has become unmanageable, they wonder why he will not attend his religious duties. But they need not wonder that such a thing happens. It was the paper for which they subscribed that did it, and the parent is responsible.

What all persons should do is to aid the Catholic press. Children and young men should be educated up by their parents, and by those in charge of them, to read Catholic papers, and be so taught, that when they are grown up they will be well educated in their religion. Newspapers are great teachers, and Catholic newspapers have a great field for labor. They have their share to do in teaching truth, and right well do most of the Catholic papers do it. But they must be supported, in order that they may extend their usefulness; and parents owe them the duty of neglecting the ordinary secular papers in order to patronize these papers of their own faith.

We were led to make these remarks because we learn that it is intended to start a reading-room here for the use of the students. We do not know what will be the fee required of all wishing to frequent it, but we suppose and hope that it will be moderate, so as to induce all to make use of the papers. We expect to see in the course of a month or so all the many Catholic papers, together with Donnison and our monthlies, on the tables of the room. Besides, a few English and Irish papers would not be out of place there.

—At the present time, when the whole world is agitated with the questions raised by Gladstone, it is well for us to see what the Popes have taught with regard to the rights of the Holy See. A few days ago we came across the declaration of Pius VI, of venerable memory, in a letter to the Catholic Bishops of Ireland. After referring to the calamities of the detractors of the Church, "that the Catholic Church is by no means compatible with the safety of kings and republics, because the Roman Pontiff, being the Father and Master of all Catholics, and invested with such great authority that he can free the subjects of other kingdoms from their oath of allegiance to kings and princes," and thus cause disturbances and injure the public tranquility of kingdoms, he goes on to say: "The See of Rome never taught that faith is not to be kept with the heterodox:—that an oath to kings, separated from the Catholic Communion, can be violated:—that it is lawful for the Bishop of Rome to invade their temporal rights and dominions. We, too, consider an attempt or design against the life of kings and princes, even under the pretext of religion, as a horrid and detestable crime."

After showing what was the doctrine taught by the Apostles and practised by the early Christians, viz.: "Be ye subject to every creature for God's sake, whether it be to the king as excelling, or to governors, as sent by him, for the punishment of evil-doers, and for the praise of the good; for so is the will of God, that by doing well you may silence the ignorance of evil men," he says: "The Bishops of Rome, successors of Peter, have not ceased to inculcate this doctrine, especially to missionaries, lest any ill will should be excited against the professors of the Catholic faith, in the minds of those who are enemies of the Christian name. We pass over the illustrious proofs of this fact, preserved in the records of ancient Roman Pontiffs, of which yourselves are not ignorant. We think proper, notwithstanding, to remind you of a late admonition of the most wise Pope Benedict XIV, who in his regulations for the English missions, which are likewise applicable to you, speaks thus:—"The Vicars Apostolic are to take diligent care that the missionaries behave on all occasions with integrity and decorum, and thus become good modes to others; and particularly that they be always ready to celebrate the sacred offices, to communicate proper instructions to the people, and to comfort the sick with their assistance; that they, by all means, avoid public assemblies of idle men, and taverns . . . . The Vicars themselves are particularly charged to punish in such manner as they can, but severely, all those who do not speak of the public Government with respect." He then shows how the Catholics have ever obeyed their rulers, and concludes, after quoting the words of St. Augustine: "Let those who say that the doctrine of Christ is hostile to the Republic produce an army of such soldiers as the doctrine of Christ has required; let them furnish such inhabitants of provinces, such servants, such kings, such judges, finally such payers of debts and collectors of the revenue, as the doctrine of Christ enjoins; and then they may dare to assert that it is inimical to the republic: rather let them not hesitate to acknowledge that it is, when practised, of great advantage to the republic."

—The late European papers announce the death of Dom Prosper Gueranger, Abbot of Solesmes. After a glorious record of forty years' labor in the Benedictine Order, he has departed this life to receive his reward from the God for whom he labored.

Dom Gueranger was born in Mans, in 1805, and was in the 60th year of his age. From his youth he was destined for the priesthood, but did not enter the Benedictine Abbey of Solesmes until the year 1830. He produced his Notice sur l'Abbaye de Solesmes, in 1839, and his Liturgie des Institu- tions in 1843. In his liturgical work he gives a faithful and lucid history of the Liturgy from the Apostolic times down to our own day. He had a fixed purpose in view when writing not only his "Liturgical Institutions" but also his "Liturgical Year." Both works were intended not only as historical but also polemical. It was his object to attack Gallicanism and to defend the rights and prerogatives of the See of Rome. And he performed his task well, in spite of great opposition from the Gallican clergy. He took up the cause in the Univers, and in each issue he showed up, with terrible sarcasm and biting wit, the indifferentism of Gallicanism. By means of his writings, the Gallican Liturgy was driven from the churches, and the Roman Liturgy, instead of being neglected and despised by the French clergy, was introduced into all the churches, Paris, the stronghold of Gallicanism giving way a little a year ago.

During the sitting of the Vatican Council his pen was busy, and the course of the Univers was directed by him. Everyone recollects the bold course taken by that paper, and its influence was felt in every part of France, and not alone in France, but throughout the world. It, under his able management, was the great champion of papal rights and papal infallibility.

Dom Gueranger has written other books besides those above mentioned and the articles in the Univers. M. Girard having assailed his "Liturgical Institutions," the illustrious Abbot published a reply which was followed by a cutting sequel, in which, with extraordinary ability, he defended the course which he had taken in his great work. In 1830, he published a work entitled "The Immaculate Conception," and in 1853, he wrote the charming "Life of St. Cecilia." In 1852, he penned an "Essay on the Origin, the Signification and the Privileges of the Medal of St. Benedict," and in 1889, an "Essay on Contemporary Naturalism."

The knowledge of his death will be sad news to the many Ultramontans or Catholics throughout the world. He was the leader of the hosts of France, in their struggle with Gallicanism and infidelity, and well may they of that nation regret his death. His name was the pride of the Benedictines who followed faithfully his celebrated dictum: "The ancient Benedictines may have been Galli­ cans—the new ones will certainly be Ultramontans."

The Exhibition.

Without exception, everybody, we believe, was pleased with the Exhibition given in Washington-Hall, last Tuesday night, by the members of the Theosophical Association. The Entertainment was given in honor of Washington's Birthday, but took place on the 23rd in order that the students might have an occasion to rest themselves on Wednesday morning, and thus lose none of their usual study hours.

Washington-Hall was festooned with evergreens, which gave a charming appearance to the old Hall, in which so many Thespians, Cellicans, Columbians, and Philopatrians, in days gone by, have entertained delighted audiences.

On the entrance of Very Rev. Father General and other invited guests, the Band struck up a lively quickstep in a manner which does credit to the young gentlemen who form this organization. The Band is well organized this year, and has in it some capital players. At other times during the evening it gave us some choice selections.

The Orchestra, although there have been some changes in its personnel, played with its usual spirit and taste. To judge from the hearty applause which was given to it, the Orchestra is fast becoming a favorite with Notre Dame audiences. And this fact does honor both to the musicians and to the audiences. The music played by the orchestral performers is very difficult and classical. All persons know how intolerable classical music is when played badly, and hence in order to receive the frequent applause it did, argues that it executed it well, and thus reflects honor on the players. At the same time it shows that the taste of the audience is becoming refined and educated.

The Gillespie Choral Union gave us but one chorus, "Hark! Hark! Apollo Strikes the Lyre," which was well rendered. Our vocalists are improving greatly, and under the vigilant care and excellent training of Prof. Paul will be able to give us much more singing between this time and next June. Later on in the evening, one of the members, Thos. M. O'Leary, sang a solo, "Angel so Fair." Mr. O'Leary had been suffering from a severe cold for several days before the Exhibition, and something of a hoarseness was still in his voice, yet he sang with good effect and expression.

The oration of the day was delivered by Mr. E. J. McLaughlin, who accomplished his task in a very pleasing manner. The composition of the oration was very good, his delivery graceful, and his voice of proper strength, which enabled all in the hall to bear him with ease. The declamation of Jos. P. McHugh, later in the evening, was middling.

The Drama acted was "The Brigand," remodelled for the occasion. The roles were all well filled. Mr. Staley, as Massaroni, played with spirit; Prince Bianchi (J. J. Gillen) entered fully into his role, while Mr. McLaughlin (Nicolò) made an excellent old man; Albert (T. J. Murphy) pleased all by the rendition of his part, while Theodore (J. E. Kelly) kept the audience in good humor by his coolness and devotion to art when in the greatest danger. The other characters, Pietro (J. G. Ewing), Octavio (W. Ball), Count Carrafa (E. J. Graves), Fabio (T. H. Grier), Rubaldo (B. Evans), Spoleto (J. F. Rudge), Carlott (C. M. Proctor) and Yager (H. C. Cassidy), were acted with spirit and ease. The Drama was well received by the audience, who testified their appreciation by frequent rounds of applause.

The Grand Modoc War-Dance by the materialized spirits of Captain Jack, and other Modoc Braves, was received with shouts of laughter. It was a good take-off on the Indian war-dances of the week before.

Then the Entertainment was concluded by the farce "Cherry Bounce." All the parts were well rendered by the actors. Mr. McLaughlin, (Mr. Oldrents), Mr. Staley (Gregory Homespun), kept the audience in continual laughter; while B. Evans, (Gammon), T. Grier, (Spinage), E. J. Graves, (Old Homespun) and F. Devoto (the Doctor's boy) made the laughter uproarious. After a few remarks from Rev. Father Colorin, the audience left the Hall, well pleased with the display of talent to which they had been treated.

Too much praise cannot be given to Prof. J. A. Lyons, who had charge of the Exhibition. It is generally the case that the person who superintends an Exhibition does not get his proper credit. If those having parts act well, the instructor gets no credit for it,—it is given entirely to the actors; if the Exhibition is a failure, the blame is laid wholly on the shoulders of the director. This is not right. Give honor and credit to whom honor and credit are due. The credit of a good Exhibition is due to the actors and to the director equally. Take smart and able students and a poor director, and there is failure. Take poor players and an able director, and failure will also follow. But let able players have an able director and success is assured. Hence, although we give the young men their full share of credit for their exertions, we wish to state that the amount we give to Prof. Lyons for his labors in behalf of the exchange.

Personal.

[We will give each week a great number of Personals, for the purpose of letting the old students know the whereabouts of their former comrades.]

—Joe Shanks, of '73, is in Milwaukee, Wis.
—Abraham Michaels, of '52, is in St. Louis, Mo.
—J. Nash, of '71, is now living in Milwaukee, Wis.
—Alanson Stephens, of '37, is in Kansas, doing well.
—Oliver Tong, of '74, was at the College on the 23rd.
—William W. Wilson, of '53, is now in New York city.
—Charles B. Smith, of '35, is in New Mexico, practising law.
—We were pleased to see Bro. Emmanuel at the Exhibition.
—Byless Goldsberry, of '57, is still living in Indianapolis, Ind.
—Charles Williamson, of '54, is now living in San Francisco, Cal.
—Rev. Father Planagan, of South Chicago, was with us on the 23rd.
—W. J. Graham, of '87, is in the publishing business in Ottawa, Ill.
—Rev. Father Benoit V. G., was at the Exhibition on Tuesday night.
—Mrs. and the Miss Sherlands were at the Thespians' Entertainment.
—Rev. Father Provincial returned from Milwaukee last Saturday night.
—Richard Maher, of '74, is doing a flourishing business in Watertown, Wis.
—Frank Murphy and lady, of South Bend, were at the Exhibition on the 23rd.
—Hon. Claude Riopelle, of '61, now in Detroit, we learn has a large law practice.
—Charlie Campanu, of '73, and Oliver Tong, of '74, are occasional callers at the Collee.
—Mrs. Charles Walsh, and T. Walsh her son, Mr. Clarke of Chicago, and Mr. W. Hoke of Grand Rapids, Mich., were at the Thespians' Exhibition.
—We were pleased to see our friend Mr. Dowling, of Laporte, at the Thespians' Exhibition.
—Rev. John G. Ehrenstrasser, of Grand Rapids, was at the Exhibition given by the Thespians on Tuesday night.
—Rev. D. Tighe, of '70, Rev. T. O'Sullivan, of '37, and Rev. W. O'Reilly, of '60, were at the Exhibition on Tuesday night.
—James O'Brien, graduate of '59, has a successful prac-
The little volume on "Dante and the Divina Commedia," for sale at the Office, is very interesting.

Large additions to the circulating Library have been made during the past few weeks. Subscribe to it.

But one Diana Novel was found in the students the other day. This ep ska well for the students.

Under the rule of the College, when-er recreation is given on any class-day in the week, there will be class on Wednesday morning.

The Philistons are on the war-path. The will certainly carry off the prize of Purge Prairie, next Spring if Enuste does not interfere.

It was fun to see the boys go to the Pay-Hall from the recfextory last Tuesday afternoon. There was ice and water everywhere, and none was fit to drink.

We are happy to be informed that most of the students, are giving themselves to serious reading. This is one of the fruits of the Circulating Library.

A large portion of the Juniors, with their great and brave chief, Kiz-r-a-lie-tal-am-ing, better known as Pulaski, gave a war-dance on the ball-alley of the Junior Yard.

The article on "The October" written for the Scholastic, is going the rounds of the Catholic Press; so alters "Hall! Pius;" some of the "Essays on Eloquence" and other articles. every issue of the Scholastic furnishes some closing for the Catholic papers. The Scholastic is appreciated, and we hope to make each issue of it more interesting.

All persons desiring to make bavmings in books should call on Eastman & Bartlett, No. 132 South Clark st., Chicago, Ill. Mr. Bartlett, who has charge of the book-department, is a perfect gentleman; and, as books can be purchased of this firm for less money than they can at any house in Chicago, we recommend all our friends to give them a call.

The design of title-page of the new cover in which the Ave Maria of this week appears, is the work of Mr. E. Forbes. 15 Clark Street, Chicago, II. Mr. Forbes is an excellent engraver and designer, and has done his work in beautiful and artistic manner. We feel assured that the many readers of the Ave Maria will feel thankful to him for his handsome work.

The following books have been added to the Lemonier Circulating Library: Moral Tales, (Edgeworth); Uncle Tom's Cabin, (Stowe); The Nastini, (Uncle Paul); Newman's Reply to Gladstone; Lovers' Works, 3 vols.; British Poets, Chaucer, 6 vols.; Spencer, 5 vols.; Milton, 3 vols.; Churchill, 2 vols.; Butler, 2 vols.; Cowper, 3 vols.; Burns, 3 vols.; Prior, 3 vols.; Pope, 3 vols.; Swift, 3 vols.; Dryden, 5 vols.; Young, 3 vols.; Thompson, 3 vols.; Watj, Survey, Collins, Falconer, Akenside, Beattie, Parnell, & sk-speare, Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine from 1867 to 73.

It was hot. There were the steam-pipes steaming away and the perspiration rolled down our friend John's cheeks, and then he declared he wouldn't stand it any longer. He raised the window and as he stood enjoying the cool breeze, his hand slipped, and down came the window. Now the window-sash falling is nothing unusual, if you haven't got your finger caught. But such a thing gives one all the importance in the world. Such was our friend John's case, and he roared for help, and squirmed around as though he were on the rack. And he says that if ever a man labors under a temptation to say rough words it's under just such circumstances.

Our friend John is somewhat of an equestrian. The other day he went to a farmer hereabouts, to get a horse, to ride to town. The farmer gave him one which never stood, and he started off on his back before. To look big, our friend John insisted upon having a pair of spurs strapped on his boots. Everything went on very well until it occurred to him that the horse might go a little faster; so he prodded the beast with his spurs. Up went the horse into the air, giving John a good shaking, when his feet came to the ground. To hold on, he brought his two feet in under the horse, and then there was another jump. Again the spurs were brought under and then there was a succession of small jumps.
THE SCHOLASTIC.

of jumps by the horse, while John held on to the mane, proding the poor horse with his spurs, until at last, after turning three somersaults in the air, our friend John was landed into a hedge-fence. Crawling out as best he could, he held the horse on a center homewards, and now he says horseback-riding doesn't agree with him.

—Our friend John went into the compositors’ room saying that it was “nothing to set type.” He was handed the following from Roosevelt: “An Iowa man has invented a twobarreled shot-gun, and the face of the small boy, who didn’t know it was loaded, is fairly radiant with a hideous leer of barrelled shot-gun, and the face of the small boy, who didn’t know it was loaded, is fairly radiant with a hideous leer of.

The pamphlet of Mr. Gladstone has caused many excellent treatises to be written on the Infallibility of the Pope. His pamphlet although intended to produce harm to the Church by causing schism, has had the contrary effect. There are many men who do not rightly understand what is meant by Infallibility, and who, heretofore, since they never read Catholic books, were unable to be rightly informed concerning it. The pamphlet of Mr. Gladstone made the way open by which information could reach these men; for, causing a great sensation by the startling charges which it made, newspaper men became anxious to give their readers, not only the views of Glads-stone, but those of such men as Dr. Newman, Archbishop Manning, Mgr. Capel, and other Catholics. The consequence is, that many persons who have heretofore been in the dark are enabled to see what is really meant by Papal Infallibility.

The reply of Archbishop Manning to the assertions of Gladstone is in every way worthy of the man. From the opening page to the last, everything is made as clear as could be desired; in a calm, dignified manner, in every way worthy of a Bishop of the Church, he answers all the passionate and even insolent attacks of a man mortified and stung to fury by defeat. We have not the space to take up his arguments chapter by chapter, nor indeed to give a general outline of the book. Besides, to do so, would not give our readers a sufficient idea of it. It should be read wholly and entirely, and not in piecemeal. Proc-cure a copy of the book, and you will believe as we do.

—THE BLESSED VIRGIN, AND THE DIVINA COMMEDIA OF DANTE.

We have received, from the Rev. translator, a copy of this excellent work, which first appeared in the pages of the Ave Maria. All Catholics who are lovers of literature should be rejoiced at this translation, which gives us such an insight into the true spirit of Dante’s immortal poem. The philological and literary comments of the Divina Commedia are, in this work, almost entirely neglected, but compensation for this is made by the successful endeavor of the author to fathom its main thought and to enter into the spirit in which the illustrious poet of Italy wrote his poem. We are sorry that the name of the pub-der does not appear on the title-page, and that the price is not given. We will learn in a few days from whom the volume may be purchased, and make it known to our readers, that they may procure copies of this excellent work. The students, however, can procure copies at the Students’ Office; price, 80 cts.

Roll of Honor.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT.

W. Armstrong, T. Baca, F. Brady, J. Berrenger, J. Brown,
F. BEars, T. Cochrane, J. Caron, J. Cullen, G. Crumney, H.
Cassidy, J. Claffey, T. Carroll, M. Clarke, W. Canavan, F. Devoto, B. Debeery, B. Evans, J. Ewing, M. Faley, C. Faeve, F.
Farrell, J. Fiszevity, P. Guilfo, B. Graves, T. Gallagher, J. Gil-en, E. Gault, H. Hoyt, C. Hesse, A. Herz, H. Hunt, J. Handley, J. Hogan, H. Hoffman, W. Huches, J. Kennedy, A. Kennedy, J.
Kopf, M. Keeler, J. Kelly, G. Kelly, F. Keller, T. Logan,
A. Louvotf, J. Larin, A. Lawrence, J. Lyons, J. Logsdon, M.
McCormack, G. McNelly, M. McPharlin, E. Mass, E. Mass, P.
Montgomery, W. McSavan, J. Mathews, E. Monohan, J. Mc-gan, J. Rudge, M. Ruggan, P. Scabell, F. Schlink, W. Schulruh, F. Shaub, E. Siebert, W. Stortz, J. Vermont, C. Walters, White, R. White, J. Whalen, C. Wiemer, P. Wiemer.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT.
A. Bergec, G. Budd, A. Burger, J. W. Connolly, J. Crummey, E. Courtney, J. Dorr, J. Dolcevichio, R. Downey, L. Evarts, E.
Evans, J. French, F. Foehn, T. Foyler, G. Greer, J.
Griffith, J. Grinton, E. Grunclings, F. Huffman, C. Halle, H.
Harvey, M. Kramer, J. P. Kurring, H. Korry, A. Leitelt, F. Rohs, E. Quarbon, E. Sargent, J. Leitelt, G. E. Leucht, J. Lynch, F.
McBride, R. McGrath, H. McGuire, M. Minton, M. Murphy,
Quinn, W. Smith, T. J. Soltan, T. Summers, C. J. Whipple, J.
E. Wood.

MINIMUM DEPARTMENT.
Francis Carlin, Walter Cunningham, Edward Raymond, Ralph
Golsen, Colby Clarke, John O'Meara, Francis McGarrah, Lee J.
Frazee, Samuel Goldsberry, William Lindsay, Eddie J. Dubois,
William Cash, Frances Campan, Henry Ordway, John DuBfild, Hugh Colton, Charles Bushey, Colby Campan, Albert Bushey, Harley McDonald.

Class Honors.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25.

COLLEGIATE COURSE.
Senior Class—T. H. Griar, T. J. Murphy, C. Walters, J.
Hogan, E. J. McLoughlin.
Junior Class—S. Graves, F. Doroto, E. S. Moonahan, T. H.
Gallagher, J. Caen, J. J. Quenley.
Sophomore Class—H. Cassidy, E. Emons, J. Brown, T.
Hann, G. Cunningham.
Freshman Class—A. Moore, E. Ewing, R. Eman, E. Mc-
Puirdun, M. Krueger, F. Foley, J. Rudge, J. Kopf, J. C. Caen, J. Handley, T. McNamara, J. Mathews, R. Mass, J. Ney, E.
Lyons, J. Cullen, W. Barn.

MINIMUM DEPARTMENT—Edward Raymond, Michael McAnliffe,
Otto Lindbergh, Francis Carlin, Lee J. Frazee, Robert Halsey, Walter Cunningham, John DuBfild, Hugh Colton, William Van
Peit, William Lisagor, Harley McDonal, Henry Ordway, Louis
Goldsmith, Charles Bushey, Sylvester Bushey.

List of Excellence.

[The Students mentioned in this list are those who have been at the head of the Classes named during five consecutive weeks, and whose conduct has been at least satisfactory.—DIREC-TOR
of STUDIES.]

SAINT MARY'S ACADEMY.

ADDITIONAL ARRIVALS.
Miss D. Cavenor, Wineseller, Iowa.
Miss A. Mahony, Lake Forest, Ill.
Miss K. Morris, Jackson, Mich.

—Mrs. Walch, of Chicago, has been passing a few days at St. Mary's.

—Miss Emma Kirwin, a graduate of 1870, is a visitor at the Academy.

—Miss Emily Playandon, a former pupil, and graduate in her class, is here on visit.

—Many thanks to Hon. D. D. Pratt, of Indiana, for the fifty volumes of Scientific and Congressional Reports so generously-donated to St. Mary's Academy Library.

—On Washington's Birthday, the young ladies of the Senior Department gave an Entertainment in the Study-hall. The St. Stag's Dogged Banner was beautifully sung by the Vocal Class. The Introductory Address, was given by a very diminutive figure, with the command of a strong voice. A composition by one of the graduates, was then recited. Father General praised the Entertainment.

ANT NOTES.
Miss Belle Wade has finished some small shells very beautifully in water-colors. They are drawn with accuracy, and the pearly tints are given with exquisite-purity and delicacy. Miss Wade seems to be particularly happy in the use of water-color tints. We have seen several things from her brush remarkable for the qualities named above.

—Miss Amelia Koch has been promoted from the fifth to the fourth class in pencil-drawing. Miss Katie Morris has entered the list for artistic honors in the Drawing Department, taking the first place, of course, in the

—The Tableaux on the evening of the 22nd were worth-yourment of mental in the Art Notes. The last in the series, illustrating the relation of the blessed Virgin to Wisdom,
for all learning and all science, was particularly happy.
The five tableaux illustrating the holy life of Father
Hewitt of Hungary were of great beauty as to conception and were acted with true feeling. The Mater Dolorosa, was rendered still more touching by the simple chant of the Subut Mater during its representation.

As these mystical subjects, treated according to the spirit of mystical art, passed before our eyes; as we saw them performed by young girls who are supposed to have very little relish for religious subjects; saw them performed, not as mere representations but as mystical events, with charms of expression that was really wonderful; we could not not but think how much tableaux, rightly conducted, can do to improve not only the artistic sense, but the religious sense. We should be glad to see Tableaux made a part of the artistic training of every school, as they are in the Roman College, so as to develop the aesthetic capacities, which, in this country, are dormant in too many instances. It through an entire life. It is the lack of this aesthetic sense on the one hand, and the possession of it on the other,
which makes the indescribable difference between the old
European countries and our own. It pervades the air of which, in this country, lie dormant in too many instances. It through an entire life. It is the lack of this aesthetic sense
on the one hand, and the possession of it on the other,
which makes the indescribable difference between the old
European countries and our own. It pervades the air of which, in this country, lie dormant in too many instances. It through an entire life. It is the lack of this aesthetic sense
on the one hand, and the possession of it on the other,
which makes the indescribable difference between the old
European countries and our own. It pervades the air of which, in this country, lie dormant in too many instances. It through an entire life. It is the lack of this aesthetic sense
on the one hand, and the possession of it on the other,
which makes the indescribable difference between the old
European countries and our own. It pervades the air of which, in this country, lie dormant in too many instances. It through an entire life. It is the lack of this aesthetic sense
on the one hand, and the possession of it on the other,
which makes the indescribable difference between the old
European countries and our own. It pervades the air of which, in this country, lie dormant in too many instances. It through an entire life. It is the lack of this aesthetic sense
on the one hand, and the possession of it on the other,
which makes the indescribable difference between the old
European countries and our own. It pervades the air of which, in this country, lie dormant in too many instances. It through an entire life. It is the lack of this aesthetic sense
on the one hand, and the possession of it on the other,
which makes the indescribable difference between the old
European countries and our own. It pervades the air of given, not only from one side, but at a sufficient height to increase only, not to destroy, all the previous effects of light and shadow!

When the Greek fire alone is used, it should be placed a little higher, if possible, than the head of any of the actors.

By a reasonable attention to this simple rule of light and shadow, the effect of the most charming mystical tableaux will be increased to a degree hardly appreciable until it has been tried. Let us have more tableaux, then!

TABLE OF HONOR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 21.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT.
For Politeness, Neatness, Order, Amiability, Correct
Department and strict observance of academic rules,
the following young ladies are enrolled:

GRADUATING CLASS—Misses M. Walker, A. Curtin, L.
Ritchie, A. Lloyd, J. Kearney, A. Smith.
1st Sr. Class—Misses G. Walton, A. Clarke, J. Fanning,
W. Foote, E. Donnachy, K. Joyce, L. Arnold, J.
Sidson, A. St. Clark.
2nd Sr. Class—Misses A. O'Connor, A. Walsh, L.
Ritchie, L. Wyman, J. McGuire, E. York, A. Diller, F.
Diller, J. Bennett, M. Faxon, E. Dougherty, J. Nunning, D. Wade, M. Julias, M. Dunbar, M. Brady, L. Johnson.
3rd Sr. Class—Misses L. Kelly, A. Harris, M. Walsh, K. Hutchinson, M. Quill, R. Neteler, P. Gaynor, A. Byrnes,
M. Roberts, B. Spencer, K. Spencer, K. Greenleaf, E. Mann,
M. Poquette, M. O'Mahony, A. Duncan, S. Hole, M. Shiel,
M. Carlin, K. Case, L. Gaynor.
1st Prep. Class—Misses M. and E. Thompson, C.
Morgan, S. Moran, M. Hutchinson, H. Parks, S. Edes, L.
Edes, M. McK., N. McFarland, S. Cunningham.
2nd Prep. Class—Misses J. Riopelle, E. Edes, S. Reising, E. Botsford, L. Gustine, L. Ryan, G. Wells, F. Wells,
L. Johnson.
3rd Prep. Class—Misses C. Maigrey, L. Brownbridge,

HONORABLY MENTIONED IN ENGLISH LESSONS.

GRADUATING CLASS—Misses M. Walker, A. Curtin, M.
Wicker, L. Ritchie, E. Hagerty, A. Lloyd, J. Lockie, J.
Kearney, R. Green, A. Smith.
1st Sr. Class—Misses G. Walton, A. Clarke, J. Fanning,
H. Foote, M. Riley, K. Joyce, J. Stimson.
2nd Sr. Class—Misses A. O'Connor, M. Daley, A.
Walsh, L. Ritchie, L. Wyman, J. McGuire, E. York, A.
Diller, F. Diller, J. Bennett, M. Faxon, E. Dougherty, 3rd Sr. Class—L. Kelly, A. Harris, M. Walsh,
R. Neteler, P. Gaynor, L. Henrotin, A. Byrnes, B. and K. Spencer, M.
Bryson, B. Wilson, K. Greenleaf, M. Poquette, A. Duncan,
S. Hole, M. O'Connor, M. Carlin, M. Shiel, P. Gaynor,
M. O'Mahony, L. Fisk.
1st Prep. Class—Misses E. O'Connor, M. Thompson,
E. Thompson, C. Morgan, S. Moran, M. Hutchinson, H.
Parks, S. Edes, L. Edes, M. Prior. M. McKay, A. McFarland, D. Cavenor, A. Pool, E. Lange, A. Cullen, B. Golson.
2nd Prep. Class—Misses J. Riopelle, E. Edes, E. Botsford, J. Brown, H. Peak, A. Allen, L. Gustine, L. Ryan,
G. and P. Wells, L. Johnson.
3rd Prep. Class—Misses C. Maigrey, L. Brownbridge,
M. Railton, L. Bosch.
1st Prep. Class—Misses I. Yates, C. Yates, L. Kirchner,
A. Goewey, A. Edw., W. Mann, M. Walsh, N. McGraft,
M. Hoffman, E. Lappin, C. Orr.
1st Jr. Class—Misses A. Peak, I. Mann, K. Hudson,
A. McGrath, M. Boll, M. Hughes, C. Hughes, M. Derby,
E. Swanston.
2nd Jr. Class—Misses R. Goldsberry, Y. Mier, and L.
Schwartz.

MINIM DEPARTMENT.
Misses A. Ewing, N. Mann, I. Mann, C. and M. Hughes,
R. Goldsberry, Y. Mier, L. and A. Schuurter.

A Memory.
We knelt in the quiet chapel,
The zeppers moved gently through,
And the wings of all were laden
With fragrance of morning dew.
And one of them bore a fragment
Of delicate thistle bloom,
Which, pure as the wings that bore it
Floted silently through the room.
It glanced from its airy shelter,
On the knecling forms below,
Then floated softly downward,
Like a pure white flake of snow.
But the odor of prayer ascending,
Like incense before the throne,
Sent forth from the realm of love,
Bore it to realms unknown.
O, was it a white-winged angel,
Sent down from the realms above,
Under that guise to carry
To heaven, sweet pleadings of love
Unseen and unheard are those angels,
God's love for His creatures provides:
Gladly they bear to His precious
Sweet words: but naught else besides.
Lovingly patient, they tarry,
Awaiting the contrite tone,
Then slowly, and sadly ascending
With tears they approach the throne.
With tears tell the dismal story,
Of an unsnarted heart,
Of a heart sin-stained and weary,
Forgetting the "better part."
But this white-winged spirit soared
Through the hazy upper air,
With a speed which showed no sorrow,
Only loving, grateful prayer.
L. B.

Plain sauce—An interview with a Saratoga hotel clerk
A strong-minded woman will always be speaktr of the house.
Many "play the knave" without ever going to a card-

Reticence may not be considered sound sense, but it is good sense.

How unjust it is to accuse a bald-headed man of putting

On false hair.

How to make good puffs—Send the publisher fifty cents a line for them.

Many "play the knave" without ever going to a card-

table.

To publish fifty cents a line for them.

The financial pressure is loosening. Even the days are not so "short" as they were.

An editor may not be religious, but he generally has an umbrella which keeps lent.

We knock in the quiet chapel,
The zeppers moved gently through,
And the wings of all were laden
With fragrance of morning dew.
And one of them bore a fragment
Of delicate thistle bloom,
Which, pure as the wings that bore it
Floted silently through the room.
It glanced from its airy shelter,
On the knecling forms below,
Then floated softly downward,
Like a pure white flake of snow.
But the odor of prayer ascending,
Like incense before the throne,
Sent forth from the realm of love,
Bore it to realms unknown.
O, was it a white-winged angel,
Sent down from the realms above,
Under that guise to carry
To heaven, sweet pleadings of love
Unseen and unheard are those angels,
God's love for His creatures provides:
Gladly they bear to His precious
Sweet words: but naught else besides.
Lovingly patient, they tarry,
Awaiting the contrite tone,
Then slowly, and sadly ascending
With tears they approach the throne.
With tears tell the dismal story,
Of an unsnarted heart,
Of a heart sin-stained and weary,
Forgetting the "better part."
But this white-winged spirit soared
Through the hazy upper air,
With a speed which showed no sorrow,
Only loving, grateful prayer.
L. B.
ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.

SAINT MARY'S ACADEMY, under the direction of the Sisters of the Holy Cross, is situated on the St. Joseph River, eighty-six miles east of Chicago, via Michigan Southern Railroad, and two miles from the flourishing city of South Bend. The site of St. Mary's is one to claim the admiration of every beholder. It would appear that nature had anticipated the use to which the grounds were to be applied, and had disposed her advantages to meet the requirements of such an establishment. Magnificent forest trees, rising from the banks of one of the most beautiful rivers in the Mississippi Valley, still stand in native grandeur; the music of bright waters and healthful breezes inspire activity and energy, while the quiet seclusion invites to reflection and study. For Catalogue, address

MOTHER M. ANGELA,
St. Mary's Academy,
Notre Dame, Indiana

JAMES BONNEY,
PHOTOGRAPHER,
COR. MICHIGAN AND WASHINGTON STS.,
OVER COONEY'S DRUG STORE,
South Bend, Indiana.

Mr. Bonney will be at his old stand at the College every Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock. He has on hand photograph of the Professors of the University, members of the College Societies, etc., etc., Which he is prepared to furnish to all desiring!

CANDY! CANDY!
THE LOW PRICES STILL CONTINUE AT
P. L. GARRITY'S
CANDY FACTORY
100 Van Buren Street, Chicago.

Broken Candy - - - - - 15c.
Fine Mixed Candy - - - - - 25c.
Choice Mixed Candy - - - - - 35c.
Caramels - - - - - - - - - - - 35c.
Molasses and Cream Candy - - - - - 25c.
Proportionately Low Prices to Wholesale Cash Buyers.

Sent by mail on receipt of price.

THE CATHOLIC PUBLICATION SOCIETY,
LAWRENCE KEOHE, General Agent.

9 Warren Street, NEW YORK.
Notice to Advertisers:
The Publishers will receive a limited number of Advertisements for "THE SCHOLASTIC," and have arranged upon the following list of prices:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name of Advertisement</th>
<th>Price</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>One Page</td>
<td>$1.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>One Column</td>
<td>.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Half Column</td>
<td>.10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>One-Third Column</td>
<td>.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>One-Eighth Column</td>
<td>.10</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Address:
M. R. AND S. M. RAILWAY.

On and after Sunday, Dec. 1, 1875, trains will leave South Bend as follows:

GOING EAST.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8:35 a.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 1), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 9:00 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10:12 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 10:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11:57 a.m.</td>
<td>Local, Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 12:00 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:35 p.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 2), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 3:00 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:44 p.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 3), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 6:00 p.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

GOING WEST.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:23 a.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 4), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 11:30 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:23 p.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 5), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 2:00 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:01 p.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 6), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 4:00 p.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7:00 p.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 7), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 7:00 p.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*Except Sunday. *

Michigan Central Railroad.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.

Taking effect December 29th, 1874.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8:45 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 9:00 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10:15 a.m.</td>
<td>Express, Leaves Chicago at 10:30 a.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTRE DAME STATION.

Going East, via Niles.

Depart—5:07 a.m. 6:38 a.m.; 9:07 a.m. 7:40 p.m. \(\text{except Sunday} \)

Going West, via Niles.

Depart—5:30 a.m. 9:42 a.m. *

*Trains marked thus * run Sunday only.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8:10 a.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 1), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 8:30 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9:15 a.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 2), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 9:30 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:16 p.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 3), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 2:30 p.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

DOUBLE TRACK RAILROAD.

PITTSBURGH, FORT WAYNE AND CHICAGO.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3:00 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 3:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:45 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 4:00 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:30 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 4:45 a.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PENNSYLVANIA CENTRAL.

DOUBLE TRACK RAILROAD.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5:30 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 5:45 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6:00 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 6:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6:30 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 6:45 a.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PITTSBURGH, FORT WAYNE AND CHICAGO.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>7:00 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 7:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7:30 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 7:45 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8:00 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 8:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PITTSBURGH, FORT WAYNE AND CHICAGO.

TRAINS leave West Side Union Depot, Chicago, near Madison Street Bridge, as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8:15 a.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 1), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 8:30 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9:15 a.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 2), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 9:30 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:16 p.m.</td>
<td>Express (No. 3), Main Line, Leaves Chicago at 2:30 p.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PITTSBURGH, FORT WAYNE AND CHICAGO.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3:00 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 3:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:45 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 4:00 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:30 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 4:45 a.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PITTSBURGH, FORT WAYNE AND CHICAGO.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5:30 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 5:45 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6:00 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 6:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6:30 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 6:45 a.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PITTSBURGH, FORT WAYNE AND CHICAGO.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Train</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>7:00 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 7:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7:30 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 7:45 a.m.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8:00 a.m.</td>
<td>Mail, Leaves Chicago at 8:15 a.m.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Second day.